THE

Evangelical Expoſitor:

OR, A

COMMENTARY

ON THE

HOLY BIBLE.

WHEREIN

The Sacred TEXT of the OLD and NEW TESTAMENT is inſerted at Large; the Senſe Explained; and the more difficult Paſſages Elucidated:

WITH

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS.

ALSO

References to Parallel Scriptures: the Marginal Readings; and a Chronology.

For the Uſe of Families and Private Chriſtians of every Denomination.

By the Reverend THOMAS HAWEIS,

Rector of Aldwinckle, Northamptonſhire, and Chaplain to the Right Honourable the Earl of PETERBOROW.

VOL. II.

LONDON:
Printed for EDWARD and CHARLES DILLY, in the Poultry, near the Manſion-Houſe.
MDCC.LXVI.

MVSEVM
BRITAN
NICVM

P R E F A C E.

THE prophetical books of the Old Teſtament, properly ſo called, are generally divided into the greater and leſſer prophets, not that there ſubſiſts any difference in their inſpiration, but with reference to the length of their ſeveral prophecies, the firſt four being far more voluminous than the ſixteen latter.

The word Prophet is, by the learned, uſually derived from an Arabic word, ſignifying to be lifted up; becauſe, like men on an eminence, the prophets were enabled to deſcry diſtant objects beyond the reach of others ſight; or as raiſed to a ſtate of high dignity, by this diſtinguiſhing mark of divine favour; or as ſtanding above their audience, that they might be better heard. The word ſignifies alſo to publiſh, or deliver a meſſage; it being the chief employment of theſe divinely inſpired miniſters, not merely to predict future events, but alſo to deliver God's admonitions to the people; to remonſtrate againſt their ſins; to invite them to repentance, and return to God; and to denounce the wrath of God on the obſtinately impenitent.

Prophesying, taken in the more enlarged ſenſe, includes all the exerciſe of God's gifts in ſpeaking, preaching, prayer, or ſinging pſalms, ſee Exod. vii. 1. 1 Cor. xiv. 1—32. Gen. xx. 7. 1 Cor. xi. 4. 1 Chron. xxv. 1—3. 1 Sam. xix. 20. but more ſtrictly, is uſually confined to the foretelling things to come, or declaring the paſt, preſent, or future events, which were ſo concealed and ſecret, as to be incapable of being known but by divine revelation; and in this ſenſe chiefly the prophecies before us are to be regarded, where the chief matter is the prediction of future events, interſperſed with divine admonitions, doctrines, conſolations, and inſtructions.

The learned Witſius defines Prophecy to be "A knowledge and manifeſtation of ſecret things which a man "attains, not from his own ſagacity, or the relations of others, but by an extraordinary revelation from "heaven." A knowledge, becauſe it was not merely their organs of ſpeech which were employed, but ſuch a clear copy of the truth revealed was imprinted on their minds, and their intellects preſerved ſo entire, that what they delivered they underſtood, as a man deſcribes in words the thoughts of his own mind. A manifeſtation, becauſe what was revealed to them, they were appointed to declare to others. The things were ſecret, ſuch as no human reaſon could have known and foreſeen, nor any learning have taught; and therefore, though there ſeem to have been ſchools of the Prophets very early eſtabliſhed; ſeminaries where young men were trained up in ſacred knowledge, and employed in religious exerciſes; and out of theſe God might ſometimes ſelect particulars for the extraordinary work of revealing his will; yet it was not always the caſe, God's choice in this matter being ſovereign, and he ſending by whom he would ſend. Amos was not a prophet by education, nor the ſon of a prophet by birth, or from the ſchools, but a herdſman, when God ſent him to prophecy, Amos vii. 14, 15. For prophecy came not in old time by the will of man, but holy men ſpake as they were moved by the Holy Ghoſt, 2 Pet. i. 21. who conveyed the revelation of God's will to their mind, by ſecret impulſe directed and conſtrained them what and how to ſpeak; and when his divine afflatus was withdrawn, they were no more acquainted with the ſecrets of God than other holy men.

The ways in which this divine inſpiration was conveyed to their minds were by viſion, or dream, Numb. xii. 6. whether ſleeping or waking, by day or night, by external appearances to their bodily ſight, or repreſentations made to their imagination, by angelic miniſters, by ſecret impulſe or an audible voice, by ſymbols and and figures; of the meaning and deſign of which they were informed, and inſtructed how to explain them to others; and herein they were under the immediate and ſupernatural guidance of God. An inſtance or two there is wherein God made uſe of evidently wicked men to prophecy, as Balaam, Numb. xxiv. 17. and Caiaphas, John xi. 49—52. but in all other caſes, the perſons ſelected were men as eminent for their piety, as diſtinguiſhed by their prophetical character.

Prophecy began almoſt with the creation; in the antediluvian world Adam, Enoch, Noah poſſeſſed that high gift; Abraham, Job, Moſes ſucceeded; after a conſiderable interval it revived in Samuel, and was continued in a ſucceſſion of holy men, raiſed up by God, till the canon of the Old Teſtament cloſed with Malachi, lachi, more than three hundred years before our Lord's appearing; when in John the Baptiſt, his forerunner, the prophetic ſpirit was reſtored; and in the Revelation of John the Apoſtle, the viſion and prophecy were finally ſealed up.

The great ſubjects of the prophetic writings are,

1. Chriſt, his perſon, offices, and character, his incarnation, humiliation, ſufferings, with the glory which ſhould follow; and theſe deſcribed with ſuch minuteneſs reſpecting the time, place, with all the circumſtances of his afflicted life, miſerable death, glorious reſurrection, aſcenſion, and future judgment, that when we compare them with his hiſtory in the New Teſtament, we ſee them ſo exactly fulfilled in Jeſus the ſon of Joſeph, that nothing but judicial blindneſs, and wilful rejection of the truth, can leave a ſuſpicion in the mind, but that this is he that ſhould come, neither look we for another.

2. His church, the perpetuity of it, amidſt all the variety of attacks made on it by men and devils, and the final triumphs of the truth over all the powers of darkneſs and error.

3. The people of the Jews, their various captivities, ſufferings, reſtoration, preſent diſperſion, and their expected converſion in the laſt days.

4. The kingdoms of the earth, the riſe and fall of the four great monarchies, the Babylonian, Perſian, Grecian, and Roman; together with the particular fate of the nations bordering on Judea, the Egyptians, Philiſtines, Edomites, Ammonites, Tyrians, &c. whereunto may be added, the fall of the Ottoman Empire, the ruin of all the antichriſtian powers, and the ſeat of the papacy; events which remain yet to be accompliſhed.

5. The great doctrines of ſalvation and redemption through the offering of Jeſus, and the various duties of all God's people, ſtrongly inculcated, and enforced by admonitions, cautions, exhortations, conſolations; and this with ſuch ſublimity, purity, ſimplicity, and uniformity, as carries the ſtrong and ſtriking evidence of the divine authority from whence they proceed.

That there ſhould be many paſſages in the prophets difficult to be underſtood, cannot be wondered at, when many of the events predicted wait for the comment of time to explain them: but by prayer, meditation, and diligent comparing ſcripture with ſcripture, we may, through the aſſiſtance of that bleſſed Spirit who dictated the prophecies, come to the underſtanding of them.

The learned Vitringa, in his Typus Doctrinæ Propheticæ, has laid down ſeveral rules or canons, very uſeful and helpful in inveſtigating the true ſenſe of the prophets, which I ſhall not think it too much labour to tranſcribe, and are as follow:

1. In all interpretation of prophecies, care and pains muſt be taken, and means uſed, in the firſt place, that the ſubject of the prophecy may be truly known; whether the prophet ſpeaks of himſelf, or of others; and whether of things in his own time, or of things to come; and of theſe, whether he ſpeaks of them properly and literally, or improperly and figuratively; See Acts viii. 34.

2. That we may come to an accurate and diſtinct knowledge of the ſubject, we ſhould diligently attend to all the attributes and characters which are applied to that ſubject in the prophecy: for, if the ſubject is not mentioned by name, it may be found out by the characteriſtics of it; ſuch are many of the predictions concerning Chriſt; and if it is expreſsly named, it ſhould be enquired, whether it is to be taken properly or myſtically; or partly properly, and partly myſtically; as when any one by name is ſpoken of, as a type of the Meſſiah.

3. From the literal ſenſe of the ſubject, when called by its own proper name, we muſt never depart; if all the attributes, or the more remarkable, noted, and principal ones, agree with the ſubject of the prophecy, this rule is of conſiderable uſe in the prophecies concerning Iſrael, Judah, Babylon, Egypt, Tyre, and others.

4. If the attributes by no means agree with the ſubject expreſſed in the prophecy by its own name, we muſt think of another ſubject anſwerable to it, which is myſtically called by this name, becauſe of the agreement between the type and the antitype; examples of this are in Edom, Iſa. lxiii. 1. in David, Jer. xxx. 20. Ezek. xxxiv. 23, 24. in Elijah, Mal. iv. 5.

5. If, in prophecies, the ſubject is treated of under its expreſs name, ſo that it will bear both the proper and myſtical interpretation; and the attributes of the prophetic diſcourſe are ſuch, that ſome of them more rightly agree with the ſubject myſtically taken; and others are more rightly predicated of it, in a literal and grammatic ſenſe; we muſt take the ſubject of the prophecy not to be ſimple, but complex; and that the prophet, being acted and illuminated by the Spirit, ſo ſpeaks, as that he would be underſtood of both; and the reader is to be adviſed of the myſtical or allegorical ſenſe, as wrapped up in the literal ſenſe: thus, in many of the prophecies concerning Egypt, Babylon, Tyre, and Edom, there are ſuch auguſt and magnificent things, which, if properly taken, will admit but of a very poor and barren expoſition; and therefore it muſt be preſumed, that the Holy Ghoſt deſigned ſomething more, and to lead our minds to ſpiritual Egypt, &c. and ſo

ſometimes, ſuch grand things are ſaid of the people of the Jews returning from the Babyloniſh captivity, and of ſuch bleſſings beſtowed upon them, as neceſſarily oblige us to look out for a further accompliſhment in redemption by Chriſt, and the ſpiritual bleſſings of grace beſtowed upon the people of God under the goſpel diſpenſation; ſpecimens of which may be ſeen in Iſa. lii. 1, 2, 3. Jer. iii. 14, 15, 16.

6. In continued prophecies, which are not diſtinguiſhed one from another by titles or inſcriptions, we ſhould carefully attend both to the beginning and end of the prophetic ſermons; both to the epocha of the time in which the ſcene of the prophetic viſion is fixed, and its termination: the former of theſe eſpecially has its uſe in the ſermons of Iſaiah, which follow the fortieth chapter of that book.

7. It is probable, that thoſe prophecies, whoſe terminus a quo demonſtrates the beginning of the time of Chriſt's kingdom, and the terminus ad quem, the end of that time, give a narration of the chief things that ſhall befal the church in a continued ſeries, unleſs any thing hinders, which obliges us to go back to former times. The interpretation of the prophecy of Iſaiah, from chap. liv. 1. to chap. lx. 22. depends on this foundation. The beginning of this prophecy, without all doubt, is to be applied to the beginning of the kingdom of Chriſt; the term or end falls upon the moſt flouriſhing ſtate of that kingdom, which is to follow the converſion of the Jewiſh nation, and the vindication of the afflicted church; of which Iſa. lix. 19, 20, 21. which flouriſhing ſtate of the kingdom of Chriſt is deſcribed throughout the whole ſixtieth chapter. It is very likely therefore, that what is intermediate, treats of the affairs or fates of both terms. I affirm not this however as abſolutely certain, but rather refer it to more accurate enquiry; for I do not deny that there are ſpecious objections.

8. Yet it is to be obſerved, that ſome prophecies, whoſe context is continued, admit of reſumptions, repetitions of ſayings, and retrograde leaps, or ſcattered or detached pieces, belonging to ſuperior times, which are inſerted into the context, for the ſake of illuſtrating this or that part of the prophecy; examples of which are in Zech. xiii. 7. and in Iſa. xl. xli. xlii.

9. To theſe alſo may be rightly referred the excurſions and digreſſions, in which the prophets, whilſt they really have before their eyes ſome object of more remote time, ſuddenly leave it, and by way of excurſion turn themſelves to men of their own time, or the next; that from the ſubject of their prophecy, they may admoniſh, exhort, and convince them; which when they have done, they reſume the thread of their prophecy; an inſtance of which is in Joel iii. from ver. 4. to ver. 9.

10. That interpretation of the word of God, and eſpecially of the prophecies, is to be accounted the beſt, which attends to, purſues, and demonſtrates the greateſt emphaſis of the oration or ſpeech, and the wiſdom of the Holy Ghoſt; a good and ſure rule, and yet to be applied prudently to the ſubject-context of the prophecy.

11. A ſure key for the interpretation of prophecy is, a true underſtanding of Chriſt Jeſus, and of righteouſneſs to be procured by him for the church, and of the ſpiritual kingdom to be founded by him in the world; according to that of the apoſtle, Rom. xii. 6. let us propheſy according to the proportion or analogy of faith; for the prophets propheſied chiefly of the Meſſiah and his kingdom, and of the times and prerogatives of it.

12. Wherefore, when there is a twofold method of interpreting propheſies, the one barren, the other liberal; of which, thoſe that follow that, with difficulty, and more rarely, find Chriſt Jeſus and his kingdom; and thoſe who adopt this, more frequently find Chriſt, and things that belong to him: it ſeems not to be doubted of, but the latter is to be preferred to the former. This is a rule of great uſe and profit: certainly the Spirit, which was in the prophets, either is not Chriſt's, or he directly ſpeaks of Chriſt; if he ſpeaks directly and clearly of Chriſt, it is the buſineſs of a good interpreter, firſt indeed to ſeek diligently after Chriſt in the prophetic word; then, if occaſion favours, to demonſtrate it; but never to ſhun any opportunity, when it offers itſelf, but willingly take it.

13. Since it is not only probable, but certain, that there are in the prophetic part of the word, diſtinct delineations of the whole counſel of God, interpreters act rightly, who in prophecies, which, it is plain, treat of the kingdom of Chriſt, and the affairs of it, induſtriouſly attend to the events of the church of Chriſt, known from hiſtory, and produce them from the ſame; ſo that it is done without offering any violence to the ſcripture; ſince God does nothing but he reveals his ſecret to his ſervants the prophets, Amos iii. 7.

14. The interpretation of the word of prophecy made by Chriſt, and by the apoſtles, and by the Holy Ghoſt, in the Revelation, is a rule and key of rightly explaining the prophecies which they have touched upon; who can doubt of this? ſince every one is the beſt interpreter of his own words; ſo it ſhould be thought that the Holy Ghoſt, in more recent prophecies, alludes to ancient ones; yea, often uſes the ſame words, phraſes and images, and the like, which he did formerly; deſigning thereby, to lead us by the hand to the true underſtanding of thoſe oracles.

15. Whatſoever excellently, glorioſly, emphatically, characteriſtically, is predicted of ſome certain perſon, not called by his own name, in the prophecies, or in the pſalms, ſo that the ſingular predicates can be demonſtrated in no ſingular ſubject of that or any other time, it muſt be taken as ſaid and predicted of the Meſſiah. This rule will deceive no man.

16. In prophecies which treat of Chriſt and his kingdom, that ſenſe is the beſt, which is the moſt ſpiritual. This canon hath a certain and eaſy demonſtration; for the kingdom of Chriſt is no other foretold in prophecies, than it is manifeſt in time; but that is not of this world, it is ſpiritual, John xviii. 36. Rom. xiv. 17. therefore no interpretation is of avail, none is right and good, which underſtands thoſe things corporally, which are predicated of a thing ſpiritual; for the attributes and predicates of a ſpiritual thing are ſpiritual.

17. In prophecies, in ſome places prudently to be diſtinguiſhed, there obtains an υϛερον ϖροτερον; ſo that on which we muſt dwell, ſhould be put in the laſt place, that it may be carried on without interruption to the end.

18. The writers of the New Teſtament, in confirmation of their doctrines from the prophetic writings, oftentimes borrow words from one prophet, and take the thing from another.

19. In things future, we muſt not indulge our conjectures, but as it becomes the faith and modeſty of chriſtians; what are indefinitely ſaid, and not determined by parallel prophecies, we muſt reckon that God wills thoſe things ſhould be put in his own power, as to mode, perſons, times, places, and ſpecies.

THE EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;

OR, A

PRACTICAL COMMENT

Upon the BOOK of the PROPHET

ISAIAH.

ISAIAH is the firſt of the prophets; not that his prophecy was firſt written, but becauſe it is the largeſt, and fulleſt of the notices of the Meſſiah, concerning whoſe perſon, offices, and kingdom, he hath ſpoken ſo clearly, that he hath juſtly obtained the name of the Evangelical Prophet. Hence in the New Teſtament we find more quotations taken from this book, than from any other part of Scripture, the Pſalms excepted.

Who Iſaiah was, is uncertain: the Jewiſh tradition is that he was of the ſeed-royal, and nearly allied to Amaziah; but there appears no proof of this aſſertion. Certain it is, he was much at court, and his ſtile and manner refined, and peculiarly elegant and lofty. It being a very reaſonable obſervation made concerning thoſe whom God employed, that though they were under the immediate influence of his Spirit, he acted upon them as men, not merely as machines; and therefore, though the matter and ſubſtance was from him, they were to make uſe of their ſeveral natural faculties in expreſſing and conveying the notices given them of the Divine Will.

That he lived to a good old age, the length of the time he propheſied ſhews; but when he died is uncertain, ſome extending his life to the time of Manaſſeh, when they ſay he ſuffered martyrdom, and was ſawn aſunder, to which Heb, xi. 37. is ſuppoſed to allude; but it is more generally ſuppoſed, that he died before Hezekiah, the name of Manaſſeh not being mentioned among the kings under whoſe reigns he lived and propheſied, Chap. i. 1.

The contents of this book are partly hiſtorical, partly prophetical, relative to the ſtate of the Jews and other nations, and more eſpecially to the kingdom and church of Chriſt; and this ſometimes expreſſed clearly and diſtinctly, ſometimes more obſcurely, under the type of the Jewiſh captivity and deliverance.

The beginning of the prophecy abounds moſt with reproofs for ſins, and threatnings of judgment; the concluſion, with bright diſplays of the Redeemer's kingdom, and the grace to be brought to light in the goſpel. They will give the glad tidings of a Saviour's grace the moſt hearty welcome, who are moſt deeply ſenſible of their ſin, guilt, and danger.

Before Chriſt 760.

CHAP. I.

The prophecy opens with, 1. A high charge againſt the Jewiſh church and nation, (1.) For their ingratitude, ver. 2, 3. (2.) For their incorrigibleneſs, ver. 5. (3.) For the univerſal degeneracy of the people, ver. 4, 6, 21, 22. (4.) For their rulers perverting of juſtice, ver. 23. 2. A ſad complaint of the judgments of God, which their ſins had brought upon them, ver. 7—9. 3. A juſt rejection of their formal worſhip amidſt this general defection and apoſtacy, ver. 10—15. 4. An earneſt call to repentance and reformation, ſetting before them life and death; life if they complied with the call, and death if they did not, ver. 16—20. 5. A threatning of ruin to thoſe that would not be reformed, ver. 24, 28—31. 6. A promiſe of a happy reformation at laſt, and a return to their primitive purity and proſperity, ver. 25—27.

1.[a] THE viſion of Iſaiah the ſon of Amoz, which he ſaw concerning Judah and Jeruſalem, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah.

Before Chriſt 760.

v. 1. The firſt verſe is a kind of title to the whole book. The author is Iſaiah, which ſignifies the ſalvation of the Lord: his father was Amoz, not Amos the prophet, but a different perſon, and of a different name. It is called his viſion, as being delivered to him in this way, and, as he had himſelf a clear underſtanding of what he ſpoke, he delivered it very perſpicuouſly to others. The great ſubject of the prophecy is ſaid to be Judah and Jeruſalem, little mention being made of the reſt of the revolted Iſraelites; and when notice is taken of other nations, it is becauſe of their connection with the Jews, and their captivity by them, or deliverance from them. Under four kings kings his miniſtry continued; but in what year of Uzziah he began, or in which of Hezekiah he finiſhed, is uncertain. Certain however it is, that he lived to ſee the beſt and worſt of times, and under both proved himſelf alike faithful. They who live long may expect to ſee ſtrange alterations; happy if with the prophet they can in all ſtates and conditions approve their unſhaken fidelity to Jeſus.

[a] Num. xii. 6.

64

Before Chriſt 760.

2. [b] Hear, O heavens, and give ear, O earth: for the LORD hath ſpoken, I have nouriſhed and brought up children, and they have rebelled againſt me. 3. [c] The ox knoweth his owner, and the aſs his maſter's crib: but Iſrael doth not know, my people doth not conſider. 4. Ah ſinful nation, a people [d] laden with iniquity, a ſeed of evil doers, children that are corrupters, they have forſaken the LORD, they have provoked the holy One of Iſrael unto anger, [e] they are † gone away backward. 5. ¶ [f] Why ſhould ye be ſtricken any more? ye will revolt more and more: the whole head is ſick, and the whole heart faint. 6. From the ſole of the foot even unto the head, there is no ſoundneſs in it; but wounds, and bruiſes, and putrifying ſores: they have not been cloſed, neither bound up, [g] neither mollified with ‡ ointment. 7. [h] Your country is deſolate, [i] your cities are burnt with fire: your land, ſtrangers devour it in your preſence, and it is deſolate as overthrown by ſtrangers. 8. And the daughter of Zion is left [k] as a cottage in a vineyard, as a lodge in a garden of cucumbers, [l] as a beſieged city. 9. [m] Except the LORD of hoſts had left unto us a very ſmall remnant, we ſhould have been [n] as Sodom, and we ſhould have been like unto Gomorrah.

b Deut. xxxii. 1. Jer. ii. 12. & xxii. 29. Ezek. xxxvi. 4. Mic. i. 2. & vi. 1, 2. c Jer. vii. 8.
d Zech. v. 7, 8.
e Hoſ. iv. 16.
† Heb. Alienated, or ſeparated. Pſ. lviii. 3.
f Jer. ii. 30. & v. 3.
g Jer. viii. 22.
‡ Or, oil.
h Deut. xxviii. 51, 52. Pſ. cvii. 34. Chap. v. 5.
i 2 Chron. xxviii. 17—19.
k Job xxvii. 18. Lam. ii. 6.
l Jer. iv. 17.
m Lam. iii. 22. Rom. ix. 29.
n Gen. xix. 24.

v. 2—9. Dark and diſmal is the proſpect with which the prophet opens his diſcourſe.

1. He begins with an addreſs to the heavens and the earth, v. 2. as if turning from an incorrigible people, deaf to reproof, to the inanimate creation; or appealing to the hoſts above, and men in general, to record God's mercies and his people's impenitence.

2. He charges them with black ingratitude. I have nouriſhed and brought up children; or, I have magnified and exalted them; not only preſerved them from their ſtate of infancy, but diſtinguiſhed them with ſuch peculiar marks of honour; and they rebelled againſt me; made him ſuch baſe requital for his mercy, rejecting his government, and apoſtates from his worſhip. Note, (1.) Ingratitude is juſtly reckoned among the greateſt crimes. (2.) As no kindneſs can equal that which God hath ſhown to the ſons of men in creation, and eſpecially in redemption; ſo can no ingratitude be ſo great and criminal as that of the impenitent ſinner.

3. He upbraids them with the more than brutiſh ſtupidity of their conduct. The dull ox appears ſenſible of the hand that feeds him, and knoweth his owner's voice; and the very aſs the crib that feeds him; but more ſtupid Iſrael doth not know, or acknowledge the gracious care of God, nor make the leaſt ſuitable returns of love; and my people doth not conſider; they pay no regard to the ordinances of God's ſervice, and, wilfully obſtinate, neither know nor deſire to know him. Note, (1.) When men chuſe diſſipation, and fly from every means which would lead them to conſider their ways, they cannot but be led captive by the devil at his will. (2.) Many are in profeſſion God's people, whoſe practice is utterly oppoſite thereto, and their ſins highly aggravated. (3.) Negligence about God and our ſoul muſt neceſſarily end in ruin.

4. He dwells upon their wretched ſtate, either as threatning them with the conſequences of their ſins, or lamenting the evils he foreſaw. Ah, ſinful nation! what will be thine end? How grievous the proſpect! univerſal apoſtacy reigned; a people laden with iniquity, ſinking under the heavy load and curſe of it; a ſeed of evil doers, degenerated utterly from their pious anceſtors: children that are corrupters, not content with being abandoned themſelves, but doing the devil's work, in turning tempters to others. They have forſaken the Lord, his ways and worſhip; they have provoked the holy One of Iſrael unto anger, juſtly incenſed at ſuch rebellious conduct: they are gone away backward, vile apoſtates from their holy profeſſion. Note, When God comes to viſit for ſins, he will be minute; and every aggravation of them will be remembered, to fill up the meaſure of wrath.

5. They were incorrigible under every viſitation, and their caſe deſperate. Why ſhould ye be ſtricken any more? when all the paſt viſitations produced no gracious effects. Ye will revolt more and more; made deſperate, and hardened by the corrections which ſhould have led them to repentance. The whole head is ſick, and the whole heart is faint; which may reſpect their ſufferings, that, though reaching from the higheſt to the loweſt, produced no reformation: or their ſins, which had ſo thoroughly infected prieſts and people, that, like a leper, from head to foot not a ſound part was left; and, impenitently obſtinate, none thought of repentance, or laboured to avert the heavy judgments under which they groaned, v. 6 Note, (1.) We have here a lively picture of the corruption of the human heart, univerſally defiled by ſin, loathſome before God, and incurably deſperate for ought that man can do to help himſelf. (2.) Afflictions, though a bitter potion, are the means God often employs to awaken the ſinner's conſcience, and reſtore health to his ſoul. (3.) When ſinners refuſe to anſwer the gracious viſitations of God, inſtead of being humbled by them, they grow more hardened. (4.) The caſe of that ſoul is deſperate indeed, concerning which God ſaith, Let him alone.

Before Chriſt 760.

6. He laments the deſolations of Zion that are begun, or rather foretels what will be ſhortly her ſad caſe: Your country is, or ſhall be, deſolate; ravaged by the enemies, the cities burnt, their land devoured by ſtrangers, whilſt they looked on, unable to prevent their ruin; their country a deſert; the holy city and temple depopulated, deſerted, deſpicable, ruinous, as the wretched hut which the keeper of the vineyard forſakes when the vintage is gathered; and the lodge, where the gardener watched till his fruit was ſafe, and then is overturned with winter's blaſts. Or like a beſieged city, from which eſcape is ſo difficult and dangerous, and which none care to approach. This was the caſe, 2 Chron. xxviii. 17—19. under Ahaz, during whoſe wicked reign it is ſuppoſed this was written: or it refers to the deſolations which at firſt the Babylonians, and afterwards, more dreadfully, the Romans brought upon them. Note, They who will not be warned, muſt ſmart for it: whether it be a nation or individual, impenitence and perdition are inſeparable.

7. A few, and but a few, ſtill remained, thro' divine grace, firm to God amidſt the general apoſtacy; and, but for theſe, utter extirpation muſt have enſued, dreadful as that which fell upon the devoted cities of Sodom and Gomorrah. The Apoſtle quotes this as applicable to his own times, and deſcriptive of them, Rom. ix. 29. when, except the few who received the goſpel, the reſt of the Jewiſh nation perſiſted in unbelief and hardneſs of heart. Note, (1.) It is a mercy, that God reſerves a few faithful in the worſt of times. (2.) The fewer they are, and the more wicked the days, the greater diligence ſhould we give to be of that few. (3.) If ever we are ſaved out of this world, which lieth in wickedneſs, we ſhall be convinced it is by ſovereign and almighty grace alone. (4.) To go with the multitude is the ſure way to hell. (5.) The more we reflect upon the wonders of grace, in plucking us as brands from the burning, the more ſhould our hearts abound in love and praiſe.

10. ¶ Hear the word of the LORD, ye rulers [o] of Sodom; give ear unto the law of our God, ye people of Gomorrah. 11. To what purpoſe is the multitude of [p] your ſacrifices to me? ſaith the LORD: I am full of the burnt-offerings of rams, and the fat of fed beaſts, and [q] I delight not in the blood of bullocks, or of lambs, or of he-goats. 12. When ye come [r] to appear before me, [s] who hath required this at your hand to tread my courts? 13. Bring no more [t] vain oblations, incenſe is an abomination to me, the new-moons and ſabbaths, the calling of aſſemblies [u] I cannot away with, it is † iniquity, even the ſolemn meeting. 14. Your new-moons, and your appointed feaſts my ſoul hateth: they are a trouble unto me; [x] I am weary to bear them. 15. And [y] when ye ſpread forth your hands, I will hide mine eyes from you: [z] yea, when ye make many prayers, I will not hear: [a] your hands are full of blood.

o Deut. xxxii 32. Ezek. xvi. 48.
p Pſ. l. 8, 9. & li. 16. Prov. xxi. 27. Chap. lxvi. 3. Jer. vi. 20. Am. v. 21, 22. Mic. vi. 7.
q 1 Sam. xv. 22.
r Exod. xxiii. 17. & xxxiv. 23.
s Jer. vii. 22.
t Mat. xv. 9.
u Pſ. l. 16.
† Or, grief.
x Chap. xliii. 24.
y Job xxvii. 9. Prov. i. 28. Jer. xiv. 12. Mic. iii. 4. Zech. vii. 13.
z Pſ. lxvi. 18.
a Chap. lix. 3.

v. 10—15. We have here,

1. An awful addreſs to the rulers and people, to hear God's word. He calls them rulers of Sodom, and people of Gomorrah, becauſe, like them, they were ſinners before the Lord exceedingly, Gen. xiii. 13. and magiſtrates, prieſts, and people, ſunk in the deluge of iniquity. Perhaps he has reference here to the goſpel, which the Jewiſh people were called to receive, and for rejecting which, it will be more tolerable in the day of judgment for Sodom, than for them, Mat. xi. 24.

2. He rejects all their hypocritical ſervices and ſacrifices. Their moſt ſolemn aſſemblies, their feaſts, ſabbaths, incenſe, prayers, were an abomination. What purpoſe could they anſwer, when their hands were defiled with blood, and remaining pride, impenitence, and unbelief, made theſe outward ceremonies, however expenſive, but ſolemn mockery of God. This is eſpecially applicable to the times of Chriſt, when with the greateſt zeal the Scribes and Phariſees maintained the temple-worſhip, whilſt they rejected him who was prefigured in theſe inſtitutions, and excluſive of whom God never delighted in the moſt expenſive ſacrifices: and after having imbrued their hands in the Saviour's blood, though by his death an end was put to all the ritual ſervices, yet they perſiſted in them, till God deſtroyed their city and temple together. Note, (1.) The greateſt enemies to the power of godlineſs are often thoſe who are moſt rigid obſervers of the form. (2.) Whilſt inward iniquity is harboured, and the heart continues eſtranged from God, the moſt liberal charities, or the largeſt gifts to God's altar, will be rejected with abhorrence. (3.) Many in a fright will be driven to their knees and their prayers, who are not driven from their ſins, and therefore pray in vain. (4.) So far are all the outward ſervices of religious worſhip from pleaſing God, where the ſoul is unconverted and ſelf-righteous, that he abhors the ſabbaths and the ſolemn meeting; ſo that the very duties on which the formaliſts depend, will prove their damnation.

Before Chriſt 760.

[b] Jer. iv. 14.
[c] Pſ. xxxiv. 14. & xxxvii. 27. Am. v. 15. Rom. xii. 9. 1 Pet. iii. 11.
† Or, right.
[d] Chap. xliii. 26.
[e] Pſ. li. 7. Rev. vii 14.
[f] Tit. i. 2.

16. ¶ [b] Waſh ye, make you clean, put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes, [c] ceaſe to do evil, 17. Learn to do well, ſeek judgment, † relieve the oppreſſed, judge the fatherleſs, plead for the widow. 18. Come now and [d] let us reaſon together, ſaith the LORD: though your ſins be as ſcarlet, [e] they ſhall be as white as ſnow: though they be red like crimſon, they ſhall be as wool. 19. If ye be willing and obedient, ye ſhall eat the good of the land. 20. But if ye refuſe and rebel, ye ſhall be devoured with the ſword: for [f] the mouth of the LORD hath ſpoken it.

v. 16—20. Since the ceremonial worſhip was declared ineffectual, the prophet directs them to the only ſufficient means of acceptance with God.

1. By waſhing and making themſelves clean, which all their ritual ablutions never could effect; and therefore they muſt come by faith, under the ſenſe of their guilt and pollution, to the fountain which ſhould be opened in a Saviour's blood. Note, We might as ſoon think to waſh the Ethiopian white, as to remove one ſpot of ſin from our ſouls by any other method, than through the atoning blood of Jeſus.

2. As waſhed from their ſins they muſt amend their lives; putting away all known evil, making reſtitution for every act of injuſtice, and ceaſing from allowed ſin. They muſt not merely reſt in negative holineſs, but exerciſe themſelves unto godlineſs in the practice of every good word and work, under the influence of divine grace, and with a ſingle eye to the divine glory. And he inſtances wherein this courſe of well-doing conſiſts, under the two great points of mercy and juſtice, which would pleaſe the Lord better than the moſt coſtly ſacrifices. Note, (1.) Where the blood of Jeſus cleanſes from the guilt of ſin, the Spirit of Jeſus will deliver from the power of it; and in vain do they hope for the one, who continue ſtrangers to the other. (2.) Though perfectly to ceaſe from ſin is the bleſſedneſs reſerved for us above, yet here we ſhall obtain the teſtimony of a good conſcience, that in ſimplicity and godly ſincerity we have our converſation in the world. (3.) A Chriſtian has no time to be idle; much hath he to learn, much to do; and all his attention and care will be little enough for the great work that is before him.

3. He ſilences an objection which might be raiſed in the minds of thoſe, whoſe deep views of paſt guilt might diſcourage them from returning to God, as if their ſins were beyond pardon and hope. Though your ſins be as ſcarlet, they ſhall be as white as ſnow: though they be red like crimſon, they ſhall be as wool: however great and aggravated their iniquities, they need not be diſcouraged: nay, are invited to come, yea, to come now without delay, and let us reaſon together, ſaith the Lord; though on the footing of their own deeds or duties they could not appear in any wiſe at God's bar, yet, when God put that prevailing argument in their mouths of the promiſes of full and free pardon through the blood and righteouſneſs of a Redeemer, then they might come boldly to the throne, and fear no condemnation; the plea would be accepted, the ſinner juſtified from all things. Note, That blood of Jeſus which alone can cleanſe from the leaſt ſin, as eaſily and effectually cleanſes from the greateſt: let no returning ſinner deſpair.

4. He ſets before them the bleſſing and the curſe. If ye be willing to ſubmit to this advice, to waſh and be clean, and obedient to the word and ways of God, ye ſhall eat the good of the land, the land of Canaan, in which their abode would be ſure, as long as their fidelity was maintained; and a better country than this alſo is the portion of the faithful ſervants of God. But if ye refuſe to hearken to theſe admonitions, and rebel againſt the government and miniſters of God, and againſt his incarnate word the Meſſiah, then their ruin was determined; the mouth of the Lord hath ſpoken it, the ſentence is fixed and irrevocable; Ye ſhall be devoured with the ſword of the Babylonians and Romans, executing upon them God's temporal judgments, and by the ſword of eternal vengeance after death purſuing them to the loweſt hell. Note, (1.) If ſinners periſh, it will not be for lack of warning; their blood is upon their own heads. (2.) They who will not ſubmit to God's ſceptre, muſt ſuffer under his ſword. (3.) When ſinners perſiſt in their rebellion, they reject their own mercies, and God's juſtice in their condemnation will be manifeſt to all.

Before Chriſt 760.

[g] Jer. ii. 21.
[h] Jer. vi. 28, 30. Ezek. xxii. 18, 19.
[i] Hoſ. iv. 18.
[k] Hoſ. ix. 15.
[l] Ezek. xxii. 12. Hoſ. iv. 8. Mic. iii. 11.
[m] Jer. v. 28. Zech. vii. 10.
[n] Deut. xxviii. 63. Ezek. v. 13.
[o] Jer. v. 9.
[p] Jer. vi. 29. & ix. 7. Mal. iii. 3.
[q] Jer. xxxiii. 7.
[r] Chap. lx. 18. Zech. viii. 3.
† Or, thoſe that return of her.
[s] Job. xxxi. 3. Pſ. i. 6. & xcii. 9. & civ. 35.
[t] Chap. lvii. 5.
[u] Chap. lxv. 3. & lxvi. 17.
[x] Jer. xvii 6.
[y] Ezek. xxxii. 21.
‡ Or, his work.
[z] Chap. xxxiv. 10. Rev. xiv. 11.

21. ¶ [g] How is the faithful city become an harlot! it was full of judgment, righteouſneſs lodged in it; but now murderers. 22. [h] Thy ſilver is become droſs, [i] thy wine mixt with water: 23. [k] Thy princes are rebellious, and companions of thieves: [l] every one loveth gifts, and followeth after rewards; [m] they judge not the fatherleſs, neither doth the cauſe of the widow come unto them. 24. Therefore ſaith the LORD, the LORD of hoſts, the mighty One of Iſrael, Ah, [n] I will eaſe me of mine adverſaries, [o] and avenge me of mine enemies. 25. ¶ And I will turn my hand upon thee, and [p] purely purge away thy droſs, and take away all thy tin. 26. And I will reſtore thy judges [q] as at the firſt, and thy counſellors as at the beginning: afterward [r] thou ſhalt be called, the city of righteouſneſs, the faithful city. 27. Zion ſhall be redeemed with judgment, and † her converts with righteouſneſs. 28. ¶ And [s] the deſtruction of the tranſgreſſors and of the ſinners ſhall be together, and they that forſake the LORD ſhall be conſumed. 29. For they ſhall be aſhamed of [t] the oaks which ye have deſired, [u] and ye ſhall be confounded for the gardens that ye have choſen. 30. For ye ſhall be [x] as an oak whoſe leaf fadeth, and as a garden that hath no water. 31. And [y] the ſtrong ſhall be as tow, and ‡ the maker of it as a ſpark, and they ſhall both burn together, and [z] none ſhall quench them.

v. 21—31. As Jeſus wept over the devoted city, the prophet, moved with a portion of his compaſſionate ſpirit, laments the wickedneſs he beheld.

1. An aweful change had paſſed on Jeruſalem: the once faithful city is become an harlot, turning from the worſhip and ſervice of God, and proſtituting herſelf to all the abominations of iniquity. It was in paſt days famed for juſtice, full of judgment, her magiſtrates diſtinguiſhed for integrity; righteouſneſs lodged in it, as if choſen for her favoured abode. But how aweful the contraſt! now murderers, who firſt maſſacred the prophets who witneſſed of the juſt One, and then at laſt murdered the Son of God, Mat. xxiii. 37. Acts vii. 52. Pure once, and bright as ſilver, droſs now only remained; their practice corrupt, and their principles depraved. Thy wine is mixed with water; the lively oracles of God adulterated and debaſed by falſe gloſſes, and human traditions; ſo that it was become of no effect. Thy princes are rebellious, ringleaders in ſin; and companions of thieves, conniving at their crimes; and, for the protection they afforded, ſharing of the fruits of their robberies. Gifts and bribes were their known delight, and ever carried the cauſe at their bar; whilſt the poor, the fatherleſs, and widow, who had nothing to give, were ſuffered to be oppreſſed without redreſs; and ſuch was exactly the character of the Jews in our Saviour's days, See Rom. ii. Note, (1.) Proſtitution of juſtice for gain is more infamous than the proſtitution of the harlot for hire. (2.) Injuſtice and bribery on the ſeat of judgment are a heavier curſe on any people, than the ravages of the worſt banditti: againſt the one we may guard, from the other there is no redreſs. (3.) We muſt not only abſtain from injuring the poor; we are criminal if we neglect to vindicate them from oppreſſors, and to eſpouſe the cauſe of the afflicted. (4.) The former good examples of preceding magiſtrates, or illuſtrious progenitors, reflect double darkneſs on their degenerate ſucceſſors.

2. God with indignation awakes to execute vengeance on his enemies. Ah, I will eaſe me of them, as a load under which the earth groaned: or, I will take comfort of them, pleaſed with the execution of righteous judgment upon them. And this he confirms by a recital of his glorious titles, The Lord of hoſts, the mighty One of Iſrael, able to fulfil all his threatnings, and before whom every foe muſt fall. Terrible was the execution of this threatning in their firſt deſtruction by the Babylonians, but moſt fearful, when, having rejected and murdered the Lord of life, he employed the Roman ſword, and commanded theſe his enemies, who would not that he ſhould reign over them, to be ſlain before him.

3. A part ſhall be recovered, converted, and ſaved. I will turn my hand upon thee, revive the decayed ſtate of religion, purging their droſs away in the furnace of affliction, and taking away the tin, the adulterations they had mixed in their worſhip, and the corruptions of their practice; reſtoring their judges as at the firſt, and counſellors as at the beginning; and then they would recover their former credit and honour, as the city of righteouſneſs, the faithful city, redeemed by judgment executed on their foes; and being now converted unto God, his righteouſneſs became engaged for their recovery. And this was the caſe in a meaſure under Hezekiah's reformation, and may look to their reſtoration from Babylon; but eſpecially regards the day of Chriſt, when, by the powerful grace of God in the goſpel, ſuch multitudes of Jews were converted; their ſins, as droſs, purged away; their ſelf-righteouſneſs, like tin, renounced, as falſe and baſe alloy. The apoſtles, as judges, were raiſed up to recover them from the worſt enemies, ſin and Satan, and to counſel and direct them in the way of truth and holineſs. Being incorporated in Chriſt's church, they would become a praiſe in the earth, a people clothed with righteouſneſs imputed and impreſſed, and faithful to Chriſt, his goſpel, and ordinances. His Zion is thus redeemed by the judgment executed on the divine Redeemer in her ſtead, and her converts with righteouſneſs, in a way perfectly conſiſtent with the holineſs of God, whoſe righteouſneſs eminently appears diſplayed in the ſalvation of the goſpel. Note, (1.) Every man by nature and practice is the ſlave of ſin, that worſt of ſlavery, till redeemed by grace. (2.) The work of converſion belongs to God alone; he muſt turn us, or we never ſhall be turned. (3.) The Redeemer's righteouſneſs is the great meritorious cauſe of our converſion; hereby God can be juſt, when he is the juſtifier of him that believeth on Jeſus. (4.) When we recover the favour of God we had forfeited, we ſhall be reſtored to the honour we had loſt.

4. The deſtruction of the enemies of Chriſt and his people is as ſure as their ſalvation. Together they will periſh, v. 28. Their falſe confidence ſhall fail and confound them, v. 29. Stripped as the oak in winter, they ſhall be left naked and bare, and withered as the garden that hath no water, v. 30. The ſtrong ſhall be as unable to reſiſt, as the tow before the devouring fire; and the maker of it, the idol; or his work, all the devices of the tranſgreſſors, ſhall be as a ſpark of fire, and they ſhall burn together, and none ſhall quench them; which will eminently be fulfilled in the day of final recompenſe, when God ſhall execute judgment upon the ungodly, and the man of ſin and all his followers, who have forſaken the ways of truth for lying vanities, human traditions, falſe doctrines and worſhip, and abominable idolatries, will have their portion together in the lake which burneth with fire and brimſtone, which is the ſecond death, See Rev. xx. 10.

CHAP. II.

With this chapter begins a new ſermon, which is continued in the two following ones. The ſubject of it is Judah and Jeruſalem, ver. 1. The prophet foretels, 1. The glory of the goſpel-church in the latter days, ver. 2, 3. and the great peace it ſhould introduce into the world, ver. 4. whence he infers the duty of the houſe of Jacob, ver. 5. 2. The rejection of the Jews for their ſins, ver. 6—9. 3. That God by his judgments would humble them, ver. 10—17. 4. That they ſhould themſelves be aſhamed of their confidence in their idols, and in an arm of fleſh, ver. 18—22.

1. THE word that Iſaiah the ſon of Amoz ſaw, concerning Judah and Jeruſalem. 2. And [a] it ſhall come to paſs in the laſt days, that [b] the mountain of the LORD's houſe ſhall be eſtabliſhed in the top of the mountains, and ſhall be exalted [c] above the hills; and [d] all nations ſhall flow unto it. 3. And many people ſhall go and ſay, [e] Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, to the houſe of the God of Jacob, and [f] he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths; for [g] out of Zion ſhall go forth the law, and the word of the LORD from Jeruſalem, 4. And he ſhall judge among the nations, and ſhall [h] rebuke many people: and [i] they ſhall beat their ſwords into plow-ſhares, and their ſpears into pruning-hooks: nation ſhall not lift up ſword againſt nation, neither ſhall they learn war any more. 5. O houſe of Jacob, come ye, and [k] let us walk in the light of the LORD.

[a] Mic. i. 4, &c.
[b] Zech. viii. 3.
[c] Mat. v. 14.
[d] Chap. xi. 10. Jer. iii. 17. & xxxi. 12.
[e] Jer. xxxi. 6. & l. 5. Zech. viii. 20—23.
[f] Pſ. lxxxvi. 11.
[g] Luke xxiv. 47.
[h] John xvi. 8.
[i] Pſ. xlvi. 9. Hoſ. ii. 18. Zech. ix. 10.
[k] Pſ. lxxxix. 15. John xii. 35. Eph. v. 8.

v. 1—5. We have here a glorious prophecy of the eſtabliſhment of the kingdom and church of Chriſt in the laſt days, the days of the Meſſiah. The goſpel is the laſt diſpenſation, nothing now remains but the great conſummation of all things at the ſecond appearing of the great God and Saviour.

1. The mountain of the Lord's houſe, his church, firm and immoveable, ſhall be eſtabliſhed on the top of the mountains, in Chriſt, who is the head of all principalities and power, and, with a ſuperiority over all the kingdoms of the earth, ſhall be exalted above the hills, the antichriſtian powers, whether papal, pagan, or Mahometan, being ſubdued before it. Note, Whatever oppreſſions the church for a time may groan under, in the end ſhe will ſee all her enemies at her feet.

2. All nations ſhall flow unto it; many out of all lands ſhall be incorporated into it, and, having taſted the bleſſedneſs of Chriſt's ſervice, ſhall be zealouſly ſollicitous to propagate his holy religion, and engage others to go with them. Many people ſhall go and ſay, Come ye along with us, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, his church, and to the houſe of the God of Jacob, the place he hath choſen for his bleſt abode. And, as an argument to enforce their exhortation, they urge, and he will teach us of his ways, his holy, happy ways of grace, mercy, and peace; and we will walk in his paths, inſtructed by his word, and ſtrengthened by his Spirit. Note, (1.) The goſpel ſhall have a more glorious and univerſal ſpread than ever yet it hath had. (2.) They who are Chriſt's people, are not only made willing to follow him themſelves, but are zealous to engage others to come and partake of the ſame bleſſing. (3.) None can teach us effectually, but God himſelf. Though the beſt means may be employed, unleſs he gives the increaſe, Paul plants and Apollos waters in vain. (4.) They who would go to the mount of God, muſt go up, in oppoſition to corrupt nature, and expect many difficulties in the aſcent from the world and Satan; but every pain will be amply repaid, when we ſhall reach the ſummit. (5.) They who are taught of God are made obedient to his holy will; their knowledge hath a ſanctifying influence, engaging them to walk and pleaſe God.

3. The means God will employ for this purpoſe. Out of Zion ſhall go forth the law, or doctrine; the goſpel, the law of the Spirit of life: and the word of the Lord from Jeruſalem, where the incarnate word appeared, and from whence he ſent forth his apoſtles to preach the goſpel unto every creature; which hath been done in a meaſure, continues ſtill to be ſpread, and will more eminently be propagated than ever, before the ſecond coming of Chriſt.

4. The bleſſing of Chriſt's government is declared. He ſhall judge among the nations, holding the reigns of univerſal dominion, and ruling with the moſt conſummate equity; and ſhall rebuke many people, convince and convert them from the error of their ways by his word and Spirit. Peace then will bleſs the earth, ſuch as hath never yet been known: They ſhall beat their ſwords into plough-ſhares, and their ſpears into pruning-hooks: nation ſhall not lift up ſword againſt nation, neither ſhall they learn war any more. In part we ſee this fulfilled; ſo far as the goſpel obtains power and influence on the heart, it leads us to follow peace with all men; but the ſtate of perfect harmony here deſcribed remains yet to come, when Chriſt ſhall reign over his ſaints glorioully.

5. The Gentile church addreſſes the Jewiſh people, ſollicitous for their converſion: O houſe of Jacob, come ye, and join us in the worſhip and ordinances of the goſpel; and let us walk in the light of the Lord, in the light of the Sun of Righteouſneſs, the divine Redeemer, whoſe word is our bright guide through time unto eternity; and whilſt by faith and love we cleave to him, and look up in prayer for continued ſupport, he will lead us by his counſel, till he ſhall bring us to his glory.

6. ¶ Therefore [l] thou haſt forſaken thy people, the houſe of Jacob, becauſe they be repleniſhed † from the eaſt, and [m] are ſoothſayers like the Philiſtines, and [n] they pleaſe themſelves in the children of ſtrangers. 7. [o] Their land alſo is full of ſilver and gold, neither is there any end of their treaſures: their land is alſo full of horſes, neither is there any end of their chariots 8. [p] Their land alſo is full of idols: they worſhip the work of their own hands, that which their own fingers have made 9. And the mean man boweth down, and the great man humbleth himſelf: [q] therefore forgive them not.

[l] Rom. xi. 20.
† Or, more than the eaſt.
[m] Deut. xviii. 14.
[n] Jer. x. 2.
[o] Deut. xvii. 16, 17.
[p] Jer. ii. 28.
[q] Chap. xxvii. 11.

v. 6—9. Theſe words contain a reaſon for the divine conduct in the rejection of the Jews, and vocation of the Gentiles.

1. Their ſins were great: they introduced the magic and ſorceries of the eaſt; imitated, in their arts of divination, the Philiſtines; and preferred the children of ſtrangers to native Iſraelites, v. 6. Though God had forbidden them to multiply riches, and chariots, and horſes, to appear formidable to their neighbours, yet they anxiouſly laboured to procure theſe as their confidence, inſtead of God's promiſe and care, v. 7. Though he had ſo awfully warned them againſt idols, they had filled their land with them, v. 8. and high and low joined in the idolatrous ſervice, v. 9. This deſcription ſuits the times in which the prophet ſpoke, better than their ſtate after their return from Babylon; and every preceding generation, as well as that which immediately rejected Chriſt, contributed to fill up the meaſure of their nation's guilt. Some refer this to Antichriſt and his followers, who call themſelves the people of God, but ſhew the marks of an apoſtate church. The juggles, tricks, and frauds of Romiſh prieſts are well known; their convents filled with children of ſtrangers; or they pleaſe themſelves in unnatural luſts with ſuch, whence Rome is called ſpiritually Sodom, Rev. xi. 8. They enrich themſelves by maſſes, indulgences, &c. and, attended with great pomp of chariots and horſes, their eccleſiaſtics appear in all the magnificence of worldly ſplendor. Full of idols; worſhipping images of pretended ſaints, and of many who never exiſted; and all ſunk in the ſame hateful idolatry: like prieſt, like people.

2. Their doom was heavy: God had forſaken them, given them up to a reprobate mind; they would never be forgiven, either in this world or that which is to come, but all ſuch practices be puniſhed with eternal vengeance. This was verified in the amazing deſolations the Romans brought upon the Jewiſh people, when the body of the nation was ſo terribly deſtroyed; ſtroyed, and ſhall be more fully accompliſhed in the eternal ruin of all the impenitently wicked in the day of God.

Before Christ 760.

10. [r] ¶ Enter into the rock, and hide thee in the duſt, for fear of the LORD, and for the glory of his majeſty. 11. [s] The lofty looks of man ſhall be humbled, and the haughtineſs of men ſhall be bowed down, and [t] the LORD alone ſhall be exalted in that day. 12. For the day of the LORD of hoſts ſhall be upon every one that is proud and lofty, and upon every one that is lifted up, and he ſhall be brought low; 13. And upon all [u] the cedars of Lebanon, that are high and lifted up, and upon all the oaks of Baſhan, 14. And upon all [x] the high mountains, and upon all the hills that are lifted up, 15. And upon every high tower, and upon every fenced wall, 16. And [y] upon all the ſhips of Tarſhiſh, and upon all † pleaſant pictures. 17. And [z] the loftineſs of man ſhall be bowed down, and the haughtineſs of men ſhall be made low: and the LORD alone ſhall be exalted in that day. 18. And the idols he ſhall utterly aboliſh. 19. And [a] they ſhall go into the holes of the rocks, and into the caves of the earth, for fear of the LORD, and [b] for the glory of his majeſty, when he ariſeth to ſhake terribly the earth. 20. In that day [c] a man ſhall caſt his idols of ſilver, and his idols of gold, which they made, each one for himſelf to worſhip, to the moles, and to the bats: 21. [d] To go into the clefts of the rocks, and into the tops of the ragged rocks, for fear of the LORD, and for the glory of his majeſty, when he ariſeth to ſhake terribly the earth. 22. [e] Ceaſe ye from man, [f] whoſe breath is in his noſtrils: for wherein is he to be accounted of?

[r] Ver. xix. 21. Rev. vi. 15.
[s] Ver. 17. Chap. v. 15. & xxiv. 21.
[t] 1 Cor. i. 31.
[u] Ezek. xxxi. 3—11. Amos ii. 5. Zech. xi. 1, 2.
[x] 2 Cor. x. 5.
[y] Pſ. xlviii. 7.
† Heb. Pictures of deſire.
[z] Ver. 11. Chap. xiii. 11.
[a] Ver. 10. Hoſ. x. 8. Luke xxiii. 30. Rev. vi. 16. & ix. 6.
[b] 2 Theſ. i. 9.
[c] Chap. xxx. 22. & xxxi. 7.
[d] Ver. x. 19.
[e] Pſ. cxlvi. 3. Jer. xvii. 5.
[f] Job xxvii. 3.

v. 10—22. When God does not forgive, he will deſtroy. We have here the deſolations denounced, either upon the Jewiſh people, or upon the antichriſtian foes, to both which the words are applicable.

1. He bids them enter into the rock, as deriding their vain confidence, and ſhewing them how unable they will be to eſcape; when for fear of the Lord, and the glory of his majeſty, they ſhould ſeek to hide their guilty heads. Note, (1.) At God's bar, the ſtouteſt hearted ſinner will tremble. (2.) Vain will be every refuge in the day of judgment; no rock, no mountain can cover the guilty, when God ariſeth to ſhake terribly the earth.

2. The pride of ſinners ſhall then be laid low, the lofty looks ſhall ſink into dejection and deſpair, and the haughtineſs of the inſolent lick the duſt; and the Lord alone ſhall be exalted in that day, in his judgments executed upon his enemies, and in his kingdom, which then ſhall be eſtabliſhed for ever, and never more be diſturbed by any antichriſtian foe. Note, Pride muſt come down; if we now fall not on our knees in humiliation, we muſt fall deep into hell under our ſins.

3. The particulars of God's judgments upon the proud and lofty are mentioned. Though firm as mountains, and tall as cedars, they will be overturned; though guarded by the ſtrongeſt fortreſſes, they cannot ſtand, all their confidence will fail them, and their glory vaniſh; their ſhips be deſtroyed, their pleaſant pictures defaced, their idols aboliſhed. The kings of the earth, and great men, and chief captains, who ſupported the beaſt, and the falſe prophet, and committed fornication with the great whore, will be ruined with her; their armadas fitted out to war againſt the ſaints of God, will be diſperſed and deſtroyed; their curious paintings of madonas, ſaints, crucifixes, and the like idolatrous ornaments of their churches, will periſh together, and their images, at which they paid their blind devotions, be for ever aboliſhed.

4. The worſhippers, convinced of the vanity of their idols, will renounce them, or deſpairing of relief, in anger caſt them to the moles and the bats, frighted with God's judgments, and flying to the clefts of the rocks for ſhelter. Note, (1.) Sooner or later the vanity of idols will appear; whether the groſſer idolatry of images, or the more refined, yet equally abominable idolatry of inordinate affection, placed on gold and ſilver, or any other creature; none of which will profit in a day of wrath. (2.) Many are driven from their ſins who never repent of them; either are ſo terrified, that conſcience deters them, or the inconveniences and ſufferings they ſuſtain, withholds them; or opportunity is wanting to commit them; but ſtill the unmortified love of them remains in their hearts.

5. The prophet concludes with an exhortation to ceaſe from man; either directed to the Jews, who truſted on Egypt for help againſt the Babylonians, or to the followers of antichriſt, who put ſuch truſt in the blaſphemous pardons and indulgencies iſſued from the papal chair; or in general to all, not to truſt in man, even the greateſt, for ſalvation, becauſe he is a worm; for wherein is he to be accounted of? the Egyptians would help in vain, the great vaunts of the man that calls himſelf Chriſt's vicar, and God upon earth, are empty boaſts of arrogance, and all human excellence nothing, and leſs than nothing, and vanity. Note, We cannot put too little truſt in man, nor too great confidence in God. They who ceaſe from the one, to live wholly upon the other, will find a rock inſtead of a reed.

Before Christ 760.

CHAP. III.

The prophet in this chapter goes on to foretel the deſolations that were coming upon Judah and Jeruſalem for their ſins. God threatens, 1. To deprive them of all the ſupports, both of their life and government, ver. 1—3. 2. To leave them to fall into confuſion and diſorder, ver. 4, 5, 12. 3. To deny them the bleſſing of magiſtracy, ver. 6—8. 4. To ſtrip the daughters of Sion of their ornaments, ver. 17—24. 5. To lay all waſte by the ſword, ver. 25, 26. The ſins that provoked God to deal thus with them, were, (1.) Their defiance of God, ver. 8. (2.) Their impudence, ver. 9. (3.) The abuſe of their power, ver. 12—15. (4.) The pride of their daughters, ver. 16. And in the midſt of the chapter the prophet, [1.] Aſſures the righteous that it ſhould be well with them, notwithſtanding thoſe general calamities, ver. 10. [2.] That it ſhould go ill with the wicked at laſt, however God might now in judgment remember mercy, ver. 11. O that the nations of the earth at this day, would hearken to the rebukes and warnings which this chapter gives!

1. FOR behold, the LORD, the LORD of hoſts [a] doth take away from Jeruſalem, and from Judah, [b] the ſtay and the ſtaff, the whole ſtay of bread, and the whole ſtay of water, 2. [c] The mighty man and the man of war, the judge, and the prophet, and the prudent, and the ancient, 3. The captain of fifty, and † the honourable man, and the counſeller, and the cunning artificer, and the eloquent orator. 4. And I will give [d] children to be their princes, and ‡ babes ſhall rule over them. 5. And the people ſhall be oppreſſed, [e] every one by another, and every one by his neighbour: the child ſhall behave himſelf proudly againſt the ancient, and the baſe againſt the honourable. 6. When a man ſhall take hold of his brother of the houſe of his father, ſaying, Thou haſt clothing, be thou our ruler, and let this ruin be under thy hand: 7. In that day ſhall he ‖ ſwear, ſaying, I will not be an § healer; for in my houſe is neither bread nor cloathing; make me not a ruler of the people. 8. For Jeruſalem is ruined, and Judah is fallen: becauſe [f] their tongue and their doings are againſt the LORD, to provoke the eyes of his glory.

[a] Jer. xxxviii. 9.
[b] Lev. xxvi. 26.
[c] 2 Kings xxiv. 14.
† Heb. A man eminent in countenance.
[d] Eccleſ. x. 16.
‡ Heb. Men of illuſions.
[e] Chap. ix. 19, 21.
‖ Heb. Lift up the hand. Gen. xiv. 22. Rev. x. 5.
§ Heb. Binder up.
[f] Chap. v. 19.

v. 1—8. God had commanded them to ceaſe from man and creature-confidences: theſe he here threatens to deſtroy, and mentions his glorious titles; the Lord, the Lord of hoſts, able to the uttermoſt to execute the ſentence he pronounces.

1. Famine ſhould come upon them, v. 1. and terribly it raged in Jeruſalem, both when beſieged by Nebuchadnezzar, and afterwards by Titus, which laſt deſtruction ſeems to be chiefly the ſubject of this prophecy.

2. Deſolations ſhould be ſpread on every ſide, their mighty warriors fallen, and none remain to lead their armies; no judge left to adminiſter juſtice, no prophet to inſtruct or comfort them. The power had been taken from them to decide in matters of life and death, forty years before their deſtruction, John xviii. 31. but after they had revolted, and were beſieged by the Romans, a ſtate of utter confuſion began within the walls; the prudent and the antient were removed by famine, or the ſword, v. 2. Not ſo much as an inferior officer left, or one honourable man or counſellor to be found; or when all order was diſſolved, neither office, honour, or wiſdom maintained any longer reverence or attention. The cunning artificer ceaſed, when all buſineſs was at a ſtand; and the eloquent orator ſilenced, when his voice could be no longer heard for the tumult, v. 3.

3. The government devolved on thoſe who were weak as infants, and unable to reſtrain the general diſorder, v. 4. or men of illuſion, as in the margin; every arrogant factious ſpirit, who headed the populace, and from whence a ſcene of violence and ſtrange diſorder muſt enſue, as was the caſe when, during the ſiege of Jeruſalem, factions rent them in pieces, and every ſtreet afforded ſcenes of murder, rapine, and violence; all reſpect for age and ſtation was loſt, and lawleſs anarchy reigned, v. 5.

4. So deſperate would be their ſtate, ſo ruined and deſolate, that every one who had ought to loſe, would decline the adminiſtration; though preſſed to be their ruler, as having cloathing when the reſt were naked, as well as famiſhed; and that this ruin might be under their hand, in order to alleviate, or extricate them from it, v. 6. but not a man could be found, who would accept the office: ſeeing their ſtate deſperate and incurable, each would ſwear himſelf incapable of healing the deadly breaches, and that he had neither food nor cloathing to maintain ſuch dignity, or relieve their wants, v. 7.

5. The cauſe of all this miſery was their ſins: becauſe their tongue and their doings are againſt the Lord, and eſpecially againſt his Chriſt, in their malignity and cruelty, reviling him as an impoſtor, and crucifying him as the greateſt of malefactors; to provoke the eyes of his glory, who, juſtly offended with ſuch inſult and rejection of himſelf and his goſpel, cauſed this wrath to come upon them to the uttermoſt.

From the whole, we may learn, (1.) That ſin unrepented of, will be ſooner or later the ruin of every nation, and each individual ſinner. (2.) It is among the ſad ſymptoms of God's abandoning a people, when he ſends them a famine of his word, and removes the miniſtry of his goſpel from them. (3.) The kingdom is in the way to ſpeedy ruin, when folly and weakneſs are at the helm, and popular tumults dare interrupt the adminiſtration of juſtice. (4.) There is no healing thoſe whom God hath wounded; vain are all the means of grace to a reprobate mind.

9. ¶ The ſhew of their countenance doth witneſs againſt them, and they declare their ſin [g] as Sodom, they hide it not: [h] wo unto their ſoul, for they have rewarded evil unto themſelves. 10. Say ye to the righteous, [i] that it ſhall be well with him: for [k] they ſhall eat the fruit of their doings. 11. Wo unto the wicked, [l] it ſhall be ill with him: for [m] the reward of his hands ſhall be given him. 12. ¶ As for my people, [n] children are their oppreſſors, and women rule over them: O my people, [o] they which † lead thee, cauſe thee to err, and deſtroy the way of thy paths. 13. The LORD ſtandeth up to plead, and ſtandeth to judge the people. 14. The LORD will enter into judgment with the ancients of his people, and the princes thereof: for ye have eaten up [p] the vineyard; the ſpoil of the poor is in your houſes. 15. What mean ye [q] that ye beat my people to pieces, and grind the faces of the poor? ſaith the LORD God of hoſts.

g Gen. xiii. & xviii. 21. & xix. 5.
h Lam. v. 16.
i Eccleſ. viii. 12.
k Pſ. cxxviii. 2.
l Eccleſ. viii. 13.
m Prov. i. 31. Rom. ii. 8, 9. Gal. vi. 8.
n Ver. 4.
o Chap. ix. 16. Jer. l. 6.
† Or call thee bleſſed. Jer. vi. 14. Ezek. xiii. 22.
p Mat. xxi. 33.
q Mic. iii. 2, 3.

v. 9—15. We have here,

1. An awful woe denounced upon a wicked people. Wo unto their ſouls! the judgments were great, through the weakneſs and wickedneſs of their rulers; who, though effeminate as women, and unable as children to protect them from their enemies, harraſſed and oppreſſed them, v. 12. this was the leaſt part of their miſery; their ſouls, their immortal ſouls, were more terribly expoſed to the eternal wrath and curſe of God: they have rewarded evil to themſelves, their ruin is their own choice, and their ſufferings the juſt reward of their ſins. Note, (1.) If we loſe our ſouls, we loſe our all. (2.) In the day of God, the ſinner will have none to blame for his miſery, but himſelf. Several grievous provocations are here mentioned,

[1.] They ſin with an high hand, take no pains to conceal it, nor bluſh; with hardned impudence, openly avowing their abominations as Sodom, ſhameleſs before men, and fearleſs of God, v. 9. Note, (1.) Habitual ſin hardens the conſcience. (2.) They who are paſt ſhame, are on the brink of ruin. (3.) Sodom's ſin will have Sodom's vengeance.

[2.] Their prieſts were their corrupters; they who ſhould have led, deceived them by falſe doctrines; they who ſhould have rebuked, cried peace to them; they whoſe examples ſhould have reformed, hardened them, v. 12. ſuch were the Phariſees in our Lord's day. But were they the only falſe teachers, the exalters of human merit, the falſe prophets of peace, and examples of iniquity? How many a prieſt will this ſuit in every age?

[3.] Their magiſtrates were oppreſſive, devouring the poor whom they ſhould have protected, and greedy of gain, ſought only to fill their coffers, inſtead of exerciſing mercy and doing juſtice, v. 14.

2. For theſe things the Lord ſtandeth up to plead, expoſtulating with them on the wickedneſs of their ways; What mean ye, &c. and ſtandeth to judge the people; either to vindicate his people from their oppreſſors, or rather to execute judgment upon the wicked, and this without reſpect of perſons; the ancient, and princes, as deepeſt in guilt, will be the firſt in puniſhment. Note, (1.) When God ſtandeth up to plead, what ſinner but muſt tremble? why will they not conſider their ways, and prevent their ruin? (2.) The greateſt find no favour at his tribunal; none can appeal from his ſentence; height of ſtation only brings aggravation of ſin and ſuffering.

3. A diſtinction will be made amidſt theſe judgments. The righteous few ſhall not ſuffer with the wicked. Say ye to the righteous, who in Chriſt Jeſus is accounted ſuch, and by his grace renewed in the ſpirit of his mind, it ſhall be well with him; peace of conſcience, the ſenſe of God's love, and the hope of his glory ſhall be his ſupport in whatever national viſitations he may be involved, for they ſhall eat the fruit of their doings; as they have not provoked the judgments, they ſhall be delivered from them, or ſupported under them. Wo unto the wicked, it ſhall be ill with him in time and in eternity; all his ſufferings are imbittered, his proſpects dark, his life miſerable, his death terrible, and after death accurſed; he is doomed to devouring fire, and everlaſting burnings. Wo indeed to the wicked, when the reward of his hands ſhall thus be given him!

16. ¶ Moreover, the LORD ſaith, Becauſe the daughters of Zion are haughty, and walk with ſtretched forth necks, and [r] wanton eyes, walking, and † mincing as they go, and making a tinkling with their feet: 17. Therefore [s] the LORD will ſmite with a ſcab the crown of the head of the daughters of Zion, and the LORD [t] will diſcover their ſecret parts. 18. In that day the LORD will take away the bravery of their tinkling ornaments about their feet, and their ‡ cauls, and their round tires like the moon, 19. The ‖ chains, and the bracelets, and the § mufflers, 20. The bonnets, and the ornaments of the legs, and the head-bands, and the tablets, and the ear-rings, 21. The rings, and noſe-jewels, 22. The changeable ſuits of apparel, and the mantles, and the wimples, and the criſping-pins, 23. The glaſſes, and the fine linen, and the hoods, and the veils. 24. And it ſhall come to paſs, that inſtead of ſweet ſmell, there ſhall be ſtink; and inſtead of a girdle, a rent; and inſtead of well ſet hair, [u] baldneſs; and inſtead of a ſtomacher, a girding of ſackcloth; and burning inſtead of beauty. 25. Thy men ſhall fall by the ſword, and thy mighty in the war. 26. And [x] her gates ſhall lament and mourn. and [y] ſhe being † deſolate, ſhall ſit upon the ground.

r 2 Pet. ii. 14.
† Or tripping.
s Deut. xxviii. 27.
t Chap. xlvii. 3. Nah. iii. 5.
‡ Or networks.
‖ Or boxes of ſweet ointment.
§ Or ſpangled ornaments.
u Mic. i. 16.
x Lam. i. 4.
y Ibid. ii. 10. Luke xix. 44.
† Heb. Cleanſed, i. e. emptied of inhabitants.

v. 16—26. The daughters of Zion had contributed to ſwell the national guilt, and muſt therefore ſhare in their plagues.

1. Their ſins are vanity and lewdneſs. Proud of their perſons and ornaments, with elevated heads, and ſtretched forth necks, they treated with an air of diſdain their inferiors; whilſt wantonly they caſt their amorous glances around, and all their motions beſpoke deſire of admiration. Note, (1.) Vanity is woman's beſetting ſin. (2.) They who lay ſnares for others, are juſtly chargeable with every evil conſequence that follows. (3.) A wanton eye betrays an impure heart.

2. Their puniſhments would correſpond with their ſins. Loathſome diſeaſe ſhould deform and humble the proud beauty, v. 17. inſtead of their full wardrobes of various dreſſes, they ſhould be ſtripped naked to their ſhame; their ornaments (the exact meaning of the ſeveral particulars of which is ſcarcely to be aſcertained, and is of little moment) which faſhion dictated, and their vain hearts affected, pleaſed with the finery, and never thinking they had enough, muſt all be plundered; themſelves enſlaved, and led into captivity, a girding of ſackcloth would be their miſerable covering: inſtead of perfumes and fragrance, they would be nauſeous through poverty and ulcers; their ſhining girdles would give place to rags, tattered and rent; their braided locks, dreſſed with ſuch curious art, now torn for anguiſh, or falling off through ſickneſs, would leave them bald; and the ſcorching ſun, or burning carbuncles, disfigure that fair face, which in the glaſs had led ſo often to ſelf-idolatry; whilſt their huſbands ſhould be ſlain by the ſword, and no man left to marry them. Thus ſunk under univerſal deſolations, the gates of the very city would mourn; and Jeruſalem, as a diſconſolate widow, in the duſt bewail her irreparable ruin. Note, (1.) The ſins of lewdneſs often make thoſe loathſome, who were once moſt lovely. (2.) Extravagant finery eaſily leads to pinching poverty. (3.) Beauty is a dangerous gift, and often proves the bane of its poſſeſſor. (4.) Dreſs according to our ſtation is becoming, but to be curious and expenſive is to turn the covering of our ſhame into an increaſe of our ſin.

CHAP. IV.

In this chapter is foretold, 1. The ſcarceneſs of men that ſhould be left in Jeruſalem, ver. 1. 2. The reſtoration to peace and purity in the days of the Meſſiah, ver. 2—6.

1. AND [a] in that day ſeven women ſhall take hold of one man, ſaying, We will eat our own bread, and wear our own apparel: only let us be called by thy name, [b] to take away our reproach.

a Chap. iii. 24.
b Luke i. 25.

v. 1. This verſe properly belongs to the forgoing chapter, where the ravages of the ſword are mentioned, and ſhould be ſo great, that by reaſon of the few men left, contrary to the eſtabliſhed rule of their ſex, and the ordinance of God, ſeven women ſhould take hold of one man, preſſing him to their bed, and content to ſhare him as their huſband; and inſtead of expecting a maintenance from him, offering to provide for themſelves, as an argument to gain his conſent to their propoſals; at any rate deſiring to have a huſband, and not to be compelled to a ſingle life, which among the Jews was reckoned very reproachful. Perhaps it intimates alſo the immodeſty of their hearts, as if the reproach of virginity to them was more irkſome, than the reproach of vice. Note, As modeſty is the great ornament of the female ſex, the want of it makes them moſt deteſted and loathſome.

2. In that day ſhall [c] the branch of the LORD be beautiful and glorious, and the fruit of the earth ſhall be excellent and comely for them that are eſcaped of Iſrael. 3. And it ſhall come to paſs, that he that is left in Zion, and he that remaineth in Jeruſalem, [d] ſhall be called holy, even every one [e] that is written † among the living in Jeruſalem: 4. When [f] the LORD ſhall have waſhed away the filth of the daughters of Zion, and ſhall have purged the blood of Jeruſalem from the midſt thereof, by the ſpirit of judgment, and by the ſpirit of burning. 5. And the LORD will create upon every dwelling-place of mount Zion, and upon her aſſemblies [g] a cloud, and ſmoke by day, and the ſhining of a flaming fire by night: for upon all the glory [h] ſhall be ‡ a defence. 6. And there ſhall be a tabernacle for a ſhadow in the day time from the heat, and for [i] a place of refuge, and for a covert from ſtorm and from rain.

c Jer. xxiii. 5. Zech. iii. 8. & vi. 12.
d Chap. lx. 21.
e Pſ. lxix. 28. Rev. iii. 5. & xvii. 8.
† Or to life. Acts xiii. 48.
f Mal. iii. 2, 3.
g Exod. xiii. 21.
h Zech. ii. 5.
‡ Heb. A covering. Chap. viii. 14.
i Chap. xxv. 4. Heb. vi. 18.

v. 2—6. In the midſt of theſe terrible threatnings, a bright beam of hope dawns from the great and precious promiſes of the Meſſiah, whoſe kingdom and glory ſhould then be exalted, when thoſe who had rejected him, received their righteous doom.

1. In that day of Jeruſalem's deſolations, ſhall the branch of the Lord, the Meſſiah, that ſhould ſhoot from the ſtem of Jeſſe, Zech. iii. 8. Jer. xxiii. 5. Iſa. xi. 1. be beautiful and glorious, laden with the precious fruits of pardon, grace, and glory, and though ſpringing in his humiliation as a root out of a dry ground, yet in his exaltation ſhining brighter than the ſun, glorified of his ſaints, and admired of all that believe: and the fruit of the earth, Chriſt Jeſus incarnate on the earth, ſhall be excellent and comely; though once a worm, and no man, his viſage marred more than any, now become the chief of ten thouſand, and altogether lovely; for them that are eſcaped of Iſrael, the choſen few, whom he hath reſerved for himſelf, whoſe eyes are opened to know his excellences, and who are ordained to eternal life, that they may behold his glory. Note, (1.) Though in the eyes of a carnal world there is no beauty in Jeſus, wherefore they ſhould deſire him, faith can deſcry excellences, that make him above all things precious, ſo that we can ſay, Whom have I in heaven but thee? and there is nothing I deſire upon earth in compariſon of thee. (2.) In the Saviour all fulneſs dwells; do we want pardon, peace, grace, comfort, we may come to him, and freely take, enough to ſupply the moſt enlarged deſires of our ſouls.

2. When the Meſſiah comes, to him will the gathering of the people be. It ſhall come to paſs, that he that is left in Zion, the remnant, according to the election of grace, and he that remaineth in Jeruſalem, the goſpel church, ſhall be called holy, accounted ſuch, in virtue of their compleatneſs in Jeſus Chriſt, and really made ſuch, in a meaſure, by the powerful operations of the ſpirit of holineſs on their hearts and lives; even every one that is written among the living, or unto life in Jeruſalem; that is, they, and only they, who, by God's ſovereign choice, are ordained unto eternal life, and whoſe names are written in the book of life of the Lamb ſlain from the foundation of the world: and this ſeparation of his people for himſelf will then appear, when the Lord ſhall have waſhed away the filth of the daughters of Zion, and ſhall have purged the blood of Jeruſalem in the midſt thereof, by the ſpirit of judgment, and by the ſpirit of burning; which may ſignify the judgments God would bring upon the wicked, till they were uttterly conſumed; or rather the purging thoroughly the church of his redeemed, and the daughters of Zion, particular believers, in the furnace of afflictions, in order to cleanſe them from their remaining corruptions and defilement; and this the Lord would alſo farther effectually accompliſh, by raiſing up miniſters and magiſtrates, endued with a ſpirit of wiſdom, and animated with holy zeal for the perfecting of the ſaints, for the edifying of the body of Chriſt. Note, (1.) They whom Jeſus writes among the living, ſhall never taſte of death; not one of them can be loſt. (2.) Every elect veſſel is before prepared unto glory, through ſanctification of the ſpirit: vain are their hopes of an intereſt in heaven, whoſe hearts continue earthly, ſenſual, devliſh. (3.) When the Lord is pleaſed to work, he can eaſily find inſtruments, furniſh them abundantly for their labour, and bleſs them with ſucceſs. (4.) Whatever gracious changes are produced on a people, or an individual, we may be aſſured that it is the Lord's doing, whoſe power alone can convert the ſinner's ſoul.

3. The church of the redeemed, and every believer, will in the Lord enjoy protection, guidance, comfort, and ſecurity. As Iſrael's camp of old was preſerved by God's pillar of the cloud and of fire, ſafely led through the howling wilderneſs, and hid from the ſcorching ſun beams; and as the tabernacle was defended by ſeveral coverings from the ſtorm and tempeſt; ſo ſhall God's people ſtill enjoy as real, if not as ſenſible, tokens of his care in their paſſage through this wilderneſs, neither the ſtorms of perſecution, nor the blaſts of temptation; nor the ſcorchings of affliction, nor the burning wrath of a broken law, ſhall be able to hurt them. He will defend their glory, their ſouls, glorious in holineſs, lead them ſafe through every trial, comfort them with a ſenſe of his love, hide them in the day of wrath, as under the ſhadow of a great rock in a weary land; and after beholding the deſtruction of the ungodly, bring them ſafe to that bleſt tabernacle he hath pitched in heaven for their everlaſting abode.

CHAP. V.

The prophet in this chapter declares the ſins of his people, and the judgments which would enſue. 1. By a parable of an unfruitful vineyard, repreſenting the great favours God had beſtowed upon them, their diſappointing of his expectations, and the ruin they had thereby deſerved, ver. 1—7. 2. By an enumeration of the ſins that did abound among them, with a threatning of puniſhments correſponding to their ſins: (1.) Covetouſneſs, which will be puniſhed with famine, ver. 8—10. (2.) Rioting and drunkenneſs, ver. 11, 12, 22. to be puniſhed with captivity, ver. 13—17. (3.) Preſumption in ſin, and defying God's juſtice, ver. 18, 19. (4.) Confounding the diſtinctions between virtue and vice, and ſo undermining the principles of religion, ver. 20. (5.) Self-conceit, ver. 21. (6.) Perverting juſtice; for which a great and general deſolation is threatned, ver. 24, 25, by a foreign invaſion, ver. 26—30.

1. NOW will I ſing to my well-beloved a ſong of my beloved touching [a] his vineyard: My well-beloved hath a vineyard in † [b] a very fruitful hill. 2. And he fenced it, and gathered out the ſtones thereof, and planted it with the choiceſt vine, and built a tower in the midſt of it, and alſo made a wine-preſs therein: and he looked that it ſhould bring forth grapes, and it brought forth wild grapes. 3. And now, O inhabitants of Jeruſalem, and men of Judah, [c] judge, I pray you, betwixt me and my vineyard. 4. What could have been done more to my vineyard, [d] that I have not done in it? wherefore when I looked that it ſhould bring forth grapes, brought it forth wild grapes? 5. And now go to; I will tell you what I will do to my vineyard; [e] I will take away the hedge thereof, and it ſhall be eaten up: and break down the wall thereof, and it ſhall be trodden down. 6. And [f] I will lay it waſte: it ſhall not be pruned, nor digged, but there ſhall come up briers and thorns: I will alſo command the clouds that they rain no rain upon it. 7. For the vineyard of the LORD of hoſts is the houſe of Iſrael, and the men of Judah ‡ his pleaſant plant; and he looked for judgment, but [g] behold ‖ oppreſſion; for righteouſneſs, but behold [h] a cry.

a Pſ. lxxx. 8. Cant. viii. 12. Chap. xxvii. 2. Jer. ii. 21. Mat. xxi. 33. Luke xx. 9.
† Heb. The horn of the ſon of oil.
b Deut. viii. 7—9.
c Rom. iii. 4.
d 2 Chron. xxxvi. 15. Mat. xxiii. 37.
e Pſ. lxxx. 12.
f Deut. xxviii. 51.
‡ Heb. The plant of his pleaſures.
g Eccleſ. iii. 16.
‖ Heb. A ſcab.
h Exod. xxii. 23, 27.

v. 1—7. To bring theſe ſinners to a ſenſe of their guilt and danger, they have line upon line, and precept upon precept; every winning means is tried, whether by affecting parables or plain addreſs. The prophet here in poetic meaſure and parabolic figure warns them. He calls it a ſong of the well-beloved, and addreſſed to him, to Chriſt, the beloved Son of the Father, and the object of chief regard and affection to every faithful ſoul. Under the parable of a vineyard, he ſhews,

1. The peculiar care God had taken of them. He had placed his vineyard in a very fruitful hill, where corn, wine, oil, and every earthly bleſſing abounded; fenced it in from the reſt of the world, by a covenant of peculiar ſeparation, and protected them night and day by his Almighty power; gathered out the ſtones thereof, the Canaanites, hard and obdurate as ſtones; planted it with the choiceſt vine, the ſeed of Abraham his choſen, and gave them the knowledge of his true religion and pure worſhip; and he built a tower in the midſt of it, the temple where his preſence reſted in the midſt of them, their glory and defence; and alſo made a wine-preſs therein, his altar, on which their oblations might be poured out, and their ſacrifices offered. Note, In all our privileges and bleſſings, whether temporal or ſpiritual, God's hand ſhould be acknowledged by us.

2. The reaſonable expectations he entertained, and the diſappointment he met with. He looked that it ſhould bring forth grapes, and it brought forth wild grapes; inſtead of the fruits of righteouſneſs, poiſonous principles, hypocritical profeſſions, or openly infamous practices. Note, (1.) If God hath given us outward privileges, he juſtly expects ſuitable returns. It is not merely the leaves of profeſſion, nor the green grape of future purpoſes, but the ſound fruit of purity and holineſs he demands. (2.) When God is ſaid to be diſappointed, it means not that he did not foreſee, or know what would be the event, but this is ſpoken after the manner of men, according to what we, in a like caſe, ſhould have expected. (3.) They who produce the wild grapes, will ſet an edge on their own teeth, when God's righteous vengeance awakes to puniſh the tranſgreſſors.

Before Chriſt 760.

3. He appeals to the men of Judah and Jeruſalem. In a caſe ſo very evident, he might reſt it on their own conſciences what more could have been done? what greater advantages, civil and religious, could they deſire to have enjoyed? wherefore then have they acted ſo vile a part, and made ſuch unſuitable returns? or it may be rendered, Why have I expected that it ſhould bring forth grapes, ſeeing it brought forth wild grapes? why have I born with them ſo long, or why ſhould they be longer ſpared? Note, (1.) The ſinner acts moſt unreaſonably, as well as moſt ungratefully, and will in the day of God, appear without excuſe. (2.) When we conſider our mercies, who need not tremble for his own unprofitableneſs? (3.) Though God's patience laſt long, it will not endure for ever: when the wicked are incorrigible, their ruin is near.

4. God pronounces judgment upon them. I will take away the hedge thereof, remove their defence, and give them for a prey to their enemies; and it ſhall be eaten up by wild beaſts, ſuch as were the Roman ſoldiers, maſſacring without pity; and break down the walls thereof, and it ſhall be trodden down, when the beſiegers entered at the wide breaches, utterly deſtroying all before them, laying both city and people in the duſt. And I will lay it waſte, without inhabitant; it ſhall not be pruned nor digged, neither magiſtrates, prophets, nor miniſters ſhould any longer attempt to cultivate it; but there ſhall come up briers and thorns, errors and immoralities, fatal as univerſal: I will alſo command the clouds that they rain no rain upon it, no dew of heavenly influence ſhall deſcend upon them, but they ſhall be left to their hard and impenitent hearts, as is the caſe with the Jews to this very day. Note, That nation and people are in a miſerable way, from which God in diſpleaſure withdraws his ordinances, his miniſters, and his grace, and gives them up to their own hearts.

5. The prophet applies the parable to the Jewiſh people; the commonwealth of Iſrael was the vineyard, and the members of it the once pleaſant plants, but now become the degenerate plants of a ſtrange vine. The fruits God expected were righteouſneſs and judgment, honeſty and impartial adminiſtration of juſtice; but inſtead thereof, the cry of oppreſſion went up to God, and called down vengeance on the guilty land. Note, Men's ſins paſs not unnoticed: God ſees, and will aſſuredly viſit for theſe things.

[i] Mic. ii. 2. 8. ¶ Wo unto them that [i] join houſe to houſe, that † Heb. Ye. lay field to field, till there be no place, that † they may [k] Chap. be placed alone in the midſt of the earth. 9. [k] In mine xxii. 14. ears ſaid the LORD of hoſts, Of a truth many houſes ſhall be deſolate, even great and fair without inhabitant.
[l] Ezek. xlv. 10. Yea, ten acres of vineyard ſhall yield one [l] bath, and
11. [m] Prov. xxiii. the ſeed of an homer ſhall yield an ephah. 11. ¶ [m] Wo 29, 30. unto them that riſe up early in the morning, that they Eccleſ. x. 16. may follow ſtrong drink, that continue until night, till
Ver. 22. wine inflame them. 12. And [n] the harp and the viol, [n] Amos vi. 5, 6. the tabret and pipe, and wine are in their feaſts: but [o]
[o] Job xxxiv. 27. Pſ. they regard not the work of the LORD, neither conſider xxviii. 5. the operation of his hands. 13. ¶ [p] Therefore my peo[p] Hoſ. iv. 6. ple are gone into captivity, becauſe they have no knowledge: and their honourable men are famiſhed, and their multitude dried up with thirſt. 14. Therefore hell hath enlarged herſelf, and opened her mouth without meaſure:
and their glory, and their multitude, and their pomp, ‡ Or revelleth. and he that ‡ rejoiceth ſhall deſcend into it. 15. And [q] Chap. ii. 9, [q] the mean man ſhall be brought down, and the mighty
11, 17. man ſhall be humbled, and the eyes of the lofty ſhall [r] Pſ. ix. 16. be humbled. 16. But [r] the LORD of hoſts ſhall be exalted in judgment, and God that is holy, ſhall be [s] John xxi. 15. ſanctified in righteouſneſs. 17. Then ſhall [s] the lambs ‖ Or beſide their folds. Mic. ii. 12. feed ‖ after their manner, and the waſte places of the fat ones ſhall ſtrangers eat.

v. 8—17. We have two heavy woes denounced againſt two crying ſins, worldly-mindedneſs and ſenſuality; the common iniquities, not of the Jews only, but of our own days, and which will as aſſuredly now bring down the wrath of God as then.

1. They were inſatiable, and ever coveting to enlarge their poſſeſſions, to engroſs every ſpot around; and whilſt they might gratify their own covetouſneſs, careleſs what inconveniencies others ſuffered thereby, or what injuries they ſuſtained, ſo themſelves might but be accommodated, v. 8, 9. therefore God threatens them by a revelation made to his prophet, Many, or great houſes ſhall be deſolate, when their avaricious princes and chief men went into captivity, or were ſlain by the ſword, and none left to dwell in thoſe gorgeous palaces they with ſo much ſollicitude had raiſed; and inſtead of the plenty they expected from joining field to field, ſuch a curſe ſhould be upon the land, that ten acres of vineyard ſhould not produce half ſo many gallons of wine, nor their ground yield ſcarce a tenth of the ſeed they had ſown. Note, (1.) They who ſet their hearts on worldly things, are ſure to be diſappointed. (2.) Though it be no ſin to purchaſe what our neighbour is willing to part with, yet to be ever caſting about how to increaſe our ſtores, to have a greedy eye on every adjoining field, to make our own eſtate more complete; O ſi angulus ille, proximus accedat qui nunc denormat agellum; this is to provoke God to ſmite our poſſeſſions with a curſe.

2. They were ſunk in ſenſuality and pleaſure. Eager to quench, or rather inflame their raging thirſt, they roſe early, and began the day with ſtrong drink, protracted their carouſals till night; fluſhed with wine, no evil ſtuck with them; rage, revelling, luſt, reigned uncontrouled, v. 11. Muſic proſtituted, ſerved to heighten their paſſions; drunken, lewd, light the ſong, with pleaſing ſound, ſtole deeper into the heart; and no place left for ſerious recollection—God, his judgments, works and ways, his Chriſt and goſpel, were diſregarded, v. 12. Note, (1.) Drunkenneſs is not only a vice moſt brutal and odious in itſelf, but the pregnant author of every abomination. (2.) The moſt innocent things are liable to grievous abuſe; even muſic may lull the ſoul into eternal ruin. (3.) When the mind is enſlaved by luſt and pleaſure, God is forgotten, and every thought of him and his judgments that would enter, thruſt out as irkſome intruders. Wo therefore unto them! a judgment near and terrible approaches; Therefore my people are gone, or are going into captivity, by the Babylonions firſt, and afterwards by the Romans, becauſe they have no knowledge, by their ſins are become brutiſh, inſenſible of their danger, and wilfully blind to their impending ruin: their honourable men are famiſhed, and their multitude dried up with thirſt, a juſt judgment on thoſe who waſted ſo much in rioting and drunkenneſs: and dreadful but to read of were their ſufferings, during the ſieges they ſuſtained, even ſo far as to eat their own children. Therefore hell hath enlarged herſelf, a pit, deep like Tophet, is dug to receive the corpſes, periſhing ſo numerous by famine, peſtilence, and the ſword; or the place of torment yawns to ingulph their polluted ſouls, and hath opened her mouth without meaſure, inſatiate to devour the wicked, and their glory, the nobles, and their multitude, the populace, or the rulers, though never ſo many as well as mighty; and their pomp, their rich ones who lived in ſplendor, and he that rejoiceth in careleſs gaiety and carouſing, ſhall deſcend into it, into the grave, or afterward into hell together; where, inſtead of mirth and riot, their everlaſting portion will be weeping and wailing, and gnaſhing of teeth. Thus ſhall the mean and mighty periſh together, and leave a warning to others, of the danger of their ways. Let the drunkard ſolemnly peruſe this judgment; let the careleſs pleaſure-loving world behold their appointed end, that before it be too late they may conſider their ways, and prevent ſo fearful a deſtruction.

3. By the execution of ſuch juſt judgment would God be glorified; his holineſs, and hatred of ſin appear; his righteouſneſs in executing vengeance be manifeſted, v. 16. Then alſo ſhall the lambs feed after their manner, or according as they are led; the lambs of Chriſt's flock, fed by his word, and walking in all his holy ways; and the waſte places of the fat ones ſhall ſtrangers eat, the Gentiles ſhall poſſeſs both the country of Iſrael, and partake of thoſe goſpel-bleſſings, which the proud and ſelf-righteous Jews deſpiſed and rejected. Note, (1.) God will not want a people; if ſome are obſtinate, others will hear and obey him. (2.) If ſinners will not glorify God's mercy by their humble acceptance of his grace in a redeemer, they muſt glorify his juſtice in the place of torment.

18. Wo unto them that draw iniquity with cords of vanity, and ſin as it were [t] with a cart-rope: 19. [u] That [t] Job iv. 8.
ſay, Let him make ſpeed, and haſten his work, that [u] Chap. lxvi.
we may ſee it: and let the counſel of the holy One of 5. Jer. v.
Iſrael draw nigh and come, that we may know it. 20. 12. & xvii. 15. Amos ¶ Wo unto them that call evil good, and good evil; v. 18. 2 Pet. iii. 3, 4.
that put darkneſs for light, and light for darkneſs; that put bitter for ſweet, and ſweet for bitter. 21. Wo [x] Prov. iii. 7. Rom.
unto them [x] that are wiſe in their own eyes, and prudent xii. 16.
in their own ſight. 22. [y] Wo unto them that are mighty [y] Ver. 11. [z] Prov. xvii.
to drink wine, and men of ſtrength to mingle ſtrong 15. & xxiv. 24.
drink: 23. Which [z] juſtify the wicked for reward, and [a] Pſ. xciv. 21.
[a] take away the righteouſneſs of the righteous from him. [b] Exod. xv. 7.
24. Therefore [b] as † the fire devoureth the ſtubble, and † Heb. The tongue of fire.
the flame conſumeth the chaff, ſo [c] their root ſhall be as rottenneſs, and their bloſſom ſhall go up as duſt: be- [c] Job xviii. 16. Amos cauſe they have caſt away the law of the LORD of ii. 9.
hoſts, and deſpiſed the word of the holy One of Iſrael. [d] 2 Kings 25. Therefore [d] is the anger of the LORD kindled xiii. 3.
againſt

Before Chriſt 760.

againſt his people, and he hath ſtretched forth his hand againſt them, and hath ſmitten them; and [e] the hills did tremble, and their carcaſes were torn in the midſt of the ſtreets: [f] For all this his anger is not turned away, but his hand is ſtretched out ſtill. 26. ¶ And he will lift up [g] an enſign to the nations from far, and will [h] hiſs unto them [i] from the end of the earth; and behold they ſhall come with ſpeed ſwiftly. 27. [k] None ſhall be weary nor ſtumble amongſt them: none ſhall ſlumber nor ſleep:
[l] neither ſhall the girdle of their loins be looſed, nor the latchet of their ſhoes be broken. 28. Whoſe arrows are ſharp, and all their bows bent; their horſes hoofs ſhall be counted like flint, and their wheels like a whirlwind.
29. Their roring ſhall be like a lion, they ſhall roar like young lions: yea, they ſhall roar and lay hold of the prey, and ſhall carry it away ſafe, and none ſhall deliver it. 30. And in that day they ſhall roar againſt them, like the roaring of the ſea: and if one [m] look unto the land, behold darkneſs and ſorrow, ‡ and the light is darkned in the heavens thereof.

[e] Jer. iv. 24.
[f] Chap. ix. 12, 17, 21. & x. 4.
[g] Chap. xi. 12.
[h] Ibid. vii. 18.
[i] Deut. xxviii. 49. Jer. v. 15.
[k] Joel ii. 7, 8.
[l] Dan. v. 6.
[m] Chap. viii. 22. Jer. iv. 23. Lam. iii. 2, 3. Ezek. xxxii. 7, 8.
‡ Or when it is light, it ſhall be dark in the deſtructions thereof.

v. 18—30. Two woes are denounced, but there are others yet to come equally grievous, and all dating their origin from ſin, which then, now, and ever is the cauſe of all our miſery. Happy, did we but take warning by others woes, and flee their iniquities.

1. Their ſins are many.

(1.) They draw iniquity with cords of vanity, and ſin as it were with a cart rope, ſtrain every nerve, uſe every argument to accompliſh their wicked purpoſes; ruſhing into temptation, and bent on gratifying their luſts at all events.

(2.) They defied God, deſpiſed the warnings of his prophets, and when his Son appeared, treated his pretenſions with contempt. They ſay, let him make ſpeed, and haſten his work; the men of that generation ſaid, where are the threatned judgments? deriding their prophets who brought the meſſage: the Jews ſaid, if he be the Son of God, let him come down from the croſs; and the infidel ſinner continues thus to treat God's warnings in every age.

(3.) They ſought to confound good and evil, wilfully miſrepreſented truth as falſhood, branding the ways of godlineſs as miſerable, and boaſting the paths of ſin to be the only ſubſtantial bliſs, v. 20. Note, The devil and wicked men ſtudy ever to dreſs up religion and its profeſſors in the moſt forbidding colours, whilſt every glaring vice is palliated with ſome ſoft name, or pleaded for as commendable. Seriousneſs and ſingularity are termed pride and moroſeneſs, whilſt a life of diſſipation is called a little innocent pleaſure; a debauch, good company; ſordid parſimony, frugality; and daring infidelity, free-thinking: but names alter not things, nor change their nature; the ſweetneſs of God's good ways abides the ſame, and all the gloſſes of ſinners will not prevent their feeling the bitterneſs of the flames of hell.

(4.) They were proud and ſelf-ſufficient, wiſe intheir own eyes, though ſo infatuated, and prudent in their own ſight, valuing themſelves on their underſtanding and management. Thus the Phariſees ſaid, we ſee, when moſt deeply their ſin remained. Note, Conceit of our own wiſdom and righteouſneſs, is among the moſt fatal errors.

(5.) They were mighty to drink wine, ſtrong heads, and gloried in the quantity of liquor they could carry off; and men of ſtrength to mingle ſtrong drink, delighting in being able to drink others down. Note, (1.) They who were mighty to drink wine, muſt ſhortly drink of the wine of the wrath of God. (2.) The ſtrength of a man's conſtitution will not exculpate him from the guilt of drunkenneſs. To ſit long at the cups, and delight in them, is as evil as to fill the table with vomit, or ſtagger in their walk. (3.) They who glory now in their ſhame, of having out-drank their companions, in hell will find ſmall joy in theſe exploits.

(6.) They baſely perverted juſtice for gain. Their magiſtrates juſtified the wicked for reward, money covered all crimes; whilſt they take away the righteouſneſs of the righteous from him, the poor that cannot bribe, or the upright that dare not, however juſt their cauſe, are ſure to be caſt: for iniquities like theſe, God will viſit, and his ſoul be avenged of ſuch a people as this. Therefore,

2. He denounces their doom. Becauſe they have caſt away the law of the Lord, the doctrine ſent them by his prophets, and the goſpel preached by his Son, and deſpiſed the word of the holy One of Iſrael, treated it with contempt and diſregard, therefore as the fire devoureth the ſtubble, and the flame conſumeth the chaff, ſo ſudden, terrible, reſiſtleſs, and irreparable ſhould their deſtruction be; ſo that their root ſhall be as rottenneſs, and therefore the whole political tree muſt periſh; and their bloſſom go up as the duſt, all their pomp, riches, and glory be diſperſed, as withered bloſſoms before the wind. Therefore is the anger of the Lord kindled againſt his people, once his choſen, now apoſtate from him, and expoſed to his wrath. Preſent judgments were upon them, their princes ſlain in their ſtreets, and none to bury them; yet theſe but the beginning of ſorrows: God's anger was far from being turned away, and greater woes to come, his hand being ſtretched out ſtill, v. 25. He w ll ſet up an enſign, as the ſignal for marching, to the nations from far; the Romans, compoſed of various people, and bringing their troops from diſtant provinces: he will hiſs unto him, or them, the army, or the general, as a ſhepherd whiſtles his dog to come. Inſtantly they will obey, marching ſpeedily; no wearineſs ſhall retard, or difficulties ſtumble them: ſo eager would they be to haſten to the ſiege, that they would march day and night, and not even undreſs themſelves, or looſe their ſhoes, to lie down to ſleep by the way; expreſſions denoting their indefatigable diligence, v. 27. Their archers ready to ſhoot, their cavalry ſtrong, their chariots of war ſwift, and thundring along, v. 28. Fierce as lions, their roar ſhould intimidate; ſtrong as lions, their defenceleſs prey would fall, and none be able to deliver the devoted people of Judea from the ravening Roman ſoldiers, v. 29. In that day of the ſiege of Jeruſalem, they ſhould roar with their ſhouts and battering engines, as the tempeſtuous ſea, and the land of Judea be ravaged and ſunk under its diſtreſs, as if the luminaries of heaven were extinguiſhed, Matth. xxiv. 29. their whole polity, civil and eccleſiaſtical, be utterly diſſolved; and prieſts, princes, and people, ſink in one promiſcuous ruin. Note, (1.) When ſinners reject the counſel of God againſt their own ſoul, they bring upon themſelves ſwift deſtruction. (2.) God never wants inſtruments to execute his vengeance upon a guilty nation. (3.) When the Lord gives the word, the damnation of the wicked no longer ſlumbers. (4.) They who have fled from the light of truth to the darkneſs of ſin, are juſtly conſigned to the eternal darkneſs.

Before Chriſt 760.

CHAP. VI.

In this chapter we have, 1. The viſion which Iſaiah ſaw of the glory of God, ver. 1—4. The fright it put him into, ver. 5. and the relief given him, by an aſſurance of the pardon of his ſins, ver. 6, 7. 2. The commiſſion which he received, ver. 8. 3. The obſtinacy of the Jews notwithſtanding their deſolation foretold, ver. 9. 4. The remnant that ſhould be ſaved, amidſt the general deſtruction, ver. 13.

758.

1. IN the year that [a] king Uzziah died, I [b] ſaw alſo the LORD [c] ſitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and his † train filled the temple. 2. Above it ſtood [d] the ſeraphims: each one had ſix wings; with twain he covered his face, and [e] with twain he covered his feet, and with twain he did [f] fly. 3. And one cried unto another, and ſaid, [g] Holy, holy, holy is the LORD of hoſts, [h] the whole earth is full of his glory. 4. And [i] the poſts of the door moved at the voice of him that cried, and [k] the houſe was filled with ſmoke.

[a] 2 Kings xv. 7.
[b] John xii. 41.
[c] 1 Kings xx. 19.
† Or ſkirts.
[d] Pſ. civ. 4.
[e] Ezek. i. 11.
[f] Pſ. ciii. 20. Dan. ix. 21.
[g] Rev. iv. 8.
[h] Pſ. lxxii. 19.
[i] Chap. v. 25.
[k] Exod. xl. 34. 1 Kings viii. 20. Rev. xv. 8.

v. 1—4. Iſaiah had before, at God's command, begun his prophetic employment; a ſolemn confirmation of it is made in this auguſt viſion, as a means to ſtrengthen his faith, and quicken his diligence in the diſcharge of his important office. The date of the viſion is the year Uzziah died, after a long and pious reign of fifty-two years; though during the latter part of it, the leproſy, under which he laboured, excluded him from the adminiſtration, which was lodged in the hands of his ſon.

1. What the prophet ſaw; I ſaw alſo the Lord ſitting upon a throne, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, enthroned in the glory which he had with the Father before the worlds were; for to him is this expreſly applied, John xii. 41. and contains one of the moſt inconteſtible proofs of the eſſential Godhead of our incarnate Redeemer; high and lifted up, exalted above all bleſſing and praiſe, infinitely tranſcending all created excellence; the King eternal, to whom every knee muſt bow, and every tongue confeſs: and his train filled the temple, either the bright angelic ſpirits, who graced his preſence, or the irradiation that beamed around him; or perhaps it may refer to his church on earth, filled with the gifts and graces which, on the day of Pentecoſt, were ſo eminently beſtowed upon the apoſtles; by whoſe preaching, a vaſt acceſſion of converts was quickly made. Above it, or near him, ſtood the ſeraphims, the burners, the heavenly hoſts, or thoſe emblematic repreſentatives of the miniſters of the goſpel, Ezek. i. 13. each one had ſix wings; with twain he covered his face, as unable to bear the tranſcendent brightneſs of the Redeemer's glory; with twain he covered his feet, as in his beſt ſervices ununworthy of God; and with twain he did fly, delighted, ready and ſwift to obey God's high commands. Thus do Chriſt's miniſters with ſhame acknowledge their ſinfulneſs and unworthineſs to look up to God, and own the imperfection of their holieſt walk; whilſt burning with zeal, they are ready to fly at his word to preach his goſpel, and fulfil his pleaſure. Note, (1.) We cannot entertain apprehenſions of the glory of our Immanuel, according to his excellent greatneſs, it ſurpaſſeth knowledge. (2.) Before God, the higheſt creature ſtands aſhamed; ſhamed; and how much more cauſe hath man, a ſinful worm, to bluſh and be confounded, when he appears before the throne of Jeſus. (3.) Burning zeal for God, is the character of his faithful miniſters. (4.) Delight and chearful readineſs for God's work and will, is the way to riſe to fellowſhip with angels.

2. What he heard. One cried unto another, with fervency and unanimity, Holy, holy, holy is the Lord of hoſts, the triune God, glorious in all his attributes, and eſpecially in his holineſs; the whole earth is full of his glory, manifeſted in all the works of creation and providence, but eſpecially of redemption and grace. Thus do God's miniſters of flame on earth unite in preaching the one glorious goſpel, and giving to Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt, the praiſe of that holineſs diſplayed in the juſtification of the ſinner's perſon, and the ſanctification of his ſoul, by the atoning blood of Jeſus, and his efficacious grace.

3. The effect of this cry. The poſts of the door moved at the voice of him that cried, denoting the removal of the temple worſhip and ſervice; or the powerful effect of the goſpel on men's conſciences, ſhaking their vain confidence, and awakening their ſouls to a ſenſe of ſin: and the houſe was filled with ſmoke, in alluſion to the cloud of incenſe, which covered the mercy-ſeat on the day of atonement, and intimating God's acceptance of his miniſters ſervices; or ſignifying the judgments that would come upon the Jewiſh people, when their city and temple ſhould be deſtroyed; or finally, the ſmoke of the ſinner's torment that aſcendeth up for ever and ever.

5. ¶ Then ſaid I, [l] Wo is me, for I am undone, becauſe I am a man [m] of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midſt of a people of unclean lips: for mine eyes have ſeen the King, the LORD of hoſts. 6. Then [n] flew one of the ſeraphims unto me, having a live coal in his hand, which he had taken with the tongs from off [o] the altar. 7. And [p] he † laid it upon my mouth, and ſaid, Lo, this hath touched thy lips, and thine iniquity is taken away, and thy ſin purged. 8. Alſo I heard the voice of [q] the LORD, ſaying, Whom ſhall I ſend, and who will go for [r] us? Then ſaid I, ‡ Here am I, ſend me.

[l] Judg. vi. 22. & xiii. 22. Job xlii. 6.
[m] Jam. iii. 2.
[n] Pſ. ciii. 20.
[o] Heb. xiii. 10.
[p] Jer. i. 9. Dan. x. 16.
† Heb. Cauſed it to touch.
[q] John xii. 41. Acts xxviii. 25.
[r] Gen. i. 26. & iii. 22. & xi. 7.
‡ Heb. Behold me.

v. 5—8. Struck with the aſtoniſhing viſion, the prophet is confounded, conſcious of his own ſinfulneſs, and inability to ſtand before this holy Lord God.

1. He laments over himſelf. Wo is me, a ſinful worm, for I am undone, if this holy God be ſtrict to mark what is amiſs; becauſe I am a man of unclean lips, defiled in nature, and probably conſcious of fear, and want of boldneſs in the delivery of the awful meſſages with which he was charged; and I dwell in the midſt of a people of unclean lips, whoſe iniquities were, to his bitter ſorrow, ready to draw down the heavy judgments of God upon them: for mine eyes have ſeen the King, the Lord of hoſts, the Lord Chriſt, whoſe perfection of holineſs, like the bright beams of day, diſcovered thoſe ſpots and impurities that in the dark before he did not perceive. Note, (1.) The more we know of God's purity and perfections, the more we ſhall diſcover of our own vileneſs and pollution. (2.) The higheſt ſaints of God, who know him beſt, are moſt lowly in their own eyes. (3.) A good man not only laments over his own corruption, but when he looks around, his heart is grieved with the filthy converſation of the wicked, and he trembles for their approaching ruin.

2. A gracious meſſage is ſent him for his encouragement. Then flew one of the ſeraphims unto me, on his humbling confeſſion, having a live coal in his hand, ſignifying the powerful and lively word of the goſpel, which he had taken with the tongs from off the altar of burnt-offering, which was the type of the Lord Chriſt, whoſe atoning ſacrifice alone can procure the ſinner's pardon; and he laid it upon my mouth, not to conſume his unclean lips, but to purify them from their pollution, and ſaid, Lo, this hath touched thy lips, intimating the application of the pardoning word of God to the ſinner's ſoul, by which he is enabled to take the comfort of the promiſe; and thine iniquity is taken away, and thy ſin purged, or expiated, utterly blotted out before God, wiped away from his conſcience, and perfectly expiated by the ſacrifice of Jeſus. Note, (1.) God delights to comfort the mourners in Zion; penitent prayers will find an anſwer of peace and joy. (2.) Nothing can heal the heart-broken under ſin, but the precious balm of atoning blood applied by faith in the word of promiſe. It muſt be this coal from the altar, not ſtrange fire, that can quicken the periſhing ſoul. (3.) They who would ſpeak to God, or for God, with confidence, muſt firſt hear him ſpeak to them pardon and peace. (4.) None are ſo fit or able ſo feelingly to preach to ſinners the grace of a Redeemer, as they who have, by experience, taſted the riches of his love to their own ſinful ſouls. (5.) The miniſters of God, like burning ſeraphs, ſhould fly to the relief of the poor and broken-hearted ſinner, with the invigorating word of kind conſolation.

3. Iſaiah offers himſelf for God's ſervice. God is introduced deliberating on the choice of a meſſenger, and the prophet is ready to go. Alſo I heard the voice of the Lord, the Father, ſpeaking with his coequal Son and Spirit, whom ſhall I ſend on this dangerous errand, to reprove a hardened nation, and who will go for us? John xii. 41. Acts xxviii. 25. an evidence of the trinity of the perſons in the unity of the Godhead. Then ſaid I, Here am I, ſend me: Since God had purged his pollution, he is now ready to undertake any ſervice for his glory, however difficult or dangerous. Note, (1.) None can rightly ſpeak for God, who have not a divine miſſion from him, and have heard his voice teaching their own hearts the truths they muſt deliver to others. (2.) The ordination of a miniſter is a matter of ſolemn weight, ſeeing it is ſo rare to find that zeal for God, that love for men's ſouls, that acquaintance with the myſteries of godlineſs, which are ſuch eſſential qualifications for a preacher of the goſpel. (3.) If a deſire to glorify God, and a delight to ſerve him in the goſpel of his dear Son, does not engage us as volunteers in the ſervice, excluſive of all worldly proſpects, and regardleſs of all ſufferings, it were a horrid profanation to offer ourſelves for the miniſtry, merely becauſe deſtined by our parents, or to procure a maintenance.

9. ¶ And he ſaid, Go and tell this people, [s] Hear ye † indeed, but underſtand not; and ſee ye ‡ indeed, but perceive not. 10. Make [t] the heart of this people fat, and make their ears heavy, and ſhut their eyes: [u] leſt they ſee with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and underſtand with their heart, and convert and be healed. 11. Then ſaid I, LORD, how long? And he anſwered, Until [x] the cities be waſted without inhabitant, and the houſes without man, and the land be ‖ utterly deſolate, 12. And the LORD have removed men far away, and there be a great forſaking in the midſt of the land. 13. ¶ But yet in it ſhall be a tenth, § and it ſhall return, and ſhall be eaten: † as a teil-tree, and as an oak [y] whoſe ſubſtance is in them, when they caſt their leaves: ſo [z] the holy ſeed ſhall be the ſubſtance thereof.

[s] Chap. xliii. 8. Mat. xiii. 14. Mark iv. 12. Luke viii. 10. John xii. 40. Acts xxviii. 26. Rom. xi. 8.
† Heb. In hearing.
‡ Heb. In ſeeing.
[t] Pſ. cxix. 70. Chap. lxiii. 17.
[u] Deut. xxix. 4. Chap. xlii. 20. Jer. v. 21.
[x] 2 Kings xxv. 9, &c.
‖ Heb. Deſolate with deſolation. Mic. iii. 12.
§ Or when it is returned, and hath been bruiſed.
† Or as the ſupport at Shallecheth is in the elms and the oaks, ſo the holy ſeed is the ſubſtance thereof.
[y] Job xiv. 7—9.
[z] Pſ. lxxv. 3. Chap. i. 9.

v. 9—13. Iſaiah having offered himſelf, his ſervice is accepted, and his commiſſion given him, Go; but he is informed, though to the moſt it would be utterly ineffectual, to a few it would be bleſſed with ſucceſs.

1. He is commanded to tell this people, now abandoned to their own hearts luſts, Hear ye indeed the words of the prophets, but eſpecially of Chriſt and his apoſtles, in reference to whoſe preaching this ſcripture is ſeveral times quoted in the New Teſtament, but underſtand not, either the glories of his perſon, or his doctrine; and ſee ye indeed his miracles ſo great and ſtrange, but perceive not the proof of his divine miſſion therein contained. Make the heart of this people fat, and make their ears heavy, and ſhut their eyes: God gives them up to judicial hardneſs and blindneſs; becauſe they deſire not the knowledge of the truth, in judgment they ſhall be deprived of it, and find that goſpel which was ordained unto life, to them a favour of death unto death: leaſt they ſee with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and underſtand with their heart, and convert and be healed, to which the preaching of the word was adapted, or at leaſt might ſee ſo far as to make ſome national reformation, which might avert the judgments God had reſolved to bring upon them for the rejection of his Son, and therefore he left them to a reprobate mind. Note, (1.) Many are called by the goſpel word, few ſaved by goſpel-grace. (2.) The cleareſt truths of God's word are darkneſs to the fallen mind; the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, they are fooliſhneſs to him; neither can he know them, becauſe they are ſpiritually diſcerned. (3.) Wherever God's word is preached, it ſerves to harden thoſe who receive it not in the light and love of it. (4.) They who are converted, will find the wounds healed which ſin had made in their ſouls, whilſt the impenitent periſh in their iniquities.

2. He is informed of the deſolations to be accompliſhed upon them, in anſwer to his queſtion, How long ſhould this impenitence and divine judgment upon them continue? even till the whole nation was deſtroyed and diſperſed, the country depopulated, and utter ruin brought upon them by the Roman ſword, v. 11, 12. and to this day, both their hardneſs of heart, and their terrible judgments are continued. Note, (1.) The ruin of men's ſouls is the neceſſary conſequence of rejection of the goſpel. (2.) Temporal judgments are often the puniſhment of national ſins.

3. Though to the moſt the prophetic word would be fruitleſs, a remnant would be ſaved. But yet in it ſhall be a tenth, alluding to the Lord's portion of the tythes, a few reſerved amidſt the general apoſtacy; and it ſhall return, and be eaten, or be burnt; after their return from Babylon, the city and people ſhould be conſumed with fire by the Romans: as a teil-tree, and as an oak, whoſe ſubſtance is in them, though in winter they are ſtripped of all their verdure, the principle of life ſtill remains, ſo the holy ſeed is the ſubſtance thereof; they ſhall ſubſiſt, though in their wretched condition, a ſeparate people, for the elect's ſake that ſhall at laſt be gathered in; or for Chriſt's ſake, who ſhall at laſt turn away ungodlineſs from Jacob. Note, (1.) Though the labours of God's miniſters may not be ſo extenſively uſeful as they wiſh, they ſhall not be in vain; a few ſhall appear ſeals of their fidelity. (2.) For the ſake of the faithful that are in it, the world is preſerved; when they are gathered out, then cometh the end. (3.) Though our ſouls may ſometimes, through temptation and deſertion, appear as the trees in winter, if there be ſpiritual life within, we ſhall again bud and bloſſom as the roſe.

Before Chriſt 758.

CHAP. VII.

In this chapter we have, 1. The fright of Ahaz, occaſioned by an attack which the confederate forces of Syria and Iſrael made upon Jeruſalem, ver. 1, 2. 2. The aſſurance which God gave him that the attempt ſhould be defeated, ver. 3—9. 3. The confirmation of this by a ſign, ver. 10—16. 4. A threatning of the great deſolation that God would bring upon Ahaz and his kingdom by the Aſſyrians, notwithſtanding their eſcape of this preſent ſtorm, becauſe they went on ſtill in their wickedneſs, ver. 17—25.

742.

1. AND it came to paſs in the days of Ahaz the ſon of Jotham, the ſon of Uzziah king of Judah, [a] that Rezin the king of Syria, and Pekah the ſon of Remaliah king of Iſrael, went up towards Jeruſalem to war againſt it, [b] but could not prevail againſt it. 2. And it was told the houſe of David, ſaying, Syria † is confederate with Ephraim. And [c] his heart was moved, and the heart of his people, as the trees of the wood are moved with the wind. 3. Then ſaid the LORD unto Iſaiah, Go forth now to meet Ahaz, thou and ‡ Shear-jaſhub thy ſon, at the end of [d] the conduit of the upper pool in the highway of the fuller's field: 4. And ſay unto him, Take heed, and [e] be quiet; fear not, ‖ neither be faint-hearted, for the two tails of theſe ſmoking firebrands, for the fierce anger of Rezin with Syria, and of the ſon of Remaliah. 5. [f] Becauſe Syria, Ephraim, and the ſon of Remaliah, have taken evil counſel againſt thee, ſaying, 6. Let us go up againſt Judah, and § vex it, and let us make a breach therein for us, and ſet a king in the midſt of it, even the ſon of Tabeal. 7. Thus ſaith the Lord GOD, [g] It ſhall not ſtand, neither ſhall it come to paſs. 8. For the head of Syria is Damaſcus, and the head of Damaſcus is Rezin; and within threeſcore and five years [h] ſhall Ephraim be broken, that it be not a people. 9. And the head of Ephraim is Samaria, and the head of Samaria is Remaliah's ſon: [i] † if ye will not believe, ſurely ye ſhall not be eſtaliſhed.

[a] 2 Kings xvi. 5.
[b] Pſ. cxxix. 2.
† Heb. Reſteth on.
Chap. x. 20.
[c] Mat. ii. 3.
‡ i. e. A remnant ſhall return. Chap. vi. 13. & x. 21.
[d] 2 Kings xviii. 17. Chap. xxxvi. 2.
[e] Chap. xxx. 15.
‖ Heb. Let not thy heart be tender. Deut. xx. 3.
[f] Pſ. ii. 2. & lxxxiii. 3.
§ Or weaken.
[g] Pſ. xxxiii. 10. Prov. xxi. 30. Chap. viii. 10.
[h] 2 Kings xviii. 10, 11.
[i] 2 Chron. xx. 20.
† Or do ye not believe? it is becauſe ye are not ſtable.

v. 1—9. A new prophecy begins in this chapter, that bears date in the reign of Ahaz, when the confederate forces of Syria and Iſrael, which had before committed great ravages and maſſacres in the country, 2 Kings xv. 37. 2 Chron. xxviii. 5—7. united to beſiege Jeruſalem the capital, and utterly to deſtroy the kingdom of Judah; though, by divine interpoſition, their deſign was baffled, v. 1.

1. This formidable invaſion put the king and his ſubjects into great confuſion. It was told the houſe of David, of which though Ahaz was a degenerate branch, yet for his father's ſake, not forſaken, ſaying, Syria is confederate with Ephraim; and before two ſuch potent monarchs, whoſe power ſeparately he had been unable to cope with, nothing but ruin ſeemed approaching, and his heart was moved, and the hearts of the people, as the trees of the wood are moved with the wind, weak, bending, diſordered, and ready to fall before theſe mighty foes. Note, (1.) Bad news flies faſt. (2.) They who have accuſing guilt on their conſciences, are in terrors at the approach of danger.

2. God ſends to comfort and encourage them. Though perplexed, they need not be in deſpair; Iſaiah, the meſſenger of warning to them, is now the meſſenger of mercy, little as they deſerved it, to prove them whether the goodneſs of God might lead them to repentance. He is commanded to go with his ſon, whoſe ſignificant name, Shear-jaſhub, a remnant ſhall return, carried in it a token for good, and meet Ahaz at the conduit of the upper pool, in the highway of the fuller's field, where probably he was making ſome preparations for the approaching ſiege, by fortifying his capital, introducing plenty of water into the city, or cutting it off from ſupplying the beſiegers. Note, (1.) God is thinking of ſinners, and preventing them with the bleſſings of his grace, when he is not in all their thoughts. (2.) Seaſonable relief in time of helpleſs diſtreſs, is doubly welcome. The meſſage with which the prophet is ſent, is moſt encouraging.

(1.) He bids them not fear foes ſo deſpicable. Though to human view ſo potent, in God's regard they were but as the tails of firebrands when they are burnt out, and their wrath no more to be regarded than the ſmoke of an extinguiſhed taper. Take heed and be quiet, beware only of unbelieving diſtruſt, and wait in confidence of the ſalvation of God; neither be faint-hearted, or be not ſoft as wax, melted before the ſun. Note, (1.) Nothing lays the ſoul ſo open to the inroads of ſin, as unbelieving fear. (2.) The greateſt dangers will not diſturb their peace, whoſe minds are ſtayed upon God. (3.) The enemies of God's people are raging as firebrands, but all their wicked purpoſes will end in ſmoke.

Before Chriſt 742.

(2.) He foretells the diſappointment of the preſent attempt. though their ſchemes were deep laid, and full of malice, deſigning nothing leſs than the ravaging the whole country, dethroning the king, and ſetting up a tributary of their own; and ſo ſecure were they of ſucceſs, that they had pitched on the perſon already, had taken the city in imagination, and divided the ſpoil; yet one word of God defeats the plan: It ſhall not ſtand, neither ſhall it come to paſs. He who ſets bounds to the ſea, can as eaſily ſtill the ragings of the mighty. Note, (1.) The ſinner's confidence ſerves but to increaſe the confuſion of his diſappointment. (2.) They who are purpoſing to vex others, find often the miſchief return on their own heads. (3.) God delights to humble the proud. They ſhall ſee whoſe word ſhall ſtand.

(3.) From the preſent defeat, he paſſes on to their future deſtiny. Far from being able to extend their territories, their kingdoms ſhould never be enlarged; and Ephraim, perhaps the moſt inveterate of the two, within ſixty-five years, ceaſe to be a people, which ſome compute from the prophecy of Amos, two years before Uzziah was ſmitten with leproſy, to the ninth year of Hoſea, when Samaria was taken, 2 Kings xviii. 10. But others more properly reckon from the preſent date, the fourth year of Ahaz, and ſee the completion of the prophecy, not in the demolition of the kingdom of Iſrael, but in that entire tranſlation of the whole inhabitants, which Eſarhaddon made in the Twenty-ſecond year of Manaſſeh, when colonies from Babylon, Cuthah, Hamath, &c. were brought, and dwelt ever after in the cities of Samaria.

4. They are enjoined to credit his meſſage; for if ye will not believe, ſurely ye ſhall not be eſtabliſhed; faith in the divine promiſe was that which could alone abidingly ſecure their ſafety, whatever temporary deliverances might be vouchſafed them. Note, The word of promiſe only brings comfort, when it is mixed with faith in them that hear it.

10. ¶ Moreover the LORD ſpake again unto Ahaz, ſaying, 11. Aſk thee a ſign of the LORD thy God, aſk it either in the depth, or in the height above. 12.
But Ahaz ſaid, I will not aſk, [k] neither will I tempt the LORD. 13. And he ſaid, Hear ye now, O houſe of David, Is it a ſmall thing for you to weary men, but will ye [l] weary my God alſo? 14. Therefore [m] the LORD himſelf ſhall give you a ſign, [n] Behold, a virgin ſhall conceive and bear [o] a ſon, and † ſhall call his name ‡ Immanuel. 15. Butter and honey ſhall he eat, [p] that he may know to refuſe the evil, and chooſe the good. 16.
For [q] before the child ſhall know to refuſe the evil, and chooſe the good, the land that thou abhorreſt ſhall be forſaken of [r] both her kings.

[k] Deut. vi. 16.
[l] Amos ii. 13.
[m] Ezek. xxxvi. 32.
[n] Mat. i. 23. Luke i. 31.
[o] Chap. ix. 6.
† Or thou, O virgin, ſhalt call.
‡ i. e. God with us. Chap. viii. 8. John i. 14.
[p] Luke ii. 52.
[q] Chap. viii. 4.
[r] 2 Kings xv. 30. & xvi. 9.

v. 10—16. To confirm by miracle the veracity of the prophetic word, Iſaiah,

1. Bids Ahaz aſk a ſign of the Lord his God, for though he was a wicked king, God had not yet caſt off his national relation to him and his people, and was ready to grant him every evidence to engage his truſt and dependance.

2. Ahaz wickedly rejects the offer, pretending piety, v. 12. but there could be no fear of tempting God in aſking a ſign, when himſelf had made the offer; the true reaſon ſeems to be, he was unwilling to be quiet, and truſt the caſe with God, expecting more from the help of the Aſſyrians and his own fortifieations, than from the word of promiſe.

3. The prophet rebukes the high affront herein ſhown, not to himſelf merely as a prophet, but more eſpecially to that God who ſent him, v. 13. And ſince he diſdains to aſk a ſign, God will give him one ſtrange and marvellous; a ſign that relates in a double reſpect to the preſent and eternal good of his people. Behold a ſtrange unheard of wonder, a virgin ſhall conceive without the knowledge of man, and bear a ſon, and ſhall call his name Immanuel, God with us: in our nature, conceived of a virgin, by the power of the Holy Ghoſt, that he might have the human nature pure from our original defilement, and add infinite dignity thereunto, by uniting it to the divine nature in that myſterious perſon God and man in one Chriſt. Butter and honey ſhall he eat, partaking of a real human nature, ſupported by food as we are, and growing to maturity of underſtanding, by progreſſive ſteps, that he may know, or until he ſhall know to refuſe the evil, and chuſe the good. Now this was a ſign of preſent deliverance for Judah, as well as future ſafety, ſince, till the time of the coming of this wonderful perſonage, the ſceptre ſhould not depart finally from them: and for their more immediate diate comfort it is added, Before this child, probably pointing to Shear-jaſhub his little ſon, or before the child, any child that is born, ſhall know to refuſe the evil, and chuſe the good, ſhall come to the exerciſe of reaſon, the land thou abhorreſt, of Syria and Iſrael, now confederate, ſhall be forſaken of both her kings, Pekah and Rezin; which was quickly fulfilled in the death of Rezin, ſlain by the king of Aſſyria, 2 Kings, xvi 9. and Pekah by Hoſea, 2 Kings xv. 30. Note, (1.) Inſults caſt on God's prophets, is inſolence againſt himſelf, and will be highly reſented by him. (2.) The great comfort in every diſtreſs, is not ſo much the hope of preſent deliverance, as the proſpect of eternal bleſſedneſs in our Immanuel. (3.) The more we examine the word of prophecy, the more confirmed ſhall we be in the faith of Jeſus, in whom it is ſo perfectly fulfilled.

Before Chriſt 742.

17. ¶ The LORD ſhall bring upon thee, and upon thy people, and upon thy father's houſe, days that have not come, from the day [s] that Ephraim departed from Judah; even the king of Aſſyria. 18. And it ſhall come to paſs in that day, that [t] the LORD ſhall hiſs for the fly that is in the uttermoſt part of the rivers of Egypt, and for the bee that is in the land of Aſſyria. 19. And they ſhall come, and ſhall reſt all of them in the deſolate valleys, and in the holes of the rocks, and upon all thorns, and upon all † buſhes. 20. In the ſame day ſhall the LORD ſhave with a razor [u] that is hired, namely by them beyond the river, by the king of Aſſyria, the head and the hair of the feet: and it ſhall alſo conſume the beard. 21. And it ſhall come to paſs in that day, that a man ſhall nouriſh [x] a young cow and two ſheep: 22. And it ſhall come to paſs for the abundance of milk that they ſhall give, he ſhall eat butter: for butter and honey ſhall every one eat that is left in the land. 23. And it ſhall come to paſs in that day, that every place ſhall be where there were a thouſand vines at a thouſand ſilverlings, [y] it ſhall even be for briers and thorns. 24. With arrows and with bows ſhall men come thither; becauſe [z] all the land ſhall become briers and thorns. 25. And on all hills that ſhall be digged with the mattock, ‡ there ſhall not come thither the fear of briers and thorns: but it ſhall be for the ſending forth of oxen, and for the treading of leſſer cattle.

[s] 1 Kings xii. 16.
[t] Chap. v. 26.
† Or, commendable trees.
[u] 2 Kings xvi. 7, 8.
[x] Jer. xxxix. 10.
[y] Chap. v. 6.
[z] Ibid. xxxii. 13.
‡ Or, none ſhall come hither for fear.

v. 17—25. Though God will now appear for Zion's ſake, let not Ahaz think his unbelief ſhall go unpuniſhed.

1. A ſore judgment is threatned, ſuch as before the land of Judah never knew, ſince the grand revolt of the ten tribes, v. 17. Note, Though God may have long patience, the impenitent muſt not promiſe themſelves impunity.

2. The inſtrument to be employed, was chiefly the king of Aſſyria Nebuchadnezzar; and Pharoah-Nechoh, the king of Egypt, helped forward their deſtruction, 2 Kings xxiii. 29—35. As readily as the ſhepherd's dog obeyed the whiſtle, would their armies come up at God's call, thick as ſwarms of bees and flies, v. 18. reſting in the deſolate valleys like flights of locuſts: not a green leaf ſhould be left, ſo thoroughly would they devour the land, and climb every fortreſs, though ſeated on the craggy rocks, v. 19. As a ſharp razor, paſſing from head to foot, ſhaves off the hair, ſo ſhould the king of Aſſyria make an entire conqueſt of Judea, receiving the ſpoil as his hire: or alluding to the preſent Ahaz ſent him, to engage his aſſiſtance, 2 Kings xvi. 7—9. which in the end turned to his own damage, and brought upon him the continual inroads of the Aſſyrians, till the fatal captivity arrived. Note, (1.) When God will chaſtiſe a guilty nation, he will not want a ſcourge. (2.) It is juſt in God to make that creature the inſtrument of our vexation, we have made the object of our confidence, and to let men ſee thereby the miſery as well as folly of changing a rock for a reed.

3. Terrible would be the conſequence of theſe invaſions: inſtead of lowing herds and grazing flocks, a man would think himſelf happy if he had one young cow, and two poor ſheep remaining, v. 21. So deſolate would every family be, and ſuch plenty of paſture in the depopulated country, that this ſmall ſtock of cattle would yield milk ſufficient: butter and honey would be their only diet, for meat could not be afforded in the ſcarcity of beaſts that remained, v. 22. and vineyards and tillage would be utterly neglected: the ſpot that paid a yearly rent of a thouſand ſilverlings (about the value of half a crown) for a thouſand vines, ſo fruitful were they, now overgrown with briers and thorns, yielded no revenue, v. 23. Inſtead of gathering their vintage, men muſt now go armed to protect them from the wild beaſts, or robbers that lodged in thoſe thickets, where fruitful vineyards grew, v. 24. and the hills and fields untilled, where once the riſing harveſt ſtood, now, no longer fenced with hedges of thorns, are laid quite open as a wild waſte, where the cattle roamed without controul, v. 25. How terrible are the deſolations which ſin, and war, the effects of it, makes in the earth? What ſinful nation need not tremble on beholding Judea's wretched fate, and read an alarming call to repentance in her overthrow?

Before Chriſt 742.

CHAP. VIII.

Amidſt dark threatnings to the ungodly, bright beams of hope break forth on the faithful. In this chapter we have, 1. A prophecy of the deſtruction of the confederate kingdoms of Syria and Iſrael by the king of Aſſyria, ver. 1—4. 2. Of the deſolations that ſhould be made by that proud victorious prince, in the land of Iſrael and Judah, ver. 5—8. 3. Great encouragement given to the people of God in the midſt of thoſe diſtractions: they are aſſured, (1.) That their enemies ſhall not gain their point againſt them, ver. 9, 10. (2.) That if they kept up the fear of God, and kept down the fear of man, they ſhould find God their refuge, ver. 11—14. And while others ſtumbled, and fell into deſpair, they ſhould be enabled to wait on God, and ſee themſelves reſerved for better times, ver. 15—18.

1. MOREOVER, the LORD ſaid unto me, Take thee a great roll, and [a] write in it with a man's pen, concerning † Maher-ſhalal-haſh-baz. 2. And I took unto me faithful [b] witneſſes to record, [c] Uriah the prieſt, and Zechariah the ſon of Jeberechiah. 3. And I ‡ went unto the propheteſs, and ſhe conceived and bare a ſon; then ſaid the LORD to me, Call his name Maher-ſhalal-haſh-baz. 4. For [d] before the child ſhall have knowledge to cry, My father and my mother, § [e] the riches of Demaſcus, and the ſpoil of Samaria ſhall be taken away before the king of Aſſyria. 5. ¶ The LORD ſpake alſo to me again, ſaying, 6. Foraſmuch as this people refuſeth the waters of Shiloah that go ſoftly, and rejoice in Rezin and Remaliah's ſon: 7. Now therefore behold, the Lord bringeth up upon them [f] the waters of the river, ſtrong and many, even the king of Aſſyria, and all his glory: and he ſhall come up over all his channels, and go over all his banks. 8. And he ſhall paſs through Judah, he ſhall overflow and go over, [g] he ſhall reach even to the neck, and the ſtretching out of his wings ſhall fill the breadth of thy land, O [h] Immanuel.

[a] Hab. ii. 2.
† i. e. Make ſpeed to the ſpoil, haſten to the prey.
[b] 2 Cor. xiii. 1.
[c] 2 Kings xvi. 11.
‡ Heb. Approached unto, Lev. xviii. 6.
[d] Chap. vii. 16.
About 741.
§ Or, he that is before the king of Aſſyria, ſhall take away the riches, &c.
[e] 2 Kings xv. 29. & xvi. 9. Chap. xvii. 3.
[f] Chap. xxviii. 2.
[g] Ibid. xxx. 28.
[h] Ibid. vii. 14.

v. 1—8. The deſtruction of Damaſcus and Samaria are here threatned, and the rod of warning ſhaken over Judah.

1. The prophet is commanded to write this, with the four following chapters, on a large roll, and as a title to inſcribe on it Maher-ſhalal-haſh-baz, haſten to the ſpoil, haſten to the prey; an invitation to the king of Aſſyria, and repeated to ſhew the certainty of the event. Note, It is an unſpeakable mercy the holy ſcriptures are committed to writing, and not handed down to us by uncertain tradition.

2. The prophet having obeyed the Divine injunction, gets it atteſted by two credible witneſſes, Uriah the prieſt, and Zechariah, probably a Levite, 2 Chron. xxix. 13. that when the event correſponded with the prediction, his Divine miſſion might inconteſtibly appear.

3. On the conception of the propheteſs his wife, ſo called from her relation to him, and the birth of a ſecond ſon; to engage greater attention to the prophecy, he by Divine command gives the child the ſame name as was inſcribed on the roll. The deſign of which,

4. He explains, v. 4. That before the infant could ſpeak plainly, Damaſcus and Samaria ſhould be ſpoiled by the Aſſyrian king; which was fulfilled, 2 Kings xvi. 9. xvii. 3. and more fully xviii. 10. Note, (1.) War is God's ſcourge over guilty lands. (2.) They who have been troublers of others repoſe, are juſtly doomed to ſuffer in return.

5. Judah alſo ſhall not go unpuniſhed, becauſe many of the faithleſs Jews deſpiſed the waters of Shiloah that go ſoftly; the gentle government of David's race, or the weakneſs of their kingdom, eclipſed by the greater dominions of Rezin and Pekah, whom, though avowed enemies, theſe traitors of their country applauded and honoured, v. 6. therefore to puniſh them the Aſſyrian king, like a flood, with his armies ſhould cover the land, rapid and reſiſtleſs; reaching to the neck, even to Jeruſalem the metropolis, 2 Kings xviii. 13—17. and ſpreading his wings ſhould fill the breadth of Immanuel's land; ſo called, becauſe there he ſhould in the fullneſs of time be born, live, and die. Note, (1.) To affect the faſhions, admire the manners and government of our inveterate enemies, and to deſpiſe our own, betrays a heart deſtitute of the love of our country. (2.) Though the waters of trouble reach to the neck, yet even then can God ſay, Here ſhall thy proud waves be ſtayed, and ſave us out of the floods, when we ſeem in our own eyes moſt deſperate. (3.) If the Lord Jeſus have poſſeſſion of our hearts, though corruption often ſpreads its wings, he will never give us up for a prey to our ſpiritual enemies.

9. ¶ [i] Aſſociate yourſelves, O ye people, and ye ſhall be broken in pieces; and give ear all ye of far countries:
gird yourſelves, and ye ſhall be broken in pieces. 10.
Take counſel together, [k] and it ſhall come to nought;
ſpeak the word, and it ſhall not ſtand; for [l] God is with us. 11. ¶ For the LORD ſpake thus to me with a ſtrong hand, and [m] inſtructed me that I ſhould not walk in the way of this people, ſaying, 12. Say ye not, A confederacy, to all them to whom this people ſhall ſay, A confederacy; [n] neither fear ye their fear, nor be afraid.
13. Sanctify the LORD of hoſts himſelf, and let him be your fear, and let him be your dread. 14. And [o] he ſhall be for a ſanctuary; but [p] for a ſtone of ſtumbling, and for a rock of offence to both the houſes of Iſrael, for a gin, and for a ſnare to the inhabitants of Jeruſalem.
15. And many among them [q] ſhall ſtumble and fall, and be broken, and be ſnared, and be taken.

i Chap. liv. 15. Mic. iv. 11—13.
k Job v. 12. Pſ. xxxiii. 10. Prov. xxi. 30. Chap. vii. 7.
l Chap. vii. 14 Jer. xx 11. Rom. viii. 31.
m Jer. x. 23.
n 1 Pet. iii. 14, 15.
o Ezek. xi. 16.
p Chap. xxviii. 16. Luke ii. 34. Rom. ix. 33. 1 Pet. ii. 8.
q Mat. xxi. 44. Luke xx. 18.

v. 9—15. In Judah's diſtreſſed caſe, the prophet encourages and inſtructs them,

1. With a promiſe of their enemies diſappointment and defeat: though ſtrongly confederate, the expedition deeply planned, and the troops well armed and ready for the battle, they ſhall be broken to pieces. This is repeated to ſhew the certainty of the event, and the vanity of their hopes of ſucceſs; when God will infatuate their councils, and Immanuel defend his own land, v. 9, 10. Note, (1.) Though power and policy unite to cruſh the church of Chriſt, their efforts will prove the confuſion of her enemies. (2.) God's promiſe is ſure, and they who truſt it will never be diſappointed. (3.) If God be with us and for us, we need neither fear nor care who are againſt us.

2. He directs them how to ſpeak and act in their preſent ſituation. The Lord ſpake unto me with a ſtrong hand, in the ſpirit of prophecy, not to walk in the way of this people, dejected with their fears, or flying with them to Aſſyria, for help againſt their invaders, Pekah and Rezin, ſaying, Say ye not, A confederacy, to all them to whom this people ſhall ſay, A confederacy; join not in the general cry for a foreign aid, or in any factious party at home; neither fear ye their fear, nor be afraid on account of the confederate armies of Syria and Iſrael. Sanctify the Lord God of hoſts, by your profeſſed dependance upon, and ſubjection to him, and let him be your fear, and let him be your dread, who is the only worthy object. And he ſhall be for a ſanctuary; a ſure protection to thoſe who truſt him in every time of trial and diſtreſs. Note, (1.) In time of danger good men need encouragement againſt their fears. (2.) They who would follow Chriſt, muſt renounce the ways of a wicked world; a holy ſingularity is the inſeparable badge of a holy converſation. (3.) When God teaches us with a ſtrong hand, then ſhall we be enabled to walk aright ourſelves, and to direct others in the way. (4.) In whatever difficulties we are involved, let us never uſe undue means for relief. (5.) The fear of God upon the heart, will preſerve us from being terrified with the threatnings of men. (6.) God is ſanctified, when by patient reſignation we are content to wait for his ſalvation. (7.) If we have taken the Lord Jeſus for our ſanctuary, all the powers of earth and hell can never pluck us thence, nor endanger our ſafety.

3. He threatens thoſe who continued rebellious with ruin; if they would not truſt God as their ſanctuary, they ſhould find him a ſtone of ſtumbling, and rock of offence to both the houſes of Iſrael, and for a gin and a ſnare to the inhabitants of Jeruſalem; which was ſoon verified in the deſtruction the king of Aſſyria, at God's command, brought upon them; and hath a farther reference to the day of Chriſt, ſee 1 Cor. i. 30. when, offended at the Lord Jeſus, his character, birth, diſciples, &c. the Jews, unable to reconcile it to their proud expectations of a conquering Meſſiah, rejected him, many among them ſtumbled and fell, and were broken, and ſnared, and taken, as was here predicted, and thereby periſhed under their unbelief and hardneſs of heart. Note, The ſame Jeſus that is a ſanctuary to the poor and helpleſs ſinner, to the proud and ſelf-righteous is ſtill a ſtone of ſtumbling; they will not renounce themſelves to truſt in him, and therefore periſh in their iniquities.

16. Bind up the teſtimony, [r] ſeal the law among my diſciples. 17. And [s] I will wait upon the LORD [t] that hideth his face from the houſe of Jacob, and I will look for him. 18. [u] Behold, I and the children whom the LORD hath given me, [x] are for ſigns, and for wonders in Iſrael; from the LORD of hoſts, which dwelleth in mount Zion. 19. ¶ And when they ſhall ſay unto you, Seek unto them that have familiar ſpirits, and unto wizards [y] that peep, and that mutter: ſhould not a people ſeek unto their God? [z] for the living, to the dead?
20. [a] To the law and to the teſtimony: if they ſpeak not according to this word, it is becauſe [b] there is no † light in them. 21. And they ſhall paſs through it, hardly beſtead and hungry: and it ſhall come to paſs, that when they ſhall be hungry, [c] they ſhall fret themſelves, and curſe their king, and their God, and look upward. 22.
And [d] they ſhall look unto the earth: and behold, trouble and darkneſs, dimneſs of anguiſh; and they ſhall be driven to darkneſs.

r Dan. xii. 4.
s Chap. xxv. 9. Mic. vii. 7.
t Chap. liv. 8. & lvii 17. & lxiv. 7.
u Heb. ii. 13.
x Pſ. lxxi. 7. Zech. iii. 8.
y Chap. xxix. 4.
z 1 Sam. xxviii. 8.
a Luke xvi. 29.
b Mat. xv. 14.
† Heb. Morning light.
c Rev. xvi. 10, 11.
d Chap. v. 30.

v. 16—22. We have here,

1. The command given to the prophet. Bind up the teſtimony; the prophetic word concerning the Meſſiah, more precious than bags of gold, to be preſerved for futurity; ſeal the law among my diſciples; the diſciples of Jeſus, to whom the law of the ſpirit of life was intruſted, and though a ſealed book to others, revealed to them, and tranſmitted faithfully to their ſucceſſors. Note, (1.) We can never enough be thankful for the ineſtimable treaſure of God's word. (2.) 'Till God opens our underſtanding to underſtand the ſcriptures, they are a book ſealed, and a goſpel hid.

2. The prophet profeſſes his earneſt expectation and hope. I will wait upon the Lord, the Redeemer of his people, that hideth his face from the houſe of Jacob, either in frowns of diſpleaſure, or as being yet hid from them, until his glorious manifeſtation in the fleſh, and I will look for him, in confidence of his coming, and in joyful hope of the bleſſed iſſue of his appearing. Note, (1.) Patient waiting upon God will never be diſappointed. (2.) When God hides his face, we muſt not think he hath forſaken us, but be ſtirred up to pray, Lift up again upon us the light of thy countenance.

3. Chriſt, in anſwer to the prophet's expectation, appears to chear and comfort him; of whom the words ſeem rather ſpoken than of the prophet himſelf and his two ſons, though they were probably types of Chriſt and his people, for to him the words are expreſsly aſcribed, Heb. xi. 13. Behold, I and the children whom the Lord hath given me, in virtue of the everlaſting covenant, in which it was promiſed, that he ſhould ſee his ſpiritual ſeed, Iſa. liii. 10. but the world knoweth them not, becauſe they knew him not; they are for ſigns, and for wonders in Iſrael; ſigns and wonders were wrought by them, yet Iſrael would not believe; yea, derided and reviled them; and ſtill they continue in the world a people every where ſpoken againſt, and bearing the reproach of the croſs; from the Lord of hoſts, which dwelleth in mount Zion, who freely gave his Son for us, and in his ſovereign grace beſtowed on him that peculiar people, the travail of his ſoul. Note, (1.) The relation between a miniſter, and thoſe who are begotten by him in the goſpel, is near and dear as between the parent and his natural offſpring. (2.) We muſt not be aſhamed of the reproach of Chriſt; nor, however ſtrange the world may think us, join with them in their ways.

4. Chriſt cautions his diſciples to beware of deceivers, and to keep cloſe to the word of revelation: primarily it may refer to the Jews, who in their diſtreſſes were readier to recur to any help than to God, 2 Kings i. 2. but it contains a warning againſt the falſe doctrines of the Scribes and Phariſees, who were much given to ſorcery and enchantments, and in their principles and practices were as contrary to God as wizards; them therefore it were folly to conſult: ſhould not a people ſeek unto their God? who beſides the Redeemer can give a ſatisfactory anſwer to the queſtions of the guilty, and the cries of the diſtreſſed ſoul? it were highly abſurd for the living to apply to the dead; to images, or necromancers, or the Scribes and Phariſees, and all like them, who, tho' pretending to teach others, are themſelves dead in treſpaſſes and ſins. To the law and to the teſtimony; the ſcriptures, which are the only teſts of truth: if they ſpeak not according to this word, it is becauſe there is no light in them; they are blind leaders of the blind. Note, (1.) The ſuperſtitious folly of many profeſſed chriſtians, who truſt in charms, and fortune-tellers, and the like, is ſcandalous as ſinful. (2.) If God be our God, we may always ſeek, and always find help in him in every trial. (3.) The more we examine the Bible for ourſelves, the leſs liable ſhall we be to be deceived. (4.) No doctrine is to be received as genuine, which hath not ſcripture proof to ſupport it. (5.) A miniſter whoſe own ſoul hath never felt the enlivening influences of God's word and ſpirit, can ſcarce be expected to guide others aright in the way to glory; the living might as ſoon expect inſtruction from the dead, as the ſoul edification from ſuch.

5. The doom of the wicked is read, who forſake God for familiar ſpirits, the truth for falſhood. And they ſhall paſs through it (the land) hardly beſtead and hungry; when in their captivity, they ſhould ſcarce have bread to ſupport their miſerable lives, and with madneſs and vexation under their calamities blaſpheme God, and their king Meſſiah, and look upwards in vain for help from their falſe Chriſts, having rejected the true Redeemer: wherever they turned their eyes, darkneſs, diſtreſs, and wretchedneſs ſhould appear, till a miſerable life ſhould cloſe in a more miſerable death; which was fully verified in the judgments brought on the Jews by the Roman ſword. Note, (1.) The unhumbled fret and kick againſt the pricks, but they only thereby aggravate their own ſufferings. (2.) God's judgments upon ſinners, inſtead of bringing them to repentance, provoke their blaſphemies. (3.) They who forſake the God of their mercies, in death find all their proſpects terminated with darkneſs and deſpair.

Before Chriſt 740.

CHAP. IX.

The prophet in this chapter begins, 1. With comforts to God's people. (1.) In the doctrine of the Meſſiah, ver. 1—3. (2.) His victories, ver. 4, 5. (3.) His government and dominion, as Immanuel, ver. 6, 7. 2. With dreadful threatnings againſt the people of Iſrael, that had revolted from, and were enemies to the houſe of David, that they ſhould be brought to utter ruin, ver. 18—21. And this is typical of the final deſtruction of all the enemies of the Son of David and his kingdom.

About 740.
[a] Chap. viii. 22.
[b] 2 Kings xv. 29.
[c] Ibid. xvii. 5, 6.
† Or, populous.
[d] Mat. iv. 16. Eph. v. 14.
‡ Or, to him.
[e] Pſ. iv. 7.
[f] Ibid. cxix. 162.
[g] Chap. x. 27. & xiv. 5. Jer. xxx. 8.
[h] Judges vii. 22. Chap. x. 26.
[i] Mal. iii. 3.
[k] Chap. vii. 14. Luke ii. 11.
[l] John iii. 16.
[m] Tit. ii. 13.
§ Heb. The father of eternity, John x. 28. Heb. v. 9.
[n] Eph. ii. 14. Col. i. 20.
[o] Luke i. 32, 33.
[p] Zech. vi. 13.
[q] 2 Kings xix. 31. Chap. xxxvii. 32.

1. NEVERTHELESS, [a] the dimneſs ſhall not be ſuch as was in her vexation, when at the firſt [b] he lightly afflicted the land of Zebulun, and the land of Naphtali, [c] and afterward did more grievouſly afflict her by the way of the ſea, beyond Jordan in Galilee † of the nations. 2. [d] The people that walked in darkneſs, have ſeen a great light: they that dwell in the land of the ſhadow of death, upon them hath the light ſhined.
3. Thou haſt multiplied the nation, and ‡ not increaſed the joy: [e] they joy before thee, according to the joy in harveſt, [f] and as men rejoice when they divide the ſpoil.
4. For thou haſt [g] broken the yoke of his burden, and the ſtaff of his ſhoulder, the rod of his oppreſſor, [h] as in the day of Midian. 5. For every battle of the warrior is with confuſed noiſe, and garments rolled in blood, but [i] this ſhall be with burning and fuel of fire. 6. For unto us a child is born, unto us [k] a ſon is given, and the government ſhall be upon his ſhoulder: and his name ſhall be called, [l] Wonderful, Counſellor, [m] The mighty God, § The everlaſting Father, [n] The Prince of peace. 7. Of the increaſe of his government and peace [o] there ſhall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, [p] to order it, and to eſtabliſh it with judgment and with juſtice, from henceforth even for ever: [q] the zeal of the LORD of hoſts will perform this.

v. 1—7. The former chapter concluded with a diſmal ſcene of deſolations; but here to the righteous there ariſeth up light in the darkneſs, through that glorious Saviour, whoſe coming, like the ſun, ſhould diſpel the clouds, and whoſe power ſhould ſubdue every foe before him.

1. He is ſpoken of as the light of his people. There had been grievous vexations and ravages committed by Pul and Tilgath-pilnezer, kings of Aſſyria; and more deplorable ones when Salmanezer carried away the Jews captive into Aſſyria; but though the laſt under the Romans ſhould be moſt terrible, there ſhould be one alleviation of them, which the former had not. The people that walked in darkneſs, have ſeen a great light; Chriſt the ſun of righteouſneſs ariſen, who favoured Galilee with ſo much of his preſence, preaching, and miracles: they that dwell in the land of the ſhadow of death, in a ſtate of affliction under the Roman yoke, but more eſpecially under the blindneſs and ignorance of their fallen minds, and expoſed to eternal death, by reaſon of ſin, on them hath the light ſhined; the light of the glorious goſpel, diſpenſed by Jeſus and his apoſtles. Note, (1.) In the midſt of the deepeſt diſtreſſes, a ſenſe of Chriſt's preſence and love alleviates every burden. (2.) Every man by nature is a child of darkneſs, and his ways lead down to death and hell, till Chriſt the light of life ariſes upon his ſoul, pardoning, quickning, and leading him into the paths of peace. (3.) We might much better want the light of the ſun, than the light of the goſpel; with the goſpel the blind may find the way to heaven, without it the ſun can only light us into eternal darkneſs.

2. As the Saviour of his people, cauſing them to rejoice in him. Thou haſt multiplied the nation; increaſed the number of faithful converts, either among the Jews in Galilee, or from the nations who dwelt among them; from whoſe ſojourning there it was called, Galilee of the nations, v. 1. and haſt increaſed the joy of it, (we read not increaſed, but the marginal reading ſeems much preferable); the goſpel being glad tidings of great joy to all who receive it: they joy before thee, as the joy of harveſt; more delighted with the bleſſed fruits of goſpel grace, than with plenty of corn and wine; and as men rejoice when they divide the ſpoil of conquered enemies, ſuch as now ſin, Satan, death, and hell, are become, through the victory of our Redeemer. For thou haſt broken the yoke of his burden, and the ſtaff of his ſhoulder, the rod of his oppreſſor, as in the day of Midian; Chriſt, like the mighty Gideon, by the trumpet of his goſpel, and the light of truth committed to earthen veſſels, his miniſters, hath delivered his people from the yoke of Satan, ſin, and the law, more burdenſome to the ſoul than the oppreſſion of Midian to Iſrael. For every battle of the warrior is with confuſed noiſe, and garments rolled in blood, but this of a different nature, ſhall be with burning and fuel of fire; by the power of the ſpirit of God, operating like fire upon the ſinner's heart, and burning up his vile affections, as fire doth the fuel. Though ſome read the words, which ſhall be for burning the fuel of fire, it being uſual for conquerors to burn the armour and ſpoil of their enemies. Note, (1.) When Chriſt entered the liſts in the behalf of his people, his foes fell as lightning from heaven before him; and with the ſhout of victory he expired, crying, It is finiſhed. (2.) Whoever hath felt the bitterneſs and bondage of ſin, and groaned under it, being burdened, will hear the glad tidings of ſalvation, through the Redeemer, with tranſport. (3.) They who are delivered from the power of ſin and Satan, will aſcribe the whole of their ſalvation to the Redeemer's Almighty grace; for it is his right hand hath gotten for us the victory.

Before Chriſt 740.

3. The glorious perſon of our Redeemer and Saviour, is ſet forth under a variety of views, expreſſive of his excellent greatneſs, and admirably adapted to encourage the faith and hope of his people. For unto us a child is born, one in the human nature, born for our ſake, to be a Saviour to the uttermoſt, unto us a ſon is given; the Son of God, already in the eternal counſels appointed, and as certainly to be incarnate as if he had then been on the earth; and leaſt the views of his humanity might leſſen him in our eyes, the infinitely tranſcendent dignity of his perſon is inſiſted upon; and the government ſhall be upon his ſhoulders; though an infant, yet a king, inveſted with all power in heaven and earth, and eſpecially eſtabliſhing his throne in the hearts of his people: and his name ſhall be called, Wonderful; his incarnation, life, death, reſurrection, aſcenſion, are full of wonders; his love, grace, redemption, amazingly great and glorious; and all he is and doth, juſtly challenges the admiration of angels as well as men; Counſellor, which may be joined with wonderful: he is of the ſacred Three, by whoſe infinite wiſdom all things were created, and by whoſe deſigns of providence and grace the whole world above and beneath is adminiſtered; and to his teaching are his people indebted for their ſalvation, who, in every difficulty guided by his counſel, are ſafely brought at laſt to glory; The mighty God, or God the mighty One; very God as well as very man, ſharing in all the incommunicable attributes of Deity, ſelf-exiſtence, eternity, omnipotence, &c. and mighty therefore to ſave all that come to him as their Redeemer; The everlaſting Father, though in perſon diſtinct from the God the Father, yet one with him in eſſence and the unity of the godhead; and particularly the everlaſting Father of his people, the children given him according to the tenor of the eternal covenant of grace, and to whom he is the author of everlaſting ſalvation; The Prince of peace; the procurer of peace between God and man, the giver of it to the troubled conſcience; his ſubjects are all peaceable, and ruling in their hearts, he keeps them in perfect peace whilſt ſtayed upon him, and will bring them ſhortly to everlaſting peace and reſt in glory. Of the increaſe of his government and peace there ſhall be no end; from ſmall beginnings it ſhall increaſe more and more, till the ends of the earth remember themſelves, and turn unto the Lord; and the peace he gives ſhall be eternal as his throne; Ephraim ſhall not envy Judah, nor Judah vex Ephraim; all animoſities between his people will ſubſide, and, Oh that the time were come for this happy union of all true believers in one heart and one mind! upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, the Redeemer, the Son of David after the fleſh, will be exalted, to order it, the kingdom of his Iſrael, and to eſtabliſh it with juſtice and judgment, confirming his people in righteouſneſs and true holineſs, and executing judgment on their enemies, henceforth even for ever; for his dominion is that which ſhall not be deſtroyed; he ever lives and ever reigns, not only in time, but to eternity: the zeal of the Lord of hoſts will perform this; his faithfulneſs is engaged to fulfil his promiſe, his power almighty to accompliſh his purpoſes; and therefore not a jot or tittle ſhall fail. Happy therefore, eternally happy, are thoſe ſouls who are brought under this government of Jeſus, and, by experience of his grace eſtabliſhing that kingdom within them, which is righteouſneſs and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghoſt, can ſay with humble confidence, My King and my God.

About 738.
[r] Chap. xxvi. 11.
[s] Mal. i. 4.
† Heb. Mingle.

8. ¶ The LORD ſent a word unto Jacob, and it hath lighted upon Iſrael. 9. And [r] all the people ſhall know, even Ephraim, and the inhabitants of Samaria, that ſay in the pride and ſtoutneſs of heart, 10. [s] The bricks are fallen down, but we will build with hewn ſtones: the ſycamores are cut down, but we will change them into cedars. 11. Therefore the LORD ſhall ſet up the adverſaries of Rezin againſt him, and † join his enemies toge-

Before Chriſt 738.

together. 12. The Syrians before, and the Philiſtines behind, and they ſhall devour Iſrael with open mouth: [t] for all this his anger is not turned away, but his hand is ſtretched out ſtill. 13. For [u] the people turneth not unto him that ſmiteth them, [x] neither do they ſeek the LORD of hoſts. 14. Therefore the LORD will cut off from Iſrael head and tail, branch and ruſh in one day. 15. The ancient and honourable, he is the head: and [y] the prophet that teacheth lies, he is the tail. 16. For ‡ the leaders of this people cauſe them to err, and they that are § led of them are ‖ deſtroyed. 17. Therefore the LORD ſhall have no joy in their young men, neither ſhall have mercy on their fatherleſs and widows: for [z] every one is an hypocrite, and an evil doer, and every mouth ſpeaketh † folly: [a] for all this his anger is not turned away, but his hand is ſtretched out ſtill. 18. ¶ For [b] wickedneſs burneth as the fire, it ſhall devour the briers and thorns, and ſhall kindle in the thickets of the foreſt, and they ſhall mount up like the lifting up of ſmoke. 19. Through the wrath of the LORD of hoſts is [c] the land darkned, and the people ſhall be as the fuel of the fire: [d] no man ſhall ſpare his brother. 20. And he ſhall ſnatch on the right hand, and be hungry; and he ſhall eat on the left hand, and [e] they ſhall not be ſatisfied: [f] they ſhall eat every man the fleſh of his own arm. 21. Manaſſeh, Ephraim; and Ephraim, Manaſſeh; and they together ſhall be againſt Judah: [g] for all this his anger is not turned away, but his hand is ſtretched out ſtill.

[t] Chap. v. 25. & x. 4. Jer. iv. 8
[u] Jer. v. 3.
[x] Hoſ. vii. 7.
[y] Mal. ii. 8, 9.
‡ Heb. They that call them bleſſed, Chap. iii. 12.
§ Heb. Called bleſſed, &c.
‖ Heb. Swallowed up.
[z] Chap. x. 6.
† Or, villany.
[a] Ver. 12, 21. Chap. v. 25. & x. 4.
[b] Num. xi. 1. Pſal. xxxvii. 20.
[c] Chap. viii. 22.
[d] Mic. vii. 2.
[e] Lev. xxvi. 26.
[f] Chap. xlix. 26. Jer. xix. 9.
[g] Ver. 12, 17.

v. 8—21. The ſame prophetic word which brings tidings of mercy to ſome, denounces the judgments of God on others. They who diſregard his anger, ſhall feel the lighting down of his indignation, and know by dire experience how fearful a thing it is to fall into the hands of the living God. The kingdom of Iſrael hath her ſhortly approaching doom denounced; a moment's reſpite is in mercy given; before God ſtrikes he warns, not willing that any ſhould periſh, but that all ſhould come unto repentance.

1. A high charge is brought againſt them for ſundry crimes and miſdemeanours againſt the Majeſty of heaven.

2 (1.) They braved God's threatnings with daring inſolence. Though the Aſſyrians had demoliſhed their houſes in the ſiege, they vaunted how ſoon they would reſtore them in greater magnificence, changing the bricks for hewn ſtone; and when the ſycamores were cut down for the beſieger's uſe, to burn or facilitate their approaches, they boaſted they would ſupply their place with cedars. Note, Impenitence under warning providences, is a ſad ſymptom of approaching ruin.

(2.) They were incorrigible, v. 13. nor in their deepeſt diſtreſſes deigned to humble their ſouls and ſeek to God. Note, If corrections bring us not to our knees now, God's fierce wrath will be poured out, and prayer come too late to be heard.

(3.) Their magiſtrates and miniſters concurred in haſtening the judgment by their ill examples and lying promiſes. The leaders of this people, or they who bleſs this people, deceive them, encouraging their falſe hopes, and ſeeing viſions of peace for them when there is no peace. Note, When miniſters, inſtead of zeal againſt men's ſins, ſuffer them to continue undiſturbed, and ſpeak ſmooth things to flatter them to their ruin, the caſe is deſperate. The ſick patient muſt needs die, if the phyſician adminiſters poiſon inſtead of medicine.

(4.) Hypocriſy, falſhood, and wickedneſs, were reigning ſins, v. 17. They who kept up the form of religion, were as abominable as the profane and abandoned ſinner; the one renounced openly all reſpect to God; the other approached him with their lips, whilſt their hearts were far from him, or, truſting on the meritoriouſneſs of their outward duties and devotions, more fatally deceived themſelves to their ruin.

2. A heavy puniſhment is threatned, temporal and eternal.

[1.] The ruin of their country, v. 11, 12. The adverſaries of Rezin, whom Ahaz had hired, 2 Kings xvi. 7—9. had ſcarce ſooner ſucceeded in the reduction of Demaſcus, than incorporating the Syrian forces with their own, they ſhould fall upon Iſrael on one ſide, and the Philiſtines on the other, ſo that they ſhould be grievouſly ſpoiled. Note, God ſends leſſer judgments firſt, and if theſe prove ineffectual, he hath heavier in ſtore; for,

[2.] Becauſe, by their continued impenitence, his wrath was not turned away, but his hand ſtretched out ſtill, he will make a more terrible havock among them, v. 14, 15. neither young nor old, high or low, prieſt or people, ſhould eſcape: nor would God extend the leaſt compaſſion to the moſt miſerable objects, v. 17. Note, (1.) When God viſits for ſin, the higheſt in ſtation ſhall be among the firſt to ſuffer; crowns plead no privilege at his bar. (2.) The miniſter that ſpeaketh lies, to curry favour with the great, connives at their ſins, or indolently negligent, is a blind leader of the blind, will ſhortly appear a character the moſt deteſtable and baſe, and receive a puniſhment proportioned to his guilt and perfidy. (3.) The wickedneſs of the poor is as much remembered as the ſins of the rich, and their want and wretchedneſs here will be no exculpation, rather an aggravation of their ſins, that when they had leſs of this world to enſnare them, they did not more carefully ſeek a better.

Before Chriſt 731.

[3.] Inteſtine broils ſhall deſtroy them as well as the ſword of the enemy, v. 20, 21. they ſhould bite and devour one another, and even the neareſt relations not ſpare their own fleſh and blood; various inſtances of which appeared when their deſolations drew near; and the ravages the tribes made on each other, opened an eaſier conqueſt for their enemies. Note, Nothing ſo weakens God's church as cauſeleſs diviſions, and perverſe diſputes; for in the heat of religious controverſy, the power of godlineſs is uſually loſt, and Satan reaps the ſpoil.

[4.] The wrath of God, terrible and eternal, would yet purſue them: their wickedneſs would kindle a fire of vengeance, which nothing could quench, and the ſmoak of their torment would aſcend up for ever and ever: the darkneſs and diſtreſs of their outward ſituation, was but a faint image of their future proſpects, when, as fuel for the flames, they ſhould lie down in torment without meaſure and without end, v. 18, 19. for as in all their temporal judgments, their obſtinacy provoked a repetition of the ſtrokes, ſo in the eternal puniſhment of the wicked, God's wrath will never be turned away, but his hand be ſtretched out ſtill, for his wrath is for ever wrath to come.

CHAP. X.

The prophet in this chapter threatens, 1. The proud oppreſſors of his people at home, ver. 1—4. 2. Sennacherib their avowed enemy; concerning whom obſerve, (1.) The commiſſion given him to invade Judah, ver. 5, 6. (2.) His pride and inſolence in the execution of that commiſſion, ver. 7—11, 13, 14. (3.) A rebuke given to his haughtineſs, and a threatning of his ruin, ver. 12, 15—19. (4.) A promiſe of grace to the people of God, to enable them to bear up under the affliction, ver. 20—23. (5.) Great encouragement given to them not to fear this threatning ſtorm, for there is yet hope, ver. 24—34.

About 713.

1. WO unto them [a] that decree unrighteous decrees, and † that write grievouſneſs which they have preſcribed: 2. To turn aſide the needy from judgment, and to take away the right from the poor of my people, that widows may be their prey, and that they may rob the fatherleſs. 3. And [b] what will ye do in the day of viſitation, and in the deſolation which ſhall come from far? [c] to whom will ye flee for help? and where will ye leave your glory? 4. Without me they ſhall bow down ‡ under the priſoners, and they ſhall fall under the ſlain: [d] for all this his anger is not turned away, but his hand is ſtretched out ſtill.

[a] Pſal. lviii. 2. & xciv. 20.
† Heb. To the writers that write, &c.
[b] Job xxxi. 14.
[c] John vi. 68.
‡ Or, among.
[d] Chap. v. 25. & ix. 12, 17, 21.

v. 1—4. God proceeds in his controverſy with Iſrael in theſe four verſes, which might more properly have concluded the foregoing chapter.

1. He accuſes their governors of oppreſſion and injuſtice, by framing ſuch laws as immediately tended to diſtreſs the poor; or by making the proceedings ſo tedious and expenſive, that the needy never could afford to maintain his right; or in their adminiſtration they were ſo corrupt, that they enriched themſelves with the ſpoil of the fatherleſs and widows, and feared not to rob and plunder thoſe who were too weak to reſiſt, v. 1, 2. Note, There is a lawgiver, to whom the oppreſſed may appeal, and wo to thoſe whoſe unrighteous decrees ſhall come before his bar.

2. He warns them of the folly, ſin, and danger of their ways. They braved it out now, but what will ye do in the day of viſitation, when God riſes up to judge? and in the deſolation which ſhall come from far? from the king of Babylon: to whom will ye flee for help, in that day of calamity? and where will ye leave your glory? the riches, which they accounted their great ſupport, but in that day would periſh irrecoverably. Without me, when forſaken of my help, they ſhall bow down under the priſoners, or among the priſoners, and ſhall fall under, or among the ſlain; either in chains led captive, or left dead by the enemies ſword; and after all, greater judgments are ſtill in ſtore, v. 4. Note, (1.) As there is an awful day of enquiry approaching, it becomes every ſoul ſeriouſly to conſider what he ſhall then do, and how he ſhall be able to ſtand before the eternal judge. (2.) Whatever greatneſs and glory a ſinner may acquire; he muſt leave it all behind, and go a naked criminal to a righteous bar, where no covering or excuſe can hide his iniquities, and from whence there lies no appeal. (3.) They who live without God, will die without hope, the priſoners of the grave, and lying down among the ſlain in the ſecond death. (4.) It will be the conſummation of miſery to the damned, that no gleam of hope will ever chear their darkneſs, nor the leaſt proſpect appear of God's anger being ever turned away.

Before Chriſt 713.

† Or, wo to Aſhur.
[e] Jer. li. 20.
[f] Chap. ix. 17.
[g] Jer. xxxiv. 22.
[h] Gen. l. 20.
[i] 2 Kings xviii. 24. & xix. 10, &c.
[k] Am. vi. 2.
[l] 2 Chron. xxxv. 20.
[m] 2 Kings xvi. 9.
[n] Chap. xxxvi. 18—20. & xxxvii. 10—13.
[o] 2 Kings xix. 31.
[p] Jer. l. 18.
[q] Deut. viii. 17. Dan. iv. 30. Am. vi. 13.
[r] Hab. i. 16.
‡ Or, like many people.
[s] Jer. v. 20.
[t] Pſ. lxxxii. 7. Ezek. xxviii. 9.
[u] Pſ. xcvii. 3.
[x] Chap. xxvii. 4.

5. ¶ † O Aſſyrian, [e] the rod of mine anger, and the ſtaff in their hand is mine indignation. 6. I will ſend him againſt [f] an hypocritical nation; and againſt the people of my wrath [g] will I give him a charge to take the ſpoil, and to take the prey, and to tread them down like the mire of the ſtreets. 7. [h] Howbeit, he meaneth not ſo, neither doth his heart think ſo, but it is in his heart to deſtroy, and cut off nations not a few. 8. For [i] he ſaith, Are not my princes altogether kings? 9. Is not [k] Calno, [l] as Carchemiſh? is not Hamath, as Arpad? is not Samaria, [m] as Damaſcus? 10. As my hand hath found the kingdoms of the idols, and whoſe graven images did excel them of Jeruſalem, and of Samaria: 11. [n] Shall I not, as I have done unto Samaria and her idols, ſo do to Jeruſalem and her idols? 12. Wherefore it ſhall come to paſs, that when the Lord hath performed his whole work [o] upon mount Zion and on Jeruſalem, [p] I will puniſh the fruit of the ſtout heart of the king of Aſſyria, and the glory of his high looks. 13. For he ſaith, [q] By the ſtrength of my hand I have done it, and [r] by my wiſdom; for I am prudent: and I have removed the bounds of the people, and have robbed their treaſures, and have put down the inhabitants ‡ like a valiant man. 14. And my hand hath found as a neſt the riches of the people: and as one gathereth eggs that are left, have I gathered all the earth, and there was none that moved the wing, or opened the mouth, or peeped. 15. Shall [s] the ax boaſt itſelf againſt him that heweth therewith? or ſhall the ſaw magnify itſelf againſt him that ſhaketh it? as if the rod ſhould ſhake itſelf againſt them that lift it up, or as if the ſtaff ſhould lift up itſelf [t] as if it were no wood. 16. Therefore ſhall the Lord, the Lord of hoſts, ſend among his fat ones leanneſs, and under his glory he ſhall kindle a burning like the burning of a fire. 17. And the light of Iſrael [u] ſhall be for a fire, and his holy One for a flame: and [x] it ſhall burn and devour his thorns and his briers in one day: 18. And ſhall conſume the glory of his foreſt, and of his fruitful field, both ſoul and body: and they ſhall be as when a ſtandard-bearer fainteth. 19. And the reſt of the trees of his foreſt ſhall be few, that a child may write them.

v. 5—19. Deſolations upon Iſrael being accompliſhed, let not Judah think to go unpuniſhed: Sennacherib is commiſſioned to ſhake the rod over them; yet God preſcribes bounds to his pride, and ſaith, Hitherto ſhalt thou come, and no further.

1. The Jews are deſcribed as an hypocritical nation; for though they complied with the reformation of Hezekiah, their hearts remained unchanged, and their religious ſervices were but vain formality, and therefore they are called, The people of my wrath; nothing being in God's ſight more deteſtable than hypocriſy, yet no ſin ſo common among profeſſors.

2. God hath a rod prepared to ſcourge them; the Aſſyrian monarch is commiſſioned from him to ravage and ſpoil their country, and as mire in the ſtreets to tread them under foot, v. 6. Note, (1.) The tyrants of the world are but the tools of providence. (2.) They who moſt impiouſly employ their power againſt God, receive it from him, and he can make their wickedneſs ſubſervient to his glory. (3.) When God chaſtiſes his own children, he intends their profiting, not their perdition.

3. The proud inſtrument employed, thinks not who employs him, nor means to anſwer God's purpoſes but his own, v. 7. to eſtabliſh univerſal monarchy, and to gratify his ambition: boaſting therefore his power and conqueſts, he promiſes himſelf ſucceſs againſt Jeruſalem, as well as the other cities he had taken; his princes, equal to kings, were able to ſupply his army for the accompliſhment of the extenſive conqueſts he meditated, v. 8. A variety of cities, the capitals of vanquiſhed countries, he enumerates, over which his arms had proved ſucceſsful, v. 9. and whoſe inhabitants he had tranſplanted into other countries, v. 13. after having plundered their houſes of their treaſures, as eggs taken from the neſt whilſt the dam is abſent, ſo that no reſiſtance was made, and none able to withſtand him of all the nations he or his predeceſſors had invaded, v. 14. and this he vainly imputes to his own ſtrength and wiſdom, as if his politics none could defeat, and his power none could withſtand, v. 13. From whence he concludes, that as the graven images of the heathen he had ſubdued, were more and more precious than the gods of Jeruſalem and Samaria, v. 10. and the latter already fallen a prey, the former would afford him as eaſy a victory; blaſphemouſly comparing Judah's God to the idols of the nations, and ſuppoſing him equally unable to protect his votaries, v. 11. Note, (1.) Nothing is farther from the hearts of ſinners than to ſerve God's deſigns; but whilſt they mean only their own ends, they are made to anſwer his. (2.) What is a worm of earth, though princes bow before him, compared with him, whom angels, principalities, and all the powers above obey? (3.) To leave out God in the account of our gains, and to aſcribe them to our own prudence, is direct atheiſm. (4.) Vanity and ſelf-ſufficiency generally iſſue in ſhame and diſappointment.

4. God by his prophet rebukes the inſolent boaſter, and foretells his approaching ruin. Not more abſurd would be the boaſt of the ax or ſaw in the craftſman's hand, as if the work done was theirs, not his who uſed them, than for this proud king, the rod of God's anger, to vaunt his conqueſts, or for this ſtaff of God's indignation to arrogate the glory of his victories to himſelf, as if not an inſtrument, but the ſelf-ſufficient agent in thoſe atchievments: but God will make him know his folly in his fall; when he hath done his work of chaſtiſing and correcting God's people, for which he is employed, v. 12. then ſhall his pride and haughtineſs be humbled; his mighty army, the glory of his ſtrength, like a body emaciated with conſumption, ſhall pine away, and as fuel for the fire ſhall be burnt to aſhes, v. 16. God, the light and holy One of Iſrael, the Meſiah, ſhall, by his angel, in one day conſume the whole army, as eaſily as briers and thorns fall before the devouring fire, v. 17. Though thick as a foreſt his tents, or the javelins of his ſoldiers, and tall as cedars his mighty captains, they ſhall be conſumed together, body and ſoul, as when a ſtandard-bearer fainteth, and the rout is univerſal: or it may be rendered, as the duſt of the worm that eats wood, ſo eaſily and utterly would they be deſtroyed, v. 18. and ſo few eſcape the general ruin, that inſtead of a muſter-maſter, a little child might number them, v. 19. Note, (1.) The moſt proud and inſolent, God can abaſe. (2.) In all the viſitations on his people, God hath ſome gracious deſign to anſwer; when that is done, the rod will be burnt. (3.) In the midſt of our trials, if God be our light, we ſhall ſee a door of eſcape, or be comforted with his preſence, which can make the heavieſt afflictions light. (4.) None ever hardened his heart againſt him and proſpered. (5.) When God ariſes to judge the wicked, he will deſtroy both body and ſoul together in hell.

Before Chriſt 713.

[y] 2 Kings xvi. 7. Hoſ. v. 13.
[z] Chap. vii. 3.
[a] Ibid. ix. 6.
[b] Rom. ix. 27.
[c] Chap. vi. 13.
[d] Ibid. xxviii. 22. Dan. ix. 27. Rom. ix. 28.

20. ¶ And it ſhall come to paſs in that day, that the remnant of Iſrael, and ſuch as are eſcaped of the houſe of Jacob, [y] ſhall no more again ſtay upon him that ſmote them; but ſhall ſtay upon the LORD the holy One of Iſrael in truth. 21. [z] The remnant ſhall return, even the remnant of Jacob, unto [a] the mighty God. 22. For [b] though thy people Iſrael be as the ſand of the ſea, [c] yet a remnant of them ſhall return: [d] the conſumption decreed ſhall overflow with righteouſneſs. 23. For the Lord GOD of hoſts ſhall make a conſumption, even determined in the midſt of all the land.

v. 20—23. When judgment is executed on the enemies of God's church, mercy is reſerved in ſtore for his own people. Amidſt the general deſolations, a remnant ſhould be preſerved, and return to their old habitations after Sennacherib raiſed the ſiege of Jeruſalem, or from the Babyloniſh captivity: but this prophecy looks farther alſo, and eſpecially regards the times of the Meſſiah, Rom. ix. 27.

1. A remnant of Iſrael ſhould then be ſaved, eſcaping from the general blindneſs and unbelief which were upon the reſt of their countrymen; renouncing their vain confidence, as now they were taught by ſad experience the vanity of truſting on Aſſyria for help; and therefore, in faith and truth placing all their hopes of ſalvation on the power and grace of their Redeemer alone, v. 21. Note, (1.) Among the numbers of religious profeſſors, the choſen and faithful are but few. (2.) When we return to God, renouncing our ſelf-dependance and our ſins, God will return to us in pardon and peace.

2. When the mighty God the Saviour hath ſecured his own people, the remnant of Jacob, v. 21. then vengeance will, according to God's decree, be executed on the more numerous part of Iſrael that have rejected his ſalvation: the conſumption is decreed; the exact time and number are fixed of thoſe appointed unto deſtruction; and herein God will abundantly manifeſt his righteouſneſs, when in all the land a conſumption ſhall be made of the obſtinately unbelieving, v. 22, 23. Some underſtand theſe words in a different ſenſe, and interpret the conſumption decreed, &c. as God's decree for the ſalvation of his people, wherein his righteouſneſs ſhall be glorioufly manifeſted; and apply it as ſpeaking comfort to the choſen few, in in the view of the certainty of their ſalvation: but the former ſenſe ſeems preferable.

24. ¶ There-

24. ¶ Therefore thus ſaith the Lord GOD of hoſts, O my people that dwelleſt in Zion, [e] be not afraid of the Aſſyrian: he ſhall ſmite thee with a rod, and ſhall lift up his ſtaff againſt thee, [f] after the manner of Egypt. 25. [g] For yet a very little while, and [h] the indignation ſhall ceaſe, and mine anger in their deſtruction. 26. And the LORD of hoſts ſhall ſtir up [i] a ſcourge for him, according to the ſlaughter of [k] Midian at the rock of Oreb: and [l] as his rod was upon the ſea, ſo ſhall he lift it up after the manner of Egypt. 27. And it ſhall come to paſs in that day, that [m] his burden † ſhall be taken away from off thy ſhoulder, and his yoke from off thy neck, and the yoke ſhall be deſtroyed [n] becauſe of the anointing. 28. He is come to Aiath, he is paſſed to Migron: at Michmaſh he hath laid up his carriages. 29. They are gone over [o] the paſſage: they have taken up their lodging at Geba; Ramah is afraid, [p] Gibeah of Saul is fled. 30. ‡ Lift up thy voice, O daughter of [q] Gallim: cauſe it to be heard unto [r] Laiſh, [s] O poor Anathoth. 31. [t] Madmenah is removed, the inhabitants of Gebim gather themſelves to flee. 32. As yet ſhall he remain [u] at Nob that day: he ſhall ſhake his hand againſt the mount of the daughter of Zion, the hill of Jeruſalem. 33. Behold, the LORD, the LORD of hoſts ſhall lop the bough with terror: and [x] the high ones of ſtature ſhall be hewn down, and [y] the haughty ſhall be humbled. 34. And [z] he ſhall cut down the thickets of the foreſt with iron, and Lebanon ſhall [a] fall by a mighty one.

[e] Chap. xxxvii. 6.
[f] Ex. xv. 9.
[g] Chap. liv. 7.
[h] Ezek. xvi. 42.
[i] 2 Kings xix. 35.
[k] Judges vii. 25. Chap. ix. 4.
[l] Ex. xiv. 26, 27.
[m] Chap. xiv. 25.
† Heb. Shall remove.
[n] Chap. xxxvii. 21. or Acts iv. 27.
[o] 1 Sam. xiii. 23.
[p] Ibid. xi. 4.
‡ Heb. Cry ſhrill with thy voice, Chap. xii. 6.
[q] 1 Sam. xxv. 44.
[r] Jud. xviii. 7.
[s] Joſh. xxi. 18.
[t] Ibid. xv. 31.
[u] 1 Sam. xxi. 1. & xxii. 19.
[x] Am. ii. 9.
[y] Chap. ii. 11.
[z] Ver. 18.
[a] Chap. xxxvii. 36.

v. 24—34. Since God was determined to ſave a remnant for himſelf, he here,

1. Encourages them to truſt, and not be afraid: terrible as Sennacherib's invaſion appeared, God had ſet bounds to his ambition; though for a while they ſhould ſuffer, as when their fathers were in Egypt, under the ſcourge; or be diſtreſſed as at the red ſea, when the Egyptians purſued them, v. 24. yet in a moment the cauſe of their fears would ceaſe, and God's anger, which ſeemed to threaten them in this invaſion, be removed by the deſtruction of the Aſſyrians, v. 25. A deſtroying angel, his ſcourge, ſhould paſs through their hoſt with ſudden and terrible deſtruction by night, as the ſword of Gideon ſmote the Midianites, and the ſea ſwallowed up the Egyptians, when Moſes ſtretched out his rod, v. 26. Their enemies defeated, the burden of tribute impoſed on them, 2 Kings xviii. 14. would be taken off, and their yoke of bondage to Aſſyria be deſtroyed, becauſe of the anointing, for the ſake of the redeemed, who have an unction from the holy One; or for the ſake of the Meſſiah, who is the author of every mercy and bleſſing which deſcends on his people. Note, (1.) God's people need never fear with any amazement, there is hope for them in the darkeſt day. (2.) The unfaithfulneſs of God's own people provokes his diſpleaſure; but it is ſhort, and in wrath he remembers mercy. (3.) Though believers now groan, being burdened under their ſins and corruptions, the redemption of their ſouls is ſecured, and ſhall quickly be perfected; when every yoke ſhall be broken for ever from their necks, by the grace of the anointed Jeſus, and by the power of the anointing Spirit.

2. He deſcribes the rapid progreſs of the Aſſyrian king advancing to the ſiege, and the ravages and diſmay which he ſhall ſpread around him: without the leaſt reſiſtance he marches from Aiath to Migron, and thence to Michmaſh, where he eſtabliſhes his magazines, v. 29. and haſtening through the noted paſs, 1 Sam. xiv. 4. encamps for a night at Geba in Benjamin. Frighted at his approach, the inhabitants ſought only to ſave themſelves by flight; whilſt detachments from his army ravaged the country, and the cries of the poor people, plundered by the ſoldiers, were heard from one end of Judea to the other, v. 30, 31. Nob was his laſt ſtation, where he halted within ſight of Jeruſalem, and, ſhaking his hand in threatning, promiſed himſelf a ſpeedy conqueſt of theſe high battlements. Note, Succeſs is apt to intoxicate, and the confidence of the proud turns to their deſtruction.

3. His overthrow is determined. The Lord, the Lord of hoſts, before whom the mightieſt are but as duſt before the whirlwind, will ſtretch out his hand, confound his aſpiring hopes, and all his army and chief captains, as the cedars of Lebanon fall under the ſtroke of the ax, ſhall periſh by the ſword of the deſtroying angel. Note, (1.) The terrors of God in the day of wrath, will overwhelm the proudeſt, and ſink the mightieſt in deſpair. (2.) None ever perſecuted God's church and people with impunity.

CHAP. XI.

From the temporal deliverance of the Jews, the prophet makes a pleaſing tranſition to the greater and more glorious ſalvation of the Meſſiah, of which this was the type and figure. He deſcribes, 1. His riſe out of the houſe of David, ver. 1. 2. His qualifications for his great undertaking, ver. 2, 3. 3. The equity of his government, ver. 3—5. 4. The peaceableneſs of his kingdom, ver. 6—9. 5. The acceſſion of the Gentiles to it, ver. 10. and with them the remnant of the Jews, that ſhould be united with them in the Meſſiah's kingdom, ver. 11—16.

1. AND [a] there ſhall come forth a rod out of the ſtem of Jeſſe, and [b] a branch ſhall grow out of his roots. 2. And [c] the Spirit of the LORD ſhall reſt upon him, the Spirit of wiſdom and underſtanding, the Spirit of counſel and might, the Spirit of knowledge, and of the fear of the LORD: 3. And ſhall make him of † quick underſtanding in the fear of the LORD, and he ſhall not judge after the ſight of his eyes, neither reprove after the hearing of his ears. 4. But [d] with righteouſneſs ſhall he judge the poor, and reprove with equity, for the meek of the earth: and he ſhall ſmite the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the [e] breath of his lips ſhall he ſlay the wicked. 5. And righteouſneſs ſhall be the girdle of his loins, and faithfulneſs the girdle of his reins. 6. [f] The wolf alſo ſhall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard ſhall lie down with the kid: and the calf and the young lion, and the fatling together, and a little child ſhall lead them. 7. And the cow and the bear ſhall feed, their young ones ſhall lie down together: and the lion ſhall eat ſtraw like the ox. 8. And the ſucking child ſhall play on the hole of the aſp, and the weaned child ſhall put his hand on the cockatrice-den. 9. [g] They ſhall not hurt nor deſtroy in all my holy mountain: for [h] the earth ſhall be full of the knowledge of the LORD, as the waters cover the ſea.

[a] Chap. liii. 2. Rev. v. 5.
[b] Chap. iv. 2. Jer. xxiii. 5. & xxxiii. 15. Zech. iii. 8. & vi. 12.
[c] Chap. lxi. 1. Mat. iii. 16. John iii. 34.
† Heb. Scent, or ſmell.
[d] Pſ. lxxii. 2. & xcviii. 9. Rev. xix. 11.
[e] Job iv. 9. Mal. iv. 6. 2 Theſ. ii. 8. Rev. i. 16. & ii. 16. & xix. 15.
[f] Chap. lxv. 25. Ezek. xxxiv. 25. Hoſ. ii. 18.
[g] Job v. 23. or Chap. ii. 4.
[h] Hab. ii. 14. Acts ii. 17.

v. 1—9. As the coming of the glorious Meſſiah was the great hope of God's people of old, in every time of trouble; the prophet directs them to look above their temporal deliverance from the power of Sennacherib, to that eternal ſalvation their great Redeemer would accompliſh for them.

1. His deſcent is ſpoken of. As a rod out of the ſtem of Jeſſe; it being promiſed to David, that from him Chriſt ſhould ſpring; and a branch ſhall grow out of his roots; ſignifying the meanneſs of his appearance in the fleſh, as a tender branch compared with the tall cedars of this world's princes; and intimating the low eſtate to which the family of Jeſſe would be reduced, when all the former royalty it poſſeſſed would be gone, as the tree cut down, whoſe ſtump only remains in the earth. And ſuch was the caſe with the family of Joſeph and Mary, when Jeſus was born.

2. His qualifications for the work appointed him are mentioned. The Spirit of the Lord ſhall reſt upon him; even the fulneſs of the Godhead bodily; and with this text he opened his miniſtry, Luke iv. 18. the Spirit of wiſdom and underſtanding; the hid treaſures of which are all reſident in Jeſus; the Spirit of counſel and knowledge; how to execute the plan of redemption, to preach the goſpel, inſtruct his people, and order the affairs of his ſpiritual kingdom, to God's glory, and the ſalvation of his choſen; the Spirit of might, to conquer all his foes, and accompany his word of truth with effectual demonſtration and power unto the conſciencies of men, and of the fear of the Lord; being the perfect pattern of all godlineſs, and ſetting us an example that we ſhould follow his ſteps: and ſhall make him of quick underſtanding in the fear of the Lord; or of acute ſmell; intimating the thorough diſcernment he ſhall poſſeſs of the hearts of men. See John i. 47. Note, (1.) When we have ſuch a Redeemer, of wiſdom and might to counſel and ſupport us, how firm and unſhaken ought our confidence in him to be? (2.) A quick underſtanding in the fear of God, is the gift of God; the brighteſt genius without his grace, is in ſpiritual things dark and ignorant.

3. His throne ſhall be eſtabliſhed in righteouſneſs. As he knows men's hearts, he can judge of their characters, not by their outward appearance, but their inward tempers and principles; detecting the hypocrite under all the diſguiſes of outward formality and religious profeſſion, Matt. xxii. 18. The poor and humbled ſinner that flies to him for pardon and grace, he will juſtify by his righteouſneſs, and reſcue the meek from their oppreſſors, whether Satan or wicked men, whom he will rebuke in equity; and ſmite the earth with the rod of his mouth, in warnings againſt thoſe who place their affections upon it; and with the breath of his lips ſlay the wicked, by preſent judgments, or more terrible and eternal vengeance, v. 4. 2 Theſſ. xi. 8. In all which diſpenſations of mercy and judgment, the righteouſneſs of his government ſhall appear as a glorious ornament, and his faithfulneſs in accompliſhing the promiſes made to his people, and compleating the ruin denounced on his enemies, ſhall be manifeſted to his everlaſting praiſe, v. 5.

4. His kingdom ſhall enjoy the moſt happy union and concord; ſuch a change will paſs upon the ſpirits of men, by the grace of Jeſus, that the moſt perſecuting, fierce, and untractable, ſhall become meek, lowly, and gentle as the lamb; all animoſities ſubſide, and no more venom remain in the human boſom. The knowledge of the Lord, which ſhall be diffuſed through the earth, ſhall produce this marvellous renovation of our fallen nature; and all united in love and peace, under the divine Redeemer, become one fold under one ſhepherd. The fulfilment of which appears now wherever the power of the goſpel is known and felt; as in Saul, and innumerable others, whoſe hearts the grace of a Redeemer hath aſtoniſhingly changed: and we hope to ſee a day when not partially, but univerſally, this wonder-working Jeſus ſhall make his power to appear, and all ſhall know him, love him, and ſerve him, from the leaſt unto the greateſt.

10. ¶ And in that day [i] there ſhall be a root of Jeſſe, which ſhall ſtand for an enſign of the people: [k] to it ſhall the Gentiles ſeek, and his reſt ſhall be † glorious. 11. And it ſhall come to paſs in that day, that the LORD ſhall ſet his hand again the ſecond time, [l] to recover the remnant of his people which ſhall be left, from Aſſyria, and from Egypt, and from Pathros, and from Cuſh, and from Elam, and from Shinar, and from Hamath, and from the iſlands of the ſea. 12. And [m] he ſhall ſet up an enſign for the nations, and ſhall aſſemble the out-caſts of Iſrael, and gather together [n] the diſperſed of Judah, from the four ‡ corners of the earth. 13. [o] The envy alſo of Ephraim ſhall depart, and the adverſaries of Judah ſhall be cut off: Ephraim ſhall not envy Judah, and Judah ſhall not vex Ephraim. 14. But they ſhall fly upon the ſhoulders of the Philiſtines towards the weſt, they ſhall ſpoil them of the eaſt together: they ſhall lay their hand upon Edom and Moab, and the children of Ammon § ſhall obey them. 15. And [p] the LORD ſhall utterly deſtroy the tongue of the Egyptian ſea, and with his mighty wind [q] ſhall he ſhake his hand over the river, and ſhall ſmite it in the ſeven ſtreams, and make men go over dry-ſhod. 16. And [r] there ſhall be an highway for the remnant of his people, which ſhall be left from Aſſyria, [s] like as it was to Iſrael in the day that he came up out of the land of Egypt.

[i] Rom. xv. 12. Rev. v. 5.
[k] Rom. xv. 10.
† Heb. Glory.
[l] Zech. x. 10.
[m] Chap. xlix. 2.
[n] John vii. 35. James i. 1.
‡ Heb. Wings.
[o] Jer. iii. 18. Ezek. xxxvii. 16, 22. Hoſ. i. 11.
§ Heb. Their obedience.
[p] Zech. x. 11.
[q] Chap. xix. 16. Zech. ii. 9.
[r] Chap. xix. 23.
[s] Ex. xiv. 29. Chap. li. 10.

v. 10—16. We have here a farther prophecy of the glory and enlargement of the Meſſiah's kingdom; which, whatever regard it may have to the times of Hezekiah, or their recovery from Babylon, which was but a partial deliverance, certainly looks forward to the days of the goſpel, when Jews and Gentiles were incorporated in one church; and will have, we truſt, its final accompliſhment when the fulneſs of the Gentiles ſhall be come in, and all Iſrael ſhall be ſaved.

1. The great author of the ſalvation is the root of Jeſſe, the Lord Jeſus, before called the rod and branch; for he is both the root and offspring of David, Rev. v. 5. He ſhall ſtand for an enſign of the people; lifted up in the preaching of the goſpel among all nations, who ſhall be invited to liſt under his banners; and to it ſhall the Gentiles ſeek for pardon and peace through his blood and righteouſneſs, deſiring to become willing ſubjects of his government, and live in ſafety under his care and protection; and his reſt ſhall be glorious; either Chriſt's, when, having in his ſufferings and death, finiſhed the work of his people's ſalvation, he entered into his reſt above in glory everlaſting: or it refers to his redeemed, who in him find a preſent happy reſt to their ſouls from guilt and fear, and expect an eternal reſt with him hereafter in his kingdom.

2. The completion of the ſalvation is deſcribed, v. 11. Notwithſtanding every oppoſition, God is ſaid to do it the ſecond time; alluding to the firſt deliverance of the people from Egypt, when not a hoof was left behind. The redeemed are called a remnant, or thoſe that remain, ſome in all former ages having been called already into the church; but now, more univerſally than ever, the goſpel ſhall go forth into all lands, to gather from the four corners of the earth, and moſt diſtant iſles of the ſea, the diſperſed Jews, as well as the Gentiles, among whom they dwell, v. 11, 12. All enmity between Jew and Gentile, as ſubſiſted of old between Judah and Ephraim, ſhall be at an end, v. 13. uniting in the ſervice of their Redeemer; the inveterate enemies of Chriſt and his people, whether Papal or Pagan, &c. as the Philiſtines, Moabites, Ammonites were to the Jews, ſhall be vanquiſhed by the powerful word of the goſpel, and be brought to the obedience of the faith, v. 14. And Antichriſt and his followers, compared to Egypt, for their enmity againſt the church, Rev. xi. 8. who will riſe up to make war with the ſaints, ſhall be utterly deſtroyed, Rev. xvi. 16—19. as when God, by the rod of Moſes, opened a way for his redeemed to paſs over, but overwhelmed their enemies in the Red ſea; and the Ottoman empire, ſignified by the river Euphrates, Rev. xvi. 12. ſhall be ſmitten in the ſeven ſtreams; perfectly deſtroyed; ſeven being a number denoting perfection: and thus every enemy being removed, the way of the kings of the eaſt, Rev. xvi. 12. ſhall be prepared, and converts from every ſide be added to the church daily, of ſuch as ſhall be ſaved. Note, Whenever God's appointed time is come, whether to convert a ſoul, or exalt the univerſal dominion of his ſon, all difficulties will be removed; the mountain becomes a plain, the river dry.

CHAP. XII.

As the glorious ſalvation of the former chapter ſecured the church's ſafety, it here engages her praiſes. 1. For the bleſſed change of her ſtate, ver. 1. 2. For the ſtrength engaged to ſupport her, ver. 2. 3. For the plentiful joy in the goſpel, ver. 3. 4. A mutual exhortation is given to join in exalting the great Redeemer, ver. 4—6.

1. AND [a] in that day thou ſhalt ſay, O LORD, I will praiſe thee: though thou waſt angry with me, [b] thine anger is turned away, and [c] thou comfortedſt me. 2. Behold God is my ſalvation: I will truſt, and not be afraid; for the LORD JEHOVAH is [d] my ſtrength and my ſong, he alſo is become my ſalvation. 3. Therefore with joy ſhall ye draw [e] water out of the wells of ſalvation.

[a] Chap. xi. 11, 16.
[b] Pſ. lxxxv. 3. Chap. x. 25.
[c] Chap. xl. 1. & li. 3, 12.
[d] Ex. xv. 2. Pſ. cxviii. 14.
[e] John iv. 10, 14. & vii. 37, 38.

v. 1—3. As Iſrael eſcaped from the Red ſea, when they beheld the floating corpſes of the Egyptians, ſang praiſe for their deliverance; with greater joy ſhall the redeemed of the Lord, in the day of their ſalvation, adore the power and grace of their exalted Lord.

1. For the bleſſed change which is paſſed. Though thou waſt angry with me, thine anger is turned away, and thou comfortedſt me; not that we muſt impute to God our infirmities, as either that he is capable of change of purpoſe, or that anger, ſuch as dwells in our boſom, knows a place in his: we ſpeak after the manner of men; God's anger is his righteous purpoſe to puniſh ſin, and if he changes his diſpenſations, it is according to the eternal counſels of his will. We have by our ſins deſerved puniſhment, but when God turns us to himſelf, we feel a bleſſed alteration, and, no longer terrified as before, rejoice in the comfort of his ſalvation. Note, (1.) Every faithful ſoul will own how often and how juſtly he hath by his ſins provoked God's wrath and indignation againſt him. (2.) The deeper views we have of our own guilt, the more enlarged will our hearts be with love, and our lips with praiſe, when we experience a ſenſe of his returning favour. (3.) The pardon and reconciliation of the ſinner's ſoul to God, is only through the blood and righteouſneſs of the Redeemer Jeſus.

2. They will triumph in the ſtrength engaged for them, and in the ſecurity of their hopes. Behold, with wonder and love I record it, God is my ſalvation; Jeſus hath given himſelf for me, able to ſave to the uttermoſt; and on him alone I depend, renouncing every other hope: I will truſt with quietneſs and confidence, and not be afraid, though ſin, Satan, and conſcience accuſe; or corruption, temptation, affliction, war againſt me; for the Lord Jehovah is my ſtrength, how then ſhould I fail, when his everlaſting arms are under me? and my ſong; which, whilſt I pay as the grateful tribute for his mercies, increaſes my own conſolations; he alſo is become my ſalvation; I am complete in him, and can wiſh for nothing more; he is all my ſalvation, and all my deſire. Note, (1.) They who have God for their ſtrength, need not dread who are their foes. (2.) Confidence in Chriſt's power and love, will keep the mind eaſy amidſt every ſtorm. (3.) If God be our ſalvation, he deſerves to be our ſong; yea, every redeemed ſoul will think eternity too ſhort to ſpeak his praiſe.

3. From what God hath done, we are encouraged to expect what he will continue to do; therefore with joy ſhall ye draw water from the wells of ſalvation, or the Saviour: in Chriſt are the living waters, all fulneſs dwells in him for his people's uſe; they have free acceſs to him at all times, and it is both their duty and delight, by faith to draw continual ſupplies of grace from him, in the exerciſe of prayer, meditation, the word, and ſacraments. Surely bleſſed are the people who are in ſuch a caſe!

4. And in that day ſhall ye ſay, [f] Praiſe the LORD, † call upon his name, [g] declare his doings among the people, make mention that [h] his name is exalted. 5. Sing unto the LORD; for he hath done excellent things: this is known in all the earth. 6. [i] Cry out and ſhout, thou ‡ inhabitant of Zion: for [k] great is the holy One of Iſrael in the midſt of thee.

[f] 1 Chron. xvi. 8. Pſ. cv. 1.
† Or, proclaim.
[g] Pſ. cxlv. 4—6.
[h] Phil. ii. 9.
[i] Zeph. iii. 14.
‡ Heb. Inhabitreſs.
[k] Pſ. xlviii. 1.

v. 4—6. They

v. 4—6. They who have learnt God's praiſe, and know the bleſſedneſs of the employment, will be ſollicitous to ſtir up others to join in the grateful ſervice. In that day of the ſoul's converſion, and eſpecially in the great day when the Redeemer's glory ſhall appear in his univerſal dominion, ſhall ye ſay, Praiſe the Lord, call upon his name, in every act of religious worſhip due to the exalted Jeſus; declare his doings among the people, ſeek to diffuſe the knowledge of his grace, the fulneſs of his atonement, the perfection of his righteouſneſs, the power of his Spirit, the glory of the purchaſed poſſeſſion; make mention that his name is exalted above all principalities and powers, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but in that which is to come; and let him be thus exalted in every heart, by every tongue. Sing unto the Lord loud ſongs of praiſe, making melody in the heart to him; for he hath done excellent things; wrought out for us an everlaſting righteouſneſs, offered himſelf a perfect ſacrifice in our ſtead, vanquiſhed ſin, death, and hell for us, led our captivity captive, opened heaven's gates, prepared our thrones in glory everlaſting: this is known in all the earth, by the goſpel word preached among all nations. Cry out and ſhout, with the voice of triumphant exultation, thou inhabitant of Zion, the church of the redeemed; for great is the holy One of Iſrael in the midſt of thee; there he delights to take up his abode, and there muſt reign till every foe is ſubdued, every faithful ſoul brought home. The expected end ſhall come, and in his eternal kingdom he will make the fulleſt diſplays of his excellent greatneſs to his people, and be the object of their everlaſting praiſe. Amen, and Amen!

CHAP. XIII.

God is king in all the earth, and by him the fate of empires is determined. The nations here ſpoken of were all converſant with the Jews, and are treated according to their behaviour towards his people, who are his peculiar care, and their cauſe he will eſpouſe. Babylon comes firſt into the account, and affords a type of the ruin of Babylon myſtical in the book of Revelations. In this chapter we have, 1. A general rendezvous of the forces that were to be employed againſt Babylon, ver. 1—5. 2. The dreadful work that thoſe forces ſhould make in it, ver. 6—18. 3. The utter ruin of Babylon which this ſhould end in, ver. 19—22.

712.

1. [a] THE burden of Babylon, which Iſaiah the ſon of Amoz did ſee. 2. [b] Lift ye up a banner upon the high mountain, exalt the voice unto them, ſhake the hand, that they may go into the gates of the nobles. 3. I have commanded my ſanctified ones, I have alſo called my mighty ones for mine anger, even them [c] that rejoice † in my highneſs. 4. The noiſe of a multitude in the mountains, like as of a great people: a tumultuous noiſe of [d] the kingdoms of nations gathered together: the LORD of hoſts muſtereth the hoſt of the battle. 5. [e] They come from a far country, from the end of heaven, even the LORD, and the weapons of his indignation, to deſtroy the whole land.

[a] Chap. xxi. 1. & xli. 1. Jer. l. & li.
[b] Chap. xviii. 3. Jer. l. 2.
[c] Pſ. cxlix. 2.
† Heb. In pride.
[d] Jer. li. 27, 28.
[e] Jer. l. 26.

v. 1—5. A new viſion here is given the prophet concerning the fate of the neighbouring kingdoms; and as the captivity of the Jews in Babylon approached, before the time comes they have this prophecy to comfort them, that the rod of their oppreſſor ſhould be broken. It is called the burden of Babylon, a prophecy concerning it, denouncing her heavy doom, cruſhed in pieces under the combined forces of Media and Perſia; and this Iſaiah ſaw in prophecy clearly revealed to him.

1. God gives the command; his ſtandard is unfurled; the forces haſte to join their colours, and he muſtereth them armed for the battle. The kings of Media and Perſia, with their officers, were employed to ſummons the ſoldiers, beckon them to enliſt, and lead them to the gates of the nobles, the proud walls of Babel: but it was God's ſecret impulſe which ſtirred up their ſpirit, ſtrengthened them for the battle, and crowned their arms with ſucceſs. Note, Whatever is done among the inhabitants of the earth, it is the Lord's doing, and his hand is to be acknowledged.

2. The perſons employed are his ſanctified ones, the Medes and Perſians; not that they were really gracious ſouls, but raiſed up to ſerve his purpoſes, and qualified by him for their work: his mighty ones, Cyrus and Darius, who were inſtruments in his hand, and cloathed with ſtrength to execute his decree: even them that rejoice in my highneſs, or that rejoice my highneſs; they rejoiced in their ſucceſſes, whereby God was glorified; and a vaſt army followed them from different nations, (See Jer. iv. 27, 28.) from the ends of the earth, the fartheſt parts of their dominion, and very diſtant from Babylon; but, when ſent on God's errand, no diſtance or danger could deter them.

3. The deſign of them is, as weapons of the Lord's indignation, to deſtroy the whole land of Chaldea, and Babylon the metropolis. Note, When God gives the word againſt a ſinful nation, to pluck up and to deſtroy, his armies are quickly ready, and reſiſtance is vain.

6. ¶ Howl ye, for [f] the day of the LORD is at hand; [g] it ſhall come as a deſtruction from the Almighty. 7. Therefore [h] ſhall all hands † be faint, and every man's heart ſhall melt. 8. And they ſhall be afraid: [i] pangs and ſorrows ſhall take hold of them, they ſhall be in pain as a woman that travaileth: they ſhall be amazed one at another, their faces ſhall be ‡ as flames. 9. Behold, the day of the LORD cometh, cruel both with wrath and fierce anger, to lay the land deſolate; and he ſhall deſtroy the ſinners thereof out of it. 10. For the ſtars of heaven, and the conſtellations thereof ſhall not give their light: [k] the ſun ſhall be darkned in his going forth, and the moon ſhall not cauſe her light to ſhine. 11. And I will puniſh the world for their evil, and the wicked for their iniquity; and I will cauſe the arrogancy of the proud to ceaſe, [l] and will lay low the haughtineſs of the terrible. 12. I will make a man more precious than fine gold; even a man than the golden wedge of Ophir. 13. [m] Therefore I will ſhake the heavens, and the earth ſhall remove out of her place, in the wrath of the LORD of hoſts, and in the day of his fierce anger. 14. And it ſhall be as the chaſed roe, and as a ſheep that no man taketh up: [n] they ſhall every man turn to his own people, and flee every one into his own land. 15. Every one that is found ſhall be thruſt through: and [o] every one that is joined unto them, ſhall fall by the ſword. 16. Their children alſo ſhall be [p] daſhed to pieces before their eyes, their houſes ſhall be ſpoiled, and their wives raviſhed. 17. Behold, [q] I will ſtir up the Medes againſt them, which ſhall not regard ſilver, and as for gold, they ſhall not delight in it. 18. Their bows alſo ſhall daſh the young men to pieces, and they ſhall have no pity on the fruit of the womb; their eye ſhall not ſpare children.

[f] Jer. l. 27.
[g] Job xxxi. 23. Joel i. 15.
[h] Jer. l. 43.
† Heb. Fall down.
[i] Pſ. xlviii. 6.
‡ Heb. Faces of flames. Lam. iv. 8.
[k] Chap. xxiv. 23. Ezek. xxxii. 7. Joel ii. 31. & iii. 15. Mat. xxiv. 29. Mark xiii. 24. Luke xxi. 25.
[l] Chap. ii. 17.
[m] Hag. ii. 6.
[n] Jer. l. 16. & li. 9.
[o] Rev. xviii. 4.
[p] Pſ. cxxxvii. 9. Nah. iii. 10.
[q] Chap. xxi. 2. Jer. li. 11, 28. Dan. v. 28.

v. 6—18. The deſtruction of Babylon being commanded, we have here an awful account of its accompliſhment.

1. It is the day of the Lord's wrath, and therefore muſt be terrible; and deſtruction from the Almighty, and therefore irreſiſtible, v. 1. Though God for juſt correction ſuffered them to bring his people into bondage, he will avenge their ill uſage at the hands of their enemies.

2. Diſmay and terror would overtake the hoſts of Babylon. Howling for diſtreſs, and trembling, their courage ſhould fail them, v. 7. pangs like thoſe of a travailing woman ſhould ſeize them, and each increaſe the panic by communicating their fears: their faces dark, as if burnt to a coal, or pale as flames, v. 8. the terrible wrath and fierce anger of the Lord upon them, and certain ruin, the wages of ſin, approaching, v. 9. the very heavens black and lowring, and the bright luminaries hid: or this is figuratively expreſſed to deſcribe the ruin of their king and princes, and the dreadful gloom of horror which ſurrounded them, whilſt no opening appeared for their eſcape, v. 11. and all imbittered by conſcious guilt, of which this is the juſt puniſhment God will lay low the arrogance of Nebuchadnezzar and Belſhazzar, and bring their pride into the duſt, v. 11. their country and capital ſo ruined, that a man ſhould ſcarce be left; or ſo mercileſs their conquerors, that no ranſom would engage them to ſpare their captives, v. 12. The thunders above, and the quaking earth beneath, ſhould help forward their deſtruction: or by theſe may be ſignified the utter diſſolution of the government, v. 13. Like a chaſed roe their warriors ſhould flee, and like a ſheep ſtraying from the flock defenceleſs becomes a prey to the wolf, ſo ſhould they be devoured. Their auxiliary forces ſhall deſert their ſinking cauſe, and, glad with life to eſcape to their own country, leave the devoted city to ruin, v. 14. Note, (1.) That is compleat miſery upon earth, where the terrors of a guilty conſcience are added to the heavy judgments of affliction. (2.) Sin, ſin is the cauſe of all human wretchedneſs. (3.) They who never trembled before, ſhall in the day of God be overwhelmed; and the boldeſt countenance turn pale at God's bar. (4.) When God devotes a nation to ruin, all her allies will deſert her, and fly as from a falling houſe.

3. The executioners of God's vengeance approach: the Medes, more thirſty for blood than the ſpoil, v. 17. ſhall raven like lions; univerſal maſſacre ſhall enſue of all that were found in arms, whether Babylonians or auxiliaries, v. 15. The laws of humanity find no place in a city taken by ſtorm; and God, in juſt retaliation for the violences offered to his people, (2 Chron. xxxvi. 17. Lam. v. 11.) will ſuffer their children to be daſhed in pieces, and their wives raviſhed before their eyes, v. 16. Not content with plunder, they would pierce their young men with arrows, and pluck the infant yet unborn reeking from the womb ript up, v. 18. Note, (1.) When the native cruelty of the heart is unreſtrained, no beaſt of the foreſt is more ſavage than man. (2.) If we ſhudder at the infant's miſeries, let us remember how bitter and evil a thing ſin is, and read in their ſufferings a pregnant evidence of original guilt. (3.) They who are companions with the wicked will ſhare in their plagues.

19. ¶ And [r] Babylon the glory of kingdoms, the beauty of the Chaldees excellency, ſhall be [s] as when God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah. 20. [t] It ſhall never be inhabited, neither ſhall it be dwelt in from generation to generation: neither ſhall the Arabian pitch tent there, neither ſhall the ſhepherds make their fold there. 21. [u] But wild beaſts of the deſert ſhall lie there, and their houſes ſhall be full of doleful creatures, and † owls ſhall dwell there, and ſatyrs ſhall dance there. 22. And the wild beaſts of the iſlands ſhall cry in their ‡ deſolate houſes, and dragons in their pleaſant palaces: and her time is near to come, and her days ſhall not be prolonged.

[r] Chap. xiv. 4.
[s] Gen. xix. 24. Jer. l. 40.
[t] Jer. l. 39. & li. 43.
[u] Chap. xxxiv. 11—15. Rev. xviii. 2.
† Heb. Daughters of the owl.
‡ Or, palaces.

v. 19—22. The inimitably lively and ſtriking images of the utter deſolation of Babylon here diſplayed, cannot be read without admiration.

1. Her former towering height of glory ſerves to ſtrengthen the contraſt of miſery into which Babylon, the beauty of Chaldea, muſt fall. Utter deſtruction, like that of Sodom and Gomorrah, approached; inſtead of crouded ſtreets, not an inhabitant ſhould remain among the dreary ruins for ever: inſtead of a fertile ſoil, ſuch barrenneſs ſhould ſucceed, that not even an Arab's tent, nor a ſhepherd's fold, ſhould be ſeen, v. 20. Thoſe late proud palaces, where riot, mirth, and pleaſure reigned, abandoned, ruinous, are become the dens of ravening beaſts; and owls, dragons, ſatyrs, and every doleful creature, occupy the deſolate manſions, v. 21, 22. And this prophecy the relations of travellers verify, who report, that the venomous creatures which lodge there, made it highly dangerous even to approach the ruins.

2. The nearneſs of this heavy judgment is intimated, v. 22. for the comfort of God's Iſrael when in their captivity. It was more than two hundred years from the time of the prophecy, but that with God is but a moment; it would be quickly at hand, for her days ſhall not be prolonged, but a final period put to her proſperity and power; yea, to her very being. And thus ſhall myſtical Babylon alſo periſh, when the day of her recompenſe, appointed in the eternal counſels, ſhall arrive, Rev. xviii. 2, 4, 21.

CHAP. XIV.

For Zion's comfort, and her enemies confuſion, we have here, 1. Iſrael's deliverance from captivity, ver. 1—3. 2. Babylon and her king fallen and inſulted over, ver. 4—20. 3. The whole people deſtroyed, ver. 21—23. 4. It is fixed by divine decree, ver. 24—27. 5. Philiſtia's fate and Judah's triumphs are recorded, ver. 28—32.

1. FOR [a] the LORD will have mercy on Jacob, [b] and will yet chooſe Iſrael, and ſet them in their own land: and [c] the ſtrangers ſhall be joined with them, and they ſhall cleave to the houſe of Jacob. 2. And the people ſhall take them, [d] and bring them to their place: and the houſe of Iſrael ſhall poſſeſs them in the land of the LORD, [e] for ſervants and handmaids: and they ſhall take them captives, whoſe captives they were, and [f] they ſhall rule over their oppreſſors. 3. And it ſhall come to paſs in the day that the LORD ſhall give thee reſt from thy ſorrow, and from thy fear, and from the hard bondage wherein thou waſt made to ſerve,

[a] Pſ. cii. 13.
[b] Zech. i. 17. & ii. 12.
[c] Chap. lx. 9. & lxvi. 20.
[d] Chap. lx. 5. Zech. ii. 11.
[e] Chap. lx. 10. & lxi. 5.
[f] Chap. lx. 14.

v. 1—3. It was for Zion's ſake that God viſited her oppreſſors, both to avenge her quarrel, and by their ruin to procure the liberty of his people, which Cyrus, on his conqueſt of Babylon, ſent back to their own land.

1. God encourages his people with promiſes of mercy in general, that they might not think, becauſe of their ſufferings, they were utterly rejected. No; it was his eternal purpoſe to chuſe Iſrael, and he will now make it manifeſt in their reſtoration. Note, (1.) All our ſalvation muſt be aſcribed to the rich and ſovereign mercy of God. (2.) It is God's election of grace, not any free-will and power in man, which can bring the ſoul to the inheritance among the ſaints. (3.) Whatever diſcouragements they may meet with, or however ſhaken their faith may be, God will not caſt away his people.

2. He engages in particular, to bring them once more into their own land; to increaſe their number by faithful proſelytes, v. 1. to open the hearts of Cyrus and his ſubjects to help them on their journey, See Ezra i. 4. to give them ſervants and handmaids out of the land of their captivity, and to make them their captives, whoſe captives they were; and theſe were either the proſelytes from Babylon, who choſe rather to ſerve in the meaneſt offices of the Lord's land, where his worſhip was eſtabliſhed, than ſtay behind: or ſuch as the Medes might have ſold for ſlaves to the Iſraelites, when Babylon was taken, v. 2. Thus God having reſtored them with honour, and repleniſhed them, they would no longer be under ſervitude, diſtreſſed and ſorrowful, but enjoy a happy reſt in Canaan's fertile land, v. 3. And this ſeems to look forward to the times of the goſpel, when, through the preaching of Jeſus and his apoſtles, multitudes of Jews and Gentiles ſhould be converted and brought home to the church, the land of the Lord, and lead their captivity captive; no more the ſervants of corruption, nor diſtreſſed with terrifying and guilty fears; but entering into pardon, peace, and reſt, through Jeſus, here below, as an earneſt of that eternal reſt which remaineth for them above.

4. ¶ That thou [g] ſhalt take up this † proverb againſt the king of Babylon, and ſay, How hath the oppreſſor ceaſed! the ‡ golden city ceaſed! 5. [h] The LORD hath broken the ſtaff of the wicked, and the ſceptre of the rulers. 6. He who ſmote the people in wrath with a continual ſtroke; he that ruled the nations in anger, is perſecuted, and none hindreth. 7. The whole earth [i] is at reſt and is quiet: [k] they break forth into ſinging. 8. [l] Yea, the fir-trees rejoice at thee, and the cedars of Lebanon, ſaying, Since thou art laid down, no feller is come up againſt us. 9. [m] § Hell from beneath is moved for thee, to meet thee at thy coming: it ſtirreth up the dead for thee, even all ‖ the chief ones of the earth; it hath raiſed up from their thrones all the kings of the nation. 10. All they ſhall ſpeak and ſay unto thee, Art thou alſo become weak as we? [n] art thou become like unto us? 11. Thy pomp is brought down to the grave, [o] and the noiſe of thy viols: the worm is ſpread under thee, [p] and the worms cover thee. 12. How art thou fallen from heaven, O † Lucifer, ſon of the morning! how art thou cut down to the ground, which didſt weaken the nations! 13. For thou haſt ſaid in thine heart, [q] I will aſcend into heaven, [r] I will exalt my throne above the ſtars of God: I will ſit alſo upon the mount of the congregation, [s] in the ſides of the north. 14. I will aſcend above the heights of the clouds, [t] I will be like the moſt High. 15. Yet [u] thou ſhalt be brought down to hell, to the ſides of the pit. 16. They that ſee thee, ſhall narrowly look upon thee, and conſider thee, ſaying, [x] Is this the man that made the earth to tremble, that did ſhake kingdoms? 17. That made the world as a wilderneſs, and deſtroyed the cities thereof, [y] that opened not the houſe of his priſoners? 18. All the kings of the nations, even all of them lie in glory, every one in his own houſe. 19. But thou art caſt out of thy grave, like an abominable branch: and as the raiment of thoſe that are ſlain, thruſt through with a ſword, that go down to the ſtones of the pit, as a carcaſe trodden under feet. 20. Thou ſhalt not be joined with them in burial, becauſe thou haſt deſtroyed thy land, and ſlain thy people: [z] the ſeed of evil doers ſhall ‡ never be renowned. 21. Prepare ſlaughter for his children [a] for the iniquity of their fathers; that they do not riſe, nor poſſeſs the land, nor fill the face of the world with cities. 22. For I will riſe up againſt them, ſaith the LORD of hoſts, and cut off from Babylon [b] the name, and remnant, [c] and ſon, and nephew, ſaith the LORD. 23. [d] I will alſo make it a poſſeſſion for the bittern, and pools of water: and I will ſweep it with the beſom of deſtruction, ſaith the LORD of hoſts.

[g] Chap. xiii. 19. Hab. ii. 6.
† Heb. Taunting ſpeech.
‡ Or, the exactreſs of gold.
[h] Pſ. cxxix. 4. Chap. ix. 4.
[i] Jer. l. 34.
[k] Prov. xi. 10.
[l] Jer. li. 48. Ezek. xxxi. 16.
[m] Ezek. xxxii. 21.
§ Or, the grave.
‖ Heb. Leaders.
[n] Pſ. lxxxii. 6, 7.
[o] Rev. xviii. 12.
[p] Job xxi. 26.
† Or, day-ſtar.
[q] 2 Theſ. ii. 4.
[r] Dan. viii. 10, 11. & xi. 36.
[s] Pſ. xlviii. 2.
[t] Chap. xlvii. 8.
[u] Rev. xix. 20.
[x] Jer. l. 23.
[y] Jer. l. 33.
[z] Job xviii. 19. Pſ. xxi. 10. & xxxvii. 28. & cix. 13.
[a] Exod. xx. 5. Mat. xxiii. 35.
[b] Deut. xxv. 19.
[c] Job xviii. 19.
[d] Chap. xxxiv. 11. Zeph. ii. 14.

v. 4—23. The triumphs of God's people, and the wretchedneſs to which their proud conquerors ſhall be reduced, are here moſt elegantly diſplayed. The deſcription is called a proverb, a taunting ſpeech, full of ſarcaſm and irony.

1. With admiration and exultation the people of God behold the fall of Babylon, the golden city, full of ſplendor, and her oppreſſive king, v. 4. For his wickedneſs, cruelty, and tyranny, God hath broken his ſceptre, and hurled him from his throne, overtaken by juſt judgment, and none either able or willing to deliver him, v. 5, 6. Note, (1.) Riches profit not in a day of wrath. (2.) When kings turn tyrants, the King of

Before Chriſt 712.

of kings juſtly breaks the ſtaff of their government, and by their fall makes them know he reigneth. (3.) When God in wrath ſeizes the ſinner, none can ſtay his vengeance, or deliver out of his hand.

2. The fall of this oppreſſive power would be the peace and joy of the nations of the earth. Their troubler removed, quietneſs would be reſtored, and with gladneſs the people would celebrate their deliverance, v. 7. The very firs and cedars are repreſented as rejoicing, ſince now no feller would hew them down, to build gorgeous palaces for theſe proud monarchs. Or rather, the kings and princes of the earth, hereby repreſented, are happy to be delivered from the bondage and fears under which they groaned during the tyrannic ſway of Babylon's monarchs. Note, (1.) The fall of tyrants is the joy of the oppreſſed people. (2.) Peace and quietneſs in a nation is matter of great thankfulneſs.

3. Whilſt earth rejoices in being rid of ſuch a burden, thoſe who are in hell, or the ſtate of the dead, are repreſented as welcoming the king of Babylon with ſarcaſtic taunts to their dark abode. They are all in motion, haſting to congratulate him on his arrival. It ſtirreth up the dead, Rephaim, the giants, the chief ones of the earth: theſe, informed of his approach, are repreſented as going to meet him; and the kings of the nations, as riſing from their thrones, in deriſion to pay him that homage that in his life-time they had been obliged to render, v. 9. Theſe all with affected wonder ſhall ſay, Art thou become alſo weak as we! a boaſted god, but found, like us, a dying worm, v. 10. How ſhort-lived is thy glory! how deſpicable thy end! Thy pomp is faded in the duſt, thy muſic loſt in groans, and that gorgeous body, which glittered on a throne, cloathed in purple and fine linen, and faring ſumptuouſly every day, is now loathſome in corruption, and meat for worms, v. 11. How wondrous the change! How art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, ſon of the morning! proud as the prince of darkneſs, like him once ſhining as the morning ſtar, and in glory exalted high as heaven, but now cut down even to the ground, low as the nations thou haſt waſted, v. 12. How vain thy former pride and boaſt! nothing once ſeemed too high for thy aſpiring ambition: thou haſt ſaid, I will eſtabliſh a monarchy as wide as the heavens, bring ſuppliant kings to the footſtool of my throne, and ſit as conqueror on Zion's holy mount, v. 13. Yea, not content with earthly dignity, affecting divine honours, as if thou couldſt aſcend above the clouds, and rival the Moſt High, v. 14. But how different thy cataſtrophe! brought down to hell, and numbered among the dead. Note, (1.) Pride is the boſom-ſin of fallen man: ſince firſt our parents, affecting God-like wiſdom, were undone, we have inherited their guilty ambition. (2.) It ſeems intimated here, that there is an intercourſe and knowledge among departed ſpirits in the unſeen world. (3.) They who go down to the pit in their iniquities, will be thruſt down into hell as their eternal puniſhment.

4. The living can ſcarce believe their own eyes, when they behold him fallen from his high eſtate, and weltering in his blood. So different his ghaſtly countenance, deformed with wounds, and pale in death, from what he once appeared; and therefore inſulting over him they ſhall ſay, Is this the man, the mighty conqueror that ſhook the thrones, and humbled the monarchs of the earth, v. 16. that by his ravages depopulated the nations, deſtroyed their cities, and made the world a wilderneſs, and whoſe captives groaned under a heavy yoke, without hope of being ever looſed? v. 17. Yes; this is he, once higher than the higheſt, now more deſpicable than ever he was dignified. Whilſt other kings in pomp are carried to the tomb, the clods of the valley made ſweet unto them, and ſtately monuments erected over them to perpetuate their memory; deſtitute even of a grave, thy corpſe is caſt out as an abominable branch, and, like the raiment of thoſe who are ſlain with the ſword, clotted with blood, which none cared to touch as ceremonially unclean; trodden under foot as mire by men and horſes in the battle, and afterwards caſt into the pit, and covered with a heap of ſtones, v. 19. Such ſhall be thy vile end, denied a place among the tombs of thy anceſtors, becauſe of thy wanton cruelty, murders, and arbitrary oppreſſion; for this is God's righteous decree, that the ſeed of evil doers ſhall never be renowned, or not for ever, their momentary blaze of glory being quickly extinguiſhed, and their honour laid in the duſt. Note, (1.) In the blaze of conqueſt we admire the hero, and are apt to overlook the murderer, the robber, and the ſcourge of mankind. (2.) The pomp of a gorgeous ſepulchre is a poor diſtinction; yet, for the puniſhment of iniquity to be denied a grave, is a brand of real infamy. (3.) Strange changes are ſoon brought about when God will work; and it is a wretched greatneſs to be proud of, which ſtands in ſo ſlippery a place, and may ſo quickly be daſhed in pieces.

5. The utter ruin of the royal family, and Babylon the ſeat of their majeſty, is declared. The Medes and Perſians are commanded to prepare ſlaughter for them, to viſit on them the ſins of their fathers, and not ſpare the moſt diſtant branch, but utterly extirpate the name of the Babyloniſh monarchs, that they might no more ſucceed to the throne of their anceſtors, or fill the world with cities, to perpetuate their fame, or extend their grandeur; and their metropolis, utterly ruined, ſhould become a marſh, and the abode of bitterns, ſwept with the beſom of deſtruction, and ſcarce a ſtone left upon another; all which was literally accompliſhed.

The whole of this awful and terrible deſtruction alſo looks forward to the ruin of Babylon myſtical, whoſe pride, impiety, tyranny, and cruelty, will meet with as condign puniſhment, and be matter of the like joy to the ſaints of God, as fully appears from the book of Revelations. Compare v. 7, 8. with Rev. xv. 2, 3. xix. 2. 3, 20. v. 9, 10. with 2 Theſ. xi. 4, 8. Rev. xiii. 4. xx. 10. v. 11. with Rev. xviii. 22. v. 12. with Rev. xi. 7. xiii. 7, 15. xviii. 21. v. 13, 14. with Rev. xviii. 7, 8. 2 Theſ. xi. 4. v. 16. with Rev. xix. 20. v. 20. with Rev. xiii. 10, 15. xix. 2. v. 21. with Rev. ii. 23. v. 23. with Rev. xviii. 21.

Before Chriſt 712.

24. ¶ The LORD of hoſts hath ſworn, ſaying, Surely as I have thought, ſo ſhall it come to paſs; and as I have purpoſed, ſo ſhall it ſtand: 25. That [e] I will break the Aſſyrian in my land, and upon my mountains tread him under foot: [f] then ſhall his yoke depart from off them, and his burden depart from off their ſhoulders. 26. This is the purpoſe that is purpoſed upon the whole earth: and this is the hand that is ſtretched out upon all the nations. 27. For the LORD of hoſts hath [g] purpoſed, and who ſhall diſannul it? and his hand is ſtretched out, and who ſhall turn it back? 28. In the year that [h] king Ahaz died, was this burden. 29. ¶ Rejoice not thou whole Paleſtina, [i] becauſe the rod of him that ſmote thee is broken: for out of the ſerpent's root ſhall come forth a cockatrice, [k] and his fruit ſhall be a fiery flying ſerpent. 30. And the firſt-born of the poor ſhall feed, and the needy ſhall lie down in ſafety: and I will kill thy root with famine, and he ſhall ſlay thy remnant. 31. Howl, O gate; cry, O city; thou whole Paleſtina art diſſolved: for there ſhall come from the north a ſmoke, and † none ſhall be alone in his appointed times. 32. What ſhall one then anſwer [l] the meſſengers of the nation? That [m] the LORD hath founded Zion, and [n] the poor of his people ſhall ‡ truſt in it.

[e] Chap. xxxvii. 36.

[f] Chap. ix. 4. & x. 27.

727.

[g] 2 Chron. xx. 6. Job ix. 12. & xxiii. 13. Pſ. xxxiii. 11. Prov. xix. 21. & xxi. 30. Chap. xliii. 13. Dan. iv. 31, 35.

[h] 2 Kings xvi. 20.

[i] 2 Chron. xxvi. 6.

[k] 2 Kings xviii. 8.

† Or, He ſhall not be alone in his aſſemblies.

[l] Chap. xxxix. 1.

[m] Pſal. lxxxvii. 1, 5. & cii. 16.

[n] Zeph. iii. 12. Zech. xi. 11.

‡ Or, betake themſelves to it.

v. 24—32. Whilſt the more diſtant events of the utter deſtruction of Babylon, and the deliverance of God's people, are expected, an earneſt of their fulfilment is given in two ſignal inſtances of a nearer date, the deſtruction of Sennacherib's army, and the ſubdual of the Philiſtines.

1. The Aſſyrians ſhall be broken, when invading God's land, and be trodden under foot on the mountains of Iſrael, who now ſhould be delivered from the yoke of bondage, and, with the ruin of their oppreſſors, regain their freedom, v. 25. The work God undertakes himſelf to accompliſh, according to his eternal purpoſe, ratified by his ſolemn oath, v. 24. His hand is ſtretched out upon the mighty army of Aſſyria, compoſed of all nations brought under her tyrannic ſway. Or this is his purpoſe throughout the earth, to puniſh univerſally the perſecutors of his people, v. 26. And who can defeat the counſels of infinite wiſdom, or oppoſe the arm of omnipotence? v. 27. Note, (1.) They who are the enemies of God's people will ſmart for it. (2.) God's purpoſes are from eternity; he never changes; and therefore ſince his gifts and callings are without repentance, his people may truſt him for their ſtability; from his hand none can pluck them. (3.) To be delivered from the burden and yoke of ſin is a greater mercy, than to be redeemed from the heavieſt chains, and moſt abject bodily ſervitude.

2. The victory over the Philiſtines is foretold, and the happy ſtate of Iſrael under Hezekiah. This is a new prophecy revealed in the year the wicked Ahaz died, and his pious ſon ſucceeded him, and therefore here the fifteenth chapter would moſt properly begin.

[1.] The ruin of Paleſtine is foretold. Rejoice not, as they did at Uzziah's death, who had ſmitten them, 2 Chron. xxvi. 6, 7. and during the reign of Ahaz, when they ravaged Judea, 2 Chron. xxviii. 13. and truſted they ſhould be greater gainers under the new king; but found to their coſt, that Hezekiah, ſprung from Uzziah, the ſerpent who had ſtung them, more fierce and fatal, as a cockatrice, and fiery flying ſerpent, would ruſh upon them, and ravage their coaſts, v. 29. Soon would their ſhouts of triumph give place to the howl of bitter lamentation, and the cry of the vanquiſhed; their whole country waſted, their cities deſtroyed. From the north the lowring ſtorm ariſes; the armies haſte; none ſhall be alone in his appointed place, but each man ready in his poſt, and ſtrengthening his companions to ruſh upon them as their prey, v. 31. and whilſt within the beſieged city a part periſhed miſerably by famine, the remainder fell by the ſword of their conqueror Hezekiah, zekiah, (ſee 2 Kings xviii. 8.) and were utterly conſumed ſhortly after by the Aſſyrians, Jer. xlvii. 2. Note, (1.) The joy of the ſinner is deceitful; he ſings on the brink of perdition. (2.) If God removes one faithful inſtrument from his people, he will raiſe them up another to carry on his work.

[2.] The happy ſtate of Iſrael is deſcribed. At reſt from their enemies under Hezekiah's government, the pooreſt Iſraelite ſhould have plenty, and the weakeſt enjoy protection, v. 30. Triumphant over their foes, when neighbouring nations ſhould ſend to congratulate their victory, they would aſcribe their greatneſs to the Lord, the founder and defender of his Zion, and truſting on his conſtant care over it, reſt in comfort and ſafety. Note, (1.) The character of a great king is not merely to be formidable to his foes, but a father to his people. (2.) They who have God for their founder, and are fixed on Jeſus the rock of ages, may well truſt, and not be afraid. (3.) When others, led by what they have ſeen, enquire of us how the happy change of our circumſtances was wrought, we ſhall delight with Judah to aſcribe the whole to the rich grace of our God, and own, that to him we are indebted for every mercy.

CHAP. XV.

This chapter, and that which follows it, are the burden of Moab: a prophecy of the deſolation that was coming upon that country, which bordered upon the land of Iſrael, and had often been injurious and vexatious to it. We have, 1. Great lamentation made by the Moabites, and by the prophet himſelf for them, ver. 1—5. 2. The calamities which ſhould occaſion that lamentation, ver. 6—9.

1. [a] THE burden of Moab, becauſe [b] in the night [c] Ar of Moab is laid waſte, and † brought to ſilence; becauſe in the night Kir of Moab is laid waſte, and brought to ſilence: 2. [d] He is gone up to Bajith, and to Dibon, the high places, to weep: Moab ſhall howl over Nebo, and over Medeba, [e] on all their heads ſhall be baldneſs, and every beard cut off. 3. In their ſtreets they ſhall gird themſelves with ſackcloth: [f] on the tops of their houſes, and in their ſtreets every one ſhall howl, ‡ weeping abundantly. 4. And Heſhbon ſhall cry, and Elealeh: their voice ſhall be heard even unto Jahaz: therefore the armed ſoldiers of Moab ſhall cry out, [g] his life ſhall be grievous unto him. 5. [h] My heart ſhall cry out for Moab, his fugitives ſhall flee unto Zoar, [i] an heifer of three years old: for by the mounting up of Luhith with weeping ſhall they go it up: for in the way of Horonaim they ſhall raiſe up a cry of deſtruction.

[a] Jer. xlviii. 1. Ezek. xxv. 8. Am. ii. 1.
[b] 1 Theſ. v. 3.
[c] Num. xxi. 28.
† Or, cut off.
[d] Chap. xvi. 12.
[e] Lev. xxi. 5. Jer. xlviii. 37.
[f] Jer. xlviii. 38.
‡ Or, coming down weeping.
[g] Gen. xxvii. 46. Job iii. 20.
[h] Chap. xvi. 11. Jer. xlviii. 31, 36.
[i] Jer. xlviii. 34.

v. 1—5. This prophecy is either the ſame with chap. xvi. 14. and was to be quickly accompliſhed, within three years, when Salmanezer ravaged the country; or, as ſome think, diſtinct from that, and relative to the final deſtruction of Moab by Nebuchadnezzar, Jer. xlviii.

We have here a picture of the moſt affecting diſtreſs.

1. Sudden and terrible would be the ſtroke. Some of their cities ſurprized in the night, ſacked, and demoliſhed, v. 1. others, in terror at the expectation of the ſame fate, with tokens of bittereſt anguiſh upon them, diſfigured with baldneſs, and girt with ſackcloth, and every place full of weeping and tears, v. 3. loud as the heifer bellows, and reaching to the diſtant cities, whither they fly for ſhelter from the approaching ruin, v. 3—5. Note, (1.) Death often ſeizes the ſinner in the night with terrible ſurprize. (2.) When we lie down on our beds, by ſome unexpected ſtroke our bed may be quickly made our grave: let us therefore be always ready. (3.) It will be too late for thoſe to cry, when God's wrath overtakes them, who before never cried to avert it.

2. All help ſhould fail them: their mighty warriors ſhould faint under their fears, and their life be a burden to them. Or it may be rendered, His ſoul ſhall cry out for himſelf, each bemoaning his wretched caſe; nor ſhall their idols afford them more relief, v. 2. Though they go up to their high places to weep, no anſwer ſhall be given them, and weeping they ſhall deſcend, v. 3. as in the margin. Note, Creature-confidences, like idol-gods, will utterly fail us in time of trouble.

3. The prophet himſelf in pity drops a tear over their deſolations, though enemies. Such tender and compaſſionate hearts ſhould miniſters poſſeſs, and, like their divine Lord, weep over thoſe ſinners that will not be warned.

6. For the waters of [k] Nimrim ſhall be † deſolate: for the hay is withered away, the graſs faileth, there is no green thing. 7. Therefore the abundance they have gotten, and that which they have laid up, ſhall they carry away to the ‡ brook of the willows. 8. For the cry is gone round about the borders of Moab: the howling thereof unto Eglaim, and the howling thereof unto Beer-elim. 9. For the waters of Dimon ſhall be full of blood: for I will bring § more upon Dimon, [l] lions upon him that eſcapeth of Moab, and upon the remnant of the land.

[k] Num. xxxii. 3.
† Heb. Deſolations.
‡ Or, Valley of the Arabians.
§ Heb. Additions.
[l] Lev. xxvi. 22. 2 Kings xvii. 25.

v. 6—9. From one corner to the other of the land, the cry of Moab ſhould be heard, v. 8. and no marvel, when her deſolations were ſo great.

1. The country ſhould be devoured and waſted, either by drought, or eat up as forage by theſe invaders; ſo that not a blade of graſs ſhould remain; and their abundance, with ſo much care collected and laid up, be carried away to the brook of the willows; either by themſelves to hide it, or rather by their enemies to Babylon, ſo called from its marſhy ſituation. Note, This world's riches are often a ſhort-lived poſſeſſion, ſo ſoon do they make themſelves wings and fly away.

2. The waters of Dimon ſhall be full of blood; the numbers of the ſlain ſo great, that her ſtreams ſhould be dyed thereby: and more, or additions, of trouble be brought upon them; the lions ſhall glean thoſe which are eſcaped from the ſword, v. 9. Note, When God in wrath begins with ſinners, he will make an end; and whilſt they continue hardened, he will not be weary in ſmiting them.

CHAP. XVI.

This chapter concludes the burden of Moab: In it, 1. The prophet counſels the Moabites to reform what was amiſs among them, and particularly to be kind to God's people, as the likelieſt way to prevent the judgments before threatened, ver. 1—5. 2. Fearing they would not take this counſel, they were ſo proud, he goes on to foretel the lamentable devaſtation of their country, and the confuſion they ſhould ſoon be brought to, ver. 6—14.

1. [a] SEND ye the lamb † to the ruler of the land from [b] Sela to the wilderneſs, unto the mount of the daughter of Zion. 2. ‡ For it ſhall be that as a wandring bird caſt out of the neſt: ſo the daughters of Moab ſhall be at [c] the fords of Arnon. 3. [d] Take counſel, execute judgment, make thy ſhadow as the night in the midſt of the noon-day, hide the out-caſts, bewray not him that wandereth. 4. [e] Let mine out-caſts dwell will thee, Moab, be thou a covert to them from the face of the ſpoiler: for the § extortioner is at an end, the ſpoiler ceaſeth, the oppreſſors are conſumed out of the land. 5. And [f] in mercy ſhall the throne be eſtabliſhed, and he ſhall ſit upon it in truth; in the tabernacle of David, [g] judging and ſeeking judgment, and haſting righteouſneſs.

[a] 2 Kings iii. 4. Or, Ezra vii. 17, 23.
† Or, O ruler.
[b] 2 Kings xiv. 7.
‡ Or, elſe.
[c] Num. xxi. 14.
[d] Dan. iv. 27.
[e] Mat. xxv. 35. Heb. xiii. 2.
§ Heb. Wringer.
[f] Prov. xx. 28. & xxix. 14.
[g] 2 Sam. xxiii. 3.

v. 1—5. To prevent the threatened ruin, the prophet warns them what ſteps to take; to do juſtice, and ſhew mercy, and leaves them inexcuſable if they reject the admonition.

1. He adviſes them to ſend their tribute, laid on them by David, 2 Sam. viii. 2. which was paid in lambs and rams, 2 Kings iii. 4, 5. from Sela, their capital, to the wilderneſs, the neareſt road which led to Zion, to the ruler of the land, to Hezekiah, David's rightful ſucceſſor; or, O ruler of the land, the king of Moab, whoſe duty it was to pay it, and that on the peril of being ejected from his country; for it ſhall be, or, otherwiſe it ſhall be; if this juſtice be not done, then, as a wandering bird ſhould they be driven from their houſes to the borders of their country, and in conſternation uncertain whither to flee.

2. He counſels them to ſhew mercy to the outcaſts of Iſrael, who, on the invaſion of the Aſſyrians, ſhould fly to hide themſelves from their fury. They ſhould protect and cheriſh them, as a thick ſhadow, from the ſcorching heat of perſecution; conceal them from their enemies, and never betray them if purſued, v. 3. but let them dwell in ſafety in their land till the tyranny was overpaſt, which ſhould not laſt long; whether that of Salmanezer, who, after ravaging the country, returned; or that of Sennacherib, whoſe army was ſo quickly deſtroyed. Note, (1.) God's people are often perſecuted and driven from their homes, but God is with them, and will ſeek them a covert from the ſtorm. (2.) They who are kind to God's outcaſts, ſhall find him abundantly recompenſing the favour.

3. It would be their intereſt as well as duty thus to act. As God would eſtabliſh the throne of Hezekiah, and long continue him in the tabernacle of David, executing righteous judgment, and readily adminiſtring juſtice to the needy, he would be enabled to return the kindneſs to Moab, when her diſtreſſes ſhould arrive. Note, We ſhould ſtudy to oblige every man, as we know not what need we may have of their aſſiſtance before we die.

Before Chriſt 727.

6. ¶ We have heard of [h] the pride of Moab, (he is very proud) even of his haughtineſs, and his pride, and his wrath; but [i] his † lies ſhall not be ſo. 7. Therefore ſhall Moab [k] howl for Moab, every one ſhall howl: for the foundations of Kir-hareſeth ſhall ye ‡ mourn, ſurely they are ſtricken. 8. For [l] the fields of Heſhbon languiſh, and [m] the vine of Sibmah, the lords of the heathen have broken down the principal plants thereof, they are come even unto Jazer, they wandered through the wilderneſs, her branches are ſtretched out, they are gone over the ſea. 9. ¶ Therefore I will bewail with the weeping of Jazer, [n] the vine of Sibmah: I will water thee with my tears, [o] O Heſhbon, and Elealeh: for § the ſhouting for thy ſummer-fruits, and for thy harveſt, is fallen. 10. And [p] gladneſs is taken away, and joy out of the plentiful field, and in the vineyards there ſhall be no ſinging, neither ſhall there be ſhouting: the treaders ſhall tread out no wine in their preſſes; I have made their vintage-ſhouting to ceaſe. 11. Wherefore [q] my bowels ſhall ſound like an harp for Moab, and mine inward parts for Kir-hareſh. 12. ¶ And it ſhall come to paſs, when it is ſeen that Moab is weary on [r] the high place, that he ſhall come to his ſanctuary to pray, [s] but he ſhall not prevail. 13. This is the word that the LORD hath ſpoken concerning Moab ſince that time. 14. But now the LORD hath ſpoken, ſaying, [t] Within three years, [u] as the years of an hireling, and the glory of Moab ſhall be contemned, with all that great multitude; and the remnant ſhall be very ſmall and ‖ feeble.

[h] Jer. xlviii. 29. Zeph. ii. 10.
[i] Chap. xxviii. 15.
† Or, vain counſels. Chap. xliv. 25.
[k] Jer. xlviii. 20.
‡ Or, mutter. Chap. viii. 19.
[l] Chap. xxiv. 7.
[m] Ver. 9.
[n] Jer. xlviii. 32.
[o] Chap. xv. 4.
§ Or, the alarm is fallen upon, &c. Jer. xlviii. 32.
[p] Jer. xlviii. 33.
[q] Chap. xv. 5. Jer. xlviii. 36.
[r] Chap. xv. 2.
[s] Chap. xlvii. 12.
[t] Chap. xiv. 16.
[u] Chap. xxi. 28.
‖ Or, not many.

v. 6—14. Becauſe Moab haughtily rejected the prophetic counſel, his doom is near.

1. His ſins were great and notorious; with haughtineſs and pride he treated the poor refugees of Iſrael, and in wrath perſecuted rather than protected them. But his lies, or his ſtrength, ſhall not be ſo. He hath miſchievous deſigns againſt Iſrael, but God will diſappoint his wiles, or break his power, ſo that his wicked purpoſes ſhall not be brought to paſs. Note, (1.) Pride in God's ſight is moſt abominable. (2.) It is a mercy for God's people, that the power of their enemies is not proportioned to their malice.

2. The ſorrows of Moab would be increaſed; their ſtrongeſt fortreſſes levelled with the ground, and their fertile land waſted. The vine of Sibmah, that ſpread her tendrils even unto Jazer, a city in Gilead, and to the Dead Sea, the borders of their country, now languiſhes, broken down by the lords of the heathen, the Aſſyrian army; and Heſhbon's fruitful fields, no longer cheared with the ſongs of reapers, or the ſhouts of thoſe who trod the wine-preſs, in mournful ſolitude and ſilence lie deſolate and barren. The prophet, whilſt he denounces the judgment, weeps for their ruin, and, like the trembling ſtrings of the harp, his bowels yearn in compaſſion over them, v. 7—11. Note, (1.) Sorrow and ſin are twin-ſiſters. (2.) The miſeries even of the wicked move a gracious heart to pity them.

3. All applications to their idol gods would be in vain: tho' they went from one high place to another, as Balak of old, till they wearied themſelves with ſacrifices, their miſeries would not abate; and as fruitleſs would be their prayers before the ſhrine of Chemoſh. Though ſome ſuppoſe the ſanctuary refers to the temple of God, whither in their diſtreſſes they would be driven, but God would reject their prayers, v. 12. The decree was gone forth, ſince that time, the date of the prophecy in the firſt year of Hezekiah, and was now irreverſible. Note, (1.) When prayer is the extorted cry of ſuffering, and not the voice of repentant ſorrow, no marvel it is rejected. (2.) There is a time when prayer comes too late to profit: it will be in vain to knock when the door is ſhut.

4. The day of execution is fixed for Moab's deſtruction, when their glory ſhould be deſpicable, their multitude of ſoldiers cut off, and the remnant weak and diſabled to make head againſt their invaders. In three years, as the years of a hireling, who waits with earneſtneſs the expiration of his contract, the people of God might expect the fulfilment of the prophecy, v. 14. Some regard this as a diſtinct viſion, referring the former part to the total deſtruction of the whole people by Nebuchadnezzar. But now the Lord hath ſpoken concerning a nearer event, which was fulfilled in the fourth of Hezekiah, when Salmanezer conquered Samaria, and ravaged Moab in his way, 2 Kings xviii. 9. which was a warning to them, and a prelude to their final ruin.

CHAP. XVII.

Syria and Ephraim were confederate againſt Judah, chap. vii. 1, 2. Here they are joined in ruin, for companions in ſin will ever be companions in ſuffering. 1. The deſtruction of the ſtrong cities both of Syria and Iſrael is here foretold, ver. 1—5. and again, ver. 9—11. 2. A gracious promiſe is made, that a remnant ſhould be preſerved from theſe calamities, and ſhould get good by them, ver. 6—8. 3. The overthrow of the Aſſyrian army before Jeruſalem is pointed at, ver. 12—14. In order of time this chapter ſhould be placed next after chap. ix. for the deſtruction of Damaſcus here foretold happened in the reign of Ahaz, 2 Kings xvi. 9.

Before Chriſt 741.

1. [a] THE burden of Damaſcus. Behold, [b] Damaſcus is taken away from being a city, and it ſhall be a ruinous heap. 2. The cities of Aroer are forſaken; they ſhall be for flocks which ſhall lie down, and none ſhall make them afraid. 3. [c] The fortreſs alſo ſhall ceaſe from Ephraim, and the kingdom from Damaſcus, and the remnant of Syria: they ſhall be as the glory of the children of Iſrael, ſaith the LORD of hoſts. 4. And in that day it ſhall come to paſs, that the glory of Jacob ſhall be made thin, and the fatneſs of his fleſh ſhall wax lean. 5. And it ſhall be [d] as when the harveſtman gathereth the corn, and reapeth the ears with his arm; and it ſhall be as he that gathereth ears in the valley of Rephaim.

741.
[a] Jer. xlix. 23. Amos i. 3. Zech. ix. 1.
[b] Fulfilled in 740. 2 Kings xvi. 9. Chap. viii. 4.
[c] Chap. vii. 16. & viii. 4.
[d] Rev. xiv. 15, 16.

v. 1—5. The cup of trembling goes round; Syria and Iſrael muſt drink of it. They were cloſely allied; but the ſtrongeſt confederacies in ſin will fail. The burden begins with Syria; Damaſcus, the capital, is doomed to fall, and lie for a while in ruins; her fertile villages deſolate; the deſerted houſes become ſhepherds huts; and in the ſtreets, once thronged with crouds of citizens, the ſheep ſhall graze unmoleſted. The few who remain poor and deſpicable, ſhall be as the glory of Iſrael, an ironical expreſſion, ſince Iſrael's glory too was alike departed, and her fate as deſperate. The fortreſs of Ephraim, Samaria, ſhall be demoliſhed, the government diſſolved; ſo that it ſhould no more recover: and all the fatneſs of Iſrael, her riches, and multitudes, once her glory, like a man waſted with a conſumption, ſhall pine away, deſtroyed by famine or the ſword; ripe for ruin as the corn in harveſt, and cut down by the armies of the Aſſyrians, as the reaper gathers the ſheaf, and with as much care as the huſbandman in the vale of Rephaim, where the corn was peculiarly excellent, collected every ear. Note, (1.) If pining conſumption ſeize the body natural or politic, we may quickly trace the origin of the diſeaſe to ſin, the cauſe of every human miſery. (2.) The ſtrongeſt fortreſs hath no defence, when God ſtretches out his arm to deſtroy. (3.) When the ſinner is ripe for deſtruction, death, as the harveſt-man, will put in the ſickle, and none can deliver out of his hands.

6. (¶ [e] Yet gleaning-grapes ſhall be left in it, as the ſhaking of an olive-tree, two or three berries in the top of the uppermoſt bough, four or five in the outmoſt fruitful branches thereof, ſaith the LORD God of Iſrael. 7. At that day [f] ſhall a man look to his Maker, and his eyes ſhall have reſpect to the holy One of Iſrael. 8. And [g] he ſhall not look to the altars, the work of his hands, neither ſhall reſpect that which his fingers have made, either the groves, or the † images.)

[e] Chap. xxiv. 13.
[f] Chap. x. 20, 21. & xix. 22.
[g] Hoſ. xiv. 8.
† Or, ſun-images.

v. 6—8. One gleam of mercy beams through the darkneſs, to comfort the hearts of God's faithful amidſt theſe deſolating judgments. They ſhall be preſerved from the deſtruction, and hid in the day of the Lord's fierce anger, by eſcaping to Judah, or being overlooked by the Aſſyrians.

1. They are but few, very few, like the gleaning grapes when the vintage is over, or two or three olives left on the topmoſt bough, which were not ſhaken down. Note, (1.) They who are led captive by the devil at his will are many, whilſt thoſe who eſcape his bondage are, comparatively, few. (2.) Such as are careful in the evil day to keep cloſe to God, he will keep them from the hour of temptation.

2. They are drawn nearer to God by their danger. At that day of Iſrael's calamity ſhall a man look to his Maker, and his eyes ſhall have reſpect to the holy One of Iſrael. In prayer the faithful will ſpread their caſe before God their Saviour, and caſt their care on him, renouncing every vain confidence, ſuch as the idol altars and images of their apoſtate countrymen, which themſelves might have formerly worſhipped, but now abhorred and rejected; they cleave to the Lord alone, as able to ſave them in the day of evil. Note, (1.) They are bleſſed afflictions that bring us nearer to God. (2.) As naturally as a child runs to its parent for protection, ſo doth the child of God in the day of diſtreſs in prayer betake himſelf to the arms of Jeſus his Saviour. (3.) Nothing ſerves more to detach the ſoul from earth and creature-comforts and confidences, than thoſe ſtrokes of Providence that convince us of their vanity.

Before Chriſt 741.

9. ¶ In that day ſhall his ſtrong cities be as a forſaken bough, and an uppermoſt branch which they left, becauſe of the children of Iſrael : and there ſhall be deſolation. 10. Becauſe thou haſt [h] forgotten the God of thy ſalvation, and haſt not been mindful of [i] the rock of thy ſtrength : therefore ſhalt thou plant pleaſant plants, and ſhalt ſet it with ſtrange ſlips : 11. In the day ſhalt thou make thy plant to grow, and in the morning ſhalt thou make thy ſeed to flouriſh : but [k] the harveſt ſhall be † a heap in the day of grief, and of deſperate ſorrow.

h Pſ. cvi. 21. Hoſ. viii. 14.
i Pſ. xxxi. 2.
k Lev. xxvi. 16. Deut. xxviii. 38.
† Or, removed in the day of inheritance, and there ſhall be deadly ſorrow.

v. 9—11. The prophet having ſaid to the righteous, it ſhall be well with them, returns to cry woe to the wicked, for it ſhall be ill with them.

1. The cauſe of all their miſery is their departure from God, v. 10. They had forgotten his wonders of mercy and grace, neglected his worſhip, diſregarded his commands, and forſaking the rock of their ſtrength, were juſtly forſaken by him. Note, (1.) Negligence about the things of God, and their ſouls, is the great ſin and ruin of mankind. (2.) They who forſake the God of their ſtrength, renounce their own mercies.

2. The conſequence of their apoſtacy is their deſtruction. As deſolate as the cities of Canaan were made when firſt Iſrael ſeized them, ſo deſolate ſhould their own cities become through the ſword of the Aſſyrians, as a withered branch ſtripped of its leaves, and a topmoſt bough blaſted and dead. Their country, cultivated with ſuch aſſiduity, full of pleaſant fruits, its native produce, and improved by foreign trees and plants, promiſed a great increaſe : but, ere the day of harveſt comes, all is blaſted, a heap in the day of grief, or inheritance ; when they expected to reap, the enemy ſhould collect their fruits into a heap, deſtroying what he did not uſe, and leaving them nothing but deſperate ſorrow : not only their land waſted, but themſelves carried captive, without any hope of ever returning to it again. Note, (1.) If the wicked Canaanites were caſt out of their cities, let not wicked Iſraelites think to eſcape. (2.) When worldly hopes and cares engroſs our hearts, God juſtly blaſts our proſpects, and puniſhes our creature-idolatry.

12. ¶ Wo to the † multitude of many people, which make a noiſe [l] like the noiſe of the ſeas ; and to the ruſhing of nations, that make a ruſhing like the ruſhing of mighty waters. 13. The nations ſhall ruſh like the ruſhing of many waters : [m] but God ſhall rebuke them, and they ſhall flee far off, [n] and ſhall be chaſed as the chaff of the mountains before the wind, and like ‡ a rolling thing before the whirlwind. 14. And behold, [o] at evening-tide trouble, and [p] before the morning he is not : this is the portion of them that ſpoil us, and the lot of them that rob us.

† Or, noiſe
l Jer. vi. 23.
m Pſ. xciii. 4.
n Pſ. lxxxiii. 13. Hoſ. xiii. 3.
‡ Or, thiſtle-down.
o Chap. xxxvii. 1.
p 2 Kings xix. 35, 36.

v. 12—14. This prophecy concerns the deſtruction of Sennacherib and his army.

1. Their multitude and impetuoſity is deſcribed, like raging ſeas rolling their furious billows to the ſhore, and foaming out, in Rabſhakeh's blaſphemy, their own ſhame, v. 12.

2. Their woe is denounced. God will take the cauſe into his own hand, and rebuke the wrath of theſe fierce enemies. They ſhall ruſh upon their ruin ; his angel, like chaff, ſhall beat them ſmall ; and, as the down of thiſtles before the whirlwind, ſo eaſily ſhall they be diſperſed, and the few that remain from the ſword of the deſtroyer, flee far away, v. 13. Note, The mightieſt foes of the church and people of God, before the Almighty, are leſs than nothing and vanity.

3. A quick period is put to the diſtreſs of God's people. Though troubled at the evening, when they beheld the approaching hoſts of Aſſyria, one night removed their fears, and the next morning ſhewed them their dead corpſes. Note, Tho' the faithful may be now and then diſmayed, their heavineſs endureth but for a night, and joy cometh in the morning.

4. Such ſhall be the caſe of all the enemies of God's church, and his ſervants muſt remember it for their comfort ; for this is the portion of them that ſpoil us, and the lot of them that rob us. Note, The paſt experience of God's people ſhould be treaſured up as a ground of preſent confidence in the like temptations.

CHAP. XVIII.

A woe is here denounced againſt the land ſhadowing with wings, for God hath upon his people's account a quarrel with it. 1. They threaten God's people, ver. 1, 2. 2. All the neighbours are hereupon called to take notice what will be the iſſue, ver. 3. 3. Though God ſeem unconcerned in the diſtreſs of his people for a time, he will at length appear againſt their enemies, and will remarkably cut them off, ver. 4—6. 4. This ſhall redound very much to his glory, ver. 7.

Before Chriſt 741.

1. WO to the land [a] ſhadowing with wings, which is beyond the rivers of † Ethiopia : 2. That ſendeth ambaſſadors by the ſea, even in veſſels of bulruſhes upon the waters, ſaying, Go ye ſwift meſſengers to [b] a nation ſcattered and peeled, to a people [c] terrible from their beginning hitherto ; a nation ‡ meted out and trodden down, whoſe land the rivers § have ſpoiled. 3. All ye inhabitants of the world, and dwellers on the earth, ſee ye, [d] when he lifteth up an enſign on the mountains ; and when he bloweth a trumpet, hear ye. 4. For ſo the LORD ſaid unto me, I will take my reſt, and I will ‖ conſider in my dwelling-place, like a clear heat † upon herbs, and [e] like a cloud of dew in the heat of harveſt. 5. For afore the harveſt when the bud is perfect, and the ſour grape is ripening in the flower ; he ſhall both cut off the ſprigs with pruning-hooks, and take away and cut down the branches. 6. They ſhall be left together unto the fowls of the mountains, and to the beaſts of the earth : and the fowls ſhall ſummer upon them, and all the beaſts of the earth ſhall winter upon them. 7. ¶ In that time [f] ſhall the preſent be brought unto the LORD of hoſts, of [g] a people ‡ ſcattered and peeled, and from a people terrible from their beginning hitherto : a nation meted out and trodden under foot, whoſe land the rivers have ſpoiled, to the place of the name of the LORD of hoſts, the mount Zion.

714.
a Chap. viii. 8.
† Heb. Cuſh.
b Ver. 7.
c Deut. xxviii. 50.
‡ Or, that meteth out and treadeth down.
§ Or, deſpiſe.
d Chap. xiii. 2, 4.
‖ Or, regard my dwelling-place. 1 Kings viii. 29.
† Or, after rain.
e 2 Sam. xxiii. 4. Pſ. lxxii. 6.
f Pſ. lxviii. 31. & lxxii. 10. Chap. xvi. 1. Zeph. iii. 10.
g Ver. 2.
‡ Or, outſpread and poliſhed.

v. 1—7. Various have been the conjectures of the learned concerning the people meant by the land ſhadowing with wings. Some have thought it to be Judea, who ſought to find ſhelter under the ſhadow of Egypt and Ethiopia againſt the Aſſyrians. Others interpret it of one of theſe nations, leagued with Judah to oppoſe Sennacherib's invaſion. I rather incline to ſuppoſe it the Aſſyrians themſelves, (See chap. viii. 8.) and to be a ſequel to the former chapter ; ſince by Cuſh, or Ethiopia, is rather meant Arabia, than that country ſo called in Africa ; and Aſſyria lying beyond the Euphrates and Tigris, the borders of Arabia, more aptly ſuits the deſcription here given.

1. A woe is pronounced on the land, whatever it be, which ſendeth embaſſadors to form alliances, and to engage auxiliary forces, in order to ſtrengthen their army, v. 1, 2.

2. God prepares to diſappoint their deſigns, and gives his orders : Go, ye ſwift meſſengers of his vengeance, to a nation ſcattered and peeled ; which, with the following words, ſome ſuppoſe addreſſed to Judea, harraſſed by the Aſſyrians ; but ſeem rather ſpoken of theſe invaders, who, though terrible hitherto, were deſtined to ruin, and therefore, though laden with ſpoils, are ſpoken of as a people ſcattered and peeled, a nation meted out and trodden down, ſuch being their appointed portion, whoſe land the rivers have ſpoiled ; ſmitten by the ſword of the deſtroyer, as rivers ſwelled with rain overflow their banks, and deluge the country.

3. All the people of the earth are called to be ſpectators of the controverſy, v. 3. when on the mountains of Judea the proud Aſſyrian monarch ſhould lift up his banners, and ſound the dread alarm. However intimidating his appearance, God bids them ſee and hear, and mark the end. Note, God's hand of providential interpoſition is carefully to be remarked ; and, when dangers are moſt alarming, he is neareſt to defend and ſave us. As it is written, in the mount of the Lord it ſhall be ſeen.

4. For a while God ſeems to give up his people for a prey. So the Lord ſaid unto me, I will take my reſt, as one aſleep, and diſregarding the diſtreſs of his people ; and I will conſider in my dwelling-place what I reſolve to do ; or, I will look upon my dwelling-place, Jeruſalem, ſo called from the Shechinah of glory abiding in the temple, like a clear heat on herbs, and like a cloud of dew in the heat of harveſt ; either reviving them, as the ſun quickens the graſs after a ſhower, and a cloud allays the ſcorching heat of harveſt ; or, ſuffering them for a while to be afflicted, as the ſun burns up the graſs, and as rain is hurtful in the time of harveſt. And this may refer to his dealings with his people, whom he would comfort and protect ; or the invading Aſſyrians, whoſe devices he would thus conſider and diſappoint. Note, (1.) God's repoſe can never be diſturbed by all the impotent rage of his foes. (2.) He ſeems, reſpecting his people, ſometimes to have forgotten and forſaken them, when he is juſt ready to diſplay his deſigns of grace for their deliverance.

5. His enemies, when ready in their own conceits to reap the fruits of their conqueſts, are deſtroyed. Afore the harveſt, when the bud is perfect, their deſigns formed for execution, and the ſour grape, the miſchievous purpoſe, is ripening in the flower, ready to be accompliſhed, he ſhall both cut off the ſprigs with pruning-hooks, and take away and cut down the branches ; deſtroy both the ſoldiers of the army and the chief captains by the ſword of the angel ; and ſuch a ſlaughter ſhall be made, that enough food

Before Chriſt 741.

food will be provided from the carcaſes of the ſlain, during ſummer and winter, for the fowls and the wild beaſts, v. 6. Note, The deepeſt laid ſchemes againſt God's people, in which their adverſaries already triumph in the certainty of ſucceſs, God can eaſily counteract to their confuſion.

6. God's people, delivered by his wondrous interpoſition, would bring to his altar a grateful preſent from the ſpoil of their enemies, who are deſcribed as v. 3. Or this may refer to future times, when theſe, as well as other antient enemies of God's church, ſhould preſent themſelves to him; and, wretched and vile as before their character was eſteemed, being converted by grace, their offering would be accepted, and they admitted into the church of Chriſt, the place of the Lord of hoſts, the ſpiritual mount Zion. Note, (1.) If God enriches us by his providence, we are bound to bring the grateful preſent to him, and the poor are his receivers. (2.) They who deſign the ruin of others, are themſelves juſtly given up for a prey.

CHAP. XIX.

This is the burden of Egypt. 1. It ſhould be greatly weakened, and become as contemptible among the nations as it was now conſiderable, through a complication of judgments which God would bring upon them, ver. 1—17. 2. At length God's holy religion ſhould be eſtabliſhed in it, ver. 18—25.

714.

1. [a] THE burden of Egypt. Behold, [b] the LORD rideth upon a ſwift cloud, and ſhall come into Egypt, and [c] the idols of Egypt ſhall be moved at his preſence, and the heart of Egypt ſhall melt in the midſt of it. 2. And I will ſet the Egyptians againſt the Egyptians: and they ſhall fight every one againſt his brother, and every one againſt his neighbour; city againſt city, and kingdom againſt kingdom. 3. And [d] the ſpirit of Egypt ſhall fail in the midſt thereof, and [e] I will deſtroy the counſel thereof: and they ſhall ſeek to the idols, and to the charmers, and to them that have familiar ſpirits, and to the wizards. 4. And the Egyptians will I † give over into the hand of a cruel lord; and a fierce king ſhall rule over them, ſaith the LORD, the LORD of hoſts. 5. And [f] the waters ſhall fail from the ſea, and the rivers ſhall be waſted and dried up. 6. And they ſhall turn the rivers far away, and [g] the brooks of defence ſhall be emptied and dried up: the reeds and flags ſhall wither. 7. The paper-reeds by the brooks, by the mouth of the brooks, and every thing ſown by the brooks ſhall wither, be driven away, and ‡ be no more. 8. The fiſhers alſo ſhall mourn, and all they that caſt angle into the brooks ſhall lament, and they that ſpread nets upon the waters ſhall languiſh. 9. Moreover, they that work in [h] fine flax, and they that weave net-works ſhall be confounded. 10. And they ſhall be broken in the purpoſes thereof, all that make ſluices and ponds for fiſh. 11. ¶ Surely the princes of [i] Zoan [k] are fools, the counſel of the wiſe counſellors of Pharaoh is become brutiſh: how ſay ye unto Pharoah, I am the ſon of the wiſe, the ſon of ancient kings? 12. Where are they? where are thy wiſe men? and let them tell thee now, and let them know what the LORD of hoſts hath purpoſed upon Egypt. 13. The princes of Zoan are become fools, [l] the princes of Noph are deceived, they have alſo ſeduced Egypt, even § they that are the ſtay of the tribes thereof. 14. The LORD hath mingled [m] a perverſe ſpirit in the midſt thereof, and they have cauſed Egypt to err in every work thereof: [n] as a drunken man ſtaggereth in his vomit. 15. Neither ſhall there be any work for Egypt, which [o] the head or tail, branch or ruſh may do. 16. In that day ſhall Egypt [p] be like unto women: and it ſhall be afraid and fear, becauſe of [q] the ſhaking of the hand of the LORD of hoſts, which he ſhaketh over it. 17. And [r] the land of Judah ſhall be a terror unto Egypt, every one that maketh mention thereof, ſhall be afraid in himſelf; becauſe of the counſel of the LORD of hoſts which he hath determined againſt it.

[a] Jer. xlvi. 13. Ezek. xxix. & xxx.
[b] Pſ. xviii. 10. & civ. 3.
[c] Exod. xii. 12. Jer. xliii. 12. & xlvi. 25.
[d] Ver. 1.
[e] Job v. 13.
† Or, ſhut up.
[f] Ezek. xxx. 12.
[g] 2 Kings xix. 24.
‡ Heb. ſhall not be.
[h] 1 Kings x. 28. Prov. vii. 16.
[i] Num. xiii. 22.
[k] Rom. i. 22. 1 Cor. i. 20.
[l] Jer. ii. 16.
§ Heb. the corners, i. e. governors.
[m] 1 Kings xxii. 22.
[n] Chap. xxix. 9.
[o] Chap. ix. 14.
[p] Jer. li. 30. Nah. iii. 13.
[q] Chap. xi. 15.
[r] Chap. xxxvi. 1.

v. 1—17. Egypt had often been a broken reed to the houſe of Judah, who, notwithſtanding the miſery their fathers had there endured, were ever flying thither for help, and making this their confidence, though ever to their hurt. God therefore will in the deſtruction of Egypt cut off this falſe reſource. We have here,

Before Chriſt 714.

1. The terror of Egypt, and the helpleſſneſs of their idol-gods, when the Lord cometh on the ſwift cloud, in terrible majeſty, haſtening as a judge to condemn the malefactors; or as a general at the head of his troops, with impetuous ſpeed, and irreſiſtible power, to lay the country waſte before him. At his preſence the idols, like Dagon's image before the ark, ſhall be confounded, and their courageous ſoldiers be utterly diſpirited, v. 1. Note, Before an avenging God who can ſtand?

2. Inteſtine feuds ſhall embroil them, and lay them more open to the invader, v. 2. which may refer to the civil war, when Pſammiticus ſeized the kingdom; or to that between Apries and Amaſis, in the time of Nebuchadnezzar. Note; They are the greateſt enemies of their country, who foment a ſpirit of faction, and ſeek to embroil brother againſt brother.

3. A ſpirit of infatuation and folly ſhall ſeize the Egyptians, v. 3. Their princes and wiſeſt counſellors, notwithſtanding their boaſts of ſcience, and deſcent from a long train of illuſtrious anceſtors, are become brutiſh and fools, unable to diſcover the divine purpoſes; neither can their idols or magicians inform them, v. 11, 12. Deceived themſelves, their princes have deceived their country; and they who ſhould have been the ſtay thereof, haſten its deſtruction, v. 13. Like men intoxicated with wine, they have drunk of the cup of error, and every ſtep they take is wrong. Their counſels weak, unſteady, perverſe, and by them the ſtate is led to the precipice of ruin, v. 14. Note, It it a needful and weighty petition of our Litany, That it may pleaſe thee to endue the Lords of the council and all the nobility with grace, wiſdom, and underſtanding.

4. They ſhall be ſold into the hand of a cruel lord, or lords; either the twelve tyrants who ſucceeded Sethon, or Pſammiticus, who united the monarchy under himſelf; or rather the Perſian emperors, Cambyſes and Ochus, to whom the character highly agrees. Note, (1.) A tyrant king is the ſcourge of his land. (2.) What reaſon have we to bleſs God for the mild government we enjoy!

5. The ſources of their riches and commerce ſhould be cut off, and want and wretchedneſs enſue. The Nile, the great cauſe of Egypt's fertility, ſhall fail them, occaſioned by ſuch a drought as would prevent its uſual overflowing, v. 5. or by the imprudent attempts of their kings, one of whom, Pharoah Necho, by endeavouring to join the Nile with the Red Sea, is ſaid to have greatly weakened its force; the conſequence of which would be, [1.] That their defence would be gone, the ditches which the water of the Nile filled round their fortified places being drained, v. 6. [2.] That famine would be in their land, becauſe, as they have no rain in Egypt, the Nile not riſing as uſual, nothing would grow; and if the reeds on its banks, from whence paper and a variety of other things were made, withered for want of moiſture, much more would all the fruits of the ground, v. 7. [3.] Even their fiſh, of which ſuch vaſt plenty abounded, would be no more: the river dried up, the fiſhermen deſtitute of employment would mourn, and the people who generally fed thereon be reduced to deep diſtreſs. Nor ſhall the rich be able to ſupply their tables, when their ſluices and ponds ſhould alike be exhauſted, v. 8—10. [4.] Their manufacturies for want of flax ſhould be at a ſtand: they who wove in the loom, or ſpun, or made their nets, now unemployed, in want would pine away, v. 11. and an entire ſtop be put to their trade and commerce, there being no work which head or tail, branch or ruſh may do, ver. 15. Note, Our common bleſſings are grievouſly overlooked; but one year of drought, that ſhould deſtroy our harveſt, would ſenſibly teach us the value of the mercies we diſregard. May our ingratitude and unmindfulneſs of God never provoke him thus to plague us!

6. The ruin of Judea by the Aſſyrian hoſts would ſpread a panic among them; pangs ſhall come upon them as on a travailing woman, beholding the hand of the Lord thus lifted up; juſtly apprehenſive of the vicinity of the victorious army, and fearing that if God's own people are not ſpared, Egypt may not hope to eſcape, againſt which the decree is gone forth, v. 16, 17. Note, (1.) When one ſinner is cut down, it becomes the ſurvivors to look and tremble. (2.) When the wicked perſiſt in their perverſe way, the counſel of the Lord is determined for their deſtruction.

18. ¶ In that day ſhall five cities in the land of Egypt [s] ſpeak the language of Canaan, and [t] ſwear to the LORD of hoſts: one ſhall be called the city of † deſtruction. 19. In that day [u] ſhall there be an altar to the LORD in the midſt of the land of Egypt, and a pillar at the border thereof to the LORD. 20. And [x] it ſhall be for a ſign, and for a witneſs unto the LORD of hoſts in the land of Egypt: for they ſhall cry unto the LORD, becauſe of the oppreſſors, and he ſhall ſend them [y] a ſaviour and [z] a great one, and he ſhall deliver them. 21. And the LORD ſhall be known to Egypt, and the Egyptians ſhall know the LORD in that day, and [a] ſhall do ſacrifice and oblation, yea, [b] they ſhall vow a vow unto the LORD, an

[s] Zeph. iii. 9.
[t] Deut. x. 20. Or, Neh. x. 29. Or, Jer. xii. 16.
† Or, the ſun.
[u] Gen. xxviii. 18. Exod. xxiv. 4.
[x] Joſh. xxii. 27.
[y] Tit. ii. 13.
[z] 1 Tim. vi. 15.
[a] Zeph. iii. 10. Mal. i. 11.
[b] Eccleſ. v. 4.

Before Chriſt 714.

c Hoſ. vi. 1. Heb. xii. 11.
d Chap. xi. 16.

and perform it. 22. And the LORD ſhall ſmite Egypt, [c] he ſhall ſmite and heal it, and they ſhall return, even to the LORD, and he ſhall be intreated of them, and ſhall heal them. 23. ¶ In that day [d] ſhall there be a high-way out of Egypt to Aſſyria, and the Aſſyrian ſhall come into Egypt, and the Egyptian into Aſſyria, and the Egyptians ſhall ſerve with the Aſſyrians. 24. In that day ſhall Iſrael be the third with Egypt, and with Aſſyria, even a bleſſing in the midſt of the land: 25. Whom the LORD of hoſts ſhall bleſs, ſaying, Bleſſed be Egypt [e] my people, and Aſſyria [f] the work of my hands, and [g] Iſrael mine inheritance.

e Hoſ. ii. 23.
f Pſ. c. 3. Chap. xxix. 23. Eph. ii. 10.
g Jer. x. 16.

v. 18—25. In the midſt of wrath a beam of mercy gladdens the dreary ſcene. There is yet hope in their end, and ſpiritual bleſſings in ſtore, which would infinitely outweigh the heavieſt temporal calamities. The accompliſhment of this prophecy ſome refer to the converſion of many of them by the Jews, who fled into Egypt from the Aſſyrians; but it ſeems rather to refer to the times of the goſpel, when Egypt, by the preaching of St. Mark and others, was early converted to the Chriſtian faith.

1. Their cities ſhall ſpeak the language of Canaan, becoming acquainted with the word of God, and converſing with the people of God. One ſhall be called the city of deſtruction, or, of the ſun; where idolatry was moſt rooted, the grace of God ſhall be moſt prevalent; or, the city that refuſed the goſpel, would be devoted to ruin. Note, (1.) When the ſoul is converted to God, we learn a new language; the love of God in Chriſt, and his rich ſalvation known and believed, is the pleaſing ſubject of our converſation, a language that to the world appears ſtrange and unknown. (2.) That ſoul is doomed to deſtruction, who continues a ſtranger to the divine teachings, and experimentally unacquainted with the truths of goſpel-grace.

2. The worſhip of God ſhould be publicly eſtabliſhed. The name of idols ſhould come no more into their lips, but their appeals be made to the heart-ſearching Jehovah, and to the Lord Jeſus would they pledge their fidelity, v. 18. To him ſhall they go, as the only altar where atonement had been made for their ſins, and where acceptance of their ſervices can be alone obtained. And in the utmoſt borders a pillar ſhall be erected, intimating the general profeſſion of the faith of Chriſt throughout the land. Note, (1.) An oath is a ſolemn act of religion, and therefore to God alone muſt we appeal. (2.) Chriſt is our altar, in and by whom alone our perſons and ſervices can be accepted of God. (3.) If there be but one true altar, what a pity is it, yea, what a ſin, for the profeſſors of the religion of Jeſus by cauſeleſs diviſions to ſet up altar againſt altar!

3. God's truth being thus embraced, and his ordinances of worſhip eſtabliſhed, they would be a ſign between him and his people. In time of diſtreſs, when they cry unto him, he will hear and anſwer them, and by a Saviour, a great one, yea, an almighty Saviour, Jeſus, deliver them from every oppreſſor, from ſin, Satan, death, hell, and every foe, v. 20. Some interpret this of Ptolemy Soter, or the Saviour, one of their kings; but the former ſenſe ſeems much preferable. Note, (1.) God's ears are ever open to the prayers of his people, and Jeſus ever near to help his afflicted ones. Whilſt we pray, he will never leave nor forſake us. (2.) They who feel they have great ſins, and tremble under their great corruptions, ſhould remember they have a great Redeemer, able to ſave to the uttermoſt.

4. They ſhall be brought to the knowledge of God, and, as the bleſſed effect of it, ſhall have their hearts engaged to him, paying the grateful tribute of praiſe and thankſgiving for his mercies, v. 21. By the tranſlation of the Hebrew ſcriptures into Greek at Alexandria, the knowledge of divine truth was, in a meaſure, laid open; but more eſpecially were they enlightened, when the miniſters of Chriſt carried the goſpel thither, and preached unto them the grace which is in Jeſus Chriſt.

5. By his word and providences he will ſmite their hearts, effectually awakening their conſciences; and as he wounds, healing them, forgiving their ſins, and converting their ſouls, v. 22. Note, When God wounds, it is to heal, not to deſtroy.

6. They ſhall be admitted into the communion of God's ſaints. All quarrels now terminated, Egypt and Aſſyria ſhould become friends, and maintain intimate intercourſe, and both unite in the ſervice of the ſame God, v. 23. and Iſrael, which lay between them, through the Saviour, who was of their ſtock, ſhould become a bleſſing to them; and, cordially uniting with them, the diſtinction of Jew and Gentile ſhall ceaſe, when they become one fold under one ſhepherd, v. 23. For thus God, as their common Father, will regard them. Egypt is equally his people with Iſrael his inheritance, and bleſſed in the ſame covenant of grace; and Aſſyria, alike the work of his hands, choſen, called, and created anew in Chriſt Jeſus, and all united in him, and members one of another, v. 24. Note, They who are the ſervants of the ſame God, bought with the ſame blood, and begotten by the ſame ſpirit, ſhould unite in love, lay aſide all animoſities, and with one mind and one mouth join in his worſhip and praiſe.

Before Chriſt 714.

CHAP. XX.

This chapter is a prediction of the captivity of the Egyptians and the Ethiopians by the king of Aſſyria. Here is, 1. The ſign by which this was foretold, ver. 1, 2. 2. The explication of the ſign, ver. 3—5. 3. The uſe which the people of God ſhould make of it, ver. 6.

a 2 Kings xviii. 17.
b Ibid. 8.
c Zech. xiii. 4. Mat. iii. 4.
d Mic. i. 8.
e Ezek. iv. 4—6.
f Chap. viii. 18.
g Jer. xiii. 22.
† Heb. Nakedneſs.
h Chap. xxx. 3, 7, 31. & xxxvi. 6.
‡ Or, country. Job xxii. 30. Jer. xlvii. 4.

1. IN the year that [a] Tartan [b] came unto Aſhdod (when Sargon the king of Aſſyria ſent him) and fought againſt Aſhdod, and took it: 2. At the ſame time ſpake the LORD by Iſaiah the ſon of Amoz, ſaying, Go, and looſe [c] the ſackcloth from off thy loins, and put off thy ſhoe from thy foot: and he did ſo, [d] walking naked and barefoot. 3. And the LORD ſaid, Like as my ſervant Iſaiah hath walked naked and barefoot [e] three years [f] for a ſign and wonder upon Egypt and upon Ethiopia; 4. So ſhall the king of Aſſyria lead away the Egyptians priſoners, and the Ethiopians captives, young and old, naked and barefoot, [g] even with their buttocks uncovered, to the † ſhame of Egypt. 5. And [h] they ſhall be afraid and aſhamed of Ethiopia their expectation, and of Egypt their glory. 6. And the inhabitant of this ‡ iſle ſhall ſay in that day, Behold, ſuch is our expectation whither we flee for help to be delivered from the king of Aſſyria: and how ſhall we eſcape?

v. 1—6. We have here,

1. The date of the prophecy, in the year of the ſiege of Aſhdod, or Azotus, Acts viii. 40. by Tartan, one of the chief captains of the hoſts of Aſſyria, whom Sargon, the king of Aſſyria, ſent; which ſome ſuppoſe to be Salmanezer, and then this event will fall in the fourth year of Hezekiah, when Samaria was taken, 2 Kings xviii. 9. Others think him to be Eſarhaddon, called Sarchedon, Tob. i. 21. and then it muſt fall about the twenty-ſecond year of Manaſſeh; but he is generally thought to be Sennacherib, among whoſe captains Tartan is reckoned, 2 Kings xviii. 17. and the time about the fourteenth of Hezekiah.

2. The ſign given of the deſtruction to be brought on Egypt and Ethiopia. Iſaiah is commanded to take off his habit of ſackcloth, (which, as a prophet, he wore to ſignify his deadneſs to the ornaments of dreſs, or as mourning over the deſolations of Judah and Iſrael) to put off his ſhoes, and to walk naked, probably not abſolutely ſo, but ſtripped of his upper garment, and barefoot. How long he continued to go thus is not certain; whether once, or three days, a day for a year, or three years, as our tranſlation ſeems to imply; though the three years rather refer to the prophecy, which ſhould be accompliſhed after that time; or ſo long the Aſſyrian king would employ in ſubduing them. The prophet without heſitation, as a faithful ſervant, obeys the divine command, dangerous as it might be to his health, and however much it expoſed his perſon to contempt. And God explains the ſign, as prefiguring the miſerable and ſhameful captivity of the Egyptians and Ethiopians, who ſhould thus be led away priſoners by the Aſſyrians, v. 4. Note, (1.) When duty calls we muſt truſt health, character, and all in God's hands. If he ſays, Well done, good and faithful ſervant, it will infinitely overbalance every inconvenience or inſult we may have received. (2.) Miſerable is the plight of theſe poor captives; but how much more miſerable thoſe ſlaves of ſin, who are led captive by the devil at his will? What confuſion will cover them, when in the preſence of God, his ſaints, and angels, the ſhame of their nakedneſs ſhall appear, and no eye pity them?

3. The warning given the Jews of the folly of depending on theſe nations. Ethiopia was their truſt, and Egypt the ally in which they gloried; but now, afraid at the ruin of theſe potent neighbours, and confounded at ſeeing their ſupports thus removed, the inhabitants of this iſle, Judea ſo called, ſhall ſay, Behold, ſuch is our expectation, ſo vain, ſo fooliſh, whither we flee for help to thoſe who cannot help themſelves; and how then ſhall we eſcape, when mightier foes are unable to withſtand the victorious arms of the Aſſyrian army? Note, Creature-confidences will aſſuredly fail us; and they who have neglected to make God their refuge, in the day of calamity, will be abandoned to deſpair, and too late bewail their folly.

CHAP.

CHAP. XXI.

In this chapter we have a prophecy of ſad times coming, 1. Upon Babylon, that it ſhould be deſtroyed by the Medes and Perſians, and that God's people ſhould receive benefit from it, ver. 1—10. 2. Upon Dumah, ver. 11, 12. 3. Upon Arabia, or Kedar, the deſolation of which country was very near, ver. 13—17.

1. THE burden of the deſert of the ſea. [a] As whirlwinds in the ſouth paſs through, ſo it cometh from the deſert, from a terrible land. 2. A grievous viſion is declared unto me, the treacherous dealer † dealeth treacherouſly, and the ſpoiler ſpoileth: [b] go up, O Elam: beſiege, O Media: all the ſighing thereof have I made to ceaſe. 3. Therefore are my loins filled with pain; [c] pangs have taken hold upon me, as the pangs of a woman that travaileth: I was bowed down at the hearing of it, I was diſmayed at the ſeeing of it. 4. My heart panted, fearfulneſs affrighted me: [d] the night of my pleaſure hath he turned into fear unto me. 5. [e] Prepare the table, [f] watch in the watch-tower, eat, drink: ariſe, ye princes, and anoint the ſhield. 6. For thus hath the LORD ſaid unto me, Go, ſet a watchman, let him declare what he ſeeth. 7. And [g] he ſaw a chariot with a couple of horſemen, a chariot of aſſes, and a chariot of camels; and he hearkned diligently with much heed. 8. And ‡ he cried, [h] A lion: my lord, [i] I ſtand continually upon the watch-tower in the day-time, and I am ſet in my ward whole nights. 9. And behold, here cometh a chariot of men, with a couple of horſemen: and he anſwered and ſaid, [k] Babylon is fallen, is fallen; and [l] all the graven images of her gods he hath broken unto the ground. 10. [m] O my threſhing, and the § corn of my floor: that which I have heard of the LORD of hoſts the God of Iſrael, have I declared unto you.

[a] Zech. ix. 14.
† Or, hath found a treacherous dealer, and the ſpoiler one that ſpoileth. Chap. xxxiii. 1. Mat. vii. 2.
[b] Chap. xiii. 17. Jer. li. 11.
[c] Chap. xiii. 8. Jer. l. 43.
[d] Dan. v. 1, 30.
[e] Dan. v. 2, &c.
[f] Jer. li. 12.
[g] Ver. 9.
‡ Or, he cried as a lion.
[h] Jer. l. 44.
[i] Hab. ii. 1.
[k] Jer. li. 8. Rev. xiv. 8. & xviii. 2.
[l] Chap. xlvi. 1. Jer. l. 2. & li. 44.
[m] Jer. li. 33.
§ Heb. ſon.

v. 1—10. As Babylon was appointed for a houſe of bondage to God's people, to comfort them in their low eſtate, her deſtruction is repeatedly foretold, and when captives there, they may confidently expect to ſee her ruin, and their deliverance. This prophecy is intitled, The burden of the deſert, or plain, of the ſea, as lying in a flat country, ſurrounded with rivers and lakes; and a burden, becauſe of the heavy doom denounced.

1. The invaſion of the Medes is deſcribed, ſwift and reſiſtleſs as the whirlwind from the ſouth, ſweeping all before it. From the deſert it, or he, cometh; Cyrus marching his troops through a deſert in his way to Babylon, from a terrible land, ſuch as Media was, producing fierce warriors, terrible to their enemies. A grievous viſion is declared to me, full of wrath againſt the Chaldeans. The treacherous dealer dealeth treacherouſly, and the ſpoiler ſpoileth; Belſhazzar, whoſe wickedneſs and oppreſſion of God's people brought deſtruction upon him. Or, as ſome render the words, the treacherous dealer hath found a treacherous dealer, and the ſpoiler one that ſpoileth; the Babylonians being repaid in kind by the Perſians for their former ravages in Judea. Go up, O Elam; beſiege, O Media; all their ſighing hath he made to ceaſe; either that of the Medes and Perſians, fatigued with the length of their march, and the labour of draining the river, in order to open a way into the city; or the ſighing of the captive Jews and others in Babylon, who, when the city was taken, regained their liberty.

2. The diſtreſs of the king of Babylon is ſet forth under the image of a travailing woman, v. 3, 4. Amidſt the revels of that fatal night, when rioting with his princes, the ſacred veſſels of the ſanctuary were prophaned, the hand-writing on the wall ſtruck with ſudden pangs the impious king, and ſpoke his approaching doom, which is ſcarce ſooner pronounced than executed, the city that very night being taken, and Belſhazzar ſlain. Note, Though the midnight revels of pleaſure, and the board of drunkenneſs, may not be interrupted with ſuch a miraculous hand-writing on the wall, and ſinners, joyous and thoughtleſs, to dance and ſong devote the day, did they but ſee what is written in God's book, how quickly would their mirth, like Belſhazzar's, be turned into mourning, and their joy into heavineſs?

3. The entertainment is made ready at command, v. 5. and whilſt they ſit around the feſtal board, the watch is ſet to prevent ſurprize, and in ſecurity they carouſe. Note, The ſecurity of ſinners haſtens their ruin.

4. In that critical moment the beſiegers are preparing for the aſſault. The princes ariſe, the ſhields are ready, and ſudden deſtruction approaches, v. 5.

5. The prophet is appointed of God, as a watchman poſted on the walls, to declare what he ſees, v. 6. On looking he beholds a chariot with two horſemen, perhaps alluding to Cyrus and Darius, and a chariot of aſſes, and another of camels, repreſenting the two nations of Medes and Perſians; and, on hearkening diligently, he perceived the ſound of the army ruſhing on the city, and he cried, A lion; Cyrus, for ſtrength and courage compared to that king of beaſts, haſting to ſeize the prey of Babylon. Thus with unwearied vigilance, day and night, the prophet diſcharged his truſt, v. 8. and now perceiving the chariot and horſemen above deſcribed, the Perſian and Median army under their generals entering the city, he cries, Babylon is fallen, is fallen; and all the graven images of her gods he hath broken unto the ground.

In the ſtate and ruin of this proud city we have a figure of Babylon myſtical, which ſhall thus be ſurprized and deſtroyed; and many of the expreſſions in the Revelations are borrowed from this deſcription, Rev. xvii. 1—15. xviii. 2, 7, 8. xiv. 8.

6. The prophet addreſſes the people of God, aſſuring them of the certainty of the events he foretold. He calls them, My threſhing, either as being ſmitten with God's word, or afflicted by his providences; and the corn of my floor, as dear and valuable to him, and carefully preſerved, as the choiceſt wheat, when the chaff is winnowed away. Note, (1.) God's deareſt children have the ſharpeſt trials, but it is only to purify and cleanſe them. (2.) The church is God's floor, where the faithful, his corn, are collected, whilſt all falſe profeſſors and careleſs ſinners are the chaff, which will be burnt with unquenchable fire. (3.) What miniſters receive from God they muſt carefully and diligently deliver, keeping back from the people nothing of the whole counſel of God.

11. ¶ [n] The burden of Dumah. He called to me out of Seir, Watchman, what of the night? watchman, what of the night? 12. The watchman ſaid, The morning cometh, and alſo the night: if ye will enquire, enquire ye: [o] return, [p] come.

[n] Jer. xlix. 7. Ezek. xxxv. 2. Obad. 1.
[o] Luke xiii. 3.
[p] Chap. lv. 6.

v. 11, 12. We have here,

1. The burden of Dumah, which ſome ſuppoſe a part of Arabia, See Gen. xxv. 14. but more generally it is interpreted Idumea. What temporal judgment it referred to is uncertain; probably they ſuffered with their neighbours from the Aſſyrian army.

2. A queſtion put by one of mount Seir, Watchman, what of the night? watchman, what of the night? what hour, how much remains; or what from the night? what tidings? what danger? The queſtion is repeated, as from a perſon eager to be reſolved; or from ſeveral coming quickly after each other; ſo great is their anxiety, that a ſecond calls before the watchman can anſwer the firſt. Note, (1.) Every miniſter is a watchman; he is to ſpread the alarm, and the people are to enquire at his mouth. (2.) It is a mercy when a ſenſe of danger drives us to a ſollicitous enquiry how to eſcape. (3.) Every ſoul is by nature in darkneſs, till Chriſt, the Sun of righteouſneſs, ariſes with healing in his wings. (4.) The people of God experience dark nights of temptation, affliction, deſertion, and wait for a returning ſenſe of God's light and love, more eagerly than they who look for the morning.

3. The watchman ſaid, The morning cometh; ſome reſpite from the calamity. Or, if we ſuppoſe the queſtion put by a proſelyte Idumean, waiting for the conſolation of Iſrael under the darkneſs of the Moſaic diſpenſation, the anſwer is, that the morning cometh, when Chriſt, the day-ſtar, ſhould ariſe, and light and joy be diffuſed by his goſpel. But he adds, and the night alſo; their ruin by the army of the Aſſyrians. Or, taken more generally, it may imply a ſtate of perſecution ſucceeding the firſt propagation of the goſpel; or a ſtate of darkneſs in the church, when the prevalence of mahomediſm and popery ſhould almoſt utterly extinguiſh the light of truth. If ye will enquire, enquire ye diligently and earneſtly, by prayer, meditation, reading God's word, and conſulting his miniſters, in order to return and come to him; either to God, by repentance under the affliction; or to the watchman, for conſtant information and advice. Note, (1.) In the day of proſperity we muſt not forget to prepare for the night of adverſity. (2.) If the morning of our life be loſt in vanity, the night of age and death will ſurprize us unprepared for eternity. (3.) The ſoul that is enquiring after Chriſt, is already come to the dawning of the day. (4.) The goſpel preaches free grace; whoſoever will, let him come, and welcome, to Jeſus Chriſt. (5.) Since our time is ſo ſhort, it ſhould quicken our diligence to improve it: we have no moment to ſpare.

13. ¶ [q] The burden upon Arabia. In the foreſt in Arabia ſhall ye lodge, O ye travelling companies of Dedanim. 14. The inhabitants of the land of Tema † brought water to him that was thirſty, ‡ they prevented with their bread him that fled. 15. For they fled from the ſwords, from the drawn ſword, and from the bent bow, and from the grievouſneſs of war. 16. For thus hath the LORD ſaid unto me, Within a year, [r] according to the years of an hireling, and all the glory of [q] Jer. xlix. 28.

† Or, bring ye.
‡ Or, prevent with your bread, &c.
[r] Chap. xvi. 14.

Before Christ 714.

‖ Heb. Bows.
[a] Pſ. cxx. 5. Chap. lx. 7.

Kedar ſhall fail. 17. And the reſidue of the number of ‖ archers, the mighty men of the children of [a] Kedar ſhall be diminiſhed: for the LORD God of Iſrael hath ſpoken it.

v. 13—17. Arabia lying in the way of the Aſſyrian army, it is probable their detachments ravaged the country, or ſubdued it, as they advanced towards Judea.

1. The miſerable caſe of the travelling companies of Dedanim is ſet forth; (they were deſcendants of Abraham, by Keturah, as Tema and Kedar were of Iſhmael, Gen. xxv. 3—15.) terrified by the ſword of the Aſſyrians, they fled to the foreſt to ſave themſelves from the grievouſneſs of war, v. 15. They are called travelling companies, becauſe their traffic was carried on by large caravans; or alluding to their wandering life in tents and herds, without any ſettled abode, v. 13. In their diſtreſs their friendly neighbours ſupplied them, fainting and famiſhed, with bread and water; or as the margin reads it, they are commanded to do ſo, v. 14. ſuch kind compaſſion being ever due to the afflicted.

2. Kedar ſhares the ſame fate, v. 16, 17. All their glory, their riches, their flocks and herds plundered; and their mighty warriors, that ſtood to defend their country, diminiſhed by the ſword of the Aſſyrians, and few men left. So poor and uncertain a thing is this world's glory, ſo eaſily tarniſhed; and our abundance often proving our ruin, and expoſing us to dangers we otherwiſe might have eſcaped.

3. The time is fixed for their ruin: within one year, according to the years of an hireling, who preciſely marks the day when his contract expires. And ſince Iſrael's God affirms it as ſure, his people are warned not to truſt on Arabia as friends, or to fear them as foes.

CHAP. XXII.

We have here, 1. The diſtreſs of Jeruſalem, probably on Sennacherib's invaſion, ver. 1—7. 2. Their weakneſs expoſed, and vain confidence, ver. 8—11. 3. Their unhumbled ſtate, ver. 12—14. 4. The change in Hezekiah's court, by the diſplacing of Shebna, and the advancement of Eliakim, ver. 15—25.

712.
[a] Pſ. cxxv. 2.
[b] Chap. xxxii. 13.
† Heb. Of or from the bow.
[c] Jer. iv. 19. & ix. 1. Luke xix. 41.
[d] Chap. xxxvii. 3.
[e] 2 Kings xviii. 13.
[f] Jer. xlix. 35.
‡ Or towards.

1. THE burden of [a] the valley of viſion. What aileth thee now, that thou art wholly gone up to the houſe tops? 2. Thou that art full of ſtirs, a tumultuous city, [b] a joyous city: thy ſlain men are not ſlain with the ſword, nor dead in battle. 3. All thy rulers are fled together, they are bound † by the archers: all that are found in thee are bound together, which have fled from far. 4. Therefore ſaid I, [c] Look away from me, I will weep bitterly, labour not to comfort me; becauſe of the ſpoiling of the daughter of my people. 5. For [d] it is a day of trouble, and of treading down, and of perplexity by the Lord GOD of hoſts in the valley of viſion, [e] breaking down the walls, and of crying to the mountains. 6. And [f] Elam bare the quiver with chariots of men and horſemen, and Kir uncovered the ſhield. 7. And it ſhall come to paſs that thy choiceſt valleys ſhall be full of chariots, and the horſemen ſhall ſet themſelves in aray ‡ at the gate.

v. 1—7. The title of this prophecy is the burden of the valley of viſion, alluding to the name of Jeruſalem, which ſignifies the viſion of peace; or becauſe that was the place where God made known his will in viſions to the prophets. It is called a valley, the hills ſurrounding it on every ſide, and the viſion is a burden, a heavy calamity, though not utterly conſuming, yet greatly terrifying them.

1. Their conſternation at the approach of the Aſſyrian army is great; running to the tops of their houſes, to ſee if any help was at hand, or to obſerve the approaches of the enemy; full of ſtirs, or noiſes, preparing to oppoſe their invaders, or thou waſt full of ſtirs, the ſtreets crowded with people, a tumultuous city, populous and noiſy with the din of trade, a joyous city, rich and revelling. But now the voice of mirth is ceaſed, the horrid ſound of war is heard alone, and fear and conſternation are ſpread abroad. Though the ſword had not reached them, the famine was felt; or the fright they were put into, ſunk them ſpiritleſs, as if thruſt through with a ſword, v. 2. Nor was this panic among the people only, their rulers increaſed it, flying from all the neighbouring cities to Jeruſalem, without attempting to defend them, chap. xxxvi. 1. or many of Jeruſalem, inſtead of encouraging the people, thought only to ſecure themſelves by flight: inſtead of preparing for a vigorous defence, they ſurrendered themſelves to bonds, or were ſo diſheartened, that they had not courage to draw an arrow, as it may be rendered, bound from the bow, v. 3. Note, The alarm of war is terrible; may we never, by our abuſe of the bleſſings of peace, provoke God to bring the ſcourge upon us; for, if under his wrath, our diſpirited fleets and armies could yield us ſmall protection.

Before Christ 712.

2. Great is the prophet's grief at the ſcene of deſolation before him. He deſires his friends not to attempt to comfort him, but to leave him bitterly to weep over the ſpoiling of the daughter of his people, v. 4. and abundant cauſe there is for his tears, when trouble is on every ſide, the people as mire in the ſtreets trodden down by the Aſſyrians, the walls of the fortified cities battered into duſt, all the land full of diſtreſs and perplexity; and the Lord's correcting hand ſeen in the judgment adds bitterneſs to the affliction, v. 5. Note, (1.) Every good man is a patriot, and when he can do no more to ſave his country, will weep over its ruins. (2.) Whatever we feel of afflictions from man, we muſt look farther to the hand of God who ſends them.

3. The vaſt hoſts, compoſed of different nations, Perſians, and Medes, which were in Sennacherib's army, fill the country with chariots and horſemen, and prepare for the ſiege of Jeruſalem; make ready their ſhields, and place their advanced guard, to intercept any going in, or coming out of the gates of the city, v. 6, 7. How melancholy a change to ſee thoſe vallies, once ſo thick with corn, now yield an iron harveſt of erected ſpears.

[g] 1 Kings vii. 2. & x. 17.
[h] 2 Chron. xxxii. 4, 5.
[i] Chap. xxxvii. 26.
[k] Ibid. xv. 2. Mic. i. 16.
[l] Chap. lvi. 12. Wiſd. ii. 6. 1 Cor. xv. 32.
[m] Chap. v. 9.
[n] 1 Sam. iii. xiv. Ezek. xxiv. 13.

8. ¶ And he diſcovered the covering of Judah, and thou didſt look in that day to the armour of [g] the houſe of the foreſt. 9. [h] Ye have ſeen alſo the breaches of the city of David, that they are many: and ye gathered together the waters of the lower pool. 10. And ye have numbred the houſes of Jeruſalem, and the houſes have ye broken down to fortify the wall. 11. Ye made alſo a ditch between the two walls, for the water of the old pool: but ye have not looked unto [i] the maker thereof, neither had reſpect unto him that faſhioned it long ago. 12. And in that day did the Lord GOD of hoſts call to weeping and to mourning, and [k] to baldneſs, and to girding with ſackcloth: 13. And behold, joy and gladneſs, ſlaying oxen, and killing ſheep, eating fleſh, and drinking wine; [l] let us eat and drink, for to morrow we ſhall die. 14. And [m] it was revealed in mine ears by the LORD of hoſts, [n] Surely this iniquity ſhall not be purged from you, till ye die, ſaith the Lord GOD of hoſts.

v. 8—14. When recovered a little from their terrors they began to think what was to be done. He diſcovered the covering of Judah; either Hezekiah opened his magazines, or God detected their hypocriſy in this time of danger, by the temper they diſcovered; or rather Sennacherib having taken the ſurrounding fortreſſes that covered the city, came in full view of it, ready to begin the ſiege. Hereupon we are told,

1. The ſteps they took to put Jeruſalem in a poſture of defence. Their firſt concern was to arm the people; for which purpoſe, the armoury of the houſe of the foreſt of Lebanon, built by Solomon, 1 Kings vii. 2. is opened; they next ſurveyed the fortifications, and ſet themſelves to repair the breaches of the fortreſs, called the city of David, 2 Sam. v. 7. which in times of peace had been greatly neglected. To ſecure plenty of water, they collected together thoſe of the lower pool; and having raiſed an outer wall, drew the water out of the old pool into the ditch between the walls, to ſtrengthen the place, as well as to diſtreſs the enemy for want of it. The houſes are numbered, that each may furniſh its quota of men, money, or proviſions, for the uſe of the ſoldiery; and thoſe in the ſuburbs, which might facilitate the approaches of the beſiegers, or too near the wall within, ſo as to prevent an eaſy communication from one part to another, are demoliſhed, and the materials applied to ſtrengthen the walls. Note, (1.) In times of danger we muſt exert our utmoſt efforts, and truſt God with the iſſue. (2.) Times of peace are often times of waſte; becauſe war ſeems diſtant, a proviſion againſt it is neglected, and that is a temptation to the enemy to attack us unprepared.

2. Amidſt their warlike preparations they neglected the God of war: they fortified the city, but forgot the maker of it, without whom, the watchman waketh in vain. Their king indeed looked up to him, 2 Kings xviii. 5. 2 Chron. xxxii. 8. but his irreligious courtiers, with Shebna at their head, ſeemed to have no thought of divine aſſiſtance, and truſted only to the arm of fleſh. Note, Though kings may make religion faſhionable, by eſpouſing the profeſſion of it, it is not in their power to convert the heart. A greater king than they muſt work, or their courtiers, though complaiſantly ſubmiſſive, will be mere outward conformiſts, not internal converts.

3. Their unhumbled temper under this viſitation is remarked to their ſhame. God called to weeping and mourning, &c. the expreſſive ſigns of true penitential ſorrow; to produce which, was the great end of their affliction, and his prophets ſecond-

Before Chriſt 712.

ſeconded the providence with their preaching, but vain was the call. Having, as they thought, ſecured the city, they ſet danger at defiance, and mirth, jollity, and riot reigned; they treated the prophetic warnings with contempt; and ſince the prophet urged their danger, and death at their door, as an argument to humble their ſouls in ſorrow, for their ſins before God, they, with infidel diſregard, made it a plea for their impiety, let us eat and drink, for to morrow we die; if it be a ſhort life, let it be a merry one; and diſbelieving the doctrine of a future ſtate, appeared fearleſs of the conſequences of their ſins, 1 Cor. xv. 32. Note, (1.) A life of pleaſure naturally leads to a ſtate of infidelity. (2.) They who riſk eternity on the miſerable hope that at death their being is at an end, will find too late their dreadful deluſion.

4. God, in diſpleaſure againſt ſuch impiety, denounces his wrath on theſe proud mockers, v. 14. They contemned the prophet's warning, but they ſhall feel the wrath they deſpiſed; and neither in this world, or that which is to come, ſhould their iniquity ever be forgiven. Mark the end of impiety and infidelity.

15. ¶ Thus ſaith the Lord GOD of hoſts, Go, get thee unto this treaſurer, even unto Shebna, which is over the houſe, and ſay, 16. What haſt thou here? and whom haſt thou here, that thou haſt hewed thee out a ſepulchre here as he [o] that heweth him out a ſepulchre on high, and that graveth an habitation for himſelf in a rock? 17. Behold, the LORD will carry thee away with a mighty captivity, and will ſurely [p] cover thee. 18. He will ſurely violently turn and toſs thee, like a ball into † a large country: there ſhalt thou die, and there the chariots of thy glory ſhall be the ſhame of thy lord's houſe. 19. And I will drive thee from thy ſtation, and [q] from thy ſtate ſhall he pull thee down. 20. ¶ And it ſhall come to paſs in that day, that I will call my ſervant [r] Eliakim the ſon of Hilkiah: 21. And I will [s] clothe him with thy robe, and ſtrengthen him with [t] thy girdle; and I will commit thy [u] government into his hand, and he ſhall be a father to the inhabitants of Jeruſalem, and to the houſe of Judah. 22. And [x] the key of the houſe of David will I lay upon his ſhoulder: ſo he ſhall open, and none ſhall ſhut, and he ſhall ſhut, and none ſhall open. 23. And I will faſten him [y] as a nail in a ſure place; and he ſhall be for a [z] glorious throne to his father's houſe. 24. And they ſhall hang upon him all the glory of his father's houſe, the offspring and the iſſue, all veſſels of ſmall quantity: from the veſſels of cups, even to all the ‡ veſſels of flagons. 25. In that day, ſaith the LORD of hoſts, ſhall the nail that is faſtned in the ſure place be removed, and be cut down and fall; and [a] the burden that was upon it ſhall be cut off: for the LORD hath ſpoken it.

[o] 2 Sam. xviii. 18.
[p] Eſth. vii. 8.
† Heb. A country large of ſpaces.
[q] Pſ. lii. 5.
[r] 2 Kings xviii. 18.
[s] Pſ. xlv. 4.
[t] Chap. xi. 5.
[u] Ibid. ix. 6.
[x] Rev. iii. 7.
[y] Ezra ix. 8.
[z] Rev. iii. 21.
‡ Or inſtruments of viols.
[a] Pſ. cxlvi. 3.

v. 15—25. We have here a prophecy of a domeſtic occurrence in the houſhold of Hezekiah, which foretells the diſgrace of Shebna, and the advancement of Eliakim. What was Shebna's particular crime which occaſioned his being degraded, does not appear: the Jews ſay he was a traitor, and had agreed to give up the city to the Aſſyrians; but being diſappointed in the attempt, was carried away captive by them, and ſeveerly uſed for deceiving them.

1. His fall is declared to him by Iſaiah, v. 15. Though a great man, and high in office, both treaſurer and ſteward of the houſhold, he is not too great to be faithfully admoniſhed: What haſt thou here? what eſtate, or what buſineſs? being, it is ſuppoſed, a foreigner promoted by Ahaz, and continued in office by Hezekiah, to whoſe reformation he conformed; and whom haſt thou here? or what friends to prevent thy ruin, or what family, that thou haſt hewed thee out a ſepulchre? an habitation in a rock, with a ſtately monument erected over it, where his remains, with pomp, might be depoſited: vain preparations! when doomed to captivity, ſudden and terrible, and covered as a criminal led to execution, v. 17. Toſſed to and fro, as a ball in that ſtrange land, he ſhould lead a weariſome life, and die there, deſtitute of all his former ſplendor, a ſhame to his maſter's houſe, to Ahaz, who promoted him, v. 18. Suſpected, probably before, and now degraded by Hezekiah, he ſhall fall from his high ſtation, in which he ſeemed fixed as a nail in a ſure place; and all his dependents and followers, as is the caſe when favourites are diſgraced, ſink with him, v. 19, 25. Note, (1.) High places are ſlippery; they who ſeem moſt firmly fixed, are often neareſt the precipice of ruin. (2.) Pride looks even to the tomb, and the lying monument is taught to flatter, when the corpſe is turning to putrefaction. (3.) A faithful miniſter of God muſt not fear to deliver his meſſage boldly to the greateſt, however offenſive it may appear.

Before Chriſt 712.

2. Eliakim's advancement is foretold; a faithful ſervant of God, promoted at his inſtigation, who inclined Hezekiah to put ſo worthy a man in Shebna's ſtead, v. 20. and it would be a deep mortification to the diſgraced miniſter, to ſee the enſigns of office he wore, now transferred to another; the robe, the girdle, and the key, v. 21. A worthy magiſtrate would he prove, a father to the people, ſtrengthened of God to diſcharge the truſt repoſed in him, v. 21. having the entire management of affairs committed to him, v. 22. fixed in his office; through God's bleſſing, an honour to his family, v. 23. and kindly regarding them, from the leaſt unto the greateſt; and according to their ſeveral abilities and capacities, employing and rewarding them, v. 24. Note, (1.) When preferment comes, not hunted down by ſollicitation in the way of pride and covetouſneſs, but unſought for from the hand of providence, and conferred as the wages of deſert, then it is truly honourable. (2.) When God calls us into office, we may expect from him ſtrength to diſcharge it. (3.) They who would rule well, muſt regard their ſubjects as children, diſplay parental affection with authority, and ſhew that the great end of all they do, is the public good: and then Pater patriæ, the father of their country, will be their moſt honourable title. (4.) The higher the office, the heavier the burden; and the greater diligence, fidelity, and zeal is required to diſcharge it. (5.) Eliakim was herein the type of the Lord Jeſus, the ſervant of God, emphatically ſo called, chap. xlii. 1. appointed by his Father to the office of ruler in his church, and upheld by him in the diſcharge of his arduous undertaking, inveſted with the enſigns of royalty, and poſſeſſed of all power; having the keys of wiſdom and grace to unlock the treaſures of his word; the keys of heaven, to open the kingdom to all believers, and of death and hell, which he ſhuts, and none can open; he opens, and none can ſhut. His government is fixed and eſtabliſhed for ever; he is the brightneſs of his father's glory; his people's happineſs and honour are derived from him; and careful of the intereſts of his ſpiritual offspring, from the leaſt to the greateſt they receive out of his fulneſs; according to their wants and capacities are ſupported by him, ſo that they cannot fall and periſh; and have a manſion eternal in the heavens provided for them among the houſhold of God.

CHAP. XXIII.

Tyre, the great mart of nations, had been cloſely allied with Iſrael, but muſt fall with it. In this chapter is foretold, 1. The lamentable deſolation of Tyre, by Nebuchadnezzar, about the ſame time that he deſtroyed Jeruſalem, ver. 1—14. 2. Its reſtoration after ſeventy years, and return to trade again, ver. 15—18.

715.

1. THE burden of [a] Tyre. [b] Howl, ye ſhips of Tarſhiſh; for it is laid waſte, ſo that there is no houſe, no entring in: from [c] the land of Chittim it is revealed to them. 2. Be ſtill, ye inhabitants of the iſle, thou whom the merchants of Zidon that paſs over the ſea, have repleniſhed. 3. And by great waters the ſeed of Sihor, the harveſt of the river is her revenue, and [d] ſhe is a mart of nations. 4. ¶ Be thou aſhamed, O Zidon; for the ſea hath ſpoken, even the ſtrength of the ſea, ſaying, I travail not, nor bring forth children, neither do I nouriſh up young men, nor bring up virgins. 5. [e] †. As at the report concerning Egypt, ſo ſhall they be ſorely pained at the report of Tyre. 6. Paſs ye over to Tarſhiſh, howl ye inhabitants of the iſle. 7. Is this your joyous city, whoſe antiquity is of ancient days? [f] her own feet ſhall carry her afar off to ſojourn. 8. Who hath taken this counſel againſt Tyre, the crowning city, whoſe merchants are princes, whoſe traffickers are the honourable of the earth? 9. The LORD of hoſts hath purpoſed it, ‡ to ſtain the pride of all glory, and to bring into contempt all the honourable of the earth. 10. Paſs through thy land as a river, O daughter of Tarſhiſh: there is no more ‖ ſtrength. 11. [g] He ſtretched out his hand over the ſea, he ſhook the kingdoms: the LORD hath given a commandment againſt § the merchant-city, to deſtroy the ſtrongholds thereof. 12. And he ſaid, Thou ſhalt no more rejoice, O thou oppreſſed virgin, daughter of Zidon: ariſe, paſs over to [h] Chittim, there alſo ſhalt thou have no reſt. 13. Behold the land of the Chaldeans; this people was not till the Aſſyrian founded it for them that dwell in the wilderneſs: they ſet up the towers thereof, they raiſed up the palaces thereof, and he † brought it to ruin. 14. [i] Howl, ye ſhips of Tarſhiſh: for your ſtrength is laid waſte.

[a] Jer. xxv. 22. & xlvii. 4. Ezek. xxvi. 27, 28. Amos i. 9. Zech. ix. 2, 4.
[b] Ver. 14.
[c] Ver. 12.
[d] Ezek. xxvii. 3.
[e] Chap. xix. 16.
† Or when the report cometh to Egypt, they ſhall, &c.
[f] Eccleſ. x. 7.
‡ Heb. To pollute.
‖ Heb. Girdle.
[g] Exod. xiv. 21.
§ Heb. Canaan. Gen. x. 15, 19.
[h] Ver. 1.
† Or ſhall bring.
[i] Ver. 1. Ezek. xxvii. 25.

Before Chriſt 715.

v. 1—14. Tyre was a city in Phœnicia, of great antiquity, and the grand mart of trade for all the commodities of the Eaſt and Weſt. It ſtood on an iſland, about half a mile from the ſea, ſtrongly fortified by art and nature, and deemed impregnable: but when God hath a controverſy with any people, their ſtrength is weakneſs. We have here,

1. Her proſperity. She was a mart of nations, enriched by the traffick of all people, whoſe merchants reſorted thither; at firſt by a colony from Zidon, a few leagues diſtant from Tyre, and therefore called her daughter, v. 12. though ſoon eclipſing her mother city. Thither the products of Egypt were carried, and her revenue increaſed with the harveſt, which the river Sihor, or Nile, by overflowing, produced, v. 3. A city full of wealth, and, as the ſad effect of it, grown proud and haughty, v. 9. A joyous city, where pleaſure as well as buſineſs abounded; and ſitting as a queen on the ſeas, her ſeat of empire ſeemed eſtabliſhed for ever: her citizens great as princes, and her merchants among the honourable of the earth, v. 8. Note, The ſhips which plow the main produce a larger harveſt to a land, than the plough which breaks the ſoil.

2. Her fall by Nebuchadnezzar, after a ſiege of thirteen years; and then when it could hold out no longer, the inhabitants ſtripped the place of every thing valuable, and ſailed away, leaving little but empty houſes, and a naked rock. The ſhips of Tarſhiſh, which ſome ſuppoſe Tarteſſus, in Spain, and others Tarſus, in Cilicia, or more generally the ſhips of the ſea of all nations, are called upon to howl over her deſolations: no houſe being left ſtanding by the conqueror, nor is there any more entering into the port, her traffic being utterly ruined, v. 1. From the land of Chittim it is revealed to them, the Tyrians are informed of the preparations made againſt them by the Babylonians; or there is no entering in from the land of Chittim, the merchants of Greece and Italy can no longer carry on their trade thither: it is revealed to them that Tyre is deſtroyed. In mournful ſilence the inhabitants would ſit aſtoniſhed at their overthrow, v. 2. and Zidon her neighbour, and nearly connected with her, be aſhamed, having placed ſuch confidence in Tyre, that it could not be taken; but the waves of the ſea carry the tidings, and this proud city, late the ſtrength of the ſea, ſo fortified and ſtrengthned by it, bemoans her deſolations; no longer full of inhabitants, and ſending out her colonies to diſtant parts, but now a widow, bereaved of her children, v. 4. Not Egypt's fall, though ſo potent a kingdom, would ſpread a greater terror, v. 5. or, as the words may be rendered, when the report cometh to the Egyptians, they will be in pain at the report of Tyre, trembling for themſelves, when this bulwark between them and the Chaldeans is fallen. Haſting now to forſake the place, the inhabitants are enjoined to embark for Tarſhiſh, and her own feet ſhall carry her away; thoſe that ſhould be ſeized by the conqueror, would be led into captivity; or this may ſignify her ſhips, whoſe oars and mariners would ſerve her inſtead of feet to eſcape, v. 7. Swift as a river the merchants of Tarſhiſh, who were at Tyre, or the people ſo called, are urged to haſten away; becauſe the place is no longer defenſible, and is ready to fall, v. 10. Thus for a ſeaſon her joy ſhould be ſilenced. The oppreſſed virgin, the daughter of Zidon, that had never been conquered before, muſt paſs over to the iſles of Chittim, Greece or Italy; or the iſlands of Corſica, Sardinia, and Sicily, where colonies of the Tyrians were planted; and yet even there thou ſhalt have no reſt, theſe countries being doomed to fall under the yoke of their enemies. Note, (1.) When God purſues, there is no flying from our miſery. (2.) They who think themſelves moſt ſecure, feel the heavier anguiſh in their falls.

3. If it be aſked, who hath taken this counſel againſt Tyre, v. 8. the anſwer is, one that is fully able to execute his deſigns, the Lord of Hoſts, who would abaſe their pride, and ſtain all human glory; that others, warned by their fall, might be admoniſhed of the vanity of every temporal poſſeſſion, and the folly of being proud, and truſting on that which can profit ſo little in the day of wrath. As he did of old, when Egypt was ſmitten under his mighty hand, v. 11. ſo hath he now given commandment to the deſtroyer, and is pleaſed to uſe the Chaldean ſword. Though this people was not of note and figure till the Aſſyrian founded it for them that dwelt in the wilderneſs, who drove out the original inhabitants of Meſopotamia, and tranſlated thither the Chaldeans, who before dwelt ſcattered in the wilderneſs; they ſet up the towers thereof, they raiſed up the palaces of Babylon, greatly augmenting and fortifying it; he brought it, or he ſhall bring it, to ruin; theſe Chaldeans ſhall be inſtruments to execute the divine judgments.

15. And it ſhall come to paſs in that day, that Tyre ſhall be forgotten [k] ſeventy years, according to the days of one king: after the end of ſeventy years † ſhall Tyre ſing as an harlot. 16. Take an harp, go about the city, thou harlot that haſt been forgotten, make ſweet melody, ſing many ſongs, that thou mayſt be remembered. 17. ¶ And it ſhall come to paſs after the end of ſeventy years, that the LORD will viſit Tyre, and ſhe ſhall turn to her hire, and ſhall commit fornication with all the kingdoms of the world upon the face of the earth. 18. And [l] her merchandiſe, and her hire, [m] ſhall be holineſs to the LORD: it ſhall not be treaſured nor laid up: for her merchandiſe ſhall be for them that dwell before the LORD, to eat ſufficiently, and for durable clothing.

[k] Jer. xxix. 10.
† Heb. It ſhall be unto Tyre, as the ſong of an harlot.

Before Chriſt 715.

[l] Chap. lx. 6, 7.
[m] Zech. xiv. 20, 21.

v. 15—18. The deſolations of Tyre are not deſigned to be perpetual.

1. Seventy years are appointed for the term of her captivity, as of the Jews, during the days of one king, or kingdom, for ſo long Nebuchadnezzar and his family reigned before Babylon was taken: and on the conqueſt Cyrus made, theſe, among other captive nations, were permitted to reſettle in their own country.

2. On their return, Tyre is repreſented under the character of a harlot, returning from confinement, or recovering from ſickneſs, when all her paramours had forſaken her; and reſuming all her former arts to recover her trade, and to engage the return of her merchants, as a harlot with the harp, by her voice and muſic ſeeks to draw in her lovers, and enrich herſelf by the wages of her fornication: and ſo far ſhe would ſucceed, as to become again a general mart, and to increaſe her wealth, as in her former days of proſperity. Note, (1.) This world's wealth carries a harlot's ſmiles, and too often ſeduces the heart into ſpiritual whoredom. (2.) Though our caſe be reduced never ſo low, we need not deſpair: when God will turn our captivity, he can bring back our loſt proſperity.

3. A better ſtate than that of her worldly proſperity cloſes the prophecy. In the days of the Meſſiah her gains ſhould be employed in the ſervice of his kingdom, to ſupport the preachers of his goſpel, and be conſecrated to his glory, v. 18. which was fulfilled, Acts xxi. 3. when we find Chriſtanity planted there, and according to the cuſtom of the primitive church, 1 Cor. xv. 1. no doubt theſe being rich, contributed liberally to the neceſſities of the ſaints. Some ſuppoſe from their acquaintance with the Jews in Babylon, and their prophets, they contracted a veneration for their God, and his worſhip; and on their return ſent liberal preſents to the temple, but the former ſenſe ſeems preferable. Note, (1.) If God gives abundance, it becomes then a bleſſing, when he gives us withal a deſire to employ it to his glory. (2.) The miniſters of the ſanctuary have a juſt claim to a liberal maintenance, and they who honour the maſter they ſerve, will be happy to ſupport his miniſters for his ſake. (3.) They who devote themſelves to God's work, muſt deſire no great things in this world; if they have ſufficient bread, and durable cloathing, they want not niceties and elegance.

CHAP. XXIV.

In this chapter we have, 1. A threatning of deſolating judgments for ſin, ver. 1—12. To which is added an aſſurance, that in the midſt of them, good people ſhould be comforted, ver. 13—16. 2. A further threatning of the like deſolations, ver. 16—22. to which is added an aſſurance, that in the midſt of all God ſhould be glorified, ver. 23.

712.

1. BEhold the LORD maketh the earth empty, and maketh it waſte, and † turneth it upſide down, and ſcattereth abroad the inhabitants thereof. 2. And [a] it ſhall be, as with the people, ſo with the ‡ prieſt; as with the ſervant, ſo with his maſter; as with the maid, ſo with her miſtreſs; as with the buyer, ſo with the ſeller; as with the lender, ſo with the borrower; as with the taker of uſury, ſo with the giver of uſury to him. 3. The land ſhall be utterly emptied, and utterly ſpoiled. for the LORD hath ſpoken this word. 4. The earth mourneth and fadeth away, the world languiſheth and fadeth away, [b] ‖ the haughty people of the earth do languiſh. 5. [c] The earth alſo is defiled under the inhabitants thereof: becauſe they have tranſgreſſed the laws, changed the ordinance, broken the everlaſting covenant. 6. Therefore hath the curſe devoured the earth, and they that dwell therein are deſolate: therefore the inhabitants of the earth are burned, and few men left. 7. [d] The new wine mourneth, the vine languiſheth, all the merry-hearted do ſigh. 8. [e] The mirth of tabrets ceaſeth, the noiſe of them that rejoice endeth, the joy of the harp ceaſeth. 9. They ſhall not drink wine with a ſong, ſtrong drink ſhall be bitter to them that drink it. 10. [f] The city of confuſion is broken down, every houſe is ſhut up, that no man may come in. 11. There is a crying for wine in the ſtreets, all joy is darkned, † Heb. Perverteth the face thereof.

[a] Chap. v. 15. Hoſ. 9.
‡ Or prince.
[b] Chap. ii. 12.
‖ Heb. The height of the people.
[c] Gen. iii. 17.
[d] Chap. xvi. 8, 9. Joel i. 10, 12.
[e] Jer. vii. 34. & xvi. 9. & xxv. 10. Ezek. xxvi. 13. Hoſ. ii. 11. Rev. xviii. 22.
[f] Chap. xxvii. 10.

[g] the mirth of the land is gone. 12. In the city [h] is left deſolation, and the gate is ſmitten with deſtruction.

[g] Amos viii. 10.
[h] Pſ. cvii. 34.

v. 1—12. The ſubject of this prophecy ſeems to be the earth in general laid under the deſolating judgments of God. Some refer it to the ravages of Salmanezer, and of Sennacherib, in Judea; others to the more extenſive conqueſts of Nebuchadnezzar. The celebrated Vitringa ſuppoſes, it refers to the times of the Maccabees, perhaps it hath its fulfilment in the conſtant deſolations which, by wars, are made in the earth; and may foretel the ruin of Antichriſt.

1. The earth, either the land of Judea in particular, or the world in general, is repreſented in ſuch confuſion and deſolation, as in its chaotic ſtate; emptied of inhabitants, as a veſſel turned upſide down, v. 1. without diſtinction of age, ſex, ſtation, or office, v. 2. utterly ſpoiled and waſted, v. 3. mourning under the judgments inflicted, fading like a flower, languiſhing, as one under a ſevere diſeaſe, v. 4. burnt up as with fire, and ſo deſolate, that few men remain, v. 6. The proud and haughty are laid low before the heavy ſcourge, v. 4. The fruit of the vine is deſtroyed by the inclement ſeaſons, or the trees cut down by the ravagers; and thoſe who ſpent in jollity the day, now ſigh out their inconſolable ſorrows, v. 7. All joyful ſounds are baniſhed, and muſic is forgotten amidſt the dreary ſcene, v. 8. The ſongs of the board of feaſting are at an end, and ſtrong drink no longer pleaſant, when mingled with their tears, or become taſteleſs through their ſickneſs and diſeaſes, v. 9. The city of confuſion is broken down, the houſes empty, the inhabitants ſlain by famine or the ſword, and none remaining, v. 10. Reduced to the deepeſt diſtreſs, their ſtores fail them in the ſiege, their joys are fled, their hopes deſperate, v. 11. Deſolation reigns through the city, and the defences are ruined, v. 12. If this be applied to Judea, it paints the terrible deſtruction made by Nebuchadnezzar, or Antiochus; if to the fall of Antichriſt, we may ſee the like judgments predicted, Rev. xi. 13. xviii. 2—22. It ſhould teach us, (1.) The vanity of the creature, and the neceſſity of ſeeking a better portion, than that which is ſo tranſitory and uncertain. (2.) Death is making continually its ravages, we need be always ready. (3.) We ſhould rejoice as if we rejoiced not, when we ſtand thus daily in jeopardy, of having our joy turned into mourning. (4.) If the prieſt join the people in their iniquities, he will be the firſt and deepeſt in the puniſhment, which God threatens to inflict.

2. The cauſe of this judgment is ſin, provoking moſt juſtly the divine wrath and indignation, v. 5. They have tranſgreſſed God's laws, changed his ordinances and worſhip, in oppoſition to his preſcribed appointment, and broken the everlaſting covenant, and therefore the curſe of God terribly deſcends. This was fully verified in the Jews, whoſe diſobedience to God's laws, and inſtituted ordinances of worſhip, brought on their ruin, and forfeited all the mercies promiſed in the everlaſting covenant of grace. Nor leſs applicable is it to the Romiſh church, where diſpenſations for ſin give a licenſe for iniquity, and all the ordinances of Chriſt are corrupted, or mutilated; the ſcriptures themſelves perverted; and ſo far as human power can do it, an attempt made to break the everlaſting covenant of grace, and to prevent its becoming effectual to the ſalvation of the redeemed.

13. ¶ When thus it ſhall be in the midſt of the land among the people, [i] there ſhall be as the ſhaking of an olive-tree, and as the gleaning grapes when the vintage is done. 14. They ſhall lift up their voice, they ſhall ſing for the majeſty of the LORD, they ſhall cry aloud from the ſea. 15. Wherefore [k] glorify ye the LORD, in the † fires, even the name of the LORD God of Iſrael in the iſles of the ſea.

[i] Chap. xvii. 5, 6.
[k] 1 Pet. iv. 12, 13.
† Or vallies.

v. 13—15. In the midſt of the deſolations threatned, a few eſcape the general ruin

1. They are like the berries left on the olive-tree, after it hath been ſplaſhed or ſhaken; and like the gleaning grapes, one here and there, that eſcaped obſervation, when the reſt were gathered for the vintage. Note, (1.) God hath a people, when iniquity is moſt prevalent. (2.) They are but few in any age, yet known by him, and dear to him. (3.) Whatever judgments he inflicts, they ſhall be hid in the day of his fierce anger.

2. A ſenſe of the mercy manifeſted in their deliverance will awaken their gratitude and praiſe, v. 14. Into whatever diſtant lands they may have been diſperſed, they ſhall ſing for the majeſty of the Lord, magnified now in the deſtruction of their enemies. Note, The people of God will never want matter for their praiſe. In the days of deepeſt viſitation, to the godly there riſeth up light in the darkneſs.

3. They endeavour to improve theſe judgments, exhorting each other to glorify God in the fires, or the vallies, in the ſharpeſt pangs of ſorrow, and the loweſt ſtate of abaſement; acknowledging their ſuffering to be the juſt deſert of their ſins, and humbling themſelves for them before God, in the moſt diſtant iſles of the ſea, whither they fled. Note, (1.) They who are God's people, cannot but be zealous for his glory. (2.) When we are in the furnace of affliction, we have a peculiar call to conſider our ways, and turn unto the Lord. (3.) We glorify God eſpecially, when in our deepeſt diſtreſſes we truſt his promiſes.

This may be applied to the Jewiſh people; among whom, in the worſt times, God had a choſen few; and when he turned their captivity under Cyrus, they rejoiced over their oppreſſors fallen, and in the places whither they had been diſperſed, glorified God for his mercy remembred in the midſt of Judgment. But it may alſo regard the faithful, under the oppreſſion of Antichriſt, preſerved for God, Rev. xviii. 4. rejoicing at the fall of Rome, Rev. ii. 3. xix. 1, 2. whereof the iſles of the ſea, and our own particularly, will be glad, and glorify God for his righteous judgments.

16. ¶ From the uttermoſt part of the earth have we heard [l] ſongs, even glory to the righteous: but I ſaid, † My leanneſs, my leanneſs, wo unto me: the treacherous dealers have dealt treacherouſly, yea, the treacherous dealers have dealt very treacherouſly. 17.
[m] Fear, and the pit, and the ſnare are upon thee, O inhabitant of the earth. 18. And it ſhall come to paſs, that he who fleeth from the noiſe of the fear, ſhall fall into the pit; and he that cometh up out of the midſt of the pit, ſhall be taken in the ſnare: for [n] the windows from on high are open, and [o] the foundations of the earth do ſhake. 19. [p] The earth is utterly broken down, the earth is clean diſſolved, the earth is moved exceedingly.
20. The earth ſhall reel to and fro like a drunkard, and [q] ſhall be removed like a cottage, and the tranſgreſſion thereof ſhall be heavy upon it, and it ſhall fall, and not riſe again. 21. And it ſhall come to paſs in that day, that [r] the LORD ſhall ‡ puniſh the hoſt of the high ones that are on high, and the kings of the earth upon the earth. 22. And they ſhall be gathered together ‖ as priſoners are gathered in the pit, and ſhall be ſhut up in the priſon, and after many days ſhall they be § viſited.
23. Then [s] the moon ſhall be confounded, and the ſun aſhamed, when the LORD of hoſts ſhall reign in mount Zion and in Jeruſalem, and before his ancients † glorioufly.

[l] Rev. xv. 3. & xix. 1, &c.
† Heb. Leanneſs to me, or my ſecret to me.
[m] 1 Kings xix. 17. Jer. xlviii. 43, 44. Amos v. 19.
[n] Gen. vii. 11.
[o] Pſ. xviii. 7.
[p] Jer. iv. 23.
[q] Rev. xx. 11.
[r] Pſ. lxxvi. 12.
‡ Heb. Viſit upon.
‖ Heb. With the gathering of priſoners.
§ Or found wanting.
[s] Chap. xiii. 10. Ezek. xxxii. 7. Joel ii. 31. & iii. 15.
† Or in glory.

v. 16—23. To what particular event, theſe words relate, is dubious. They may be well applied to the ruin of Babylon, and the joy of the Jews, on their return from thence; or to the conqueſts of the Maccabees over the armies of Antiochus; or, which ſeems a more noble view of the prophecy, to the triumphs of the ſaints, when Chriſt ſhall have ſubdued every foe, and ſhall reign over his ancients glorioufly in the new Jeruſalem.

1. The joy of the redeemed in all lands is heard, giving glory to the righteous, to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, for the propagation of his goſpel, and the ſubdual of the enemies of the Chriſtian name, Rev. xix. 1—7. or ſaying glory to the righteous ones, who, oppreſſed and perſecuted as they had been, now will ſhine as ſtars in the firmament for ever and ever.

2. The prophet mourns in the proſpect of the evil days, which ſhould precede the coming of Chriſt, v. 16. when ſuch perfidy would reign among men, and ſo general a departure from God prevail, that he ſhould ſcarce find faith in the earth. Note, The true prophets cannot behold a wicked world, without feeling diſtreſs for their impending miſeries.

3. The perplexity and diſtreſs of men's minds, Luke xxi. 25—35. at the approach of the day of Chriſt, are deſcribed by an elegant paronomaſia. Pachad, Pachath, Pach; fear, the pit, the ſnare are upon thee, O inhabitant of the earth; no place affords ſhelter or refuge for the ſinner's ſoul. Note, When the day of the Lord cometh, it will be too late to flee, and impoſſible to eſcape. The way to prevent our terrors, is now to fly to the arms of Jeſus for pardon and grace, that then we may confidently appear before our judge.

4. The deſtruction of the world is repreſented by expreſſions drawn from its diſſolution at the deluge. It is utterly ſhaken in pieces, and reduced to its chaotic ſtate of confuſion, removed as a cottage, and doomed to eternal deſolations, for the heavy iniquity that lies thereon, v. 18, 19. Rev. xx. 11. Note, Sin is the burden under which the world groans; unto this origin may every evil we ſuffer be traced, and for this is the curſe upon the earth, till the day it ſhall be utterly conſumed.

5. As an introduction to that great day, God will puniſh the hoſts of the high ones that are on high, or the army of that high one, of the king of Babylon; or it may be the man of ſin, that exalteth himſelf above all that is called God, ſurrounded by an army of jeſuits, monks, and friars, his champions; and the kings of the earth, who have ſubjected themſelves under his dominion, and make war againſt the ſaints, to ſupport the uſurpations of the idolatrous church of Rome, Rev. xvii. 2—14. being vanquiſhed and ſubdued, they ſhall be ſhut up as priſoners in the pit, reſerved in chains of darkneſs to the judgment of the great day, when they ſhall finally receive their doom, v. 22. See Rev. xix. 21. xx. 5—10.

Before Chriſt 712.

6. The glorious triumphs of the Redeemer will appear, when all the powers of earth are fallen before him, repreſented by the ſun and moon; or when theſe luminaries of heaven are blotted out, becauſe in the new Jeruſalem there will be no need of the light of the ſun or the moon, the Lamb being the light thereof, Rev. xxi. 23. then will he reign before his ancients, the ſaints of old; and all whoſe names are written in the book of life of the Lamb, from the foundation of the world, gloriouſly, or his antients in glory, reigning with him, and made to ſit down together on his eternal throne. Bleſſed and holy is he that hath part in the firſt reſurrection; on ſuch, the ſecond death hath no power, Rev. xx. 6.

CHAP. XXV.

After the threatnings of wrath in the foregoing chapter, we have, 1. Thankful praiſes for what God had done, ver. 1—5. 2. Precious promiſes of what God would yet further do for his church, ver. 6, 7, 8. 3. The church's triumph in God over her enemies thereupon, ver. 9—12,

1. O LORD, thou art my God, I will exalt thee, [a] I will praiſe thy name; for thou haſt done wonderful things; thy counſels of old are faithfulneſs and truth. 2. For thou haſt made [b] of a city, an heap; of a defenced city, a ruin: a palace of ſtrangers, to be no city, it ſhall never be built. 3. Therefore ſhall the ſtrong people glorify thee, the city of [c] the terrible nations ſhall fear thee. 4. For thou haſt been a ſtrength to the poor, a ſtrength to the needy in his diſtreſs, [d] a refuge from the ſtorm, a ſhadow from the heat, when the blaſt of the terrible ones is as a ſtorm againſt the wall. 5.
Thou ſhalt bring down the noiſe of ſtrangers, as the heat in a dry place; even the heat with the ſhadow of a cloud: the branch of [e] the terrible ones ſhall be brought low.

[a] Rev. xix. 1, 2.
[b] Chap. xxi. 9. Jer. li. 37. Rev. xviii. 2.
[c] Pſ. lxxii. 9, 10.
[d] Chap. iv. 6. & xxxii. 2.
[e] Chap. xiii. 11.

v. 1—5. We have here the triumphant ſong of God's people for their deliverance; whether of the Jews, for the ruin of Babylon, or of the redeemed at the laſt day, for the fall of ſpiritual Babylon; or of both, the former being typical of the latter.

1. The prophet in the perſon of the redeemed reſolves to praiſe and exalt the name of God, for all his wondrous works of mercy to his people, and judgment on their enemies, according to his eternal counſels, and according to his faithfulneſs in the never-failing promiſes of his word. And nothing would engage him to this honourable work ſo heartily, as the conſciouſneſs of an intereſt in the favour of this faithful and exalted Jehovah, thou art my God, and I will praiſe thee. Note, (1.) They who can ſay, My God, are bound to praiſe him evermore. (2.) The wonders of providence and creation are marvellous, but thoſe of redemption greater ſtill, and will be the everlaſting ſubject of the ſongs in glory.

2. He particularly mentions two inſtances of God's faithfulneſs and truth, for which he would exalt him. (1.) For the deſtruction of the oppreſſor, thou haſt made of a city, an heap, &c. v. 2. As Babylon now is, Rome will be; the former was a palace of ſtrangers, chap. xxiii. 13. ſo is the latter, ſucceeding to the former Pagan inhabitants; and though profeſſing Chriſtianity, ſtrangers to the covenants of promiſe: the one now lieth in ruins, and ſuch will the fate of the other be, to periſh for ever, and be never built again. (2.) For the protection of the poor, v. 4. whoſe ſtrength God is in every time of trial, covering them as with a cloud, from the ſcorching heat of temptation, and preſerving them from the ſtorm of the terrible ones, interpoſing as a wall, to ward off the tempeſt. Thus God preſerved his people in Babylon, and brought them out ſafely, and ſo will do under all the perſecutions of Antichriſt; and in general, under every diſtreſs, his people who fly to him will find him a very preſent help in trouble.

3. The effect of God's interpoſition would be either the humiliation and conviction, or the utter ruin of his foes. They are called ſtrong people, terrible nations, terrible ones; but however dreadful they may appear to others, they muſt ſtoop before God, and bow in fear before his rod of correction; repenting and glorifying his mercy, or breaking under the rod of his judgments, and glorifying his juſtice: their branch, or their ſong, brought low; either in the duſt of abaſement, or in the place of torment; where, as a branch caſt out, they would be burned, and their mirth be changed into eternal mourning. Note, (1.) The formidable appearance of our foes is often ready to intimidate us; but if the Almighty God be for us, the terrible ſhall be brought low, and even death, the king of terrors, be ſubdued. (2.) When the judgments of God, however heavy, lead men to fear before him, and do no more wickedly, they become the choiceſt bleſſings; and judgment, as well as mercy, ſhall then furniſh matter for a ſong.

6. ¶ And in this mountain [f] ſhall the LORD of hoſts make unto all people a feaſt of fat things, a feaſt of wines † on the lees, of fat things full of marrow, of wines on the lees well refined. 7. And he will deſtroy in this mountain the face of the ‡ covering caſt over all people, and [g] the vail that is ſpread over all nations. 8. He will [h] ſwallow up death in victory, and the LORD God will [i] wipe away tears from off all faces, and the rebuke of his people ſhall he take away from off all the earth: for the LORD hath ſpoken it. 9. ¶ And it ſhall be ſaid in that day, Lo, [k] this is our God, [l] we have waited for him, and he will ſave us: this is the LORD, we have waited for him, [m] we will be glad, and rejoice in his ſalvation. 10. For in this mountain ſhall the hand of the LORD reſt, [n] and Moab ſhall ‖ be troden down under him, even as ſtraw is troden down for the dunghill. 11.
And he ſhall ſpread forth his hands in the midſt of them,
as he that ſwimmeth ſpreadeth forth his hands to ſwim:
and he ſhall bring down [o] their pride together with the ſpoils of their hands. 12. And [p] the fortreſs of the high fort of thy walls ſhall he bring down, lay low, and bring to the ground, even to the duſt.

Before Chriſt 712.

[f] Prov. ix. 2. Mat. xxii. 4.
† Or drawn from the lees.
‡ Or face-covering.
[g] 2 Cor. iii. 15. Eph. iv. 18.
[h] Hoſ. xiii. 14. 1 Cor. xv. 54. Rev. xx. 14. & xxi. 4.
[i] Rev. vii. 17. & xxi 4.
[k] John xx. 28.
[l] Gen. xlix. 18. Chap. xxvi. 8.
[m] Pſ. xx. 5. & xxi. 1.
[n] Mal. iv. 3.
‖ Or threſhed.
[o] Chap. xvi. 6. Jer. xlviii. 29.
[p] Chap. xxvi. 5.

v. 6—12. We have a key to open this ſcripture, 1 Cor. xv. 54. and ſee therein ſome of the great and precious promiſes of life and immortality brought to light by the goſpel.

1. Under the image of a royal feaſt, Matt. xxii. 1. a view is preſented to us of the goſpel-diſpenſation. The Lord of hoſts, the Lord Jeſus, the great maſter of the feaſt in this mountain, the church of his redeemed, makes unto all people a feaſt, ſome of all nations will partake of it, Gentiles as well as Jews, and the invitation thereto is general, whoſoever will, let him come; there is here enough and to ſpare; for it is a feaſt of fat things, full of marrow, and of wine on the lees well refined, plenty, and of the beſt ſort, is provided; there is nothing wanting that a ſoul hungring and thirſting after righteouſneſs can need; pardon, peace, grace, ſtrength, conſolation, glory; all are ready, and a more refreſhing proviſion to the ſoul, than the beſt ſpread table to the famiſhed; or than the ſtrongeſt wines to the faint. Bleſſed and happy are they, who are called to this feaſt!

2. The Lord Jeſus will alſo deſtroy in this mountain the face of the covering caſt over all people: as malefactors led to execution with their faces covered, ſo had the ſons of men by ſin forfeited their lives to divine juſtice; or as the dead wrapped in grave cloaths, ſo were we dead in treſpaſſes and ſins, till Chriſt came to redeem us from going down to the pit, by paying the ranſom for us, and to reſcue us from the death of ſin by his quickning ſpirit: and the vail which is ſpread over all nations of groſs darkneſs and ſpiritual ignorance, now diſpelled before him the light of life, like the ſhadows of the night before the riſing ſun.

3. Even death itſelf ſhall be a vanquiſhed foe. He will ſwallow up death in victory; not only by his own reſurrection leading captivity captive, and quickning his people dead in treſpaſſes and ſins, but by the final deſtruction of death, when all the bodies that ſleep in duſt ſhall riſe at the great day of Jeſus' appearing and glory, and eſpecially thoſe of his ſaints be raiſed to glory and honour, and mortality be thus ſwallowed up of life. Note, (1.) What joy and conſolation doth the faith of Jeſus impart, that thus enables us to triumph over the king of terrors, and cry, O death, where is thy ſting? (2.) Whatever burdens this corruptible body feels now, we may well ſay they are light afflictions, but for a moment, and may patiently and chearfully endure them, becauſe their hope in the end of a glorious reſurrection.

4. All grief and ſhame will then be done away. As a tender parent, our divine Lord ſhall dry up his children's tears; no ſins will then awaken their ſorrows, or afflictions diſturb their repoſe; no reproach blacken their character, or oppreſſor vex and grieve them, but everlaſting joy be upon their heads; their beauty of holineſs without ſpot, and cloathed with glory, their enemies will behold them, and wonder and periſh. How light then ſhould every ſorrow ſit, how eaſy ought we to be under the malignant aſperſions, or perverſe unkindneſs of men, when we ſhall in a moment come to endleſs bliſs, and ſhine as ſtars in the firmament for ever and ever?

5. Great will be the joy of the redeemed in that day. By faith and hope, they often triumphed here below; but the conſummation of their bliſs in glory they waited and devoutly wiſhed for. And lo! glad tidings of great joy; He is come! he is come! this is our God, our Jeſus, our ſalvation, our joy, eternity ſhall hear his praiſe, v. 9. Note, (1.) They who by faith wait in hope, ſhall not be diſappointed. (2.) In glory all the praiſe will be aſcribed to Jeſus, and every crown be laid at his bleſſed feet.

6. The perpetuity of this bleſſedneſs is enſured by the Lord's dwelling in the midſt of his people. In this mountain his hand ſhall reſt, his preſence be ever maniſeſted, his power engaged to preſerve them, and all his goodneſs to make them eternally happy.

Before Chriſt 712.

7. The enemy ſhall be utterly deſtroyed. Moab, the repreſentative of all the foes of God's church and people, ſpiritual and temporal, ſhall be trodden down, as mire in the ſtreet, v. 10. As the ſwimmer ſpreads his hands, ſo will the Lord ſtretch forth his arm of vengeance, executing his judgment on the proud, and ſpoiling the ſpoiler, v. 11. All the fortreſſes of Moab ſhall fall, and their utter deſtruction be certain, ſudden, and irrecoverable, v. 12. And thus ſhall all the Antichriſtian powers periſh at laſt, and Satan, Death, and Hell, be caſt together into the burning lake, Rev. xix. 20. xx. 14, 15.

CHAP. XXVI.

This chapter is a ſong of holy joy and praiſe; it is prepared to be ſung when the foregoing prophecy ſhould be accompliſhed. The people of God are taught, 1. To rejoice in their ſafety under the divine protection, ver. 1—4. 2. To triumph over all oppoſition, ver. 5, 6. 3. To walk with God, and wait for him in the worſt of times, ver. 7, 8, 9. 4. To lament the ſtupidity of thoſe who regard not the providence of God, either merciful or afflictive, ver. 10, 11. 5. To aſcribe to God all the good that is in them, and the victories that are obtained for them, ver 12, 14. and to engage themſelves to continue in his ſervice, ver. 13. 6. To recollect God's dealings with them, and their own zeal and earneſtneſs in afflictions, ver. 15—18. 7. To rejoice in hope of a glorious reſurrection, ver. 19. and of preſent ſecurity, whilſt God puniſhes the wicked, ver. 20, 21.

1. IN [a] that day ſhall this ſong be ſung in the land of Judah, We have [b] a ſtrong city, [c] ſalvation will God appoint for walls and bulwarks. 2. [d] Open ye the gates, that the righteous nation which keepeth the truth may enter in. 3. Thou wilt keep him in † perfect peace, [e] whoſe mind is ſtayed on thee: [f] becauſe he truſteth in thee. 4. Truſt ye in the LORD for ever: for [g] in the LORD ‡ JEHOVAH is ‖ everlaſting ſtrength.

[a] Chap. xxv. 6.
[b] Mat. xvi. 18. Rev. xxi. 2.
[c] Chap. lx. 18. Zech. ii. 5.
[d] Pſ. cxviii. 19, 20.
† Heb. Peace, peace.
[e] Rom. iv. 18, 21.
[f] Pſ. xxxvii. 40.
[g] Chap. xlv. 17.
‡ Heb. Jah. Pſ. lxviii. 4.
‖ Heb. The rock of ages. Deut. xxxii. 4.

v. 1—4. The work of heaven is everlaſting praiſe, and the redeemed delight to begin the ſervice upon earth. We have here the ſong which, in the latter day, ſhall be ſung in the land of Judah, the church of the firſt-born, whoſe names are written in heaven.

1. God hath prepared for his people a city, his church, or the new Jeruſalem, Rev. xxi. 2—11. a ſtrong city, againſt which the gates of hell cannot prevail. It needs no human defences, when God himſelf is in the midſt of her; and his ſalvation her walls and bulwarks, v. 1. Note, They are ſafe lodged who have fled to Jeſus, the city of refuge, and have God's everlaſting promiſes for their protection.

2. He commands the gates to be opened for the admiſſion of the righteous nation, that keepeth the word of his truth. All that in Jeſus Chriſt the way, the truth, and the life, draw near to God, are now accepted as righteous, welcome to partake of the ordinances of his church below, and ſhall have hereafter an entrance miniſtered to them abundantly, into the everlaſting kingdom of our God and Saviour above.

3. The prophet exults in the ſecurity of thoſe who thus receive and truſt God's promiſes. Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whoſe mind is ſtayed on thee, peace with God, peace of conſcience, peace under every provocation, peace in every trial, peace that paſſeth all underſtanding ſhall the ſoul enjoy, that is content to truſt his all in the hands of Jeſus. Lord increaſe our faith! increaſe our peace!

4. He exhorts at all times to exerciſe faith in the Saviour, and under all difficulties to truſt on his blood, and his righteouſneſs for pardon and acceptance, on his grace for ſtrength, on his promiſes for perſeverance, and he will never diſappoint our hopes, for in the Lord Jah Jehovah is everlaſting ſtrength, or the rock of ages; he is able to ſave to the uttermoſt; from his everlaſting arms none can pluck us; fixed on him, we ſhall be immoveable, ſince the rock of ages is our foundation. Note, Had we a heart to truſt God more firmly, we ſhould certainly find cauſe to praiſe him more frequently and joyfully.

5. ¶ For he bringeth down them that dwell on high, [h] the lofty city he layeth it low, he layeth it low, even to the ground, he bringeth it even to the duſt. 6. The foot ſhall tread it down, [i] even the feet of the poor, and the ſteps of the needy. 7. † The way of the juſt is uprightneſs: [k] thou moſt upright doſt weigh the path of the juſt. 8. Yea, [l] in the way of thy judgments, O LORD, have we waited for thee; the deſire of our ſoul is to thy name, and to the remembrance of thee. 9. [m] With my ſoul have I deſired thee in the night, yea, with my ſpirit within me will I ſeek thee early: for when thy judgments are in the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn righteouſneſs. 10. [n] Let favour be ſhewed to the wicked, yet will he not learn righteouſneſs: in the land of uprightneſs will he deal unjuſtly, and will not behold the majeſty of the LORD. 11. LORD, when thy hand is lifted up, [o] they will not ſee: but they ſhall ſee, and be aſhamed for ‡ their envy at the people, yea the fire ‖ of thine enemies ſhall devour them.

[h] Chap. xxv. 12.
[i] Jer. l. 45.
† Or the way of the Lord to the juſt is evenneſſes.
[k] Pſ. xi. 4.
[l] Chap. lxiv. 5.
[m] Cant. iii. 1.

Before Chriſt 712.

[n] Eccleſ. viii. 10. Rom. ii. 4.
[o] Job xxxiv. 27. Pſ. xxviii. 5. Chap. v. 12.
‡ Or thy zeal towards thy people. Chap. ix. 7.
‖ Or ſhall devour theſe thine enemies.

v. 5—11. We have here,

1. The humiliation of the proud, and the deſtruction of the lofty city, Babylon, now trod upon by thoſe, who before were oppreſſed by her, or of ſpiritual Babylon, on which the poor perſecuted ſaints of the moſt high ſhall trample, when utterly laid waſte before the Lord in the latter day, v. 5, 6.

2. The regard God ſhews his people. The way of the juſt is uprightneſs, or evenneſſes, a ſtrait path of uniform and ſteady obedience; or the way of the Lord to the juſt is evenneſſes, agreeable to his own perfections of wiſdom, goodneſs, truth, and equity; ſo that they have ever cauſe to addreſs him as thou moſt upright, whoſe ways of providence and grace are perfectly pure, and tranſcendently excellent; thou doſt weigh, or make even the path of the juſt, conſider and approve it as good, or removing every obſtacle, enable him to walk in the paths of holineſs.

3. The people of God profeſs their attendance on him, and deſires after him. In the way of thy judgments, thy word, and ordinances, or thy chaſtiſements which we have endured, we have waited for thee, patiently expecting to ſee thy ſalvation: the deſire of our ſoul is to thy name, and to the remembrance of thee; in the midſt of our heavieſt afflictions, to thee our affections go forth; we think upon thee, and derive ſupport from the remembrance of thy grace, power, love, and faithfulneſs. With my ſoul ardently have I deſired thee in the night, literally waking when others ſlept, or under the darkeſt diſpenſations of providence; yea, with my ſpirit within me will I ſeek thee early, not forgetting him in proſperity; but when the day returned, with the dawn meeting him with prayer and praiſe: for when thy judgments are in the earth, thoſe that ſhall be laid upon the ſinners, and followers of Antichriſt, the inhabitants of the world, ſome of them, the faithful, who are called and choſen, will learn righteouſneſs; the juſtice of God in his judgments on others, and his afflictions on themſelves, and profiting under them, bring forth the peaceable fruits of righteouſneſs, in penitence, patience, and perſeverance. Note, (1.) They who wait for God in his ways, ſhall aſſuredly meet him to their comfort. (2.) If our affections are not warm towards God, we need be jealous leaſt there is a rival in our hearts. (3.) The earlier in life we begin to ſeek God, the pleaſanter ſhall we find his ways. (4.) Under our own corrections we muſt humble our ſouls, and from his viſitations on others take warning; then however heavy the ſtroke, the iſſue will be to us righteouſneſs and peace.

4. The impenitence of the wicked is obſerved as the prelude to their ruin. Let favour be ſhewed to the wicked, yet will he not learn righteouſneſs, providential mercies are no more effectual to lead him to repentance, than judgments to drive him: in the land of uprightneſs, where the moſt plentiful knowledge of goſpel-truth is diffuſed, and the power of goſpel grace moſt eminently diſplayed, he will deal unjuſtly, perſiſt in his iniquities, in oppoſition to every warning of God's word and miniſters, and will not behold the majeſty of the Lord, acknowledge his power, providence, and goodneſs; nor worſhip, ſerve, and obey him, as in duty bound. Lord, when thy hand is lifted up, or thy high hand, they will not ſee God's hand in their mercies, or in the judgments viſible in the earth, and hanging over their own heads, obſtinately hardened, and wilfully ſhutting their eyes againſt conviction. Note, (1.) To dwell in a land of uprightneſs is an ineſtimable mercy; and there to dwell in ſin and darkneſs, where light and grace plentifully abound, will be aggravated guilt. (2.) Forgetfulneſs of God, and inattention to his word and works, are the ruin of men's ſouls. (3.) They who will not ſee, are juſtly given up to judicial blindneſs.

5. Their deſtruction is near and ſure. The judgments they would not fear, they muſt feel. They ſhall ſee the proſperity of God's people, and be aſhamed for their envy, or the zeal towards the people; the Lord's regard for them, and his care to vindicate their wrongs: yea, the fire of thine enemies ſhall devour them, or the fire ſhall devour theſe thine enemies; the fire of preſent judgments, or the unquenchable fire that ſhall torment their bodies and ſouls in hell. Let the enemies of God's people hear and tremble!

12. ¶ LORD, [p] thou wilt ordain peace for us; for thou alſo haſt wrought all our works † in us. 13. O LORD our God, [q] other lords beſides thee have had dominion over us: but by thee only will we make mention of thy name. 14. They are dead, they ſhall not live; [r] they are deceaſed, they ſhall not riſe: ‡ therefore haſt thou viſited and deſtroyed them, and made [s] all their [p] Chap. lvii. 19. John xvi. 33.

† Or for us.
[q] 2 Chron. xii. 8. Jer. l. 17.
[r] Pſ. xxxvi. 12.
‡ Or becauſe
[s] Prov. x. 7.

memory

Before Chriſt 712.

memory to periſh. 15. Thou haſt increaſed the nation, O LORD, thou haſt increaſed the nation, thou art glorified; thou hadſt removed it far unto all the ends of the earth. 16. LORD, [t] in trouble have they viſited thee, they poured out || a prayer when thy chaſtening was upon them. 17. Like as [u] a woman with child that draweth near the time of her delivery, is in pain, and crieth out in her pangs; ſo have we been in thy ſight, O LORD. 18. We have been with child, we have been in pain, we have as it were brought forth wind, we have not wrought any deliverance § in the earth, neither have the inhabitants of the world fallen. 19. [x] Thy dead men ſhall live, [y] † together with my dead body ſhall they ariſe: [z] awake and ſing, ye that dwell in duſt: for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth ſhall caſt out the dead.

[t] 2 Chron. xxxiii. 12. Hoſ. v. 15.
|| Heb, A ſecret ſpeech, or prayer.
[u] John xvi. 21.
§ Or for our land.
[x] Ezek. xxxvii. 11—14. Dan. xii. 2.
[y] Mat. xxvii. 52, 53.
† Or as my dead body.
[z] Eph. v. 14. or Dan. xii. 2. John v. 28.

v. 12—19. We have here,

1. The church's dependance on God, aſcribing to his grace alone all the good that was found in her, v. 12. Lord, thou wilt ordain peace for us, whatever enemy without or within, ſeeks to trouble our repoſe, and wilt at laſt bring us to the eternal reſt which remaineth for the people of God: for thou alſo haſt wrought all our works in us, or for us; whatever good is in our ſouls, thou, Lord, art alone the author of it; whatever good we are the inſtruments of communicating to others, thy grace is alone to be acknowledged, whatever bleſſings or comforts we receive, from thy hand alone they come.

2. The humbling confeſſion and gracious purpoſe of God's people, v. 13. O Lord our God, whoſe we are, and whom we ought and deſire to ſerve, yet with ſhame acknowledge other lords beſides thee have had dominion over us; either this is the confeſſion of the Jews, bewailing their captivity and idolatries, or of the church, oppreſſed by the perſecuting powers of Antichriſt; or more generally of every faithful ſoul, who laments the bondage of corruption, every vile affection being a tyrant, and Satan, in a ſtate of nature, having led us captive at his will. But now recovered by grace, we ſhall be enabled to ſay, by thee only, by thy grace ſupported, and by thy power delivered, will we make mention of thy name, cleave alone to thee as our God and guide, and aſcribe to thee the praiſe of all our ſalvation.

3. They triumph over their oppreſſors, v. 14. They are dead, they ſhall not live; they are deceaſed, they ſhall not riſe; either the Babyloniſh monarchs, whoſe kingdom never roſe from its ruins, or the enemies of the church in general, whether Pagan, Papal, or Mahomedan, who will be finally deſtroyed, and no more oppreſs the redeemed; therefore, or becauſe thou haſt viſited and deſtroyed them, and made all their memory to periſh, conſigned them to eternal ſhame in the place of torment.

4. The great increaſe of the church is declared. Thou haſt increaſed the nation, O Lord, thou haſt increaſed the nation, either the Jewiſh nation by proſelytes, or rather the Chriſtian church, called the righteous nation, v. 2. by numerous converts of Jews and Gentiles: and this is ſpoken as already done, becauſe ſuch is God's purpoſe at the latter day, who calleth the things that are not, as though they were: thou art glorified in the ſalvation of thy people, and the ruin of their enemies: thou hadſt removed it far unto all the ends of the earth, in a ſtate of diſperſion, from whence they are now delivered; or he had ſpread into every land the knowledge of his grace, and gathered a people for himſelf out of all nations.

5. Before their reſtoration, a ſtate of great trouble is foreſeen and lamented; either of the Jews groaning under their captivity, or the church, under the perilous times that precede the deſtruction of Antichriſt, v. 16—18. Lord, in trouble have they viſited thee; this being the great uſe and benefit of afflictions, to bring us nearer to God, from whom proſperity is too apt to alienate our hearts: they poured out a prayer when thy chaſtning was upon them; for this is the conſtant method of all God's people, in prayer and ſupplications to make their requeſts known unto him: nor ſhall we ever be ſo earneſt and importunate, as when we ſee his chaſtiſements bringing to remembrance our ſins. Like as a woman with child that draweth near the time of her delivery, is in pain, and crieth out in her pangs, which are the moſt acute and bitter, ſo have we been in thy ſight, O Lord, in deep diſtreſs, and crying for deliverance: we have been with child, big with hopes; we have been in pain, travailing in prayers and tears, yet diſappointed, and our hopes abortive, ſo long is our ſalvation delayed: we have brought forth wind, our prayers ineffectual and unanſwered; we have not wrought any deliverance in the earth, ſo as to regain our liberty, or ſalvations have not been wrought in the earth, to deliver us from our enemies; neither have the inhabitants of the world fallen, but continue to oppreſs the cauſe of godlineſs and truth. Note, (1.) God may for wiſe ends long ſuffer his own cauſe and people to be oppreſſed by wicked men. (2.) However long or ſore our trials, we muſt continue to pray, and not faint. (3.) If we do ſo, we ſhall aſſuredly not be diſappointed at the laſt. For,

6. Chriſt anſwers his people's prayers. Thy dead men ſhall live; ſpiritually, by the power of Jeſus, the dead in ſin ſhall be quickned, and in the latter day vaſt additions of living ſouls be made to the church; or it refers to the reſurrection, when the dead in Chriſt ſhall riſe firſt, and reign with him, together with my dead body ſhall they ariſe, as the bodies of many ſaints did, when Jeſus himſelf aroſe, Matt. xxvii. 51, 53. or as my dead body ſhall they ariſe, certainly, and as glorioully: awake and ſing, ye that dwell in the duſt, awake at the goſpel call, ye dead in ſin; or awake from the duſt of death, ye ſleeping ſaints; ariſe to meet your Lord in the air, and join in ſongs of praiſe that never will have an end; for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, thy ſpirit as effectual to quicken the ſouls and bodies of the ſpiritually and naturally dead, as the dew cauſes the herb to ſhoot that ſeemed dead in the ground, during the ſleep of winter, and the earth ſhall caſt out the dead; when, at the word of Jeſus, they that are in their graves, ſhall hear and live. Note, Whatever our afflictions here may be, if we have but a part in the reſurrection of the juſt, we need not aſk or wiſh for more.

20. Come, my people, enter thou into thy chambers, and ſhut thy doors about thee: hide thyſelf as it were [a] for a little moment, until the indignation be overpaſt. 21. For behold, the LORD [b] cometh out of his place to puniſh the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity: [c] the earth alſo ſhall diſcloſe her † blood, and ſhall no more cover her ſlain.

[a] Pſ. xxx. 5. Chap. liv. 7, 8. 2 Cor. iv. 17.
[b] Mic. i. 3. Jude 14.
[c] Rev. xviii. 24.
† Heb. Bloods.

v. 20, 21. Theſe verſes are either the concluſion of the former ſong, or the introduction of the next chapter, to which they are uſually referred.

1. Chriſt calls his people to a place of ſafety, when he is about to execute his wrath on the wicked. Come, my people, the endearing title of property and relation, and the aſſurance of ſafety; for if we are his, none ſhall pluck us out of his hand; enter thou into thy chamber, where they may be ſafe; as Rahab, when Jericho was taken; or the Iſraelites, when the deſtroying angel paſſed through the land, and ſhut thy doors about thee, to be ſecure and private, to pour out the voice of prayer when danger threatens: hide thyſelf from the impending ſtorm, under the ſhadow of Almighty grace, as it were for a little moment, until the indignation be overpaſt; the time will be momentary, for a ſhort work will God make on the earth; his wrath, when it begins to conſume the wicked, will quickly make an end of them, Rev. ii. 10. xi. 7—11.

2. He goes forth to execute his judgments. For behold, to the aſtoniſhment of the ſurprized world, the Lord cometh out of his place, with clouds deſcending, in terrible majeſty to puniſh the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity; be they never ſo great, never ſo numerous, their iniquity will receive a juſt recompence of reward: the earth alſo ſhall diſcloſe her blood, and ſhall no more cover her ſlain; the blood of ſaints and martyrs, from Abel to the laſt perſecuted believer, ſhall then be brought to light, and however ſecretly murders may have been committed, blood will cry for vengeance; or it may ſignify the immenſe carnage to be made in the battle of Armageddon, ſo that the earth ſhall not be able to drink up the blood, nor ſuffice for graves to the ſlain, Rev. xi. 13. xiv. 20. xix. 17, 18. Note, The day is near when God will bring every ſecret thing into judgment. Let the guilty tremble.

CHAP. XXVII.

In this chapter the prophet goes on to ſhew, (1.) What great things God would do for his church and people; 1. That proud oppreſſors ſhould be reckoned with, ver. 1. 2. That care ſhould be taken of God's vineyard, ver. 2, 3. 3. That God would let fall his controverſy with his people upon their return to him, ver. 4, 5. 4. That he would greatly increaſe them, ver. 6. 5. That as to their afflictions, they were comparatively ſmall, ver. 7, 8. and ſanctified, ver. 9. 6. That though their city might be laid waſte for a time, ver. 10, 11. yet it ſhould be reſtored, and the ſcattered members gathered together again, ver. 12, 13.

1. IN that day the LORD with his ſore and great and ſtrong [a] ſword ſhall puniſh [b] leviathan the † piercing ſerpent, even leviathan that crooked ſerpent, and he ſhall ſlay the dragon that is in the ſea. 2. In that day [c] ſing ye unto her, A vineyard of red wine. 3. I the LORD do keep it, I will water it every moment; leſt any hurt it, [d] I will keep it night and day. 4. Fury is not in me: who would ſet the briers and [e] thorns againſt me in battle? I would ‡ go through them, I would burn them together. 5. Or || let him [f] take hold of my ſtrength, that he may make peace with me, and he ſhall make peace with me. 6. [g] He ſhall cauſe them that come of Jacob to take root: Iſrael ſhall bloſſom and bud, and fill the face of the world with fruit.

[a] Rev. xix. 15.
[b] Ibid. xii. 3. & xx. 2.
† Or gliding, or croſſing like a bar.
[c] Chap. v. 1.
[d] Pſ. cxxi. 4.
[e] 2 Sam. xxiii. 6.
‡ Or march againſt.
|| Or if he will, &c. or O that he would, &c.
[f] Job xxii. 21. Luke xiv. 32.
[g] Chap. xxxvii. 31.

Before Chriſt 712.

v. 1—6. We have here,

1. The execution of judgment on the great enemy of God's people, called leviathan, the ſerpent, the dragon, either Nebuchadnezzar, or Antiochus, or Antichriſt, Rev. xii. 3. or Satan himſelf. Though ſtrong, furious, crafty, and poiſonous, God's ſword can reach him; and as he hath deſtroyed the perſecuting powers of old, he will as ſurely deſtroy thoſe that ſtill rage, by the two-edged ſword of his goſpel, expelling their poiſonous errors, or by the ſword of his judgments, puniſhing them with everlaſting deſtruction, Rev. xx. 1—10.

2. In the day of vengeance on his enemies, his grace and mercy to his church will eminently appear, and ſhe ſhall ſing for joy over her perſecutors fallen, and her peace and comfort everlaſtingly reſtored, Rev. xv. 1—3. xix. 1—7.

(1.) The church is repreſented as a vineyard of red wine, a people ſeparated by ſovereign grace, ſecured by the wall of everlaſting love, ingrafted on Chriſt the living vine, and thence enabled to bring forth the choiceſt fruits of faith and holineſs. I the Lord do keep it; though his church lies in the midſt of an howling wilderneſs, where wicked men, more ſavage than beaſts of prey, roam continually, and threaten to break through and ſpoil, yet it is ſafe under his protection, and flouriſhing under his care: I will water it with the dew of heavenly influences every moment, for every moment we need his gracious help; leaſt any hurt it, or leaſt he viſit it, the enemy of ſouls intent to deceive and deſtroy; I will keep it night and day, in proſperity and adverſity, at all times, amidſt every danger, he that ſlumbereth not, neither ſleepeth, will preſerve his choſen. Note, The more we know of the riches and fulneſs of the divine promiſes, the more will our hearts be filled with thankfulneſs, and our lips with praiſe.

(2.) The people of God are aſſured of his favour. Fury is not in me; however terrible to his enemies, to his choſen God is all love, and their iniquities cancelled in redeeming blood; no wrath remains againſt them, even their chaſtiſements are the rod of mercy: who would ſet the briers and thorns againſt me in battle? I would go through them, I would burn them together, or I would ſtep into it, and burn them out of it; meaning either that ſhould he contend with them for their ſins, his own people would be but as briers and thorns before the conſuming fire; or rather that when hypocrites and falſe teachers, like briers and thorns, ſprung up to trouble his people, he would ſtep into his vineyard as a man of war, and quickly deſtroy and burn them up. Some render the words, who will ſet me as a brier or thorn in battle, that I ſhould go againſt it, and burn it up together? What provocation ſhould ever lead him to deſtroy his own people? None; for fury is not in him: though he viſit their offences with the rod, his loving-kindneſs will he never take from them.

(3.) God directs them how abidingly to preſerve the ſenſe of his regard to them. Or let him, which ſome render if he will, and O that he would take hold of my ſtrength; in times when his corrections are on his people, they need not be terrified, but apply to that Almighty Saviour the ſtrength of God, who is their ever-living and all-prevailing advocate; that he may make peace with me, by pleading the blood which he once ſhed for the redemption of his people, and he ſhall make peace with me; God, for his ſake, will be perfectly pacified toward the believing ſoul, and comfort him with the confidence of his mercy.

(4.) The church ſhall have a great increaſe. He ſhall cauſe them that come of Jacob, the ſpiritual Iſrael of God, to take root, to be firmly fixed, and ſpread their branches on every ſide: ſome read, in times to come he ſhall cauſe, &c. in the latter day of goſpel-truth, when Iſrael ſhall bud and bloſſom, and fill the face of the world with fruit, as in the days of the apoſtles, Col. i. 6. and ſhall, we truſt, be more abundantly fulfilled hereafter.

7. ¶ Hath he ſmitten him, as he ſmote thoſe that ſmote him? or is he ſlain according to the ſlaughter of them that are ſlain by him? 8. [h] In meaſure † when it ſhooteth forth, thou wilt debate with it; [i] he ſtayeth his rough wind in the day of the eaſt-wind. 9. [k] By this therefore ſhall the iniquity of Jacob be purged, and this is all the fruit to take away his ſin; when he maketh all the ſtones of the altar as chalk-ſtones that are beaten in ſunder, the groves and ‡ images ſhall not ſtand up. 10. [l] Yet the defenced city ſhall be deſolate, and the habitation forſaken, and left like a wilderneſs: there ſhall the calf feed, and there ſhall he lie down, and conſume the branches thereof. 11. When the boughs thereof are withered, they ſhall be broken off; the women come and ſet them on fire: for [m] it is a people of no underſtanding: therefore he that made them will not have mercy on them, and he that formed them will ſhew them no favour. 12. ¶ And it ſhall come to paſs in that day, that the LORD ſhall beat off from the channel of the river unto the ſtream of Egypt, and ye ſhall be gathered one by one, O ye children of Iſrael. 13. And it ſhall come to paſs in that day, that [n] the great trumpet ſhall be blown, and they ſhall come which were ready to periſh in the land of Aſſyria, and the out-caſts in the land of Egypt, and [o] ſhall worſhip the LORD in the holy mount at Jeruſalem.

[h] Job xxiii. 6. Jer. x. 24. & xxx. 11. & xlvi. 28. 1 Cor. x. 13.
† Or when thou ſendeſt it forth.
[i] Pſ. lxxviii. 38.
[k] Chap. xlviii. 10. Heb. xii. 9, 10.
‡ Or ſun-images.
Chap. xvii. 8.
[l] Jer. xxvi. 18. or li. 43.
[m] Deut. xxxii. 28. Chap. i. 3. or Jer. li. 17.

Before Chriſt 712.

[n] Lev. xxv. 9. Ezra i. 1. or Luke iv. 18. Rom. x. 18. or Rev. xi. 15.
[o] Zech. xiv. 16.

v. 7—13. Though God had intimated that ſometimes afflictions would fall upon his people, yet very different would his dealings with them be, from his judgments on their enemies.

1. Reſpecting the meaſure of them. Though he ſhould ſmite them, yet not as he ſmote thoſe that ſmote him, v. 7. his ſtrokes on his people would be mitigated; and however rough the wind blew for a ſeaſon, he would ſay, Peace, be ſtill, v. 8. But their enemies would be utterly conſumed, their forreſſes deſtroyed, their country a wilderneſs, where cattle would feed, v. 10. Like a withered tree they would be condemned to the flames, and this in juſt judgment, becauſe they are a people of no underſtanding; and being ungrateful and diſobedient to their Maker, receive the reward of their deeds in utter deſtruction, v. 11. This may primarily refer to the Jewiſh nation and their foes, but it hath a more enlarged view to all the people of God and their enemies. Note, (1.) If we are God's children, we ſhall, becauſe we deſerve it, feel his gracious rod. (2.) Though involved in the ſame outward calamities, there is at all times a wide difference between thoſe who are corrected in mercy, and thoſe who ſuffer in wrath. (3.) They who obſtinately reject God's warnings, may expect in a judgment-day no mercy.

2. The end God propoſed in correcting his people, was their repentance and ſalvation. By this therefore ſhall the iniquity of Jacob be purged, and this is all the fruit to take away his ſin; and a gracious end this, for which every faithful ſoul hath reaſon to bleſs God, who can ſay, before I was afflicted I went aſtray. The particular ſin here to be removed is idolatry: when he maketh all the ſtones of the altar, erected for idol-worſhip, 2 Kings xvi. 10—12. as chalk-ſtones that are beaten in ſunder, the groves and the images ſhall not ſtand up. And after the captivity, the Jews were ſo thoroughly cured of that idolatry, to which before they were ſo prone, that the leaſt traces of it no longer appeared among them. Note, It is a bleſſed ſymptom for good, when our ſin, our boſom ſin, that did moſt eaſily beſet us, is thus radically mortified.

3. When God hath for their good corrected his people, he will gather them together wherever diſperſed, and however diſtreſſed. It ſhall come to paſs in that day, that the Lord will beat off, and collect his choſen, as fruits to be laid up in ſtore, or corn ſeparated from the chaff, from the channel of the river (Euphrates) unto the river of Egypt, and ye ſhall be gathered one by one, with ſuch care, and ſo compleatly, that not one ſhall be loſt, O ye children of Iſrael. And it ſhall come to paſs in that day, that the great trumpet ſhall be blown, which, if referred literally to the Jewiſh people, ſignifies the proclamation of Cyrus; by which they were reſtored to their own land from all places of their diſperſion; but rather it refers to the collection of the Iſrael of God, by the trumpet of the everlaſting goſpel, recovering thoſe who were ready to periſh, and the outcaſts, like the wretched infant in Ezekiel, lying in their blood; outcaſts from God's church, and periſhing in their ſins, till called, quickened, and reſtored by the power of divine grace through the word of the goſpel, and brought to join the holy worſhip of the ſaints in God's church on earth, and to prepare for the everlaſting ſervice of God in glory. Note, (1.) Amidſt all the troubles and trials of God's Iſrael, not one will be loſt. (2.) Whenever the goſpel-trumpet is blown, they who know the joyful ſound will aſſemble thither. (3.) When God opens the heart to hear his word, he brings the conſcience to a deep and humbling ſenſe of its miſery and loſt eſtate by reaſon of ſin, and thereby to Chriſt, whoſe goſpel is to the loſt the trump of jubilee, glad tidings of great joy. (4.) It is a mercy when we have liberty to worſhip God, and a greater to delight in the ſervice, and to ſay of God's courts, Here would I dwell for ever.

CHAP. XXVIII.

In this chapter, 1. Ephraim is threatned for their pride and drunkenneſs, their ſecurity and ſenſuality, ver. 1—8. But in the midſt of this, a gracious promiſe is given to the remnant of his people, ver. 5, 6. 2. They are likewiſe threatned for their ſtupidity and untractableneſs, ver. 9—13. 3. The rulers of Jeruſalem are threatned for their inſolent contempt of God's judgments, 14, 15, 17—22. 4. A gracious promiſe intervenes, ver. 16. for the comfort of the faithful. 5. The certainty of God's judgment is illuſtrated by the plowman's ſowing and threſhing, under divine inſtruction, ver. 23—29.

1. WO to [a] the crown of pride, to the drunkards of Ephraim, [b] whoſe glorious beauty is a fading flower, which are on the head of the fat valleys of them

715.
[a] Ver. 3. Hoſ. v. 5.
[b] Ver. 4.

Before Chriſt 725.

that are overcome with wine. 2. Behold, the LORD hath a mighty and ſtrong one, which [c] as a tempeſt of hail, and a deſtroying ſtorm, as a flood of mighty waters overflowing, ſhall caſt down to the earth with the hand. 3. The crown of pride, the drunkards of Ephraim ſhall be troden under feet. 4. And the glorious beauty which is on the head of the fat valley, ſhall be a fading flower, and as the haſty fruit before the ſummer: which when he that looketh upon it ſeeth it, while it is yet in his hand, he † eateth it up. 5. ¶ In that day ſhall the LORD of hoſts be for a crown of glory, and for a diadem of beauty unto the reſidue of his people: 6. And for a ſpirit of judgment to him that ſitteth in judgment, and [d] for ſtrength to them that turn the battle to the gate. 7. ¶ But [e] they alſo [f] have erred through wine, and through ſtrong drink are out of the way: [g] the prieſt and the prophet have erred through ſtrong drink, they are ſwallowed up of wine, they are out of the way through ſtrong drink, [h] they err in viſion, they ſtumble in judgment. 8. For all tables are full of vomit and filthineſs, ſo that there is no place ‡ clean.

[c] Chap. xxx. 30.
† Heb. Swalloweth.
[d] 2 Kings xviii. 8.
[e] Jer. iii. 10.
[f] Prov. xx. 1. Hoſ. iv. 11.
[g] Chap. lvi. 10, 12.
[h] Jer. xiv. 14. Lam. ii. 14.
‡ Heb. Or free.

v. 1—8. Though judgments are denounced on all their foes, yet they will firſt begin at the houſe of God, and the ſinners in Zion muſt feel the heavieſt ſcourge. Such is the woe pronounced here on Ephraim, and Samaria the capital of the ten revolted tribes.

1. The ſins charged upon them are pride and drunkenneſs. Their country being rich and fertile, abundance ſwelled their vain hearts, and ſenſual appetite abuſed their diſtinguiſhed mercies. Carouſing at the feſtal board, their heads with garlands crowned, they proudly defied ſorrow, fearleſs of the wrath they provoked. Note, (1.) Pride on God's gifts is the ſure way to provoke him to deprive us of them. (2.) A drunkard is a monſter in nature; and he that thus baſely chuſes to degrade himſelf into a brute, juſtly deſerves to be made a companion of devils.

2. Heavy is the curſe the prophet is commiſſioned to pronounce on theſe proud drunkards. As they gave up their ſenſes to the baſe ſervitude of luſt, and drowned their reaſon in exceſs, in juſt judgment they ſhould be delivered to their foes. The king of Aſſyria, Salmanezer, like a reſiſtleſs hail ſtorm, or winter's flood, ſhould bear down all before him, v. 2. The crown of pride, their king and his mighty men, or Samaria the metropolis, or the crowns of garlands on the drunkard's head, ſurprized in this defenceleſs and intoxicated ſtate, he would caſt down, and tread the drunkards under his feet, reducing them to ſtate of moſt abject wretchedneſs, v. 3. Their glorious beauty, their numerous inhabitants, or their country decked with vineyards, and vallies thick with corn, ſhall fade as quickly as the flowers bloom departs, and be devoured by the hoſts of Aſſyria, as greedily as the firſt ripe fruit, v. 4. ſo that nothing but deſolation ſhould be ſeen. Note, (1.) They who give the reins to their appetites, and to drunkenneſs eſpecially, are voluntary ſlaves, and court a ſervitude moſt wretched even now; iſſuing at preſent in the ruin of their health, fortune, and families, and bringing them haſtily to that place of torment, where a drop of water will be ſought in vain to cool a flaming tongue. (2.) God's miniſters muſt denounce his woes againſt men's ſins freely and plainly. (3.) Whatever the ſinner here is proud of, it is but a fading flower, and at death at fartheſt, if not before, will vaniſh.

3. In the midſt of the deſolations of Ephraim, Judah and Benjamin, the reſidue of God's people, have a gracious promiſe made to them. The Lord ſhall be a crown of glory, and a diadem of beauty to them, eminently diſtinguiſhing, and protecting them from the power of the Aſſyrians, under Hezekiah, a type of that Son of David, in whom the offices of King and Prieſt ſhould be united. And for a ſpirit of judgment to him that ſitteth in judgment, which God would beſtow on the king and his magiſtrates, to execute righteous judgment, which is the great happineſs of every ſtate; and for ſtrength to them that turn the battle to the gate, enduing their generals and ſoldiers with courage to vanquiſh their enemies, and purſue them to the gates of their city. Note, (1.) Chriſt is his people's glory, and in his wiſdom, righteouſneſs, and ſtrength, they are made more than conquerors over all their enemies. (2.) Whatever the Lord is to us, or doth for us, we are bound to aſcribe the praiſe of all to him.

4. A heavy complaint is lodged againſt Judah for their ſins. In her were found the ſins of Iſrael, and the ſame drunkenneſs led them aſtray from God. Yea, ſo generally had their ſcandalous ſins ſpread, that prieſt, prophet, and people were alike infected with it. The conſequence of which was, that the pretended prophet uttered the fancies of his inflamed brains for viſions, deceiving, and being deceived; the prieſts, inſtead of the conſcientious diſcharge of their office, miſtook God's law, miſinterpreted his oracles, and led their hearers into fatal errors: or on the bench, decided wrong, to the great injury of truth and juſtice, v. 7. Yea, ſo common and infamous was their drunkenneſs, that every table was full of vomit, and no place clean; a ſcene as loathſome in the eyes of ſober men, as deteſtable in the ſight of God. Note, Drunkenneſs is vile and brutiſh in every man; but in a prieſt, a miniſter of the ſanctuary, what words can expreſs the infamy, impiety, and ſcandalouſneſs of the crime!

Before Chriſt 725.

9. ¶ [i] Whom ſhall he teach knowledge? and whom ſhall he make to underſtand doctrine? [k] them that are weaned from the milk, and drawn from the breaſts. 10. For [l] precept † muſt be upon precept, precept upon precept, line upon line, line upon line, here a little and there a little. 11. For [m] with ſtammering lips, and another tongue, will he ſpeak to this people. 12. To whom he ſaid, This is [n] the reſt wherewith ye may cauſe [o] the weary to reſt, and this is the refreſhing: yet they would not hear. 13. But the word of the LORD was unto them, precept upon precept, precept upon precept, line upon line, line upon line, here a little and there a little; [p] that they might go and fall backward, and be broken, and ſnared, and taken.

[i] Jer. vi. 10.
[k] Ibid. iv. 22.
[l] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 15. Chap. v. 4.
† Or hath been.
[m] Jer. v. 15. or 1 Cor. xiv. 21.
[n] Jer. xvi. 16.
[o] Mat. xi. 28.
[p] 2 Cor. ii. 16.

v. 9—13. Drunkenneſs neceſſarily brought ſtupidity upon their minds, and ſteeled them againſt all the warnings of God.

1. In vain were all the teachings of the prophets, ſollicitous as they were to make them underſtand; waiting upon them with patient perſeverance, and daily inculcating their leſſons, v. 10. and ſo plainly and affectionately withal, ſhewing them how nearly they were intereſted in the matter, as being the only way for them to obtain deliverance from the threatned evils, or refreſhing to their guilty conſciences, v. 12. Yet ſooner might a child at the breaſt be taught, v. 9, ſo ſtupified were they with their drunkenneſs, and ſo obſtinate, they would not hear; tho' the word was ever ſounding in their ears, it never reached their hearts; and they ſeem to have turned it into ridicule, repeating it after the prophet in mockery, Tſau latſau, kau lakau, or at their drunken feaſts jeſting with the ſacred words of ſcripture, v. 13. Note, (1.) God condeſcends to teach us as babes; his word is the ſincere milk; and as a nurſe cheriſheth her children, his miniſters are ſent to wait upon us with unwearied patience. (2.) Children's minds muſt not be over burthened; a little, as they are able to receive it, will be the moſt profitable inſtruction. (3.) There is reſt for the weary in Jeſus, and refreſhing for the miſerable: it argues our folly as great as our wickedneſs to reject our own mercies, and refuſe his calls to come to him, that we may find reſt to our ſouls. (4.) Many hear the word of God, whoſe hearts continue impenetrable; yea, they will not underſtand, and none ſo blind as theſe. (5.) The laſt ſtep of hardened wickedneſs is making a jeſt of things ſacred.

2. In juſt judgment God gives them up to the ruin they have choſen. With ſtammering lips and another tongue ſhall he ſpeak to this people, when foreign armies ſhall waſte their country; or it refers to the gift of tongues, which the apoſtles poſſeſſed, 1 Cor. xiv. 21. againſt which, miraculous as it was, they continued hardened, ſo that their deſtruction was determined; that they might go and fall backward, and be broken, and ſnared, and taken, as the puniſhment of their apoſtacy from God, firſt given up to the Babylonians, and at laſt their country utterly deſtroyed by the Romans. Note, They who will not attend to God's calls to repentance, will hear his terrible voice of judgment, when their ruin is paſt recovery.

14. ¶ Wherefore hear the word of the LORD, [q] ye ſcornful men that rule this people which is in Jeruſalem. 15. Becauſe ye have ſaid, We have made a covenant with death, and with † hell are we at agreement; when the overflowing ſcourge ſhall paſs through, it ſhall not come unto us; for we have made lies our refuge, and under falſhood have we hid ourſelves. 16. ¶ Therefore thus ſaith the Lord God, Behold, I lay in Zion for [r] a foundation, [s] a ſtone, ‡ a tried ſtone, a [s] precious [t] corner-ſtone, a ſure foundation: he that believeth [u] ſhall not make haſte. 17. Judgment alſo will I lay to the line, and righteouſneſs to the plummet, and the hail ſhall ſweep away [x] the refuge of lies, and the waters ſhall overflow the hiding-place. 18. ¶ And your covenant with death ſhall be diſannulled, and your agreement with hell ſhall not ſtand; when the overflowing ſcourge ſhall paſs through, then ye ſhall be troden down by it. 19. From the time that it goeth forth, it ſhall take you: for morning by morning ſhall it paſs over, by day and by night, and it ſhall be a vexation, only ‖ to underſtand the report. 20. For [y] the bed is ſhorter, than that a man can ſtretch himſelf on it: and the covering narrower, than [q] Chap. v. 19.

† Or the grave. Chap. xiv. 15.
[r] 1 Cor. iii. 11. Pſ. cxviii. 22. Mat. xxi. 4. Acts iv. 11. Rom. ix. 33. & x. 11. 1 Pet. ii. 6, &c.
‡ Heb. A ſtone of proof, or trial.
[s] 1 Pet. ii. 7.
[t] Eph. ii. 20.
[u] Pſ. cxji. 7, 8.
[x] Ver. 15.
‖ Or when he ſhall make you to underſtand doctrine. Ver. 9.
[y] Chap. lix. 5, 6.

that

Before Chriſt 725.

that he can wrap himſelf in it. 21. For the LORD ſhall riſe up [z] as in mount Perazim, he ſhall be wroth [a] as in the valley of Gibeon, that he may do his work, [b] his ſtrange work; and bring to paſs his act, his ſtrange act. 22. Now therefore be ye not [c] mockers, leſt your bands be made ſtrong: for I have heard from the Lord GOD of hoſts [d] a conſumption, even determined upon the whole † earth.

z 2 Sam. 5. 20.
a Joſh. xi. 12. or 1 Chron. xiv. 16.
b Jer. xxx. 14. Lam. iii. 33.
c Chap. v. 19.
d Ibid. x. 22, 23. Dan. ix. 27.
† Or land.

v. 14—22. This prophecy ſome apply to the men of Judah, and their deſtruction by the Aſſyrians; but it ſeems to belong eſpecially to the Jews in Chriſt's day, and the deſolations which the Romans ſhortly after brought upon them.

1. The ſcornful men who rejected the prophetic admonition, too great to take rebuke, and infatuated to their ruin, boaſted themſelves ſecure. The death and hell the prophet threatned, they feared not: they thought themſelves as ſafe, as if they had made a compact with the grave; and were confident whatever overflowing ſcourge paſſed through the land, it ſhould not come to them; making lies their refuge, and hiding themſelves under falſhood, the lying prophets, who encouraged them; or their own ſtrength, wealth, and policy, to overcome or over-reach their adverſaries. By the overflowing ſcourge, the Roman army ſeems intended, againſt which they thought themſelves ſafe, but found, too late, their ſad deluſion. Note, (1.) When we are in covenant with God through a Redeemer, and at peace with him through the blood of ſprinkling; then, and only then, have we made a covenant with death, and cannot be hurt thereby. (2.) Vain confidence buoys up ſinners to the laſt, but there will then be found a lie in their right hand.

2. The prophet admoniſhes them, where alone they can ſafely place their confidence. Behold, I lay in Zion a foundation, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, other foundation than whom no man can lay; a ſtone, a rock, firm and immoveable; a tried ſtone, who hath been proved the ſure ſupport of his ſaints in every age; or a ſtone of trial, by whom men's ſtates are diſcovered, and their characters determined; a precious corner-ſtone, ſupporting the whole ſpiritual building, and ineſtimably prized by every believer, who knows the value of ſuch a Redeemer; a ſure foundation, that will ſtand for eternity, and on which we may ſafely truſt body and ſoul: he that believeth, ſhall not make haſte, but under every trial patiently wait the Lord's leiſure; and thus will never be confounded, or aſhamed, as it is rendered, 1 Pet. xi. 6. for he hath never failed thoſe who truſt him, and never can or will diſappoint their hopes.

3. He warns them of the folly, ſin, and danger of their conduct, in truſting on lying vanities. For when the Lord ſhall lay judgment to the line, and righteouſneſs to the plummet, as builders, to prove their work ſtrait, their ways will be found perverſe, and their judgment enſue; then their vain hopes ſhall fail, and the hail-ſtorm ſweep away their refuge of lies. The army of the enemy as eaſily and utterly overwhelming them, their lying prophets, their riches and temple together, or whatever elſe they truſt in, as the waters of the deluge did the ſinners of old, v. 17. Then their covenant with death would be proved a deluſion; and the ſword of the Chaldeans, or rather the Romans, as an overflowing ſcourge, paſs through, and as mire in the ſtreets they ſhould be trodden down, v. 18. From the time it goeth forth, neither policy nor power will be able to oppoſe it; it ſhall take you as priſoners for captivity, or ſeize you as criminals for the ſword; and this continually and thoroughly, till God's judgments are executed. Morning by morning it ſhall paſs over, by day and by night without interruption the ſiege would be carried on, and the devaſtations increaſe; and it ſhall be a vexation only to underſtand the report, ſo terrible would the tidings be which thoſe who fled into Jeruſalem ſhould carry of the ravages of the Chaldean or Roman army. For the bed is ſhorter, than that a man can ſtretch himſelf on it: and the covering narrower, than that he can wrap himſelf in it, which either deſcribes the inſufficiency of their projects, and the uncomfortableneſs of their ſtate, when their beds would give them no repoſe; or the caſe of Jeruſalem, crouded with thoſe who fled thither, whoſe uſeleſs number increaſed the miſeries of the beſieged. For the Lord ſhall riſe up as in mount Perazim, and againſt his arm reſiſtance is vain; he ſhall be wroth as in the valley of Gibeon; two eminent inſtances wherein he diſplayed his terrible majeſty againſt his enemies, 2 Sam. v. 20. Joſh. x. 10—13. that he may do his work, his ſtrange work; and bring to paſs his act, his ſtrange act; he uſed to fight for them, but now is turned to be their enemy, and their fall is ſure. Note, (1.) If God lay judgment to the line, and righteouſneſs to the plummet, who can ſtand, or bear the ſcrutiny? (2.) It is the folly of the ſelf-righteous and the hypocrite that they cry peace, when there is no peace. (3.) If ſinners cannot bear the report of God's terrors without vexation, nor hear of hell, and torments, and eternal deſpair without commotion, how will they endure them? (4.) They who think their moral duties will yield them a covering in the day of God, and ſeek repoſe in their own righteouſneſſes, will find the bed too ſhort, the covering too narrow, and periſh in their own deceivings. (5.) Vengeance is God's ſtrange work; he delighteth not in the death of a ſinner.

Before Chriſt 713.

4. The whole is preſſed upon their conſciences for their conviction and reformation. Now therefore, to-day, whilſt it is called to-day, and yet there is mercy, be ye not mockers, deſpiſing theſe divine notices; leſt your bands be made ſtrong; and aggravated guilt provoke a heavier judgment: for I have heard from the Lord of hoſts, who cannot lie, and is able to make good his word, a conſumption, even determined upon the whole earth, or land of Judea; it ſhall be ſwept as with the beſom of deſtruction, See Dan. ix. 27. Note, (1.) It is merciful in God to give ſinners warning; he leaves them then without excuſe. (2.) Mockers will be ſtrangely diſappointed, when the terrors they deſpiſed ſeize them, and the warnings they ridiculed are proved dreadful realities.

23. ¶ Give ye ear, and hear my voice, hearken and hear my ſpeech. 24. Doth the plowman plow all day to ſow? doth he open and break the clods of his ground? 25. When he hath made plain the face thereof, doth he not caſt abroad the fitches, and ſcatter the cummin, and caſt in † the principal wheat, and the appointed barley, and the rie in their place? 26. ‡ For his God doth inſtruct him to diſcretion, and doth teach him. 27. For [e] the fitches are not threſhed with a threſhing-inſtrument, neither is a cart-wheel turned about upon the cummin: but the fitches are beaten out with a ſtaff, and the cummin with a rod. 28. Bread-corn is bruiſed; becauſe [f] he will not ever be threſhing it, nor break it with the wheel of his cart, nor bruiſe it with his horſemen. 29. This alſo cometh forth from the LORD of hoſts, [g] which is wonderful in counſel, and excellent in working.

† Or the wheat in the principal place, and the barley in the appointed place.
‡ Or, and he beateth it out in ſuch ſort as his God doth inſtruct him.
e Chap. xxvii. 7.
f Pſ. ciii. 9.
g Ibid. xcii. 5. Jer. xxxii. 19.

v. 23—29. The prophet, in God's name, calls on them for attention, v. 23. and gives them a parable of warning.

1. He bids them regard the huſbandman; what various methods he uſes; how prudently he plows and ſows, caſting the ſeed into the proper ſoil, and in the appointed ſeaſon; and when he hath gathered his fruits, how wiſely he manages them, uſing more force with the ſeeds that are more firm and difficult to be beat out of the ear, and leſs with ſuch as would be liable to be bruiſed, v. 27. And when the bread-corn is beat out with the threſhing inſtrument, (which was a kind of low cart, drawn by horſes or oxen, with iron ſpikes at the bottom) he does not ſuffer it to be trampled on too much, or broken with the wheel on the floor, but carries it to the mill to be ground. So,

2. God would not always be warning, and making preparations for the execution of his judgments, but inflict them according to the ſeveral deſerts of ſinners. Note, (1.) All wiſdom cometh from above. If the huſbandman is taught to plow and ſow aright, he owes it to God wonderful in counſel. (2.) The heart of man is as the fallow ground, obdurate and unfruitful, till God in his word breaks up the ſtubborn ſoil, and awakens the ſinner's conſcience. (3.) Chriſt is the living ſeed; the heart that receives him will yield fruit unto God. (4.) God knows the ſeveral diſpoſitions of his people, and diſpenſes his word and providences in ſuch a way towards them, as may moſt effectually anſwer the purpoſes of his grace. (5.) In proportion to their guilt and provocations will be the execution of the divine vengeance on the wicked. (6.) In all his ways and works God will manifeſt his own glory, and appear wonderful in counſel, and excellent in working.

CHAP. XXIX.

This prophecy is againſt the city of Jeruſalem. 1. The event itſelf is foretold, that Jeruſalem ſhould be greatly diſtreſſed, ver. 1—6. but that their enemies ſhould be diſappointed, ver. 7, 8. 2. A reproof is given to three ſorts of ſinners: (1.) Thoſe that were ſtupid and regardleſs of the prophet's warnings, ver. 9—12. (2.) Thoſe that were formal and hypocritical in their religious performances, ver. 13. (3.) Thoſe politicians that atheiſtically and profanely deſpiſed God's providence, and ſet up their own projects in competition with it, ver. 14—16. 3. Precious promiſes of grace are made to a remnant whom God would ſanctify, and in whom he would be ſanctified, when their enemies and perſecutors ſhould be cut off, ver. 17—24.

712.

1. WO to [a] † Ariel, to Ariel, the city where David ‡ dwelt: [b] ‖ add ye year to year; let them kill ſacrifices. 2. Yet I will diſtreſs Ariel, and there ſhall be heavineſs and ſorrow: and [c] it ſhall be unto me as Ariel. 3. And I will camp againſt thee round about, and will lay ſiege againſt thee with a mount, and I will raiſe a Ezek. xliii. 15.

† i. e. The lion of God.
‡ Or encamped.
b Exod. xxiii. 14.
‖ Or proceed from year to year in killing, &c.
c 2 Kings xxv. 9.

d Chap. viii. 19.
† Heb. Chirp, or hiſs.
e Job xxi. 18. Chap. xvii. 13.
f Chap. xxx. 13.
g Pſ. lxxiii. 20.

raiſe forts againſt thee. 4. And thou ſhalt be brought down, and ſhalt ſpeak out of the ground, and thy ſpeech ſhall be low out of the duſt, and thy voice ſhall be as of one that hath [d] a familiar ſpirit out of the ground, and thy ſpeech ſhall † whiſper out of the duſt. 5. Moreover, the multitude of thy ſtrangers ſhall be like ſmall duſt, and the multitude of the terrible ones ſhall be [e] as chaff that paſſeth away: yea, it ſhall be [f] at an inſtant ſuddenly. 6. Thou ſhalt be viſited of the LORD of hoſts with thunder, and with earthquake, and great noiſe, with ſtorm and tempeſt, and the flame of devouring fire. 7. ¶ And the multitude of all the nations that fight againſt Ariel, even all that fight againſt her, and her munition, and that diſtreſs her, ſhall be as a dream of a night-viſion. 8. [g] It ſhall even be as when a hungry man dreameth, and behold he eateth; but he awaketh and his ſoul is empty: or as when a thirſty man dreameth, and behold he drinketh; but he awaketh, and behold he is faint, and his ſoul hath appetite: ſo ſhall the multitude of all the nations be, that fight againſt mount Zion.

v. 1—8. The ſubject of this prophecy, is Jeruſalem, the place where David dwelt, or encamped; it is called Ariel, the lion of God, ſome think in reference to the altar, that conſumed the ſacrifices as a lion his prey; or more probably as the metropolis of Judah, called the lion's whelp, Gen. xlix. 9. and whoſe ſtandard was a lion.

1. The ruin of it is foretold, which all their ſacrifices, becauſe hypocritical, cannot prevent. Vain were the oblations from year to year, whilſt their iniquities were unrepented of, v. 1. God threatens to diſtreſs them, to fill every heart with heavineſs and ſorrow, and make the city like the altar of God, ſurrounded with the blood and carcaſſes of the ſlain, and fire kindled in the midſt of it, v. 2. The beſiegers under a Divine ſupport ſhould ſurround it with mounts and forts without, v. 3. beat down the walls, and reduce them to the moſt abject ſubjection; or bring them ſo low by famine, that their voices ſhould through weakneſs ſcarce be heard, like thoſe who pretending to familiar ſpirits, whiſpered and muttered out of the duſt, v. 4. With marks of Divine diſpleaſure, God would aſſiſt their foes with thunder, earthquake, and tempeſt, and give them up at laſt into their hands, who ſhould conſume their city and temple with fire, v. 6. Note, (1.) Formal ſervices, whilſt the heart continues unchanged and unhumbled, are but an abomination in the ſight of God. (2.) Wo unto thoſe againſt whom God contends, againſt him there is no defence. (3.) The proudeſt ſinner will ſooner or later be laid in the duſt, either in willing penitence, or terrible perdition.

2. God would diſappoint their foes; they in their turn ſhould ſuddenly be deſtroyed, v. 5. their vain hopes of ſucceſs be as a viſion in the night, v. 7. and their diſappointment like the man who dreams of meat and drink, yet awakes hungry and thirſty, v. 8. Which ſome refer to the ruin of Sennacherib's army, though that will not agree with v. 3. as they never raiſed any mount there: others apply the words to the Roman army, and ſuppoſe, v. 5. to mean their ſudden irruption, and numerous forces ruſhing to the ſiege; and, v. 7, 8. their diſappointment, when the ſpoil they promiſed themſelves would be ſo little anſwerable to their expectations. Some think the whole appertains to the Jews, expreſſing the deſtruction of the ſuccours they expected, v. 5. and the vanity of the hopes with which they flattered themſelves, that their city would not be taken, till dreadful experience at laſt awaked them from their fatal reverie.

† Heb. Take your pleaſure and riot.
h Chap. xxviii. 7, 8.
i Rom. xi. 8.
k Pſ. lxix. 23. Chap. vi. 10.
l Chap. viii. 16. Dan. xii. 4, 9. Rev. v. 1, &c. m Mat. xi. 25. & xiii. 11.
n Ex. xxxiii. 31. Mat. xv. 8. Mark vii. 6.
o Col. ii. 22.
p Hab. i. 5.
q Jer. xlix. 7. Obad. viii. 1 Cor. i. 9.

9. ¶ Stay yourſelves and wonder, † cry ye out, and cry: [h] they are drunken, but not with wine; they ſtagger, but not with ſtrong drink. 10. For [i] the LORD hath poured out upon you the ſpirit of deep ſleep, and [k] hath cloſed your eyes: the prophets and your rulers, the ſeers hath he covered. 11. And the viſion of all is become unto you, as the words of a book [l] that is ſealed, which men deliver to one that is [m] learned, ſaying, Read this, I pray thee; and he ſaith, I cannot, for it is ſealed: 12. And the book is delivered to him that is not learned, ſaying, Read this, I pray thee; and he ſaith, I am not learned. 13. ¶ Wherefore the LORD ſaid, Foraſmuch as [n] this people draw near me with their mouth, and with their lips do honour me, but have removed their heart far from me, and their fear towards me is taught [o] by the precept of men: 14. [p] Therefore behold, I will proceed to do a marvellous work amongſt this people, even a marvellous work and a wonder: for [q] the wiſdom of their wiſe men ſhall periſh, and the underſtanding of their prudent men ſhall be hid. 15. [r] Wo unto them that ſeek deep to hide their counſel from the LORD, and their works are in the dark, and [s] they ſay, Who ſeeth us? and who knoweth us? 16. Surely your turning of things upſide down ſhall be eſteemed as the potters clay: for [t] ſhall the work ſay of him that made it, He made me not? or ſhall the thing framed ſay of him that framed it, He had no underſtanding?

r Chap. xxx. 1.
s Pſ. xciv. 7. Eccleſ. xxiii. 18.
t Chap. xlv. 9.

v. 9—16. Whatever fulfilment theſe words had in the men of that generation, it is plain, from Rom. xi. 7, 8. they refer to the times of Chriſt.

1. The prophet calls aloud with the voice of warning: Stay yourſelves, conſider your ways, and run no more madly in the way of ſin and ruin, and wonder at the long patience of God, and cry ye out, and cry at the impending judgments of God, if yet there may be hope: or it may be read, delight yourſelves; either mocking at their peril in the ways of iniquity, or by returning to God for his pardoning mercy.

2. The prophet deſcribes their ſtupidity and judicial blindneſs. They were drunken; not merely with wine, but with corrupt principles, ſtaggering, unſteady in their conduct, and ever turning aſide from the right way, v. 9. And to this God had in righteous judgment given them up, becauſe they refuſed the knowledge of the truth; prieſts, prophets, and rulers, were all under this ſpirit of darkneſs and infatuation, v. 10. The prophecies were as a ſealed book, the wiſe no more underſtanding them than the ignorant, v. 11, 12. Which was eminently verified, when, in oppoſition to the brighteſt evidence, and fulleſt completion of the prophecies concerning the Meſſiah, the Jews obſtinately rejected the Lord Jeſus, and the rulers and prieſts were the chief in the tranſgreſſion; blind leaders of the blind, hardened themſelves, and hardening others againſt conviction. Note, (1.) They who will not take warning, will be given up to their own hearts luſts. (2.) It is a woful caſe, when they who ſhould teach others, are blind and ignorant themſelves. (3.) Multitudes, in the midſt of the plaineſt light of goſpel truth, are ſtill ſo overcharged with ſurfeiting and drunkenneſs, and the cares of this life, that their eyes are cloſed in darkneſs, and they are led captive by the devil at his will.

3. He charges them with vile hypocriſy. They draw near me with their mouth, and with their lips do honour me, giving him the formal ſervices of the lip and knee, but have removed their heart far from me; their affections being ſupremely placed on the world, and the things of it, and their ſouls utter ſtrangers to any inward heart-approach to God; and their fear towards me is taught by the precept of men; their religion was mere educational, not derived from God's word; and their worſhip deſtitute of ſpirituality, and ſuited to lull their ſouls aſleep in ſtupid formality. Such was the caſe with the Jews, ſee Matt. xv. 3—9. and ſuch is ſtill the caſe with multitudes, who call themſelves, and are counted by the world, good chriſtians, whoſe prayers are as regular as the hour returns, whilſt their hearts are utter ſtrangers to converting grace and communion with God; and take away their books of devotion, they know no more how to draw near to God, than the cuſhion on which they kneel. Note, (1.) That is no prayer which is not the ſoul's work. (2.) The prayers of the worldling and formaliſt, are no better than a ſolemn mockery of God.

4. God threatens them with condign puniſhment: a marvellous work he would work, at which they ſhould be aſtoniſhed.

[1.] The underſtanding of their wiſe men ſhould periſh, v. 14. Though their ſchemes were laid ſo deep againſt the Lord, and againſt his anointed, and ſo concealed, that they atheiſtically promiſed themſelves not even God could ſee or diſappoint them, v. 15. Yet wo unto them! their politics were as abſurd as wicked: their attempts to hide their counſel from him, and counteract his deſigns, were vain, ſince as eaſily as the potter moulds the clay, ſo could he mar their ſchemes, or faſhion them after his own will; for ſhall the work ſay of him that made it, He made me not? as if ſelf-created; or ſhall the thing framed ſay of him that framed it, He had no underſtanding? which they in fact did, by ſuch conduct, though the folly of it was ſo evident. Note, (1.) They who ſet up for wiſe men and free-thinkers, and diſcard their Bibles, will prove at laſt the moſt egregious fools. (2.) A diſbelief of God's all-ſeeing eye and univerſal agency, is at the bottom of every work of darkneſs.

[2.] The Gentiles ſhould ſhortly be called into the church, and the Jews rejected, v. 17. Though the one was now like a foreſt, it ſhould, by the preaching of the goſpel, become as a fruitful field; and the other, though long favoured in a peculiar manner as God's heritage, ſhould be utterly laid waſte for their impenitence, and eſpecially for their rejection of Chriſt and his goſpel: and this in the eyes of the Jews, and even of the apoſtles themſelves, too partial at firſt to their own nation, appeared a marvellous work.

Before Chriſt 712.

17. Is it not yet a very little while, and [u] Lebanon ſhall be turned into a fruitful field, and the fruitful field ſhall be eſteemed as a foreſt? 18. ¶ And in that day [x] ſhall the deaf hear the words of the book, and [y] the eyes of the blind ſhall ſee out of obſcurity, and out of darkneſs.
19. The meek alſo ſhall [z] increaſe their joy in the LORD, and the poor among men ſhall rejoice in the holy One of Iſrael. 20. For the terrible one is brought to nought, and the ſcorner is conſumed, and all [a] that watch for iniquity are cut off: 21. [b] That make a man an offender for a word, and [c] lay a ſnare for him that reproveth in the gate, and turn aſide the juſt for a thing of nought. 22.
Therefore thus ſaith the LORD, who redeemed Abraham, concerning the houſe of Jacob, Jacob ſhall not now be aſhamed, neither ſhall his face now wax pale. 23.
But when he ſeeth his children, [d] the work of mine hands in the midſt of him, they ſhall ſanctify my name, and ſanctify the holy One of Jacob, and ſhall fear the God of Iſrael. 24. They alſo that erred in ſpirit ſhall come to underſtanding, and [e] they that murmured, ſhall learn doctrine.

[u] Chap. xxxii. 15.
[x] Chap. xxxv. 5.
[y] Luke iv. 18. Acts xxvi. 18.
[z] John xv. 11.
[a] Mark iii. 2.
[b] Mat. xxii. 15.
[c] Am. v. 10.
[d] Chap. xix. 25. Eph. ii. 10.
[e] Luke xv. 28.

v. 18—24. It having been foretold in the former verſe, that the Gentiles ſhould be called, and the Jews rejected: we have here the bleſſings the church ſhould in that day of goſpel grace enjoy.

1. They who before were deaf to God's calls, and blind to any ſpiritual knowledge of the truth, ſhould by the preaching of the goſpel, in demonſtration of the ſpirit and power, have the eyes of their mind enlightened, and be enabled to hear and receive the word of truth, v. 18. Note, (1.) Every ſoul is by nature ſpiritually blind. (2.) The preaching of the goſpel is the means God uſes to bring the ſoul out of darkneſs into his marvellous light. (3.) He muſt open the underſtanding to underſtand the ſcriptures, or elſe the light ſhineth in darkneſs, and the darkneſs comprehendeth it not.

2. Joy and gladneſs ſhall revive the meek and the poor in ſpirit. Such as are brought to a view of their own ſinfulneſs, and humbly ſubmiſſive to every diſpenſation of providence, ſilent under provocation, and in their own eyes poor and periſhing; theſe ſhall increaſe their joy in the Lord, under the experience of his love and care of them, and rejoice in the holy One of Iſrael as their rich portion and exceeding great reward. Note, (1.) God hath in general choſen the poor among men for heirs of his kingdom. (2.) It is not external poverty, but internal lowlineſs of heart, to which the promiſe is made. (3.) Whatever injuries we receive, or wants we endure, if in the midſt of all, our hearts are quietly ſtayed upon God, we have cauſe of abundant joy.

3. The erroneous ſhall be convinced, and they who murmured at God's word as hard ſayings, be ſilenced, and humbly ſubmit to his truth, v. 24.

4. Their enemies and perſecutors ſhall be deſtroyed, v. 20. By the terrible one may be meant the rulers of the Jews, or the perſecuting power of the pagan Roman emperors; or it may have reſpect to antichriſt, whoſe kingdom ſhall be brought to nought, as the former enemies of Chriſt and his goſpel have been broken. The ſcorner ſignifies the philoſophers of the Gentiles, or the Jews, that ſcoffed at the doctrine of the croſs, whoſe inveterate enmity againſt Chriſt and his apoſtles, kept them always on the watch, v. 20. and any word which could be miſrepreſented, ſerved for a ground of accuſation: they laid ſnares for their faithful reprovers, that they might entangle them in their talk; and without proof or evidence condemned the juſt, v. 21. And this was abundantly fulfilled in the conduct of the Scribes and Phariſees, Matt. xxii. xxiii. but they received their juſt doom, and were cut off according to the prophetic word in their iniquities. Note, (1.) They who are Chriſt's ſervants, muſt expect the threatnings of the terrible, and the ridicule of the ſcorner. (2.) The enemies of religion are ever on the watch to catch at every ſlip or failing of the profeſſors of it, as matter of railing accuſation againſt them. Let it make us the more watchful to cut off occaſion from thoſe who deſire occaſion. (3.) We may not think it ſtrange, to have a word dropped unadviſedly, conſtrued into a heavy charge, or an innocent expreſſion perverted to a moſt criminal meaning, when ſcoffers come to hear God's miniſters, not for edification, but to lay ſnares for their reprovers. So perſecuted they the prophets that were before us. (4.) If in the faithful diſcharge of our office, we find a wicked world oppoſing, and with every baſe and malignant inſinuation ſeeking to blacken us, it is a conſolation that we are the more like our Lord. (5.) Whatever ſucceſs at preſent may ſeem to attend thoſe who oppoſe the cauſe of God and truth, they ſhall be cut off at the laſt.

5. The church ſhould be glorioſly enlarged, by the acceſſion at laſt of the ſeed of Jacob. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord, who redeemed Abraham from Ur of the Chaldees, and out of all his troubles, till he obtained eternal ſalvation, concerning the houſe of Jacob his poſterity, Jacob ſhall not now be aſhamed, and his face wax pale, as when his degenerate ſeed rejected and crucified the Lord Jeſus. But when he ſeeth his children recovered from their apoſtacy, the work of my hands, by converting grace faſhioned anew, in the midſt of him aſſembled together, they ſhall ſanctify my name, by believing in the Redeemer, and receiving his goſpel, and ſanctify the holy One of Jacob, and ſhall fear the God of Iſrael, returning to his worſhip and ſervice. By Jacob here alſo the church of Chriſt may be meant, rejoicing in the converſion of all the ſpiritual ſeed, whether Jews or Gentiles, in the latter day, who ſhall then together unite in the praiſes of their Lord.

CHAP. XXX.

This chapter contains the ſins and deſtruction of the Jews. Here is, 1. A juſt reproof to thoſe who in their diſtreſs truſted to the Egyptians for help, ver. 1—7. 2. A terrible threatning againſt thoſe that ſlighted the advice which God by his prophets gave them, ver. 8—17. 3. Gracious promiſes to thoſe who truſted in God, ver. 18—26. 4. A prophecy of the total rout and ruin of the Aſſyrian army, which ſhould be an occaſion of great joy to God's people, ver. 27—33.

About 715.

1. WO to the rebellious children, ſaith the LORD, [a] that take counſel, but not of me; and that cover with a covering, but not of my Spirit, [b] that they may add ſin to ſin: 2. [c] That walk to go down into Egypt, (and [d] have not aſked at my mouth) to ſtrengthen themſelves in the ſtrength of Pharaoh, and to truſt in the ſhadow of Egypt. 3. [e] Therefore ſhall the ſtrength of Pharaoh be your ſhame, and the truſt in the ſhadow of Egypt your confuſion. 4. For [f] his princes were at Zoan, and his ambaſſadors came to Hanes. 5.
[g] They were all aſhamed of a people [h] that could not profit them, nor be an help nor profit, but a ſhame and alſo a reproach. 6. The burden of [i] the beaſts of the ſouth: into [k] the land of trouble and anguiſh, from whence come the young and old lion, the viper, and fiery flying ſerpent, they will carry their riches upon the ſhoulders of young aſſes, and their treaſures upon the bunches of camels, to a people that ſhall not profit them. 7. For the Egyptians ſhall help in vain, and to no purpoſe: therefore have I cried † concerning this, [l]
Their ſtrength is to ſit ſtill.

[a] Chap. xxix. 15.
[b] Deut. xxix. 19.
[c] Chap. xxxi. 1.
[d] Numb. xxvii. 21. Joſh. ix. 14. 1 Kings xxii. 7.
[e] Chap. xx. 5.
[f] Ibid. lvii. 9.
[g] Jer. ii. 36.
[h] Chap. xxxvi. 6.
[i] Ibid. lvii. 9.
[k] Ex. i. 13, 14.
† Or, to her.
[l] Chap. vii. 4. Ver. 15.

v. 1—7. It was the ſin and folly of the Jews to leave the rock of ages to truſt on the broken reed of human ſupports, and they ſeverely ſmarted for it.

1. A wo is pronounced on the rebellious children of Judah, and the cauſe of it declared. In the day of danger, inſtead of applying to God, and ſeeking his guidance and protection, they placed their confidence in the wiſdom of their own meaſures, and the alliance they ſought with Egypt, expecting from them a ſhelter againſt the impending ſtorm of the Aſſyrians: and thus by ſin not only provoked God to chaſtiſe them, but alſo by their diſregard of him under their corrections, filled up the meaſure of their iniquities; his children in profeſſion, but rebels in their practice. Note, (1.) Diſtruſt of God's providence, is virtually to deny his government of the world, and to turn rebels; nay, atheiſts. (2.) Rebellion in thoſe who in profeſſion were once his children, is peculiarly provoking. (3.) If afflictions bring us not nearer to God, they will exceedingly harden and drive us farther from him.

2. Their confidence would fail them; whatever coſt they were at, whatever difficulties they were put to, in order to obtain the alliance of Egypt, or however fair the promiſes of Pharaoh to ſupport them. God was near to be conſulted and to help them, and required nothing from them but a humble application; yet they rather choſe to encounter the dangers of the road that led to Egypt, through deſerts abounding with lions and ſerpents; to burden the weary beaſts with their choiceſt riches, as preſents to purchaſe Pharaoh's aid; to go ſo far as Hanes and Zoan for help, and though ſo long and cruelly their houſe of bondage, to ſeek relief from thence: juſtly therefore doth God warn them, The ſtrength of Pharaoh ſhall be your ſhame, and the truſt of the ſhadow of Egypt your confuſion; failing and deceiving them, and making them vexed at their own folly, ſo dearly to purchaſe an ally, who inſtead of help or profit, ſhould be their reproach, chap. xxxvi. 6. Note, (1.) The ſelf-righteous, like theſe Jews, grudge no expence or trouble in labouring to eſtabliſh their own righteouſneſs, which muſt prove their ruin, inſtead of accepting Chriſt and his righteouſneſs, freely offered, and which would never fail them. (2.) When we leave God in our trials to truſt on men, we deſerve well to rue our folly and ſin in ſhame and diſappointment.

Before Chriſt 713.

3. The prophet warns them of their only method of ſafety. Their ſtrength is to ſit ſtill; inſtead of ſending their ambaſſadors, or ſeeking foreign aſſiſtance, to keep at home, and patiently expect the ſalvation of God. Note, If we deſire to extricate ourſelves from diſtreſs, it muſt not be by the uſe of undue means, or impatient ſtruggles, but by patient dependance and waiting upon God.

8. ¶ Now go, [m] write it before them in a table, and note it in a book, that it may be for † the time to come for ever and ever: 9. That [n] this is a rebellious people, lying children, children that will not hear the law of the LORD: 10. [o] Which ſay to the ſeers, See not; and to the prophets, Propheſy not unto us right things, [p] ſpeak unto us ſmooth things, propheſy deceits: 11. Get you out of the way, [q] turn aſide out of the path, cauſe the holy One of Iſrael to ceaſe from before us. 12. Wherefore thus ſaith the holy One of Iſrael, Becauſe ye deſpiſe this word, and truſt in ‡ oppreſſion and perverſeneſs, and ſtay thereon: 13. Therefore this iniquity ſhall be to you [r] as a breach ready to fall, ſwelling out in a high wall, whoſe breaking [s] cometh ſuddenly at an inſtant. 14. And [t] he ſhall break it as the breaking of the potter's veſſel, that is broken in pieces, he ſhall not ſpare; ſo that there ſhall not be found in the burſting of it, [u] a ſherd to take fire from the hearth, or to take water withal out of the pit. 15. For thus ſaith the Lord God, the holy One of Iſrael, [x] In returning and reſt ſhall ye be ſaved, in quietneſs and in confidence ſhall be your ſtrength; and ye would not. 16. But ye ſaid, No, for we will flee upon horſes; therefore ſhall ye flee: and we will ride upon the ſwift; therefore ſhall they that purſue you be ſwift. 17. [y] One thouſand ſhall flee at the rebuke of one: at the rebuke of five ſhall ye flee, till ye be left as § a beacon upon the top of a mountain, and as an enſign on an hill.

[m] Hab. ii. 2.
† Heb. The latter day.
[n] Deut. xxxii, 20. Chap. i. 4. Acts vii. 51.
[o] Jer. xi. 21. Am. ii. 12. & vii. 13. Mic. ii. 6.
[p] Mic. ii. 11.
[q] Acts xiii. 8.
‡ Or, fraud.
[r] Pſal. lxii. 3.
[s] Chap. xxix. 5.
[t] Jer. xix. 11.
[u] Chap. xlvii. 14.
[x] Ver. 7. Chap. vii. 4.
[y] Lev. xxvi. 8. Deut. xxviii. 25. & xxxii. 30.
§ Or, a tree bereft of branches.

v. 8—17. For a teſtimony againſt them, for a warning to others, and to vindicate God's juſtice in their puniſhment, the prophet is commanded to write their ſins, and threatned deſtruction, on a table, that it might be hung up in ſome conſpicuous place, and note it in a book for future times, v. 1. That this is, or becauſe this is a rebellious people: this was either the ſubſtance of the writing, or the cauſe why God would have it recorded; they were rebels againſt God, lying children; a ſpurious brood, who bore a relation to God in profeſſion, but in practice they denied him; children that will not hear the law of the Lord, pay no regard to it, but caſt the word behind their back. Two heavy charges are particularly laid againſt them, and each hath a terrible threatning annexed thereto.

1. They ſaid unto the ſeers, See not, as if they wanted them to connive at their ſins, endeavouring to diſcountenance the freedom of their reproofs, or to ſilence them utterly; and to the prophets, Prophecy not right things; the truths of God's word, the evil and guilt of their conduct, and the threatned judgments; ſpeak unto us ſmooth things, prophecy deceits, not the harſh words of wrath and damnation, but viſions of peace and proſperity: get you out of the way, turn aſide out of the path; not obſtruct them in their ſinful courſes, by remonſtrating againſt their iniquities, nor turn aſide with them, and join in their wickedneſs; cauſe the holy One of Iſrael to ceaſe from before us, by no more urging their awful miſſion from him, or prefacing their threatnings with the view of the character of God, as the jealous and ſin-avenging God. Note, (1.) They are in a dangerous way that are diſguſted at the fidelity, plainneſs, and ſeriouſneſs with which God's miniſters reprove their ſins. (2.) Though Men's ears are offended at the harſh terms, damnation, hell, eternity of torments, and unquenchable fire, the faithful preacher may not pleaſe them by ſoftening thoſe terrors with which he is commanded to perſuade men. (3.) A zealous miniſter is a burdenſome ſtone in the ſinner's way, and robs him of the peace he ſeeks in his deluſions. (4.) They who prophecy ſmooth things, to lull the ſinner aſleep, and flatter the confidence of the formal, will be indeed highly acceptable to the world, but muſt expect from God the doom of perfidy and falſhood. (5.) If a prophet can be ſeduced to turn aſide, ſinners then ſecurely tranſgreſs, countenanced by ſuch an example.

God denounces their doom; that holy One of Iſrael, whoſe name was burdenſome to them, will execute it, and that word they have diſpiſed, ſhall riſe in judgment againſt them; becauſe they rejected his warnings, and truſted in oppreſſion and perverſeneſs; in their wealth got by ſuch wicked methods, or their allies purchaſed thereby. Their deſtruction ſhould come ſudden and terrible, as a breach ready to fall, ſwelling out in a high wall, which before the ſtorm ruſhes ſuddenly down, and cruſhes thoſe who fled thither for ſhelter under its ruins; and irreparable as the potter's veſſel, daſhed in pieces by an iron rod, that never can be renuited. Note, (1.) Whether men will hear, or whether they forbear, we muſt not ceaſe to warn them ſolemnly from God. (2.) The confidence of the ſinner, and the ſelf-righteous, is like the tottering wall; in the day of wrath it will overwhelm them, and their damnation be not only unexpected and terrible, but irrecoverable and eternal.

Before Chriſt 713.

2. They oppoſed the plaineſt and moſt ſalutary advice. For thus ſaith the Lord God, the holy One of Iſrael, whoſe burdenſome name they could not bear, though his holineſs was the great ſecurity of his promiſes, In returning and reſt ſhall ye be ſaved: this is the path of ſafety, to return from their evil ways; and inſtead of truſting on Egypt, to wait patiently on God; in quietneſs expecting help from above, and confidence in the ſalvation of God ſhall be your ſtrength; for thus no enemy could prevail againſt them; and ye would not; they obſtinately refuſed to leave the matter in God's hand. But ye ſaid, No; bent on their own devices; but we will flee upon horſes, to ſecure their perſons or treaſures, or to ſeek foreign aſſiſtance; therefore ſhall ye flee, be left to your own folly, and be chaſed by their foes: and we will ride upon the ſwift, in hopes to eſcape, but in vain; therefore ſhall they that purſue you be ſwift, and arreſt you in your flight. Utterly diſpirited, one thouſand ſhall flee at the rebuke of one, See Lev. xxvi. 7, 8. at the rebuke of five; before the moſt inconſiderable number of enemies ſhall ye flee, till ye be left as a beacon upon the top of a mountain, and as an enſign on an hill; ſcattered and ſolitary, and almoſt utterly conſumed. Note, (1.) When we truly return to God, we may aſſuredly expect his ſalvation. (2.) In every trial it ſhould be much more our concern to have our heart brought to quietneſs and reſt in God, than to be anxious about the means of our deliverance. (3.) They who are enabled wholly to place their confidence in Chriſt, can then do all things, he ſtrengthening them. (4.) They who will not make uſe of the medicine which never fails to cure, deſerve to die of their diſeaſe. (5.) When the ſinner ſeeks to fly from God's vengeance, he will quickly feel how vain is the attempt.

18. ¶ † And therefore will [z] the LORD wait that he may be gracious unto you, and therefore will he be exalted, that he may have mercy upon you: for the LORD is a God of judgment; [a] bleſſed are all they that wait for him. 19. For [b] the people ſhall dwell in Zion at Jeruſalem: thou ſhalt weep no more: he will be very gracious unto thee, at the voice of thy cry; when he ſhall hear it, he will anſwer thee. 20. And though the Lord give you [c] the bread of adverſity, and the water of ‡ affliction, yet [d] ſhall not thy teachers be removed into a corner any more, but thine eyes ſhall ſee thy teachers: 21. And [e] thine ears ſhall hear a word behind thee, ſaying, [f] This is the way, walk ye in it, [g] when ye turn to the right hand, and when ye turn to the left. 22. [h] Ye ſhall defile alſo the covering of thy graven images of ſilver, and the ornament of thy molten images of gold: thou ſhalt caſt them away as a menſtruous cloth; [i] thou ſhalt ſay unto it, Get thee hence. 23. [k] Then ſhall he give the rain of thy ſeed that thou ſhalt ſow the ground withal, and bread of the increaſe of the earth, and it ſhall be fat and plenteous: in that day ſhall thy cattle feed in large paſtures. 24. [l] The oxen likewiſe, and the young aſſes that ear the ground, ſhall eat clean provender which hath been winnowed with the ſhovel and with the fan. 25. And there ſhall be upon every high mountain, and upon every high hill, rivers and ſtreams of waters, in the day of [m] the great ſlaughter, when the towers fall. 26. Moreover, the light of the moon ſhall be as the light of the ſun, and the light of the ſun ſhall be ſeven-fold, as the light of ſeven days, in the day that the LORD bindeth up the breach of his people, and healeth the ſtroke of their wound.

† Or, yet notwithſtanding.
[z] 2 Pet. iii. 9.
[a] Pſ. ii. 12. & xxxiv. 8. Prov. xvi. 20. Jer. xvii. 7.
[b] Ezek. xx. 40.
[c] 1 Kings xxii. 27.
‡ Or, oppreſſion.
[d] Pſ. lxxiv. 9. Am. viii. 11, 12.
[e] 1 John ii. 20.
[f] Chap. xxxv. 8. John xiv. 6.
[g] Joſh. i. 7.
[h] Chap. ii. 20. & xxxi. 7.
[i] Hoſ. xiv. 8.
[k] Mat. vi. 33. 1 Tim. iv. 8.
[l] 1 Cor. ix. 6.
[m] Chap. xxxvii. 36.

v. 18—26. After the former threatnings, ſome conſolation is promiſed to the faithful.

1. In the midſt of judgment God would remember mercy: and therefore, or nevertheleſs, will the Lord wait that he may be gracious unto you the choſen remnant, whom, as the word ſignifies, he pants to deliver out of their troubles; and therefore will he be exalted, or will exalt his Son as a prince and Saviour in the midſt of them, that he may have mercy upon you: for the Lord is a God of judgment, faithful to his promiſes, as juſt in his corrections; and therefore bleſſed are all they that wait for him; they will in the iſſue be made happy in his ſalvation, and their patient hope be crowned with deliverance. For the people ſhall dwell in Zion at Jeruſalem, ſafe amidſt all the threatnings of Sennacherib: thou ſhalt weep no more, as they did in the day of their diſtreſs: he will be very gracious unto thee, exceeding thy moſt ſanguine hopes, at the voice of thy cry; when he ſhall hear it, he will anſwer thee, as he did Hezekiah's prayer, when he ſpread their afflicted caſe before the Lord. Note, (1.) God waits to be gracious: no ſooner does the ſinner return, than he is ready to receive him. (2.) Perſevering prayer ever brings an anſwer of peace. (3.) We ſhall find every trial a rich bleſſing to us in the iſſue, whenever it hath ſerved to exerciſe our faith, and quicken our application to God.

Before Chriſt 713.

2. The Lord will provide them with the rich means of grace, to preſerve them in the path of duty; afflicted they might be, it is the frequent lot of his people, but never deſerted. In the times of perſecution, probably under Ahaz, their faithful teachers were driven into obſcurity; but God promiſes now to reſtore them, that they might publickly and quietly enjoy the benefit of their miniſtrations, and to preſerve a conſtant ſucceſſion of them, v. 20. And they ſhould hear a voice behind them, the Spirit of truth, who ſhould be ſent to guide them into all truth, ſaying, This is the way, walk ye in it; directing them to the written word as their rule, and enlightening their minds to ſee and follow it, when they turned to the right hand or the left, from the ſtrait way of God's commandments. And this is particularly applicable to the times of Chriſt, when he raiſed up his faithful ſervants, and ſent his Spirit to direct his people in the way of life and glory, and to bring them to himſelf, who is the way, the truth, and the life. Note, (1.) Among the greateſt afflictions God's people lament, and what is worſe than a famine of bread and water, is the famine of the word. (2.) Though the church may be under perſecution, and faithful miniſters eſpecially driven into a corner, yet God will rebuke the ſtorm, and bring them from their concealment again, to the joy of his people. (3.) It becomes us to be attentive to the voice of conſcience, and the ſecret warnings of God, when tempted and in doubt how to act. (4.) Diſpoſed we are continually to turn aſide, if the preventing and reſtraining grace of God did not preſerve us.

3. They ſhould then renounce their idolatry, their beſetting and moſt provoking ſin. Their idols now, though made of richeſt metal, nicely engraved, and curiouſly adorned, with abhorrence ſhould be caſt away, as polluted and nauſeous, v. 22. And this was fulfilled on their deliverance from Sennacherib, ſee 2 Kings xviii. 4. 2 Chron. xxix. 16. and after the Babyloniſh captivity, this evil was radically cured. Note, (1.) Nothing engages the heart ſo much to God as a ſenſe of his goodneſs. (2.) True penitents abhor their ſins, and put from them as far as poſſible whatever they have found a means of temptation to them in the time paſt.

4. Plenty ſhall be reſtored to them. Their ground, watered with the dew of heaven, ſhould yield abundant increaſe, v. 23. See chap. xxxvii. 30. Their cattle fatten in rich paſtures, and eat provender winnowed, ſuch plenty being in the land, v. 24. The rain deſcending as rivers from the hills, ſhould make their vallies fruitful, that they may ſtand thick with corn, and add to the joy of their deliverance from the Aſſyrian army, ſlaughtered by the ſword of the deſtroying angel, v. 25. And this may well be applied to the abundance of goſpel grace, that will be diſpenſed in the latter day, when the high towers of Babylon myſtical ſhall fall, and the earth be filled with the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the ſea. Note, The miniſter, like the huſbandman, may ſow the ſeed, but it is God alone that giveth the increaſe; yet this muſt not ſuperſede, but quicken our labours.

5. Uncommon light and joy would then be diffuſed. The light of the moon ſhall be as the light of the ſun, and the light of the ſun ſhall be ſeven-fold, as the light of ſeven days; expreſſive of their exultation on the deſtruction of the Aſſyrians, when their breaches made by that army ſhould be repaired, and the wounds of their ſtate healed: and may be referred to the day of Chriſt at preſent, when every awakened ſinner, brought out of darkneſs into God's marvellous light, rejoices with joy unſpeakable, and full of glory, at ſeeing the breach, which ſin had made, bound up by the ſacrifice of a Redeemer, and experiences the healing of this bleſſed Saviour's grace in his ſoul: and perhaps it looks forward to the expected glorious ſpread of the goſpel; when all afflictions of God's people are at an end, the nations of the redeemed ſhall for ever walk in the light of the Lord.

27. ¶ Behold, the name of the LORD cometh from far, burning with his anger, and the burden thereof is heavy: his lips are full of indignation, and his tongue as a devouring fire. 28. And his breath as an overflowing ſtream, [n] ſhall reach to the midſt of the neck, to ſift the nations with the ſieve of vanity: and there ſhall be [o] a bridle in the jaws of the people, cauſing them to err. 29. Ye ſhall have a ſong as in the night, [p] when a holy ſolemnity is kept, and gladneſs of heart, as when one goeth with a pipe to come into the mountain of the LORD, to the † mighty One of Iſrael. 30. And the LORD ſhall cauſe ‡ his glorious voice to be heard, and ſhall ſhew the lighting down of his arm, with the indignation of his anger, and [q] with the flame of a devouring fire, with ſcattering, [r] and tempeſt, [s] and hail-ſtones. 31. For [t] through the voice of the LORD ſhall the Aſſyrian be beaten down [u] which ſmote with a rod. 32. And in every place where the grounded ſtaff ſhall paſs, which the LORD ſhall § lay upon him, [x] it ſhall be with tabrets and harps: and in battles of ſhaking will he fight || with it. 33. For [y] Tophet is ordained of old: yea, [z] for the king it is prepared, he hath made it deep and large: the pile thereof is fire and much wood, the breath of the LORD, like a ſtream of brimſtone, doth kindle it.

[n] Chap. viii. 8.
[o] Chap. xxxvii. 29.
[p] Pſ. xlii. 4.
† Heb. Rock, Deut. xxxii. 4. Pſ. xviii. 31.
‡ Heb. The glory of his voice.
[q] Pſ. l. 3. & xcvii. 3.

Before Chriſt 713.

[r] Chap. xxviii. 2. & xxxii. 19.
[s] Joſh. x. 11.
[t] Chap. xxxvii. 36.
[u] Chap. x. 5. 24.
§ Heb. Cauſe to reſt upon him.
[x] Pſ. lviii. 10. & lxviii. 25. Rev. xix. 1, 2.
|| Or, againſt them.
[y] Joſh. xv. 8. & xviii. 16. Mat. v. 22.
[z] Chap. xxxvii. 38.

v. 27—33. The happineſs of God's people being intimately connected with the deſtruction of their foes, the prophet foretells their utter ruin.

1. The great agent in this, is God himſelf, from heaven ſending forth his terrible wrath againſt the army of Sennacherib, v. 27. ſwallowing up the hoſts of Aſſyria, as a deluge, and ſifting them in the ſieve of vanity; the whole being chaff, diſperſed with the breath of his diſpleaſure: his bridle in their jaws ſhould cauſe them to err, turned backwards from their deſigns of deſtroying Jeruſalem, as a horſe is governed by its rider, v. 28. At his voice his miniſter of flame ſhall go forth armed with lightning, tempeſt, and hail-ſtones; and ſtretching forth his more than mortal arm, ſpread univerſal deſtruction around, v. 30. The rod which ſmote God's people, ſhall now be broken, v. 31. before the grounded ſtaff; the judgment grounded on God's eternal decrees, and lying ſo heavy on the Aſſyrians, that none ſhould be able to withſtand it, in that night of terror, v. 32. Tophet, in the valley of the ſon of Hinnom, where they encamped, is ordained for their ſlaughter-houſe, deep and large; ſo often defiled with the abominable idolatries of thoſe who paſſed their children through the fire to Moloch; rendered abominable, as covered with the blood and corpſes of the ſlain, which the lightning of God ſcorched; or where the Jews burnt the bodies when they found them dead in the morning. Note, (1.) It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God. (2.) The burnings of Tophet repreſent the eternal puniſhment of impenitent ſinners. Our Saviour calls the place of the damned, Gehenna, in alluſion to this valley of Hinnom; there the greateſt kings, as well as the meaneſt ſlaves, whoſe guilt provokes the wrath of God, lie down in flames that never can be quenched; and there the multitude of ſinners, with the devil and his angels, are tormented day and night in thoſe everlaſting burnings, which the breath of the Lord, like a ſtream of brimſtone, doth kindle.

2. As when the ſmoke of the ſinners torment aſcendeth for ever and ever, the ſaints of God ſay Hallelujah, Rev. xix. 3. ſo here the Jews are repreſented as rejoicing over their proud oppreſſors fallen, in ſolemn thankſgivings with tabret and harp, tranſported at the miraculous interpoſition, and aſcribing to the mighty One of Iſrael the praiſe of all his wonderous works. Note, However now the wicked triumph, the time is ſhort, their fall determined, their ruin terrible, and God's juſt judgments upon them, will miniſter matter for his ſaints everlaſting praiſes.

CHAP. XXXI.

This chapter is an abridgment of the foregoing; the heads of it are much the ſame. Here is, 1. A wo to thoſe that when the Aſſyrian army invaded them, truſted to the Egyptians and not to God for ſuccour, ver. 1—3. 2. Aſſurance given that God would defend Jeruſalem in that time of danger, ver. 4, 5. 3. A call to repentance and reformation, ver. 6, 7. 4. A prediction of the fall of the Aſſyrian army, and the fright which the Aſſyrian king ſhould thereby be put into, ver. 8, 9.

1. WO to them [a] that go down to Egypt for help, and [b] ſtay on horſes, and truſt in chariots, becauſe they are many; and in horſemen, becauſe they are very ſtrong: but they look not unto the holy One of Iſrael, neither ſeek the LORD. 2. Yet [c] he alſo is wiſe, and will bring evil, and will not call back his words: but will ariſe againſt the houſe of the evil doers, and againſt the help of them that work iniquity. 3. Now the Egyptians [d] are men and not God, and their horſes fleſh and not ſpirit; when the LORD ſhall ſtretch out his hand, both he that helpeth ſhall fall, and he that is holpen ſhall fall down, and they all ſhall fail together. 4. For thus hath the LORD ſpoken unto me, [e] Like as the lion and the young lion roring on his prey, when a multitude of ſhepherds is called forth againſt him, he will not be afraid of their voice, nor abaſe himſelf for the † noiſe of them: [f] ſo ſhall the LORD of hoſts come down to fight for mount Zion, and for the hill thereof. 5. [g] As birds flying,

[a] Deut. xvii. 16. Chap. xxx. 2. Ezek. xvii. 15.
[b] Pſ. xx. 7.
[c] 1 Tim. i. 17.
[d] Pſ. cxlvi. 3, 4.
[e] Hoſ. xi. 10. Am. iii. 8.
† Or, multitude.
[f] Chap. xlii. 13.
[g] Deut. xxviii. 49. or xxxii. 11. Pſ. xci. 4.

Before Chriſt 713.

flying, ſo will the LORD of hoſts defend Jeruſalem, [h] defending alſo he will deliver it, and [i] paſſing over he will preſerve it.

h Pſ. xxxvii. 40.
i Ex. xii. 12.

v. 1—5. Repeated woes are denounced to awaken the ſinners in Zion; if ſtill they perſiſt in their wicked way, ſurely their blood will be on their own heads.

1. The charge laid againſt them, is their recourſe to Egypt, and neglect of God, v. 1. The numerous hoſts of Pharoah, his chariots and horſemen, ſeemed to afford greater ſecurity to the eye of ſenſe, than the word of promiſe; and therefore they are more ſollicitous to engage his friendſhip, than ſpread their caſe before the holy One of Iſrael. Note, They who conſult with ſenſe, take a bad guide.

2. The folly and danger of their conduct is expoſed. If they wanted wiſdom, lo! God is all wiſe, and they ſhould conſult him: if they wanted might, God was almighty, and could protect them; but when he was ſlighted and neglected, his wiſdom and power, that might have been engaged for them, now are armed againſt them: and what then can the wiſdom or power of Egypt do to ſave them? he will counteract all the ſchemes of their allies, and execute the threatning he hath pronounced againſt the workers of iniquity, v. 2. and by ſad experience they ſhall be taught the vanity of that ſtrength of Pharoah, which they idolized. The Egyptians ſhall be found men frail, falſe, fooliſh, and not God, as they by their confidence in them ſeemed to make them, and their horſes fleſh and not ſpirit; and therefore when the Lord ſhould ſtretch forth his hand, they and their unprofitable helpers muſt fall together, v. 3. Note, (1.) They who affect to be wiſer than their Bibles, will only in the end expoſe their own folly. (2.) The more we know of men, the more we ſhall ſee cauſe to ceaſe from human dependance; the more we know of God, the more ſhall we be engaged to truſt him. (3.) There are many truths evident and allowed by all, and yet in practice we are apt glaringly to contradict them. (4.) The ſinner in the day of wrath ſhall find little comfort or help in his companion, when they ſhall fall together, and receive the reward of their iniquities.

3. Thoſe in Zion, who, without having recourſe to Egypt, truſted God for their ſafety, ſhould find him a ſure refuge in the day of calamity; as a lion ſeizing his prey, that cannot be intimidated by the ſhouting of the ſhepherds, who, daring not to approach him, ſeek to ſcare him with their noiſe; ſo impotent will be the army of the Aſſyrians, when the lion of the tribe of Judah ſhall come to fight for his Zion, v. 4. ſwift as the eagle will he fly to their ſuccour, and ſafe preſerve them, when the deſtroying angel ſhall paſs over to ſmite their enemies, and by their deſtruction deliver Jeruſalem. Note, In the midſt of danger they are ſafe whom God with tenderneſs unutterable covers under his wings, as a hen gathereth her chickens, and defends with an arm of almighty and irreſiſtible power. Oh, that we did but truſt him!

6. ¶ Turn ye unto him from whom [k] the children of Iſrael have deeply revolted. 7. For in that day every man [l] ſhall caſt away his idols of ſilver, and his idols of gold, which your own hands have made unto you for a ſin. 8. ¶ Then [m] ſhall the Aſſyrian fall with the ſword, not of a mighty man; and the ſword, not of a mean man ſhall devour him: but he ſhall flee from the ſword, and his young men ſhall be † diſcomfited. 9. [n] And ‡ he ſhall paſs over to his ſtrong-hold for fear, and his princes ſhall be afraid of the enſign, ſaith the LORD, [o] whoſe fire is in Zion, and his furnace in Jeruſalem.

k Hoſ. ix. 9.
l Chap. ii. 20. & xxvii. 9. & xxx. 22.
m Chap. xxxvii. 36.
† Heb. For melting, or tribute.
n Chap. xxxvii. 37.
‡ Heb. His rock ſhall paſs away for fear.
o Lev. vi. 13. or Pſ. xxi. 9. Zech. ii. 5.

v. 6—9. We have here,

1. A gracious call to repentance. God had not caſt them off, though they had baſely forſaken him, and deeply revolted from him: he calls them children of Iſrael as a reproach for their ingratitude, to beget conviction of their baſeneſs, and engage their hope, ſeeing, though they deſerved to be diſowned, he ſtill regarded them as his ſons and daughters, and invited them to turn to him, with aſſurances of kind acceptance. Note, (1.) If the goodneſs of God will not lead us ſinners to repentance, nothing will. (2.) It is never too late to return to God; the deepeſt revolters will find their king, on humble ſubmiſſion, never inexorable.

2. A bleſſed reformation wrought. In that day, when their deliverance ſhould appear ſo evidently the work of God's hand, vanquiſhed by almighty grace, they ſhould caſt away their idols of gold and ſilver, the work which their own hands had made to ſin: ſo bent were they upon idolatry, that no coſt or pains were ſpared; but now their ſin is their burden, and their idols deteſted and abhorred. Note, (1.) In a day of repentance our tempters to ſin will be loathed more than ever they have been loved. (2.) Every man hath his peculiar idol luſt, the indulgence of which will be his bittereſt burden when God awakens his conſcience, and againſt which he muſt place an eſpecial guard.

3. A glorious victory obtained. The Aſſyrian ſhall fall, not by an arm of fleſh, but by the immediate ſtroke of God: and whilſt the army is diſcomfitted, their king in terrors ſhall flee, and his princes, the few who eſcape with him, ſhall paſs over to his ſtrong-hold, or, his rock ſhall paſs over for fear; his mighty warriors who were left, trembling at the terrible enſign in the air, the deſtroying angel with his drawn ſword, or leaſt they ſhould be purſued by the Jews in their flight, and dreading that fiery furnace of wrath that burns ſo hot againſt the enemies of Zion. Some interpret the laſt words, of God's altar at Jeruſalem, on which the fire burned continually; and of his conſtant reſidence there as in his own houſe. Note, (1.) When God contends, he will overcome. (2.) If preſent judgments are ſo terrible, what muſt be the fire of hell, and the furnace of eternal wrath! (3.) The ſame God which is a conſuming fire to his enemies, is a wall of fire around his people to protect them, and a fire of love within their hearts to comfort them.

Before Chriſt 713.

CHAP. XXXII.

Hezekiah is here the type of Chriſt, to whom this chapter moſt properly belongs. We have here, 1. The bleſſing of his people under his government, protected by his grace, and taught by his word, ver. 1—4. 2. The hypocriſy and covetouſneſs of the Jews, ver. 5—8. 3. The deſtruction threatned, which they are called to lament, ver. 9—14. 4. The happy times that ſhould ſucceed, ver. 15—20.

1. BEHOLD, [a] a king ſhall reign in righteouſneſs, and princes ſhall rule in judgment. 2. And † a man ſhall be [b] as an hiding-place from the wind, and [c] a covert from the tempeſt: as [d] rivers of water in a dry place, as [e] the ſhadow of a great rock in a weary land. 3. And [f] the eyes of them that ſee, ſhall not be dim; and the ears of them that hear ſhall hearken. 4. The heart alſo of the ‡ raſh ſhall underſtand knowledge, and the tongue of the ſtammerers ſhall be ready to ſpeak § plainly. 5. ‖ The vile perſon [g] ſhall be no more called liberal, nor the churl ſaid to be bountiful. 6. For the vile perſon will ſpeak villany, and his heart will work iniquity, to practiſe hypocriſy, and to utter error againſt the LORD, to make empty the ſoul of the hungry, and [h] he will cauſe the drink of the thirſty to fail. 7. The inſtruments alſo of the churl are evil: he deviſeth wicked devices to deſtroy the poor with lying words, even when † the needy ſpeaketh right. 8. But [i] the liberal deviſeth liberal things, and by liberal things ſhall he ‡ ſtand.

a Jer. xxiii. 5. Dan. vii. 14. Zech. ix. 9.
† Or, that man, 1 Tim. ii. 5.
b Pſ. xxxii. 7.
c Chap. iv. 6.
d John vii. 37, 38.
e Chap. xxv. 4.
f Chap. xxxv. 5, 6.
‡ Heb. Haſty.
§ Or, elegantly.
‖ Heb. Nabal, i. e. the fool, 1 Sam. xxv. 25.
g Mal. iii. 18.
h Luke xi. 52.
† Or, he ſpeaketh againſt the poor in judgment.
i 2 Cor. ix. 9.
‡ Or, be eſtabliſhed, Prov. xii. 7.

v. 1—8. Under Hezekiah's government the people enjoyed great bleſſings: himſelf a righteous governor; his princes copying his example; by them the oppreſſed were protected, the ignorant inſtructed, the law of God both taught and underſtood; and as the conſequence thereof, a right eſtimation made of the characters of men, as viewed in this glaſs of truth. And to this the prophecy primarily may refer; but we may ſay of it truly, a greater than Hezekiah is here.

1. The righteous government of Chriſt is foretold. Behold, with tranſport and joy, a king, the Lord upon his throne, ſhall reign in righteouſneſs, protecting his people, and puniſhing his enemies; his laws moſt equitable, and his adminiſtration altogether righteous: and princes ſhall reign in judgment; the biſhops and paſtors ordained by him to have rule in the church, who preach his goſpel, adminiſter his ordinances, and execute their office according to his appointment.

2. His people ſhall be ſaved from wrath by him. A man, or that man, ſhall be as an hiding-place from the wind, and a covert from the tempeſt; by him the ſinner's ſoul is ſheltered from the ſtorm of Divine vengeance, which, by the interpoſition of his own body on the tree, he hath endured for them, and from the fiery darts of Satan, and the fierce temptations of ſin, that elſe would overwhelm them: as rivers of water in a dry place; refreſhing, quickening, and comforting the ſouls of his people, when parched up as the dry ground for want of rain, or fainting with thirſt under the aſſaults of corruption; as the ſhadow of a great rock in a weary land; ſuch a weariſome land the chriſtian pilgrim finds this world; and ſcorched with the ſultry beams of perſecution, affliction, and temptation, muſt utterly fail but for this hoſpitable ſhadow, which Chriſt his rock ſpreads over him; there he feels ſupport miniſtered, there he is hid in the hour of trial; and under this ſhadow, ſitting with great delight, renews his ſtrength, and is enabled for the remainder of life's journey, till in the grave he ſhall find his home and reſt.

3. Great light and knowledge ſhall be diffuſed. The eyes of them that ſee, ſhall not be dim, but diſtinctly, and abidingly diſcover the light of the glory of God in the goſpel of his dear Son,

Before Chriſt 713.

Son, and ſhall know him from the leaſt to the greateſt; and the ears of them that hear ſhall hearken; earneſt to ſearch the ſcriptures, and to obtain deeper diſcoveries of Divine truth. The heart alſo of the raſh ſhall underſtand knowledge; to which they before paid no regard, or haſtily miſtook the meaning of the ſacred oracles; and the tongue of the ſtammerers ſhall be ready to ſpeak plainly, or elegantly, as when illiterate Galileans were endued with wiſdom from above; or, as is ſtill the caſe, when by Divine grace the ſoul is led into the knowledge of the goſpel, and taught of the ſpirit, and then even a child can ſpeak more diſtinctly of the things of God, than the wiſeſt unenlightened man.

4. Eminent diſcernment, to diſtinguiſh the characters of men, and fidelity to reprove, ſhall then be in the miniſters of Chriſt; weighing perſons in the balance of the ſanctuary, they ſhall not give flattering titles, but charge men's ſins home upon their conſciences, v. 5. or the meaning is, that then the vile perſon Nabal, a fool, ſhall be no more called Nadib a prince, nor put in truſt with the goſpel, which his folly muſt diſgrace; nor the churl, the covetous perſon, be called bountiful or honourable, ſince ignorance in underſtanding, and covetouſneſs in temper, would be a ſcandal to the miniſtry. For the vile perſon, or the fool, will ſpeak villany, or folly; advancing doctrines oppoſite to the oracles of wiſdom, ſuch as the rectitude of human nature, the freedom of man's will, the merit of works, &c. and his heart will work iniquity, which is the natural fruit of falſe principles; to practiſe hypocriſy, pretending a regard for the intereſts of piety and religion, when moſt effectually ſapping the foundations of true holineſs, and to utter error againſt the Lord, denying the Godhead, or debaſing the glory of the Redeemer, to make empty the ſoul of the hungry, by withholding from them the bread of life; and he will cauſe the drink of the thirſty to fail, by turning them away from the doctrines of the free, all-ſufficient, and ſovereign grace of God, the fountain of living waters, to the empty and broken ciſterns of good reſolutions formed in man's ſelf-ſufficient ſtrength. The inſtruments alſo of the churl are evil; his methods to gratify his covetouſneſs, being more ſollicitous about his own gain, than the good of the ſouls committed to him: he deviſeth wicked devices to deſtroy the poor, or afflicted, with lying words, even when the needy ſpeaketh right things; if any under ſoul-concern come to enquire, he gives them bad advice how to get rid of their convictions, and heals the hurt ſlightly; contriving to prejudice them againſt thoſe who were able to extricate them from their troubles, in the way of grace and truth. Such is the character of a falſe and faithleſs miniſter: but the liberal deviſeth liberal things; being poſſeſſed of a princely ſpirit, meet for a ruler in God's church: fraught with Divine grace, or perhaps enjoying the bleſſings of providence, he contrives how to be uſeful, diſpenſing the doctrines of the goſpel zealouſly; not for filthy lucre's ſake, but of a willing mind, and is an example to believers in charity and liberality; and by liberal things he ſhall ſtand, or be eſtabliſhed; his own ſpirit ſtrengthened, and a bleſſing beſtowed on his labours.

9. ¶ Riſe up, ye women that are [k] at eaſe, hear my voice; ye careleſs daughters, give ear unto my ſpeech. 10. † Many days and years ſhall ye be troubled, ye careleſs women: for the vintage ſhall fail, the gathering ſhall not come. 11. Tremble, ye women [k] that are at eaſe; be troubled, ye careleſs ones: [l] ſtrip ye and make ye bare, and gird ſackcloth upon your loins. 12. They ſhall lament for the teats, for the pleaſant ‡ fields, for the fruitful vine. 13. [m] Upon the land of my people ſhall come up thorns and briers; § yea, upon all the houſes of joy in the ‖ joyous city: 14. Becauſe [n] the palaces ſhall be forſaken, the multitude of the city ſhall be left, the forts and † towers ſhall be for dens for ever, a joy of wild aſſes, a paſture of flocks: 15. Until [o] the Spirit be poured upon us from on high, and [p] the wilderneſs be a fruitful field, and the fruitful field be counted for a foreſt. 16. Then judgment ſhall dwell in the wilderneſs, and righteouſneſs remain in the fruitful field. 17. And [q] the work of righteouſneſs ſhall be peace, and the effect of righteouſneſs, quietneſs, and aſſurance for ever. 18. And my people ſhall dwell in a peaceable habitation, and in ſure dwellings, and in quiet reſting-places: 19. [r] When it ſhall hail, coming down on the foreſt; and the city ſhall be low in a low place. 20. Bleſſed are ye [s] that ſow beſide all waters, that ſend forth thither the feet of the ox and the aſs.

† Heb. Days above a year.
[k] Am. vi. 1.
[l] Chap. iii. 24.
‡ Heb. Fields of deſire.
[m] Chap. xxxiv. 13. Hoſ. ix. 6. Pſ. cvii. 34.
§ Or, burning upon.
‖ Or, revelling, Chap. xxii. 2.
[n] 2 Kings xxv. 9.
† Or, watch-towers.
[o] Chap. xliv. 3. Joel ii. 28. John xiv. 26.
[p] Chap. xxix. 17. & xxxv. 2.
[q] James iii. 18.
[r] Chap. xxx. 30. Rev. xvi. 21.
[s] Eccleſ. xi. 1. Mat. xiii. 8. 1 Cor. ix. 10.

v. 9—20. We have here,

1. A warning of approaching judgments, directed to the daughters of Zion, whoſe wantonneſs, pride, and vanity, had contributed to fill up the meaſure of the nation's iniquities. They are repreſented as careleſs, or confident, and at eaſe, without any concern, either about their ſin or danger; but they are called to hear the word of God and tremble, and by immediate humiliation, v. 11. prevent, if poſſible, the impending wrath of the Almighty, or prepare to meet it. Heavy is the threatned judgment; the vintage failing through drought, or conſumed by the enemy, v. 10. the paſtures ravaged, or withered away, ſo that the kine ſhould not give their milk, v. 12. the land deſolate, and producing only briars and thorns; their joyous houſes, where mirth and pleaſure reigned, ruined, v. 13. the palaces forſaken, the city deſerted, the fortifications mouldering away, and Zion become the den of beaſts and wild aſſes, whilſt flocks graze in the ſtreets, once crowded with inhabitants; and this deſolation abiding for ever: which directs us to apply this cataſtrophe not to the deſtruction of Jeruſalem by the Chaldeans, but to the final ruin it afterwards underwent, and in which it lies to this day. Note, (1.) When men live careleſs, and at eaſe, in their ſins, death will come upon them with a terrible ſurprize. (2.) They who have abuſed their plenty to pride and exceſs, juſtly are made to feel the miſeries of want. (3.) The only way to prevent our eternal ſorrows, is by a timely regard to God's warnings, and by preſent humiliation for our ſins. (4.) They who continue impenitent, will quickly experience an awful change, when their houſes of joy and pleaſure muſt be quitted for an abode in everlaſting burnings, where there is weeping, and wailing, and gnaſhing of teeth.

2. A promiſe of future bleſſings: which looks forward to the latter days of the goſpel diſpenſation: for ſo long will Jeruſalem be trodden down of the Gentiles, Luke xxi. 24.

(1.) The Spirit ſhall be poured out from on high; from heaven, as in the days of pentecoſt; and this ſhall be again abundantly the caſe in the laſt days, when Jews and Gentiles ſhall be converted, and made one fold under one ſhepherd. Note, The deſolations of every fallen ſoul muſt for ever continue, unleſs the Spirit from on high be poured out to convert and renew the heart of the ſinner.

(2.) A mighty change ſhall be produced by his Divine power. The wilderneſs ſhall be a fruitful field, and the fruitful field be counted for a foreſt; the world that was as a wilderneſs, full of impiety and iniquity, now, by grace renewed, ſhall bring forth the fruits of righteouſneſs and true holineſs, and numerous converts, thick as the trees of the foreſt, be added to the church daily. Then judgment ſhall dwell in the wilderneſs; the word of God, and the doctrines according to godlineſs, be received and embraced by thoſe who before were utterly ignorant of them, or at enmity againſt them; and righteouſneſs remain in the fruitful field; thoſe who are effectually wrought upon, ſhall abide faithful, and increaſing in every Divine temper and diſpoſition. And the work of righteouſneſs ſhall be peace; either the work of Divine grace, which the Spirit works in the heart, ſhall produce peace, as it is the evidence of our reconciliation with God; or rather the perfect work of righteouſneſs, wrought out by the Redeemer, ſhall give us the moſt ſolid grounds of peace with God, and in our own conſciences; and the effect of righteouſneſs, quietneſs and aſſurance for ever; for if intereſted in the Redeemer's perfect work, no troubles need diſturb, no accuſations of ſin or Satan diſtreſs us; we may reſt ſatisfied in him, and with unfailing confidence expect the conſtant ſupplies of his grace, ſtrength, and conſolations on earth, and the certain poſſeſſion of the inheritance purchaſed for us in glory everlaſting. And my people ſhall dwell in a peaceable habitation, and in ſure dwellings, and in quiet reſting-places; the enmity between Jew and Gentiles being utterly aboliſhed, their foes of earth and hell reſtrained from diſturbing their repoſe, their comfort and proſperity ſecured for ever, and none to make them afraid: when it ſhall hail, coming down on the foreſt; the ſtorm of wrath being poured on the ungodly, ſee Rev. xvi. 21. and the ſeat of antichriſtian oppreſſion and tyranny laid in the duſt, Rev. xvi. 19—21. Note, (1.) Wherever the ſpirit of God is poured out on a ſoul, immediately the fruit will be holineſs to the Lord. (2.) A clear diſcovery, and a full perſuaſion of the all-ſufficiency of the finiſhed righteouſneſs of a Redeemer, is the ſolid ground of peace within; and whilſt our ſouls fix on this alone, we may reſt aſſured, there neither is nor can be any condemnation. (3.) Whenever the ſoul, complete in Jeſus, makes mention of his righteouſneſs only, then will the heart experience moſt abundantly the transforming power of Divine grace, and grow like him, from whom cometh our ſalvation. (4.) Whatever troubles diſturb our preſent repoſe; if we are found in Chriſt, we know there is a manſion of eternal reſt provided for his redeemed. (5.) When ſtorms of vengeance deſcend on the ungodly, they who have fled for refuge to the hope ſet before them, are ſure to be hid in the day of the Lord's fierce anger.

(3.) An eſpecial bleſſing is promiſed to the miniſters of God, and their labours; as diligent huſbandmen caſt their ſeed on well watered lands, and ſee it ſpringing up ſo faſt, that their cattle are let in to crop it, or at harveſt bring home the corn; ſo ſhall the word of God be in their mouths, quickened by the Spirit, producing an abundant harveſt of ſouls, in whom they ſee the fruit of their labours, and who will be their crown, and rejoicing in the day of the Lord Jeſus. Note, They who ſow beſide all waters, take every opportunity of doing good, ſhall find God not unrighteous to forget their works of faith and labour of love.

Before Chriſt 713.

CHAP. XXXIII.

This chapter relates to the ſame events with the foregoing; wherein the invaſion of Sennacherib, and the deliverance of Jeruſalem, are a figure of the ſufferings and deliverance of the church from the power of Antichriſt. 1. Here is a wo denounced, ver. 1. 2. The prayer of God's people, ver. 2. 3. An anſwer given them, ver. 2—6. 4. The diſtreſs which would preceed their deliverance, ver. 7—12. 5. Notice given of it, for the confuſion of hypocrites, and the comfort of the faithful, ver. 13—19. 6. The church of Chriſt finally triumphant, ver. 20—24.

1. WO to thee [a] that ſpoileſt, and thou waſt not ſpoiled; and dealeſt treacherouſly, and they dealt not treacherouſly with thee: [b] when thou ſhalt ceaſe to ſpoil, thou ſhalt be ſpoiled; and when thou ſhalt make an end to deal treacherouſly, [c] they ſhall deal treacherouſly with thee. 2. O LORD, be gracious unto us, [d] we have waited for thee: be thou their arm every morning, [e] our ſalvation alſo in the time of trouble. 3. At the noiſe of the tumult [f] the people fled: at the lifting up of thyſelf the nations were ſcattered. 4. And your ſpoil ſhall be gathered like the gathering of the caterpiller: as the running to and fro of locuſts ſhall he run upon them. 5. The LORD is exalted: for [g] he dwelleth on high, he hath filled Zion with judgment and righteouſneſs. 6. And [h] wiſdom and knowledge ſhall be the ſtability of thy times, and ſtrength of ſalvation: the fear of the LORD is his treaſure. 7. Behold, their † valiant ones ſhall cry without: [i] the ambaſſadors of peace ſhall weep bitterly. 8. [k] The high-ways lie waſte, the way-faring man ceaſeth, [l] he hath broken the covenant, [m] he hath deſpiſed the cities, he regardeth no man. 9. The earth mourneth and languiſheth: [n] Lebanon is aſhamed and hewn down: Sharon is like a wilderneſs, and Baſhan and Carmel ſhake off their fruits. 10. [o] Now will I riſe, ſaith the LORD: now will I be exalted, now will I lift up myſelf. 11. Ye ſhall [p] conceive chaff, ye ſhall bring forth ſtubble: your breath as fire ſhall devour you. 12. And the people ſhall be as the burnings of lime: as thorns cut up ſhall they be burnt in the fire.

[a] Chap. xxi. 2. Hab. ii. 8.
[b] Rev. xiii. 10.
[c] Mat. vii. 2.
[d] Chap. xxv. 9. & xxvi. 8.
[e] Pſ. xxii. 4, 5.
[f] Chap. xxxvi. 37.
[g] Pſ. xciii. 4.
[h] Eccleſ. vii. 12.
† Or, meſſengers.
[i] Chap. xxxvi. 22.
[k] Judges v. 6.
[l] 2 Kings xviii. 14, &c.
[m] 2 Chron. xxxii. 1.
[n] Chap. xiv. 8. & xxxvii. 24.
[o] Pſ. xii. 5. & cii. 13.
[p] Pſ. vii. 14.

v. 1—12. The ſubject of this prophecy is variouſly interpreted; ſome refer it to the ſtate of the Jews under Hezekiah, when Sennacherib diſtreſſed them and was deſtroyed; others to the deſolations made by Antiochus, and to the victorious arms of the Macchabees over him; others to the church of Chriſt, oppreſſed by the antichriſtian foe, and his final ruin; and all theſe may be comprehended herein, and the former deliverances of God's church prefigure thoſe of the latter day. Here is,

1. The wo denounced on the ſpoiler and treacherous dealer: for a while his politics would ſucceed, and his power prevail, however cruelly or unjuſtly exerciſed; but God will return his evil upon his own head, and at the appointed time viſit upon him his wickedneſs: and this was the caſe with Sennacherib and Antiochus, as it will be of the Romiſh antichriſt, whoſe politics, craft, and deceivableneſs of unrighteouſneſs, are well-known; and by theſe, long hath he made a prey of men's goods, bodies, and ſouls; but at laſt God will viſit him according to his deſerts. See Rev. xiii. 11. xvii. 12—16. Note, (1.) To compaſs their ends, the wicked heſitate not at falſehood, fraud, or violence; but God knows how to repay them in their own coin. (2.) There are appointed bounds ſet to men's wickedneſs, and when they have filled up the meaſure of their iniquities, God will awake to judgment.

2. The people of God in prayer fly to him in the day of their calamity. O Lord, be gracious unto us, interpoſe to ſave us from every enemy; we have waited for thee, not fainting in the time of adverſity, but expecting thy ſalvation: be thou their arm every morning; which either is a requeſt for Hezekiah and the princes, that they might be ſtrengthened for their work; or rather it is the interceſſion of the members of the church one for another, every morning offered, for grace to enable them for the work of every day: be thou our ſalvation alſo in time of trouble, from all the perſecutions and diſtreſs under which in body or ſoul we groan, being burdened. Note, (1.) When we have a gracious God to go to, there is comfort under every affliction. (2.) They who wait on him, will never be forſaken by him. (3.) Every morning our prayer muſt be renewed, for every day we may expect freſh trials, and need renewed ſupports, for we have no power of ourſelves to help ourſelves. (4.) We muſt be advocates for each other, and eſpecially remember thoſe who are afflicted in our prayers. (5.) The higher the ſtorm of temptation blows, the faſter ſhould we cling to the rock of our ſalvation.

3. An anſwer of peace is given. Their enemies, the Aſſyrians, ſhall be terrified before the deſtroying angel, and whilſt ſome flee, and more are ſlain, they have nothing to do but ruſh on the ſpoil without reſiſtance, as when a flight of locuſts devours the field, v. 4. And thus ſhall it be in the laſt days, when the ruin of the antichriſtian armies is compleated, the conquerors ſhall devour the ſpoil. See Rev. xvii. 16. Note, (1.) God not only anſwers our prayer, but often exceeds all our expectations. (2.) To ſpoil the ſpoiler is a juſt repriſal.

4. The people of God celebrate the praiſe of their deliverer; they adore him for the manifeſtation of his glory, made in the deſtruction of the Aſſyrians, and for the bleſſed effects his mercy produced among themſelves, filling Zion with judgment and righteouſneſs. From what they had experienced, they encourage Hezekiah to proceed in his pious work of reformation, ſince wiſdom and knowledge of God's will and worſhip, by his care diffuſed, would be the ſtability of his times, and the bleſt means of ſecuring their preſent happy ſtate, and the ſtrength of ſalvation their ſecurity againſt every invader: and the fear of the Lord, either in his own heart, or in the hearts of his ſubjects, is his treaſure; a better portion, and a ſurer protection againſt his enemies than all other riches: ſuch will alſo be the praiſes aſcribed to their Redeemer, when the antichriſtian foe is fallen, Rev. xv. 1, 2. and the kingdom of Chriſt eminently eſtabliſhed; then wiſdom and knowledge will be abundantly diffuſed, and thoſe times be bleſſed with durable peace and joy, the ſalvation of God's people be ſure and eternal, and their hearts enriched with the beſt treaſure, even that fear of the Lord which will keep them that they ſhall never depart from him. Note, (1.) Since the work of our ſalvation is from Chriſt alone, we are moſt bounden to aſcribe to him alone the praiſe. (2.) Wherever the kingdom of Jeſus is eſtabliſhed in any heart, there juſtice towards men, and righteouſneſs towards God, will immediately take place. (3.) A true knowledge of the grace of God, is the great ſtability of the ſoul. (4.) The fear of God is the chriſtian's beſt treaſure.

5. The diſtreſſed ſtate they would be in, ſhall ſerve to heighthen the joy of their deliverance. Their valiant ones are repreſented as crying in deſpair; their embaſſadors weeping over their diſappointment from Egypt, v. 7. all trade ſtagnated, and no traveller daring to go to the ſolemn feaſts, or on any buſineſs, whilſt the Aſſyrians waſte the country; the covenant is violated by Sennacherib, ſee 2 Kings xviii. 14—17. their fortified cities taken, and no man regarded, or compaſſion ſhown to any, v. 8. the country utterly waſted, and the moſt fruitful ſpots turned into a wilderneſs, v. 9. And ſuch will be the deſolate condition of God's church, when the Lord in the latter day ſhall ariſe to deliver his redeemed: the miniſters, who were valiant for truth, ſhall cry out under perſecution, and be ſlain publickly; ſee Rev. xi. 3—8. the ambaſſadors of peace be ſilenced, and weep in ſecret over the miſeries of the church, v. 7. none daring to frequent the ordinances of God's worſhip, becauſe of the pains and penalties inflicted by the perſecuting power of Antichriſt, whom no covenants can bind, it being a maxim with him, that no faith is to be kept with heretics: his power will then prevail over the reformed countries, and their cities be taken and inſulted, v. 8. The world will groan under his yoke; and where pure chriſtianity moſt flouriſhed, it will be deſtroyed: the miniſters, like cedars of Lebanon, againſt whom the greateſt enmity is ſhown, will be hewn down, and the people compelled to receive the mark of the beaſt, or be deſtroyed, v. 9.

6. At laſt theſe deſolations ſhall come to an end, when the Aſſyrians are in the heighth of their triumphs. Now will I ariſe, ſaith the Lord; at the critical time: now will I be exalted, in the reſcue of his people, and the ruin of his enemies; now will I lift up myſelf to judgment: the conſequence of which will be, the abortion of the ſanguine hopes of the Aſſyrians; and their blaſphemies, like fire among the ſtubble, will provoke God to burn them up, v. 11. miſerably and utterly conſumed, as ſtones burnt to lime, or thorns ſuddenly vaniſhing into flame and ſmoak, v. 12. And thus will the Lord alſo ariſe, when ſunk to the loweſt ebb his church is trampled down, and antichriſt triumphant: his vengeance ſhall be poured on his foes, their politics confounded, and their ſchemes fruſtrated, their power broken, and all their rage and perſecution of his people, and blaſphemies againſt himſelf, ſhall kindle that fire which never can be quenched; where they muſt lie down together, as ſtones collected in the lime-kiln, and as thorns bound in bundles for the burning. See Rev. xvii. 16. xix. 20. Note, (1.) When we are moſt diſtreſſed and deſperate, then is God's time to appear for our ſalvation. (2.) They that are hardened, as the ſtones againſt God's warning, and hurtful and noxious as the thorns in the field, are nigh unto curſing, whoſe end is to be burned.

13. ¶

13. ¶ Hear ye that are far off, what I have done; and ye that are near, acknowledge my might. 14. [q] The ſinners in Zion are afraid, fearfulneſs hath ſurpriſed the hypocrites: who among us ſhall dwell with the devouring fire? who amongſt us ſhall dwell with everlaſting burnings? 15. He that [r] walketh † righteouſly, and ſpeaketh uprightly, he that deſpiſeth the gain of oppreſſions, that ſhaketh his hands from holding of bribes, that ſtoppeth his ears from hearing of blood, and [s] ſhutteth his eyes from ſeeing evil: 16. He ſhall dwell on ‡ high: his place of defence ſhall be the munitions of rocks, bread ſhall be given him, his waters ſhall be ſure. 17. Thine eyes ſhall ſee [t] the king in his beauty: they ſhall behold the land that is very far off. 18. Thine heart ſhall meditate terror: [u] Where is the ſcribe? where is the § receiver? where is he that counted the towers? 19. [x] Thou ſhalt not ſee a fierce people, [y] a people of a deeper ſpeech than thou canſt perceive; of a ‖ ſtammering tongue, that thou canſt not underſtand. 20. Look upon Zion the city of our ſolemnities: thine eyes ſhall ſee Jeruſalem a quiet habitation, [z] a tabernacle that ſhall not be taken down, not one of the ſtakes thereof ſhall ever be removed, neither ſhall any of the cords thereof be broken. 21. But there the glorious LORD will be unto us a place of † broad rivers and ſtreams; wherein ſhall go no galley with oars, neither ſhall gallant ſhip paſs thereby. 22. For the LORD is our judge, [a] the LORD is our law-giver, the LORD is our king, [b] he will ſave us. 23. Thy tacklings are looſed, they could not well ſtrengthen their maſt, they could not ſpread the ſail: then is the prey of a great ſpoil divided, [c] the lame take the prey. 24. And the inhabitant ſhall not ſay, I am ſick: [d] the people that dwell therein ſhall be forgiven their iniquity.

[q] Job xv. 24.
[r] Pſ. xv. 2. & xxiv. 4.
† Heb. In righteouſneſſes.
[s] Pſ. cxix. 37.
‡ Heb. High places, Pſ. xviii. 33.
[t] 1 John iii. 2.
[u] 1 Cor. i. 20.
§ Heb. Weigher.
[x] 2 Kings xix. 32.
[y] Deut. xxviii. 49. Jer. v. 15.
‖ Or, ridiculous.
[z] Pſ xlvi. 5. & cxxv. 1.
[2] Mat. xvi. 18.
† Heb. Broad of ſpaces, or hands.
[a] James iv. 12.
[b] Pſ. lxix. 35. Chap. xxxvii. 35.
[c] Pſ. lxviii. 12.
[d] Jer. l. 20.

v. 13—24. When the eternal Jehovah ſpeaks, let every mortal hear, and all the world acknowledge his power and glory, v. 13. which appear eſpecially,

1. In the terror and deſtruction of the wicked and the hypocrite. As the ſinners and hypocrites in Zion have peculiar guilt, they may well tremble at their full meaſure of judgment, v. 14. when they ſee Jeruſalem ready to be beſieged, and expect to have their houſes fired, they are in diſtraction, have no hope in God, and Egypt hath failed them; or when they ſaw the Aſſyrians ſo terribly conſumed, they trembled leaſt the devouring fire ſhould reach them alſo. Note, (1.) Of all men they are moſt guilty, who amidſt the light of goſpel truth perſiſt in the ways of ſin and formality. (2.) The day will come when the moſt ſecure ſinner will be ſtartled. (3.) If men would ſeriouſly put the queſtion to their ſouls, how they can dwell with devouring fire, and endure the everlaſting burnings, it might awaken their conſciences, and prevent their ruin. (4.) This terrible portion muſt they ſhortly and ſurely receive, who neglect to fly from the wrath to come, to that Redeemer who alone can hide them in the day of judgment.

2. In the ſalvation of the righteous, whoſe character is here diſplayed: He that walketh righteouſly, making God's word his rule, conſcientious in all his dealings, and perſevering in the worſhip of the Lord; and ſpeaketh uprightly, his word is ſacred, his converſation gracious, and ſuited to miniſter edification to others: he that deſpiſeth the gain of oppreſſion, who thinks it infamous to fatten upon the ſpoil of the injured, and mean as wicked to commit injuſtice; that ſhaketh his hands from holding of bribes, rejects them, when offered, with indignation; that ſtoppeth his ears from hearing of blood, cannot be brought to liſten to any cruel or oppreſſive propoſal; and ſhutteth his eyes from ſeeing evil, cannot bear to ſee others ſin, and ſtops up that dangerous avenue at which temptation might enter: he ſhall dwell on high, ſecure in the everlaſting love of God from all thoſe evils that terrify the wicked: his place of defence ſhall be in the munition of rocks, even Chriſt the rock of ages, his impregnable fortreſs, againſt which the gates of hell, and the floods of temptation, rage in vain; bread ſhall be given unto him, and his water ſhall be ſure; when famine rages, he ſhall not want in the ſiege; or rather he ſhall eat the living bread, of which the world knoweth not, and be refreſhed with the ſtreams of Divine grace, and eternal conſolations, when the ſinner and hypocrite in flames cannot obtain one drop of water to quench their raging thirſt.

3. Many great and diſtinguiſhing mercies are here promiſed, applicable not only to the Jews, but more generally to all the faithful, who ſhall be delivered at the laſt day from the power of the wicked one.

(1.) They ſhall ſee the king in his beauty, Hezekiah in his royal robes, and the land afar off, whither for fear of the Aſſyrians before they dared not go, v. 17. And how much greater joy will it afford to the faithful ſoul, in that diſtant realm of eternal day, to ſee Jeſus their king, brighter than the ſun, ſitting on his throne of glory, and themſelves as ſtars ſhining around him?

(2.) Their fears ſhall be at an end, and ſerve them but for matter of grateful meditation; the terrors that compaſſed them are fled; they hear no more the voice of commanders within, collecting the ſupplies, or numbering the people for the battle, or the captains and engineers of Aſſyria without, threatning their ruin, v. 18. They ſee no longer a fierce nation, whoſe ſpeech they could not underſtand, and whoſe voice ſpread diſmay; all are now dead corpſes, or fled. Thus when our ſouls ſhall reach the heavenly Zion, our paſt trials, however grievous, ſhall be remembered with delight; and all our foes, which bred in us ſo many fears, be for ever ſunk in darkneſs, and incapable ever more of troubling our repoſe.

(3.) They ſhall look with tranſport on Zion, the city of their ſolemnities: during the ſiege theſe had been interrupted, and they might fear never would be reſtored; but lo, once more in peace, their habitation is quiet, and God promiſes long to preſerve his tabernacle among them, and to diſappoint the malice of thoſe who ſought to deſtroy it, v. 20. The earthly Zion is long ſince indeed demoliſhed; but we look for a city which hath foundations, whoſe maker and builder is God, even the new Jeruſalem, to which this prophecy hath eſpecial regard; where God's ſaints night and day ſhall ſerve him, and go out no more for ever, having found their glorious reſt, and dwelling ſafe from fear of evil. See Rev. iii. 12.

(4.) They ſhall have the Lord, glorious in power and holineſs, for their protector, law-giver, judge, and Saviour. Though Jeruſalem had no navigable river to further commerce, or ſerve for a ſecurity againſt their enemies, God would be all that to her in his bleſſing; no galley, or gallant ſhip, could bring an invading army againſt her; and inacceſſible would he preſerve her from every foe: their judge to avenge his people's wrongs; their law-giver to direct their conduct; their king to govern with gentleneſs, and protect them from danger; in ſhort, their Saviour to the uttermoſt. Note, (1.) If God be ours, all thing are ours, every bleſſing is then ſecured in time and eternity. (2.) The Lord Chriſt is this judge, law-giver, king, and Saviour, to his redeemed; and if, as his ſubjects, our ſouls are yielded up to his government, who can pluck us out of his hands?

(5.) Their enemies, like a ſhip in a ſtorm, diſmaſted, and the rigging torn in pieces, a perfect wreck, and ready to be daſhed in pieces againſt the rocks, ſhould ſee all their hopes blaſted, and themſelves a prey; ſo helpleſs to defend themſelves, that even the lame ſhould divide their ſpoil, v. 23.

(6.) Sickneſs ſhall be removed, and ſin pardoned. The diſeaſes of Jeruſalem, ariſing from their confinement, would be at an end; and the people, returning to God under a ſenſe of Divine mercy, obtain pardon and acceptance with him: and this will be emphatically fulfilled in the days of the church's proſperity; when, with the pardon and grace, then abundantly diſpenſed, Chriſt will heal all the ſickneſs of the ſouls of his people; and at laſt, when mortality ſhall be ſwallowed up of life, ſin, ſorrow, ſickneſs, pain, and death, ſhall be for ever baniſhed from the eternal ſtate of bliſs and glory.

CHAP. XXXIV.

In this chapter we have the fatal doom of all the nations that are enemies to God's church and people: Edom is only mentioned, but we have reaſon to ſuppoſe it is intended as a denunciation of the wrath of God againſt all thoſe who fight againſt the intereſts of his kingdom among men; and will have its full accompliſhment in the fall of Antichriſt, and finally in the diſſolution of all things at the day of judgment, and perdition of ungodly men. Here is, 1. A demand of univerſal attention, ver. 1. 2. A direful ſcene of blood and confuſion preſented, ver. 2—7. 3. The reaſon given for theſe judgments, ver. 8. 4. The continuance of this deſolation, the country being made like the lake of Sodom, ver. 9, 10. and the cities abandoned to wild beaſts and birds, ver. 11—15. 5. The ſolemn ratification of all this, ver. 16, 17. Let us hear and tremble.

1. COME near, ye nations, to hear, and hearken, ye people: [a] let the earth hear, and † all that is therein; the world, and all things that come forth of it. 2. For [b] the indignation of the LORD is upon all nations, and his fury upon all their armies: he hath utterly deſtroyed them, he hath delivered them to the ſlaughter. 3. Their ſlain alſo ſhall be caſt out, and [c] their ſtink ſhall come up out of their carcaſes, and the mountains ſhall be melted with their blood. 4. And [d] all the hoſt of heaven ſhall be diſſolved, and the heavens ſhall be [e] rolled together as a ſcroll: [f] and all their hoſt ſhall fall down as the leaf falleth off from the vine, and [g] as a falling fig from the fig-tree. 5. For [h] my ſword ſhall be bathed

[a] Deut. iv. 26. Chap. i. 2.
† Heb. The fulneſs thereof.
[b] Jer. xxv. 15.
[c] Chap. lxvi. 24. Joel ii. 20.
[d] Pſ. cii. 26. Ezek. xxxii. 7. Joel ii. 31. & iii. 15. Mat. xxiv. 29. 2 Pet. iii. 10.
[e] Rev. vi. 14.
[f] Chap. xiv. 12.
[g] Rev. vi. 13.
[h] Jer. xlvi. 10.

bathed in heaven: behold, [i] it ſhall come down upon Idumea, and upon [k] the people of my curſe to judgment. 6. The ſword of the LORD is filled with blood, it is made fat with fatneſs, and with the blood of lambs and goats, with the fat of the kidneys of rams: for [l] the LORD hath a ſacrifice in Bozrah, and a great ſlaughter in the land of Idumea. 7. And the ‡ unicorns ſhall come down with them, and the bullocks with the bulls, and their land ſhall be ſoked with blood, and their duſt made fat with fatneſs. 8. For it is the day of [m] the LORD's vengeance, and the year of recompences for the controverſy of Zion.

[i] Jer. xlix. 7.
[k] Mal. i. 3, 4.
[l] Chap. lxiii. 7. Zeph. i. 7.
‡ Or, rhinocerots.
[m] Chap. xxxv. 4. & lix. 18.

v. 1—8. We have here,

1. The awful ſummons ſent forth to the nations of the world, and the earth, and things therein called upon to hearken, as if the irrational, or inanimate creatures, were more attentive than hardened ſinners, v. 1.

2. The univerſality of the approaching judgments of God is declared, v. 2. againſt all the nations and their armies, who have committed fornication with the great whore, ſee Rev. xviii. 3. and therefore are doomed to utter deſtruction, Rev. xix. 21.

3. The execution of this terrible doom is diſplayed in the moſt awful colours: The carcaſſes of the ſlain will be unburied, and ſend forth peſtilential vapours; the very mountains are melted with blood, like rivers running down, v. 3. The hoſts of heaven, ſun, moon, and ſtars, dropping as untimely figs, and the firmament wrapped up as a ſcroll, repreſenting the utter ruin of the ſtates and kingdoms of the followers of the man of ſin, with their princes and mighty men, v. 4. (compare Rev. xix. 17, 18. Rev. xiv. 20. Rev. vi. 13, 14.) and this is effected by the ſword of the Lord, bathed in heaven, well-tempered, drawn according to his eternal decree, and deſcending with fury irreſiſtible on Idumea, probably the Romiſh ſtate, the implacable enemies of the church of Chriſt, as the Edomites were of the Jews, and therefore called the people of my curſe, lying under it, and doomed to this dire judgment, v. 5. Before this ſword the armies of Antichriſt, the common ſoldiers, as lambs and goats, like hecatombs at the altar, fall ſacrifices to divine juſtice at Bozrah, a city of Idumea, repreſenting Rome, the capital of the antichriſtian powers, v. 6. And their chief captains, fierce as bulls and ſtrong as unicorns, ſhall periſh together, and the land be ſoked with their blood and fattened, or made drunk, as with ſhowers of rain, ſuch vaſt quantities ſhould be ſhed. See Rev. xvi. 6. xvii. 6. xiv. 20. Note, (1.) Miſerable, eternally miſerable are they, who by their ſins provoking God's curſe, awaken his ſword of judgment. (2.) If it be terrible but to hear the report, ſinner, how wilt thou endure when this great day of his wrath is come? (3.) The ſinners in hell are eternal ſacrifices to God's juſtice; and therefore, when the ſmoke of their torment aſcends, his ſaints adore him. (4.) However long triumphant, and cruelly oppreſſive, the enemies of God's people may have been, their doom is determined, and God will give them blood to drink.

4. The equity of the procedure is remarked; this day of vengeance is the year of recompenſes for the controverſy of Zion, and the time is fixed in the eternal counſels to do her juſtice; when the church of God, and every perſecuted member of it, will find a righteous judge eſpouſing their quarrel, and recompenſing to the full the injuries they have endured. See Rev. xiii. 10. xi. 18. Note, When we are ſuffering for the teſtimony of the truth, and a good conſcience, we ſhould be comforted in patient hope, that the year of recompenſe is at hand, for Zion's friends and Zion's enemies.

9. And [n] the ſtreams thereof ſhall be turned into pitch, and the duſt thereof into brimſtone, and the land thereof ſhall become burning pitch. 10. It ſhall not be quenched night nor day, [o] the ſmoke thereof ſhall go up for ever: [p] from generation to generation it ſhall lie waſte, none ſhall paſs through it for ever and ever. 11. ¶ [q] But the cormorant and the bittern ſhall poſſeſs it, the owl alſo and the raven ſhall dwell in it, and [r] he ſhall ſtretch out upon it the line of confuſion, and the ſtones of emptineſs. 12. They ſhall call the nobles thereof to the kingdom, but none ſhall be there, and all her princes ſhall be nothing. 13. And [s] thorns ſhall come up in her palaces, nettles and brambles in the fortreſſes thereof, and [t] and it ſhall be an habitation of dragons, and a court for † owls. 14. The wild beaſts of the deſert ſhall alſo meet with the wild beaſts of the iſland, and the ſatyr ſhall cry to his fellow, the ‡ ſhrich-owl alſo ſhall reſt there, and find for herſelf a place of reſt. 15. There ſhall the great owl make her neſt, and lay and hatch, and gather under her ſhadow: there ſhall the vultures alſo be gathered every one with her mate. 16. ¶ Seek ye out of the book of the LORD, and read: no one of theſe ſhall fail, none ſhall want her mate: for my mouth it hath commanded, and his ſpirit it hath gathered them. 17. And he hath caſt the lot for them, and his hand hath divided it unto them by line: they ſhall poſſeſs it for ever, from generation to generation ſhall they dwell therein.

[n] Deut. xxix. 23.
[o] Rev xiv. 11. & xviii. 18. & xix. 3.
[p] Mal. i. 4.
[q] Chap. xiv. 23. Zeph. ii. 14. Rev. xviii. 2.
[r] 2 Kings xxi. 13. Lam. ii. 8.
[s] Hoſ. ix. 6.
[t] Chap. xiii. 21, &c.
† Or, oſtriches
‡ Or, night-monſter.

v. 9—17. Awful and moſt awakening are the images here uſed to diſplay the utter ruin and deſolations of the enemies of Chriſt and his people; and which ſeem to look forward to the fall of Antichriſt, and may alſo be applied to that great and terrible day of the Lord, when the ſinner's torment in body and ſoul will be compleated.

1. Their land is deſcribed as the land of Sodom. Since ſin hath rendered it as fuel for the flames, the wrath of God ſhall kindle the inextinguiſhable burnings, v. 9, 10. and their cities deſerted, deſolate, ruinous, ſhall become the abode of every unclean bird and ravenous beaſt, v. 11—15. the elegance and dignity of which deſcription cannot be equalled, and which every comment muſt debaſe. Only we may obſerve, (1.) The dreadful evil of ſin, the cauſe of all theſe deſolations. (2.) The folly and madneſs of attempting to fix our abode on earth, doomed ſo ſhortly, with all the works on it, to be burnt up. (3.) The terrible end of the ungodly, when wrath to the uttermoſt is poured out upon them, and they are caſt into the lake of brimſtone and fire which burneth for ever and ever.

2. An aſſurance is given of the moſt minute fulfilment of the prophecy, v. 16, 17. And when the deſtruction cometh, they are commanded to compare the event with the prediction, and not a tittle will be found to fail. Since God's word hath commanded, his ſpirit will accompliſh it; collecting in exact order, as at the deluge, theſe monſters with their mates to their appointed abode; and by an eternal decree, according to the dictates of juſtice, dooming the place to everlaſting ruin. Theſe, with the correſpondent prophecies in the book of Revelations, are yet in the womb of time; but ſhall as ſurely be accompliſhed in their ſeaſon, as thoſe we have ſeen already fulfilled. And when we read in the book of the Lord, the ſure expectation thereof ſhould comfort and ſupport the ſuffering ſaints of God.

CHAP. XXXV.

The flouriſhing ſtate of the goſpel church is here ſet forth, as a contraſt to the dreadful devaſtations of the preceding chapter. 1. The Gentiles ſhall be brought into it, ver. 1, 2, 7. 2. The weak and timorous ſhall be encouraged, ver. 3, 4. 3. Miracles ſhall be wrought both on the ſouls and bodies of men, ver. 5, 6. 4. It ſhall be conducted in the way of holineſs, ver. 8, 9. 5. It ſhall be brought at laſt to endleſs joys, ver. 10.

1. [a] THE wilderneſs and the ſolitary place ſhall be glad for them: and the deſert ſhall rejoice, and bloſſom as the roſe. 2. [b] It ſhall bloſſom abundantly, and rejoice even with joy and ſinging; the glory of Lebanon ſhall be given unto it, the excellency of Carmel and Sharon: they ſhall ſee the glory of the LORD, and the excellency of our God. 3. ¶ [c] Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees. 4. Say to them that are of a † fearful heart, Be ſtrong, fear not: behold, [d] your God will come with vengeance, even ‡ God with a recompence, he will come and [e] ſave you.

[a] Chap. lv. 12.
[b] Ibid. xxxii. 15.
[c] Job iv. 3, 4. Heb. xii. 12.
† Or haſty.
[d] Chap. xxxiv. 8.
‡ Or the God of recompence.
[e] Mat. i. 21.

v. 1—4. When the Aſſyrian army was deſtroyed, the country of Judea, which had been waſted as a wilderneſs before them, quickly reſumed its verdure and fruitfulneſs. To this the prophecy may in part refer, but it chiefly regards,

1. The flouriſhing ſtate of the church, when the Gentile world, before a barren wilderneſs, by the preaching of the goſpel puts on a new face, bloſſoming with the joys of divine conſolations, bringing forth the moſt excellent fruits of grace, and with ſuch abundance, as to be compared to Lebanon, where the choiceſt cedars grew; and to Carmel and Sharon, the richeſt ſpots of Judea for Corn and paſturage: ſuch ſtrength, beauty, and fruitfulneſs ſhould eminently unite in the goſpel church, and they ſhall ſee the glory of the Lord, and the excellency of our God, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, his perſon, offices, and compleat redemption, wherein God is ſo tranſcendently magnified, and appears ſo amiable and glorious in the eyes of the redeemed. Note, A believing view of the Redeemer's grace and glory brings joy to the heart, and is the effectual means of quickning it to bring forth much fruit.

2. By the miniſtry of the word, they are encouraged and ſupported to bear up under the temptations and ſufferings to which, for the ſake of Chriſt, they would be expoſed. Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees, thoſe who from an awakened ſenſe of guilt and wrath were ready to ſink down in deſpair, unable to lift up the hands of prayer, muſt be encouraged; and thoſe, whoſe knees trembled under the load of their trials, from corruption or perſecution, the miniſters of God muſt confirm, by pointing them to the great and precious promiſes. Say to them that are of a fearful heart, be ſtrong, fear not; though you are weak, your enemies mighty, and in your own ſtrength you feel yourſelves utterly unable to cope with them, yet help is laid for you on one mighty to ſave; therefore, be ſtrong in the Lord, look to him, and then your fears will vaniſh, for who can pluck you out of his hand? behold, ſee your deliverance near and ſure; your God, your reconciled God and Saviour, will come with vengeance, to cover your enemies with confuſion, even God with a recompence, or the God of recompence, to give a reward to his ſaints, and tribulation to them that trouble them; he will come and ſave us, as ſure as ever he once appeared in the fleſh, victorious over the powers of darkneſs, ſo ſurely will he in every time of our diſtreſs appear for our ſuccour; and when the appointed hour arrives, be revealed the ſecond time from heaven to compleat in us the ſalvation he hath begun.

5. ¶ Then [f] the eyes of the blind ſhall be opened, and [g] the ears of the deaf ſhall be unſtopped. 6. Then ſhall [h] the lame man leap as an hart, and [i] the tongue of the dumb ſing: for in the wilderneſs [k] ſhall waters break out, and ſtreams in the deſert. 7. And the parched ground ſhall become a pool, and the thirſty land ſprings of water: in [l] the habitation of dragons, where each lay, ſhall be graſs with reeds and ruſhes. 8. And an high-way ſhall be there, and a way, and it ſhall be called the way of holineſs, [m] the unclean ſhall not paſs over it, but † it ſhall be for thoſe: [n] the way-faring men, though fools, ſhall not err therein. 9. [o] No lion ſhall be there, nor any ravenous beaſt ſhall go up thereon, it ſhall not be found there: but the redeemed ſhall walk there. 10. And [p] the ranſomed of the LORD ſhall return and come to Zion with ſongs, and [q] everlaſting joy upon their heads: they ſhall obtain joy and gladneſs, [r] and ſorrow and ſighing ſhall flee away.

[f] Chap. xxix. 18. & xxxii. 3. & xlii. 7. Mat. ix. 29, 30. & xi. 5. & xx. 30, &c. John ix. 6, 7. Acts xxvi. 18. 2 Cor. iv. 6.
[g] Mark vii. 32, &c.
[h] Mat. xv. 30. John v. 8, 9. Acts iii. 6, 7.
[i] Mat. ix 33. Col. iii. 16.
[k] Chap. xli. 18. & xliii. 19. John vii. 38, 39.
[l] Chap. xxxiv. 13.
[m] Ibid. lii. 1. Joel iii. 17. Rev. xxi. 27.
† Or he ſhall be with thoſe.
[n] Pſ. xxv. 8, 9. & cxix. 130.
[o] Chap. xi. 9. 1 Pet. v. 8.
[p] Chap. li. 11.
[q] John xvi. 22.
[r] Chap. xxv. 8. Rev. vii. 17. & xxi. 4.

v. 5—10. We have here,

1. The wonders that ſhall be wrought at Chriſt's coming, on the bodies and ſouls of men. The blind ſhall ſee, the deaf hear, the lame walk, the dumb ſpeak, which we ſee literally fulfilled, Mat. ix. 27. Mark vii. 34. Acts iii. 8. Mat. ix. 32. but greater works than theſe ſhall he do, enlightening the blindneſs of the fallen mind, cauſing the ſpiritually deaf to hear and receive the goſpel; ſtrengthening thoſe who were helpleſs, to walk in the ways of truth and righteouſneſs, and teaching thoſe to ſing his praiſe whoſe lips before had been ſealed up in ſilence. Lord, continue ſtill to make thy glorious power to appear!

2. The remarkable out-pouring of the ſpirit in the days of Chriſt, and the bleſſed effects thereby produced. In the wilderneſs ſhall waters break out, and ſtreams in the deſert, ſuch a copious effuſion of divine gifts, graces, and conſolations ſhall then be made on the Gentile world, that the parched ground and thirſty land, the ſinner's ſoul, barren or ſcorched up with the ſenſe of divine wrath, ſhall become a pool and ſprings of water refreſhed and fertilized: in the habitation of dragons, where each lay, the places where Satan, the great dragon, hath fixed his abode, and men reſembling him in fierceneſs and cruelty, ſuch as the Pagan emperors, or Papal powers, ſhall be graſs with reeds and ruſhes; a number of converts to the goſpel, thick as graſs, and flouriſhing as the reeds in the brook: and this was fulfilled when the Pagan temples were changed into places for Chriſtian worſhip; and ſhall be farther accompliſhed when Babylon myſtical is fallen, and the ſaints of God triumphant over her.

3. The way that then will be opened for all nations, Jew and Gentile, to draw nigh unto God; and that way is Chriſt, emphatically ſo called, becauſe no man cometh to the Father but by him; nor can there be any acceſs to an offended God, but through his blood and righteouſneſs. He is a high way ordained by the King of heaven, free and open to all, and where every obſtruction from ſin and Satan are utterly removed; a way of holineſs, or holy way, where the grace of ſanctification, as well as the gift of juſtification, is beſtowed, and ſtrength communicated to the ſoul, enabling thoſe who are in Chriſt to walk and pleaſe God; where all holy means and ordinances are found; where all the travellers are in temper and conduct in a meaſure holy, and which will infallibly conduct them to the perfection of holineſs above: the unclean ſhall not paſs over it, thoſe being juſtly excluded who perſiſt in the love and ſervice of their ſins; but it ſhall be for thoſe juſtified and renewed ſouls above deſcribed; or it may be rendered, he ſhall be with them, Chriſt, their companion, guide, and ſupport: the way-faring men, though fools, ſhall not err therein; counted ſuch of the world, after their converſion to God, and ſpiritually indeed ſuch before they were taught of him, theſe travellers to Zion ſhall not err; the way is plain before them, the bible is their ſure directory, and the ſpirit of truth their guide; not that every chriſtian is infallible, but he ſhall not greatly, or fatally err. No lion ſhall be there, nor any ravenous beaſt ſhall go up thereon, it ſhall not be found there; none of ſuch fierce and turbulent diſpoſitions; none to diſturb the peace of the happy traveller; and eſpecially the old lion, that goeth about ſeeking whom he may devour, ſhall not be able to approach to deſtroy any ſoul that is found in this holy way: but the redeemed ſhall walk there; thoſe whom Divine Grace hath choſen, and Jeſus hath purchaſed by his blood, they ſhall in ſafety travel without being weary, and reach at laſt their bleſſed journey's end, which will be,

4. Their everlaſting joy. For the ranſomed of the Lord ſhall return from the ſtate of ſin and darkneſs, in which like others they lay, to the ſhepherd and biſhop of their ſouls, Chriſt Jeſus, and, under his guidance, come to Zion; that mount of God in glory, appointed for their eternal reſidence; and, whilſt with grateful ſongs they celebrate redeeming love, and aſcribe to ſovereign grace their whole ſalvation, everlaſting joy ſhall be upon their heads; joy that ſhall never again be interrupted by ſin, temptation, or ſuffering, but be permanent as God's everlaſting love, the ſource of it. They ſhall obtain joy and gladneſs, unſpeakable and full of glory, as much exceeding all they taſted here below, as the boundleſs ocean exceeds the drop of the bucket; and ſorrow and ſighing ſhall flee away, when every cauſe that could produce them are for ever removed, and perfect holineſs and perfect happineſs flow from the uninterrupted beatific viſion of the triune God. O may my ſoul poſſeſs this everlaſting joy!

CHAP. XXXVI.

The prophet Iſaiah is here an hiſtorian, and the events of the following chapters ſerve to explain and confirm the foregoing prophecies. The ſtory here recorded is nearly the ſame as 2 Kings xviii. xix. and 2 Chron. xxxii. to which you may look back for a larger expoſition We have here, 1. Sennacherib's deſcent and ſucceſs againſt Judah, ver. 1. 2. The conference he deſired to have with Hezekiah, and the managers on both ſides, ver. 2, 3. 3. Rabſhakeh's railing blaſphemous ſpeech, ver. 4—10. 4. His attempt to perſuade the people to deſert Hezekiah, and ſo force him to ſurrender, ver. 11—20. 5. The report of this made to Hezekiah by his agents, ver. 21, 22.

1. [a] NOW it came to paſs in the fourteenth year of king Hezekiah, that Sennacherib king of Aſſyria came up againſt all the defenced cities of Judah, and took them. 2. And the king of Aſſyria ſent Rabſhakeh, from Lachiſh to Jeruſalem, unto king Hezekiah, with a great army: and he ſtood by the conduit of the upper pool in the high-way of the fullers field. 3. Then came forth unto him Eliakim, Hilkiah's ſon, which was over the houſe, and Shebnah the ſcribe, and Joah Aſaph's ſon the recorder. 4. ¶ And Rabſhakeh ſaid unto them, Say ye now to Hezekiah, Thus ſaith [b] the great king, the king of Aſſyria, [c] What confidence is this wherein thou truſteſt? 5. I ſay, ſayſt thou, (but they are but † vain words) [d] I have counſel and ſtrength for war: now on whom doſt thou truſt, that thou rebelleſt againſt me? 6. Lo, thou truſteſt [e] in the ſtaff of this broken reed, on Egypt; whereon if a man lean, it will go into his hand and pierce it: [f] ſo is Pharaoh king of Egypt to all that truſt in him. 7. But if thou ſay to me, We truſt in the LORD our God: is it not he [g] whoſe high places, and whoſe altars Hezekiah hath taken away, and ſaid to Judah and to Jeruſalem, Ye ſhall worſhip before this altar? 8. Now therefore give ‡ pledges, I pray thee, to my maſter the king of Aſſyria, and [h] I will give thee two thouſand horſes, if thou be able on thy part to ſet riders upon them. 9. How then wilt thou turn away the face of one captain of the leaſt of my maſter's ſervants, and put thy truſt on Egypt for chariots and for horſemen? 10. And am I now come up without the LORD againſt this land to deſtroy it? [i] the LORD ſaid unto me, Go up againſt this land, and deſtroy it.

714.
[a] 2 Kings xviii. 13. &c. 2 Chron. xxxii. 1, &c.
710.
[b] Jude 16.
[c] Pſ. xlii. 3. & lxxi. 11. & lxxviii. 19.
† Heb. Words of the lips.
[d] Prov. xxi. 30.
[e] Ezek. xxix. 6, 7.
[f] Jer. xvii. 5.
[g] 2 Chron. xxxi. 1. & xxxii. 12.
‡ Or, hoſtages.
[h] 1 Sam. xvii. 42. Neh. iv. 2.
[i] 1 Kings xiii. 18. Chap. x. 5, 6.

v. 1—10. As this tranſaction hath been treated of at large, 2 Kings xxviii. xxix. 2 Chron. xx. A few remarks will here ſuffice; and we may obſerve, (1.) How apt ſucceſs is to intoxicate, and proſperity to puff men up with pride. Becauſe the other defenced cities were taken, Rabſhakeh already regards Jeruſalem as a prey. (2.) When, like Hezekiah, we are found in the zealous diſcharge of our duty, and may be hoping for ſingular bleſſings from God, we may meet with the ſevereſt conflicts and diſcouragements for the exerciſe of our faith, the brightening our graces, and the increaſe of our glory. (3.) The people of God may expect ſometimes the threats, ſometimes the mockery of men, to intimidate and diſcourage them from following the good ways of the Lord; but let their heart ſtand faſt, and truſt ſtill on him. (4.) Many, like Rabſhakeh, pretend the Lord's commiſſion, who will be found to have a lie in their right hand, v. 10.

11. ¶ [k] Then ſaid Eliakim, and Shebna, and Joah unto Rabſhakeh, Speak, I pray thee, unto thy ſervants in the Syrian language; for we underſtand it: and ſpeak not to us in the Jews language, in the ears of the people that are on the wall. 12. ¶ But Rabſhakeh ſaid, Hath my maſter ſent me to thy maſter and to thee, to ſpeak theſe words? hath he not ſent me to the men that ſit upon the wall, [l] that they may eat their own dung, and drink † their own piſs with you? 13. Then Rabſhakeh ſtood and cried with a loud voice in the Jews language, and ſaid, Hear ye the words of the great king, the king of Aſſyria. 14. Thus ſaith the king, Let not Hezekiah deceive you, for [m] he ſhall not be able to deliver you. 15. Neither let Hezekiah make you truſt in the LORD, ſaying, The LORD will ſurely deliver us, this city ſhall not be delivered into the hand of the king of Aſſyria. 16. Hearken not to Hezekiah: for thus ſaith the king of Aſſyria, Make an agreement with me by a preſent, and come out to me: and eat ye every one of his vine, and every one of his fig-tree, and drink ye every one the waters of his own ciſtern: 17. Until I come and take you away to a land [n] like your own land, a land of corn and wine, a land of bread and vineyards. 18. Beware leſt Hezekiah perſuade you, ſaying, [o] The LORD will deliver us. [p] Hath any of the gods of the nations delivered his land out of the hand of the king of Aſſyria? 19. Where are [q] the gods of Hamath and Arphad? where are the gods of Sepharvaim? and have they delivered Samaria out of my hand? 20. [r] Who are they amongſt all the gods of theſe lands, that have delivered their land out of my hand, [s] that the LORD ſhould deliver Jeruſalem out of my hand? 21. But [t] they held their peace, and [u] anſwered him not a word: for the king's commandment was, ſaying, Anſwer him not. 22. ¶ Then came Eliakim the ſon of Hilkiah, that was over the houſhold, and Shebna the ſcribe, and Joah the ſon of Aſaph the recorder, to Hezekiah [x] with their clothes rent, and told him the words of Rabſhakeh.

[k] 2 Kings xviii. 26, &c.
[l] Exod. xv. 9. 1 Kings xx. 10. Pſ. lxxiii. 8.
† Heb. The water of their feet.
[m] Dan. iii. 15. & vii. 25. Rev. xiii. 6.
[n] Exod. iii. 8. Deut. xxxii. 13, 14.
[o] 2 Pet. ii. 9.
[p] Hab. i. 15, 16.
[q] Pſ. cxv. 4—8.
[r] John xix. 11.
[s] Rev. xlii. 6.
[t] Pſ. xxxviii. 13, 14.
[u] Prov. ix. 7. & xxvi. 4. Mat. vii. 6.
[x] Ezra ix. 3. Mat. xxvi. 65.

v. 11—22. With civil entreaty the perſons appointed by Hezekiah for the conference with Rabſhakeh, beg the favour of him to ſpeak to them in the Syriac tongue, as his diſcourſe had an evident bad tendency to diſcourage thoſe who were within hearing: to which he makes a reply as indecent as inſolent, v. 12. and addreſſing his ſpeech, in the Jews language, to the people on the wall, with blaſphemous reflections on Iſrael's God, endeavours to ſpread a ſpirit of mutiny amongſt them, v. 13—20. But they are forbidden to reply, v. 21. and, ſhocked at the blaſphemy, or grieved at their diſtreſs, the meſſengers return unto the king, and report the words of this impious Aſſyrian, v. 22. Note, (1.) Inſolent language betrays a baſe ſpirit. (2.) The devil, like Rabſhakeh, would inſinuate, that it is our advantage to ſerve him; but his fair promiſes are foul lies. (3.) Silence is often the propereſt anſwer to railing accuſations. (4.) It were folly to attempt replying to thoſe who are as unreaſonable as they are wicked. (5.) It is a grief to the gracious ſoul, to hear the name of God diſhonoured.

CHAP. XXXVII.

Here we have, 1. Hezekiah's reſentment of Rabſhakeh's impious diſcourſe, ver. 1. 2. The meſſage he ſent to Iſaiah to deſire his prayers, ver. 2—5. 3. The encouraging anſwer which Iſaiah ſent him from God, ver. 6, 7. 4. An abuſive letter which the king of Aſſyria ſent to Hezekiah, ver. 8—13. 5. Hezekiah's humble prayer to God upon the receipt of it, ver. 14—20. 6. The further anſwer which God ſent him by Iſaiah, promiſing him ſpeedy and full deliverance, ver. 21—35. 7. The immediate accompliſhment of this prophecy in the ruin of his army, ver. 36. and the murder of Sennacherib, ver. 37, 38. All which was largely opened, 2 Kings xix.

1. [a] AND it came to paſs when king Hezekiah heard it, that he rent his clothes, and covered himſelf with ſackcloth, and [b] went into the houſe of the LORD. 2. And he ſent Eliakim, who was over the houſhold, and Shebna the ſcribe, and the elders of the prieſts covered with ſackcloth, unto Iſaiah [c] the prophet, the ſon of Amoz. 3. And they ſaid unto him, Thus ſaith Hezekiah, This day is [d] a day of trouble, and of † rebuke, and of [e] blaſphemy: for the children are come to the birth, and [f] there is not ſtrength to bring forth. 4. [g] It may be the LORD thy God will hear the words of Rabſhakeh, whom the king of Aſſyria his maſter hath ſent to reproach the living God, and [h] will reprove the words which the LORD thy God hath heard: wherefore [i] lift up thy prayer for the remnant that is left. 5. So the ſervants of king Hezekiah came to Iſaiah. 6. ¶ And Iſaiah ſaid unto them, Thus ſhall ye ſay unto your maſter, Thus ſaith the LORD, [k] Be not afraid of the words that thou haſt heard, wherewith the ſervants of the king of Aſſyria have blaſphemed me. 7. Behold, I will ſend a ‡ blaſt upon him, and he ſhall hear a rumour, and return to his own land, and I will cauſe him [l] to fall by the ſword in his own land.

[a] 2 Kings xix. 1, &c.
[b] 2 Chron. vii. 15.
[c] 2 Kings iii. 11. Jam. v. 16.
[d] Pſ. l. 15.
† Or, reviling. Pſal. cxxiii. 3.
[e] Chap. xxxvi. 20.
[f] Hoſ. xiii. 13.
[g] Exod. ii. 25. 2 Sam. xvi. 12.
[h] Pſ. l. 21.
[i] 1 Sam. xii. 23. Joel ii. 17. 1 Tim. ii. 1, 2.
[k] Exod. xiv. 13.
‡ Heb. Spirit. Ver. 36.
[l] Ver. 38.

v. 1—7. Shocked at the tidings he received, Hezekiah in ſackcloth falls down before God in his ſanctuary, v. 1. and ſending his chief officers to Iſaiah, repreſents his deplorable ſituation; as a woman in travail exhauſted with her pains, and ſinking under her weakneſs, ſo ready he ſeemed to periſh, unleſs the Lord interpoſed to vindicate his own honour, for which he begs the prophet's prayers, v. 2—4. Nor was his requeſt in vain: Iſaiah ſoon diſpatches the meſſengers with an anſwer of peace to the king, and bids him, fearleſs of danger, be confident of ſeeing the ſpeedy deſtruction of his enemies, v. 4—7. Note, (1.) A day of trouble ſhould be a day of humiliation and prayer; and whatever drives us thus nearer to God, muſt in the iſſue prove a bleſſing. (2.) The prayers of good men are to be earneſtly ſought; and it is a great encouragement to have them interceding with God in our behalf. (3.) When we are ready to deſpair, God will often moſt eminently magnify his power and grace in our deliverance. (4.) They who ſeek to terrify God's people from their holy profeſſion, will ſoon be made a terror to themſelves.

8. ¶ [m] So Rabſhakeh returned, and found the king of Aſſyria warring againſt Libnah: for he had heard that he was departed from Lachiſh. 9. And [n] he heard ſay concerning Tirhakah king of Ethiopia, He is come forth to make war with thee: and when he heard it, he ſent meſſengers to Hezekiah, ſaying, 10. Thus ſhall ye ſpeak to Hezekiah king of Judah, ſaying, [o] Let not thy God [p] in whom thou truſteſt deceive thee, ſaying, Jeruſalem ſhall not be given into the hand of the king of Aſſyria. 11. Behold, thou haſt heard what the kings of Aſſyria have done to all lands, by deſtroying them utterly, and ſhalt thou be delivered? 12. [q] Have the gods of the nations delivered them which my fathers have deſtroyed, as Gozan, and Haran, and Rezeph, and the children of Eden which were in Telaſſar? 13. Where is the king of Hamath, and the king of Arphad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim, Hena and Ivah? 14. ¶ And Hezekiah received the letter from the hand of the meſſengers, and read it: and Hezekiah [r] went up unto the houſe of the LORD, and [s] ſpread it before the LORD. 15. And Hezekiah prayed unto the LORD, ſaying, 16. O LORD of hoſts, God of Iſrael, [t] that dwelleſt between the cherubims, thou art the God, even thou alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth, [u] thou haſt made heaven and earth. 17. [x] Incline thine ear, O LORD, and hear: [y] Open thine eyes, O LORD, and ſee: and hear all the words of Sennacherib, which hath ſent to reproach the living God. 18. Of a truth, LORD, the kings of Aſſyria have laid waſte all the nations, and their countries. 19. And have caſt their gods into the fire, for they were no gods, [z] but the work of men's hands, wood and ſtone: therefore they have deſtroyed them. 20. Now therefore, O LORD our God, ſave us from his hand, that all the kingdoms of the earth [a] may know, that thou art the LORD, even thou only.

[m] 2 Kings xix. 8, &c.
[n] Gen. xxii. 14. 1 Sam. xxiii. 27, 28. Rev. xii. 16.
[o] Chap. xxvi. 20.
[p] Ibid. 15.
[q] Ibid. 18.
[r] Ver. 1.
[s] 1 Tim. ii. 8.
[t] 1 Sam. iv. 4. Pſ. lxxx. 1.
[u] Jer. x. 12.
[x] Pſ. v. 1, 2. & xxxi. 2. Dan. ix. 18.
[y] 2 Chron. vi. 40.
[z] Chap. xl. 19, 20. Jer. x. 3.
[a] Joſh. vii. 9. Pſ. lix. 13. & lxxxiii. 18.

v. 8—20. Unable to prevail by threatnings and inſult, Rabſhakeh reports to his maſter the iſſue of the conference, v. 8. and the king of Aſſyria, in hopes yet to force Hezekiah to ſubmit, before the news ſhould reach him of Tirhakah's armament in his favour, v. 9. writes a boaſting and blaſphemous letter to the king of Judah, in order to terrify him into a ſurrender, v. 10—13. which Hezekiah ſolemnly ſpreads before the Lord in prayer, and reſts the caſe with him to give an anſwer to this impious blaſphemer, v. 14—20. Note, (1.) Though craft and power unite againſt the faithful, impotent will be the attempts

Before Chriſt 710.

tempts of their enemies. (2.) Blaſphemous diſcourſe is terrible, but to propagate by writing ſentiments of irreligion and infidelity, is perpetuating the dire contagion to the lateſt times, and will more exceedingly aggravate men's guilt. (3.) When we have God for our friend, and have acceſs with confidence to pour all our complaints into his compaſſionate boſom, we may reſt in peace, and expect him to appear for us.

21. ¶ [b] Then Iſaiah the ſon of Amoz [c] ſent unto Hezekiah, ſaying, Thus ſaith the LORD God of Iſrael, Whereas thou haſt prayed to me againſt Sennacherib king of Aſſyria: 22. This is the word which the LORD hath ſpoken concerning him, The virgin, the daughter of Zion, hath deſpiſed thee, and laughed thee to ſcorn; the daughter of Jeruſalem hath ſhaken her head at thee. 23. Whom haſt thou reproached and blaſphemed? and againſt whom haſt thou exalted thy voice, and lifted up thine eyes on high? [d] even againſt the holy One of Iſrael. 24. † By thy ſervants haſt thou reproached the LORD, and [e] haſt ſaid, [f] By the multitude of my chariots am I come up to the height of the mountains, to the ſides of Lebanon: and I will cut down the tall cedars thereof, and the choice fir-trees thereof: and I will enter into the height of his border, and the foreſt ‡ of his Carmel. 25. I have digged, and drunk water; and with the ſole of my feet have I dried up all the rivers of the beſieged places. 26. Haſt thou not heard long ago how I have done it, and of ancient times that I have formed it? now have I brought it to paſs, [g] that thou ſhouldſt be to lay waſte defenced cities into ruinous heaps. 27. Therefore their inhabitants were § of ſmall power, they were diſmayed and confounded: [h] they were as the graſs of the field, and as the green herb, [i] as the graſs on the houſe-tops, and as corn blaſted before it be grown up. 28. But [k] I know thy abode, and thy going-out, and thy coming in, and [l] thy rage againſt me. 29. Becauſe thy rage againſt me and thy tumult is come up into mine ears; therefore [m] will I put my hook in thy noſe, and [n] my bridle in thy lips, and I will turn thee back by the way by which thou cameſt. 30. And [o] this ſhall be a ſign unto thee, [p] Ye ſhall eat this year ſuch as groweth of itſelf; and [q] the ſecond year [r] that which ſpringeth of the ſame: and in the third year ſow ye, and reap; and plant vineyards, and eat the fruit thereof. 31. And the remnant that is eſcaped of the houſe of Judah [s] ſhall again take root downward, and bear fruit upward. 32. For [t] out of Jeruſalem ſhall go forth a remnant, and they that eſcape out of mount Zion: [u] the zeal of the LORD of hoſts ſhall do this. 33. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD concerning the king of Aſſyria, He ſhall not come into this city, nor ſhoot an arrow there, nor come before it with ſhields, nor caſt a bank againſt it. 34. [x] By the way that he came, by the ſame ſhall he return, and ſhall not come into this city, ſaith the LORD. 35. For I will defend this city to ſave it for mine own ſake, and [y] for my ſervant David's ſake. 36. ¶ [z] Then the angel of the LORD went forth, and [a] ſmote in the camp of the Aſſyrians an hundred and fourſcore and five thouſand: and when they aroſe early in the morning, [b] behold, they were all dead corpſes. 37. ¶ So Sennacherib king of Aſſyria departed, and went and returned, and dwelt at Nineveh. 38. And it came to paſs as he was worſhipping in the houſe of Niſroch his god, that Adrammelech and Sharezer [c] his ſons ſmote him with the ſword; and they eſcaped into the land of ‖ Armenia: and Eſar-haddon his ſon reigned in his ſtead.

[b] 2 Kings xix. 20, &c. [c] Dan. ix. 20. Acts iv. 31.
[d] Zech. ii. 8. Acts ix. 4, 5.
† Heb. By the hand of, &c.
[e] Exod. xv. 9. Chap. xiv. 13.
[f] Pſ. xx. 7. Chap. x. 13—15.
‡ Or, and his fruitful field. Chap. x. 18.
[g] Chap. x. 5, 7.
§ Heb. Short of hand. Jer. v. 10.
[h] Pſ. xxxvii. 2. & xc. 5, 6. & ciii. 15. Chap. xl. 6.
[i] Pſ. cxxix. 6.
[k] Pſ. cxxxix. 2.
[l] Acts ix. 4.
[m] Chap. xxx. 28. Ezek. xxix. 4. & xxxviii. 4.
[n] Pſ. xxxix. 2.
[o] Exod. iii. 12.
[p] Pſ. xxxvii. 3.
[q] Lev. xxv. 4.
[r] Eph. v. 20.
[s] Pſ. lxxx. 9. Chap. xxvii. 6.
[t] Chap. x. 22. Rom. ix. 27.
[u] Chap. ix. 7.
[x] Prov. xxi. 30.
[y] 1 Kings xi. 12.
[z] 1 Theſ. v. 2, 3.
[a] 2 Sam. xxiv. 16. Pſ. xxxv. 5.
[b] Job xx. 5. & xxiv. 24. & xxxi. 3.
[c] Tob. i. 21.
‖ Heb. Ararat.

v. 21—38. In anſwer to Hezekiah's prayer, Iſaiah tranſmits him a meſſage from God, v. 21. eſpouſing his people's quarrel as his own, v. 22, 23. He looks with contempt on the impotent threats of Sennacherib. Elated on his paſt ſucceſſes, he thought he could carry the whole world before him; and, utterly inſenſible that it was from God alone that he had prevailed hitherto, he aſcribes it impiouſly to his own arm, v. 24—27. But God, who ſees his proud deſigns, will blaſt them ſuddenly to his confuſion, and ſtop his mad career, as eaſily as the rider governs his ſteed, v. 28, 29. As a ſign of the continuance of the divine favour, plenty ſhould be reſtored as well as peace, notwithſtanding the harveſt was ruined by the Aſſyrians, and the ſucceeding year, as ſabbatical, admitted no tillage, v. 30. The people thus eſcaped, though but a remnant, ſhould yet take root, and greatly increaſe, v. 31, 32. and ſo far ſhould the enemy be from deſtroying Jeruſalem, that he ſhould not ſo much as ſhoot an arrow againſt it, v. 33—35. for before the ſiege was formed, God would ariſe to defend them, and his judgment was accordingly executed by an angel, to the entire deſtruction of the army, v. 36. and though the king eſcaped to Nineveh, he there met a more grievous death from his own unnatural ſons, v. 37, 38. Note, (1.) The inſults caſt on his people God reſents, as affronts againſt himſelf, and will remember them. (2.) Whatever wiſdom or prudence we may poſſeſs, it is atheiſm to aſcribe to ourſelves the glory of our enterprizes. (3.) The wicked can go no farther than the Lord permits, and he can quickly hurl them headlong into ruin in the midſt of their career of proſperity. (4.) When one diſtreſs is removed, another may be in proſpect, as here famine threatened though the ſiege was raiſed; but he who ſaves us from all our ſpiritual foes, can alſo relieve all our temporal wants; and they who are enabled to truſt him in the way of duty, ſhall not be deſtitute. (5.) If one angel in a night could ſpread ſuch fearful havock, how ſafe are they who have the God of angels for their protector, and theſe his hoſts their miniſtring ſpirits.

Before Chriſt 710.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

This chapter proceeds with the hiſtory of Hezekiah: Here is, 1. His ſickneſs, and the ſentence of death he received, ver. 1. 2. His prayer in his ſickneſs, ver. 2, 3. 3. The anſwer of peace which God gave to that prayer, and the ſign given to confirm his faith, ver. 4—8. And this we read and explained before, 2 Kings xx. 1. &c. But, 4. Here is Hezekiah's thankſgiving for his recovery, on uſing the means preſcribed, ver. 9—22. which was not mentioned before, and contains much precious matter for the encouragement of our faith and hope at all times, and in ſickneſs particularly.

714.

1. [a] IN thoſe days was Hezekiah ſick unto death: and Iſaiah the prophet the ſon of Amoz came unto him, and ſaid unto him, Thus ſaith the LORD, † Set thine houſe in order: for thou ſhalt die, and not live. 2. Then Hezekiah [b] turned his face unto the wall, and [c] prayed unto the LORD, 3. And ſaid, [d] Remember now, O LORD, I beſeech thee, how I have walked before thee in truth, and [e] with a perfect heart, and have done that which is good in thy ſight: and Hezekiah [f] wept ‡ ſore. 4. ¶ Then came the word of the LORD to Iſaiah, ſaying, 5. Go, and ſay to Hezekiah, Thus ſaith the LORD, the God of David thy father, [g] I have heard thy prayer, [h] I have ſeen thy tears: behold, [i] I will add unto thy days fifteen years. 6. And [k] I will deliver thee and this city out of the hand of the king of Aſſyria: and [l] I will defend this city. 7. And [m] this ſhall be a ſign unto thee from the LORD, that the LORD will do this thing that he hath ſpoken: 8. Behold, I will bring again the ſhadow of the degrees which is gone down in the ſun dial of Ahaz ten degrees backward. So the ſun returned ten degrees, by which degrees it was gone down.

[a] 2 Kings xx. 1, &c. 2 Chron. xxxii. 24, &c.
† Heb. Give charge concerning, &c.
[b] 1 Kings viii. 30. or Pſ. xxxix. 9. or Mat. vi. 6.
[c] Jam. v. 13.
[d] Neh. xiii. 14.
[e] Job ii. 3.
[f] Heb. v. 7.
‡ Heb. With great weeping.
[g] Chap lxv. 24. Mat. vii. 7.
[h] Pſ. xxxix. 12. & lvi. 8.
[i] Job xiv. 5.
[k] Pſ. xci. 14. 2 Cor. i. 10.
[l] Chap. xxxvii. 35.
[m] Judg. vi. 37, 39.

v. 1—8. To what hath been obſerved before on theſe words, we may add,

1. That ſince death is the common lot, it is our duty, before it approaches, to provide for it, both by a ſettlement of all our worldly concerns, that they may not at that time occupy our thoughts; and more eſpecially by ſuch a daily dying to the world and ſin, as may make the day of our removal neither unexpected nor unacceptable.

2. In every ſituation, ſick, afflicted, or tempted, prayer is the great relief. It is the heart's eaſe to unboſom ourſelves to God.

3. It will be a comfort in every calamity, and a joy in the hour of death, to have our conſcience bear us witneſs in the Holy Ghoſt, that in ſimplicity and godly ſincerity we have had our converſation in the world.

4. God regards every tear which falls from the eye of his mourners, and will give them quickly the garments of praiſe for the ſpirit of heavineſs.

5. The proſperity promiſed to Zion, v. 6. was better to Hezekiah than the reſtoration of his health; as the welfare of the church, and the intereſts of the Redeemer's kingdom, are ever dearer to the faithful, than any other concern merely relative to themſelves.

6. One miracle ſerved to confirm Hezekiah's faith; we have ſeen the glorious Redeemer work innumerable, and ſhall we diſtruſt him?

9. ¶ The

Before Chriſt 714.

9. ¶ The writing of Hezekiah king of Judah, when he had been ſick, and was recovered of his ſickneſs.
10. I ſaid in [n] the cutting off of my days, I ſhall go to the gates of the grave: I am deprived of the reſidue of my years. 11. I ſaid, [o] I ſhall not ſee the LORD, even the LORD in the land of the living: I ſhall behold man no more with the inhabitants of the world. 12.
Mine age is departed, and is removed from me as a ſheperd's tent: [p] I have cut off like a weaver my life:
he will cut me off † with pining ſickneſs: from day even to night wilt thou make an end of me. 13. I reckoned till morning, that as a lion, ſo [q] will he break all my bones: from day even to night wilt thou make an end of me. 14. Like a crane or a ſwallow, ſo did I chatter: [r] I did mourn as a dove: mine eyes fail with looking upward; [s] O LORD, I am oppreſſed, ‡ undertake for me: 15. What ſhall I ſay? he hath both ſpoken unto me, and himſelf hath done it: I ſhall go ſoftly all my years [t] in the bitterneſs of my ſoul. 16.
O LORD, [u] by theſe things men live, and in all theſe things is the life of my ſpirit: ſo wilt thou recover me, and make me to live. 17. Behold, for peace I had great bitterneſs; but thou haſt § in love to my ſoul de- livered it from the pit of corruption: for [x] thou haſt caſt all my ſins behind thy back. 18. For [y] the grave cannot praiſe thee, death can*not* celebrate thee: they that go down into the pit cannot hope for thy truth. 19.
[z] The living, the living, he ſhall praiſe thee, as I do this day: [a] the father to the children ſhall make known thy truth. 20. The LORD was ready to ſave me: therefore we will ſing my ſongs to the ſtringed inſtruments
[b] all the days of our life in the houſe of the LORD. 21.
[c] For Iſaiah had ſaid, [d] Let them take a lump of figs, and lay it for a plaiſter upon the boil, and he ſhall recover. 22. Hezekiah alſo had ſaid, What is the ſign, that [e] I ſhall go up to the houſe of the LORD?

[n] Ver. 1.
[o] Pſ. xxvii. 4. & xlii. 2. & cxvi. 9.
[p] Job vii. 6.
† Or, from the thrum.
[q] 1 Cor. xi. 32.
[r] Chap. lix. 11.
[s] Pſ. cxix. 122.
‡ Or, eaſe me.
[t] Job vii. 11. & x. 1.
[u] Deut. viii. 3. Chap. lxiv. 5.
§ Heb. Loved my ſoul from the pit.
[x] Pſ. xxxii. 1, 2. Chap. xliii. 25. Mic. vii. 19.
[y] Pſ. vi. 5. & xxx. 9. & lxxxviii. 11. & cxv. 17.
[z] Eccleſ. ix. 10.
[a] Pſ. lxxviii. 3, 4.
[b] Pſ. xxvii. 4.
[c] 2 Kings xx. 7.
[d] John ix. 6.
[e] Pſ. xlii. 2. & lxxxiv. 2. & cxxii. 1.

v. 9—22. In grateful acknowledgment of the divine mercy ſhown him in his recovery, Hezekiah compoſed this ſacred thankſgiving; and ſuch memorials are not only profitable to keep alive our own gratitude, but ſtand as monuments of God's mercy, and an encouragement to truſt him for future generations. We have here,

1. The deſperateneſs of his caſe. I ſaid in the cutting off of my days, I ſhall go to the gates of the grave; though in the prime of life, he ſaw the gates of the grave open to receive him: I am deprived of the reſidue of my years, which, in the courſe of nature, he might have expected to have lived; but his grief was more that he was removed in the midſt of his uſefulneſs, than in the midſt of his days. I ſaid, I ſhall not ſee the Lord, even the Lord in the land of the living; no more frequent the courts of his houſe, and join in the ordinances of his worſhip, encouraging by his example the piety of his people. I ſhall behold man no more with the inhabitants of the world, or time, and be no longer able to ſerve the intereſts of God among his ſubjects, or be the inſtrument of advancing their reformation and happineſs; and alſo no more enjoy the company of thoſe near and dear to him, with whom, in the houſe of God, he uſed to hold ſweet communion. Mine age is departed, and is removed from me as a ſhepherd's tent, or my habitation; the tabernacle of his body, ready to return to duſt, as the ſhepherd's tent, is quickly and eaſily removed. I have cut off like a weaver my life, who, when his piece is finiſhed, cuts it out of the loom; and his ſins might be regarded by him as the cauſe of his days being ſhortened. He will cut me off with pining ſickneſs, or, from the thrum, alluding to the metaphor of the weaver, and acknowledging the hand of God in the affliction, in whoſe hands are life and death. I reckoned till morning, or, ſet my time till morning, concluding it impoſſible longer to ſurvive; that as a lion, ſo will he, or it, break all my bones; the Lord's afflicting hand, or his diſeaſe, the pains of which were as acute as if he had been torn and gnawed by a lion. From day even to night wilt thou make an end of me; though beyond expectation he ſaw the light of another day, he had no hopes of ſeeing a third. Note (1.) When we are in diſtreſs, we are too apt to ſink into deſpondence. (2.) A ſollicitude for God's glory, and his intereſt among men, is the only truly laudable motive that can make a good man prefer abidance in the body to a departure to his Lord. (3.) The gates of the grave ſtand open day and night; it becomes us frequently to think of paſſing through them. (4.) Our moſt ſettled abode here is but as a poor ſhepherd's tent, and our paſſage through time ſwift as the weaver's ſhuttle: it ſhould therefore awaken our ſollicitude to ſecure a more durable manſion, that when the days of time are cut off, we may be enabled with joy to ſtep forward into eternity.

2. His fervent prayer in his diſtreſs. Like a crane or a ſwallow, ſo did I chatter; ſometimes aloud, in extremity of pain; ſometimes low, worn out with anguiſh, or ſo interrupted and broken were his prayers, through the torment he endured. I did mourn as a dove, bemoaning himſelf over his tranſgreſſions: mine eyes fail with looking upward; ready to cloſe in death, deſpairing of relief. O Lord, I am oppreſſed, or, it oppreſſeth me, my diſeaſe: undertake for me, to pluck me from the bars of the pit; or it may be rendered, I have no righteouſneſs; be ſurety for me, as containing his humble confeſſion, and his dependance for pardoning grace on that Redeemer, who, in the fulneſs of time, ſhould be his people's ſurety. Note, (1.) Nothing can make a dying bed eaſy, but confidence in the ſufficiency of our divine ſurety to undertake for us in the great day. (2.) Till our eyes are cloſed, our lips ought not to be ſilent; yea, when our tongue can no longer perform its office, to this dear Redeemer ſhould our ſoul aſpire, till we breathe it forth into his boſom.

3. His grateful acknowledgments. What ſhall I ſay? where words are wanting to expreſs the gratitude I feel. He hath both ſpoken unto me, and himſelf hath done it: ſure is every word of his promiſe, and now by experience he can bear teſtimony thereto. I will go ſoftly all my years in the bitterneſs of my ſoul; meditating upon the mercies received, and aſhamed of his own ſinful diſtruſt. Or rather, I will go chearfully all my years, after the bitterneſs of my ſoul; the ſtorm blown over, peace and proſperity ſhall crown all the years God doth prolong. O Lord, by theſe things men live; by the word of divine promiſe, and the gracious providence of God: and in all theſe things is the life of my ſpirit; the power, providence, and grace of God appearing thus wonderfully for him, gave renewed life to his ſoul as well as his body, filling him with faith, and love, and joy. He inſtances ſeveral particulars that call for eſpecial praiſe:

(1.) His recovery: So wilt thou recover me, and make me to live; or, ſo haſt thou recovered me, and made me to live; and every new life beſtowed juſtly calls on us to adore the gracious giver.

(2.) The pleaſing contraſt of eaſe for pain, health for ſickneſs. Behold, for peace I had great bitterneſs: or, as it may be rendered, behold, into peace hath he changed my great bitterneſs.

(3.) The love of God ſeen in his caſe made the mercy unſpeakably ſweeter, and more endeared to him. Thou haſt in love to my ſoul delivered it from the pit of corruption, the grave: or, with tender love thou haſt embraced my ſoul from the pit of corruption; ſnatching me from it, as a tender parent, when I was ruſhing into the horrible pit. Note, Health reſtored is doubly pleaſing, when we can ſee it is in love to our ſouls.

(4.) His ſins pardoned, fully, freely, for ever: for thou haſt caſt all my ſins behind thy back. And herein every redeemed ſoul is called upon to join the thankſgiving of this pious king; for, (1.) Our ſouls and bodies, by reaſon of ſin original and actual, in heart and life, are forfeited, and ready to fall into the bottomleſs pit of eternal perdition. (2.) The tranſcendently rich and gracious love of God in Chriſt Jeſus hath interpoſed to pluck us from ruin, and to this alone we are indebted. (3.) Whom God loves in Chriſt, he pardons; and not only forgives, but forgets their provocations, be they never ſo great, numerous, or aggravated. (4.) All the bitterneſs which a ſenſe of guilt and danger awakens in the conſcience, God's love removes, and fills the ſoul, O bleſſed change! with joy and peace in believing. (5.) The ſouls thus reſcued ſhall never taſte of death; the pit of corruption is for ever ſhut, and the golden gates of life and immortality unfolded.

4. His reſolution to continue himſelf, and excite others to join him, in this conſtant and delightful work of praiſe: For the grave cannot praiſe thee, death cannot celebrate thee: ſilence there reigns; no grateful ſongs aſcend from the duſt, and no more ſervice can be rendered to God's intereſts here below, by thoſe who are departed. They that go down into the pit cannot hope for thy truth; there God can be no longer glorified by faith or hope in his promiſes; but the living, the living, he ſhall praiſe thee, as I do this day: thoſe whoſe bodily lives are through mercy renewed, and their ſouls ſpiritually alive alſo, theſe would join him in God's praiſe. The father to the children ſhall make known thy truth; tranſmitting to poſterity the memorial of God's faithfulneſs, to encourage their truſt, and awaken their gratitude. The Lord was ready to ſave me; inſtant as I called, relief appeared: therefore we will ſing my ſongs to the ſtringed inſtruments all the days of our life; I, and all the faithful rejoicing in my mercies, will render the ceaſeleſs tribute of our ſongs in the houſe of the Lord. Note, (1.) Since in the grave we can no more glorify God, what now our hand findeth to do for him, let us do it with our might. (2.) Who ſhall praiſe him, if they do not, who have been recovered from going down to the pit? (3.) Whilſt life and breath endure, ſo long ſhould our praiſes laſt, and then we ſhall go where they will never end. (4.) Godly parents will not fail to tranſmit to their children the memorial of their fathers mercies, and to encourage them to truſt the ſame promiſes which themſelves have proved ſo faithful.

5. At the cloſe of this hiſtory it is remarked, as in 2 Kings xx. 7, 8. that the ſign, v. 8. was given at Hezekiah's requeſt, and and a lump of figs, at Iſaiah's command, laid on the boil, either as a means to procure his recovery, or as a ſign to aſſure him of it. Note, (1.) Though in ſickneſs our dependance muſt not be on the medicines, yet we are to truſt God in the uſe of means. (2.) The great comfort of health is ability to attend on God's worſhip, and be employed actively in his ſervice; and this is the great end for which a good man wiſhes to live.

Before Christ 714.

CHAP. XXXIX.

The ſtory of this chapter likewiſe we had before, 2 Kings xx. 12, &c. We have here, 1. Hezekiah's pride in ſhewing his treaſures to the king of Babylon's ambaſſadors that were ſent to congratulate his recovery, ver. 1, 2. 2. Iſaiah's enquiry, and Hezekiah's acknowledgment what he had done, ver. 3, 4. 3. The ſentence paſſed upon him for it, ver. 5—7. 4. Hezekiah's penitent and patient ſubmiſſion to it, ver. 8.

1. [a] AT that time Merodach-baladan, the ſon of Baladan king of Babylon, [b] ſent letters and a preſent to Hezekiah: for he had heard that he had been ſick, and was recovered. 2. And Hezekiah was glad of them, and [c] ſhewed them the houſe of his † precious things, the ſilver, and the gold, and the ſpices, and the precious ointment, and all the houſe of his ‡ armour, and all that was found in his treaſures: [d] there was nothing in his houſe, nor in all his dominion, that Hezekiah ſhewed them not. 3. ¶ Then came Iſaiah the prophet unto king Hezekiah, and ſaid unto him, What ſaid theſe men? and from whence came they unto thee? And Hezekiah ſaid, They are come from a far country unto me, even from Babylon. 4. Then ſaid he, What have they ſeen in thine houſe? And Hezekiah anſwered, [e] All that is in mine houſe have they ſeen: there is nothing among my treaſures that I have not ſhewed them.

[a] 2 Kings xx. 12, &c.
[b] 2 Cor. xii. 7.
[c] 2 Chron. xxxii. 25, 31.
† Or, ſpicery.
‡ Heb. Veſſels, or inſtruments.
[d] Eccleſ. vii. 20. 1 John i. 8.
[e] Joſh. vii. 19. Job xxxi. 33.

v. 1—4. Though nothing could appear more promiſing than Hezekiah's late profeſſions, and in general he did approve himſelf faithful, yet in ſome things he failed, as in the ſtory here recorded, where his pride and vanity ſeduced him; ſo that, as it is obſerved by the ſacred hiſtorian, 2 Chron. xxxii. 25. He rendered not again according to the benefit done to him.

This hiſtory we have had before, 2 Kings xx. 12. and may juſt add to what was there obſerved, (1.) How hard it is to be kept humble under diſtinguiſhed mercies and this world's wealth. (2.) They will be courted in proſperity, who in adverſity would be deſpiſed. (3.) When it becomes their intereſt, the enemies of religion will careſs God's people; but their kiſſes are commonly deceitful. (4.) An affectation of diſplaying our improvements, wealth, buildings, &c. to ſtrangers, and taking a ſecret pleaſure in doing ſo, evidences the vanity of the heart, and that often moſt, when we affect to call them trifles. (5.) God will not ſee his children puffed up without ſending them the needful rebuke: it is well if, as Hezekiah, we take ſhame to ourſelves, and confeſs our folly.

5. [f] Then ſaid Iſaiah to Hezekiah, Hear the word of the LORD of hoſts. 6. Behold, the days come, that all that is in thine houſe, and that which thy fathers have laid up in ſtore until this day, [g] ſhall be carried to Babylon: nothing ſhall be left, ſaith the LORD. 7. And of thy ſons that ſhall iſſue from thee, which thou ſhalt beget, ſhall they take away; and [h] they ſhall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon. 8. Then ſaid Hezekiah to Iſaiah, [i] Good is the word of the LORD which thou haſt ſpoken: he ſaid moreover, For there ſhall be peace and truth in my days.

[f] 2 Kings xx. 16, &c.
[g] Jer. lii. 17. Dan. i. 2.
[h] Dan. i. 3, 7.
[i] 1 Sam. iii. 18. Job i. 21. Pſal. xxxix. 9.

v. 5—8. It was a mortifying meſſage the prophet brought him, but a bleſſed ſymptom of Hezekiah's gracious ſpirit, that ſo humbly he acquieſced in the divine decree. It may teach us, (1.) That it is juſt in God to take from us the gifts we abuſe. (2.) Not to be deſirous of, or value ourſelves upon, the reſpect paid us by the children of this world: our intimacy and connections with them uſually in their iſſue prove our plague. (3.) True prophets of God muſt not ſpare the faithful reproof; and true penitents will, ſo far from being offended, receive it with thankfulneſs. (4.) When God is pleaſed to reſume his gifts we have abuſed, or to puniſh us by afflictions in this world for our ſins, it becomes us to bear the rod with quietneſs, and juſtify him in his judgments. Whilſt we are out of hell, all our ſufferings are infinitely leſs than we deſerve. (5.) Though we cannot but be concerned about the evils which we foreſee, yet every moment's reſpite is a mercy to be acknowledged.

CHAP. XL.

At this chapter begins the latter part of the prophecy of this book: the concluſion of the former chapter ſpread a dark cloud over Judah and its princes; but before God ſent his people into captivity, he furniſhed them with precious promiſes for their ſupport and comfort in their trouble; and we may well imagine of what great uſe to them this gracious prophecy was in that cloudy and dark day, and how much it helped to dry up their tears by the rivers of Babylon. Much of Chriſt and goſpel grace we meet with in the foregoing part of this book, but in this latter part we ſhall find much more; and as if it were deſigned for a prophetical ſummary of the New Teſtament, it begins with that which begins the goſpels, the voice of one crying in the wilderneſs, chap. xl. 3. and concludes with that which concludes the book of the Revelation, the new heavens and the new earth, chap. xlvi. 22.

In this chapter we have, 1. Orders given to publiſh abroad the glad tidings of redemption, ver. 1, 2. 2. Theſe glad tidings introduced by a voice in the wilderneſs, which gives aſſurance that all obſtructions ſhall be removed, ver. 3—5. and that though all creatures fail and fade, the word of God ſhall be eſtabliſhed and accompliſhed, ver. 6—8. 3. A joyful proſpect given to the people of God of the happineſs which this redemption ſhould bring along with it, ver. 9—11. 4. The ſovereignty and power of that God magnified, who undertakes to work out this redemption, ver. 12—17. 5. Idols therefore triumphed over, and idolaters upbraided with their folly, ver. 18—26. 6. A reproof given to the people of God for their fears and deſpondencies, and enough ſaid in a few words to ſilence thoſe fears, ver. 27—31. And we through patience and comfort of this ſcripture may have hope.

712.

1. COmfort ye, comfort ye my people, ſaith your God. 2. Speak ye † comfortably to Jeruſalem, and cry unto her, that her ‡ warfare [a] is accompliſhed, that her iniquity is pardoned: for ſhe hath received of the LORD's hand [b] double for all her ſins.

† Heb. To the heart of.
‡ Or, appointed time.
[a] Pſ. cii. 13.
[b] Chap. lxi. 7.

v. 1, 2. The concluſion of the prophet's meſſage in the former chapter ſpoke terror and conviction; the opening of this, joy and conſolation: for though it be a needful ſeverity to wound, it is the more pleaſing part of our office to bind up the broken-hearted, and to preach the goſpel of peace.

It would afford the pious Jews a beam of chearing hope amidſt the evils that were expected, and ſupport the fainting ſpirits of the poor captives, to have theſe great and precious promiſes ſet before them, and be aſſured, whatever they ſuffered, there was hope in the end. We have here,

1. The commiſſion given: Comfort ye, comfort ye, my people, ſaith your God. Speak ye comfortably to Jeruſalem, or, to the heart of Jeruſalem, and cry unto her. (1.) The perſons addreſſed are my people; this is their character, they are choſen, and faithful, and called. (2.) The perſon ſpeaking, your God, your reconciled God in Jeſus Chriſt, in whoſe love preſent and eternal his people are intereſted, and therefore may expect all that almighty power, boundleſs mercy, infinite wiſdom, and unchangeable faithfulneſs can beſtow. (3.) The employment of God's miniſters is to comfort his people, who are often greatly dejected through affliction, temptation, corruption, and deſertion. (4.) The order is repeated, and they are commanded not only to ſpeak, but cry aloud; for though it be the privilege of God's people to rejoice, and his will concerning them that they ſhould be happy in him, yet they are apt to write bitter things againſt themſelves, and ſcarce can be perſuaded to receive the bleſſings God hath in ſtore for them.

2. The mercies promiſed; and theſe are, (1.) The pardon of ſin. Her iniquity is pardoned; however deep the die, and aggravated the guilt, it is pardoned freely, fully, for ever. The blood and righteouſneſs of Jeſus have obtained eternal redemption for us, and there is no more condemnation. (2.) Victory over all our enemies. Her warfare is accompliſhed: Chriſt, the captain of our ſalvation, hath vanquiſhed for us ſin, Satan, death, and hell; hath entered into the land of glory as a conqueror, to take poſſeſſion for us, and we are already triumphant in our exalted head; and what he hath done for us, he will do in us. Though we have a warfare to maintain whilſt we are in the body, againſt fleſh and blood, corruption within, and the world without, and Satan tempts, and death threatens, yet by his grace we ſhall be more than conquerors, and ſee quickly all our enemies put under our feet. (3.) She hath received of the Lord's hand double for all her ſins. God ſpeaks as a tender parent, whoſe love makes him think the corrections he had given his dear children beyond meaſure: or rather the words intimate the full ſatisfaction God hath taken of Chriſt our ſurety, exacting from him to the uttermoſt the deſert of our iniquities.

3. ¶ [c] The voice of him that crieth in the wilderneſs, [d] Prepare ye the way of the LORD, make ſtraight in the deſert a high-way for [e] our God. 4. Every valley ſhall

[c] Mat. iii. 3. Mark i. 3. Luke iii. 4. John i. 23.
[d] Mal. iii. 1.
[e] Pſ. lxviii. 4.

Before Christ 714.

be exalted, and [f] every mountain and hill ſhall be made low : and [g] the crooked ſhall be made ſtraight, and the rough places plain. 5. And [h] the glory of the LORD ſhall be revealed, and all fleſh ſhall ſee it together : for the mouth of the LORD hath ſpoken it. 6. The voice ſaid, Cry. And he ſaid, What ſhall I cry ? [i] All fleſh is graſs, and all the goodlineſs thereof is as the flower of the field. 7. The graſs withereth, the flower fadeth ; [k] becauſe the Spirit of the LORD bloweth upon it : ſurely the people is graſs. 8. The graſs wither-eth, the flower fadeth : but [l] the word of our God ſhall ſtand for ever.

[f] Zech. iv. 7.
[g] Chap. xlv. 2.
[h] John i. 14.
[i] Job xiv. 2. Pſ. xc. v. & cii. 11. & ciii. 15. Jam. i. 10. 1 Pet. i. 24.
[k] Pſ. ciii. 16.
[l] Rom. iii. 3. 1 Pet. i. 25.

v. 3—8. The ſcriptures of the New Teſtament have not left us uncertain whoſe voice this is which crieth in the wilderneſs. John, like the morning-ſtar, the harbinger of day, appears to uſher in the Sun of righteouſneſs, and to awaken, by his preaching, the ſouls of ſinners to turn their eyes towards the Lamb of God which taketh away the ſins of the world.

1. The cry is, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make ſtraight in the deſert a high-way for our God. Jehovah, our God, here ſpoken of, is the glorious Redeemer, whoſe eternal godhead is aſſerted. Our hearts are a deſart, till his preſence and love changes the dreary ſcene. Where his footſteps tread, waters break forth in the wilderneſs, and ſtreams of grace and conſolation in the deſart. The preparation for him muſt be from him ; and he that commands muſt give the hearing ear, the contrite heart, and diſpoſe us to welcome him into our ſouls.

2. Where Jeſus comes, every valley ſhall be exalted, and every mountain and hill ſhall be made low ; and the crooked ſhall be made ſtrait, and the rough places plain. Such will be the effects of his grace upon the ſouls of his people : thoſe who were ſunk into the loweſt deep under the ſenſe of guilt, ſhall be raiſed up by divine mercy and exalted : the proud, who in their own eyes before were high in conceit of their own worth and excellence, ſhall be brought low, and acknowledge their ſin and vileneſs : the crooked and rough ways of men of perverſe minds ſhall be made ſtrait, their errors removed, their corrupt practices reformed, and their hearts renewed in holineſs.

3. The glory of the Lord ſhall be revealed, the Redeemer Jeſus, the brightneſs of his father's glory, and the expreſs image of his perſon, and all fleſh ſhall ſee it together ; he being the univerſal Saviour, not of the Jews only, but alſo of the Gentiles : for the mouth of the Lord hath ſpoken it, and therefore no jot or tittle of his promiſes ſhall fail.

4. A farther commiſſion is given the preacher, and at his requeſt he is inſtructed what to cry, v. 6—8. which may refer to the weakneſs and impotence of the Babylonians, to detain the Jews in their captivity, when the Lord ſhould ariſe to ſave them ; or more generally may be applied to all men, where the word of the goſpel is preached, as an alarming motive to attend to the great and precious promiſes of a better world, ſeeing this is ſo frail and fading. All fleſh is graſs, weak and withering, and all the goodlineſs thereof as the flower of the field, which, though it looks more gay and beautiful, is as frail and feeble. Such are all human gifts and greatneſs, and ſuch the beſt works of man's righteouſneſs, which however ſpecious, quickly fade. The graſs withereth, the flower fadeth, becauſe the ſpirit of the Lord bloweth upon it ; then drooping, dying, all our beauty and glory languiſhes : health loſes its bloom, our poſſeſſions fade away, and death cloſes the ſcene : or when this Spirit breathes upon us in converſion, our beſt doings and duties appear poor and wretched ; and thoſe things on which we prided ourſelves we count dung and loſs, that we may win Chriſt. Surely the people is graſs, all people of every age, rank, and degree ; the graſs withereth, the flower fadeth, ſuch periſhing things are all human excellence ; but the word of our God ſhall ſtand for ever ; and therefore when all beſides periſhes, and every earthly comfort or poſſeſſion in death are for ever loſt, they who make the great and precious promiſes of the goſpel their ſtay, will find, to their everlaſting comfort, a portion which cannot fail them in the better world of glory.

9. ¶ † O Zion that bringeſt good tidings, get thee up into the high mountain ; ‡ O Jeruſalem, that bringeſt good tidings, lift up thy voice with ſtrength : lift it up, be not afraid ; ſay unto the cities of Judah, Behold your God. 10. Behold, the LORD God will come § with ſtrong hand, and his arm ſhall rule for him : behold, [m] his reward is with him, and his ‖ work before him. 11. He ſhall [n] feed his flock like a ſhepherd : he ſhall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his boſom, and [o] ſhall gently lead thoſe that † are with young.

† Or, O thou that bringeſt good tidings to Zion. Chap. lii. 7.
‡ Or, O thou that bringeſt good tidings to Jeruſalem.
§ Or, againſt the ſtrong.
[m] Chap. lxii. 11. Rev. xxii. 12.
‖ Or, recompenſe for his work.
[n] Ezek. xxxiv. 23. John x. 11.
[o] Chap. xlii. 3. Mat. xi. 28. Rom. xiv. 1.
† Or, that give ſuck.

v. 9—11. Great was the joy when, by the edict of Cyrus, once more the Jews were permitted to return to their own land, and loudly was it proclaimed by thoſe who had at heart the proſperity of Zion. To this the prophecy may refer, but it evidently was deſigned for the days of Chriſt, and reſpects his incarnation.

1. His manifeſtation in the fleſh is proclaimed to ſinners, as their greateſt happineſs. O Zion, that bringeſt good tidings, when his miniſtry chiefly was exerciſed ; or better, it may be rendered, O thou that bringeſt good tidings to Zion, as addreſſed to John the Baptiſt, and all the miniſters of the goſpel, whoſe office it is to proclaim the divine glories and tranſcendent excellence of the Redeemer, in all his offices and undertakings, for the ſalvation of ſinners ; get thee up to the high mountain, to the moſt public places, ſuch as the mount of the Lord's houſe. O Jeruſalem, &c. or, O thou that bringeſt good tidings to Jeruſalem, lift up thy voice with ſtrength : lift it up, be not afraid of the oppoſition and revilings of men, who would perſecute the preachers of the goſpel. Say unto the cities of Judah, where Chriſt appeared, Behold your God incarnate, the promiſed Emmanuel ; a man, and yet the eternal Jehovah, come with the moſt joyful tidings that can greet a ſinner's ears, to proclaim pardon, grace, and ſalvation, freely and to the uttermoſt.

2. His power and all-ſufficiency are declared. Behold, your God ſhall come ; that deſire of all nations, and eſpecially the glory of his Iſrael ; he ſhall come with a ſtrong hand, mighty to ſave his people, and puniſh his enemies : or, againſt a ſtrong one, to deſtroy the works of the devil, and break his hateful power in the hearts of men : and his arm ſhall rule for him, ſelf-ſufficient, and deſigning his own glory : or againſt him, the great enemy of ſouls, who muſt yield to this conqueror. Behold ! with joy, ye people of God, his reward is with him, to beſtow eternal life on as many as believe in him : and his work before him, the glorious work of redemption : he came fully acquainted with the ſteps neceſſary thereto, and perfectly able and willing for the undertaking.

3. His grace and love are tenderly diſplayed under the character of a watchful ſhepherd. He ſhall feed his flock like a ſhepherd : his people are his ſheep, bought at the price of his blood, and therefore with tendereſt regard he feeds them in the green paſtures of his ordinances ; beſtows on them the waters of conſolation ; watches over them night and day, defending them from every danger ; ſeeking them when ſtrayed, and ſuffering none of them to be loſt. He ſhall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his boſom ; as when the cold is ready to kill the new-caſt lamb, or it is ſo weak that it cannot follow the dam, the ſhepherd in his boſom bears and cheriſhes it ; ſo doth Chriſt the lambs of his flock, pitying their weakneſs, helping their infirmities, and in the boſom of his love cheriſhing and ſtrengthening their ſouls : and ſhall gently lead thoſe that are with young, whoſe circumſtances are embarraſſed, and trials difficult : he leads them gently as they are able, and ſafely, ſo that they do not miſcarry, nor finally come ſhort of the glory of God. Let the under-ſhepherds learn of their chief ſhepherd to partake of his Spirit, and tread in his ſteps, conſulting the weakneſs and miniſtring to the wants of thoſe ſheep and lambs of his flock entruſted to their care.

12. ¶ [p] Who hath meaſured the waters in the hollow of his hand ? and meted out heaven with a ſpan, and comprehended the duſt of the earth in a † meaſure, and weighed the mountains in ſcales, and the hills in a balance ? 13. [q] Who hath directed the Spirit of the LORD, or being ‡ his counſeller hath taught him ? 14. With whom took he counſel, and who inſtructed him, and taught him in the path of judgment, and taught him knowledge, and ſhewed to him the way of underſtanding ? 15. Behold, the nations are as a drop of a bucket, and are counted as the ſmall duſt of the balance : behold, he taketh up the iſles as a very little thing. 16.
And Lebanon is not ſufficient to burn, nor the beaſts thereof ſufficient for a burnt-offering. 17. [r] All nations before him are as nothing, and they are counted to him
[s] leſs than nothing and vanity.

[p] Prov. xxx. 4.
† Or, tierce.
[q] Job xxi. 22. & xxxvi. 22, 23. Wiſd. ix. 13. Rom. xi. 34. 1 Cor. ii. 16.
‡ Heb. The man of his counſel.
[r] Dan. iv. 35.
[s] Pſ. lxii. 9.

v. 12—17. Theſe words ſpeak conſolation to God's people ; they declare the infinite power and wiſdom of their God. His captives in Babylon need not fear his ability to compaſs their deliverance ; and his choſen now and ever may be aſſured, that he, who in his condeſcenſions is their ſhepherd, ſuffers no diminution of his uncreated glory thereby. The deſcription here given of our Redeemer is unutterably grand. Such his immenſity, the vaſt abyſs of waters to him are but as a few drops in the hollow of his hand ; the expanded heaven to him is but a ſpan ; the ponderous globe but as a few particles of duſt ; and the mountains and hills, ſo prodigious in height and breadth, weighed in his ſcales, appear as grains of ſand, and all nicely proportioned for the purpoſes they were deſigned to ſerve, v. 12. In his amazing work of creation he needed no adviſer, himſelf the fountain of wiſdom, all receiving from him, none capable of adding to him, v. 13. Before him the mightieſt nations are but as the drop of the bucket, or the ſmall duſt of the balance ; ſo light, as not to turn the poiſed ſcale. The iſles he taketh up, or

Before Chriſt 712.

or caſteth away, as chaff, or the down of thiſtles, v. 15. Were Lebanon with all its foreſts hewn down for fuel, and the innumerable herds which feed thereon ſlain for a ſacrifice, utterly inſufficient would they have been to expiate the ſins of men: no leſs than the incarnate Jehovah could offer the propitiation, v. 16. before whom all nations are as nothing, and, as if words were wanting to expreſs their inſignificance, they are counted leſs than nothing and vanity. Note, (1.) The more we ſee of the Redeemer's greatneſs and glory, the more ſhould our hearts be eſtabliſhed in the fulneſs of his ſalvation. (2.) The leſs we are in our own eyes, and the more we ſee our own vanity, as well as ſin, the more ſhall we admire the infinite love and condeſcenſion of our Immanuel.

18. ¶ [t] To whom then will ye liken God? or what likeneſs will ye compare unto him? 19. [u] The workman melteth a graven image, and the goldſmith ſpreadeth it over with gold, and caſteth ſilver chains. 20. He that is ſo impoveriſhed, that he hath no oblation, chooſeth a tree that will not rot; he ſeeketh unto him a cunning workman [x] to prepare a graven image that ſhall not be moved. 21. Have ye not known? have ye not heard? [y] hath it not been told you from the beginning? have ye not underſtood from the foundations of the earth? 22. It is he that ſitteth upon the circle of the earth, and the inhabitants thereof are as graſshoppers; [z] that ſtretcheth out the heavens as a curtain, and ſpreadeth them out as a tent to dwell in: 23. That bringeth [a] the princes to nothing; he maketh the judges of the earth as vanity. 24. ¶ Yea they ſhall not be planted, yea they ſhall not be ſown, yea their ſtock ſhall not take root in the earth: and he ſhall alſo blow upon them, and they ſhall wither, and the whirlwind ſhall take them away as ſtubble. 25. [b] To whom then will ye liken me, or ſhall I be equal? ſaith the holy One. 26. Lift up your eyes on high, and behold who hath created theſe things, that bringeth out their hoſt by number: [c] he calleth them all by names, by the greatneſs of his might, for that he is ſtrong in power, not one faileth.

t Ver. 25. Chap. xlvi. 5. Act. xvii. 29.
u Chap. xli. 6. & xliv. 12. Jer. x. 3.
x Chap. xli. 7.
y Pſ. xix. 1. Rom. i. 20.
z Job ix. 8. Pſ. civ. 2. Chap. xliv. 24. Jer. x. 12.
a Job xii. 21. Pſ. cvii. 40.
† Or, So that they are as if they had not been planted nor ſown, &c.
b Ver. 18.
c Pſ. cxlvii. 4.

v. 18—26. The ſin and folly of idolaters is here upbraided.

1. The abſurdity of idolatry is here deſcribed, v. 19, 20. Mad in the purſuit of idol vanities, the founder caſts the figure; and, laviſh of their riches, they deck the ſenſeleſs image; it is overlaid with plates of gold, or adorned with chains of ſilver. Yea, he that cannot afford an offering will have a god, tho' carved from a tree; and chuſing the wood that is moſt incorruptible, has it faſhioned into ſhape, and fixed in its place. Amazing ſtupidity! to pay adoration to a ſenſeleſs log, or expect ſupport from that which cannot ſtand without being faſtened. Note, (1.) The idolatry that hath prevailed ſo univerſally is a ſtriking proof of the fall of man, and of the dreadful darkneſs of the human underſtanding. (2.) The continuance of this abominable practice in the church of Rome is among the ſtrong proofs of her utter apoſtacy. (3.) Beware of ſpiritual idolatry: to place a confidence in gold, or ſet up the creature above God in our affections, is equally criminal as to bow the knee to a ſtock or a ſtone.

2. The prophet expoſtulates with them, Have ye not known? have ye not heard? hath it not been told you from the beginning? have ye not underſtood from the foundations of the earth? From the viſible creation the great Author's eternal power and godhead might be clearly ſeen, and traditionary notices of his Being were handed down from the beginning; yet they degraded him into an image made like to corruptible man, and worſhipped him not as God; ſo that they were without excuſe, See Rom. i. 20. A glorious deſcription then follows of the great Jehovah: On the circle of the heavens he ſitteth, by his power and providence upholding all things; on this terreſtrial ball he looks, an atom in the vaſt expanſe, and puny mortals appear but as graſshoppers or locuſts before him. As a curtain he ſtretches out the firmament, and in the heavens, hid from mortal eye, ſpreads his radiant tabernacle, v. 22. In his view earth's mightieſt princes ſhrink into nothing; their perſons, counſels, power, are all vanity, v. 23. Fixed as their thrones appear, and great as they ſeem to worms like themſelves, one breath of his diſpleaſure blaſts them as graſs, and hurls them from the earth as ſtubble before the whirlwind, v. 24.

3. He directs them whither to turn their eyes, nor more attempt to liken God, the eternal Spirit, to any corporeal form. Lift up your eyes on high, and behold who hath created theſe things; read in the expanded volume above, the legible characters of the Creator's glory; that bringeth out their hoſt by number, marſhalled in exact order: he calleth them all by names ſuited to their poſition and influence: by the greatneſs of his might, for that he is ſtrong in power, not one faileth; bound by omnipotent power, each in his ſeveral orbit performs his revolution, and uſes his influence according to his Creator's will. Since then God is ſo infinitely above the higheſt creatures, and all theſe the works of his hands, every repreſentation of him by them muſt be a debaſement of his glory.

27. Why ſayeſt thou, O Jacob, and ſpeakeſt, O Iſrael, [d] My way is hid from the LORD, and [e] my judgment is paſſed over from my God? 28. ¶ Haſt thou not known? [f] haſt thou not heard, that the everlaſting God, the LORD, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? [g] there is no ſearching of his underſtanding. 29. [h] He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might, he increaſeth ſtrength. 30. Even [i] the youths ſhall faint, and be weary, and the young men ſhall utterly fall. 31. But they that wait upon the LORD [k] ſhall † renew their ſtrength: they ſhall mount up with wings as eagles, they ſhall run and not be weary, and they ſhall walk and not faint.

d Job iii. 23.
e Mal. ii. 17.
f Pſ. xliv. 1.
g Pſ. cxlvii. 5. Rom. xi. 33.
h 2 Cor. xii. 9.
i Pſ xxxiii. 16.
k Pſ. ciii. 5.
† Heb. Change, or double.

v. 27—31. Their long captivity was ready to diſcourage the hearts of the Jews; and ſome of them, under the power of unbelief, were ready to conclude themſelves forgotten and forſaken of God; for which the prophet here reproves them; and their rebuke is deſigned for our admonition, who are ready to faint when we are corrected of him.

1. He expoſes their impatience and unbelief. Why ſayeſt thou, O Jacob, and ſpeakeſt, O Iſrael, My way is hid from the Lord; he diſregards my afflictions; and my judgment is paſſed over from my God? he hears not my appeals, nor gives me the expected redreſs. Note, (1.) Unbelieving ſuggeſtions ariſe often in the hearts of true Iſraelites. (2.) Such queſtions as our impatience utters, muſt be ſilenced. Why and wherefore do we complain? God is not ſlack in his promiſes, but we are haſty in ſpirit. The viſion is for an appointed time. (3.) It argues our folly, as well as ſin, to ſuppoſe God doth not ſee our diſtreſs, or is not able to relieve us.

2. Two things he reminds them of, which they ought to have known and conſidered: the infinite power, and unſearchable wiſdom of God. Haſt thou not known? after all the wonders diſplayed in behalf of his people; haſt thou not heard, from the experience of paſt ages, as well as the oracles of truth, that the everlaſting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? His power is never exhauſted, nor his government enfeebled: he is from eternity unchangeably the ſame, and, as the Creator of all, muſt needs be able to govern the work of his own hands; and therefore, however low his church may be reduced, it is not owing to weakneſs or wearineſs that he doth not appear for their relief. When his time is come, he will ſave them to the uttermoſt, nor can be at a loſs for the means, when infinite wiſdom is joined with almighty power; for there is no ſearching of his underſtanding; therefore we are bound at all times to truſt him, and patiently expect the ſalvation of God.

3. When we do ſo, we are ſure of being holpen. He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might, he increaſeth ſtrength: ſuch as, ſeeing their own ſpiritual weakneſs and helpleſſneſs, apply to him, find him a very preſent help. When I am weak, then am I ſtrong. Even the youths ſhall faint, and be weary, and the young men ſhall utterly fall: ſuch as truſt on an arm of fleſh, and, ſelf-confident, think they are able to extricate themſelves from their difficulties, or, by the ſtrength of their own endeavours, to overcome the power of their corruptions; theſe ſhall prove their inſufficiency, and utterly fail: but they that wait on the Lord, both for righteouſneſs and ſtrength, and in every trial caſt their care upon him, ſenſible of their own ſinfulneſs, ignorance, and weakneſs, theſe ſhall renew their ſtrength, be enabled to ſtand in the evil day, and ſupported under the ſore burden of their temptations, afflictions, and corruptions: yea, more than ſupported, they ſhall mount up with wings as eagles, ſo ſwift and ſtrong; and their trials ſerve to ſtrengthen their graces, and lift their ſouls farther from earth, and nearer heaven: they ſhall run, and not be weary, in the way of God's commandments, pleaſed in his happy ſervice, and accounting it perfect freedom: and they ſhall walk, and not faint; though long their journey, and difficult the way, the everlaſting arms of Jeſus's love ſhall bear them up, and bring them ſafe at laſt to their eternal home. Hold out then, faith and patience!

CHAP. XLI.

This chapter contains a challenge to the enemies of Chriſt, to try their cauſe before God, and is full of comfort to God's people, and confuſion to idolaters. 1. God ſhews the folly of thoſe that worſhipped idols, ver. 1—9. 2. He encourages his faithful ones with an aſſurance that he would make them victorious over their enemies, and bring about a happy change of their affairs, ver. 10—20. 3. He challenges the idols to vie with him either for knowledge or power, ver. 21—24, 26. 4. He mentions a glorious perſonage who ſhall ariſe to deſtroy his idolatrous foes, ver. 25, 27—29.

1. [a] KEEP

Before Chriſt 712.

1. [a] KEEP ſilence before me, O iſlands, and let the people renew their ſtrength: let them come near, then let them ſpeak: let us come near together to judgment. 2. Who raiſed up † the righteous man [b] from the eaſt, called him to his foot, [c] gave the nations before him, and made him rule over kings? he gave them as the duſt to his ſword, and as driven ſtubble to his bow. 3. He purſued them, and paſſed ‡ ſafely; even by the way that he had not gone with his feet. 4. Who hath wrought and done it, calling the generations from the beginning? I the LORD [d] the firſt, and with the laſt, I am he. 5. The iſles ſaw it and feared, the ends of the earth were afraid, drew near, and came. 6. [e] They helped every one his neighbour, and every one ſaid to his brother, ‖ Be of good courage. 7. [f] So the carpenter encouraged the § goldſmith, and he that ſmootheth with the hammer him that ſmote the anvil, † ſaying, It is ready for the ſodering: and he faſtned it with nails, [g] that it ſhould not be moved. 8. But thou Iſrael art my ſervant, Jacob [h] whom I have choſen, the ſeed of Abraham [i] my friend. 9. Thou whom I have taken from the ends of the earth, and called thee from the chief men thereof, and ſaid unto thee, Thou art my ſervant, I have choſen thee, [k] and not caſt thee away.

[a] Zech. ii. 13.
† Heb. Righteouſneſs.
[b] Gen. xi. 31. or Chap. xlvi. 11.
[c] Gen. xiv. 15. or Chap. xlv. 1.
‡ Heb. In peace.
[d] Chap. xliii. 10. & xliv. 6. & xlviii. 12. Rev. i. 17. & xxii. 13.
[e] Chap. xl. 19. & xliv. 12.
‖ Heb. Be ſtrong.
[f] Chap. xl. 19.
§ Or founder.
† Or ſaying of the ſoder, it is good.
[g] Chap. xl. 20.
[h] Deut. vii. 6. & x. 15. Pſ. cxxxv. 4.
[i] 2 Chron. xx. 7. Jam. ii. 23.
[k] 1 Sam. xii. 22. Pſ. xciv. 14.

v. 1—9. We have here,

1. A challenge given to idolaters, to try their cauſe before God; or as ſome ſuggeſt the matter of the controverſy here intended is the divine power and godhead of the Redeemer, ſpoken of in the former chapter, which Heretics, antient and modern, denied, who are cited to produce their evidence; though the firſt ſenſe ſeems moſt natural. The court is ſet, the citation ſent forth, ſilence proclaimed, the defendants of idolatry called to plead, and aſſured of a fair hearing, if they dared bring the matter to an iſſue. Note, (1.) We may ſafely challenge the enemies of the religion of Jeſus to do their worſt, ſince their oppoſition will iſſue in their greater confuſion. (2.) The truths of the goſpel will bear the ſtricteſt ſcrutiny; they who moſt attentively read their bibles, and weigh the arguments there advanced, will be unmoved with the wretched cavils of infidelity.

2. He mentions an inſtance of his glorious power, to which the idols cannot pretend, v. 2—4. The righteous man here ſpoken of, many interpret of Abraham, called of God from Ur of the Chaldees, obedient inſtantly to the divine admonition, though he knew not whither he went; eminently rewarded of God for his faith and obedience by preſent bleſſings, and the victory he obtained over the kings, Gen. xiv. having a grant of the land of Canaan for himſelf and poſterity, and appointed a father of many nations. Some ſuppoſe the righteous man here deſcribed is Cyrus, and that what ſhould be done hereafter is in the prophetic language ſpoken of as already accompliſhed; others, that the prophecy relates to the apoſtle Paul, though the firſt ſenſe appears moſt natural and preferable, and was a glorious manifeſtation of the Almighty power with which the eternal and unchangeable Jehovah had once delivered their great progenitor from the midſt of idolaters; and therefore the captives of Babylon might ſee both the vanity of idols, and the reaſon they had to hope for the ſame interpoſition of God's arm to reſcue them, and bring them back again to their own land. Note, (1.) The wonders of old time wrought for our anceſtors ſhould be an encouragement to us in time of trial. (2.) When God calls us to his foot, we may ſafely commit ourſelves to his guidance, though the way in which he is pleaſed to lead us be dark, and the iſſue unknown. (3.) All our enemies muſt bow before us, when the Lord is our ſtrength, and our Redeemer.

3. He repreſents the vain oppoſition of the idolaters, v. 5. When they ſaw what God had done for Abraham and his ſeed, they were alarmed, as if the cauſe of idolatry was in danger; and therefore, with eagerneſs united to prevent it, by increaſing the number of their idols, v. 6, 7. This is by ſome applied to the diſturbance St. Paul's preaching gave the idolaters at Epheſus, Acts xix. 20. and other places, and the oppoſition made againſt him. It ſhews, (1.) The jealouſy of the world and the devil, againſt the incroachments of religion. (2.) That the ſinner's heart is often exaſperated by the means which were deſigned for his converſion. (3.) How ready the wicked are to unite for purpoſes of evil, and ſhould the ſervants of the bleſſed God be leſs active in his ſervice?

4. He encourages his Iſrael to truſt him. Thou, Iſrael, art my ſervant, and being owned by him will be aſſuredly protected; Jacob, whom I have choſen as a veſſel of mercy ſeparated for God's ſervice from the world of idolaters, the ſeed of Abraham my friend, that high and honoured character, and therefore beloved for their father's ſake; whom I have taken from the ends of the earth, and called thee from the chief men thereof whither they were diſperſed, and ſaid unto thee, thou art my ſervant, I have choſen thee, and not caſt thee away, notwithſtanding all their provocations. And this is true alſo of the ſpiritual ſeed, choſen of God's grace, called by his word, appointed to be his faithful ſervants, owned and acknowledged by him as ſuch, and ſecured in a covenant of everlaſting love, from being finally caſt away.

Before Chriſt 712.

10. ¶ [l] Fear thou not, [m] for I am with thee: be not diſmayed, for I am thy God: I will ſtrengthen thee, yea, I will help thee, yea, [n] I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteouſneſs. 11. Behold, all they that were incenſed againſt thee, [o] ſhall be aſhamed and confounded: they ſhall be as nothing, and † they that ſtrive with thee ſhall periſh. 12. Thou ſhalt ſeek them, and ſhalt not find them, even them that contended with thee: they that war againſt thee ſhall be as nothing, and as a thing of nought. 13. For [p] I the LORD thy God will hold thy right hand, ſaying unto thee, Fear not, I will help thee. 14. [q] Fear not, thou worm Jacob, and ye men of Iſrael: I will help thee, ſaith the LORD, and thy Redeemer, the holy One of Iſrael. 15. Behold, [r] I will make thee a new ſharp threſhing inſtrument having teeth: thou ſhalt threſh the mountains, and beat them ſmall, and ſhalt make the hills as chaff. 16. Thou ſhalt fan them, and the wind ſhall carry them away, and the whirlwind ſhall ſcatter them: and thou ſhalt rejoice in the LORD, and ſhalt glory in the holy One of Iſrael. 17. When the poor and needy ſeek water, and there is none, and their tongue faileth for thirſt, I the LORD will hear them, I the God of Iſrael will not forſake them. 18. I will open [s] rivers in high places, and fountains in the midſt of the valleys: I will make [t] the wilderneſs a pool of water, and the dry land ſprings of water. 19. I will plant in the wilderneſs the cedar, the ſhittah-tree, and the myrtle, and the oil-tree: I will ſet in the deſert the fir-tree, and the pine, and the box-tree together: 20. [u] That they may ſee, and know, and conſider, and underſtand together, that the hand of the LORD hath done this, and the holy One of Iſrael hath created it.

[l] Ver. 14.
[m] Rom. viii. 31.
[n] Deut. xxxiii. 27.
[o] Exod. xxiii. 22. Chap. xlv. 24. & lx. 12. Zech. xii. 3.
† Heb. The men of thy ſtrife.
[p] Pſ. lxxiii. 23. Chap. xlv. 1.
[q] Ver. 10.
[r] Mic. iv. 13. 2 Cor. x. 4, 5.
[s] Chap. xxxv. 6, 7. & xliii. 19. & xliv. 3.
[t] Pſ. cvii. 35.
[u] Job xii. 9.

v. 10—20. To ſilence the fears, and encourage the faith and hope of God's people in their diſtreſſes, they are called upon to look to the rock which is higher than they.

1. God, their covenant God, is with them to ſtrengthen, help, and uphold them with the right hand of his righteouſneſs, v. 10. and then of whom need they be afraid? If he ſtrengthen, what foe can prevail? If he help, what greater ſupport can they need? If he uphold with his right hand, who ſhall pluck them from it? Note, (1.) If God, by his preſence and effectual grace, be with us, then in every trial, under every temptation, in the hour of death, and the day of judgment, we muſt be ſafe. (2.) Faith in the promiſe is the ſovereign antidote againſt all fear; and we can be in no ſituation wherein this very promiſe may not be produced to encourage us.

2. They ſhall be victorious over all their foes, to their great joy. Incenſed as they were againſt the faithful, ſeeking with implacable enmity their ruin, confuſion ſhall cover them, v. 11. and mighty as they were in power and policy, their ſtrength ſhall fail, their devices be diſappointed, v. 12. Whilſt Iſrael victorious, like a ſharp threſhing inſtrument, ſhall beat them ſmall as the duſt, humble the loftieſt, and abaſe the proud, v. 15. and ſcattering them as chaff before the wind, they ſhall rejoice in the great ſalvation of God herein ſo glorioully diſplayed, v. 16. which may refer literally to the victories of the Maccabees; but ſpiritually regards the conqueſts of God's people over the great enemies of their ſouls. For however weak they may be, as worms of Jacob, their Redeemer is mighty; and though earth and hell without, and corruption within, daily fight and trouble them, yet their mightieſt inbred luſts, as well as their ſtrongeſt perſecutors, God can ſubdue before them; and a day of joy indeed will it be to ſee them fall. Note, (1.) Every chriſtian hath a hard warfare to maintain, and there are many adverſaries. (2.) Fear is often apt to beſet us, when we ſee ourſelves compaſſed about on every ſide, and feel how impotent we are to withſtand them. (3.) If God were not in ſuch ſeaſons to ſpeak a word of comfort to our ſouls, we muſt utterly faint. (4.) Tho' the conteſt be hard, the victory is ſure; they cannot faint whom God never fails to uphold. (5.) The greater our enemies, the more ſhall the power of God be magnified in our deliverance. (6.) Whatever victories we, through grace, are enabled to obtain, our glorying muſt be in the Lord, not in ourſelves; the work is his, and to him muſt be aſcribed the praiſe.

3. In their deepeſt diſtreſſes the people of God ſhall find him a very preſent help in trouble. When oppreſſed with thirſt they cry, inſtant ſhall their prayers be heard and anſwered, v. 17. From the high places the guſhing ſtreams ſhall burſt, in the vallies the fountains ſhall flow; the very deſert ſhall abound with pools and ſprings, v. 18. and every beautiful and ſpreading tree ſpring up to ſhelter them, v. 19. A work ſo wonderful, that they would with wonder and ſurprize own, This hath God done, v. 20. And this was eminently the caſe when, by the preaching of the goſpel, the Gentile world heard and turned to the Lord; and ſuch a wondrous change was wrought on the hearts of men, as if the deſart had been cloathed with trees and paſture: and ſuch alſo every truly converted ſoul experiences to be his very condition, when the Spirit of God renews his heart. (1.) He is deſcribed as poor and needy, ſenſible of his deep ſpiritual wants and wretchedneſs. (2.) He cries, and is heard; for prayer is the breath of an awakened ſoul. (3.) He thirſts for the pardon of his ſins, a ſenſe of the divine favour, and the ſupports of divine grace: and lo! the Lord quenches his thirſt with views of the redeeming blood; ſheds abroad in his heart a ſenſe of his love, and implants in the ſoul a living principle of grace, like a well of water ſpringing up into everlaſting life. (4.) When this is the caſe, the whole heart is changed, the miſerable ſinful ſoul becomes pure, peaceable, heavenly-minded, holy, happy. (5.) This miracle of grace marks the finger of God evident, and to him the praiſe of this glorious work alone muſt be aſcribed.

21. † Produce your cauſe, ſaith the LORD; bring forth your ſtrong reaſons, ſaith the king of Jacob. 22. [x] Let them bring them forth, and ſhew us what ſhall happen: let them ſhew the former things what they be, that we may conſider them, and know the latter end of them: or declare us things for to come: 23. [y] Shew the things that are to come hereafter, that we may know that ye are gods: yea, [z] do good, or do evil, that we may be diſmayed, and behold it together. 24. Behold, [a] ye are ‡ of nothing, and your work ‖ of nought: an abomination is he that chooſeth you. 25. I have raiſed up one from the north, and he ſhall come: [b] from the riſing of the ſun ſhall he call upon my name, and he ſhall come upon princes as upon mortar, and as the potter treadeth clay. 26. Who hath declared from the beginning, that we may know? [c] and before time, that we may ſay, He is righteous? yea, there is none that ſheweth, yea, there is none that declareth, yea, there is none that heareth your words. 27. The firſt ſhall ſay to Zion, Behold, behold them, and I will give to Jeruſalem [d] one that bringeth good tidings. 28. For [e] I beheld, and there was no man, even amongſt them, and there was no counſeller, that when I aſked of them, could § anſwer a word. 29. Behold, they are all [f] vanity, their works are nothing: their molten images are wind and confuſion.

† Or cauſe to come near.
[x] Chap. xliv. 7. & xlv. 21.
[y] John xiii. 19.
[z] Jer. x. 5.
[a] Chap. xliv. 9. 1 Cor. viii. 4.
‡ Or worſe than nothing.
‖ Or worſe than a viper.
[b] Chap. xlvi. 11.
[c] Ibid. xliii. 9.
[d] Chap. xl. 9.
[e] Ibid. lxiii. 5.
§ Heb. Return.
[f] Jer. x. 3.

v. 21—29 The Lord having comforted his people, reſumes his controverſy with the idolaters his enemies.

1. He challenges them to produce their arguments, v. 21. let their Gods be brought forth and ſpeak for themſelves; if they have knowledge, or preſcience, let them ſhew it; if power, let them exert it; can they either deſcribe the paſt, or foretell the future? do good or hurt to their fooliſh votaries? v. 22, 23. not the leaſt: they are nothing; a work of vanity, and juſtly are they counted an abomination, who forſake the living God for ſuch ſenſeleſs deities.

2. God declares his own work and deſign. I have raiſed up one from the north, and he ſhall come; from the riſing of the ſun ſhall he call upon my name: this is uſually interpreted of Cyrus; by his father, a Mede; by his mother, a Perſian; which countries lay, the one to the north, the other to the eaſt of Babylon, whoſe princes he trod down as mortar, and proclaimed deliverance, in God's name, to the captives. Some apply this to Conſtantine, a native of Britain; who, after triumphing over his Pagan competitors, eſtabliſhed the profeſſion of Chriſtianity throughout the whole Roman empire.

3. God, in foretelling this, convinces them of the vanity of the idols, who could never inform them of any ſuch future tranſactions, v. 26. The firſt ſhall ſay to Zion, or I, the firſt, do ſay to Zion, Behold, behold them, and I will give to Jeruſalem one that bringeth good tidings. Cyrus, who iſſued the edict for their reſtoration; or the Lord Chriſt, with his fore-runner John Baptiſt, preaching the goſpel of the kingdom: events, whichever of them be referred to, concerning which the worſhippers of idols foreſaw nothing, nor had a word to plead in vindication of their abominable practices, v. 28. Their idols evidently proved mere vanities, and their curiouſly molten images utterly uſeleſs and unprofitable, v. 29.

CHAP. XLII.

This chapter contains an eminent prophecy of the Meſſiah. We have here, 1. His coming to do the work of a Redeemer, ver. 1—4. 2. His commiſſion opened, ver. 5—9. 3. The joy with which the glad tididgs of this ſhould be received, ver. 10, 11, 12. 4. The ſucceſs of the goſpel, and the overthrow of the devil's kingdom, ver. 13—17. 5. The rejection and ruin of the Jews for their unbelief, ver. 18—25.

1. BEHOLD [a] my ſervant whom I uphold, mine elect [b] in whom my ſoul delighteth: [c] I have put my ſpirit upon him, [d] he ſhall bring forth judgment to the Gentiles. 2. He ſhall not cry, nor lift up, nor cauſe his voice to be heard in the ſtreet. 3. [e] A bruiſed reed ſhall he not break: and the † ſmoaking flax ſhall he not quench: he ſhall bring forth judgment unto truth. 4. He ſhall not fail, nor be diſcouraged, till he have ſet judgment in the earth: and [f] the iſles ſhall wait for his law.

[a] Chap. xlix. 6. & liii. 11. Mat. xii. 18, &c. Phil. ii. 7.
[b] Mat. iii. 17. & xvii. 5. Eph. i. 6.
[c] Chap. xi. 2. & lxi. 1. John iii. 34.
[d] Pſ. lxxii. 8.
[e] Mat. xi. 28.
† Or burning dimly.
[f] Gen. xlix. 10.

v. 1—4. That theſe words belong to Chriſt we are aſſured, Mat. xii. 17—21. We have,

1. His deſignation to his office, and qualification for it. Behold! with wonder and love, my ſervant, though equal with the Father as touching his godhead, yet humbling himſelf to the form of a ſervant, for us men and our ſalvation; whom I uphold; for as man, Chriſt received power and ſtrength from the Father, to enable him to accompliſh the arduous work of redemption; or on whom I lean, expreſſive of the confidence God repoſed in him, to fulfil the work appointed him, as much to his glory as his people's good; mine elect, choſen and deſigned for the work from the foundation of the world, in whom my ſoul delighteth, his righteouſneſs, ſufferings, ſacrifice, and all that he did, being always highly pleaſing to his Father; I have put my ſpirit upon him, fully qualifying and enabling him for the execution of all he hath undertaken. Note, (1.) The higheſt honour is to be an elect ſervant of God. (2.) There never was but one under the ſun in whom, for his own ſake, God could ſay my ſoul delighteth. (3.) If God bids us miniſter, he will ſupply the ability.

2. His exerciſe of his office. He ſhall bring forth judgment to the Gentiles, the goſpel, which is to be the rule and guide of all his converted people: He ſhall not cry, nor lift up, nor cauſe his voice to be heard in the ſtreets, as coming with human pomp and grandeur, for his kingdom was not of this world. A bruiſed reed ſhall he not break, ſo tender are his compaſſions toward the weak and tempted, who are caſt down under their trials, but ſupported and ſtrengthened by him, that they may not utterly faint; and the ſmoking flax ſhall he not quench, where the ſmalleſt gracious appearances are ſeen, he will not deſpiſe, but cheriſh them, and fan the ſmoaking flax into a flame: he ſhall bring forth judgment unto truth, accompanying the word of his truth with ſuch effectual power, as to accompliſh the thing whereunto he ſends it. He ſhall not fail, nor be diſcouraged amidſt the arduous work in which he ſhall be engaged, till he have ſet judgment in the earth, eſtabliſhed his glorious goſpel, which is ſo productive of judgment and righteouſneſs among men, and the iſles ſhall wait for his law; the diſtant nations of Gentiles offering themſelves willing ſcholars at the feet of his miniſters. The ſeptuagint, from whence the paſſage is quoted, Mat. xii. 10. Acts xxviii. 25. renders it, And in his name ſhall the Gentiles truſt.

5. ¶ Thus ſaith God the LORD, [g] he that created the heavens, and ſtretched them out; [h] he that ſpread forth the earth and that which cometh out of it, he that giveth breath unto the people upon it, and ſpirit to them that walk therein: 6. I the LORD have called thee in righteouſneſs, and will hold thine hand, and will keep thee, [i] and give thee for a covenant of the people, for [k] a light of the Gentiles; 7. [l] To open the blind eyes, [m] to bring out the priſoners from the priſon, and [n] them that ſit in darkneſs out of the priſon-houſe. 8. I am the LORD, that is my name, and [o] my glory will I not give to another, neither my praiſe to graven images. 9. Behold, the former things are come to paſs, and new things do I declare: before they ſpring forth I tell you of them. 10. [p] Sing unto the LORD a new ſong, and his praiſe from the end of the earth: ye that go down to the ſea, and all that is therein; the iſles and the inhabitants thereof. 11. [q] Let the wilderneſs, and the cities thereof lift up their voice, the villages that Kedar doth inhabit: let the inhabitants of the rock ſing, let them ſhout from the top of the mountains. 12. Let them give glory unto the LORD, and declare his praiſe in the iſlands.

[g] Chap. xliv. Zech. xii. 1.
[h] Pſ. cxxxvi. 6.
[i] Chap. xlix. 8.
[k] Ibid. 6. Luke ii. 32. Acts xiii. 47. & xxvi. 18.
[l] Chap. xxxv. 15. & lxi. 1. Luke iv. 18. 2 Cor. iv. 6. Col. i. 13.
[m] 2 Tim. ii. 26. Heb. ii. 14, 15.
[n] Chap. ix. 2.
[o] Ibid. xlviii. 11.
[p] Pſ. xxxiii. 3.
[q] Chap. xxxv. 1.

v. 5—12. God having uſhered in the glorious perſonage appointed by him for the work of his people's ſalvation, here encourages and authorizes him to proceed in his undertaking.

1. He gives him his orders, as the Almighty Creator of all, able abundantly to ſupport him in the exerciſe of his office, v. 5. He calls him in righteouſneſs, in a way wherein the divine perfections were eminently to be magnified; or with righteouſneſs, being himſelf a righteous perſon, and in his nature and practice knew no ſin; he promiſes to uphold and keep him, that no difficulties may diſcourage, nor enemies prevail againſt him; to give him for a covenant of the people, to be their great covenant head; by him all the terms of the covenant being fulfilled, and through him all the bleſſings of it are to be freely received: two of the moſt eminent of which are mentioned, (1.) He is given for a light to the Gentiles, to open the blind eyes, both to be the light of the world which lay in darkneſs and the ſhadow of death, and alſo to beſtow power on the fallen mind of man to ſee this light of life, without which it ſhineth in darkneſs. Note, The mind of man, yea, of the wiſeſt, continues in utter darkneſs reſpecting ſpiritual things, without divine illumination. (2.) He is ſent to bring the priſoners from the priſon, and them that ſit in darkneſs out of the priſon-houſe; we are by nature the ſlaves of ſin and Satan, and though we may have light enough to ſee and deplore our miſery, we have no power to help ourſelves, till the Lord Jeſus interpoſes to break our bands, and bring us forth into the glorious liberty of the ſons of God.

2. He confirms his commiſſion by his great name, Jehovah, v. 8. who, in this inveſtiture of the Redeemer, intends to exalt his own glory, and will not ſuffer idols to be his rivals; but will condignly puniſh thoſe who aſcribe to them the praiſe due to him alone. And as he has fulfilled his former promiſes, ſo will he alſo accompliſh the new things he now declares, relative to the deliverance of the Jews under Cyrus, the incarnation of the Meſſiah, and the ſucceſs of his goſpel; which, before they ſpring forth into act from the divine decree, he foretells, and ſhall be as ſurely fulfilled in their ſeaſon, as any paſt prophecies had been. Note, God hath ſtill new mercies in ſtore; if we have faith to truſt him, he will not, cannot fail us.

3. The whole church is called upon to exalt God's praiſe for the redemption of Jeſus. From the ends of the earth, to which the goſpel ſhould be ſpread, the grateful ſong muſt ariſe; thoſe who go down to the ſea, the Tyrians and Phœnicians, and other maritime places, the Arabians, and the moſt ſavage inhabitants of the deſert and the rock, civilized by the preaching of the goſpel, muſt join in the work of praiſe, till the ſound ſhould be univerſal, and the knowledge of the glory of God be wafted to the moſt diſtant iſles of the ſea. This was in a meaſure the caſe under the miniſtry of the apoſtles, and we expect a ſtill more glorious day, when praiſes for redeeming love ſhall be ſung from pole to pole.

13. The LORD ſhall go forth as a mighty man, he ſhall ſtir up jealouſy like a man of war: he ſhall cry; [r] yea, rore; he ſhall prevail againſt his enemies. 14. [s] I have long time holden my peace, I have been ſtill, and refrained myſelf: now will I cry like a travailing woman, I will deſtroy and † devour at once. 15. I will make waſte mountains and hills, and dry up all their herbs, and I will make the rivers iſlands, and I will dry up the pools. 16. And I will bring the blind [t] by a way that they knew not, I will lead them in paths that they have not known: I will make darkneſs light before them, and crooked things ſtraight. Theſe things will I do unto them, and not forſake them. 17. ¶ They ſhall be turned back, [u] they ſhall be greatly aſhamed that truſt in graven images, that ſay to the molten images, Ye are our gods.

[r] Chap. xxxi. 4.
[s] Pſ. l. 21. Luke xviii. 7.
† Heb. Swallow up.
[t] Luke i. 79. Heb. x. 20.
[u] Pſ. xcvii. 7. Chap. i. 29. & xliv. 11. & xlv. 16.

v. 13—17. We have here,

1. The victory the Lord will obtain over his enemies. As a man of war he will ruſh upon them with a cry, and prevail, his goſpel being made effectual to the caſting down all the ſtrong holds of darkneſs, v. 13. For a long while he ſeemed to pay no regard to the heathen world, winking at the times of their ignorance, but now when he ſends his elect miniſter Jeſus, he will deſtroy and devour at once; they who ſubmit not to the calls of his mercy, muſt periſh under the rod of his judgments, v. 14. The greateſt, high as mountains, are not too mighty to eſcape; nor the leaſt, though mean as the graſs, too ſmall to be overlooked: and every impediment ſhall be removed, as at the paſſage of Iſrael through the Red ſea, that his word may have free courſe, and run, and be glorified, v. 15. Note, When God will work, none can let it.

2. He will bring home his people to himſelf. I will bring the blind, thoſe that were ſpiritually ignorant of the ways of God, by a way that they knew not, even Chriſt the living way, hid from ages and generations, but now revealed to the Gentiles; I will lead them in paths that they have not known, the path of holineſs and life eternal; I will make darkneſs light before them, ſhining on their path, and making it plain before their faces; and crooked things ſtrait, removing all obſtructions, and forming their once crooked and perverſe ways by his divine grace, conformably to his holy mind and word. Theſe things will I do unto them, and not forſake them, but to eternity perfect in them the ſalvation here begun. And bleſſed truly are they to whom the Lord is pleaſed to ſhew ſuch continuing and effectual grace.

3. The idolaters being converted, ſhall now be made aſhamed of their idols; or thoſe who perſiſted in their worſhip be confounded to find how little they can profit them in a day of wrath, v. 17.

18. Hear, [x] ye deaf, and look, ye blind, that ye may ſee. 19. [y] Who is blind, but my ſervant? or deaf, as my meſſenger that I ſent? who is blind as he that is perfect, and blind as the LORD's ſervant? 20. Seeing many things, [z] but thou obſerveſt not: opening the ears, but he heareth not. 21. The LORD is well pleaſed for his righteouſneſs ſake, he will magnify the law, and make † it honourable. 22. But this is a people robbed and ſpoiled, ‡ they are all of them ſnared in holes, and they are hid in priſon-houſes: they are for a prey, and none delivereth; for a ſpoil, and none ſaith, Reſtore. 23. Who among you will give ear to this? [a] who will hearken, and hear for the time to come? 24. Who gave Jacob for a ſpoil, and Iſrael to the robbers? did not the LORD, he againſt whom [b] we have ſinned? for they would not walk in his ways, neither were they obedient unto his law. 25. Therefore he hath poured upon him the fury of his anger, and the ſtrength of battle: and it hath ſet him on fire round about, [c] yet he knew not; and it burned him, yet he laid it not to heart.

[x] Ezek. xii. 2.
[y] Chap. lvi. 10. Mat. xv. 14.
[z] Rom. ii. 22.
† Or him.
‡ Or inſnaring all the young men of them.
[a] Jer. ix. 12.
[b] Lam. i. 8.
[c] Jer. v. 3. Hoſ. vii. 9.

v. 18—25. We have here,

1. A general exhortation addreſſed to the ſpiritually deaf and blind, whether Jews or Gentiles, to hear and ſee. For though more was needful in order to divine knowledge, than the mere exerciſe of their natural faculties, yet as they had ears to hear, and eyes to ſee the word of truth, they were bound to make uſe of the appointed means. Note, They who wilfully turn away their eyes from the truth, and will not uſe them to examine the ſcriptures, juſtly are given up to judicial blindneſs.

2. A ſharp reproof is given to the Jewiſh people. Who is blind as my ſervant, or deaf as my meſſenger that I ſent? or as ſome render it, thoſe to whom I ſend my meſſenger? They who had every opportunity of ſpiritual knowledge, were more criminally ignorant than their Gentile neighbours, and their teachers blind leaders of the blind. Who is blind as he that is perfect, and blind as the Lord's ſervant? the Scribes and Phariſees, who moſt boaſted their high attainments, were moſt obſtinate in rejecting Chriſt and his goſpel. Seeing many things, or pretending to ſee at leaſt, but thou obſerveſt not the evidences of Chriſt's divine miſſion in his miracles; opening the ears to the preaching of Chriſt and his apoſtles, but he heareth not to any ſaving purpoſe, but cavilled, and rejected the counſel of God againſt their own ſouls. Note, (1.) Spiritual blindneſs is grievouſly common, even among the profeſſors of religion. (2.) They who have the higheſt conceit of their own perfection and excellence, are moſt grievouſly ignorant both of God, his law, and their own vile hearts. (3.) It is a deplorable caſe when they, who ſhould be teachers of others, are blind and erroneous themſelves. (4.) None uſually are ſo obſtinate in prejudice and ignorance as thoſe who, having aſſumed the character of God's meſſengers, count it a diſhonour to have it but ſuggeſted that they themſelves are out of the way. (5.) They who, through ignorance in their miniſtry, miſlead and ruin other's ſouls as well as their own, may expect to receive greater damnation.

3. God will be glorified, notwithſtanding their obſtinacy. The Lord is well pleaſed for his righteouſneſs ſake, he will magnify the law, and make it honourable; either by the execution of juſt judgment on the rejecters of his truth, or rather this refers to Chriſt, for whoſe righteouſneſs ſake God is well pleaſed, and with all who are found in him; ſince by his obedience unto death, he hath in the higheſt meaſure magnified the divine law in their behalf, and reſtored the honour it had loſt by their violations of it.

4. The deſtruction of the whole people is foretold, becauſe of their rejection of the goſpel. They are given up to the Romans to be robbed, ſpoiled, and ſnared; dragged from their lurking-places, and impriſoned, without proſpect of deliverance or reſtoration, v. 22. They would not be admoniſhed of this judgment coming upon them, till it was impoſſible to avert it, v. 23. God's hand in their ruin was evident, and acknowledged even by Titus, their deſtroyer, becauſe of their obſtinate diſobedience, v. 24. Therefore wrath to the uttermoſt overtook them, and to this day the heavy ſtroke is ſtill upon them; yet they will not acknowledge the rejection of Jeſus as the cauſe, nor lay it to heart; the vail being yet unremoved, and their meaſure of chaſtiſement not yet full. Note, (1.) Of the many who hear God's word, few pay it the attention it deſerves. (2.) Diſregard of God's warnings is ſure to bring down his wrath.

Before Chriſt 712.

(3.) All ſuffering comes ultimately from God's hand, whatever inſtruments are employed. (4.) Sin that now provokes God's anger againſt the ſinner in temporal afflictions, will, if unrepented of, ſhortly kindle that fire of eternal wrath which never can be quenched.

CHAP. XLIII.

The contents of this chapter are much the ſame with that of the foregoing, deſcribing the releaſe of the Jews out of their captivity; but looking through and beyond that, to the great work of man's redemption by Chriſt, and the grace of the goſpel, which, through him, believers partake of. Here are, 1. Precious promiſes made to God's people in their affliction, ver. 1—7. 2. A challenge to idols to vie with the omniſcience and omnipotence of God, ver. 8—13. 3. Encouragement given to the people of God to hope that they ſhould aſſuredly be delivered out of Babylon, as their fathers were out of Egypt, ver. 14—21. 4. The people are reminded of their ſins, by which they had provoked God to ſend them into captivity, in order that they might repent, and ſeek for pardoning mercy, ver. 22—28.

1. BUT now, thus ſaith the LORD [a] that created thee, O Jacob, and [b] he that formed thee, O Iſrael, [c] Fear not: for I have redeemed thee, [d] I have called thee by thy name, thou art mine. 2. [e] When thou paſſeſt through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they ſhall not overflow thee: when thou walkeſt through the fire, thou ſhalt not be burnt; neither ſhall the flame kindle upon thee. 3. For I am the LORD thy God, the holy One of Iſrael, thy Saviour: [f] I gave Egypt for thy ranſom, Ethiopia and Seba for thee. 4. Since thou waſt precious in my ſight, thou haſt been honourable, and I have loved thee: therefore will I give men for thee, and people for thy life. 5. [g] Fear not, for I am with thee: [h] I will bring thy ſeed from the eaſt, and gather thee from the weſt. 6. I will ſay to the north, Give up; and to the ſouth, Keep not back; bring my ſons from far, and my daughters from the ends of the earth; 7. Even every one that is called by my name: for [i] I have created him for my glory, I have formed him, yea, I have made him.

[a] Ver. 7.
[b] Chap. xliv. 2, 21.
[c] Chap. xli. 10.
[d] Ex. xxxiii. 17.
[e] Pſ. lxvi. 12. & xci. 3, &c. 1 Cor. x. 13.
[f] Prov. xi. 8. & xxi. 18.
[g] Chap. xli. 10. Jer. xxx. 10. & xlvi. 27.
[h] Ezra i. 3, 4. or Chap. lxvi. 19. Zech. viii. 7.
[i] Pſ. c. 3. Chap. xxix. 23. John iii. 3, 5. 2 Cor. v. 17. Eph. ii. 10.

v. 1—7. This gracious prophecy in its primary ſenſe probably reſpects the recovery of the Jews from their captivity in Babylon, but moſt eminently refers to the goſpel days, when the church ſhould, amidſt all perſecutions, riſe great and glorious, and be increaſed with converts on every ſide.

1. God encourages them, from the moſt endearing views of his regard for them, and relation to them. But now, thus ſaith the Lord that created thee, O Jacob, created thee anew in Chriſt Jeſus, and he that formed thee, O Iſrael, the peculiar work of his hands, fear not under any trials or diſcouragements; for I have redeemed thee by the blood and righteouſneſs of Jeſus; I have called thee by thy name, every faithful ſoul being written in the book of life of the Lamb; thou art mine, in a covenant of everlaſting love which cannot be broken, mine for ever.

2. He aſſures them of his conſtant ſupport under every trial, v. 2. However threatning, violent, or ſevere their ſufferings, his preſence and power ſhould both ſtrengthen, comfort, and deliver them, ſo that they ſhould receive not the leaſt hurt or damage. Note, If God be for us, and with us, then in the midſt of danger we are ſafe; and even in the jaws of death can triumph.

3. He mentions the former inſtances of his care as the earneſt of his preſent ſalvation of them. He calls himſelf, v. 3. their God, in a covenant that is everlaſting, their Saviour from every foe. As of old he had deſtroyed Egypt for their ſake, and overthrown the Ethiopians, 2 Chron. xiv. 9, 13. or turned the arms of Sennacherib upon them inſtead of Jeruſalem, ſuch ſhould be ſtill his regard towards them, their enemies ſhall be all deſtroyed, becauſe they were precious in his ſight, through that Saviour in whom they were accepted, and honoured with the higheſt titles, the ſons and daughters of the Lord Almighty, and as ſuch beloved by him with affection unchangeable and everlaſting, v. 4.

4. He promiſes a great increaſe of converts under the preaching of the goſpel. They need not fear, however diminiſhed or brought low, for God is with them; and at his word, from the four quarters of the earth converts ſhall flock into his church, as doves to their windows, v. 5, 6. even as many as, being choſen in the divine purpoſe, are called by his grace, renewed by his ſpirit, and prepared to ſhew forth his praiſe in all holy converſation and godlineſs, v. 7. This may be applied particularly to the collecting the Jews from their captivity, but ſeems more glorioully fulfilled in the converſion of the Gentiles, by the preaching of the goſpel. Note, (1.) Every one called by Chriſt's name, is bound to ſet forth his glory. (2.) The work of regeneration is God's own; we are the clay, he is the potter; if we are veſſels of honour, it is becauſe his ſovereign and ſaving grace hath made us ſuch. (3.) They who by divine grace are gathered in to Jeſus now as their Saviour, ſhall be ſhortly raiſed from the duſt of death, caught up to meet him in the air, and ſo ſhall be ever with the Lord.

Before Chriſt 712.

8. ¶ [k] Bring forth the blind people that have eyes, and the deaf that have ears. 9. Let all the nations be gathered together, and let the people be aſſembled: [l] who among them can declare this, and ſhew us former things? let them bring forth their witneſſes, that they may be juſtified: or let them hear and ſay, It is truth. 10. [m] Ye are my witneſſes, ſaith the LORD, and [n] my ſervant whom I have choſen: that ye may know and believe me, and underſtand that I am he: before me there was no God formed, neither ſhall there be after me. 11. I, even [o] I am the LORD, and beſide me there is no ſaviour. 12. I have declared, and have ſaved, and I have ſhewed, when [p] there was no ſtrange god among you: therefore ye are my witneſſes, ſaith the LORD, that I am God. 13. [q] Yea, before the day was, I am he; and there is none that can deliver out of my hand: I will work, and [r] who ſhall † let it?

[k] Chap. xlii. 19, 20. Ezek. xii. 2.
[l] Chap. xli. 22, 26.
[m] Chap. xliv. 8.
[n] Ibid. xlii. 1.
[o] Ibid. xlv. 21. Hoſ. xiii. 4.
[p] Deut. xxxii. 12.
[q] John viii. 58.
[r] Job ix. 12. Chap. xiv. 27.
† Heb. Turn it back, or reverſe it.

v. 8—13. The worſhippers of idols are called to appear and confront God's witneſſes, if they dared maintain their wretched cauſe. God calls them the blind who have eyes, and the deaf who have ears, becauſe though they have the faſhion of men, by ſuch abominable idolatries they ſeem to have loſt their reaſon and faculties. They cannot prove the divinity of their idols to juſtify their worſhip; they are the work of men's hand, and blinder and more impotent than their fooliſh votaries, v. 8—10. But let God's witneſſes appear, his Iſrael, and his ſervant, either the prophet Iſaiah, or rather the Meſſiah, emphatically ſo called, chap. xlii. 1. to prove his unrivalled godhead and glory; he alone was from eternity; the ſole exiſtent, ſelf-exiſtent God and Saviour; and beſides him, there neither is nor can be any other. In proof of which, two arguments are urged, drawn from his preſcience and his power. (1.) He hath declared things to come; his people's deliverance of old from Egypt, when as yet no ſtrange God was among them, and now from Babylon, with numberleſs other things concerning the coming of the Meſſiah and his church; and ſurely none of the idols can pretend to ſuch fore-knowledge. (2.) He hath ſaved his people; from his hand, none can deliver; and when he works, none can let; whilſt all the idols of the heathen are unprofitable and vain; unable in the leaſt to aſſiſt or protect their worſhippers. This they ſhould obſerve to their conviction, and ſay, it is truth, acknowledging the folly of truſting to other gods, and giving the Lord alone the glory due unto his name.

14. ¶ Thus ſaith the LORD your Redeemer, the holy One of Iſrael, [s] For your ſake I have ſent to Babylon, and have brought down all their nobles, and the Chaldeans, [t] whoſe cry is in the ſhips. 15. I am the LORD, your holy One, the creator of Iſrael, your king. 16. Thus ſaith the LORD, [u] which maketh a way in the ſea, [x] and a path in the mighty waters: 17. [y] Which bringeth forth the chariot and horſe, the army, and the power; they ſhall lie down together, they ſhall not riſe: they are extinct, they are quenched as tow. 18. ¶ [z] Remember ye not the former things, neither conſider the things of old. 19. Behold, [a] I will do a new thing: now it ſhall ſpring forth, ſhall ye not know it? I will even make [b] a way in the wilderneſs, [c] and rivers in the deſert. 20. The beaſt of the field ſhall honour me, the dragons and the † owls: becauſe [d] I give waters in the wilderneſs, and rivers in the deſert, to give drink to my people, my choſen. 21. [e] This people have I formed for myſelf, they ſhall ſhew forth my praiſe.

[s] Luke xviii. 7.
[t] Rev. xviii. 11.
[u] Exod. xiv. 16, 21. Chap. li. 10.
[x] Joſh. iii. 13, 16.
[y] Exod. xiv. 4—9, 23.
[z] Jer. xvi. 14. & xxiii. 7.
[a] 2 Cor. v. 17. Rev. xxi. 5.
[b] Chap. xl. 3.
[c] Ibid. xxxv. 6. & xli. 18.
† Or oſtriches.
[d] Chap. xlviii. 21.
[e] Pſ. cii. 18. Luke i. 74, 75.

v. 14—21. Great was the deliverance from Egypt, great the recovery from Babylon, but greater far the recovery of loſt ſouls by Jeſus Chriſt, whoſe redemption is here ſpoken of.

1. For the encouragement of his people, God calls himſelf their Redeemer, the holy One of Iſrael, their Creator, their King. For though they ſeemed now caſt off, their ſtate diſſolved, and their kingdom deſtroyed, yet God calleth the things that are not, as though they were, becauſe he only ſpeaks, and it is done.

2. He tells them what he intended to do for their ſakes, which he ſpeaks of as already accompliſhed; even to deſtroy the Babylonians, who fly in vain to their ſhips to eſcape; or, bound captives by the Medes and Perſians, with bitter cries were tranſported ported far away, v. 14. Some tranſlate it, brought down all their nobles, brought forth all the fugitives, as ſpoken of the Jews, who would be brought forth from the houſe of their priſon, when their proud oppreſſors were broken.

3. He reminds them of what he had done for them, when, at the Red ſea, the chariots and horſes of Pharoah were utterly overthrown, and ſuch would be the caſe of their preſent enemies; and as then he opened a path in the Red ſea for their paſſage, ſo would he, amidſt all difficulties, bring them ſafe once more to their own land, v. 17. Note, In our deepeſt affliction we ſhould remember God's wonders of old time, and wait in faith for his ſalvation.

4. Yet greater things than theſe would he do for them: ſuch miracles of grace as would, as it were, obliterate the remembrance of all that was paſt. Behold, I will do a new thing, which would aſtoniſh and ſurprize them, even the incarnation of Jeſus Chriſt; now it ſhall ſpring forth as a branch in a ſhort time, ſhall ye not know it, and thankfully receive this great Redeemer? In conſequence of whoſe appearing, a wondrous change will be wrought in the world; the Gentile nations, before like a wilderneſs, impaſſable, uncultivated and barren, ſhall be laid open for the goſpel, and become fruitful like a well-watered land, v. 19. Men, whoſe tempers before were ſavage as the beaſts, fierce as dragons, and ſtupid as the owls, ſhall be renewed and turned to the worſhip and ſervice of the true God, and in this once deſolate world of heatheniſm, there ſhall be a plentiful effuſion of goſpel-grace, like the waters of a river, v. 20. and God will own the Gentile converts as his choſen, formed by his Spirit for his glory, and deſigned to ſhew forth his praiſe to all eternity. Note, (1.) Man does not naturally differ more from the beaſts, than man does from man, when divine grace hath changed his heart. (2.) Wherever the goſpel comes, powerful and bleſſed are its effects: the wilderneſs then becomes a fruitful field. (3.) All that is good in the hearts of men, is God's own work, and deſigned for his own glory. (4.) It muſt be our labour, ſtudy, and prayer to correſpond with the divine intentions, and to ſhew forth his praiſe who hath called us out of darkneſs into his marvellous light.

22. ¶ But thou haſt not called upon me, O Jacob, but [f] thou haſt been weary of me, O Iſrael. 23. [g] Thou haſt not brought me the † ſmall cattle of thy burnt-offerings, neither haſt thou honoured me with thy ſacrifices. I have not cauſed thee to ſerve with an offering, nor wearied thee with incenſe. 24. Thou haſt bought me no ſweet cane with money, neither haſt thou filled me with the fat of thy ſacrifices: but thou haſt made me to ſerve with thy ſins, [h] thou haſt wearied me with thine iniquities. 25. I, even I am he [i] that blotteth out thy tranſgreſſions for mine own ſake, [k] and will not remember thy ſins. 26. Put me in remembrance: [l] let us plead together: declare thou, that thou mayſt be juſtified. 27. Thy firſt father hath ſinned, and thy teachers have tranſgreſſed againſt me. 28. Therefore [m] I have profaned the ‡ princes of the ſanctuary, and have given Jacob to the curſe, and Iſrael to reproaches.

[f] Mal. i. 13.
[g] Amos v. 25.
† Heb. Lambs, or kids.
[h] Chap. i. 14. Amos ii. 13. Mal. ii. 17.
[i] Chap. xliv. 22. & xlviii. 9. Jer. l. 20. Ezek. xxxvi. 22, &c.
[k] Chap. i. 18. Jer. xxxi. 34.
[l] Mic. vi. 3.
[m] Chap. xlvii. 6. Lam. ii. 2.
‡ Or holy princes.

v. 22—28. The unworthineſs of the ſinner the more exalts and magnifies the glory and grace of the Saviour. We have here,

1. A heavy charge brought againſt Iſrael. They had neglected prayer and the worſhip of God; yea, had counted his ſervice weariſome, and wanted to be rid of it, v. 22. Though dwelling in a land of plenty, they grudged the expence of God's temple, with-held their burnt-offerings and ſacrifices, and prepared no ſweet cane for the holy anointing oil and the ſweet incenſe. Yet God had not cauſed them to ſerve with an offering, nor wearied them with incenſe, did not exact from them difficult or burdenſome ſervices: the idolaters paid much greater honours, and offered more expenſive ſacrifices to their falſe gods, than they were required to offer to the living Jehovah: whereas they not only neglected his worſhip, but openly violated his laws; till weary with their iniquities, nothing ſeemed to await them but juſt and condign puniſhment, v. 24.

2. A wondrous promiſe comes in. When we might have expected to hear, I, even I am he that blotteth out their name from under heaven, God, in mercy tranſcendently glorious, declares, I, even I am he that blotteth out thy tranſgreſſions for mine own ſake, and will not remember thy ſins. Note, (1.) Forgiveneſs of ſin is the great glory of the goſpel; of all ſin; and the vileſt need not deſpair. (2.) When God forgives, he forgets; and though we are ever bound to remember and abhor ourſelves, God will never remember our ſins, to upbraid or confound us. (3.) It is an act of ſovereign grace in God to forgive ſin; the leaſt ſin is in its nature deadly, and nothing we can do could ever ſave us from eternal ruin, unleſs his rich mercy interpoſed to pardon us.

3. God commands his people to put him in remembrance, and plead his promiſes with him, that they may be juſtified, v. 26. Though ſome underſtand this as a reproof to the ſelf-righteous, challenging them to produce the good works on which they depend for juſtification; the vanity of which would be manifeſted, and they reduced to ſeek the free pardon offered, or periſh in their pride.

4. He reminds them that all their ſufferings proceeded from their ſins; to repent of which, his gracious promiſes were the greateſt encouragement. Thy firſt father hath ſinned, Adam; or rather their more immediate anceſtors, and thy teachers have tranſgreſſed againſt me; they who ſhould have directed others, erred themſelves, and led their brethren aſtray. In conſequence of which, God had afflicted them, or would; for it ſeems ſpoken of their captivity in Babylon, or their laſt viſitation by the Romans. Therefore I have profaned the princes of the ſanctuary, the Prieſts and Levites, and have given Jacob to the curſe, and Iſrael to reproaches, under which they ſtill lie, monuments of God's righteous judgments, till the ſpirit ſhall be poured on them from on high; and at laſt they ſhall return to him, from whom they have ſo greatly departed, and find that pardon and grace in Jeſus which they have deſpiſed.

CHAP. XLIV.

God by the prophet goes on in this chapter as before, 1. To aſſure his people that he had great bleſſings in ſtore for them at their return out of captivity, and thoſe typical of much greater, which the goſpel-church ſhould partake of in the days of the Meſſiah: and hereby he proves himſelf to be God alone againſt all pretenders, ver. 1—8. 2. To expoſe the amazing folly of idol-makers and idol-worſhippers, ver. 9—20. 3. To ratify the aſſurances he had given his people of thoſe great bleſſings, and to raiſe their joyful and believing expectations of them, ver. 21—28.

1. YET now hear, O Jacob [a] my ſervant, and Iſrael whom I have choſen. 2. Thus ſaith the LORD that made thee, [b] and formed thee from the womb, which will help thee, Fear not, O Jacob my ſervant, and thou [c] Jeſurun, whom I have choſen. 3. For [d] I will pour water upon him that is thirſty, and floods upon the dry ground: I will pour my Spirit upon thy ſeed, and my bleſſing upon thine offspring: 4. And [e] they ſhall ſpring up as among the graſs, as willows by the water-courſes. 5. One ſhall ſay, I am the LORD's: and another ſhall call himſelf by the name of Jacob: and another ſhall ſubſcribe with his hand unto the LORD, and ſurname himſelf by the name of Iſrael.

[a] Chap. xli. 8. & xliii. 1. Jer. xxx. 10. & xlvi. 27.
[b] Chap. xliii. 1, 7.
[c] Deut. xxxii. 15.
[d] Chap. xxxv. 7. Joel ii. 28. John vii. 38. Acts x. 45.
[e] 2 Pet. iii. 18.

v. 1—5. Amidſt the threatned judgments which cloſed the former chapter, a choſen generation is reſerved for God, to whom he addreſſes himſelf in theſe words, for their comfort and encouragement.

1. Their character and relation to him are mentioned, v. 1, 2. They bear the honourable title of his ſervants, whom he will protect; they are his choſen, that with peculiar regard he hath diſtinguiſhed; they are called Jeſurun, upright, ſuch being their temper; or ſeeing ones, to whom the glory of God in the goſpel of his Son hath been manifeſted; they are God's creation, his ſpiritual ſeed, whom he will help, and therefore whatever troubles fall on others, they need not fear. Happy are the people that are in ſuch a caſe, ſo near and dear to the bleſſed God.

2. God promiſes to do great things for them. I will pour water on him that is thirſty, and floods on the dry ground; the ſoul that, under a ſenſe of ſin, as the parched ground, thirſts for pardon, grace, and conſolation, ſhall be repleniſhed abundantly out of God's fulneſs. I will pour my Spirit, that beſt of gifts, on thy ſeed, the ſpiritual ſeed of Chriſt, and my bleſſing upon thy offſpring; the bleſſed effect of which will be, they ſhall ſpring up as among the graſs, as willows by the water-courſes; numerous, flouriſhing, and increaſing in all the gifts of grace, and fruits of holineſs. Note, The ſoul is then truly happy, when, watered by the divine Spirit, it daily grows in grace, and in the knowledge and love of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

3. They ſhall make open and public profeſſion of their adherence to the Lord Chriſt; and not only the Jews, but the Gentiles, called to the knowledge of the goſpel, ſhall rank themſelves among the Iſrael of God, join in communion and worſhip with them, and become one fold under one ſhepherd, v. 5. Note, (1.) It is the duty and delight of every faithful ſoul to ſurrender up himſelf into the arms of Jeſus; and he is then happy when he can ſay, I am the Lord's, my beloved is mine, and I am his. (2.) An Iſraelite indeed is a greater name, and more to be envied, than that of the higheſt monarchs of the earth.

6. Thus ſaith the LORD the King of Iſrael, and [f] his Redeemer the LORD of hoſts, [g] I am the firſt, and I am the laſt, and beſides me there is no God. 7. And [h] who, as

[f] Chap. xliii. 1.
[g] Ibid. xli. 4. & xlviii. 12. Rev. i. 8, 17. & xxii. 13.
[h] Chap. xlv. 21.

Before Chriſt 713.

as I, ſhall call, and ſhall declare it, and ſet it in order for me, ſince I appointed the ancient people? and the things that are coming, and ſhall come, let them ſhew unto them. 8. Fear ye not, neither be afraid: have not I told thee from that time, and have declared it? [i] ye are even my witneſſes. Is there a God beſides me? yea, [k] there is no † God, I know not any. 9. ¶ [l] They that make a graven image are all of them vanity, and their delectable things ſhall not profit, and they are their own witneſſes, [m] they ſee not, nor know; that they may be aſhamed. 10. Who hath formed a god, or molten a graven image [n] that is profitable for nothing? 11. Behold, all his fellows [o] ſhall be aſhamed: and the workmen, they are of men: let them all be gathered together, let them ſtand up; yet they ſhall fear, and they ſhall be aſhamed together. 12. [p] The ſmith with the tongs both worketh in the coals, and faſhioneth it with hammers, and worketh it with the ſtrength of his arms: yea, he is hungry, and his ſtrength faileth: he drinketh no water, and is faint. 13. The carpenter ſtretcheth out his rule: he marketh it out with a line: he fitteth it with planes, and he marketh it out with the compaſs, and maketh it after the figure of a man; according to the beauty of a man; that it may remain [q] in the houſe. 14. He heweth him down cedars, and taketh the cypreſs and the oak, which he ſtrengthneth for himſelf among the trees of the foreſt: he planteth an aſh, and the rain doth nouriſh it. 15. Then ſhall it be for a man to burn: for he will take thereof and warm himſelf; yea, he kindleth it, and baketh bread; yea, he maketh a god, and worſhippeth it: he maketh it a graven image, and falleth down thereto. 16. He burneth part thereof in the fire: with part thereof he eateth fleſh: he roſteth roſt, and is ſatisfied: yea, he warmeth himſelf, and ſaith, Aha, I am warm, I have ſeen the fire. 17. And the reſidue thereof he maketh a god, even his graven image: he falleth down unto it, and worſhippeth it, and prayeth unto it, and ſaith, Deliver me, for thou art my god. 18. [r] They have not known, nor underſtood: for [s] he hath ſhut their eyes, that they cannot ſee; and their hearts, that they cannot underſtand. 19. And none conſidereth in his heart, neither is there knowledge nor underſtanding to ſay, I have burnt part of it in the fire, yea, alſo I have baked bread upon the coals thereof: I have roſted fleſh and eaten it, and ſhall I make the reſidue thereof an abomination? ſhall I fall down to the ſtock of a tree? 20. He feedeth of aſhes: [t] a deceived heart hath turned him aſide, that he cannot deliver his ſoul, nor ſay, Is there not a lie in my right hand?

[i] Chap. xliii. 10, 12.
[k] Deut. iv. 35, 39. & xxxii. 39. 1 Sam. ii. 2. Chap. xlv. 5.
† Heb. Rock. Deut xxxii. 4.
[l] Chap. xli. 24, 29.
[m] Pſ. cxv. 4, &c.
[n] Hab. ii. 18.
[o] Pſ. xcvii. 7. Chap. i. 29. & xlii. 17. & xlv. 16.
[p] Chap. xl. 19. & xli. 6. Jer. x. 3. Wiſd. xiii. 11.
[q] Judg. xvii. 5.
[r] Chap. xlv. 20. Jer. x. 8.
[s] 2 Theſ. ii. 11.
[t] Hoſ. iv. 12.

v. 6—20. Never was controverſy ſo unequal as this between the living Jehovah and dead idols.

1. God diſplays his own greatneſs and glory, eternal and omniſcient; let his Iſrael hear and believe. He is their King, their Redeemer, and in that peculiar relation to them demands their love and fidelity. He is alſo the Lord of Hoſts, the univerſal Sovereign, the firſt and the laſt, from eternity to eternity; and beſides him, there is no God. No other can foreſee and declare as he hath done the events of futurity, or give an exact account of his works from the days of old, ſince he appointed the ancient people the firſt inhabitants of the earth: even of the neareſt occurrences which ſhould happen, the idol gods could not inform them, v. 7. therefore they need neither fear them, nor ought to ſerve them, but be witneſſes for God and his truth; beſides whom, there is no other that can at all pretend to claim their notice, or deſerve their worſhip.

2. He expoſes the folly and ſtupidity of idolaters, as a warning to his people not to follow their abominable ways, and eſpecially to guard them in Babylon, the city of idols, from joining in that worſhip ſo hateful to him, and ſo abſurd in itſelf. The makers of the idols are all vanity, prove themſelves empty and fooliſh; they call their idols delectable things, but they are unprofitable and vain; can neither know nor ſee the wants of their votaries, who ſeem equally blind in paying worſhip to the ſenſeleſs ſtock, and witneſs to their own folly, v. 9 for how wretched muſt be the god, of which man himſelf is the maker, v. 10. and well may they be aſhamed of the work, v. 11. The deſcription of it alone is ſufficient to expoſe both the maker and the idol to ridicule. The ſmith labours at the forge to prepare the iron-work, and the carpenter with his tools faſhions and planes the tree into ſhape and form; and when made, faſtens it in his place. He gets a log of durable wood, or an aſh of his own planting; and whilſt one part of the loppings are employed to the uſes of his kitchen, to dreſs his victuals, or warm him, the reſidue is made a god, and with ſenſeleſs ſtupidity he falls down to worſhip it; never reflecting on the ignoble uſe to which the remainder of the tree was applied, and that his own folly only made the difference between the log he worſhipped, and the coals on his hearth; and all proceeds from the darkneſs of a deceived heart; the Devil, the god of this world, having blinded the eyes of idolaters, that they cannot ſee the lie that is in their right hand. Note, (1.) When once the human heart is abandoned to itſelf, there is nothing ſo brutiſh and abſurd it may not be brought to do. (2.) The pains idolaters take to honour and worſhip their idols, is a juſt reproof of thoſe who are negligent in the worſhip of the living and true God. (3.) They who place their affections on worldly things, are in fact idolaters; and will find, to their everlaſting diſappointment, a lie in their right hand. (4.) The ſerious conſideration of the evil of our ways, is the firſt ſtep towards our recovery.

Before Chriſt 712.

21. ¶ Remember theſe, O Jacob and Iſrael; for thou art my ſervant; I have formed thee, thou art my ſervant: O Iſrael, thou ſhalt not be forgotten of me: 22. [u] I have blotted out as a thick cloud thy tranſgreſſions, and as a cloud thy ſins: return unto me, for I have redeemed thee. 23. [x] Sing, O ye heavens; for the LORD hath done it: ſhout ye lower parts of the earth: break forth into ſinging ye mountains, O foreſt, and every tree therein: for the LORD hath redeemed Jacob, and glorified himſelf in Iſrael. 24. Thus ſaith the LORD thy redeemer, and [y] he that formed thee from the womb, I am the LORD that maketh all things, [z] that ſtretcheth forth the heavens alone, that ſpreadeth abroad the earth by myſelf: 25. That [a] fruſtrateth the tokens of [b] the liars, and maketh diviners mad, that turneth wiſe men backward, and maketh their knowledge fooliſh: 26. That confirmeth the word of his ſervant, and performeth the counſel of his meſſengers, that ſaith to Jeruſalem, Thou ſhalt be inhabited; and to the cities of Judah, Ye ſhall be built, and I will raiſe up the decayed places thereof: 27. [c] That ſaith to the deep, Be dry, and I will dry up thy rivers: 28. That ſaith of Cyrus, He is my ſhepherd, and ſhall perform all my pleaſure, even ſaying to Jeruſalem, [d] Thou ſhalt be built; and to the temple, Thy foundation ſhall be laid.

[u] Chap. xliii. 25.
[x] Pſ. lxix. 34. & xcvi. 11, 12. Chap. xlii. 10. & xlix. 13. Jer. li. 48. Rev. xviii. 20.
[y] Chap. xliii. 1.
[z] Job ix. 8. Pſ. civ. 2. Chap. xl 22. & xlii. 5.
[a] Chap. xlvii. 13.
[b] 1 Kings xxii 6. Jer. l. 36.
[c] Chap. xliii. 16. & li. 10, 11. or Jer. li. 32. Rev. xvi. 12.
[d] 2 Chron. xxxvi, 22, 23. Ezra i. 1, &c. Chap. xlv. 13.

v. 21—28. God having expoſed the folly of idolatry, here addreſſes himſelf to his own people.

1. He bids them remember theſe things; and in the land whither they were about to be carried captive, beware of theſe abominations to which they would be tempted; and to which alſo to their ſhame in time paſt they had been ſo prone. Note, It becomes us to remember our own evil ways, that we may loath and abhor ourſelves for them.

2. He gives them the moſt endearing promiſes, claiming them as his own, and aſſuring them of his kind and conſtant remembrances; and as that was among the moſt eminent of all mercies, he particularly promiſes them the pardon of all their great and numerous tranſgreſſions, v. 22. to blot them out as a cloud, and as a thick cloud to diſperſe them. Note, (1.) Our ſins, like the dark cloud, intercept the beams of God's favour, and expoſe us to the ſtorm of divine wrath. (2.) When God ſpeaks the pardoning word, the clouds paſs away, and the ſun of righteouſneſs ariſes with healing in his wings. (3.) It is matter of tranſporting joy to the ſoul when this bleſſed change is effected, and when in Jeſus we, who were in darkneſs and the ſhadow of death, behold the light of life.

3. He exhorts them in the view of theſe great and precious promiſes to return unto him without delay. They had greatly departed from him, and deſerved his wrath and indignation; but he is become their Redeemer, and therefore invites them to the arms of his mercy. Note, (1.) The promiſe of pardoning grace is the great argument and inducement for the miſerable ſinner to return to God. (2.) Whenever he doth, he will find a complete redemption wrought out for him, both from the guilt and power of ſin, and from death and hell its conſequences.

4. A triumphant ſong is put in the mouth of the redeemed, not merely of the Jews delivered from Babylon, but of all the Iſrael of God, who, through Jeſus Chriſt, have obtained victory over the powers of ſin and Satan. The joy is great; the heavens are called upon to join the ſong, and angels on their golden harps to ſpeak the wonders of redeeming love; whilſt earth, with all its inhabitants, from every foreſt and mountain echoes back the grateful ſound of thankſgiving to the God of their mercies, v. 23. Note, (1.) Praiſe is the bounden tribute due from every redeemed ſoul. (2.) There is joy in heaven over every ſoul recovered by divine grace from the bondage of corruption.

5. The Lord the Redeemer of Iſrael encourages them to truſt in his promiſes, which, as the Almighty Creator, and governor of all, he was fully able to accompliſh, v. 24. particularly he engages to confound the wiſe men and diviners of Babylon, who ſaw for it lying viſions of peace, and would be mad with vexation when the event correſponded ſo little with their prophecies, v. 25. whilſt his own word ſhould receive the fulleſt accompliſhment in their deliverance. The cities of Zion would ſhortly be deſolate indeed, without inhabitants; but their deſolations ſhould not continue, God will reſtore her decayed palaces, and rear again the temple from its ruins: Cyrus by name is appointed as his ſhepherd, the great inſtrument which the Lord meant to employ; firſt to deſtroy Babylon, the oppreſſor of his people, which he did by turning the courſe of the river, which ran through the place, and thereby entered the city, v. 27. and then to proclaim deliverance to the captive Jews, and reſtore their civil and eccleſiaſtical polity; giving them leave to rebuild their city and temple, and fixing them again in their own land. Note, (1.) When God hath deſigns to fulfil, he cannot want the means; difficulties before him are nothing, the mountain becomes a plain, the river dry. (2.) The character of a good king, is to be God's ſhepherd to protect and provide for his people, and be a nurſing father to his church. (3.) Whatever the greateſt conquerors propoſe to themſelves, they are raiſed up purely to fulfil God's pleaſure, and perform his purpoſes.

C H A P. XLV.

We have here, 1. The great things which God would do for Cyrus, to enable him to releaſe God's people, ver. 1—4. 2. The proof God would hereby give of his eternal power and godhead, ver. 5—7. 3. A prayer for the haſtening of this deliverance, ver. 8. 4. A check to the unbelieving Jews, who quarrelled with God for the lengthning out of their captivity, ver. 9, 10. 5. An aſſurance given to the believing Jews, that God would in due time accompliſh this work by the hand of Cyrus, ver. 11—15. 6. Confuſion threatened to the worſhippers of idols, and ſalvation promiſed to the worſhippers of the true God, with an eye to the Mediator, who is made of God to us both righteouſneſs and ſanctification, ver. 16—25. And here, as in other parts of this prophecy, there is much of Chriſt and goſpel-grace.

1. THUS ſaith the LORD to his anointed, to Cyrus, whoſe right hand I have † holden to ſubdue nations before him: and I will looſe the loins of kings, to open before him the two-leaved gates, and the gates ſhall not be ſhut. 2. I will go before thee, and [a] make the crooked places ſtraight: I will break in pieces the gates of braſs, and cut in ſunder the bars of iron. 3. And I will give thee [b] the treaſures of darkneſs, and hidden riches of ſecret places, [c] that thou mayſt know, that I the LORD which call thee by thy name, am the God of Iſrael. 4. For Jacob my ſervant's ſake, and Iſrael [d] mine elect, I have even called thee by thy name: I have ſirnamed thee, though thou haſt not known me.

† Or, ſtrengthened.
a Chap. xl. 4.
b Jer l. 37.
c Ezr. i. 2.
d Eph. i. 4.

v. 1—4. Cyrus was the type of the great Redeemer, and in his deliverance of the captive Jews, prefigured the greater redemption which Jeſus ſhould obtain for his people of all nations: more than two hundred years before the event came to paſs, we have him particularly named and pointed out, and his great conqueſts deſcribed, which, through the mighty hand of God upon him, he was enabled to obtain over kingdoms which ſeemed much more powerful than his own, and which opened a way at laſt to him, in conjunction with the Perſians, for the conqueſt of Babylon. We have here,

1. The conqueſts he ſhould obtain: Nations are ſubdued before him, and kings ſubmit to his yoke; the ſtrongeſt cities cannot reſiſt his arms, nor the moſt difficult paſſes ſtop his march, God goes before him, and therefore reſiſtance is vain, v. 1, 2. The treaſures of his enemies become his ſpoil, v. 3. and among them, thoſe of Crœſus, king of Lydia, the richeſt monarch of that age: and by theſe he was enabled to purſue his victories, to the final overthrow of the Babyloniſh monarchy.

2. God's deſign in this was purely to ſerve his Iſrael. Cyrus himſelf was a ſtranger to the true God, and meant no doubt his own grandeur and glory alone; but it was for Jacob's ſake God had raiſed him up, and ordained him to be ſuch a conqueror, in order that he might be their deliverer, v. 4. Note, (1.) In all God's providences, in the revolutions of ſtates and kingdoms, there is wheel within wheel; and God hath purpoſes to anſwer for the good of his people, which the great agents employed in theſe things little think of. (2.) Chriſt is exalted to the throne for the ſake of his Iſrael, hath all power given him, and all the unſearchable riches of grace to beſtow; therefore they may expect at his hands every mercy and bleſſing they can need.

5. ¶ I am the LORD, and [f] there is none elſe, there is no God beſides me: [g] I girded thee,* though thou haſt not known me: 6. [h] That they may know from the riſing of the ſun, and from the weſt, that there is none beſides me, I am the LORD, and there is none elſe. 7. I form the light, and create darkneſs: I make peace, [i] and create evil: I the LORD do all theſe things. 8. [k] Drop down, ye heavens from above, and let the ſkies pour down righteouſneſs: let the earth open, and let them bring forth ſalvation, and let righteouſneſs ſpring up together: I the LORD have created it. 9. Wo unto him that ſtriveth with his maker: let the potſherd ſtrive with the potſherds of the earth: [l] ſhall the clay ſay to him that faſhioneth it, What makeſt thou? or thy work, He hath no hands? 10. Wo unto him that ſaith unto his father, What begetteſt thou? or to the woman, What haſt thou brought forth.

e Deut. iv. 35, 39. & xxxii. 39. Chap. xliv. 8.
f Ver. 14, 18, 21.
g Pſ. xviii. 32.
h Mal. i. 11.
i Job ii. 10. Am. iii. 6.
k Pſ. lxxxv. 11.
l Chap. xxix. 16. Jer. xviii. 6. Rom. ix. 20.

v. 5—10. The deſign of God in raiſing up Cyrus, was to make his own power and glory to appear: therefore,

1. He aſſerts his own Godhead, and beſides him there is no other: his works declare his univerſal dominion, light and darkneſs, good and evil, not the evil of ſin, but of ſuffering, are all from him: and if Cyrus was ſo wonderfully ſtrengthened for his conqueſts, the world muſt take notice to whom he ſtands indebted; though he knew not the hand who ſupported him, in this prophetic word, it evidently appears the work was of God, v. 5, 6. Note, Since proſperity and adverſity both come from God, in both he is to be acknowledged, and our duty is to correſpond with his deſigns.

2. A glorious prophecy is revealed, of the abundance of bleſſings, that by the incarnation of the Redeemer, ſhould deſcend on the Iſrael of God. Drop down, ye heavens, from above, and let the ſkies pour down righteouſneſs, or the righteous One, the Lord Jeſus, who deſcending from above, as the rain waters the earth, would cauſe the ſouls of men to bring forth the bleſſed fruits of grace and holineſs: let the earth open; the barren hearts of men, that are like dead earth, till enlivened by the precious influences of the ſpirit of Jeſus; and let them bring forth ſalvation, or the Saviour, and let righteouſneſs ſpring up together; that righteouſneſs which is the work of the incarnate Redeemer, and that ſalvation which is the iſſue of his work of grace upon the ſoul: I the Lord have created it; the work is wholly Divine in the contrivance and execution of it, and our righteouſneſs and ſalvation derived from him alone.

3. A wo is pronounced on the rebellious; either the enemies of God, who oppoſed his people's deliverance, or the faithleſs Jews who deſpaired of it. Poor worms of duſt, as potſherds of the earth, may ſtrive with each other; but to contend with God, or find fault with him, is as abſurd as for the clay to pretend greater wiſdom than the potter, and unnatural as for the child to quarrel with his parents for having begotten and brought him forth. God's ſovereignty, wiſdom, juſtice, and goodneſs, in all his works and ways, are inconteſtible, and it is as wicked as fooliſh to find fault with or oppoſe them. Note, (1.) They who quarrel with God and his providences, only aggravate their own ſufferings. (2.) Nothing can be a greater argument for entire reſignation to the Divine will, than the conſideration, what God is, and what we are; and we then act as becomes creatures, when, as clay in the hands of the potter, we are content to be juſt what our maker pleaſes.

11. Thus ſaith the LORD, the holy One of Iſrael, and his maker, Aſk me of things to come concerning my ſons, and concerning the work of my hands command ye me. 12. [m] I have made the earth, [n] and created man upon it: I, even my hands have ſtretched out the heavens, and all their hoſts have I commanded. 13. I have raiſed him up in righteouſneſs, and I will direct all his ways: [o] he ſhall build my city, and he ſhall let go my captives, [p] not for price nor reward, ſaith the LORD of hoſts. 14. Thus ſaith the LORD, [q] The labour of Egypt, and merchandiſe of Ethiopia, and of the Sabeans, men of ſtature, ſhall come over unto thee, and they ſhall be thine, they ſhall come after thee, in chains they ſhall come over: and [r] they ſhall fall down unto thee, they ſhall make ſupplication unto thee, ſaying, Surely [s] God is in thee, and [t] there is none elſe, there is no god. 15. Verily thou art a God [u] that hideſt thyſelf, O God of Iſrael the ſaviour. 16. They ſhall be aſhamed, and alſo confounded all of them, [x] they ſhall go to confuſion together that are makers of idols. 17. [y] But Iſrael ſhall be ſaved in the LORD with an ever-m Pſal. cii. 25. Chap. xlviii. 13.

n Gen. i. 27.
o Ezr. i. 1, &c. Chap. xliv. 28.
p Chap. lii. 3.
q Pſ. lxviii. 31. & lxxii. 10, 11. Dan. vii. 14.
r Chap. lx. 14. Rev. iii. 9.
s Zech. viii. 23. 1 Cor. xiv. 25.
t Ver. 5.
u Chap. viii. 17. & lvii. 17.
x Chap. xliv. 11.
y Chap. xxvi. 4.

everlaſting ſalvation: ye ſhall not be aſhamed nor confounded world without end. 18. For thus ſaith the LORD [z] that created the heavens, God himſelf that formed the earth and made it, he hath eſtabliſhed it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited, [a] I am the LORD, and there is none elſe. 19. [b] I have not ſpoken in ſecret, in a dark place of the earth: I ſaid not unto the ſeed of Jacob, Seek ye me in vain: I the LORD ſpeak righteouſneſs, I declare things that are right.

[z] Chap. xlii. 5.
[a] Ver. 5.
[b] Deut. xxx. 11. Chap. xlviii. 16. John xviii. 20.

v. 11—19. We have here,

1. The encouragement God gives to his people to wait upon him in prayer, and to enquire concerning the great events he had foretold; either the reſtoration of his people from their captivity, or the glorious increaſe of the ſons of God, which ſhould be raiſed up by the preaching of the goſpel, v. 11. The words alſo may be read interrogatively, in correſpondence with the former verſe, as implying a reproof to thoſe who queſtioned the fitneſs of his diſpenſations.

2. God diſplays his own glorious power, in the creation of all things, as a ground to engage his people's confidence, v. 12. and particularly mentions their deliverance by Cyrus; it is ſpoken of as already done, becauſe determined in the Divine mind. God had raiſed him up in righteouſneſs, and directed all his ways, and he ſhould without price diſcharge them, and with his favour aſſiſt them to rebuild Jeruſalem, v. 13. This alſo may refer to the greater than Cyrus, that Meſſiah whom God would raiſe up in righteouſneſs, not for one nation only, but for all people, whoſe way he directed, to the full accompliſhment of their ſalvation; and who, having by his own arm wrought out redemption for them, diſcharges them from all the arreſts of ſin, and from the bondage of corruption, without money and without price.

3. He promiſes a great increaſe ſhould be made to them, v. 14. Many of the neighbouring nations, probably on their return, became converts to their religion: or rather this refers to goſpel times, when, by the word of truth, the Gentiles, Egyptians, Ethiopians, and Sabeans, gladly received Chriſt's gentle yoke, and yielded themſelves up to God, in the goſpel of his dear Son.

4. Though ſometimes in their afflictions he appeared to hide himſelf, yet he was ſtill the God of Iſrael the ſaviour, ready in due time to appear for their help and conſolation, v. 15. Note, (1.) There are dark days when God's face is hid from his people, and they go mourning without the ſun. (2.) God is not the leſs tender of us, or farther from our help, when he ſeems to forget us: if he hides himſelf, it is to engage us more earneſtly to ſeek him.

5. The idolaters ſhould be confounded and aſhamed, v. 16. as the Babylonians were, when their gods, as well as themſelves, went into captivity; and as was more abundantly ſeen when the goſpel triumphed over the powers of darkneſs, and idolatry was generally aboliſhed.

6. God promiſes his Iſrael an everlaſting ſalvation. Iſrael ſhall be ſaved IN, OR BY, the Lord; the work is his, and ſhall be ſurely accompliſhed; not merely from Babylon, and the yoke of their captivity, but with an everlaſting ſalvation through the Lord Jeſus: ye ſhall not be aſhamed nor confounded world without end, or unto the ages of eternity; ſo permanent is that ſalvation which Chriſt by his blood and righteouſneſs hath purchaſed, and will beſtow on his choſen.

7. God gives his Iſrael the ſtrongeſt aſſurances of the eternal ſalvation he promiſed them, v. 18, 19. He who made the heavens with ſuch admirable wiſdom, and faſhioned the earth ſo fearfully and wonderfully, the only true God and Creator, v. 18. he ſpeaks the never-failing promiſe, not with a muttering low voice in ſecret, as the oracles of the heathens were delivered, but openly and publickly: and none of the ſeed of Jacob ever did, or ſhall ſeek his face in vain; he will ever hear and anſwer them; and his word of righteouſneſs is a full ground for their truſt and confidence, v. 19. Note, (1.) The word of promiſe is the great argument for the prayer of faith. (2.) If none ſeek God's face in vain, how inexcuſable are they who reject their own mercies, and reſtrain prayer before God. (3.) Whatever God ſaith or doth is altogether righteous and true, and the faithful ſoul ever acquieſces therein.

20. ¶ Aſſemble yourſelves and come: draw near together, ye that are eſcaped of the nations: [c] they have no knowledge that ſet up the wood of their graven image, and pray unto a god that cannot ſave. 21. Tell ye, and bring them near, yea, let them take counſel together: [d] who hath declared this from ancient time? who hath told it from that time? have not I the LORD? and [e] there is no God elſe beſide me, a juſt God and a Saviour, there is none beſide me. 22. [f] Look unto me, and be ye ſaved, all the ends of the earth: for I am God, and there is none elſe. 23. I have ſworn by myſelf, the word is gone out of my mouth in righteouſneſs, and ſhall not return, that [g] unto me every knee ſhall bow, [h] every tongue ſhall ſwear. 24. Surely, ſhall one ſay, [i] In the LORD † have I righteouſneſs and ſtrength: even to him ſhall men come, and [k] all that are incenſed againſt him ſhall be aſhamed. 25. [l] In the LORD ſhall all the ſeed of Iſrael be juſtified, [m] and ſhall glory.

[c] Chap. xliv. 19.
[d] Ibid. xli. 22. & xliii. 9. & xliv. 7.
[e] Ver. 5. Chap. xlvi. 9.
[f] John iii. 14, 15.
[g] Rom. xiv. 11. Phil. ii. 10.
[h] Deut. vi. 13. Chap. xv. 16.
[i] 1 Cor. i. 30.
† Or, is all righteouſneſs, &c.
[k] Chap. xli. 11.
[l] Acts x. 43. Rom. iii. 24, 25.
[m] 1 Cor. i. 31.

v. 20—25. The folly of idolaters had before been declared. Here,

1. God calls his people, the converts from heatheniſm, to ſee the vanity of thoſe who perſiſted in the abominable worſhip of idols, v. 20. and to remonſtrate with them againſt it: they pray unto a god that cannot ſave them; though all the votaries of idols conſulted together, they cannot bring a proof of any one inſtance wherein their falſe gods ſhewed the leaſt preſcience of future events, for they are no gods; the living Jehovah alone claims this as his prerogative, and beſides him there is no other; a juſt God, whoſe works and words are all righteouſneſs and truth, and a Saviour, able to the uttermoſt to bleſs and protect his worſhippers. Note, They who by Divine grace have themſelves been converted to God, are eſpecially called upon to ſhew zeal for his glory, in order to the conviction and converſion of others.

2. All nations are called upon to look to Jeſus and be ſaved: by him the everlaſting ſalvation promiſed is obtained, and through him alone to be received, for there is none elſe; becoming incarnate, and by an obedience unto death, even the death of the croſs, lifted up as the ſerpent in the wilderneſs, every periſhing ſinner may look to him and live: he is God, and therefore he ſaves to the uttermoſt; the guilty, the weak, the tempted, the diſconſolate, have all their fears ſilenced, and their countenance lightened by the bright beams of grace and mercy that flow from the crucified Jeſus.

3. According to his ſolemn oath, the nations of the redeemed muſt become ſubject unto him, and his enemies bow before him. I have ſworn by myſelf, the word is gone out of my mouth in righteouſneſs, and ſhall, both reſpecting the promiſe and the prophecy, be aſſuredly fulfilled, and ſhall not return void, that unto me every knee ſhall bow, every tongue ſhall ſwear; pay their allegiance, and join the worſhip of him their Redeemer, as will be ſeen in the day when the kingdoms of the world ſhall become the kingdoms of the Lord and his Chriſt; and eſpecially in the judgment day, to which the apoſtle refers this paſſage, Rom. xiv. 10, 11. Surely, ſhall one ſay, triumphing in their intereſt in the glorious Redeemer, In the Lord, or only in the Lord, have I righteouſneſs and ſtrength; renouncing every thing in themſelves, and by faith laying hold of the perfect righteouſneſs and all-ſufficient grace of Jeſus their Lord, to juſtify, ſanctify, and ſave them: even to him ſhall men come, all that are his choſen, and all that are incenſed againſt him, who are either careleſs tranſgreſſors of his law, or proudly reject his righteouſneſs and ſtrength to truſt on their own, they ſhall be aſhamed at the vanity of their confidence, and the miſery which their iniquities will bring upon them, whilſt the humble believer will rejoice, for in the Lord ſhall all the ſeed of Iſrael, the living members of Chriſt's church, be juſtified from every accuſation of ſin, the law, and their own conſciences, and ſhall glory, not in themſelves, but in the Lord their righteouſneſs; at whoſe feet their crown is laid, and to whoſe rich and ſovereign grace the whole of their ſalvation is aſcribed.

CHAP. XLVI.

The deſtruction of Babylon and her idols is here diſplayed. 1. To warn God's people not to fear them, but truſt in God, their Saviour of old, ver. 1—4. 2. They are cautioned not to make, or worſhip ſuch falſe gods, ver. 5—8. 3. They are reminded of the prophecies of God, eſpecially concerning Cyrus, which ſhould be accompliſhed, ver. 9—11. 4. The ſtout-hearted are admoniſhed to obſerve God's work and its fulfilment, ver. 12, 13.

1. [a] BEL boweth down, Nebo ſtoopeth, their idols were upon the beaſts, and upon the cattle: your carriages were heavy laden, they are a burden to the weary beaſt. 2. They ſtoop, they bow down together, they could not deliver the burden, but † themſelves are gone into captivity. 3. ¶ Hearken unto me, O houſe of Jacob, and all the remnant of the houſe of Iſrael, [b] which are born by me, from the belly, which are carried from the womb. 4. And even to your old age I am he, and even to hoar hairs [c] will I carry you: I have made, and I will bear, even I will carry and will deliver you.

[a] Chap. xxi. 9. Jer. l. 2. & li. 44.
† Heb. Their ſoul.
[b] Deut. i. 31. Pſ. xxii. 9, 10. & lxxi. 6.
[c] Ex. xix. 4. Deut. xxxii. 11. Pſ. lxxi. 18. Chap. lxiii. 9.

v. 1—4. Two things are here foretold,

1. The miſerable eſtate to which Babylon and her idols would be reduced; Bel and Nebo, the deities they worſhipped, ſo far from being able to protect their votaries, would not be able to ſave themſelves, but, among other ſpoil, be plucked from their pedeſtals, and laid as heavy burdens on the weary beaſts who carried them: Iſrael therefore muſt not fear, or worſhip ſuch wretched and impotent idols.

2. When Babylon's gods would fail her, the Lord will eminently appear the protector of his people: great had been the care he had ſhown them from their infant days, when firſt they began to grow into a nation, and never would he leave or forſake them in their old age, but bear them above their difficulties, carry them back to their own land, and deliver them from all their oppreſſors; and ſuch is ſtill his tender regard towards his people. From the womb he took us, and preſerved our natural life amidſt the perils of helpleſs infancy; but more, he took us from the womb of nature, that we might become children of grace, bore with our weakneſs and infirmities, and watched over us with more than maternal tenderneſs: nor will he ever fail us, when the infirmities of old age creep upon us, and infantile weakneſs returns: his hoary-headed ſaints are precious in his ſight, and he will bear them through all the ſtorms of life, and land them ſafe on the bliſsful ſhores of immortality, where their youth will be renewed as the eagle.

5. ¶ [d] To whom will ye liken me, and make me equal, and compare me, that we may be like? 6. [e] They laviſh gold out of the bag, and weigh ſilver in the balance, and hire a goldſmith, and he maketh it a god: they fall down, yea, they worſhip. 7. [f] They bear him upon the ſhoulder, they carry him, and ſet him in his place, and he ſtandeth; from his place ſhall he not remove: yea, [g] one ſhall cry unto him, yet can he not anſwer, nor ſave him out of his trouble. 8. Remember this, and † ſhew yourſelves men: bring it again to mind, O ye tranſgreſſors. 9. Remember the former things of old, for [h] I am God, and [i] there is none elſe, I am God, and there is none like me. 10. [k] Declaring the end from the beginning, and from ancient times the things that are not yet done, ſaying, [l] My counſel ſhall ſtand, and I will do all my pleaſure: 11. Calling a ‡ ravenous bird [m] from the eaſt, the man § that executeth [n] my counſel from a far country: yea, I have ſpoken it, I will alſo bring it to paſs; I have purpoſed it, I will alſo do it. 12. ¶ Hearken unto me, ye ſtout-hearted, that are far from righteouſneſs. 13. I bring near [o] my righteouſneſs: it ſhall not be far off, and my ſalvation ſhall not tarry; and I will place ſalvation in Zion for Iſrael my glory.

[d] Chap. xl. 18, 25.
[e] Chap. xl. 19. & xli. 6. & xliv. 12, 19. Jer. x. 3.
[f] Jer. x. 5.
[g] Chap. xlv. 20.
† Or, be ye ſtrong.
[h] Pſ. xlv. 11.
[i] Chap. xlv. 5. & xlviii. 12.
[k] Chap. xlv. 21.
[l] Pſ. xxxiii. 11. Prov. xix. 21. & xxi. 30. Acts v. 39.
‡ Or, ſwift-winged.
[m] Chap. xli. 2.
§ Heb. Of my counſel.
[n] Jer. l. 45.
[o] Chap. li. 5. Rom. iii. 3, 21.

v. 5—13. Iſrael's beſetting ſin was idolatry, and many of them, it is to be feared, in Babylon would eaſily be brought to worſhip the gods of their conquerors: to them theſe words ſeem eſpecially addreſſed.

1. God ſhows them the folly of the moſt expenſive idols: Though they laviſhed gold and ſilver out of the bag, it were vain to attempt repreſenting the eternal Spirit, or equalling him who is above all, v. 5, 6. Their richeſt gods were motionleſs and ſenſeleſs, muſt be carried to their places, and neither could hear or grant the prayers of their petitioners, v. 7. Note, To ſerve their idol luſts men grudge no expence; to ſerve the glorious God ſhall we count any thing too much to beſtow on his ſervice? Theſe idolaters ſhall riſe up in judgment againſt niggardly profeſſors.

2. He calls upon them to remember and repent of theſe ſinful works. Shew yourſelves men, for ſuch ſervice is brutiſh; or, be ye ſtrong to oppoſe the torrent of idolatry; or, be fired with zeal againſt the diſhonour hereby ſhown to God: bring it again to mind, O ye tranſgreſſors; remember your evil ways, and, as ſinners, with ſhame return to God, who is the only true God; the evidence of which he hath given in all the prophecies, that from the beginning have been exactly accompliſhed according to his word, and which continue daily fulfilling, and ſhall all come to paſs in their appointed time; for his counſel muſt ſtand, and he will do all his pleaſure, v. 10. particularly his deſign of delivering his people ſhall be accompliſhed by Cyrus, called a ravenous, or ſwift-winged bird, with impetuoſity advancing againſt the Babylonians, to execute God's counſel in their deſtruction, which, as he hath purpoſed and foretold, he will perform, and prove therein his Divine power and preſcience. Note, (1.) It is good for us often to remember and reflect upon our ways, and we ſhall find much in them to bewail, repent of, and amend. (2.) As God in all his providences fulfils his own pleaſure, it becomes us ever to reſt ſatisfied in his diſpenſations, and to acknowledge he doth all things well. (3.) God's people may comfort themſelves in the confidence of the accompliſhment of thoſe prophecies which are yet unfulfilled, as ſurely as they have ſeen the former ones verified: Rome, with her idols, as Babylon, muſt fall, and God's kingdom be more eminently than ever yet exalted in the earth.

3. God addreſſes the ſtout-hearted Jews, that were far from righteouſneſs, who continued unhumbled, under all their viſitations, diſtruſted God's faithfulneſs; or though they kept up an exterior of religion, and truſted that they were righteous, yet being ignorant of God's righteouſneſs, and proud of their own, were ſo much the farther removed from the way of ſalvation, v. 12. God ſaith, I bring near my righteouſneſs; either his faithfulneſs in the fulfilment of his promiſes, or that glorious diſplay of his righteouſneſs, manifeſted in the Redeemer, his work and ſufferings: it ſhall not be far off, but in the word of the goſpel brought near to every awakened ſinner, to believe in and truſt upon; and my ſalvation ſhall not tarry, it ſhall quickly be accompliſhed; the deliverance of the Jews from their captivity, and the greater deliverance which Jeſus ſhould work for all his redeemed ones; and I will place ſalvation in Zion for Iſrael my glory; when they were reſtored to their own land; or more eminently when the Lord Jeſus came to Zion, publiſhing the goſpel of the kingdom, and his Iſrael received him, glorifying God for the gift of his Son, and eminently ſhewing forth his praiſe, both in their lips and in their lives. Note, (1.) Nothing is ſo fatal to the ſoul as pride and conceit of our own righteouſneſs. (2.) A free and full ſalvation is now offered to the periſhing ſinner. (3.) The ſtout-hearted, who reject Jeſus as a Saviour, will find their ſtout hearts fail them, when they ſhall meet him as their judge. (4.) His Iſrael is the Redeemer's glory; for this he hath formed us; let it be our conſtant care to approve ourſelves to him, that he may be glorified in us and by us.

CHAP. XLVII.

In this chapter we have the fall of Babylon foretold. 1. The greatneſs of the ruin threatned; ſunk from the heighth of proſperity into the depth of adverſity, ver. 1—5. 2. The ſins that provoked God to bring this ruin upon them. (1.) Their cruelty to the people of God, ver. 6. (2.) Their pride and carnal ſecurity, ver. 7—9. (3.) Their confidence in themſelves, and contempt of God, ver. 10. (4.) Their dependence upon enchantments and ſorceries, which ſo far from defending them, would haſten their ruin, ver. 11—15.

1. [a] COME down and ſit in the duſt, O virgin daughter of Babylon, ſit on the ground: there is no throne, O daughter of the Chaldeans: for thou ſhalt no more be called tender and delicate. 2. Take the milſtones and [b] grind meal, uncover thy locks, [c] make bare the leg, uncover the thigh, paſs over the rivers. 3. Thy nakedneſs ſhall be uncovered, yea, thy ſhame ſhall be ſeen: [d] I will take vengeance, and [e] I will not meet thee as a man. 4. As for [f] our redeemer, the LORD of hoſts is his name, the holy One of Iſrael. 5. Sit thou ſilent, and get thee into darkneſs, O daughter of the Chaldeans: for thou ſhalt no more be called [g] the lady of kingdoms.

[a] Jer. xlviii. 18.
[b] Lam. v. 13.
[c] Chap. xx. 4. Jer. xiii. 22.
[d] Rom. xii. 19.
[e] Chap. xxxi. 4. Rev. xviii. 8.
[f] Chap. xliii. 14.
[g] Chap. xiii. 19. ver. 7. Dan. ii. 37.

v. 1—5. Babylon had long ſat as a queen, and ſeen her captives proſtrate at her feet, a virgin kingdom, whom no conqueror had yet ſubdued; but now her doom is read: into the duſt ſhe muſt fall low; no more her monarchs grace the throne, ſeized by the Perſian king; no more rioting in luxury and delicacies, v. 1. her miſerable inhabitants are reduced to the loweſt drudgery, to grind at the mill, or driven in herds as captives before their lordly maſters, v. 2. ſtripped naked, without compaſſion or humanity; for the vengeance is from God, v. 3. and he, as Iſrael's Redeemer, now returns the cruelty they had ſhown his people, v. 4. The noiſe which once reſounded in the ſtreets of Babylon, is ſilenced: and in darkneſs, whither they retired, or in their priſon-houſes, in vain they lamented the loſs of their kingdom, which ſhould be no more reſtored, v. 5. Note, (1.) They who abuſe their power, and walk in pride, God delights to abaſe. (2.) It is well to be inured to hardſhip; thoſe who are moſt delicately brought up, will feel every reverſe of ſtation with deeper anguiſh. (3.) When God viſits in vengeance, the ſinner may expect judgment without mercy.

6. ¶ [h] I was wroth with my people, [i] I have polluted mine inheritance, and given them into thine hand: thou didſt ſhew them no mercy, [k] upon the ancient haſt thou very heavily laid thy yoke. 7. ¶ And thou ſaidſt, I ſhall be [l] a lady for ever: ſo that thou didſt not lay theſe things to thy heart, [m] neither didſt remember the latter end of it. 8. Therefore hear now this, thou that art given to pleaſures, that dwelleſt careleſly, that ſayeſt in thine heart, [n] I am, and none elſe beſides me, I ſhall not ſit as a widow, neither ſhall I know the loſs of children. 9. But [o] theſe two things ſhall come to thee in a moment in one day; the loſs of children and widowhood; they

[h] Zech. i. 15.
[i] Chap. xliii. 28.
[k] Deut. xxviii. 50.
[l] Ver. 5. Rev. xviii. 7.
[m] Deut. xxxii. 29.
[n] Ver. 10. Zeph. ii. 15. 2 Theſ. ii. 4.
[o] Chap. li. 19.

Before Chriſt 712.

ſhall come upon thee in their perfection, for the multitude of [p] thy ſorceries, and for the great abundance of thine inchantments. 10. ¶ For [q] thou haſt truſted in thy wickedneſs: thou haſt ſaid, None ſeeth me: [r] thy wiſdom and thy knowledge, it hath perverted thee: and [s] thou haſt ſaid in thine heart, I am, and none elſe beſides me. 11. Therefore ſhall evil come upon thee; thou ſhalt not know † from whence it riſeth: and [t] miſchief ſhall fall upon thee, thou ſhalt not be able to ‡ put it off: and deſolation ſhall come upon thee ſuddenly, which thou ſhalt not know. 12. Stand now with thine inchantments, and with the multitude of thy ſorceries, wherein thou haſt laboured from thy youth; if ſo be thou ſhalt be able to profit, if ſo be thou mayeſt prevail. 13. Thou art wearied in the multitude of thy counſels: [u] let now the aſtrologers, the ſtar-gazers, § the monthly prognoſticators ſtand up, and ſave thee from theſe things that ſhall come upon thee. 14. Behold, [x] they ſhall be as ſtubble: the fire ſhall burn them: they ſhall not deliver themſelves from the power of the flame: [y] there ſhall not be a coal to warm at, nor fire to ſit before it. 15. Thus ſhall they be unto thee [z] with whom thou haſt laboured, [a] even thy merchants from thy youth, they ſhall wander every one to his quarter, none ſhall ſave thee.

[p] Nah. iii. 4. Rev. ix. 21. & xviii. 23.
[q] Pſ. lii. 7.
[r] Prov. iii. 5.
[s] Ver. 8.
† Heb. The morning, or riſing of it.
[t] 1 Theſ. v. 3.
‡ Heb. Expiate it.
[u] Chap. xliv. 25.
§ Heb. That give knowledge concerning the months.
[x] Nah. i. 10.
[y] Chap. xxx. 14.
[z] Ver. 12.
[a] Rev. xviii. 11.

v. 6—15. All God's dealings are according to the ſtricteſt equity; if Babylon ſuffers, her ſins have given abundant provocation. We have here,

1. The black catalogue of her crimes.

(1.) Cruelty to God's people. God was wroth with his people, and meant to viſit their iniquities with the ſcourge, and therefore gave them into the hands of the Chaldeans; but they unmercifully chaſtiſed them with ſcorpions, paying no regard to age or ſtation; but on the ancients, whoſe hoary locks, or honours, ſhould have pleaded for compaſſion, making their yoke heavy. Note, They who cruelly oppreſs God's people, however they may triumph for a moment, will find a day of awful reckoning at hand.

(2.) Pride and ſecurity, v. 7. Becauſe her monarchy ſeemed eſtabliſhed, ſhe promiſed herſelf that her throne ſhould be coeval with the days of time; and neither regarding her ſins, nor warned by the threatnings denounced againſt her, ſat ſecure in her own ſufficiency, and deſpiſed her enemies. Note, They who are moſt ſelf-confident and ſecure, are neareſt the precipice of ruin.

(3.) Love of eaſe and pleaſure, v. 8. Given up to the indulgence of ſenſual appetite, and confident that every day ſhould return fraught with mirth and jollity, and no ſorrow interrupt the jocund hours.

(4.) Deteſtable ſorceries, and magical arts, in which from their youth they were trained up, and placed therein their chief dependence: and all theſe are ſins, which are remarked as found in Babylon myſtical, and the cauſes of her deſtruction, Rev. xviii. 4—7, 23.

2. The doom of Babylon is read. She truſted in her wiſdom, policy, wealth, and wickedneſs; but deceived herſelf, as ſinners uſually do: her boaſts can iſſue only in her confuſion, v. 10. Vain is her confidence; in one day the evils from which ſhe thought herſelf ſo ſecured, ſhall overtake her, her king and nobles be ſlain, her people captives, v. 9. So ſudden and terrible the deſtruction, ſhe could neither foreſee nor avert it, v. 11. Fruitleſs would be every attempt of her aſtrologers and diviners; wearied with diſappointment, deſpair ſhould ſeize her, when all the counſels of her magicians failed, and ruin approached, v. 12, 13. Her wiſe men, ſo far from delivering their country, ſhould be unable to ſave themſelves, utterly conſumed by the Divine judgment, as fuel reduced by the flames to duſt, v. 14. Her merchants, either thoſe aſtrologers who had enriched themſelves by their pretenſions to ſcience, or rather thoſe who traded to Babylon, ſhall flee to ſecure themſelves, every one to his quarter, or paſſage, glad to deſert the devoted city, and eager to ſave themſelves from the impending danger in their own lands. See Rev. xviii. 15. Note, (1.) Sinners are ſtrangely apt to promiſe themſelves ſecrecy and impunity, and this hardens their hearts againſt the Divine admonitions. (2.) The dangers, of which the proud and ſecure were leaſt apprehenſive, often ſuddenly ſurprize them, and too late, to their aſtoniſhment, they diſcover the ruin they cannot eſcape. (3.) The greateſt monarch ſits on a tottering throne, when wickedneſs looſens the pillars of it. (4.) Wiſdom or wealth are no defence againſt the judgments of God. (5.) They who are the inſtruments of deceiving others, ſhall themſelves feel the heavieſt ſtrokes of vengeance.

CHAP. XLVIII.

God having reſolved to deſtroy Babylon, and reſcue his Iſrael, ſeeks here to bring them to repentance for their ſins, before they ſhould be delivered from their ſufferings. 1. He charges them with hypocriſy in his ſervice, and obſtinacy in evil, eſpecially in their idolatry, ver. 1—8. 2. He aſſures them that their deliverance would be wrought purely for his own ſake, ver. 9—11. 3. He encourageth them to depend wholly upon his power and promiſe for their deliverance, ver. 12—15. 4. He ſhews them that as it was by their own ſins that they were brought into captivity, ſo it would be only by the grace of God that they would obtain the neceſſary preparatives for their enlargement, ver. 16—19. 5. He proclaims their releaſe, yet with a proviſo, that the wicked ſhall have no benefit by it, ver. 20—22.

1. HEAR ye this, O houſe of Jacob, which are called by the name of Iſrael, and [a] are come forth out of the waters of Judah; [b] which ſwear by the name of the LORD, and make mention of the God of Iſrael, [c] but not in truth, nor in righteouſneſs. 2. For they call themſelves of [d] the holy city, and [e] ſtay themſelves upon the God of Iſrael, the LORD of hoſts is his name. 3. [f] I have declared the former things from the beginning: and they went forth out of my mouth, and I ſhewed them, I did them ſuddenly, and [g] they came to paſs. 4. Becauſe I knew that thou art † obſtinate, and thy neck is an iron ſinew, and [h] thy brow braſs: 5. I have even from the beginning declared it to thee; before it came to paſs I ſhewed it thee: leſt thou ſhouldſt ſay, Mine idol hath done them, and my graven image, and my molten image hath commanded them. 6. Thou haſt heard, ſee all this; [i] and will not ye declare it? I have ſhewed thee new things from this time, even hidden things, and thou didſt not know them. 7. They are created now, and not from the beginning, even before the day when thou heardſt them not; leſt thou ſhouldſt ſay, Behold, I knew them. 8. [k] Yea, thou heardeſt not, yea, thou kneweſt not, yea, from that time that thine ear was not opened: for I knew that thou wouldſt deal very treacherouſly, and waſt called [l] a tranſgreſſor from the womb.

[a] Deut. xxxiii. 28. Pſ. lxviii. 26.
[b] Chap. lxv. 16.
[c] Jer. v. 2. Zeph. i. 5.
[d] Chap. lii. 1.
[e] Mic. iii. 11. Rom. 2. 17.
[f] Chap. xlii. 9 & xliv. 7, 8. & xlv. 21. & xlvi. 10.
[g] Joſh. xxi. 45.
† Heb. Hard.
[h] Jer. iii. 3.
[i] Pſ. xl. 10.
[k] Deut. xxix. 4.
[l] Pſ. lviii. 3.

v. 1—8. The prophet here addreſſes the houſe of Jacob, in order to bring them to a conviction of their hypocriſy and idolatry, and to engage their humble return to God, from whom they had ſo greatly departed.

1. He charges them with the falſe and hypocritical profeſſions they made. They valued themſelves highly, as being called by the name of Iſrael, and boaſted their lineage from Jacob; they were of the royal race of Judah, the tribe that adhered to the temple, and the ſucceſſors of David, when the reſt revolted; they ſwore by the name of the Lord, owning him as their God and king, and engaging their fidelity to him, and made mention of the God of Iſrael, addreſſing him in their prayers and exerciſes of religious worſhip: they called themſelves of the holy city, as counting it an honour to have a name in the church of God; and ſtaid themſelves upon the God of Iſrael, at leaſt pretended to do ſo, as if the Lord of hoſts was the name on which alone their dependance was fixed, but all was falſe and faithleſs, not in truth nor in righteouſneſs. Note, (1.) Many claim the name of chriſtian, who continue ſtrangers to the power of chriſtianity. (2.) It is mere hypocriſy when perſons only draw near to God with their lips, whilſt their hearts are far from him. (3.) We have to do with a heart-ſearching God, and if our ſouls are inſincere before him, vain is all the pageantry of external profeſſion.

2. He urges what he had done to convince and convert their ſouls to him as the only true God, and preſerve and reclaim them from the ſhameful idolatry to which they were ſo addicted: from the beginning he had foretold what ſhould happen to them, their ſojourning in Egypt, deliverance, conqueſt of Canaan, and all came to paſs ſuddenly and certainly; God's power in the fulfilment of his prophetic word appearing evident, as his preſcience in the prediction, v. 3. This they might eaſily diſcern, and ought to declare to the glory of God: a new revelation alſo God now gave them, which they never could have known, nor could their idols have informed them, concerning their captivity in Babylon, and their deliverance by Cyrus; with all thoſe other prophecies, more immediately relative to the goſpel diſpenſation: and in all theſe things God intended to engage them to cleave to, and depend upon him, as the only true God, beſides whom there was no other.

3. God gives the reaſons of his diſpenſations towards them.

(1.) Becauſe he knew they were obſtinate, their neck an iron ſinew, and their brow braſs; ſtubborn and hard-hearted, rigid againſt conviction, and impudently diſpoſed to deny God's work, if by his prophecies foregoing he had not indiſputably proved that he was the author of all their mercies. (2.) He would cut off all pretence of aſcribing theſe events to their idols, as they would elſe be vainly diſpoſed to do, v. 5. it being evident by his foretelling thoſe things, which their idol prieſts never could, that the work was from God alone. (3.) He would ſtop their boaſting, who might pretend when the event came to paſs, that they had foreſeen it; but now it was clear they had not the apprehenſion of what was coming, till God's prophets revealed the hidden counſels of God, decreed from the beginning, but now created and brought to light in the prophetic word. (4.) He would leave them inexcuſable. Notwithſtanding all he had ſpoken their ear was not opened, and their hearts inattentive to the predictions God had given: he knew them to be treacherous dealers, who had often backſlidden from him, and from their firſt formation into a people had been tranſgreſſors; but he now left them without excuſe, if they ſtill refuſed to pay regard to his word, ſo plain, evident, and clear. Note, (1.) It is the true and humbling character of every man, that he is a tranſgreſſor from the womb. (2.) Original ſin, in which we are born, is the pregnant ſource of all the actual evil that afterwards appears in our hearts and lives. (3.) God knows and remarks the inmoſt diſpoſition of our ſouls, and an apoſtate nature is in his eyes the ſin exceeding ſinful. (4.) The word of God is deſigned to ſtain all human glory, and to ſhow us how ignorant, as well as wicked, we muſt have been without Divine revelation. (5.) They who proudly and obſtinately reject God's word, deſervedly are left to periſh in their native guilt and blindneſs.

9. ¶ [m] For my name's ſake [n] will I defer mine anger, and for my praiſe will I refrain for thee, that I cut thee not off. 10. Behold, I have refined thee, but † not with ſilver; I have choſen thee in the furnace of affliction. 11. [o] For mine own ſake, even for mine own ſake will I do it; [p] for how ſhould my name be polluted? and [q] I will not give my glory unto another. 12. Hearken unto me, O Jacob, and Iſrael my called, I am he, [r] I am the firſt, I alſo am the laſt. 13. [s] Mine hand alſo hath laid the foundation of the earth, and ‡ my right hand hath ſpanned the heavens: when [t] I call unto them they ſtand up together. 14. All ye aſſemble yourſelves and hear: [u] which among them hath declared theſe things? [x] the LORD hath loved him: he will do his pleaſure on Babylon, and his arm ſhall be on the Chaldeans. 15. I, even I have ſpoken, yea, I have called him: I have brought him, and he ſhall make his way proſperous.

[m] Chap. xliii. 24.
[n] Pſ. lxxviii. 38.
† Or, not as ſilver, Pſal. ciii. 9. Chap. lvii. 16.
[o] Pſ. lxxix. 9, ver. 9.
[p] Deut. xxxii. 27. Chap. lii. 5. Ezek. xx. 14, 22.
[q] Chap. xlii. 8.
[r] Ibid. xli. 4. & xliv. 6. Rev. i. 17. & xxii. 13.
[s] Chap. xlii. 5. John i. 3.
‡ Or, the palm of my right hand hath ſpread out.
[t] Pſ. cxlvii. 4. Chap. xl. 26.
[u] Chap. xli. 22. & xliii. 9. & xliv. 7. & xlv. 21.
[x] Chap. xlv. 1, &c.

v. 9—15. Their guilt was a circumſtance very diſcouraging; how could they hope for God's interpoſition? and their oppreſſors were ſo powerful that no proſpect of human relief appeared. To ſupport them therefore againſt their juſt fears,

1. God, not out of reſpect to them, but for his own glory, declares he will deliver them: though they deſerved to be utterly cut off, he will defer his anger; and leaſt the heathen nations might reproach him, as if he was unable to ſave his people, or count their gods above him: he will refrain his arm from deſtroying them, and ſave them from their enemies, v. 9, 11. Behold, and admire the grace, I have refined thee; by theſe ſufferings to which they had been expoſed; but not with ſilver, or among ſilver; have not kept them in the furnace till all their droſs was purged away, for then the ſpirit muſt fail before him, if he dealt with them in ſtrict juſtice; but I have choſen thee in the furnace of affliction; he made the afflictions they endured the means of calling them home to himſelf, and by their trials exerciſed and brightened their graces, and purified their ſouls from ſin. Note, (1.) If God dealt with us according to our iniquities, then could no fleſh living be ſaved. (2.) It is not for our deſerts, but to manifeſt the glory of his grace, that God is pleaſed to ſpare and pardon. (3.) Affliction is often the bleſſed means of bringing thoſe home to God who had before wandered far from the right way. (4.) It is a gracious ſign of God's paternal affection towards us, when he is pleaſed in meaſure to correct us, and not to leave us wholly unpuniſhed.

2. Though they could not help themſelves, God will raiſe up a deliverer for them, who ſhall overthrow the kingdom of Babylon. Let Jacob hear the Divine determination, and Iſrael, called of God and choſen, believe what he ſpeaks, who is the ſelf-exiſtent, eternal, and immutable Jehovah, v. 12. He whoſe hand laid the foundations of the earth, and ſtretched out the heavens with ſuch eaſe as if they had been but a ſpan's breadth, at whoſe word the aſſembled hoſts of both ſtand up, ready to execute his high beheſts; he is able to accompliſh their ſalvation, v. 13. Let Iſrael therefore attend to the prophetic word, of which none among the gods of the heathen, or the wiſe men, could ever inform them. Cyrus, the beloved of the Lord, is appointed for their deliverer, to execute God's pleaſure on Babylon, and to lay his arm of vengeance on the Chaldeans, v. 14. God hath ſpoken, and his word is irreverſible; he will enable him for the work, bring him to the ſiege from a far country, and make his way proſperous, giving him victory in the battle, and ſucceſs in all his enterprizes, v. 15. Note, (1.) Cyrus is the type of God's beloved Son, ſent down from heaven, and riding on proſperouſly; the conqueror of death, hell, and ſin, and the Redeemer of his Iſrael. (2.) We may ſafely depend on the fulfilment of God's promiſes, however to human view the difficulties in the way of their accompliſhment ſeem inſurmountable. Is any thing too hard for God? (3.) They who have a Divine call, and are under Divine guidance, may be ſure their way ſhall be proſperous.

16. ¶ Come ye near unto me, hear ye this, [y] I have not ſpoken in ſecret from the beginning, from the time that it was, there am I: and now [z] the LORD God and his Spirit hath ſent me. 17. Thus ſaith [a] the LORD thy redeemer, the holy One of Iſrael, I am the LORD thy God which teacheth thee to profit, which leadeth thee by the way that thou ſhouldſt go. 18. [b] O that thou hadſt hearkned to my commandments! [c] then had thy peace been as a river, and thy righteouſneſs as the waves of the ſea; 19. Thy ſeed alſo had been as the ſand, and the offspring of thy bowels, like the gravel thereof; his name ſhould not have been cut off, nor deſtroyed from before me. 20. ¶ [d] Go ye forth of Babylon, flee ye from the Chaldeans, [e] with a voice of ſinging declare ye, tell this, utter it even to the end of the earth: ſay ye, [f] The LORD hath redeemed his ſervant Jacob. 21. And [g] they thirſted not when he led them through the deſerts: he cauſed the waters to flow out of the rock for them: [h] he clave the rock alſo, and the waters guſhed out. 22. [i] There is no peace, ſaith the LORD, unto the wicked.

[y] Chap. xlv. 19.
[z] Chap. vi. 9. Jer. xxvi. 12. Zech. ii. 9, 11.
[a] Chap. xliii. 14.
[b] Deut. v. 29. & xxxii. 29. Pſal. lxxxi. 13.
[c] Pſ. cxix. 165.
[d] Chap. lii. 11. Jer. l. 8. & li. 6, 45. Zech. ii. 6. Rev. xviii. 4.
[e] Pſ. cxxvi. 1, 2. Chap. xxvi. 1. Rev. xix. 1.
[f] Pſ. cvii. 2. Luke i. 68.
[g] Chap. xli. 17, 18.
[h] Ex. xvii. 6. Num. xx. 11.
[i] Chap. lvii. 21.

v. 16—22. We have here,

1. The call of God to attend the miniſtry of the prophet, or rather the call of Chriſt, who ſeems to be ſpoken of, to the Jews to hear and receive his goſpel, and acknowledge his Divine miſſion. I have not ſpoken in ſecret from the beginning, but preached publickly in the ſynagogues, from the time that it was, from the beginning of his miniſtry, there am I, openly teaching the goſpel of the kingdom; or, before the time that it was, ere he was become incarnate, there was I, exiſting from eternity in the boſom of the Father: and now the Lord and his Spirit hath ſent me, or the Lord hath ſent me, having the fulleſt commiſſion for the execution of the work of redemption, and his Spirit to make that work effectual, by bringing it near to the ſouls of men. Note, (1.) We have here the Trinity of perſons in the Godhead clearly aſſerted. (2.) When God ſends he will qualify us for his ſervice. (3.) It becomes us to hear with ſolemn reverence and attention the words of him whom God hath ſent.

2. The Lord Jeſus informs them of his character and deſign. I am the Lord thy God, without which, he could not have been the Redeemer of his Iſrael, nor could they have been able comfortably and confidently to truſt their ſouls in his hands, which teacheth thee to profit, or profitable things; the doctrines of truth and holineſs, ſuch as their fallen ſtate, their guilt and danger, the grace revealed for ſinners in the goſpel, the perfection of atonement and righteouſneſs wrought out by him, and the fulneſs of the ſpirit which reſided in him, to be communicated to his people; which leadeth thee by the way which thou ſhouldſt go; Chriſt himſelf is the living way, his word is our guide, his grace our ſupport, and all the diſpenſations of his providence concur to lead his redeemed towards their glorious reſt.

3. He laments over thoſe poor ſouls that ſinned againſt their own mercies, Mat. xxiii. 37. O that thou hadſt hearkened to my commandments! which though ſome did, yet we ſee the generality of the Jewiſh people rejected Chriſt and his goſpel, and thereby forfeited all the mercies which had been promiſed to the obedient, and brought their final deſolations upon them. Had they heard and believed, then their peace had been as a river, and their righteouſneſs as the waves of the ſea, abundant and permanent, v. 18. Their nation would have been increaſed exceedingly, and their ſtability ſecured for ever; but now, for their unbelief and impenitence, the very reverſe is their caſe. Note, (1.) Sin robs us of all our joys. (2.) The remembrance of the mercies they have forfeited, as well as the torment they endure, will aggravate the miſeries of the ungodly. (3.) It is a grief to the Saviour, to ſee poor ſouls rejecting their own mercies, and ruſhing on their ruin. (4.) They who periſh eternally will have no blame to caſt on God's mercy, but muſt confeſs, that their own obſtinacy and hardneſs of heart procured their deſtruction.

4. By the proclamation given to the Jews to depart from Babylon, is prefigured the great deliverance of ſinner's ſouls from the bondage of corruption; which, through the preaching of the goſpel, ſhould be effected. They are called to go forth from Babylon and flee, not as by ſtealth, but with the voice of ſinging, openly exulting in their eſcape. With gladneſs they are commanded to publiſh their glorious redemption, wrought out for them by the power of God, v. 20. and as God in their firſt great deliverance from Egypt, led them through the wilderneſs ſafely, and brought water from the rock to ſlake their thirſt; ſuch would be ſtill his care over them in their return from Babylon to Judea, v. 21. And this is moſt applicable to the ſtate of all God's people who go forth with joy from the houſe of their priſon, and from the bonds of ſin and Satan; publiſh to God's glory the redemption wrought out by Jeſus for them; are ſafely led through all the dangers of this world, to them an howling wilderneſs; refreſhed and comforted with the ſtreams of divine grace; and brought at laſt to their native land, better than Canaan, even the inheritance provided for them among the ſaints in light.

5. The obſtinately impenitent are excluded from all the promiſed mercies. There is no peace, ſaith the Lord, to the wicked; which may refer to thoſe who choſe their abode in Babylon, preferably to a return to Judea; or more particularly to the Jewiſh nation, who, after their rejection of Chriſt and his goſpel, became a miſerable, harraſſed, and troubled people, and continue ſo to this day. Or more generally it includes all impenitent ſinners, who have no peace with God, no ſolid reſt in their own conſciences, no comfort in death, no hope in eternity, but the wrath of God preſent and eternal abideth on them.

CHAP. XLIX.

The deliverance of the Jews from the Babyloniſh yoke, and the prophecies going before concerning it, were deſigned to direct their eyes to the greater ſalvation which the Meſſiah was ordained to accompliſh for his people. In this chapter we have, 1. The deſignation of Chriſt to his office as Mediator, ver. 1—3. 2. The aſſurance given him of the ſucceſs of his undertaking among the Gentiles, ver. 3—8. 3. The redemption that ſhould be wrought by him, and the progreſs of that redemption, ver. 9—12.—4. The encouragement given from hence to the afflicted church, ver. 13—17. 5. The addition of many to it, and the ſetting up of a church among the Gentiles, ver. 18—23. 6. A ratification of the prophecy of the Jews releaſe out of Babylon, which was to be the figure and type of all theſe bleſſings, ver. 24—26.

1. LISTEN, O iſles, unto me, and hearken ye people from far, [a] The LORD hath called me from the womb, from the bowels of my mother [b] hath he made mention of my name. 2. And he hath made [c] my mouth like a ſharp ſword, in the ſhadow of his hand hath he hid me, and made me [d] a poliſhed ſhaft, in his quiver hath he hid me, 3. And ſaid unto me, [e] Thou art my ſervant, O Iſrael, [f] in whom I will be glorified. 4. Then I ſaid, [g] I have laboured in vain, I have ſpent my ſtrength for nought, and in vain, [h] yet ſurely my judgment is with the LORD, and my work with my God. 5. ¶ And now ſaith the LORD, that formed me from the womb to be his ſervant, to bring Jacob again to him, [i] Though Iſrael be not gathered, yet ſhall I be glorious in the eyes of the LORD, and my God ſhall be my ſtrength. 6. And he ſaid, It is a light thing that thou ſhouldſt be my ſervant to raiſe up the tribes of Jacob, and to reſtore the † preſerved of Iſrael: I will alſo give thee [k] for a light to the Gentiles, that thou mayeſt be my ſalvation unto the end of the earth.

[a] Jer. i. 5.
[b] Mat. i. 21. Luke i. 31.
[c] Chap. xi. 4. & li. 16. Heb. iv. 12. Rev. i. 16.
[d] Pſ. xlv. 5.
[e] Chap. xlii. 1. Zech. iii. 8.
[f] John xvii. 4.
[g] Chap. liii. 1. & lxv. 2. Mat. xvii. 17. John i. 11. & v. 40.
[h] 1 Cor. iii. 8.
[i] Mat. xxiii. 37.
† Or, deſolations.
[k] Chap. xlii. 6. & lx. 3. Luke ii. 32. Acts xiii. 47. & xxvi. 18.

v. 1—6. The former chapter related chiefly to the ſalvation of the Jews; this looks much farther, even to the ſalvation of Gentiles as well as Jews, through the preaching of the goſpel.

1. The iſles are ſummoned to attend the word of their God and Saviour, which ſhould go forth into all lands; and diſtant realms are called to hear the glad tidings of ſalvation through a Redeemer, v. 1.

2. His miſſion and authority are ſet forth. The Lord hath called me from the womb, from eternity, to be a prophet, prieſt, and king to his people: from, or before, the bowels of my mother hath he made mention of my name, his name Jeſus being given him by the angel, before his conception. And he hath made my mouth as a ſharp ſword; ſo piercing and powerful his word, that the powers of darkneſs fell down before it, and deep conviction ſeized the ſinners hearts; in the ſhadow of his hand hath he hid me, during the days of infancy, when Herod ſought to deſtroy him; and made me a poliſhed ſhaft, or choice arrow, bright and ſharp. In his quiver hath he hid me, till the fulneſs of time came that he ſhould be manifeſted in the fleſh; and ſaid unto me, Thou art my ſervant, (for in this form he conſented to appear) O Iſrael, the repreſentative and covenant head of his people, in whom I will be glorified, God's perfections being never ſo eminently diſplayed, as in the ſalvation wrought out by his incarnate Son.

3. He complains of the little effect his preaching produced on the Jewiſh people: he laboured in vain, and ſpent his ſtrength for nought. They paid no attention to his miracles, nor were convinced by his word; yet God knew the fidelity with which he diſcharged his truſt, and his work was approved, and would be rewarded by him, v. 4. Note, (1.) It is no uncommon complaint miniſters make, that to the moſt of their congregations they labour in vain. (2.) We muſt not be diſcouraged if we ſee not all the ſucceſs we hoped for: the work is God's; when we are conſcious of our own ſimplicity, we may quietly leave the matter in his hand. (3.) It is not always loſt labour, where the effects are not immediately ſeen: the ſeed Chriſt ſowed in his life grew moſt plentifully after his death. (4.) Our ſucceſs enters not into our reward, but our fidelity.

4. With two encouraging promiſes God anſwers his complaints. He had formed him to be his ſervant, and appointed him to ſeek and ſave the loſt ſheep of the houſe of Iſrael. But though the people in general rejected his goſpel, yet, [1.] He ſhould be glorious in the eyes of the Lord, and God would be his ſtrength, to carry him through all the difficulties of his arduous work. Thus we ſee him attended by angels at his birth, miniſtred to by them in his agony, transfigured on the mount, aſcending from the dead, and exalted to the right hand of the majeſty on high. [2.] He ſhould not merely be a Saviour to the preſerved of Iſrael, and raiſe up God's elect among the Jews, but on the Gentiles his light ſhould ariſe, and his ſalvation be ſpread to the ends of the earth, from whence converts would be gathered into the church, unſpeakably more numerous than thoſe of his own nation who ſhould reject him: and this we ſee in part fulfilled, and fulfilling daily, till the fulneſs of the Gentiles ſhall come in. Note, (1.) The ſoul is in utter darkneſs till Chriſt in his goſpel enlightens the eyes of our minds, and guides us into paths of peace. (2.) God's Iſrael are preſerved for him, kept by eternal love, and none can ſeparate them from him. (3.) Chriſt is the only ſalvation for loſt man; out of him there is no hope.

7. Thus ſaith the LORD the Redeemer of Iſrael, and his holy One, to him [l] whom man deſpiſeth, to him [m] whom the nation abhorreth, to a ſervant of rulers, [n] Kings ſhall ſee and ariſe, princes alſo ſhall worſhip, becauſe of the LORD that is faithful, and the holy One of Iſrael, and he ſhall chooſe thee. 8. Thus ſaith the LORD, [o] In an acceptable time have I heard thee, and in a day of ſalvation have I helped thee: and I will preſerve thee, and give thee [p] for a covenant of the people, to † eſtabliſh the earth, to cauſe to inherit the deſolate heritages; 9. That thou mayeſt ſay [q] to the priſoners, Go forth; to them that are in darkneſs, Shew yourſelves: they ſhall feed in the ways, and their paſtures ſhall be in all high places. 10. [r] They ſhall not hunger nor thirſt, [s] neither ſhall the heat nor ſun ſmite them: for he that hath mercy on them ſhall lead them, even by the ſprings of water ſhall he guide them. 11. And I will make all my mountains a way, and my high-ways ſhall be exalted. 12. Behold, [t] theſe ſhall come from far: and lo, theſe from the north and from the weſt, and theſe from the land of Sinim.

[l] Chap. liii. 3.
[m] Acts iii. 14.
[n] Pſ. lxxii. 10, 11. Ver. 23.
[o] Pſ. lxix. 13. 2 Cor. vi. 2.
[p] Chap. xlii. 6.
† Or, raiſe up.
[q] Chap. xlii. 7. Zech. 9. 12.
[r] Rev. vii. 16.
[s] Pſ. cxxi. 6.
[t] Chap. xliii. 5, 6. Mat. viii. 11.

v. 7—12. We have here,

1. The humiliation and exaltation of the Lord Jeſus. God the Father, the Redeemer of Iſrael, encourages his dear Son under his abaſement: in the days of his fleſh he would be deſpiſed of men, abhorred of his own nation, and crucified; a ſervant of rulers, inſulted by the Jewiſh and Roman chiefs: yet great was the glory to which he ſhould be advanced: the kings of the earth ſhould do him homage, and princes bow down to him; as was the caſe, when the Roman empire under Conſtantine embraced the profeſſion of Chriſtianity, and will be more abundantly fulfilled, when all nations ſhall come and worſhip before him.

2. God promiſes him all ſupport in the day of his trouble. He will anſwer his prayers, and help him in the trying hour, when on the croſs he hung, accompliſhing the ſalvation of his people, v. 8. Note, (1.) Whenever a ſoul is inclined to look up in prayer to God, he will find it an acceptable time. (2.) God never forſakes his choſen in their diſtreſs, but will ſuccour and ſave them at their cry.

3. He is aſſured he ſhall ſee of the travail of his ſoul in the ſalvation of his people. I will give thee for a covenant of the people, as their great covenant-head and repreſentative, in whom they would be accepted, and entitled to the bleſſings of grace and glory, which by his blood and righteouſneſs he obtained for them; to eſtabliſh or raiſe up the earth, and cauſe to inherit the deſolate heritages; by the preaching of his goſpel, repleniſhing his church from the Gentile world, which before was deſolate, and the members of it comparatively few, v. 8. that thou mayeſt ſay to the priſoners, Go forth; to them that are in darkneſs, Shew yourſelves; the ſinner's ſoul being under the bands of iniquity, ſhut up in the darkneſs of ignorance and error, and obnoxious to the juſtice of God, till Chriſt by his pardoning word cancels our guilt, by his renewing grace enlightens our minds, and brings us forth into the glorious liberty of the ſons of God, to ſhew forth the change he hath wrought, and therein to make his glory to appear. And whom he thus redeems, he preſerves: they ſhall feed in the ways, in the word and ordinances of God; and their paſtures ſhall be in all high places, where there is plenty of nouriſhment, and they are ſafe from all attacks. They ſhall not hunger nor thirſt, ſhall want no temporal or ſpiritual good; neither ſhall the heat nor ſun ſmite them; God will preſerve them from the power of temptation, and cover them from the ſeverity of perſecution. For he that hath mercy on them ſhall lead them, with all the tenderneſs of a ſhepherd: even by the ſprings of water ſhall he guide them, filling their ſouls with conſolations, and, as they are under divine conduct, making them happy in divine comfort. Every obſtacle in their way to glory ſhall be removed; I will make all my mountains a way, and my high-ways ſhall be exalted, that the redeemed may ſee the ſtrait path before them, and walk ſafely and ſecurely therein: and, as at Cyrus's proclamation the Jews aſſembled from all parts of the land of Chaldea to return to Zion, ſo, in greater numbers, ſhall converts flock into the church of Chriſt. Behold! the glorious ſight; theſe ſhall come from far: and lo, theſe from the north and from the weſt, and theſe from the land of Sinim; from all quarters of the globe, whither his goſpel ſhould go forth, multitudes ſhould join themſelves to the Lord, which, in the apoſtles days, was eminently verified, and ſhall be yet more abundantly ſeen in the latter days. Note, (1.) Chriſt is our covenant; all the conditions of the covenant of grace were fulfilled by him, and by faith all the bleſſings of it are derived from him. (2.) Miſerable is the ſinner's ſtate, till Chriſt comes to ſet him free; yet how many ſleep careleſs in their chains, and never conſider that the darkneſs of ſin muſt ſhortly iſſue in the outer darkneſs of hell! (3.) The redeemed are the Saviour's peculiar care, and he will ſee they ſhall want no manner of thing that is good. (4.) The way to glory hath difficulties, but none ſo great but that almighty Grace can make us more than conquerors. (5.) Were we left to ourſelves a moment, how quickly ſhould we like ſilly ſheep go aſtray? Bleſſed be God, we are not left to our own keeping, but are under the care of that watchful ſhepherd, who can ſay of his flock, I have loſt none.

13. ¶ [u] Sing, O heavens, and be joyful, O earth, and break forth into ſinging, O mountains: for [x] the LORD hath comforted his people, and will have mercy upon his afflicted. 14. But Zion ſaid, [y] The LORD hath forſaken me, and my LORD hath forgotten me. 15. [z] Can a woman forget her ſucking child, [a] that ſhe ſhould not have compaſſion on the ſon of her womb? [b] yea they may forget, [c] yet will I not forget thee. 16. Behold, [d] I have graven thee upon the palms of my hands, thy walls are continually before me. 17. Thy † children ſhall make haſte; thy deſtroyers, and they that made thee waſte, ſhall go forth of thee.

u Chap. xliv. 23. & lv. 12.
x Chap. xl. 1. & lii. 9.
y Chap. xl. 27.
z Mat. vii. 11.
a 1 Kings iii. 26.
b Lam. iv. 3.
c Chap. xliv. 21. Jer. xxxi. 20.
d Cant. viii. 6.
† Or builders, 1 Cor. iii. 10.

v. 13—17. The deliverance of Iſrael from Babylon was juſt matter of abundant joy; but how much greater is due for the redemption of Jeſus, the deſire of all nations?

1. The whole creation is repreſented as burſting forth into ſongs of joy on this glorious event. The afflicted are comforted, the miſerable find mercy, and heaven and earth unite to celebrate the Saviour's praiſe, v. 13. Note, We can never enough be thankful for redeeming love, nor will eternity ſuffice to ſpeak the praiſes of our Lord.

2. The ſtate of deſpondence into which Zion had fallen, ſerved to heighten the joy of their deliverance. Zion ſaid, or had ſaid, The Lord hath forſaken me, and my Lord hath forgotten me: in their long captivity they were ready to faint, and deſpair of relief; and many a time the church of God hath been reduced ſo low, driven by perſecution into the deſert, that it ſeemed forſaken of God. And thus it is alſo with the ſouls of believers in ſeaſons of temptation, when under darkneſs they are ready to deſpair, and give up all for loſt. But this is our infirmity; for hear,

3. God's anſwer to Zion's complaint: nothing can be conceived more expreſſive of his love, tenderneſs, care, and the unchangeableneſs of his regard towards his people. Can a woman forget her ſucking child, that ſhe ſhould not have compaſſion on the ſon of her womb? Strange as it may appear, ſuch an unnatural monſter might perhaps be found; but with tenderneſs infinitely ſurpaſſing, God never forgets, never ceaſes to love and protect the children of his grace. On his hands they were engraved, ever before him in his remembrance, and as a ſignet precious to him. Perhaps ſome alluſion may be had to the prints of the nails in the hands of Jeſus, the love-marks he bears for his people's ſake, v. 16. and being remembered of him, they ſhall be ſaved by him. Thy children ſhall make haſte, or thy builders; either goſpel-miniſters, who ſhould aſſiduouſly labour to build up the church, or converts that ſhould flock into it; whilſt thy deſtroyers, and they that made thee waſte, ſhall go forth of thee; the Babylonians, or rather all the perſecutors and corruptors of God's church, ſuch as Antichriſt and his followers, who ſhall be deſtroyed at the coming of Jeſus, and caſt into outer darkneſs. Note, (1.) The love of Chriſt towards his people is ſo ſurpaſſing great, that wherever it is truly believed and known, it cannot but powerfully conſtrain the heart. (2.) When Chriſt calls, we muſt make no delay. (3.) The damnation of the wicked is as ſure as the ſalvation of the redeemed.

18. ¶ [e] Lift up thine eyes round about, and behold: all theſe gather themſelves together, and come to thee: as I live, ſaith the LORD, thou ſhalt ſurely clothe thee with them all, as with an ornament, and bind them on thee as a bride doth. 19. For thy waſte and thy deſolate places, and the land of thy deſtruction, [f] ſhall even now be too narrow by reaſon of the inhabitants, and they that ſwallowed thee up ſhall be far away. 20. [g] The children which thou ſhalt have, after [h] thou haſt loſt the other, ſhall ſay again in thine ears, The place is too ſtrait for me: give place to me that I may dwell. 21. Then ſhalt thou ſay in thine heart, Who hath begotten me theſe, ſeeing I have loſt my children, and am deſolate, a captive, and removing to and fro? and who hath brought up theſe? Behold, I was left alone, theſe, where had they been? 22. Thus ſaith the LORD God, Behold, [i] I will lift up mine hand to the Gentiles, and ſet up my ſtandard to the people: and they ſhall bring thy ſons in their † arms, and thy daughters ſhall be carried upon their ſhoulders. 23. [k] And kings ſhall be thy nurſing-fathers, and their ‡ queens thy nurſing-mothers: they ſhall bow down to thee with their face toward the earth, and [l] lick up the duſt of thy feet, and thou ſhalt know that I am the LORD: for [m] they ſhall not be aſhamed that wait for me.

e Chap. lx. 4.
f Chap. liv. 2. Zech. ii. 4. & x. 10.
g Chap. lx. 4.
h Rom. xi. 15, 20.
i Chap. lx. 4. lxvi. 20. Mal. i. 11.
† Heb. boſom.
k Pſ. lxxii. 11. Ver. 7. Chap. lii. 15. & lx. 16.
‡ Heb. Princeſſes. Sarahs, Gen. xvii. 15.
l Pſ. lxxii. 9.
m Pſ. xxxiv. 22. Rom. ix. 33. & x. 11.

v. 18—23. Great and precious promiſes of the increaſe and glory of the church are here revealed. A glympſe of this appeared when the Jews returned from their captivity; a brighter diſplay of it was made when the goſpel was firſt preached; but the full blaze ſeems yet reſerved for the times to come, when all nations ſhall be called to the obedience of the faith.

1. A vaſt increaſe ſhall be made to the church. Lift up thine eyes; behold the numerous converts aſſembling from every quarter, ornaments to their profeſſion by the holineſs of their lives, as the jewels which adorn a bride, v. 18. The waſte and deſolate places, the countries before deſtitute of true religion, ſhall be filled with faithful ſouls, and all their enemies confounded ſhall periſh, v. 19. The children thou ſhalt have, after thou haſt loſt the other, cut off by the perſecuting powers of the earth, ſhall ſpring up, as a plenteous harveſt, from the blood of the ſlain martyrs; or, the children of thy widowhood, when the church ſeemed bereſt of all her ſons and daughters by the prevalence of the man of ſin, ſhall ſay again, or, ſhall yet ſay in thine ears, The place is too ſtrait for me; ſuch a ſudden and ſtrange increaſe of converts ſhall be made, v. 20. With pleaſing ſurprize the glad mother ſhall behold the children God hath given her, and, wondering, enquire who hath begotten them, and whence they come, ſo unexpected a comfort to her widowed ſtate, v. 21. and the anſwer is, They come from Gentile lands, called by the word of goſpel-grace, and liſted under the banners of a crucified Jeſus; and ſo eager are they to have a place in the ſpiritual Zion, that the weak and feeble are borne upon the ſhoulders of the ſtrong: or, they will bring their children with them, and enroll them in the viſible church: or perhaps it may refer to the aſſiſtance the Gentiles ſhall give the Jews, when their day of grace arrives, v. 22. Note, (1.) However low the church may be reduced, her latter end ſhall have great increaſe. (2.) They who have a concern for their own ſouls, cannot but be ſollicitous that others, eſpecially their own children, may be brought to the knowledge of Chriſt and his goſpel.

2. The church ſhall not only be increaſed in number, but be highly honoured. Kings ſhall be nurſing-fathers, and queens nurſing-mothers to it; ſuch as Cyrus, Ahaſuerus, and Eſther, were to the Jews; or rather ſuch as Conſtantine and Helena, and other Chriſtian monarchs have been; and which will be ſtill farther ſeen, when all the kingdoms of the world ſhall become the kingdoms of the Lord and his Chriſt. They ſhall bow down to thee with their face towards the earth, with profoundeſt ſubmiſſion, and lick up the duſt of thy feet; ready to ſerve the church in the loweſt offices, and to ſhew affection and regard to the meaneſt of Chriſt's members. And thou ſhalt know that I am the Lord, by ſuch wondrous exertion of his power to make all nations obedient to the faith; for they ſhall not be aſhamed that wait for me; the performance of all his promiſes ſhall be ſeen in their ſeaſon, and the hopes of his waiting people ſhall never be diſappointed; therefore, my ſoul, truſt thou ſtill in the Lord!

24. ¶ [a] Shall the prey be taken from the mighty, or † the lawful captive delivered? 25. But thus ſaith the LORD, Even the captives of the mighty ſhall be taken away, and the prey of the terrible ſhall be delivered: for I will contend with him that contendeth with thee, and I will ſave thy children. 26. And [o] I will feed them that oppreſs thee, with their own fleſh, and they ſhall be drunken [p] with their own blood, as with ſweet wine, and [q] all fleſh ſhall know that I the LORD am thy ſaviour, and thy redeemer, the mighty One of Jacob.

[a] Luke xi. 21, 22.
† Heb. The captivity of the juſt.
[o] Chap. ix. 20.
[p] Rev. xiv. 20. & xvi. 6.
[q] Pſ. ix. 16.

v. 24—26. Deliverance is promiſed, but great difficulties are in the way.

1. We have an objection raiſed, either by their proud oppreſſors, as deſpiſing the prophetic word, or by the unbelieving Jews, as diſtruſting it. Shall the prey be taken from the mighty? ſuch as were the Babylonian monarchs; and the lawful captive, or the captivity of the righteous, be delivered? of which ſo little probability appeared. And this is applicable to our ſouls taken captive by the devil, and by our willing ſervitude ſurrendered into his hands, who is ſtrong to keep his priſoners; and it is a miracle of mercy if any ſinner is reſcued from his bands.

2. God, by expreſs promiſe, aſſures his people it ſhall be done. Mighty as their oppreſſors are, and terrible, they are not too great for God to cope with. He will eſpouſe their quarrel, overcome their foes, and ſave their children, plucking them from the power of their enemies, v. 25. Nay, he will do more; he will utterly conſume them, will viſit them with the foreſt judgments, and make the world acknowledge his power to abaſe his foes, and his love towards the children of his grace, v. 26. And this is ſpiritually fulfilled daily in the ſouls of ſinners, by divine grace delivered from the bonds of ſin and Satan, that ſtrong man armed, and ſaved with an everlaſting ſalvation from all their enemies; and will alſo literally be fulfilled in the deſtruction of Antichriſt, and the perſecuting powers of popery, paganiſm, and Mahomediſm, when Chriſt ſhall make his glory to appear, and all the world be forced to own both his power to ſave and to deſtroy to the uttermoſt.

CHAP. L.

In this chapter we have, 1. The rejection of the Jews ſignified by a divorce, becauſe of their contempt of the Meſſiah, who was ſo able to ſave them, ver. 1—3. 2. Chriſt produces his commiſſion, and profeſſes his readineſs to ſuffer, ver. 4—6. 3. He expreſſes his confidence in God's ſupport, ver. 7—9. 4. He comforts his deſponding ſaints, and threatens the ſelf-righteous and preſuming ſinners, ver. 10, 11.

1. THUS ſaith the LORD, Where is [a] the bill of your mother's divorcement whom I have put away? or which of my creditors is it to whom I have ſold you? Behold, [b] for your iniquities have you ſold yourſelves, and for your tranſgreſſions is your mother put away. 2. Wherefore [c] when I came, was there no man? when I called, was there none to anſwer? [d] Is my hand ſhortned at all, that it cannot redeem? or have I no power to deliver? behold, [e] at my rebuke [f] I dry up the ſea: [g] I make the rivers a wilderneſs: [h] their fiſh ſtinketh, becauſe there is no water, and dieth for thirſt. 3. [i] I clothe the heavens with blackneſs, [k] and I make ſackcloth their covering.

[a] Deut. xxiv. 1. Hoſ. ii. 2.
[b] Chap. lii. 3.
[c] John i. 11.
[d] Num. xi. 23. Chap. lix. 1.
[e] Nah. i. 3.
[f] Exod. xiv. 21.
[g] Joſh. iii. 16.
[h] Exod. vii. 18.
[i] Exod. x. 21.
[k] Rev. vi. 12.

v. 1—3. God will vindicate his ways to men, and prove his juſtice in the rejection of the Jewiſh people.

1. He deſires the cauſe of their rejection may be examined. Where is the bill of your mother's divorcement? intimating, either that God had not caſt them off, but they, like an adultereſs, had treacherouſly departed from him; or, that if he had divorced them, if the bill was produced, the cauſe would be found abundantly to vindicate his proceeding: or which of my creditors is it to whom I have ſold you? fathers having ſuch a right over their children among the Jews, but God owed nothing either to the Babylonians or Romans, and therefore if they were captives, it was not of him, but themſelves. Behold, for your iniquities have you ſold yourſelves, and for your tranſgreſſions is your mother put away; to gratify their vile luſts, they provoked God, by their idolatries eſpecially; and at laſt, by crucifying the Redeemer, they brought upon themſelves deſtruction. Note, (1.) Though all who are ſaved owe it to God's ſovereign grace, none are damned but muſt own it the juſt reward of their own obſtinate impenitence. (2.) If ſinners ſell themſelves to work wickedneſs, they can only hope to earn the wages of ſin.

2. He upbraids them with their inattention to his calls by all his prophets, and eſpecially by his Son, who came himſelf to warn them, yet none regarded. They paid no credit to his word, nor would be perſuaded, that he who appeared in circumſtances ſo mean was the almighty Redeemer promiſed, tho' he had given ſuch inſtances of his glorious power in their former deliverances. At his rebuke the ſea was divided; by him Jordan became dry ground; he ſlew the fiſh of Egypt, when the rivers were turned into blood, v. 2. and covered the Egyptians with that thick darkneſs which might be felt, v. 3. Or it may refer to his power in raiſing the thick clouds, and, when he pleaſes, eclipſing the luminaries of heaven; in all which works his omnipotence is manifeſted.

4. [l] The Lord GOD hath given me the tongue of the learned, that I ſhould know how to ſpeak a word [m] in ſeaſon to him [n] that is weary: he wakeneth morning by morning: he wakeneth mine ear to hear as the learned. 5. ¶ [o] The Lord GOD hath opened mine ear, and I was not [p] rebellious, neither turned away back. 6. [q] I gave my back to the ſmiters, [r] and my cheeks to them that plucked off the hair: I hid not my face from ſhame and ſpitting. 7. ¶ For the Lord GOD will help me, therefore ſhall I not be confounded: therefore have [s] I ſet my face like a flint, and I know that I ſhall not be aſhamed. 8. [t] He is near that juſtifieth me, who will contend with me? [u] let us ſtand together: who is † mine adverſary? let him come near to me. 9. Behold, the Lord GOD will help me, who is he that ſhall condemn me? [x] lo, they all ſhall wax old as a garment: [y] the moth ſhall eat them up.

[l] Exod. iv. 11.
[m] Prov. xxv. 11.
[n] Mat. xi. 28.
[o] Pſ. xl 6.
[p] John xiv. 31. Phil. ii. 8. Heb. x. 5, &c.
[q] Mat. xxvi. 67. & xxvii. 26.
[r] Lam. iii. 30.
[s] Ezek. iii. 8, 9.
[t] Rom. viii. 32, &c.
[u] Exod. xxii. 9. Deut. xix. 17.
† The maſter of my cauſe.
[x] Chap. li. 6.
[y] Chap. li. 8.

v. 4—9. We have here our Lord proceeding in his work of redemption, for which he is every way ſo fully qualified.

1. As endued with the higheſt wiſdom, that he might know how to preach the goſpel which brings reſt to the weary ſoul; and conſtantly receiving from his Father, as the great prophet of his church, thoſe leſſons of instruction, which, with fidelity and zeal, riſing up early he inculcated on his diſciples, v. 4. Note, (1.) The greateſt qualification of a miniſter of God is to know how to addreſs the troubled conſcience, and to ſpeak the ſeaſonable word to calm the tumult of the ſoul. (2.) It is God that gives the ability, and he alone can add the bleſſing. (3.) They who would ſerve God in the goſpel of his Son, muſt attentively hear him ſpeaking in his revealed word, for there are all the hid treaſures of wiſdom. (4.) Morning by morning muſt we be found upon our knees, aſking the wiſdom which cometh from above; for the moſt laborious reſearches of the human underſtanding in the ſcriptures, without the teaching of God's Spirit, will never make us wiſe unto ſalvation.

2. Patiently ſuffering. He voluntarily yielded himſelf up to his Father's will, as the ſervant who had his ear bored, Exod. xxi. 5, 6. became his maſter's property for ever; and when he was called to the ſevereſt trials, in the courſe of his obedience unto death for our redemption, he chearfully met his ſufferings, v. 5. ſubmitting to all that ſhame, inſult, pain, and agony, which he endured from his wicked perſecutors, v. 6. See Mat. xxvi. 67. xxvii. 26. Mark xiv. 65. John xviii. 22. Note, The more we conſider what Jeſus ſo readily ſubmitted to on our behalf, the more ſhould our hearts be comforted in the perſuaſion of his willingneſs to ſave all who come to him.

3. Powerfully ſupported, and boldly accompliſhing his work in the face of all oppoſition. For the Lord God will help me; as man, he needed ſupport from his Father, and found it in the day of his calamity; therefore ſhall I not be confounded, ſo as to faint under his ſufferings. Therefore have I ſet my face as a flint, againſt all the ignominious treatment to which he was expoſed; and I know that I ſhall not be aſhamed; his cauſe was good, and he was aſſured in the iſſue he ſhould not be diſappointed, but ſee the redemption of his people compleated. He is near that juſtifieth me, who will contend with me? Let us ſtand together: who is mine adverſary? let him come near to me. The charges that were laid againſt him, from Satan, from the law, from his malicious perſecutors, were all anſwered; and God, by his reſurrection from the dead, declared him fully acquitted of every accuſation, and that he had made compleat ſatisfaction for the ſins of his people. Thus holpen of God, no condemnation remained againſt him; whilſt all his enemies, doomed to ruin, like a moth-eaten garment, ſhould utterly and irrecoverably periſh, v. 9. Note, (1.) They who are called to ſtand up for Chriſt, have need of courage, and to ſet their faces as a flint againſt the revilings of men. (2.) Chriſt's ſervice will bear us out; and, however ſhameful in the eyes of men the preaching of the croſs may appear, it is our greateſt glory. (3.) Whilſt our hearts are led up to God for ſtrength, he will not fail us. (4.) A believer in Jeſus may now challenge every accuſer; the reſurrection of his Lord gives him a plea that ſilences all condemnation. (5.) The enemies of Chriſt and his people, however they may prevail for a time, are doomed at laſt to periſh for ever, and the worm which dieth not ſhall feed upon them.

[z] Mal. iii. 16.
[a] Pſ. xxiii. 4. Chap. viii. 22.
[b] Pſ. xxvii. 13. Hab. ii. 4.
[c] Chap. x. 20. 1 Pet. v. 7.
[d] Pſ. xvi. 4. John ix. 39.

10. ¶ Who is among you [z] that feareth the LORD, that obeyeth the voice of his ſervant, [a] that walketh in darkneſs, and hath no light? [b] let him truſt in the name of the LORD, [c] and ſtay upon his God. 11. Behold, all ye that kindle a fire, that compaſs yourſelves about with ſparks: walk in the light of your fire, and in the ſparks that ye have kindled. [d] This ſhall ye have of mine hand, ye ſhall lie down in ſorrow.

v 10, 11. The ſufficiency of the Lord Jeſus for his undertaking being ſhewn, he here addreſſes ſaints and ſinners, comforting the one, and warning the other.

1. He ſpeaks a word of kind encouragement to his people. Their character is drawn as fearing the Lord, with child-like reverence and regard, and obeying the voice of his ſervant; receiving by faith his promiſes of goſpel grace, and yielding a willing ſubmiſſion to his commands and ordinances. Yet they walk in darkneſs, and ſee no light; expoſed to ſevere afflictions, or ſuffering under deſertions; deſtitute of their wonted comfort, and reduced to fears and doubts about their intereſt in the Redeemer. In ſuch a ſtate of diſtreſs he bids them truſt in the name of the Lord, againſt hope believing in hope; and ſtay themſelves on their God, who, though they are in darkneſs, never quits his relation to them; and they muſt plead ſtill his unchangeable covenant of grace, and never caſt away this hope of their confidence. Note, (1.) God's children are ſometimes left to great darkneſs, and reduced very low, in order more eminently to exerciſe their faith, and to manifeſt more abundantly God's love towards them. (2.) In the darkeſt diſpenſations of providence and grace there is ſtill ground to ſay, My God; and as long as our faith doth not fail, we ſhall not be caſt away.

2. He ſpeaks a word of conviction to the preſumptuous. Behold, all ye that kindle a fire, that compaſs yourſelves about with ſparks; like Nadab and Abihu offering ſtrange fire, ſetting up the light of nature inſtead of revelation; ſeeking by works of righteouſneſs that they can do, to recommend themſelves to God's favour, inſtead of renouncing themſelves, to truſt alone in the righteouſneſs of a Redeemer. Walk in the light of your fire, and in the ſparks that ye have kindled; ironically ſpoken, as intimating the vanity and inſufficiency of the methods they purſued: this ſhall ye have of my hand, ye ſhall lie down in ſorrow. The iſſue of your ways will be fatal: the light of nature can only lead you to outer darkneſs; and dependence on your own deſerts and duties, prove at laſt your eternal ruin. Note, Creature-comforts may adminiſter a ſhort-lived enjoyment, and ſelf-dependence flatter us with a momentary hope; but ſoon will theſe ſparks be extinguiſhed, and death undeceive thoſe, who would not be undeceived before.

CHAP. LI.

This chapter is deſigned for the comfort of the church of God in her diſtreſs. 1. God, who raiſed his church at firſt out of nothing, will take care it ſhall not periſh, ver. 1—3. 2. The righteouſneſs and ſalvation he deſigns for his church are ſure and near, ver. 4—6. 3. Her perſecutors are weak and dying creatures, ver. 7, 8. 4. The ſame power which did wonders for the church formerly, is now engaged for her protection and deliverance, ver. 9—11. 5. God himſelf, the maker of the world, had undertaken to deliver his people out of their diſtreſs, and to comfort them under it, ver. 12—16. 6. As deplorable as the condition of the church now was, ver. 17—20. to the ſame woful circumſtances her perſecutors ſhould ſhortly be reduced, ver. 20—23,

[a] Mat. v. 6. & vi. 33. Rom. ix. 30, &c. Phil. iii. 9.
[b] Rom. iv. 1.
[c] Gen. xii. 1.
[d] Gen. xiii. 10.

1. HEARKEN to me, [a] ye that follow after righteouſneſs, ye that ſeek the LORD: look unto the rock whence ye are hewn, and to the hole of the pit whence ye are digged. 2. [b] Look unto Abraham your father, and unto Sarah that bare you; for [c] I called him alone, and bleſſed him, and increaſed him. 3. For the LORD ſhall comfort Zion: he will comfort all her waſte places, and he will make her wilderneſs like Eden, and her deſart [d] like the garden of the LORD; joy and gladneſs ſhall be found therein, thankſgiving, and the voice of melody.

v. 1—3. This was probably deſigned primarily for the comfort of Iſrael in Babylon, but is equally applicable to the whole church.

1. The character of God's people is here deſcribed. Ye that follow after righteouſneſs, ye that ſeek the Lord; who earneſtly embrace the righteouſneſs of faith, ſeek the Lord in all his appointed ordinances, and deſire to walk before him in all holy converſation and godlineſs.

2. Their duty is ſet before them: in general, to hearken to all God's words, and particularly to look back with humility on their low original, and with faith to truſt God in the time of their deepeſt diſtreſs, who is as able to ſave them, and increaſe his church, as to deliver Abraham from his idolatrous country, and make him the father of many nations, v. 2. Note, (1.) It is good for a child of God to be often remembering the hole of the pit, the ſtate of nature and ſin, from whence he hath been digged, to keep him ever humble before God. (2.) What God hath done of old for thoſe who truſted, as Abraham, implicitly on his promiſe, ſhould encourage us to follow their faith, and hope for their bleſſing.

3. In the way of duty God will meet them with his conſolations. The Lord will comfort Zion, his church, and every member of it, with the diſcoveries of his love. He will comfort all her waſte places, where, through the ravages of perſecution, or decays of vital godlineſs, few faithful remained; and he will make her wilderneſs like Eden, and her deſart as the garden of the Lord; ſo flouriſhing and fruitful; and this will yield matter of abundant conſolation to the ſaints, as well as glory to God; joy and gladneſs ſhall be found therein, thankſgiving, and the voice of melody. Note, (1.) It is matter of greateſt joy to the ſoul, when God is pleaſed to change its deſart ſtate of nature, and by his grace renewed, to make it flouriſh as the garden of Eden. (2.) The tribute of praiſe is the leaſt we can render for the mercies we continually receive from God.

[e] Chap. ii. 3.
[f] Luke ii. 32.
[g] 1 Theſ. v. 24. 2 Theſ. i. 6, 7.
[h] Pſ. cii. 26. Mat. xxiv. 35. 2 Pet. iii. 10.
[i] Chap. l. 9.
[k] John iii. 16.
[l] Pſ. xxxvii. 31.
[m] Mat. x. 28.
[n] Chap. l. 9.
[o] Ver. 6.

4. ¶ Hearken unto me, my people, and give ear unto me, O my nation: for [e] a law ſhall proceed from me, and I will make my judgment to reſt [f] for a light of the people. 5. [g] My righteouſneſs is near: my ſalvation is gone forth, and mine arms ſhall judge the people: the iſles ſhall wait upon me, and on mine arms ſhall they truſt. 6. Lift up your eyes to the heavens, and look upon the earth beneath: for [h] the heavens ſhall vaniſh away like ſmoke, and the earth ſhall wax old like a garment, and [i] they that dwell therein ſhall die in like manner: but [k] my ſalvation ſhall be for ever, and my righteouſneſs ſhall not be aboliſhed. 7. ¶ Hearken unto me, ye that know righteouſneſs, the people [l] in whoſe heart is my law, [m] fear ye not the reproach of men, neither be ye afraid of their revilings. 8. For [n] the moth ſhall eat them up like a garment, and the worm ſhall eat them up like wool: [o] but my righteouſneſs ſhall be for ever, and my ſalvation from generation to generation.

v. 4—8. God promiſes to comfort his church, and we have here abundant ground of conſolation ſet before us, from the views of the tranſcendently glorious and everlaſting righteouſneſs of God our ſaviour.

1. We are told who they are that have an intereſt in it. My people, the elect of God; my nation, the choſen generation of Jews and Gentiles incorporated, that make one body, of which Chriſt is the living head; ye that know righteouſneſs, are thoroughly acquainted with, and believe in the righteouſneſs of Jeſus, as wrought out for the ſinner's juſtification; in whoſe heart is my law; faith working by love, and engaging a willing obedience to all God's commandments. Reader, is this thy caſe?

2. A repeated and ſolemn call is given to theſe, to hear him who ſpeaketh from heaven, and brings to men the knowledge of ſalvation. Note, They who would know God's mind and will, muſt be attentive to his word.

3. The glad tidings Chriſt brings are delivered.

(1.) A law ſhall proceed from me, the law of the Spirit of Life, the goſpel; and I will make my judgment to reſt for a light of the people; his word ſhall gain a firm eſtabliſhment, and be not merely the light of Iſrael, but of the ends of the earth.

(2.) In this goſpel the grand object is the righteouſneſs of the Redeemer, wrought out in behalf of his people, and the meritorious cauſe of the ſalvation, which is, in conſequence thereof, beſtowed upon them, v. 5.

(3.) This righteouſneſs is near, and this ſalvation gone forth; openly preached in the word of the goſpel, and is near to every ſinner, from whom no previous qualifications are required: whenever he receives God's record as true, that moment he becomes entitled to the ſalvation promiſed.

(4.) Mine arm ſhall judge the people; either the arm of the Lord ſhall be revealed to them in mercy, and they ſhall truſt upon it, as will be the caſe of thoſe who embrace the proffered ſalvation; or he will viſit thoſe who neglect ſo great a mercy, and puniſh them for their unbelief, v. 5.

(5.) The righteouſneſs and ſalvation of the Redeemer ſhall be eternal: it is not only free for all nations, but enduring through all ages. The heavens will decay, and the earth be deſtroyed, but this will abide unchangeably the ſame. When all created nature ſinks in ruins, the ſaints of God therein arrayed, ſhall appear compleat before the throne of judgment, and plead this righteouſneſs, as their only title to eternal glory, v. 6.

(6.) They need not fear the reproaches and revilings of men, who have an intereſt in this righteouſneſs and ſalvation: they are to expect their croſs, but it is their glory, not their ſhame.

(7.) Chriſt will ſilence and deſtroy ſhortly all their enemies; and when, through the ages of eternity, thoſe who have made his righteouſneſs their truſt, ſhall be rejoicing in glory, they who have rejected it muſt lie down in torment, where their worm dieth not, and their fire is not quenched, v. 8.

9. ¶ [p] Awake, awake, [q] put on ſtrength, O arm of the LORD; awake as in the ancient days, in the generations of old. [r] Art thou not it that hath cut Rahab, [s] and wounded the dragon? 10. Art thou not it [t] which hath dried the ſea, the waters of the great deep, that hath made the depths of the ſea a way for the ranſomed to paſs over? 11. Therefore [u] the redeemed of the LORD ſhall return, and come [x] with ſinging unto Zion, and everlaſting joy ſhall be upon their head: they ſhall obtain gladneſs and joy, and ſorrow and mourning ſhall flee away. 12. [y] I, even I am he that comforteth you: who art thou, [z] that thou ſhouldſt be afraid of a man that ſhall die, and of the ſon of man [a] which ſhall be made as graſs? 13. And forgetteſt the LORD thy maker, [b] that hath ſtretched forth the heavens, and laid the foundations of the earth? and haſt feared continually every day, becauſe of the fury of the oppreſſor, as if he were ready to deſtroy? and [c] where is the fury of the oppreſſor? 14. The captive exile haſtneth, that he may be looſed, [d] and that he ſhould not die in the pit, nor that his bread ſhould fail. 15. But I am the LORD thy God, [e] that divided the ſea, whoſe waves rored: the LORD of hoſts is his name. 16. And [f] I have put my words in thy mouth, and have covered thee in the ſhadow of mine hand, [g] that I may plant the heavens, and lay the foundations of the earth, and ſay unto Zion, Thou art my people.

[p] Pſ. xliv. 23.
[q] Rev. xi. 17.
[r] Pſ. lxxxix. 10.
[s] Pſ. lxxiv. 13, 14. Chap. xxvii. 1. Ezek. xxix. 3.
[t] Exod. xiv. 21. Chap. xliii. 16.
[u] Chap. xxxv. 10.
[x] Chap. xlviii. 20.
[y] 2 Cor. i. 3, 4.
[z] Pſ. cxviii. 6.
[a] Chap. xl. 6. 1 Pet. i. 24.
[b] Job ix. 8. Pſ. civ. 2. Chap. xl. 22. & xlii. 5. & xliv. 24.
[c] Chap. xvi. 4.
[d] Zech. ix. 11.
[e] Job xxvi. 12. Jer. xxxi. 35.
[f] Deut. xviii. 18. John iii, 34.
[g] Chap. lxv. 17. & lxvi. 22. Rev. xxi. 1. Or, Eph. i. 10. Col. i. 20.

v. 9—16. God had promiſed to bring near his ſalvation; the church immediately in prayer cries to him to haſten it in his time.

1. His people pray that he would awake, and put forth his mighty power for their ſalvation: not that he ever ſleeps or ſlumbers; but, when the faithful are diminiſhed and brought low, he ſeems to forget their diſtreſſes. Confident of his power, they plead their former experience of it, when in the plagues of Egypt he made bare his arm, and, in the deliverance of Iſrael from that houſe of their priſon, wrought ſuch miracles on their behalf. Confident of his love, they promiſe themſelves a ſpeedy anſwer; that he will bring them to Zion with ſongs, baniſh their ſorrows, and crown them with everlaſting joy, v. 9—11. This may refer to the reſtoration of the Jews from Babylon, or to the church of Chriſt, when Babylon myſtical is fallen. And it is applicable to every believer, who here, beſet with enemies, is driven to God in continual prayer for help and ſuccour, through grace is enabled to triumph over all difficulties, and in death goes to the heavenly Zion, where all his tears will be for ever wiped away, his ſorrows be eternally baniſhed, and joy unſpeakable and full of glory glow in his boſom; whilſt amidſt the enraptur'd hoſts of ſaints and angels he joins in the everlaſting ſongs of a Redeemer's praiſe.

2. God, whoſe ears are ever open to the prayers of his people, anſwers them to their utmoſt ſatisfaction: I, even I am he that comforteth you; and when he, who is the fountain of mercy, and the God of all conſolations, gives ſuch an aſſurance, what can we need more?

(1.) He comforts them under their fears. Who art thou, that thou ſhouldſt be afraid of a man that ſhall die, &c. However the oppreſſors threatned, the greateſt before God were but dying worms, and frail as the withering graſs; and therefore their continual fears were groundleſs and unreaſonable, v. 12. Nay, they were diſhonourable to God, and ſhewed a forgetfulneſs and diſtruſt of his almighty power and grace, who hath eſtabliſhed his church more firmly than the pillars of heaven, or the foundations of the earth, and in an inſtant could ſtay the oppreſſors, as in the caſe of Pharaoh and Sennacherib, v. 13. Note, (1.) A ſenſe of the vanity of man will greatly tend to deliver us from the fear of offending in the way of our duty; for what is the wrath of a dying worm, compared with the favour of the living God? (2.) We often create ourſelves needleſs diſquiet, and tremble at conſequences and events which never come to paſs. (3.) The cauſe of all tormenting fear is our unbelief. One thought of God, with fixed dependance upon him, would bear us above all frowns and threatnings.

(2.) He will looſe them from their bonds. The captive exile haſtneth that he may be looſed: it is a natural deſire, and he is ſollicitous for the time to come; and that he ſhould not die in the pit, the houſe of his priſon; nor that his bread ſhould fail, and he be famiſhed. And ſuch might be the fear of ſome of the Jews in Babylon, and is the caſe of the faithful at times, when under temptation they are ready to deſpair of themſelves, but God will not ſuffer them to periſh. I am the Lord thy God, and therefore will never leave nor forſake thee, that divided the ſea, whoſe waves roared; as when he once opened a way for his ranſomed to eſcape out of Egypt, ſo will he from Babylon; and thus ſhall all his captive exiles be ſet free, whatever ſpiritual bondage for a time they may endure: the Lord of hoſts is his name, and therefore able to accompliſh all his promiſes.

(3.) He will fulfil his word to the uttermoſt in the eſtabliſhment of his church. I have put my words in thy mouth; Chriſt, the great prophet, being authorized and ſent of the Father to publiſh the goſpel: and have covered thee in the ſhadow of my hand; protected him, and his miniſters commiſſioned by him to preach his word, with whom God is to the end of the world, maintaining them againſt all oppoſition; that I may plant the heavens, and lay the foundations of the earth; the goſpel church, bright as the heavens in purity of doctrine and worſhip, and fixed and ſtrong as the foundations of the earth, againſt which the gates of hell can never prevail: and ſay unto Zion, Thou art my people; the ſpiritual Zion, where Jews and Gentiles, incorporated together, become one fold under one ſhepherd.

17. ¶ [a] Awake, awake, ſtand up, O Jeruſalem, which [b] haſt drunk at the hand of the LORD the cup of his fury; [c] thou haſt drunken the dregs of the cup of trembling, and wrung them out. 18. [d] There is none to guide her among all the ſons whom ſhe hath brought forth: neither is there any that taketh her by the hand, of all the ſons that ſhe hath brought up. 19. [e] Theſe two things are come unto thee: who ſhall be ſorry for thee? deſolation, and deſtruction, and the famine, and the ſword: [f] by whom ſhall I comfort thee? 20. [g] Thy ſons have fainted, they lie at the head of all the ſtreets as a wild bull in a net: they are full of the fury of the LORD, the rebuke of thy God. 21. ¶ Therefore hear now this, thou afflicted, and drunken, [h] but not with wine. 22. Thus ſaith thy Lord, the LORD, and thy God [i] that pleadeth the cauſe of his people, Behold, I have taken out of thine hand the cup of trembling, even the dregs of the cup of my fury, thou ſhalt no more drink it again. 23. But [k] I will put it into the hand of them that afflict thee: [l] which have ſaid to thy ſoul, Bow down, that we may go over: and thou haſt laid thy body as the ground, and as the ſtreet to them that went over.

[a] Chap. lii. 1.
[b] Jer. xxv. 15, 16.
[c] Deut. xxviii. 28. Pſ. lx. 3. Zech. xii. 2.
[d] Mat. ix. 36.
[e] Chap. xlvii. 9.
[f] Amos vii. 2.
[g] Lam. i. 11, 12.
[h] Lam. iii. 15. Rev. xiv. 10.
[i] Jer. l. 34.
[k] Prov. xi. 8. Jer. xxv. 26, 29.
[l] Pſ. lxvi. 11, 12.

v. 17—23. Jeruſalem here appears ſunk under her calamities into the ſtupor of deſpair; or, like Ezekiel's dry bones, in a ſtate of death.

1. God calls aloud, Awake, awake! and his voice can raiſe the dead, and rouſe the ſoul from the depths of deſpair. Deplorable indeed was her caſe; for grievous provocations ſhe had been made to drink the cup of fury and trembling to the dregs. Moſt awful judgments had been poured upon her, and, like one intoxicated with wine, weak and feeble, ſhe became an eaſy prey to the invader, v. 17. None of all her ſons was able to help or ſupport her; king, prieſt, and prophet had failed, v. 18. Two things had come upon her, a ſtate of abject miſery, and not a friend to comfort her. Famine, deſolation, deſtruction, and the ſword, had cut off all ranks, v. 19. and the few who were left, though deſpairing, were furious; though fainting with hunger, impatient under God's rebukes, and quarreling with his providences, inſtead of meekly humbling themſelves for their ſins, v. 20. Note, (1.) If judgment thus begin at the houſe of God, where will the ungodly and the ſinner appear? (2.) When we have been unfaithful to God, let it not be thought ſtrange, if our neareſt relatives prove unfaithful to us. (3.) None can comfort the ſoul, againſt whom God riſes up in diſpleaſure. (4.) Too many under God's viſitations, inſtead of being abaſed by them, madly quarrel with his providences. (5.) They but entangle themſelves the more, and add to their plagues, who ſtruggle in his net.

2. God's compaſſions towards them fail not: though they deſerve wrath to the uttermoſt, in the midſt of judgment he remembers mercy. Therefore hear now this, thou afflicted, and drunken, but not with wine; ſtupified with the weight of calamities, and an object of God's pity. Thus ſaith thy Lord, the Lord thy God, who, notwithſtanding all provocations, hath not utterly caſt off his people, nor will renounce his relation to them; that pleadeth the cauſe of his people, to the confuſion of their enemies; Behold, I have taken out of thine hand the cup of trembling, even the dregs of the cup of my fury; the puniſhment inflicted is enough: thou ſhalt no more drink it again; the ſin forgiven, there ſhall be no more curſe: and I will put it into the hand of them that afflict thee; of the Babylonians, and, in future time, of Babylon myſtical; which have ſaid to thy ſoul, Bow down, that we may go over; not only enſlaving their bodies, but tyrannizing over the ſouls of men, the diſtinguiſhing mark of the antichriſtian church, who ſet up an infallible head, and require implicit obedience: and thou haſt laid thy body as the ground, and as the ſtreet to them that went over; reduced to the moſt abject ſtate of diſtreſs, See Rev. xi. 2. but now the time is come to vindicate their quarrel, and execute judgment on their oppreſſors. Note, (1.) It is often the caſe of God's people to be in tribulation, and greater afflictions ſeem yet to await the church, than any ſhe hath yet experienced. (2.) It is the ſupport of the faithful in all times of ſuffering, that they cannot be ſeparated from the love of God. (3.) However the cauſe of godlineſs may be oppreſſed, it will appear triumphant at the laſt. (4.) They who have been perſecutors of God's people, will find him the avenger of their wrongs.

CHAP. LII.

This chapter contains a prophecy of the glorious ſtate of the church of Chriſt, typified by the deliverance of the Jews. 1. God promiſes them a free and full ſalvation, ver. 1—6. 2. There ſhall be great rejoicing upon that occaſion, ver. 7—10. 3. Thoſe that remained in captivity are called to depart, and directed how to proceed, ver. 11, 12. 4. A ſhort idea is given us of the Meſſiah, which is enlarged upon in the next chapter, ver. 13—15.

1. [a] AWAKE, awake, put on thy ſtrength, O Zion, put on thy beautiful garments, O Jeruſalem, the holy city: for [b] henceforth there ſhall no more come into thee the uncircumciſed, and the unclean. 2. Shake thyſelf from the duſt: ariſe, and ſit down, O Jeruſalem: [c] looſe thyſelf from the bands of thy neck, O captive daughter of Zion. 3. For thus ſaith the LORD, [d] Ye have ſold yourſelves for nought: and ye ſhall be redeemed [e] without money. 4. For thus ſaith the Lord GOD, My people went down aforetime [f] into Egypt to ſojourn there, and the Aſſyrian oppreſſed them without cauſe. 5. Now therefore, what have I here, ſaith the LORD, that my people is taken away for nought? they that rule over them, make them to howl, ſaith the LORD, and [g] my name continually every day is blaſphemed. 6. Therefore my people [h] ſhall know my name: therefore they ſhall know in that day, that I am he that doth ſpeak, behold, it is I.

[a] Chap. li. 17.
[b] Chap. xxxv. 8. & lx. 21. Rev. xxi. 27.
[c] Zech. ii. 7.
[d] Pſ. xliv. 12. Chap. xlv. 13. Jer. xv. 13.
[e] 1 Pet. i. 18.
[f] Gen. xlvi. 6.
[g] Ezek. xxxvi. 20, 23. Rom. ii. 24.
[h] Pſ. ix. 16.

v. 1—6. By an elegant figure Jeruſalem is here deſcribed as a mourner in the moſt abject diſtreſs, ſitting in the duſt, ſtripped of every ornament, waſted with ſorrow, and ready to ſleep the ſleep of death. And herein ſhe is the figure of the church, under the prevalence of Antichriſt, when the power of true religion will be reduced to the loweſt ebb. In this afflicted ſtate,

1. God awakens her with his calls; bids her ariſe, and ſhake herſelf from the duſt; put on her beautiful garments, recover her decayed ſtrength, and looſe the captive bands from her neck; and what he commands, he will enable her to perform. Note, When the calls of goſpel grace reach the ſinner, he is the deplorable captive of ſin, ſtripped of all righteouſneſs and ſtrength, and doomed to the duſt of death and hell; but, awakened by the voice of God, the beautiful garments of a Redeemer's righteouſneſs are provided for him, ſtrength miniſtered to break the bands of ſin, and riſing from the duſt of ſpiritual death, he ſits down among the living ſaints of God.

2. He promiſes to preſerve her from the future power of her enemies. For henceforth there ſhall no more come into thee the uncircumciſed, and the unclean; which can only agree with Jeruſalem myſtical, the church of God in the latter day, See Rev. xxi. 27. ſince Jeruſalem, after the return from the captivity, was profaned by Antiochus and the Romans, and is poſſeſſed by the Turks at this day.

3. God will redeem his Iſrael freely. Ye have ſold yourſelves for nought; for whatever pleaſure and enjoyment ſin promiſes, miſery and vanity are found the only fruits of it: and ye ſhall be redeemed without money; corruptible things, ſuch as ſilver and gold, were of no avail to redeem the ſoul, but the precious blood of Chriſt alone; and though the purchaſe was dearly made by him, yet the ſalvation obtained by his bloodſhedding comes to us entirely free, without money and without price.

4. The Lord will magnify his own glory in the deliverance of his people from the antichriſtian bondage, as he did of old from the priſon of Egypt, when the Jews, who went to ſojourn there, were oppreſſed; and as he reſcued them from the yoke of the Aſſyrians, who unreaſonably and cruelly afflicted them, v. 4. God's glory ſuffered whilſt they were enſlaved: tyrannically treated, they howled for anguiſh, and their proud maſters, far from acknowledging God in their conqueſts, blaſphemed his name, as if unable to deliver them, v. 5. Therefore he will make his glory appear, and his people ſhall know his ſalvation, and acknowledge, in the day of their deliverance, the faithfulneſs of God in his promiſes, v. 6. Thus when Babylon myſtical is fallen, then Jeſus will be eſpecially adored by his redeemed, as the faithful and true witneſs.

7. ¶ [i] How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publiſheth peace, that bringeth [k] good tidings of good, that publiſheth ſalvation, that ſaith unto Zion, [l] Thy God reigneth! 8. Thy [m] watchmen ſhall lift up the voice, with the voice together ſhall they ſing: for they ſhall ſee eye to eye, when the LORD ſhall bring again Zion. 9. ¶ Break forth into joy, ſing together, ye waſte places of Jeruſalem: for the LORD hath comforted his people, he hath redeemed Jeruſalem. 10. The LORD hath made bare his holy arm in the eyes of all the nations, and [n] all the ends of the earth ſhall ſee the ſalvation of our God. 11. ¶ [o] Depart ye, depart ye, go ye out from thence, touch no unclean thing, go ye out of the midſt of her; be ye clean that bear the veſſels of the LORD. 12. For [p] ye ſhall not go out with haſte, nor go by flight: for [q] the LORD will go before you: and [r] the God of Iſrael will be your rere-ward.

[i] Nah. i. 15. Rom. x. 15.
[k] Luke ii. 10.
[l] Pſ. xciii. 1. & xcvi. 10. & xcvii. 1. Mic. iv. 7. Rev. xi. 15.
[m] Ezek. iii. 17.
[n] Pſ. xcviii. 3. Luke iii. 6.
[o] Chap. xlviii. 20. Jer. l. 8. & li. 6, 45. 2 Cor. vi. 17. Rev. xviii. 4.
[p] Exod. xii. 33, 39.
[q] Exod. xiii. 21. Mic. ii. 13.
[r] Num. x. 25. Chap. lviii. 8.

v. 7—12. Great was the joy which Cyrus's proclamation occaſioned, and happy were the Jews to ſpread the report; but the Apoſtle, Rom. x. 15. plainly intimates, that a greater cauſe of joy is here ſignified, even the coming of Chriſt, and the preaching of his goſpel, to which theſe words are to be referred.

1. A bleſſed meſſenger is ſent publiſhing the happieſt tidings which ever greeted mortal ear. Some refer this to John the Baptiſt, but it may well be applied to the Redeemer himſelf and his apoſtles. The tidings they bring are tidings of peace, tidings of good things, tidings of ſalvation; pardon of ſin obtained, God's favour reſtored, victory over our ſpiritual foes, deliverance from the bondage of corruption; and, above all, our God reigneth; Jeſus is riſen, is aſcended up on high, hath led captivity captive, ſits on the throne of glory to bleſs, preſerve, protect his people, and bring them to be with him, where he is, that they may behold his glory. Theſe are the tidings publiſhed in the mountains publicly, and beautiful are the feet of thoſe who bring them, worthy to be had in honour for their works ſake.

2. With greateſt joy the meſſage is received. Thy watchmen, the miniſters of the goſpel, ſhall lift up the voice, and publiſh aloud the glad news that is arrived of pardon, peace, and ſalvation through Jeſus. With the voice together ſhall they ſing; with delight and joy ſhall they execute their miniſtry: for they ſhall ſee eye to eye, clearly and diſtinctly, the great truths they are authorized to proclaim, ſo as to have the fulleſt conviction of them in their own ſouls, when the Lord ſhall bring again Zion, revive his work, enlarge his church, and by an abundant outpouring of his Spirit in the latter day, call in Jews as well as Gentiles to the communion of his ſaints.

3. The waſte places of Jeruſalem are called upon to rejoice and ſing for this great and general redemption. Long had deſolations been ſpread around, but now God will build up her breaches. For the Lord hath comforted his people, with the diſcoveries of his rich grace in the goſpel of his Son: he hath redeemed Jeruſalem, his church, by the offering of the body of Jeſus once for all. And this ſalvation now no longer, as of old, is confined to one peculiar people, but the Lord hath made bare his holy arm in the eyes of all the nations; diſplayed his power and holineſs in the work of the Redeemer; and all the ends of the earth ſhall ſee the ſalvation of our God manifeſt in the fleſh, whoſe redemption is univerſal, not confined to one nation or people, but free for all; whoſoever will, may come and partake of it. Note, The ſubject of redeeming love will afford matter for praiſe that never will be exhauſted.

4. An inſtant and urgent command is given to depart, and the Lord himſelf promiſes to be their rere-ward, that their march may be ſafe and uninterrupted. This may primarily refer to the return from Babylon, but is applied by the apoſtle, 2 Cor. vi. 17. to the ſeparation from ſin and idolatry, which, by the preaching of the goſpel, would be effected in the Gentile world. Depart ye, depart ye; make no delay: go ye out from thence, from the kingdom of darkneſs: touch no unclean thing; keep back no allowed ſin, nor have fellowſhip with the workers of iniquity: go ye out of the midſt of her, of Babylon, or rather the houſe of Satan's bondage: be clean, ye that bear the veſſels of the Lord; not merely be ceremonially clean, ye Jewiſh prieſts, who bear the veſſels of the ſanctuary Cyrus reſtored.

It belongs rather to goſpel miniſters, whoſe purity of life muſt adorn the doctrines they preach; or to every Chriſtian who is conſecrated a prieſt unto God, and keeps himſelf pure in his ordinances and worſhip. For ye ſhall not go out with haſte, nor go by flight, but openly, and boldly caſting off the yoke of ſin, and aſſerting their glorious liberty wherewith Chriſt hath made them free; for the Lord will go before you, as in the pillar of fire of old, to guide and lead you ſafe from every danger; and the God of Iſrael will be their rere-ward, ſo that, though Satan purſues with all his power and wiles, he ſhall never be able to bring back to the houſe of his priſon one ſoul which Jeſus hath redeemed. He will keep them in all their journey, and bring them ſafe with himſelf to the inheritance provided for them in glory. May we truſt in him, and chearfully and ſteadily hold on, and hold out!

13. ¶ Behold [s] my ſervant ſhall † deal prudently, [t] he ſhall be exalted and extolled, and be very high.
14. As many were aſtoniſhed at thee; (his [u] viſage was ſo marred more than any man, and his form more than the ſons of men.) 15. [x] So ſhall he ſprinkle many nations, [y] the kings ſhall [z] ſhut their mouths at him: for [a] that which had not been told them, ſhall they ſee; and that which they had not heard, ſhall they conſider.

s Chap. xlii. 1.
† Or, proſper. Chap. liii. 10. Jer. xxiii. 5.
t Phil. ii. 9.
u Pſ. xxii. 6. Chap. liii. 2, 3.
x Ezek. xxxvi. 25. Acts ii. 33. Heb. x. 22. 1 Pet. i. 2.
y Chap. xlix. 23.
z Job xxix. 9, 10. & xl. 4.
a Rom. xv. 21.

v. 13—15. Theſe three verſes, with the following chapter, ſet forth the perſon, offices, humiliation, and exaltation of the Lord Chriſt, and may juſtly be reckoned among the cleareſt prophecies of the ſufferings of the ſon of God, and of the glory which ſhould follow.

1. God points him out to our notice and regard. Behold! my ſervant, appointed and commiſſioned for the work of redemption, and fully qualified for it; he ſhall deal prudently, with unerring wiſdom ordering all his ways: or, he ſhall proſper in all his undertakings, and accompliſh thoroughly the ſalvation of his people.

2. His humiliation and exaltation are deſcribed. [1.] His humiliation. As many were aſtoniſhed at thee, to ſee him who was ſo high, abaſed ſo low to the form of a ſervant, to the death of a malefactor. His viſage was ſo marred more than any man, and his form more than the ſons of men; though fairer than the children of men, yet worn down with ſorrows, like unto which were no ſorrows; his temples pierced with thorns; his face buffeted and ſpit upon; the form of his countenance was changed, and he appeared a ſpectacle of woe. [2.] His exaltation. He ſhall be exalted, by his reſurrection from the dead, aſcenſion into heaven, and ſeſſion on the throne of glory; and extolled; men and angels ſhall adore him: and be very high, all things in heaven and earth being made ſubject unto him. So ſhall he ſprinkle many nations, by the word of his goſpel, See Deut. xxxii. 2. and the effuſion of his Spirit, which he ſent down from on high, by the application of his blood to men's conſciences, and by the ordinance of baptiſm, which he inſtituted as the ſign and ſeal of admiſſion into his kingdom. The kings ſhall ſhut their mouths at him, with reverence ſilent before him, and ſubmiſſive to his will: for that which had not been told them, ſhall they ſee; and that which they had not heard, ſhall they conſider; the glorious truths hid from ages and generations, which the light of nature could not teach, nor any of their wiſe men and philoſophers diſcover, concerning the trinity in unity, the incarnation of Jeſus, the juſtification of the ſinner through his atonement and righteouſneſs, the reſurrection of the body, and the like; theſe by the preaching of the goſpel were brought to light, and they now became acquainted with the unknown God, and ſaw his glorious ſalvation in the Redeemer.

CHAP. LIII.

That Chriſt ought to ſuffer, and then enter into his glory, Luke xxiv. 26, 27. according to the word of prophecy, we ſee clearly in this chapter, where we may obſerve, 1. The reproach of Chriſt's ſufferings; the meanneſs of his appearance, the greatneſs of his grief, and the prejudices which many conceived from thence againſt his doctrine, ver. 1—3. 2. The rolling away of this reproach, and the ſtamping of an immortal honour upon his ſufferings, notwithſtanding the diſgrace and ignominy of them, by four conſiderations. (1.) That therein he did his Father's will, ver. 4, 6, 10. (2.) That thereby he made atonement for the ſin of man, ver. 4, 5, 6, 8, 11, 12. For it was not for any ſin of his own that he ſuffered, ver. 9. (3.) That he bore his ſufferings with an invincible and exemplary patience, ver. 7. (4.) That he ſhould proſper in his undertaking, and his ſufferings ſhould end in his immortal honour, ver. 10—12.

1. [a] WHO hath believed our † report? and to whom is [b] the arm of the LORD revealed?
2. For [c] he ſhall grow up before him as a tender plant, and as a root out of a dry ground: [d] he hath no form nor comelineſs: and when we ſhall ſee him, there is no beauty that we ſhould deſire him. 3. [e] He is deſpiſed and rejected of men, a man of ſorrows, [f] and acquainted with grief: and ‡ we hid as it were our faces from him;
he was deſpiſed, and [g] we eſteemed him not.

a John xii. 38. Rom. x. 16.
† Or, doctrine.
b Chap. lii. 10.
c Chap. xi. 1.
d Chap. lii. 14.
e Pſ. xxii. 6. Chap. xlix. 7. & lii. 14.
f Heb. iv. 15.
‡ Or, he hid as it were his face from us.
g John i. 10, 11.

v. 1—3. Whilſt Gentile nations and kings with wonder heard and believed the goſpel word, the Jews, obſtinate in unbelief, rejected the counſel of God againſt their own ſouls.

1. The chapter opens with a complaint againſt them for rejecting the goſpel. Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed? Wondrous as the miracles were which Jeſus wrought, and powerful as the doctrine was he taught; yet very few embraced it, and in general they ſhut their eyes againſt all evidence, and would not hear nor underſtand. Note, (1.) Of multitudes that ſtill hear the goſpel word, few receive it in the light and love of it. (2.). Till the Spirit of God give an inward revelation of Jeſus to the ſoul, the moſt powerful preaching will be ineffectual.

2. The reaſon of their diſregard to Chriſt was the meanneſs of his appearance. For he ſhall grow up before him as a tender plant, or ſucker, which every foot might cruſh; and as a root out of a dry ground, or a branch of a root, that for want of moiſture is withered, and ſtinted in its growth, his family being reduced to the meaneſt circumſtances, and nothing great was hoped for out of Nazareth. He hath no form nor comelineſs; either reſpecting his perſon, which was not diſtinguiſhed by beauty, or any extraordinary majeſty, as might be expected in the countenance of God incarnate; or rather his appearance was unpromiſing; brought up in a mean cottage; his dreſs agreeable to his ſtation; his followers poor fiſhermen; and in every reſpect unlike the perſonage which the carnal Jews expected. And when we ſhall ſee him, there is no beauty that we ſhould deſire him; no pomp, no ſplendor attending him; but poor and abject in their eyes, they could not deſire him as the Meſſiah, who ſeemed ſo unable to reſcue them from the Roman yoke. He is deſpiſed, as a perſon mean and contemptible; and rejected of men, his pretenſions treated with diſdain, and his company ſhunned as ignominious: or, deſtitute of men, no perſons of diſtinction, no rulers or phariſees, believing on him, or following him as his diſciples: a man of ſorrows, and acquainted with grief; his whole life, eſpecially from the time he entered on his miniſtry, being a ſcene of troubles, from the temptations of Satan, and the malice of his perſecutors; whilſt his own heart, affected with human miſeries, groaned over the deſolations of his enemies, which he foreſaw, and cauſed the tears of tendereſt compaſſion to flow: above all, the wrath of God, which our ſins had deſerved, was laid upon him, and filled his ſoul with bittereſt anguiſh. And we hid as it were our faces from him, as a loathſome object: he was deſpiſed, and we eſteemed him not; all conſented to treat him with diſregard, and to reject his claim as the Meſſiah. But let not the humiliations of Jeſus make him appear little in our eyes; never were his grace and glory more manifeſted; never did he appear more lovely, than when for our ſakes he ſtooped ſo low, to make ſatisfaction for the diſhonour we had brought on God by our ſins, and by humbling himſelf to obtain our exaltation.

4. ¶ Surely [h] he hath born our griefs, and carried our ſorrows: yet we did eſteem him ſtricken, ſmitten of God, and afflicted. 5. But [i] he was † wounded for our tranſgreſſions, he was bruiſed for our iniquities: [k] the chaſtiſement of our peace was upon him, and [l] with his ‡ ſtripes we are healed. 6. [m] All we like ſheep have gone aſtray: we have turned every one to his own way, and the LORD hath § laid on him the iniquity of us all.
7. He was oppreſſed, and he was afflicted, yet [n] he opened not his mouth: [o] he is brought as a lamb to the ſlaughter, and as a ſheep before her ſhearers is dumb, ſo he openeth not his mouth. 8. He was taken ‖ from priſon and from judgment: and [p] who ſhall declare his † generation? for [q] he was cut off out of the land of the living: for the tranſgreſſion of my people was he ſtricken.
9. And [r] he made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death, becauſe he had done no violence, [s] neither was any deceit in his mouth.

h Mat. xviii. 17. 1 Pet. ii. 24.
i Rom. iv. 25. 1 Cor. xv. 3.
† Or, tormented.
k Rom. iii. 25. 2 Cor. v. 19.
l 1 Pet. ii. 24.
‡ Or, bruiſe.
m Pſ. cxix. 176. 1 Pet. ii. 25.
§ Heb. Made to meet.
n Mat. xxvi. 63. & xxvii. 12, 14.
o Acts viii. 32.
‖ Or by, or after diſtreſs and judgment.
p Rev. vii. 9.
† Or, race.
q Dan. ix. 26.
r Mat. xxvii. 57, 58.
s 1 Pet. ii. 22. 1 John iii. 5.

v. 4—9. We have a further account of the Redeemer's ſufferings.

1. The cauſe of them, our ſins and tranſgreſſions, v. 5. by which God had been diſhonoured, his wrath provoked, and our ſouls loſt and undone; and this univerſally the caſe; for all we like ſheep have gone aſtray; from the womb, fooliſh, diſobedient, deceived, in nature corrupt, and in all our ways perverſe before God. We have turned every one to his own way, fulfilling the deſires of the fleſh and of the mind, and each, as inclination led, purſuing with wilful perſeverance the iniquity which

Before Chriſt 712.

moſt eaſily beſet him. Note, We can never know Chriſt aright, nor the wonders of his grace, till we become acquainted with our fallen ſtate, and ſee the depths of ſin in which we were by nature and practice ſunk irrecoverably, but for his interpoſition.

2. The nature of them. Griefs and ſorrows, like unto which were no ſorrows; reckoned by his enemies as the abhorred of God, and all his ſufferings reputed as juſt judgments for his crimes, v. 4. Wounded with the thorns, the nails, the ſpear; bruiſed with ſtrokes and buffetings; his back ploughed up with ſtripes and ſcourgings, v. 5. Oppreſſed; though innocent, condemned as guilty; afflicted with every ſpecies of miſery and woe, v. 7. and ending his days on the croſs; a death the moſt painful, ignominious, and accurſed, v. 8.

3. His behaviour under his ſufferings, and his innocence. He opened not his mouth, except in prayers for his murderers: no complaint was heard of their injuſtice or cruelty. He is brought as a lamb to the ſlaughter, and as a ſheep before her ſhearers is dumb, ſo he openeth not his mouth; and of him we muſt learn the like patient ſilence before our bittereſt perſecutors. And he made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death: it was intended he ſhould be buried, as well as die, with malefactors, but God ordered it otherwiſe; though his death was with the wicked, his grave was with the rich, Joſeph of Arimathea laying his body in his own new tomb; and this honour was done him, becauſe he had done no violence, neither was guile found in his mouth: though he was accuſed as an enemy to the ſtate, a mover of ſedition, and deceiver of the people, the charge was infamous and falſe. He was holy, harmleſs, undefiled, and ſeparate from ſinners; and, from the cradle to the grave, in ſpotleſs innocence always did the things which pleaſed his Father, and was thereby qualified to bear the ſins of others, having of his own none to anſwer for.

4. The end and deſign of his ſufferings was to make atonement for the ſins of his people, and by paying the penalty due to them, thereby to obtain their diſcharge. He hath borne our griefs, and carried our ſorrows: he not only healed the diſeaſes of men's bodies, touched with tender ſympathy for their ſuffering, See Mat. viii. 17. but the griefs and ſorrows due to our ſins he took upon himſelf. The Lord laid upon him the iniquity of us all; appointed him as the ſinner's ſubſtitute, and conſented to accept his ſufferings in their ſtead; and having made him to be ſin for us, He was ſtricken and ſmitten of God, with the ſword of divine juſtice; for the tranſgreſſion of my people was he ſtricken; ſtanding in their name and character, the wrath of God they had provoked lighted upon his devoted head. Hence he was wounded for our tranſgreſſions, he was bruiſed for our iniquities, the chaſtiſement of our peace was upon him, and by his ſtripes we are healed. Great, numberleſs, aggravated, were the ſins of his people; wide, and irreparable by any human means, the breach made between God and us. But lo! Jeſus hath found a ranſom: a bleſſed commutation is made of our guilt, miſery, and ſin to our Redeemer, of his infinite merits to us, bringing pardon, peace, and healing to our periſhing ſouls, in virtue of his ſufferings and death on our behalf. This is a pleaſing theme; upon it we can never ſufficiently dwell; for on this all our everlaſting hopes depend. We may obſerve here, (1.) The encouragement given to the chief of ſinners, that come to God by him, Heb. vii. 21. If Jeſus, as the ſcape-goat in the day of expiation, hath borne all our iniquities, then we are aſſured of redemption through his blood, even the forgiveneſs of ſins. (2.) This is God's own conſtitution, accepting the juſt for the unjuſt; and therefore we may with perfect ſatisfaction reſt therein. (3.) This vicarious ſubſtitution of the Saviour's obedience unto death in the ſinner's ſtead, is the grand peculiarity, and the diſtinguiſhing glory of the goſpel diſpenſation.

5. God teſtified his approbation and ſatisfaction of the Redeemer's undertaking by raiſing him from the dead. He was taken from priſon, and from judgment, and who ſhall declare his generation? which ſome interpret of the wrong done him in the unjuſt ſentence paſſed upon him, when, as a malefactor, he was condemned at Pilate's tribunal, and crucified by the men of that generation, whoſe cruelty and inhumanity are paſt deſcription. But it may better refer to his glorious reſurrection: he had been conſigned to the grave, under the juſt ſentence of death due to our iniquities, and on his reſurrection from thence reſted the grand proof of the ſufficiency of the ſatisfaction he had made for ſin; God therefore on the third day ſent his angel as the officer to diſcharge him from the priſon of the grave, the judgment paſſed and executed upon him having fully reſtored the honour of God's government, violated by the ſin of man, and therefore it was impoſſible he ſhould be holden longer of death. He is raiſed therefore for our eternal juſtification; and who can declare his generation? ſince death hath now no more dominion over him, and he hath obtained for himſelf and his redeemed, whom no man can number, an eternity of glory.

10. ¶ Yet it pleaſed the LORD to bruiſe him, he hath put him to grief: when † thou ſhalt make his ſoul [t] an offering for ſin, he ſhall ſee his ſeed, he ſhall prolong his days, and the pleaſure of the LORD ſhall proſper in his hand. 11. He ſhall ſee of the travel of his ſoul, and ſhall be ſatisfied: [u] by his knowledge ſhall [x] my righteous ſervant juſtify many: for [y] he ſhall bear their iniquities. 12. [z] Therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and [a] he ſhall divide the ſpoil with the ſtrong: becauſe he hath poured out his ſoul unto death: and [b] he was numbered with the tranſgreſſors, and he bare the ſin of many, [c] and made interceſſion for the tranſgreſſors.

† Or, When his ſoul ſhall make.

[t] 2 Cor. v. 21. 1 Pet. ii. 24.

[u] John xvii. 3.

[x] Chap. xlii. 1.

[y] Ver. 5.

[z] Pſ. ii. 8. Or, Phil. ii. 9.

[a] Col. ii. 15.

[b] Mark xv. 28. Luke xxii. 37.

[c] Luke xxiii. 34. Rom. viii. 34. Heb. vii. 25. & ix. 24. 1 John ii. 1.

v. 10—12. Theſe words are by ſome connected with the foregoing verſe, thus, Though he had done no violence, &c. yet it pleaſed the Lord to bruiſe him; and they contain the ſame ſubject as was before treated of, the ſufferings of Chriſt, and the glory which ſhould follow.

1. His ſufferings. It pleaſed the Lord to bruiſe him, exacting from him the puniſhment due to our iniquities. He hath put him to grief; Jeſus, in his human nature, enduring the ſevereſt anguiſh in his body, and agony in his ſoul, when he ſubſtituted himſelf in our ſtead, and made his ſoul an offering for ſin; yielding up himſelf to ſuffer, not of conſtraint, but freely and willingly: and ſince ſuch was the demand of juſtice, that nothing but the Saviour's life could ſatiſfy for the ſinner, he poured out his ſoul unto death, as a libation, ſhedding his blood for the remiſſion of ſin. And he was numbered with the tranſgreſſors; not only as he was reviled as ſuch, and joined with them at his crucifixion; but as he bore the ſins of many, died under the imputation of their guilt, and made interceſſion for the tranſgreſſors, when on the croſs he cried, "Father, forgive them;" and this in virtue of thoſe very ſufferings he there endured, which were then, are now, and ever, the only effectual plea on which forgiveneſs of ſin can be obtained.

2. His glory, in virtue of theſe ſufferings, which was engaged for in the covenant of redemption, and for the ſake of which he endured the croſs, deſpiſing the ſhame. We have here ſeveral particulars of this glory:

[1.] He ſhall ſee his ſeed; he ſhall not die in vain, or be uncertain about the effects of his oblation: a ſpiritual ſeed is given him, a people who ſhall call him father; and he ſhall prolong his days; himſelf ſhall live for evermore, and ſee the children of his grace all brought home to him in time, and gathered to him in eternity, to reign with him in glory everlaſting.

[2.] The pleaſure of the Lord ſhall proſper in his hand; the work of man's redemption, in which God delights, ſhall be effectually accompliſhed by him, to his Father's glory, his own everlaſting praiſe, and our eternal comfort.

[3.] He ſhall ſee of the travail of his ſoul, and be ſatisfied; his pangs ſhall not prove abortive, but with fulleſt ſatisfaction to his ſoul he ſhall behold all thoſe the Father hath given him, with him in glory, and not one loſt of the innumerable multitude. Note, (1.) The ardent longing of the Redeemer after his people, and the travail he bore for them: well may we ſay, Behold, how he loved them! (2.) The certainty of the ſalvation of all for whom Chriſt died, ſince he is ſatisfied in the fruit of his labour.

[4.] By his knowledge ſhall my righteous ſervant juſtify many: for he ſhall bear their iniquities: He is righteous himſelf, and the author of everlaſting righteouſneſs to his redeemed. They are juſtified, acquitted at God's bar from every accuſation; for their ſins have been borne in Chriſt's body on the tree, and many declared perfectly righteous, and therefore entitled to all the bleſſings of obedience, as found in Chriſt, and compleat in him. They are many; not all mankind, but as many as the Lord our God hath choſen, and beſtowed on his dear Son. The way in which they become poſſeſſed of this bleſſing of juſtification to life, is by the knowledge of him, becoming acquainted with his character and tranſactions, and receiving the record which God has given of his Son; no qualifications or previous good diſpoſitions in us being at all required; for we are to be ſaved by grace alone. It is enough that we ſee the fulneſs of Jeſus to ſupply our wants, and are content to reſt our ſouls on his finiſhed ſalvation: this is to give him the glory due to his name.

[5.] His kingdom ſhall be great, his ſubjects numerous; therefore will I divide him a portion with the great, and he ſhall divide the ſpoil with the ſtrong; as ſome mighty conqueror, that by his arms ſubdues the nations under him, and takes their ſpoils. Or, I will allot him a multitude of nations, and for a prey many ſhall fall to his ſhare; even very many of all nations, kindreds, tongues, and people, brought by the preaching of the goſpel to the obedience of the faith. Note, (1.) Every redeemed ſoul is Chriſt's ſpoil, reſcued out of the hands of Satan, ſin, and death. (2.) Though there may be but few faithful in any age or place, yet when they ſhall be collected together at the laſt day, they will appear an hoſt that no man can number.

CHAP. LIV.

The death of Chriſt is the life of the church, and of all that truly belong to it; and therefore very fitly, after the prophet had foretold the ſufferings of Chriſt, he foretels the flouriſhing of the church, which is a part of his glory. Whatever reference this hath to the Jewiſh church, it is evident, Gal. iv. 26, 27. that it looks farther to the church of Chriſt among the Gentiles. 1. God promiſes, that though ſhe had hitherto been in a ſtate of widowhood, he would, as an huſband, give her a numerous offspring, ver. 1—5. 2. That though ſometimes he might ſeem to withdraw from her, and ſuſpend the tokens of his favour, yet he would return in mercy, and not contend with her any more, ver. 6—10. 3. That though for a while ſhe was in ſorrow, and under oppreſſion, yet ſhe ſhould at length be advanced to greater honour and ſplendor than ever, ver. 11, 12. 4. That knowledge, righteouſneſs, and peace, ſhould flouriſh and prevail, ver. 13, 14. 5. That all attempts againſt the church ſhould be baffled, and ſhe ſecured from the malice of her enemies, ver. 14—17.

1. [a] SING, O barren, thou that didſt not bear; break forth into ſinging, and cry aloud, thou that didſt not travail with child: for [b] more are the children of the deſolate, than the children of the married wife, ſaith the LORD. 2. [c] Enlarge the place of thy tent, and let them ſtretch forth the curtains of thine habitations: ſpare not, lengthen thy cords, and ſtrengthen thy ſtakes. 3. For thou ſhalt break forth on the right hand, and on the left; and [d] thy ſeed ſhall inherit the Gentiles, and make the deſolate cities to be inhabited. 4. Fear not, for thou ſhalt not be aſhamed: neither be thou confounded, for thou ſhalt not be put to ſhame: for thou ſhalt forget the ſhame of thy youth, and ſhalt not remember the reproach of thy widowhood any more. 5. For [e] thy maker is thine huſband, (the LORD of hoſts is his name:) and [f] thy redeemer the holy One of Iſrael, the God of the whole earth ſhall he be called.

[a] Zeph. iii. 14. Gal. iv. 27.
[b] 1 Sam. ii. 5.
[c] Chap. xlix. 20.
[d] Chap. lv. 5. & lxi. 9.
[e] Jer. iii. 14. Eph. v. 25, 32.
[f] Chap. xlvii. 4.

v. 1—5. Jeruſalem, during her captivity, like a widow bereaved of her children, lamented her ſad deſolations; but when God reſtored her palaces they were quickly repeopled, and they ſoon, under the divine bleſſing, increaſed exceedingly. But this prophecy ſeems more particularly to relate to the goſpel church, and the quotation the apoſtle makes, Gal. iv. 26. is the ſure key for the interpretation of it. We have here,

1. The low eſtate of the church, ſignified by a barren woman, or one deſolate, bereft of huſband and children; which may fitly repreſent her ſtate when Chriſt came into the world, and till the day of Pentecoſt, when the Gentiles univerſally were in blindneſs; and among the Jews very few received the goſpel he preached unto them.

2. The joy ariſing from the glorious increaſe which ſhould be made to the church, by the preaching of the apoſtles, and in future times. More are the children of the deſolate, the Gentiles, than the children of the married wife, in which relation the Jewiſh church had ſtood, and few of them, comparatively, believed. Enlarge the place of thy tent, and let them ſtretch forth the curtains of thine habitations; the church of old being reduced within ſo ſmall a compaſs, but now, by the acceſſion of the Gentile converts, it ſpreads on every ſide; therefore, ſpare not, lengthen thy cords, and ſtrengthen thy ſtakes; where the ſame image of a tent, to which the church is compared before, is continued, and the miniſters are eſpecially called upon to ſpare no labour or pains, but to ſpread abroad the goſpel, and confirm the diſciples, that they may grow ſtronger in faith, as they grew more numerous, and God promiſes abundantly to bleſs their labours, v. 3. Note, (1.) It is a matter of great joy to every true member of Chriſt, to ſee his kingdom flouriſh, and his goſpel preached. (2.) They who enjoy fewer means and ordinances, are yet often ſeen to exceed others in their growth in grace, who poſſeſs much greater privileges. (3.) It will be the labour of every faithful ſoul, to lengthen the cords, and ſtrengthen the ſtakes, to ſpread the knowledge of Chriſt, and build up each other on their moſt holy faith.

3. The Lord encourages his church againſt all fear and ſhame. Unlikely as ſuch a work appeared, ſhe may truſt God's promiſe, and wait confidently the accompliſhment. For thou ſhalt forget the ſhame of thy youth, &c. when her members were few, and none of the wiſe and noble embraced the goſpel; but quickly the ſcene was changed, when the Roman empire became Chriſtian, and men of all ranks embraced the religion of Jeſus.

4. The bleſſed author of this happy change is Chriſt, the Maker, Huſband, and Redeemer of his church; for in theſe glorious and endeared relations he ſtands, able to the uttermoſt to protect and preſerve her, as the Lord of hoſts; faithful to his promiſes, as the holy One of Iſrael; and having univerſal dominion, as the God of the whole earth, to enlarge her borders according to the council of his own will. Note, (1.) There is a union between Chriſt and believing ſouls nearer than that between huſband and wiſe: they indeed are one body, but he that is joined to the Lord is one ſpirit. (2.) If our Maker be our huſband, then we are deeply bound in love and duty to approve our fidelity to him. (3.) Our Redeemer is mighty, and the more firmly we truſt him, the more ſurely we ſhall ſtand.

6. For the LORD [g] hath called thee as a woman forſaken and grieved in ſpirit, [h] and a wife of youth, when thou waſt refuſed, ſaith thy God. 7. [i] For a ſmall moment have I forſaken thee, but with great mercies will I gather thee. 8. In a little wrath [k] I hid my face from thee, for a moment; [l] but with everlaſting kindneſs will I have mercy on thee, ſaith the LORD thy Redeemer. 9. For this is as the waters of Noah unto me: for as [m] I have ſworn that the waters of Noah ſhould no more go over the earth; [n] ſo have I ſworn that I would not be wroth with thee, nor rebuke thee. 10. For [o] the mountains ſhall depart, and the hills be removed, [p] but my kindneſs ſhall not depart from thee, neither ſhall the covenant of my peace be removed, ſaith the LORD [q] that hath mercy on thee.

[g] Chap. lxii. 3.
[h] Jer. ii. 2. Ezek. xvi. 8.
[i] Pſ. xxx. 5. Chap. xxvi. 20. 2 Cor. iv, 17.
[k] Deut. xxxii. 20. Chap. viii. 17. & lvii. 17.
[l] Jer. xxxi. 3.
[m] Gen. ix. 11.
[n] Chap. lv. 11. Jer. xxxi. 36.
[o] Pſ. xlvi. 2. Mat. v. 18.
[p] Chap. li. 6.
[q] Eph. ii. 4. Tit. iii. 5.

v. 6—10. We have here, comfort promiſed to the diſconſolate church of God.

1. She is repreſented by a woman forſaken of her huſband, either dead, or divorced by him, and grieved at parting; and as a wife of youth refuſed, which made the ſeparation more painful. And this ſeems to regard the ſtate of the church, when, at the beginning, Chriſt was taken away by death, and the diſciples were ſo diſconſolate: or it deſcribes the diſtreſs which enſued on the firſt publiſhing of the goſpel, when ſo many of the preachers and profeſſors were cut off by the ſword of perſecution, which is ſignified by the little wrath, boiling wrath, as the word means, v. 8. when God's face was hid, and for a ſmall moment he ſeemed to forſake his people, v. 7. Note, (1.) A child of God may be at times in great bitterneſs of ſoul, under the ſenſe of his diſpleaſure. (2.) Whatever we feel of chaſtiſement, we muſt own it little, in compariſon of what we have deſerved. (3.) We muſt not be diſcouraged under preſent afflictions, however ſharp; they are but for a moment; a little faith and patience will bring us through them.

2. God promiſes a gracious return of mercy. With great mercies will I gather thee, from the diſperſion during the perſecutions, as was fulfilled in the days of Conſtantine, when the profeſſion of Chriſtianity was eſtabliſhed peaceably throughout the Roman empire. Yea, With everlaſting kindneſs will I have mercy on thee, ſaith the Lord thy Redeemer; for all his diſpenſations, however dark for a ſeaſon they may appear, are perfectly conſiſtent with his everlaſting love towards his people: and becauſe of the relation he ſtands in towards them as their Redeemer, he will not ſuffer any of his choſen to periſh. Note, (1.) It is purely of the Lord's mercies we are not conſumed, and not for any deſert in us. (2.) Nothing can be a more reviving conſideration to the dejected heart, than that God's kindneſs is everlaſting; and though he may caſt us down with affliction, he will not caſt us off in diſpleaſure. (3.) Our preſent ſufferings, however ſevere, are, comparatively with what we deſerve, light and momentary; but they will be ſucceeded with a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory.

3. To confirm the faith of his people in the immutability of his counſel of peace with them, and the perpetuity of his regard, he confirms it by an oath. As he engaged to Noah, that the waters ſhould never again deluge the earth, ſo hath he ſworn to his people, that he will never in wrath rebuke them, ſo as to caſt them off utterly, or renounce his relation to them, v. 9. and ſooner ſhall the mountains that lift their ſummits to the ſkies be removed, or all the mightieſt monarchies of the earth, prefigured by theſe, be diſſolved, than his kindneſs depart, or his covenant of peace fail: yea, when theſe mountains are departed, the hills fled, and all created nature ſunk in ruins, ſtill the everlaſting covenant of peace ſhall ſtand, ſaith the Lord that hath mercy on thee. As it ſprings from the mercy of God, not the merits of man, the fulfilment of it is ſure for ever, for he changeth not.

11. ¶ O thou [r] afflicted, toſſed with tempeſt, and not comforted, behold, I will lay thy ſtones [s] with fair colours, and lay thy foundations with ſapphires. 12. And I will make thy windows of agates, and thy gates of carbuncles, and all thy borders of pleaſant ſtones. 13. And all thy children ſhall be [t] taught of the LORD, and [u] great ſhall be the peace of thy children. 14. In righteouſneſs ſhalt thou be eſtabliſhed: thou ſhalt be far from oppreſſion, for thou ſhalt not fear; and from terror, for it ſhall not come near thee. 15. Behold, they ſhall

[r] Rev. xii. 6.
[s] 2 Chron. xxix. 2. Rev. xxi. 18, &c.
[t] Chap. xi. 9. Jer. xxxi. 34. John vi. 45. 1 John ii. 20, 27.
[u] Pſ. cxix. 165. Chap. xlviii. 18.

Before Christ 712.

ſhall ſurely gather together, but not by me: [x] whoſoever ſhall gather together againſt thee, ſhall fall for thy ſake. 16. Behold, I have created the ſmith that bloweth the coals in the fire, and that bringeth forth an inſtrument for his work, and I have created the waſter to deſtroy. 17. ¶ No weapon that is formed againſt thee ſhall proſper; and [y] every tongue that ſhall riſe againſt thee in judgment, thou ſhalt condemn. This is the heritage of the ſervants of the LORD, and [z] their righteouſneſs is of me, ſaith the LORD.

[x] Pſ. xxxvii. 12—15.
[y] Chap. l. 8. Acts vi. 10. Rom. viii. 33.
[z] 2 Cor. v. 21.

v. 11—17. Glorious things are ſpoken of thee, O thou city of God! We have,

1. The church in diſtreſs. O thou afflicted, with perſecutions without, and heretical teachers within: or, O thou indigent! for of the poor the church ever chiefly conſiſted; and toſſed with tempeſts, as a feeble bark, ready to be ſwallowed up in the ſtormy billows; and not comforted; no kind friend to ſupport, no magiſtrate to protect her from oppreſſion, as was the caſe under the pagan emperors, and is ſtill under the papal tyranny; but God will be his people's everlaſting friend, and never leave nor forſake them. Therefore,

2. He engages to raiſe up his church, a glorious church, and ſet it above the enmity of every foe.

[1.] He will raiſe it up a glorious church. The foundations, pavement, windows, gates, ſhall be of the moſt precious jewels, emblematical of Chriſt, and the gifts and graces of his Spirit, which ſhould be abundantly diſpenſed, compared with which, all the ſplendor of this world's brighteſt gems vaniſhes, as the ſtars before the riſing ſun. Particularly, 1. Divine wiſdom ſhall be plentifully diſpenſed: All thy children ſhall be taught of the Lord; not only by the word and the miniſtry, but by the illumination of the Spirit of truth, who ſhall lead them into all truth, opening their underſtandings, and giving them that experimental knowledge of Jeſus and his ſalvation, which no other teacher can communicate to the ſoul. 2. Abundance of peace ſhall be diffuſed. Great ſhall be the peace of thy children; internal peace of conſcience from a ſenſe of God's love, external peace and harmony among the faithful, when, loving each other out of a pure heart fervently, all contentions and diſputes ſhall be for ever baniſhed. 3. In righteouſneſs ſhalt thou be eſtabliſhed; in the doctrine of juſtification by the righteouſneſs of Jeſus, and in the practice of holineſs, the bleſſed fruit and effect of it, which is the great ornament and ſupport of the church, and without which it muſt quickly decay.

[2.] No foe ſhall be able to prevail againſt her; God will defend her, 1. From all fear and terror. Thou ſhalt be far from oppreſſion, for thou ſhalt not fear; and from terror, for it ſhall not come near thee. However great the fury and threatning of the oppreſſors, God will not only reſtrain their violence, but keep the minds of his people in perfect peace, whilſt ſtayed upon him; and a great mercy it is to be delivered from the power of tormenting fear. 2. Every attempt made againſt them ſhould end in the deſtruction of their enemies Behold, they ſhall ſurely gather together: the enmity of Satan and the world is implacable againſt the ſaints, and they will ſeek to trouble their repoſe: but not by me; as they have God againſt them, their deſigns muſt prove abortive. Whoſoever ſhall gather together againſt thee, ſhall fall for thy ſake; be they never ſo mighty or numerous, they ruſh only on their own ruin; God in love to his people will caſt them down. 3. As all the power which wicked men poſſeſs comes from God, he can, whenever he pleaſes, reſtrain the exerciſe of it. If the ſmith forges the military weapons, or the waſter employs them to deſtroy, they are both the creatures of God, raiſed up by his providence, and ſubject to his over-ruling power; and therefore whatever deſolations they are permitted to work in the earth, they ſhall be reſtrained from hurting God's people. No weapon that is formed againſt thee ſhall proſper; all the ſecret contrivances, as well as the avowed oppoſition againſt God's church, ſhall be diſappointed. 4. Every accuſation ſhall be refuted, to the confuſion of the accuſer. Every tongue that ſhall riſe againſt thee in judgment, either ſeeking to calumniate and blacken their character, to miſrepreſent them to the civil magiſtrate, to claim authority over men's conſciences, or to lay to their charge their ſins at God's bar, for which, according to the law, they muſt be caſt and puniſhed, thou ſhalt condemn, having a full anſwer to every accuſation. In Chriſt the law is ſatisfied; by well-doing, the malicious inſinuations of fooliſh men will be put to ſilence, and God, at leaſt in the great day, will make our righteouſneſs appear as the light, condemn the enemy and avenger, and give a verdict for his people againſt every accuſer.

Laſtly, All theſe invaluable privileges are the heritage of the ſervants of the Lord. It is as ſure to them as the eſtate that deſcends to the heir; and not only here do they enjoy a part in preſent grace and protection, but look for an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, that fadeth not away, reſerved for them in heaven; and their title to it is clear and acknowledged; for their righteouſneſs is of me, ſaith the Lord; a divine righteouſneſs, that can juſtify them from every charge, and ſtanding in this before the throne of judgment, God will vindicate their cauſe and character, and give them the reward of the purchaſed poſſeſſion, which their divine and glorious Saviour hath obtained for them.

CHAP. LV.

As we had much of Chriſt in the fifty-third, and much of the church of Chriſt in the fifty-fourth chapter, ſo in this we have much of the covenant of grace made with us in Chriſt. The ſure mercies of David which are promiſed here, ver. 3. are underſtood by the apoſtle of the benefits which flow to us from the reſurrection of Chriſt, Acts xiii. 34. which may ſerve as a key to this chapter; Here is, 1. A gracious invitation to all, to come and take the benefit of goſpel-grace, ver. 1. 2. Preſſing arguments to enforce this invitation. ver. 2—4. 3. A promiſe of the ſucceſs of this invitation among the Gentiles, ver. 5. 4. An exhortation to repentance and reformation, with great encouragement given to hope for pardon and forgiveneſs thereupon, ver. 6—9. 5. The ratification of all this, with the certain efficacy of the word of God, ver. 10, 11. 6. The joy this will produce, and the glory that will accrue to God thereby, ver. 12, 13.

Before Christ 712.

1. HO, [a] every one that thirſteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, [b] buy and eat, yea, come, buy wine and milk [c] without money, and without price. 2. Wherefore do ye ſpend money for [d] that which is not bread? and your labour for that which ſatisfieth not? hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your ſoul delight itſelf in fatneſs. 3. Incline your ear, and [e] come unto me: hear, and your ſoul ſhall live, and [f] I will make an everlaſting covenant with you, [g] even the ſure mercies of David. 4. Behold, I have given him for a witneſs to the people, [h] a leader and commander to the people. 5. [i] Behold, thou ſhalt call a nation that thou knoweſt not, and nations that knew not thee ſhall run unto thee, becauſe of the LORD thy God, and for the holy One of Iſrael; for he hath glorified thee.

[a] 1 John iv. 14. & vii. 37. Rev. xxi. 6. & xxii. 17.
[b] Mat. xiii. 44, 46. Rev. iii. 18.
[c] Acts viii. 20. Or, Rom. iii. 24. Eph. ii. 8.
[d] Phil. iii. 4—7.
[e] Mat. xi. 28.
[f] Chap. lxi. 8.
[g] 2 Sam. vii. 8. Pſ. lxxxix. 28, 29. Luke i. 32, 33. Acts xiii. 34.
[h] Mat. ii. 6.
[i] Chap. lii. 15. Eph. ii. 11, 12.

v. 1—5. We have here,

1. A gracious invitation to ſinners in general, to come and partake of the benefits and ordinances of the goſpel. Ho, every one that thirſteth, no exception is made; the invitation is general and univerſal to ſinners of all ranks and degrees: if they thirſt for pardon, righteouſneſs, and ſalvation, as thoſe who ſee themſelves periſhing without it, then they may come and welcome to Jeſus Chriſt: come unto the waters, Chriſt is the fountain of living waters, his ſpirit is uſually repreſented by this emblem, and his ordinances are the pools; in theſe the ſoul maintains communion with the Saviour, and he diſpenſes out of his fulneſs to the thirſty: and he that hath no money, free and gracious is the ſalvation of the goſpel, requiring no meritorious qualifications, nothing of our own to recommend us to the divine favour, for indeed we have nothing worth his acceptance; we are utterly corrupt and ſinful, our beſt is bad, and our ſpiritual poverty moſt abject and miſerable; yet that is no diſcouragement: no, it is ſuch, and ſuch alone, whom Chriſt invites, and who will be perſuaded to come to him to buy and eat. As food eaten and digeſted nouriſhes the body, ſo doth the promiſes of the goſpel, when mixed with faith, profit our ſouls. Chriſt in his ordinances is to be fed upon, his word is the bread of life; and in his ſacraments we eat his fleſh and drink his blood, the ſweeteſt and moſt nouriſhing food for our ſouls, called therefore wine and milk: come, buy wine and milk; the invitation is repeated, becauſe of our ſtupid backwardneſs, and Chriſt urges our acceptance of his mercy, as if it were a favour done to him, inſtead of an unutterable obligation conferred on us. And leaſt we ſhould heſitate, becauſe mention is made of a purchaſe, and we have nothing to pay, the whole is offered without money, and without price; Chriſt indeed hath paid for all the bleſſings he beſtows to the full; but to us they come free as the light which ſhines on us, or the air we breathe.

2. Chriſt expoſtulates with thoſe who ſeek righteouſneſs and comfort out of him. Wherefore do ye ſpend your money for that which is not bread, and your labour for that which ſatisfieth not? all the toil and pains of the worldly-minded can never procure them ſolid ſatisfaction; corroding cares leaven their gains, corrupt their enjoyments; the pleaſures they ſeek in preſent vanities, are found huſks inſtead of bread, and diſappointments perpetual bid them ſeek a better and more enduring portion. And they who, by their doings and duties, would fain eſtabliſh a righteouſneſs before God, labour but in the fires; their bread is poiſon, their toil, their ruin; the more they ſeek thus to enter into life, the farther they advance in the path of death; for out of Chriſt there is no juſtifying righteouſneſs, and all worldly enjoyments without his love and favour, are but flattering dreams; and death, too late, will awaken the ſoul to perceive the fatal deluſion. Happy they who are led to ſeek their happi-

neſs

Before Chriſt 712.

neſs from Chriſt alone, and from him to expect righteouſneſs and ſalvation.

3. He exhorts them to hearken to his word, and embrace the true good, which he proffers to beſtow upon them. Hearken diligently unto me, with ſuch ſerious attention as the importance of the ſalvation of an immortal ſoul demands, and eat ye that which is good; the glad tidings of good things, which the word of truth in the goſpel proclaims, ſuch good things as paſs man's underſtanding; and let your ſoul delight itſelf in fatneſs, in the pardon and peace, righteouſneſs and joy in the holy ghoſt, which are provided as the richeſt feaſt for the believing ſoul. Incline your ear, and come unto me, Jeſus would kindly, would earneſtly court the ſinner to taſte the riches of his grace: Strange! that we ſhould need entreaty to come to him and be happy! hear, and your ſoul ſhall live, or that your ſoul may live; life ſpiritual and eternal being derived from the word of Jeſus, and they who hear and believe in him can never die: and I will make an everlaſting covenant with you, even the ſure mercies of David; to ſtrengthen our faith, God condeſcends to bind himſelf under a covenant with his people; a covenant of his own contriving from everlaſting, and which will endure to everlaſting. The bleſſings of the covenant are called mercies, becauſe man's deſert is utterly excluded; and mercies of every kind, whether reſpecting grace or glory; ſure mercies, confirmed by the faithfulneſs of the unchangeable God, and as being the mercies of David, that is, of Chriſt his Son, by whom they were obtained, through whom they are diſpenſed, and in whom all the promiſes of God are yea and amen. Bleſſed, for ever bleſſed be God, for Jeſus Chriſt.

4. Chriſt is promiſed for a witneſs to the people; him hath God the Father ſent, to bear witneſs to the truth, and he is faithful and true. He came in the fleſh, to publiſh to all nations the great ſalvation of God, and by his works and miracles ſufficiently proved his divine miſſion: him we are commanded to hear and obey, for he is a leader and commander to the people; a leader, as he inſtructs and guides his people to walk in the ways of truth and righteouſneſs, and having led them by his counſel, will bring them at laſt to his glory: a commander, the captain of our ſalvation, who will ſubdue all our enemies before us, and make us more than conquerors; who bids us follow him, and leads the way to victory and everlaſting triumphs. Note, They who receive Chriſt's word as true, will follow his example as their pattern, and manfully fighting under his banners, win through his grace, and wear the crown of righteouſneſs.

5. Vaſt and numerous ſhall be the converts, that at the invitation of Jeſus ſhall come to him. Behold, thou ſhalt call a nation that thou knoweſt not, the nations of the Gentile world, that before were not acknowledged as God's people; and nations that knew not thee ſhall run unto thee, denoting the eagerneſs with which the Gentiles would receive and embrace the goſpel; because of the Lord thy God; becauſe of the demonſtration of the ſpirit and power accompanying the word, and the grace and love of God in the goſpel, which are moſt mightily conſtraining, and becauſe they now perceive there is no approaching a holy God but through a Saviour; and for the holy one of Iſrael, truſting on his faithfulneſs; or to the holy One of Iſrael, to Chriſt, the holy Saviour; on whoſe atonement, righteouſneſs, and grace, they alone depend; for he hath glorified thee; God the Father hath exalted his Son Jeſus, given him to be head over all, committed all power into his hands; and he is glorified when ſinners come to him, out of his fulneſs to receive an abundant ſupply of all their wants, and this is an encouragement to draw near to him, ſince our ſalvation is his glory.

6. ¶ [k] Seek ye the LORD while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near. 7. [l] Let the wicked forſake his way, and the unrighteous man his [m] thoughts: and let him return unto the LORD, and he will have mercy upon him, and to our God, for [o] he will † abundantly pardon. 8. ¶ For [p] my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, ſaith the LORD. 9. [q] For as the heavens are higher than the earth, ſo are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts. 10. For [r] as the rain cometh down, and the ſnow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give ſeed to the ſower, and bread to the eater: 11. [s] So ſhall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: [t] it ſhall not return unto me void, but it ſhall accompliſh that which I pleaſe, and it ſhall proſper in the thing whereto I ſent it. 12. For [u] ye ſhall go out with joy, and be led forth with peace: [x] the mountains and the hills ſhall break forth before you into ſinging, and [y] all the trees of the field ſhall clap their hands. 13. [z] Inſtead of [a] the thorn ſhall come up the fir-tree, and inſtead of the brier ſhall come up the myrtle-tree: and [b] it ſhall be to the LORD for a name, [c] for an everlaſting ſign that ſhall not be cut off.

k Pſ. xxxii. 6. Mat. v. 25. Heb. iii. 7.
l Chap. i. 16.
m Jer. iv. 14.
o Pſ. cxxx. 7.
† Heb. Multiply to pardon.
p 2 Sam. vii. 19.
q Pſ. ciii. 11.
r Deut. xxxii. 2.
s Ezek. xii. 25.
t Chap. xlv. 23.
u Chap. xxxv. 10. & li. 11.
x Pſ. xcvi. 11, 12. & xcviii. 8. Chap. xiv. 8. & xxxv. 1. & xliv. 23. & xlix. 13.
y 1 Chron. xvi. 33.
z Chap. xli. 19.
a Mic. vii. 4.
b Jer. xxxiii. 9.
c Chap. liv. 10. or Jer. l. 5.

v. 6—13. We have here the ſame ſubject of the return of ſinners to God farther proſecuted.

1. They are urged to ſeek God from the conſideration of his rich grace and readineſs to receive the miſerable that fly to him for mercy. (1.) The perſons addreſſed are the wicked and unrighteous, for ſuch we all are, and ſuch Chriſt Jeſus came to ſeek and ſave; they who know not this to be their character, have no part nor lot in his ſalvation. (2.) The way in which they are directed to proceed. In faith, prayer, and penitence; Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call upon him while he is near; God will be found of them that ſeek him; this is his promiſe: therefore on our knees we muſt cry for the pardon and mercy we need, and he proffers to beſtow, and this without delay, before his abuſed patience caſt us off, and ſay, my ſpirit ſhall no longer ſtrive; or death carry us to the tomb, when it will be too late to knock, becauſe the door is ſhut. Oh how ſhould this awful conſideration awaken our importunity, whilſt the day of life and mercy laſts? Let the wicked forſake his ways, let him turn from the paths of ſin with loathing and abhorrence, nor ſpare one darling luſt; and the unrighteous man his thoughts; let not one allowed deſire of evil remain; the views of promiſed grace muſt conſtrain the ſinner to part with all readily, chearfully, unreſervedly, and to cleanſe the temper as well as reform the practice; and let him return unto the Lord, from whom he had ſo greatly departed; to ſtand before him as a criminal ſeeking pardon, as a helpleſs worm to find grace, and as a redeemed ſoul now engaged in his ſervice, and deſiring to follow him in all his holy ways; whoever thus ſeeks, will find. For; (3.) God promiſes he will have mercy upon him; yea, will abundantly pardon; no guilt ſo great, no iniquity ſo aggravated, but that there is with him grace abounding for the chief of ſinners. And this is mentioned, not as the condition and reward of our repentance and prayers, but as the argument to engage us thereto; ſeeing we can neither repent nor pray till we ſee this pardoning mercy and grace extended towards us in the Redeemer. (4.) He anſwers an objection their fears might raiſe, guilt being ever ready to drive us to deſpair. They indeed who have never known the burden of ſin, think it eaſy to believe in God's mercy; whilſt they who have once felt it, are ſoon convinced of the unbelief of their hearts. My thoughts, ſays God, are not your thoughts, in general with regard to ſin, Chriſt, happineſs, &c. and particularly which ſeems here intended reſpecting the manner of the ſinner's acceptance: for when we ſcarce dare believe he can receive ſuch vile wretches as we are, he knows how to glorify himſelf in being the juſtifier of him who believeth in Jeſus; neither are your ways my ways; ours are perverſe, his pure; ours lead to death and hell, his to life and glory: we never could forgive one who had offended us as we have God, yet he can and doth freely and fully both forgive and forget it. Thus as the heavens are higher than the earth, ſo incomparably tranſcendent are his thoughts and ways of mercy and grace beyond all that we can aſk or think.

2. The Lord engages to make his own word effectual. For as in the kingdom of nature, the rain and ſnow directed by Divine Providence water the earth, and cauſe its fertility, accompliſhing God's purpoſes of mercy in providing food for men's bodies: So, ſays he, ſhall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth, the word of the goſpel, of which Chriſt is the ſum and ſubſtance; it ſhall not return unto me void, but, accompanied with divine energy, it ſhall accompliſh that which I pleaſe, be made effectual to the converſion of as many as the Lord our God ſhall call; and it ſhall proſper in the thing whereto I ſent it, producing a plenteous harveſt of converted ſouls, and leaving thoſe inexcuſable who reject it. Note, All God's purpoſes and promiſes muſt infallibly take effect; and it is a great encouragement to all his faithful miniſters to be aſſured that they ſhall not labour in vain in the Lord: to ſome they will be a ſavour of life unto life; to others a ſavour of death unto death, and in both God will be glorified.

3. The word being made effectual to the converſion of men's ſouls, will produce great joy in the hearts of the redeemed; as was the caſe with the Jews when releaſed from Babylon, to whom this may primarily be applied, and who herein repreſented the people of God going forth from the ſlavery of ſin, their bands looſed, and they rejoicing in the glorious liberty of the ſons of God, whilſt the mountains and hills break forth into ſinging, as if congratulating their deliverance, and all the trees of the fields clap their hands for joy; which may expreſs the delight of the apoſtles and miniſters of the word, when they ſaw their labours ſo abundantly bleſſed, and ſo many converted by their preaching, who rejoiced with them at ſo bleſſed an event. And the conſequence of this was a wondrous change in men's tempers and diſpoſitions. Inſtead of the thorn ſhall come up the fir-tree, and inſtead of the brier ſhall come up the myrtle-tree: and being thus renewed in the ſpirit of their minds, it ſhall be to the Lord for a name, for an everlaſting ſign that ſhall

Before Chriſt 712.

not be cut off; God having taken them for his own, will preſerve them by his grace below, and bring them to be everlaſting monuments of his mercy, love and power in his kingdom of glory above.

CHAP. LVI.

After the exceeding great and precious promiſes of goſpel grace, typified by temporal deliverances which we had in the foregoing chapter, we have here, 1. A ſolemn charge given us to make conſcience of our duty, as we hope to have the benefit of thoſe promiſes, ver. 1, 2. 2. Great encouragement given to ſtrangers that were willing to come under the bonds of the covenant, ver. 3—8. 3. A high charge drawn up againſt the watchmen of Iſrael that were careleſs and unfaithful in the diſcharge of their duty, ver. 9—12.

† Or, equity.
a Mic. vi 8.
b Chap. xlvi. 13. & li. 5, Mat. iv. 17. Rom. xiii. 11.
c Pſ. xv. 5.
d Chap. lviii. 13. Jer. xvii. 21, 22.

1. THUS ſaith the LORD, Keep ye † judgment, and [a] do juſtice: for [b] my ſalvation is near to come, and my righteouſneſs to be revealed. 2. Bleſſed is [c] the man that doth this, and the ſon of man that layeth hold on it: [d] that keepeth the ſabbath from polluting it, and keepeth his hand from doing any evil.

v. 1, 2. From the privileges of the goſpel, the Lord enforces obedience to the precepts of it.

1. The privileges are ineſtimable. My ſalvation is near to come, and my righteouſneſs to be revealed. He calls it my ſalvation, becauſe the contrivance and execution of it was wholly his own; and my righteouſneſs, becauſe in this ſalvation the moſt eminent diſplay was to be made of the divine juſtice in the ſufferings and obedience of Jeſus, and in the acceptance of ſinners through him, in a way wherein God might at the ſame time glorify his righteouſneſs, and yet be the juſtifier of him that believeth in Jeſus. And the time was now near when the Saviour ſhould be revealed, comparatively ſpeaking in the view of the time elapſed ſince the firſt promiſe was made, Gen. iii. 15.

2. The duty of thoſe who partook in this ſalvation is enforced. For they who truly underſtand the doctrine of God's free grace in the ſalvation of ſinners, will ever feel the obligation it lays upon them to walk in all holy converſation and godlineſs. (1.) Keep judgment, and do juſtice; let God's word be the rule of your conduct, and in all your ways approve yourſelves to him in uprightneſs, fidelity, ſimplicity, and godly ſincerity. (2.) Keep the ſabbath from polluting it; that being God's day, ſhould be wholly devoted to his ſervice, and employed in his worſhip; not only muſt we reſt from ſervile employments, but ſeek to improve the ſacred hours in every exerciſe of piety and devotion, that may contribute to raiſe up our affections to heavenly things, and promote in others the ſame gracious diſpoſitions. (3.) Keep thy hand from doing any evil, preſerve a conſcience void of offence towards God and towards man; abſtain from every known ſin; and though abſolute perfection is not in man, let it be your labour, ſtudy, and prayer to cleanſe yourſelves from all filthineſs of fleſh and ſpirit, perfecting holineſs in the fear of God.

3. God pronounces his bleſſing on all ſuch. Bleſſed is the man that doth this, and the ſon of man that layeth hold on it; who embraces the ſalvation and righteouſneſs of Jeſus, and adorns the doctrine of God the Saviour in all things.

e Deut. xxiii. 3. Acts x. 34. Rom. ii. 10, 11.
f Deut. xxiii. 1.
g Acts viii. 27—38.
h Mat. xvi. 18. 1 Tim. iii. 15.
i John i. 12. 1 John iii. 1.
k Acts ii. 41.
† Or, holdeth faſt. So Ver. 2, 4.
l Chap. ii. 2.
m Mat. xxi. 13. Mark xi. 17. Luke xix. 46.
n Rom. x. 12.
o John x. 16. Eph. ii. 14, 15.

3. ¶ Neither let [e] the ſon of the ſtranger, that hath joined himſelf to the LORD, ſpeak, ſaying, The LORD hath utterly ſeparated me from his people: [f] neither let the eunuch ſay, Behold, I am a dry tree: 4. For thus ſaith the LORD unto the eunuchs that keep my ſabbaths, and chooſe the things that pleaſe me, and take hold of my covenant: 5. [g] Even unto them will I give in [h] mine houſe, and within my walls, a place and a [i] name better than of ſons and of daughters: I will give them an everlaſting name, that ſhall not be cut off. 6. Alſo the ſons of the ſtranger [k] that join themſelves to the LORD, to ſerve him, and to love the name of the LORD, to be his ſervants, every one that keepeth the ſabbath from polluting it, and † taketh hold of my covenant: 7. Even them [l] will I bring to my holy mountain, and make them joyful in my houſe of prayer: their burnt-offerings and their ſacrifices ſhall be accepted upon mine altar; for [m] mine houſe ſhall be called an houſe of prayer [n] for all people. 8. The Lord GOD which gathereth the outcaſts of Iſrael, ſaith, [o] Yet will I gather others to him, beſides thoſe that are gathered unto him.

v. 3—8. We have here the encouragement given to thoſe who, though willing to join themſelves to the Lord, were diſheartned.

1. The eunuch might lament his unhappy caſe, ſaying, I am a dry tree, under the reproach of being written childleſs, and expreſsly excluded from the congregation of the Lord, Deut. xxiii. 21. yet God ſpeaks comfort unto ſuch. Thus ſaith the Lord unto the eunuchs which keep my ſabbaths, religiouſly obſervant of God's worſhip on that holy day, and all the inſtituted ordinances of the goſpel; and chooſe the things that pleaſe me, attentive to God's revealed will in his word, and delighting in that which he commands, ſerving not of conſtraint but willingly; and take hold of my covenant; embrace it as their only hope, truſt on it with unſhaken confidence, and walk under the influence of the bleſſed promiſes contained therein; even to them will I give in my houſe, and within my walls, a place and a name better than that of ſons and daughters: children are a precious gift, they are like arrows in the hand of the giant, and father is an honourable title; but every honour, every poſſeſſion, every enjoyment here is trivial, compared with an intereſt in God's regard, and a name in his book of life; this is for eternity, I will give them an everlaſting name which ſhall never be cut off. Note, (1.) When we ſet temporal bleſſings againſt ſpiritual, time againſt eternity, the infinite diſproportion between them ſhould inſtantly and conſtantly determine our choice to the better part. (2.) All real good we ever can enjoy here or hereafter,. comes from God's free gift, and muſt be acknowledged to his glory.

2. The Gentile alien might fear, v. 3. that God had utterly ſeparated him from his people, See Deut. xxiii. but his fears are groundleſs, the wall of ſeparation between Jew and Gentile being caſt down; and therefore, if he joined himſelf to the Lord, renouncing all other gods, and cleaving to him alone, to ſerve him with fidelity and conſtancy; to love the name of the Lord, deeply ſenſible of his amazing grace, and powerfully conſtrained by the views of it; to be his ſervant, in all willing and chearful obedience, counting his ſervice perfect freedom; every one that keepeth the ſabbath from polluting it, diligent and conſcientious in the obſervance of this ſacred day of reſt, and taketh hold of my covenant, the everlaſting covenant of love and peace in a Redeemer, as the foundation of all his hopes; ſuch need apprehend no excluſion from the divine favour, or the aſſembly of the faithful: Even them will I bring to my holy mountain, the church of the redeemed, and give them a right to partake of all the bleſſings and privileges beſtowed upon it, and make them joyful in my houſe of prayer, or, the houſe of my prayer, where prayer and ſupplications are offered to God, and he meets his people with joy and gladneſs, giving an anſwer to the prayer of the afflicted, and comforting his mourners. Their burnt-offerings and their ſacrifices ſhall be accepted upon mine altar; their prayers, praiſes, works of faith, and labours of love, ſhall thro' Chriſt, the altar which ſanctifieth the gift, become a ſacrifice of a ſweet ſmell, well-pleaſing to God: for mine houſe ſhall be called an houſe of prayer for all people, no diſtinction any longer ſubſiſting between Jew and Gentile, but incorporated in one holy church, of which Chriſt is the living head.

3. God having provided a houſe of prayer for all people, will furniſh it with worſhippers. The Lord God which gathereth the outcaſts of Iſrael, the ſpiritual Iſrael, that in a ſtate of nature lay expoſed, as the infant in Ezekiel, in their blood, ſaith, Yet will I gather others to him, beſides thoſe that are gathered unto him, to Chriſt, or his church, to which, in every age and generation, multitudes ſhall be gathered. And it may particularly be applied to thoſe, who, being perſecuted by the pagan emperors, were, under Conſtantine, peaceably ſettled in their aſſemblies, and to the converſion of numerous nations which followed, till then ſtrangers to the Chriſtian faith; and this may look for its final accompliſhment in the laſt day, when the fulneſs of the Gentiles ſhall be come in, and all Iſrael, till then diſperſed, ſhall be converted and ſaved.

p Rev. xix. 17, 18.
q Mat. xv. 14.
r Hoſ. iv. 6.
† Or, talking in their ſleep.
s Mic. iii. 11.
t Ezek. xxxiv. 2, 3.
‡ Heb Know not to be ſatiſfied.
u Mic. ii. 11,
x Prov. xxiii, 35. or, Chap. xxii. 13.

9. ¶ [p] All ye beaſts of the field, come to devour, yea, all the beaſts in the foreſt. 10. [q] His watchmen are blind: [r] they are all ignorant, they are all dumb dogs, they cannot bark; † ſleeping, lying down, loving to ſlumber. 11. Yea, [s] they are greedy dogs, [t] which ‡ can never have enough, and they are ſhepherds that cannot underſtand: they all look to their own way, every one for his gain, from his quarter. 12. Come ye, ſay they, [u] I will fetch wine, and we will fill ourſelves with ſtrong drink, [x] and to-morrow ſhall be as this day, and much more abundant.

v. 9—12. After all the comforts and promiſes going before, here a ſcene of deſolations begins, which is continued in the following chapters. This may be referred to the ſins and puniſhments of the Jewiſh people by the Babylonians and Romans; or, as ſome learned interpreters ſuggeſt, foretels the ravages of the Goths and Vandals, and other barbarous people, which were ſent to puniſh the great corruptions which had crept into the Chriſtian Roman empire.

1. The beaſts of prey are ſummoned to execute God's judgments; men, fierce and ſavage in their tempers, who would not keep back the ſword from blood. Note, God has inſtruments

Before Chriſt 712.

ments ever at his beck, to execute his wrath. Woe to the ſinner, to the nation, that by their iniquities and impenitence provoke it !

2. The principal cauſe of theſe judgments is, a lazy, ignorant, worldly-minded, covetous, drunken, careleſs miniſtry. Such was probably the caſe in Iſaiah's day ; happy were it, if future times had afforded no parallel ! A dreadful character is here drawn : His watchmen are blind ; they who are appointed to deſcry the approaching enemy, and give warning, are themſelves blind and inſenſible : unawakened in their own ſouls, they never ſaw they guilt and danger of ſin, therefore cannot blow the alarm, and perſuade others by the terrors of the Lord. They are all ignorant of the ſcriptures, and that knowledge which maketh wiſe unto ſalvation, and cannot preach a goſpel they have not themſelves underſtood. They are all dumb dogs, they cannot bark ; never reprove men's ſins, and hate the work of the miniſtry in which they are engaged ; ordained to lift up their voice like a trumpet, but ſleeping, lying down, loving to ſlumber ; ſlothful, indolent, glad to devolve on others the irkſome taſk of preaching and prayer, and ſeeking eaſe, inſtead of enduring hardneſs, as good ſoldiers of Jeſus Chriſt. Yea, they are greedy dogs, that can never have enough ; of the duty of the miniſtry, the leaſt part is ſufficient ; of the gain of it, nothing can ſatisfy them ; infinitely more ſollicitous in proſecuting preferment, than ſeeking loſt ſouls ; and never enquiring the weight of the charge, but the value of the benefice. The words may be rendered, of inſatiable appetite, that never can be filled, whoſe belly is their god, and eating and drinking their ſupreme happineſs. And they are ſhepherds, or, though they are ſhepherds, pretend to be ſo, they cannot underſtand ; not acquainted with divine things themſelves, and therefore utterly incapable of teaching others. They look to their own way, follow their own pleaſures and worldly advantage, careleſs of the cauſe of God and truth ; every one for his gain from his quarter ; this is their grand object, and on this their chief pains are beſtowed. Come ye, ſay they, I will fetch wine, and we will fill ourſelves with ſtrong drink ; their bottle is more beloved than their books : pleaſed to ſee the wine ſparkle in the glaſs, they put it round, ſit long at the cups, till bloated, inflamed, or drunken, their time and their faculties are deſtroyed ; and, far from being aſhamed of ſuch ſcandalous immoralities, their great concern is to renew the entertainment, and make a freſh appointment for the next day : for to-morrow ſhall be as this day, and much more abundant. Supine and ſecure, they forget eternity, promiſe themſelves days and years to come, conſider neither the guilt of their courſe, nor the uncertainty of their enjoyments, but encourage each other to mutual neglect of God and their ſouls, till he, in an unexpected hour, with terrible ſurprize calls them to give account of their miniſtry, and arraigns them at his tremendous bar.

CHAP. LVII.

The prophet in this chapter makes his obſervations, 1. Upon the deaths of good men, their comfortable end, and reproves thoſe that did not make a due improvement of ſuch providences, ver. 1, 2. 2. Upon the groſs idolatries and ſpiritual whoredoms of the people, and the deſtroying judgments they were thereby bringing upon themſelves, ver. 3—12. 3. Upon the gracious returns of God to his people, ver. 13—19. 4. Upon the character and miſery of the wicked, ver. 20, 21.

1. [a] THE righteous periſheth, and no man layeth it to heart ; and † merciful men are taken away, none conſidering that [b] the righteous is taken away from the evil to come. 2. He ſhall ‡ enter into peace : [c] they ſhall reſt in their beds, each one walking in his uprightneſs.

About 699.
[a] Pſ. xii. 1. Mic. vii. 2.
† Heb. Men of kindneſs, or godlineſs.
[b] 1 Kings xiv. 13. 2 Kings xxii. 20. Wiſd. iv. 10, &c.
‡ Or, Go in peace. Luke ii. 29.
[c] Eccleſ. xii. 7.

v. 1, 2. If the watchmen were blind and careleſs, no wonder the people were ſtupid and negligent, and diſregarded the notices of Divine Providence.

1. The righteous periſheth, and the merciful man is taken away. Death delivered them from their burdens, and God in mercy took them away from a wicked world. Note, Piety is no protection from death ; nay, in times of perſecution the righteous are moſt expoſed. The firſt man that died, died a martyr.

2. It was a mark of great hardneſs of heart, and inattention to the calls of God, that no man laid it to heart, nor conſidered it. The removal of the righteous is a grievous loſs to the church, and to the nation ; a mark of God's diſpleaſure, and a warning of approaching judgments ; and they who hear not the rod, and repent, will quickly feel its ſmart, and periſh under the ſtroke.

3. The bleſſedneſs of the righteous in their removal is great ; to them to die is gain. They are taken away from the evil to come, as Noah into the ark before the deluge riſes : they ſee not the evil that is coming on a wicked world, but take their happy flight to the manſions prepared for them in glory. He ſhall enter into peace, or go in peace ; no fears diſmay his dying hour ; having ſeen the ſalvation of God, he departs with joy to the full poſſeſſion of it, to enter that bleſt abode where ſin, ſorrow, or ſufferings, ſhall never more diſturb his repoſe. They ſhall reſt in their beds : no bed ſo welcome to the weary, as that bed of duſt, where the ſaints ſweetly ſleep in Jeſus, and wait a joyful reſurrection ; each one walking in his uprightneſs ; either ſuch was their conduct upon earth, or ſuch is now the ſtate of their departed ſouls, delivered from the burden of the fleſh, and joined to the ſpirits of juſt men made perfect ; or, before him, admitted to the beatific viſion and fruition of the bleſſed God.

Before Chriſt 699.

3. ¶ But draw near hither, ye ſons of the ſorcereſs, the ſeed of the adulterer, and the whore. 4. [d] Againſt whom do ye ſport yourſelves ? againſt whom make ye a wide mouth, and draw out the tongue ? are ye not children of tranſgreſſion, a ſeed of falſhood ? 5. Inflaming yourſelves with idols [e] under every green tree, [f] ſlaying the children in the valleys under the clifts of the rocks ?
6. Among the ſmooth ſtones of the ſtream is thy portion ; they, they are thy lot : even to them haſt thou poured a drink-offering, thou haſt offered a meat-offering. [g] Should I receive comfort in theſe ? 7. [h] Upon a lofty and high mountain haſt thou ſet thy bed : even thither wenteſt thou up to offer ſacrifice. 8. Behind the doors alſo and the poſts haſt thou ſet up thy remembrance : for thou haſt diſcovered thyſelf to another than me, and art gone up : thou haſt enlarged thy bed, and † made thee a covenant with them ; [i] thou lovedſt their bed where thou ſaweſt it. 9. And [k] thou ‡ wenteſt to the king with ointment, and didſt increaſe thy perfumes, and didſt ſend thy meſſengers far off, and didſt debaſe thyſelf even unto hell. 10. [l] Thou art wearied in the greatneſs of thy way ; yet ſaidſt thou not, There is no hope : thou haſt found the life of thine hand ; therefore thou waſt not grieved. 11. And of whom haſt thou been afraid or feared, that [m] thou haſt lied, and haſt not remembred me, nor laid it to thy heart ? [n] have not I held my peace even of old, and thou feareſt me not ? 12. [o] I will declare thy righteouſneſs, and thy works, for they ſhall not profit thee.

[d] Exod. xvi. 8. Luke x. 16. 1 Theſ. iv. 8.
[e] 2 Kings xvi. 4. & xvii. 10.
[f] Lev. xviii. 21. & xx. 2. 2 Kings xvi. 3. & xxiii. 10. Ezek. xvi. 20. & xx. 26.
[g] Chap. lxvi. 3. Jer. vii. 9, 10.
[h] Ezek. xvi. 24, 25.
† Or, hewed it for thyſelf larger than theirs.
[i] Ezek. xvi. 26, 28.
[k] Chap. xxx. 6. Ezek. xvi. 33.
‡ Or, preſentedſt.
[l] Jer. ii. 36.
[m] Chap. lix. 13.
[n] Pſ. l. 21.
[o] Jer. ii. 35.

v. 3—12. We have here a ſtrong character drawn of the wicked abovementioned, who were well-pleaſed to be rid of the righteous who troubled them : and this may belong either to the Jews under their latter monarchs, eſpecially Ahaz, in whoſe reign Iſaiah lived ; or to the apoſtate church of Rome, where all the idolatries of the heathen are revived, and, with the name of Chriſtian, paganiſm is in a meaſure re-eſtabliſhed.

1. They are ſummoned to God's bar. Draw near hither, to hear your fearful doom ; and the title given them marks their character ; ye ſons of the ſorcereſs, ye ſeed of the adulterer and the whore, or who commit whoredom ; children of tranſgreſſion, a ſeed of falſhood ; the whore of Babylon, the ſons of that idolatrous church, committing whoredom with her, given up to iniquity, embracing falſe doctrines, and propagating them. Note, The practice of ſin is ſpiritually ſorcery and adultery ; it is a virtual contract with the devil, and an open breach of our baptiſmal engagements.

2. The crimes alledged againſt them are produced, and they are many and aggravated.

[1.] Contempt of God and his warnings, in the perſon of his miniſters. They ridiculed the preachers, treated them with deriſion and ſcorn, and ſhewed them ſuch inſult and ill manners, as themſelves would have counted a flagrant injury, if done to the meaneſt of their ſervants whom they had ſent with a meſſage. Note, (1.) They who deliver faithfully God's meſſage to a wicked world, may often expect to meet inſult and reproach. (2.) When religion is in the caſe, they who on other occaſions pique themſelves on their behaviour as gentlemen, here count ill manners laudable, and eſteem the miniſters of God as excluded from the common right of civility. (3.) They who thus inſolently treat God's ſervants, need well conſider againſt whom they ſport themſelves : their maſter is not thus to be mocked with impunity.

[2.] Idolatry. They were mad upon their idols, and, as is the nature of vile affections, the more they are indulged, the more they are inflamed, and hurry men on to greater exceſſes. Under every green tree they had their images ; and ſo beſotted were they, that even their own children were not too dear to offer to them ; for when a man is given up to his heart's luſt, he becomes unnatural even to his own fleſh and blood, and, to gratify his raging appetites, cares not what ſufferings his children and family undergo, v. 5. Innumerable were their idols : if they found in the ſtreams of the valley a ſmooth ſtone, they ſet it up for worſhip, and valued it as their portion and inheritance, pouring out their drink-offerings and meat-offerings before it, as the papiſts do the images of their ſaints, and offer up the ſacrifice of their maſs, conſiſting of bread and wine, in honour of their idols. Shall I receive comfort in theſe? ſays God; No; they are his utter abhorrence, v. 6. On the hills they have ſet up their bed, their idolatrous altars, and thither went up to offer ſacrifice to their idols: alluding, it may be, to the city of Rome, the ſeat of idolatry, ſituate on ſeven hills; or to their high altars, where they celebrate their maſſes, v. 7. yea, every houſe has its tutelar ſaint, as the heathen Lares and Penates. Behind the doors alſo and the poſts haſt thou ſet up thy remembrances; their images, crucifixes, and ſuperſtitious pictures; for thou haſt diſcovered thyſelf to another than to me, or from me; apoſtate from God's true worſhip, and proſtituted to idolatry: and art gone up, openly and publicly without bluſhing, to theſe unhallowed altars. Thou haſt enlarged thy bed, their idol temples; and made a covenant with them; joined in league with others like themſelves, See Rev. xiii. 15—17. Thou lovedſt their bed where thou ſaweſt it; took delight in the places and altars for idolatrous worſhip, as Ahaz, 2 Kings xvi. 10. or, where thou ſaweſt a ſtatue, didſt fall down and worſhip it.

[3.] Their zeal to make proſelytes to their idolatry. Thou wenteſt up to the king with ointment, &c. Some refer this to the truſt the Jews repoſed in the foreign aſſiſtance they courted; but it may be applied to Rome the mother of harlots, who, decking herſelf with all the pomp and ſplendor of outward devotion and gaudy worſhip, invites the kings of the earth to commit fornication with her; and didſt increaſe thy perfumes, to make herſelf appear amiable; pretending to antiquity, infallibility, the power of miracles, and authority to beſtow plenary indulgencies for ſin: and didſt ſend thy meſſengers afar off; nuncios and legates to the courts of her kings, to eſtabliſh her authority, and miſſionaries and emiſſaries to promote her intereſts, and ſpread her falſe religion: and didſt debaſe thyſelf even to hell; making pretences to the deepeſt humility, in order to enſnare the unwary; or, didſt bring low even to hell; making her converts ſevenfold more the children of hell than before, and deſtroying the ſouls of thoſe ſhe pretended to ſave.

[4.] Their obſtinate perſeverance in thoſe ways of wickedneſs. Thou art wearied in the greatneſs of thy way, or, the multiplicity of thy ways; the many ſtratagems and the vaſt pains taken to compaſs the ſubjection of kingdoms, and all churches to the church of Rome, which were enough to have wearied out invention and patience, before they could be brought to take effect. Yet ſaidſt thou not, There is no hope; no diſappointments deterred the Roman ſee from perſevering in her ambitious deſigns, till at laſt they prevailed. Thou haſt found the life of thy hand, the dominion over men's conſciences, and over all other churches which they ſought, with all the wealth that accrued from thence: therefore thou waſt not grieved, or ſick; not ſorry for the pains beſtowed, or ſick of the undertaking, from whence they hoped at laſt all their pains would be recompenſed. And this may be applied to ſinners in general, (1.) The happineſs they ſeek in creature-comforts wearies them in the purſuit, and ever diſappoints their expectations. (2.) Though experience ſhould teach him, by repeated diſappointment, the vanity of the creature, ſo infatuated is the ſinner, that he ſtill entertains hopes, that by and by he ſhall find the joy he purſues. (3.) Sometimes he flatters himſelf he hath attained his point, and ſaith to his ſoul, Take thine eaſe; but moſt fatally is he then deluded, when moſt ſecurely he cries, Peace, peace.

[5.] Long impunity had bred confidence of its continuance, notwithſtanding the repeated provocations given. Of whom haſt thou been afraid or feared? intimating either, that ſhe had caſt off all fear of God, or that it was through fear of loſing her influence over her votaries; that thou haſt lied, ſtuck at no fraud and falſhood to carry her point: and haſt not remembred me; paid no regard to God, nor ſhewed any apprehenſion of his judgments. Have I not held my peace even of old, and thou feareſt me not? or, therefore thou feareſt not; emboldened to ſin by the patience God had ſhown in bearing her provocations. Note, (1.) Fear of men often leads to the ſin of lying. (2.) They can have no fear of God, who dare tell a deliberate lie. (3.) Becauſe vengeance is not ſpeedily executed on an evil worker, preſumptuous ſinners harden themſelves in their iniquities.

3. God threatens to bring them to an awful reckoning, to detect their hypocriſy, and viſit them for their ſins. I will declare thy righteouſneſs; for this the Jews boaſted of, and went about to eſtabliſh; as the church of Rome alſo vaunts her purity, teaching the meritoriouſneſs of men's duties, and even pretends to works of ſupererogation: but theſe pretences ſhall quickly be confuted and confounded, either by the preaching of the pure goſpel, as at the reformation, and hereafter, when the Romiſh hierarchy ſhall be deſtroyed; or at God's bar of judgment; for then it will appear how vain is their plea; they ſhall not profit thee, cannot juſtify them before God, nor in any meaſure ſecure them from his wrath, which ſhall be revealed from heaven againſt all ſuch falſe pretenders to merit and human righteouſneſs. Note, (1.) No deluſion is more fatal than the conceit of our own righteouſneſs. (2.) The doctrine of the merit of works is the grand pillar of popery: would God the leaven were not ſtill deeply ſpread in many a profeſſing Proteſtant's heart!

13. ¶ [p] When thou crieſt, let thy companies deliver thee: but the wind ſhall carry them all away; vanity ſhall take them: [q] but he that putteth his truſt in me, ſhall poſſeſs the land, and ſhall inherit my holy mountain: 14. And ſhall ſay, [r] Caſt ye up, caſt ye up, prepare the way, take up the ſtumbling-block out of the way of my people. 15. For thus ſaith the high and lofty One [s] that inhabiteth eternity, whoſe name is Holy, [t] I dwell in the high and holy place; [u] with him alſo that is of a contrite and humble ſpirit, [x] to revive the ſpirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones. 16. For [y] I will not contend for ever, neither will I be always wroth: for the ſpirit ſhould fail before me, and the ſouls [z] which I have made.

[p] Pſ. xviii. 41.
[q] Pſ. xxxvii. 3. Jer. xvii. 7, 8.
[r] Chap. xl. 3. & lxii. 10.
[s] 1 Tim. vi. 16.
[t] Pſ. lxviii. 5. Zech. ii. 13.
[u] Pſ. xxxiv. 18. & li. 17. & cxxxviii. 6. Chap. lxvi. 2.
[x] Pſ. cxlvii. 3. Chap. lxi. 1.
[y] Pſ. lxxxv. 5. & ciii. 9. Mic. vii. 18.
[z] Num. xvi. 22.

v. 13—16. We have here,

1. The vanity of idols in the day of calamity. When thou crieſt, let thy companies deliver thee; but utterly unable will they be found to help. The ſinner's confidences will then fail him; the wind, or lighteſt breath of air, ſhall carry them away; the works of the ſelf-righteous will all prove at the bar of God altogether lighter than vanity itſelf.

2. The inſufficiency of idols and creature-confidences ſerves to magnify the all-ſufficiency of God, which will never diſappoint thoſe who make him their rock alone. He that putteth his truſt in me ſhall poſſeſs the land, and ſhall inherit my holy mountain; which refers either to the reſtoration of the Jews to their own land from Babylon, or, ſpiritually, contains a promiſe of bleſſing to all the faithful, who ſhall inherit the heavenly Canaan, and come to the eternal mount of God in glory. Note, Abiding faith in God is the ſureſt way to ſecure a bleſſed portion in time and eternity.

3. Proclamation is made to prepare the way for the return of the captive Jews, v. 14. Or this may be conſidered as the call of God by his miniſters to his people, to come out of Babylon myſtical; or, more generally, to depart from all the ways of ſin. He ſhall ſay, Caſt ye up, caſt ye up, prepare the way, that it may be plain and ſtrait, for ſuch is God's way; a highway, a way of holineſs; the wayfaring men, though fools, ſhall not err therein; and to this way it is the buſineſs of the ſpiritual guide to conduct men's ſouls. Take up the ſtumbling-block out of the way of my people: he who calls them forth, will bring them ſafely home. Whatever difficulties ſtand in their way, from fightings without, or corruptions within, they ſhall be removed and overcome.

4. The humble and contrite ſhall find the power and love of God engaged for them. For thus ſaith the high and lofty One that inhabiteth eternity, in the contemplation of whoſe tranſcendent perfections, greatneſs, and glory, our thoughts are loſt in wonder and adoration, whoſe name is Holy, eſſentially ſo in himſelf, the ſource of holineſs to all his creatures, and whoſe works and ways are ſo ordered, as moſt eminently to diſplay this adorable perfection; I dwell in the high and holy place; heaven is his throne, where he is pleaſed to make the brighteſt manifeſtations of his preſence, and whither we are taught to look up to him: yet, not confined to the ſkies, he fills heaven and earth, and condeſcends to take up his favoured abode with him alſo that is of a contrite and humble ſpirit; chearing and comforting the ſoul of the ſinner abaſed with the views of guilt, and healing with his precious grace the heart broken under a ſenſe of ſin; ſupporting his afflicted ones oppreſſed and perſecuted of men; and as their tribulations abound, making their conſolations abound alſo: to revive the ſpirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones, that they may not ſink under their burdens, or faint in deſpair, but by faith and patience bear up under their trials, and chearfully and ſteadily hold on their heavenly way. The celebrated Vitringa particularly applies this to the ſufferings of the Waldenſes and Bohemians, ſo cruelly perſecuted by the pope and his adherents; and others, to the latter days, when the antichriſtian powers ſhall prevail. Note, (1.) A humble and contrite ſpirit is among the beſt gifts of God. (2.) There is an endeared communion to be enjoyed with God, which only they can tell, in whoſe hearts he is pleaſed to manifeſt himſelf, as he doth not unto the world. (3.) Where God dwells no evil can approach, no real good be abſent.

5. Though God in merciful correction viſits his people, he will quickly remove the rod, when in humiliation the ſoul bows down before it. For I will not contend for ever, neither will I be always wroth, as the broken heart is ready to fear; but his anger is only for a moment, like a tender father, whoſe bowels yearn even when he chaſtiſes his child, ſo doth the Lord haſte to end his controverſy with his people, ready to pardon them inſtantly at their cry, and to ſupport them under, or ſave them out of, all their troubles: for the ſpirit ſhould fail before me, or be overwhelmed, and the ſouls which I have made; which God gives as a reaſon for his compaſſions: he knows our weakneſs, and will not lay upon us more than we can bear. Note, (1.) Our ſouls are God's, not merely by creation, but much more by redemption and regeneration. (2.) In heavy trials our hearts are ready to deſpair, but God is faithful, and will never leave nor forſake us.

17. For the iniquity of his covetouſneſs was I wroth, and ſmote him : [a] I hid me, and was wroth, and [b] he went on frowardly in the way of his heart. 18. I have ſeen his ways, [c] and will heal him : I will lead him alſo, and reſtore comforts unto him, [d] and to his mourners. 19. I create the fruit of the lips ; peace, peace [e] to him that is far off, and to him that is near, ſaith the LORD, and I will heal him. 20. But [f] the wicked are like the troubled ſea, [g] when it cannot reſt, whoſe waters caſt up mire and dirt. 21. [h] There is no peace, ſaith my God, to the wicked.

a Chap. xlv. 15.
b Chap. liii. 6.
c Jer. iii. 22.
d Chap. lxi. 3. Ezek. ix. 4. Mat. v. 4.
e Acts ii. 39. Eph. ii. 17.
f Job xv. 20, 21. & xx. 20.
g Prov. iv. 16.
h Chap. xlviii. 22.

v. 17—21. We have here, reproofs, promiſes, and warnings, according to the ſeveral ſtates of the people to whom the prophecy is addreſſed ; and they are levelled either againſt the Jews of that day, or thoſe ſad declenſions among Chriſtians, for which God for a while in anger ſuffers the man of ſin to prevail againſt them.

1. Their covetouſneſs was among their crying ſins, Spiritual as well as corporal idolatry defiled them : they prized gold more than God, and gain than godlineſs ; and therefore God was wroth, ſold them into the hands of the Chaldeans, and ſeemed for a while utterly to turn away from them. And this is remarkably the predominant ſin of the miniſters in proteſtant churches, who, while they are only ſeeking their own advantage and preferment, are loſing the ſouls of their people, ſeduced by the emiſſaries of popery ; and for this God hath a controverſy againſt them. Note, (1.) Covetouſneſs, though covered with many a ſpecious guiſe, is the ſin God abhors, and in miniſters of the goſpel is moſt peculiarly guilty. (2.) God's wrath, however little feared, will be proved terrible where it falls.

2. Their hearts were obſtinate, and, inſtead of being reformed by their afflictions, they went on frowardly ; fretting againſt the Lord, inſtead of falling low at his foot-ſtool ; and perſiſting in the way of their covetouſneſs, inſtead of returning from it. Note, The wicked heart of man is often made more furious by reſtraint ; and the ſevereſt afflictions are ineffectual to convert him, unleſs the grace of God accompanies them.

3. God's mercy triumphs over their perverſeneſs. We might well have expected to have heard him ſay, I have ſeen thy ways, and will deſtroy thee : but lo ! the very reverſe ; I have ſeen his ways, and will heal him. We cannot heal or help ourſelves ; our nature is utterly corrupt ; unleſs ſovereign grace interpoſe, we are undone for ever. This God ſees and knows, therefore he pardons freely, and, by the powerful influences of his Spirit, converts our ſouls, heals their inveterate diſeaſes, and draws us powerfully that we may follow him. I will lead him alſo in the paths of righteouſneſs for my name's ſake, and hold up his goings in the way ; and reſtore comforts to him and to his mourners brought to a deep and humbling ſenſe of their guilt, and, tho' once hardened, now by divine grace melted down with ſorrow and ſhame : God will therefore bind up their bleeding wounds, ſpeak comfortably to his people, and wipe every tear from their eyes. Note, (1.) It is a bleſſed ſymptom for good, when the ſoul begins to mourn over ſin. (2.) It is of God alone that our ſtubborn ſouls are ever brought to ſee and lament the evil of our ways. (3.) They who ſow in tears, are ſure to reap in joy.

4. The comfort God will reſtore ariſes eſpecially from a ſenſe of the peace and reconciliation made between him and the ſinner. I create the fruit of the lips ; God gives both the cauſe for thankſgiving, and opens the heart and lips to ſpeak his praiſe. Peace, peace to him that is far off, and to him that is near, ſaith the Lord ; peace with God, peace of conſcience, peace from all enemies, peace preſent and eternal : and to this the apoſtle ſeems to refer, Eph. ii. 17. and applies it to the preaching of the apoſtles, when not only the Jews, but the diſtant Gentile lands, heard the goſpel of peace, found pardon through the blood of the croſs, and were joined in one body, holding the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace : and I will heal him ; recovering them from all their ſins and backſlidings, reſtoring them to a ſtate of purity, and healing all their diviſions. Note, (1.) None can ſpeak peace to the troubled ſoul, till God create that fruit of the lips, and make the word of goſpel grace in the mouth of his ſervants effectual. (2.) All who are reſtored to peace with God, from that moment begin to experience the ſanctifying influences of his grace.

5. The impenitently wicked will finally periſh. They are like the troubled ſea, when it cannot reſt ; agitated by the winds of raging paſſions, toſſed to and fro with the ſtruggles of vile affections and jarring corruptions, and reſtleſs under the terrifying apprehenſions of the wrath which is revealed from heaven againſt all ungodlineſs and unrighteouſneſs of men : whoſe waters caſt up mire and dirt ; foaming out their own ſhame, polluting and defiling in their converſation, and all their comforts rendered bitter and loathſome by the curſe of God which mingles with them. There is no peace, ſaith my God, to the wicked ; no peace with God, no true peace of conſcience, no peace in death, no peace in eternity ; but the wrath of God abideth on them.

CHAP. LVIII.

This chapter is a reproof to all hypocritical profeſſors, and deſigned for thoſe who, under Hezekiah, conformed to his reformation, but continued unrenewed ; it is highly applicable alſo to the Scribes and Phariſees in our Saviour's time, and ſtands as a perpetual rebuke to all who follow their ſteps in every age, and which the faithful miniſters muſt boldly urge on men's conſciences, ver. 1. Obſerve, 1. The plauſible profeſſion of religion which they made, ver. 2. 2. The boaſts they made of that profeſſion, and the blame they laid upon God for taking no more notice of it. ver. 3. 3. The ſins they are charged with, which ſpoiled their faſts, ver. 4, 5. 4. Inſtructions given them how to faſt aright, ver. 6, 7. 5. Precious promiſes made to thoſe who faſt aright, ver. 8—12. 6. The like precious promiſes made to thoſe that ſanctify ſabbaths aright, ver. 13, 14.

1. CRY † aloud, ſpare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and [a] ſhew my people their tranſgreſſion, and the houſe of Jacob their ſins. 2. Yet [b] they ſeek me daily, and delight to know my ways, as a nation that did righteouſneſs, and forſook not the ordinance of their God : they aſk of me the ordinances of juſtice : they take delight in approaching to God.

† Heb. With the throat.
a Ezek. iii. 17.
b ~~Chap. xxix.~~ 13. Ezek. xxxiii. 31.

v. 1, 2. A commiſſion is given to the prophet to remonſtrate againſt the iniquity and hypocriſy of the people.

1. He is commanded to be earneſt and bold in the diſcharge of his office. Cry aloud, ſpare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet. Sinners are dull of hearing ; they need ſons of thunder to ſpread the dire alarm of their danger ; and miniſters who would be faithful to their truſt, muſt be free, bold, and earneſt in their reproofs, and accept no man's perſon : and ſhew my people their tranſgreſſion, and the houſe of Jacob their ſins, in which, notwithſtanding their pious profeſſions, they lived ; and which, diſtinctly and particularly, God's miniſters muſt charge home upon their conſciences, particularly their formality, ſelf-dependence, and hypocriſy.

2. Their pretences to religion muſt not impoſe upon him ; they were but an aggravation of their guilt, and called for a ſharper rebuke. Yet they ſeek me daily ; affect to appear ſollicitous in the ordinances of worſhip ; make it their conſtant practice to attend their devotions public and private ; and delight to know my ways ; in appearance, take pleaſure in attending the moſt powerful and evangelical preachers, and deſire to furniſh their heads with right ſentiments of religion ; as a nation that did righteouſneſs ; they would fain appear righteous unto men ; and forſook not the ordinance of their God, to whoſe favour they made a ſtrong claim, and joined in the exerciſes of worſhip, praying, reading, ſinging, communicating. They aſk of me the ordinances of juſtice ; enquiring of God's miniſters, and in their prayers teſtifying an earneſt concern to know the right way, and walk in it. They take delight in approaching to God ; pleaſed with their own ſervices, and either counting them meritorious in the eye of God, or expecting from them men's eſteem and admiration. Note, (1.) The moſt deteſtable character before God is the hypocrite. (2.) How far, how very far may men go, to appearance, in the way to heaven ? even to be admired and envied for their gifts and piety ; and yet in fact be only ſacrificing to their own drag, and ſo much nearer the belly of hell.

3. ¶ [c] Wherefore have we faſted, ſay they, and thou ſeeſt not ? wherefore have we [d] afflicted our ſoul, and thou takeſt no knowledge ? Behold, in the day of your faſt you find pleaſure, and exact all your † labours. 4. Behold, ye faſt for ſtrife and debate, [e] and to ſmite with the fiſt of wickedneſs : ye ſhall not faſt as ye do this day, to make your voice to be heard on high. 5. Is it [f] ſuch a faſt that I have choſen ? [g] ‡ a day for a man to afflict his ſoul ? [h] Is it to bow down his head as a bulruſh, and [i] to ſpread ſackcloth and aſhes under him ? wilt thou call this a faſt, and an acceptable day to the LORD ? 6. Is not this the faſt that I have choſen ? [k] to looſe the bands of wickedneſs, to undo the heavy burdens, and [l] to let the § oppreſſed go free, and that ye break every yoke ? 7. Is it not [m] to deal thy bread to the hungry, and that thou bring the poor [n] ‖ that are caſt out, to thy houſe ? [o] when thou ſeeſt the naked, that thou cover him, and that thou hide not thyſelf from [p] thine own fleſh ?

c Mal. iii. 14. Luke xviii. 9. &c.
d Lev. xvi. 29, 31. & xxiii. 27.
† Heb. Griefs.
e 1 Kings xxi. 9, 13. Luke xx. 47.
f Zech. vii. 5.
g Lev. xvi. 29.
‡ Or, to afflict his ſoul for a day.
h Mat. vi. 16.
i Eſth. iv. 3. Job ii. 8. Dan. ix. 3.
k Mic. vi. 10.
l Jer. xxxiv. 9.
§ Or, broken.
m Ezek. xviii. 7, 16. Mat. xxv. 35.
n Heb. xi. 37.
‖ Or, afflicted.
o Job xxxi. 19, 20. Mat. xxv. 36.
p Neh. v. 5. 1 John iii. 17.

Before Chriſt 699.

v. 3—7. Becauſe theſe hypocrites had ſo many good things to ſay of themſelves, they are here

1. Repreſented as expoſtulating with God for paying no more regard to them. Having an high opinion of themſelves, their doings and duties, they would fain have God expreſs the like approbation of them. Wherefore have we faſted, and thou ſeeſt not? wherefore have we afflicted our ſoul, and thou takeſt no knowledge? Note, (1.) There are thoſe who faſt and afflict their ſouls from a principle of pride and ſelf-righteouſneſs, as well as from a ſpirit of real humiliation. (2.) Many flatter themſelves God will reward the ſervices he in fact abhors. (3.) Nothing more highly exaſperates thoſe who value themſelves on their own goodneſs, than to have the vanity of their ſelf-dependence ſhown them, and the folly of their hopes detected.

2. The hypocriſy of their duties is rebuked. If God diſregarded them, he had abundant cauſe to do ſo. They took pleaſure, and prided themſelves in their faſts, as if they were more righteous than others; they exacted all their labours, rigorous and ſevere with their ſervants, and unrelenting towards their poor debtors. They faſted for ſtriſe and debate, appointing theſe ſolemn ſeaſons to perpetuate diviſions among them, by pretending to caſt the cauſe of their national afflictions on others ſins, inſtead of their own; or making their faſt days occaſion of ſtrife and debate, when and how they ſhould be obſerved; and to ſmite with the fiſt of wickedneſs, oppreſſing and ill-uſing their poor inſolvent debtors, whilſt they pretended to be humbling their ſouls for their own offences before God. Ye ſhall not faſt as ye do this day, to make your voice to be heard on high, either clamorous, againſt their debtors, or threatening their ſervants, or diſputing with each other, or with their pompous and loud devotions affecting extraordinary piety: Is it ſuch a faſt that I have choſen? a day for a man to afflict his ſoul? the mere wretched work of abſtaining from meat for a few hours, whilſt the heart continues utterly unhumbled and unrenewed? Is it to bow the head like a bulruſh? and to ſpread ſackcloth and aſhes under him? Is this enough, to make a parade of the external tokens of pretended humiliation? wilt thou call this a faſt, and an acceptable day to the Lord? can it be poſſible, that he ſhould be pleaſed or approve ſuch a farce of religious ceremony? No, God trieth the heart, hateth falſhood and hypocriſy, and will not accept the ſervices of feigned lips. Note, (1.) To pretend a zeal for religion, and live in the indulgence of iniquity, is vile hypocriſy, and the ſure way to deſtroy our own ſouls. (2.) A demure look, and affectation of auſterity, may paſs upon men for eminent piety, but God requireth truth in the inward parts.

3. God preſcribes the true nature of a religious faſt. He wills the ſoul ſhould be afflicted for ſin, whilſt the body is humbled in the duſt; and, as the ſureſt proof of it, that there be a change wrought in our lives. Is not this the faſt that I have choſen, to looſe the bands of wickedneſs? in general, to break off from every known ſin, from every wicked combination; to undo the heavy burdens from the poor ſervant, who groaned under unreaſonable commands, or from the poor debtor loaded with chains, who hath really nothing to pay, and to let the oppreſſed go free, obtaining his diſcharge from vexatious ſuits, or hard ſervitude, and that ye break every yoke, no more enſlaving or harraſſing their brethren. Is it not to deal thy bread to the hungry? whom want compels to many a faſt, and needs the bread, which in our fulneſs we are called to deny ourſelves; and that thou bring the poor that are caſt out to thine houſe, thoſe who ſhiver in the cold, and have no covering, or the poor refugees that ſuffer perſecution, as the word may be rendered, for conſcience ſake, and are driven from their own homes. When thou ſeeſt the naked, that thou cover him, not ſay, be warm, be filled, and give him not the things he needs, but clothe him; and that thou hide not thy face from thine own fleſh, not only thoſe near relatives, who have the firſt claim to our bounty, but eſteeming every man a brother, as of the ſame blood, and eſpecially thoſe of the houſhold of faith. Note, (1.) If any man ſeeth his brother in need, and ſhutteth up his bowels of compaſſion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him? (2.) They who have the deepeſt ſenſe of the divine charity of Jeſus to them, will ever be moſt ready to open their hearts and their hands to relieve the diſtreſſes of others.

8. ¶ Then [q] ſhall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health ſhall ſpring forth ſpeedily: and [r] thy righteouſneſs ſhall go before thee; [s] the glory of the LORD ſhall † be thy rere-ward. 9. [t] Then ſhalt thou call, and the LORD ſhall anſwer; thou ſhalt cry, and he ſhall ſay, Here I am: if thou take away from the midſt of thee the yoke, the putting forth of the finger, [u] and ſpeaking vanity: 10. And if thou draw out thy ſoul to the hungry, and ſatisfy the afflicted ſoul; then ſhall thy light riſe in obſcurity, and thy darkneſs be as the noon-day. 11. And [x] the LORD ſhall guide thee continually, [y] and ſatisfy thy ſoul in drought, and make fat thy bones: and thou ſhall be like a watered garden, [z] and like a ſpring of water, whoſe waters ‡ fail not. 12. And they that ſhall be of thee, [a] ſhall build the old waſte places: thou ſhalt raiſe up the foundations of many generations; and thou ſhalt be called, The repairer of the breach, [b] the reſtorer of paths to dwell in.

q Job xi. 17.
r Pſ. xxxvii. 6.
s Ex. xiv. 19. Chap. lii. 12.
† Heb. Gather thee up.
t Chap. xxx. 19. & lxv. 24.
u Pſ. xii. 2. & xxxvi. 3.
x Pſ. xxiii. 3. Chap. lvii. 18.
y Pſ xxxvii. 19.
z John iv. 14. & vii. 38.
‡ Or lie, or deceive.
a Chap. xlix. 8. & lxi. 4.
b Mat. xvii. 11.

v. 8—12. They who walk in the ways of grace, will ever find them paths of bleſſedneſs. We have here,

1. The gracious conduct enjoined. If thou take away from the midſt of thee the yoke, abſtaining from every oppreſſion and ſeverity towards their brethren, and labouring, as far as their influence and authority prevail, to reſtrain it in others; the putting forth of the finger, either as a mark of threatening or correction, or as a token of contempt and deriſion, and ſpeaking vanity, hypocritical addreſſes to God, flattering ſpeeches to men, or falſhood and lying in their dealings one with another. And if thou draw out thy ſoul to the hungry, not only relieving their wants, but expreſſing for them the tendereſt compaſſion, which doubly enhances the favour; and ſatisfy the afflicted ſoul, whatever are the cauſes of his diſtreſs, kindly affording him every aſſiſtance for his body or ſoul; then God will remember theſe works of faith and labours of love. Note, The world is full of compaſſionate objects, we ſhall not want opportunity, if we do not want a heart to do good.

2. Many and rich bleſſings are promiſed to thoſe who thus walk in love, and live to be uſeful.

(1.) God will remember them in the day of affliction, and cauſe their light to ſhine. Then ſhall thy light riſe in obſcurity, and thy darkneſs be as the noon day, out of every trouble God would deliver them. Swiftly, as the morning breaks, and pleaſingly, as the riſing ſun diſpels the ſhadows of the night, ſo ſhould their light break forth; their comfort, credit, and proſperity, ſhining more and more unto the perfect day; and thine health ſhall ſpring forth ſpeedily; if they had been afflicted in body or ſoul, the affliction ſhall be removed. Note, They will be no loſers who lend unto the Lord, by relieving his people in diſtreſs; he will repay, nay, over-pay them for their kindneſs.

(2.) The Lord will be their protector and guide: thy righteouſneſs ſhall go before thee, as the evidence of their fidelity, or rather, the Lord their righteouſneſs would go before them, make their title good to the heavenly glory, and anſwer every charge which might be brought againſt them; and the glory of the Lord ſhall be thy rere-ward, or ſhall gather thee: as a ſtrong body of troops, that protects the rear, and gathers up the ſtragglers that none be loſt, ſo the Lord will preſerve them ſafe in all their ways, and magnify his own glory in their ſalvation. The Lord ſhall guide thee continually, by his word, ſpirit, and providences, and this continually, night and day, leaſt any hurt them. Note, They are happily ſecured, who ſee the righteouſneſs of the Redeemer before them as their ſure acceptance, and the glory of God engaged for their ſupport and perſeverance.

(3.) All their prayers ſhall be heard and anſwered. Thou ſhalt call, and the Lord ſhall anſwer; thou ſhalt cry, and he ſhall ſay, Here am I, a very preſent help in trouble; whilſt they are ſpeaking, he will hear; he will be near them when affrighted they cry to him; and he is ready to do more and better for them than they are able to aſk or think. Note, If we have ſo great, ſo kind a friend ever at hand, ſo willing, ſo able to help us, let us never neglect to apply to him, and then, who can harm us?

(4.) God will ſupply all their wants, ſpiritual and temporal: He will ſatisfy thy ſoul in drought, when the lions lack and ſuffer hunger, they ſhall be fed, or when thirſting in this barren land for Chriſt, the water of life, for his righteouſneſs and grace, for his preſence and ſpirit, he will refreſh them; and make fat thy bones, giving them plenty, or rather comforting and ſtrengthening the ſouls of his people, and cauſing them to increaſe with the increaſe of God. And thou ſhalt be like a watered garden, adorned with divine graces as a garden blooming with beauty, breathing fragrance, and laden with the choiceſt fruits, and as a ſpring of water, whoſe waters fail not, the heavenly principle of grace implanted never failing, but ſpringing up into everlaſting life.

(5.) They ſhall be honoured as the inſtruments of building up the church of God; and they that ſhall be of thee ſhall build the old waſte places, which may refer to thoſe of the Jews, who, on their return from Babylon, reſtored the cities, and eſpecially Jeruſalem, that had lain in Ruins, or to thoſe God will employ in the goſpel to build up the waſte places of the world, as it may be rendered, the whole earth having been covered with the deſolations of ignorance and ſin, till by the preaching of the word the Gentiles were converted, and chriſtian ſocieties eſtabliſhed; and thou ſhalt raiſe up the foundations of many generations, as when the temple was raiſed from its rubbiſh, ſo ſhall the church of Chriſt riſe beautiful and glorious, and endure to all generations: and thou ſhalt be called the repairer of the breach, and the reſtorer of paths to dwell in; they ſhall be honoured by thoſe who have been called through their miniſtry; the breaches which abounding iniquity had made ſhall be repaired, all diviſions healed, and by their means the paths of truth and holineſs become happily frequented.

Before Chriſt 699.

[c] Chap. lvi. 2.
[d] Pſ. xl. 4.
[e] Job xxii. 26.
[f] Deut. xxxii. 13. Chap. xxxiii. 16.
[g] Pſ. cxxxv. 12.

13. ¶ [c] If thou turn away thy foot from the ſabbath, from doing thy pleaſure on my holy day, and call the ſabbath [d] a delight, the holy of the LORD, honourable, and ſhalt honour him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleaſure, nor ſpeaking thine own words: 14. Then [e] ſhalt thou delight thyſelf in the LORD, and I will cauſe thee [f] to ride upon the high places of the earth, and feed thee with [g] the heritage of Jacob thy father; for the mouth of the LORD hath ſpoken it.

v. 13, 14. A ſerious and conſcientious obſervance of the ſabbath day, is one of the beſt evidences, and ſureſt means of having the heart devoted to God.

1. The ſanctification of this day is deſcribed, v. 13. If thou turn away thy foot from the ſabbath, from trampling upon it, by profane neglect, making it a day of travelling, idleneſs, or viſiting; from doing thy pleaſure on my holy day, not making it a day of vain amuſements, or ſpending it in thoſe recreations, that at another ſeaſon may be lawful; and call the ſabbath a delight, welcoming its return with gladneſs, counting theſe ſacred hours the happieſt portion of our time, and ſpending them with joy in his bleſſed ſervice of prayer, praiſe, meditation, godly converſation, &c. the holy of the Lord, reſpecting its divine inſtitution; and honourable, employing ourſelves in it, as may moſt conduce to advance the honour and glory of God; and ſhalt honour him, who appointed this day of reſt, not doing thine own ways in any ſecular buſineſs, or the work of common days; nor finding thine own pleaſure, turning it into a day of ſauntering, diverſion, or vanity; nor ſpeaking thine own words, the thoughts of this world, and the cares of it ſhould be baniſhed from our minds, and all our converſation be employed about the things of God, and how we may ſecure to ourſelves a part in his eternal reſt.

2. The benefit of ſuch an improvement of the Lord's day, will be great; for then ſhalt thou delight thyſelf in the Lord; abundant conſolation will be the bleſſed fruit, and clearer diſcoveries of the riches of the grace and love of Chriſt be made to the ſoul, ſo that by experience we ſhall ſay, one day in thy courts is better than a thouſand; and I will cauſe thee to ride upon the high places of the earth, in ſafety from every enemy, exalted to honour; or, ſpiritually, to live above the earth, and have our converſation in heaven, enjoying the comfort and dignity of being ſons of God: and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father, with all the bleſſings of the covenant of promiſe, and the foretaſtes of eternal bliſs, more precious than the richeſt proviſion of Canaan, the heritage of Iſrael: for the mouth of the Lord hath ſpoken it, and therefore we may confidently truſt him, for he will never diſappoint our hopes. Heaven and earth ſhall paſs away, but his word ſhall never paſs away, until the whole be fulfilled.

CHAP. LIX.

In this chapter we have ſin appearing exceeding ſinful, and grace exceeding gracious; and as what is here ſaid of the ſinner's ſin, ver. 7, 8. is applied to the general corruption of mankind, Rom. iii. 15. ſo what is here ſaid of a Redeemer, ver. 20. is applied to Chriſt, Rom. xi. 26. 1. The particular ſins are inſtanced which kept good things from God's people, ver. 1—8. 2. They are told both what the judgments were which they had brought upon their own heads, ver. 9—11. and what the ſins were that provoked God to ſend thoſe judgments, ver. 12—15. 3. It is here promiſed, that notwithſtanding this, God would work deliverance for them, purely for his own name's ſake, ver. 16—19. and would reſerve mercy in ſtore for, and entail it upon them, ver. 20, 21.

[a] Num. xi. 23. Chap. l. 2.
[b] Chap. lvii. 17.
† Heb. made him to hide.
[c] Chap. i. 15.
[d] Jer. ix. 3.
[e] Eccl. iv. 1.
[f] Jer. v. 1.
[g] Job xv. 35. Pſ. vii. 14. Mic. ii. 1.
[h] Job viii. 14, 15. Chap. xxviii. 15.
[i] Prov. i. 16. Rom. iii. 15.

1. BEHOLD, the LORD's hand is [a] not ſhortned, that it cannot ſave: neither his ear heavy,
that it cannot hear. 2. But your iniquities have ſeparated between you and your God, and [b] your ſins have † hid his face from you, that he will not hear. 3. For [c] your hands are defiled with blood, and your fingers with iniquity, [d] your lips have ſpoken lies, your tongue hath muttered perverſeneſs. 4. [e] None calleth for juſtice, [f] nor any pleadeth for truth: they truſt in vanity, and ſpeak lies; they [g] conceive miſchief, and bring forth iniquity.
5. They hatch cokatrice-eggs, and weave the ſpider's web: he that eateth of their eggs dieth, and that which is cruſhed breaketh out into a viper.
6. [h] Their webs ſhall not become garments, neither ſhall they cover themſelves with their works: their works are works of iniquity, and the act of violence is in their hands. 7. [i] Their feet run to evil, and they make haſte to ſhed innocent blood: their thoughts are thoughts of iniquity, waſting and deſtruction are in their paths.
8. The way of peace they know not, and there is no ‡ judgment in their goings: [k] they have made them crooked paths: whoſoever goeth therein ſhall not know peace.

Before Chriſt 699.

‡ Or right.
[k] Prov. ii. 15.

v. 1—8. They had complained before of God's inattention to their faſting and prayers: God here farther convinces them that the fault was in themſelves.

1. It was their ſins, not want of power or grace in him, that occaſioned the continuance of their afflictions. Behold, the Lord's hand is not ſhortened, that it cannot ſave, he is the ſame, yeſterday, to-day, and for ever, length of time, or ſtrength of foes, make no difference with him; neither is his ear heavy, that it cannot hear; his regard for, and attention to his people, is unchangeable, and they who cry to him in ſimplicity will find him ever near to anſwer and relieve them; if our prayers return not with a bleſſing, it is becauſe we aſk amiſs, or grow weary and faint in our minds. But your iniquities have ſeparated between you and your God, and your ſins have hid his face from you, that he will not hear. Here is the grand obſtacle, and this remaining, how can we hope to ſpeed with him? See Pſ. lxvi. 18. Note, (1.) Though God may be really our God, yet by our perverſeneſs we may provoke him to withdraw; and for their ſins he juſtly leaves his own people in bitterneſs to lament his abſence. (2.) Sin is the accurſed thing that breeds all our ſorrows: oh that we ſaw it in its true colours, and hated it as it deſerves! (3.) It is in vain for us to hope for an anſwer of peace to our prayers, whilſt allowed iniquity cuts off the intercourſe between God and our ſouls.

2. God had charged them with ſin in general, here a variety of particulars is alledged, fully vindicating the divine procedure againſt them.

[1.] Their hearts were deſperately wicked; their thoughts are thoughts of iniquity, this is ever uppermoſt in their minds; they conceive miſchief, as the embryo is formed in the womb, ſo in their hearts the purpoſe of ſin ripens into act, and they bring forth iniquity. They hatch cockatrice-eggs, and weave the ſpider's web; their ſchemes are curiouſly formed, with much art and labour, and though they appear fair without, they are big with poiſon, and the moſt pernicious conſequences. He that eateth of their eggs dieth; whoever creduloufly embraces the falſe doctrines they broach, or is ſeduced to follow the evil practices they patronize, brings upon himſelf ſwift deſtruction: and that which is cruſhed breaketh out into a viper; either the foot that incautiouſly treads in the way of ſuch, is in danger of being ſtung, or the very attempt to cruſh them is dangerous, as expoſing thoſe who do it to their malignity and perſecution. Their webs ſhall not become garments, neither ſhall they cover themſelves with their works. They who believe their lies will be fatally diſappointed, and be left naked before the wrath of God; as will eſpecially be the caſe of all who ſet up their own works and duties as the ground of their acceptance with God, which can no more ſerve for a robe of righteouſneſs, than a ſpider's web for a garment.

[2.] Out of the abundance of their heart, their mouth ſpeaketh; your lips have ſpoken lies, and your tongue hath muttered perverſeneſs; falſe and fraudulent in their dealings, backbiters and whiſperers; or it may refer to the heretical tenets they broached and openly ſupported, to the great ruin of mens ſouls.

[3.] Their actions correſponded with their evil hearts: your hands are defiled with blood, and your fingers with iniquity, either ſhed in paſſion, or under pretext of juſtice, or rather with the blood of martyrs, who, oppoſing their wicked ways, ſuffered for their fidelity. This left upon their conſcience deep defilement, and cried for vengeance. Their feet run to evil, eager in the purſuit, and impatient to gratify their malice and revenge, they make haſte to ſhed innocent blood: waſting and deſtruction are in their paths: they ſpread deſolations around them, ruining both body and ſoul, and their ways will conduct them at laſt to everlaſting perdition.

[4.] All truth and juſtice is baniſhed; none calleth for juſtice; the injured dare not complain, becauſe power is with their oppreſſors, and none will intereſt themſelves in their behalf, or ſee them righted: nor any pleadeth for truth, ſupporting the cauſe of oppreſſed innocence, or vindicating the truths of God from the errors and hereſies with which theſe wicked men have obſcured and perverted them. They truſt in vanity, deceive themſelves as well as others with falſe confidences; or they truſt in lies, hoping, by bold and confident aſſertions, to carry the cauſe againſt truth and juſtice. The way of peace they know not; how ſhould they, when all their thoughts, words, and deeds, are oppoſite to God and godlineſs? and there is no judgment in their goings, no juſtice in their dealings with men, no diſcernment of the right way before God, no apprehenſion of their own danger: they have made them crooked paths, all their ways are perverſe before God; whoſoever goeth therein ſhall not know peace; no true peace of conſcience, or ſolid ſatisfaction, but miſery, like their ſhadow, muſt attend them, and the wrath of God, preſent and eternal, abide upon them. Note, Many cry peace to their ſouls, whoſe ways inevitably tend to everlaſting perdition.

9. ¶ Therefore is judgment far from us, neither doth juſtice overtake us: [l] we wait for light, but behold obſcurity; for brightneſs, but we walk in darkneſs. 10. [m] We grope for the wall like the blind, and we grope as if we had no eyes: we ſtumble at noonday as in the night; we are in deſolate places as dead men. 11. We [n] roar all like bears, and [o] mourn ſore like doves: we look for judgment, but there is none; for ſalvation, but it is far off from us. 12. For our [p] tranſgreſſions are multiplied [q] before thee, and our ſins teſtify againſt us: for our tranſgreſſions are with us, and as for our iniquities, we know them: 13. In tranſgreſſing and lying againſt the LORD, and departing away from our God, ſpeaking oppreſſion and revolt, conceiving and [r] uttering from the heart words of falſhood. 14 And judgment is turned away backward, and juſtice ſtandeth afar off: for truth is fallen in the ſtreet, and equity cannot enter. 15. Yea, truth faileth, and he that departeth from evil † maketh himſelf a prey: and the LORD ſaw it, and it diſpleaſed him that there was no judgment.

[l] Jer. viii. 15.
[m] Deut. xxviii. 29. Job v. 14. Lam. iv. 14.
[n] Pſ. xxii. 1. & xxxviii. 8.
[o] Chap. xxxviii. 14. Ezek. vii. 16.
[p] Chap. i. 4.
[q] Pſ. xc. 8.
[r] Mat. xii. 34.
† Or is accounted mad. See 2 Kin. ix. 11. 1 Pet. iv, 4.

v. 9—15. Tho' in general there appears to have been a grievous departure from God, yet in every age a few faithful are found, and they are here repreſented confeſſing and bewailing the prevailing ſins and miſery of their people.

1. Their miſery was great under the power of their oppreſſors. No juſtice could be obtained from man, and God in righteous judgment refuſed to vindicate their quarrel and execute vengeance on their foes. Their expectations were grievouſly diſappointed, they waited for light, but behold obſcurity, for brightneſs, or brightneſſes, ſome eminent interpoſition of God to reſcue them from their afflictions, but we walk in darkneſs, in thickeſt darkneſs, their troubles increaſing rather than diminiſhing, and their hopes ſinking faſt into black deſpair, v. 9. Totally at a loſs what way to direct their courſe, like blind men they groped for the wall; and, though they had God's word, as a light ſhining in a dark place, they neglected or miſunderſtood it, ſo that in the noon-day they ſtumbled as in the night; they were ready to give up all for loſt; in deſolate places, dejected, and retiring to mournful ſolitudes to pour out their griefs, or in fatneſſes, where they had abundant means of grace, yet not quickened by them: others render the word, in ſepulchres, as dead men, their ſtate deſperate and irrecoverable as that of the dead, v. 10. under which calamities, bitter were their groanings, roaring as bears, or mourning as doves; they ſaw no proſpect of deliverance, and God ſeemed to have utterly withdrawn from them his ſalvation, v. 11. Note, (1.) When power is in the hands of oppreſſors, little juſtice can be expected. (2.) They who hope for the light of God's countenance, yet walk in the way of iniquity, muſt needs be diſappointed. (3.) None ſo blind as thoſe, who in the midſt of goſpel day, hate the light of truth: juſtly doth God leave them to the darkneſs they have choſen. (4.) Sinners are ever ſwinging to extremes, in proſperity ſecure, in adverſity deſpairing. (5.) When the mourning of the ſufferer is more for his ſins than his calamities, there is then hope of relief.

2. The faithful, who in the name of the people lament their ſufferings, confeſs their ſins as the juſt cauſe of them: all the charges God had brought againſt them are acknowledged to be altogether righteous and true. Their tranſgreſſions were many, great, and aggravated, eſpecially as a profeſſing people; for which their conſciences condemned them, and which it were folly to attempt concealing from God, v. 12. particularly in tranſgreſſing and lying againſt the Lord, being falſe to their vows, and faithleſs in breaking their allegiance to him, or miſrepreſenting his truth, as now is done, by robbing the Redeemer of the glories of his godhead, and denying his vicarious righteouſneſs and atonement: and departing away from our God, from his commands, worſhip, and ordinances; ſpeaking oppreſſion and revolt, not merely rebels themſelves, but daring to utter their treaſonable deſigns againſt God's honour and glory, in order to ſeduce others to join in their defection, and where they have power, oppreſſing thoſe that are zealous to oppoſe their falſe doctrines and pernicious ways; conceiving and uttering from the heart words of falſhood, contriving how to propagate their errors, and earneſt in maintaining them, v. 13. Juſtice had ceaſed to exert herſelf, and truth was no longer regarded; by which all the bonds of civil ſociety were diſſolved; or it may reſpect the ſtate of the decayed churches of proteſtantiſm, where the true doctrines of the goſpel are generally exploded and trampled upon. Thoſe who ſhould be the firſt to ſee them maintained, are the chief apoſtates from them, whilſt the few that remain true to the principles of free grace in Jeſus Chriſt, are oppreſſed without redreſs, and find no advocate, and the door of admiſſion into the miniſtry ſhut againſt them, v. 14. So that truth faileth, yea, and he that departeth from evil maketh himſelf a prey; when falſhood and iniquity are become faſhionable, it is dangerous to be ſingularly faithful; it ruins a man's intereſts in the world, and expoſes him to the perſecution of his brethren, who cannot bear the reproof of his words and ways ſo oppoſite to their own; or it may be rendered, is reckoned a madman, treated as an enthuſiaſt, as melancholic, or diſturbed in his ſenſes, for ſuch his conduct makes him appear to thoſe, who, deſtitute of all zeal for God's glory themſelves, and only anxious about worldly advantage, regard others, who act on principles ſo utterly different, as fools or mad. And the Lord ſaw it, and it diſpleaſed him that there was no judgment; he obſerved it, and was juſtly diſpleaſed at the abounding iniquity, peculiarly criminal in a people profeſſing godlineſs.

16. ¶ And [s] he ſaw that there was no man, and wondered that there was no interceſſor: therefore [t] his arm brought ſalvation unto him, and his righteouſneſs, it ſuſtained him. 17. For [u] he put on righteouſneſs as a breaſt-plate, and an helmet of ſalvation upon his head; and he put on the garments of vengeance for cloathing, and was clad with zeal as a cloak. 18. [x] According to their † deeds, accordingly he will repay, fury to his adverſaries, recompence to his enemies, to the iſlands he will repay recompence. 19. So [y] ſhall they fear the name of the LORD from the weſt, and his glory from the riſing of the ſun: when the enemy ſhall come in [z] like a flood, [a] the Spirit of the LORD ſhall ‡ lift up a ſtandard againſt him. 20. ¶ And [b] the Redeemer ſhall come to [c] Zion, and [d] unto them that turn from tranſgreſſion in Jacob, ſaith the LORD. 21. As for me, [e] this is my covenant with them, ſaith the LORD, My Spirit that is upon thee, and my words, which I have put in thy mouth, ſhall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy [f] ſeed, nor out of the mouth of thy ſeed's ſeed, ſaith the LORD, from henceforth and for ever.

[s] Ezek. xxii. 30.
[t] Pſ. xcviii. 1. Chap. lxiii. 5.
[u] Eph. vi, 14, 17. 1 Theſſ. v. 8.
[x] Chap. lxiii. 6.
† Heb. deſervings.
[y] Pſ. cxiii. 3. Mal. i. 11.
[z] Rev. xii. 15.
[a] Zech. iv. 6.
‡ Or put him to flight.
[b] Rom. xi. 26.
[c] Chap. ii 2.
[d] Deut. xxx. 2, 3. Acts iii. 26.
[e] Heb. viii. 10. & x. 16.
[f] Rom. ix. 8. Gal. iii. 29.

v. 16—21. We have heard before how ſin abounded, we ſee here how grace much more abounds.

1. God beheld their deplorable caſe with an eye of pity. He ſaw that there was no man, none, comparatively ſpeaking, for ſome few, as appears, lamented their unhappy caſe, but in general, there was no man who cared to eſpouſe the ſinking cauſe of juſtice and truth, or laid to heart the evil of their ways; and wondered that there was no interceſſor to ſtand in the gap, and plead, like Abraham for Sodom, if it were poſſible to avert the impending judgments. At this God is ſaid to wonder; for, ſpeaking after the manner of men, conſidering what means and mercies he had vouchſafed them, ſuch a general apoſtacy was ſtrange. Note, It is very bad with a nation, when her praying advocates ceaſe, or are few; it is to be feared then deſtruction is near.

2. To ſave them from utter ruin, God is pleaſed graciouſly to interpoſe. Therefore his arm brought ſalvation to him; when they had no power nor reſolution to help themſelves, he magnified his ſtrength in their weakneſs, and by himſelf, and for his own glory, aroſe to ſave them, which may be applied to the deliverance of the Jews from Babylon, but according to the following verſes, more eminently refers to the great ſalvation of Jeſus, who by his own arm vanquiſhed the ſpiritual enemies of his people, and wrought out a complete ſalvation for them; and his righteouſneſs it ſuſtained him, his own divine righteouſneſs was his ſupport, and enabled him effectually to accompliſh the redemption of his people; or his faithfulneſs to his promiſes, notwithſtanding their provocations, engaged him to deliver them; for he put on righteouſneſs as a breaſt-plate, being in his own perſon perfectly pure and holy, all the fiery darts of the enemy were repelled, and when the prince of the world came to tempt him, he found him invulnerable; or by his righteous procedure, in delivering his people, and deſtroying their enemies, he eminently ſecured his own honour and faithfulneſs; and an helmet of ſalvation upon his head, clad in that divine panoply, which renders him terrible to his foes, and moſt adorable and amiable in the eyes of his friends: and he put on the garments of vengeance for cloathing, and was clad with zeal as a cloak, zeal for his own glory, and his people's cauſe, vengeance againſt his enemies and theirs, which now to the uttermoſt he reſolves to execute. According to their deeds, accordingly he will repay, fury to his adverſaries, recompence to his enemies, to the iſlands he will repay recompence, a juſt retaliation for the wrongs they have committed againſt his people, and which will extend to all, even the moſt diſtant nations, that have any way oppreſſed or perſecuted them. Note, (1.) Let not wicked men think with impunity to trample on the faithful, their day is coming, big with wrath and fury, the day of vengeance of our God. (2.) Let not the perſecuted ſaints of God faint under their trials, their Lord is at hand, and he will aſſuredly ſave them to the uttermoſt.

3. The glory of God in this ſalvation ſhall be ſpread far and wide. So ſhall they fear the name of the Lord from the weſt, and his glory from the riſing of the ſun: from eaſt to weſt the knowledge of the Redeemer's work ſhall be ſpread, and God be magnified for his grace, who hath viſited and redeemed his people, and he will alſo continue to protect and preſerve them for ever. When the enemy ſhall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord ſhall lift up a ſtandard againſt him; which ſome interpret of a flood of hereſy and perſecution, which under the reign of antichriſt ſhall break in upon the nations: others of the irruption of the Turks and Tartars in the eaſt, and the Goths and Vandals in the weſt; and it may more generally be applied to the floods of ungodlineſs that the great enemy of mankind in every place is ſeeking to raiſe, in order to overwhelm the cauſe of God and truth: but in vain, for the Lord will, in his appointed time, break the Mahomedan and Popiſh yoke, and by his Spirit, wherever the goſpel is preached, doth continually glorify his grace in the ſalvation of ſinners from the power of ſatan, and the dominion of ſin.

4. This ſalvation will moſt eminently be manifeſted in that day of the Redeemer's appearing, when he ſhall take to him his great power and reign: and hereunto the apoſtle applies the words, Rom. xi. 25. 26. And the Redeemer ſhall come to Zion, and unto them that turn from tranſgreſſion in Jacob, ſaith the Lord, when having gathered in the fulneſs of the Gentiles, his ancient people the Jews ſhall at laſt be converted to him, and turning from their long courſe of tranſgreſſion, and their inveterate rejection of the Meſſiah, they ſhall receive him, and enter into the common fold of the church, where all diſtinction between Jew and Gentile will ceaſe. As for me, this is my covenant with them, for God hath not caſt away his people, whom he foreknew, but there are covenant bleſſings ſtill in ſtore for them; my Spirit, which is upon thee, and my words, which I have put in thy mouth, the Redeemer having received his meſſage from his Father, and the Spirit without meaſure for the diſcharge of his office as Mediator, and in order to furniſh his miniſters and people out of his fulneſs unto the end of time, ſhall not depart out of thy mouth, nor out of the mouth of thy ſeed, nor out of the mouth of thy ſeed's ſeed, ſaith the Lord, from henceforth and for ever. God will have always a church, and maintain the miniſtry of his goſpel in the world, and by his Spirit will conſtantly make it effectual to the converſion of mens ſouls; and eſpecially in the laſt days a more abundant out-pouring of this word and Spirit will be ſeen, and the knowledge of the Lord cover the earth, as the waters cover the ſea. Note, (1.) The church of Chriſt is founded on a rock, againſt which the floods ſhall not prevail. (2.) It is by the miniſtry of the word that the church is maintained and preſerved. (3.) The word is made effectual by the Spirit, which accompanies it to the heart, and Chriſt hath promiſed, in the power of his grace, to be with his miniſters always, even to the end of the world. (4.) When the Spirit of God is pleaſed to convert the ſoul, his work is for ever; he will keep thoſe whom he calls, and they ſhall never periſh.

CHAP. LX.

The vaſt extent of the goſpel church is the ſubject of this chapter, in which it is promiſed, 1. That the church ſhall be enlightened, ver. 1, 2. 2. That it ſhould be greatly enlarged, ver. 3—8. 3. That the new converts ſhould be very ſerviceable to it, ver. 9—13. 4. That it ſhould be in great honour and repute among men, ver. 14—16. 5. That it ſhould enjoy a profound peace and tranquillity, ver. 17, 18. 6. That the members of it being all righteous, the glory and joy of it ſhall be everlaſting, ver. 19—22.

1. [a] ARISE, ſhine, for [b] thy light is come, and [c] the glory of the LORD is riſen upon thee. 2. For behold, [d] the darkneſs ſhall cover the earth, and groſs darkneſs the people: but the LORD ſhall ariſe upon thee, and his glory ſhall be ſeen upon thee. 3. And [e] the Gentiles ſhall come to thy light, and kings to the brightneſs of thy riſing. 4. [f] Lift up thine eyes round about, and ſee; all they gather themſelves together, [g] they come to thee, thy ſons ſhall come from far, and thy daughters ſhall be nurſed at thy ſide. 5. Then thou ſhall ſee and flow together, and thine heart ſhall fear, and be enlarged, becauſe [h] the † abundance of the ſea ſhall be converted unto thee, the ‡ forces of the Gentiles ſhall come unto thee. 6. The multitude of camels ſhall cover thee: the dromedaries of Midian and Ephah: all [i] they from Sheba ſhall come: they ſhall bring [k] gold and incenſe, and they ſhall ſhew forth the praiſes of the LORD. 7. [l] All the flocks of Kedar ſhall be gathered together unto thee, the rams of Nebaioth ſhall miniſter unto thee: they ſhall come up with acceptance on mine altar, and I will glorify the houſe of my glory. 8. Who are theſe that fly as a cloud, and [m] as the doves to their windows?

[a] Eph. v. 14.
[b] John i. 9.
[c] Mal. iv. 2.
[d] Luke i. 79.
[e] Chap. xlix. 6, 23. Rev. xxi. 24.
[f] Chap. xlix. 18.
[g] Chap. xlix. 20, 21. & lxvi. 12.
[h] Rom. xi. 25. Rev. xxi. 26.
† Or noiſe.
‡ Or wealth. Ver. 11. Chap. lxi. 6.
[i] Pſ. lxxii. 10.
[k] Chap. lxi. 6. Mat. ii. 11.
[l] See Mal. i. 11.
[m] See Cant. ii. 14.

v. 1—8. The glory and increaſe of the church of Chriſt are here beautifully repreſented.

1. Great light and glory are beſtowed on her: Ariſe, ſhine, for thy light is come, the light of the goſpel illuminating a benighted world, wakening up ſinners from the ſleep of ſpiritual death, and turning their miſery into joy and gladneſs; for the glory of the Lord is riſen upon thee, Chriſt, the ſun of righteouſneſs, with healing in his wings, manifeſting, in the moſt tranſcendent manner, the glory of God, in the pardon and ſalvation of his people. For behold, the darkneſs ſhall cover the earth, and groſs darkneſs the people: either when this light ſhould break forth it would be the more welcome and ſurprizing, becauſe of the darkneſs, ignorance, idolatry, and ſuperſtition, which every where prevailed, or it ſpeaks the diſtinguiſhing privilege of thoſe to whom the goſpel was preached, who, like Iſrael in Goſhen, had light in their dwellings, whilſt the reſt of the world, to whom it hath not come, or who have rejected it, are like the land of Egypt, covered with darkneſs that may be felt: but the Lord ſhall ariſe upon thee, and his glory ſhall be ſeen upon thee, as it reſted on the tabernacle in the pillar of a cloud and fire, not only protecting his church ſafely, but making her appear beautiful and glorious, the joy of the whole earth. Note, (1.) Without the light of the goſpel, the higheſt attainments of human wiſdom are but folly and darkneſs. (2.) They who have ſeen Chriſt ariſing upon their ſouls in his glory, are bound to ſhine to his praiſe, and let their light appear before men, that they may take knowledge of them that they have been with Jeſus.

2. A great increaſe of the church is promiſed. Allured by the goſpel word, and ſtruck with the bright examples of believers, the Gentiles ſhall become converts, and bow down before Chriſt the Sun of Righteouſneſs, v. 3. On every ſide behold, they flock together, as children to their parents, to be nurſed with the ſincere milk of the word. See Acts xi. 5. With pleaſing ſurprize the church will behold this ſtrange acceſſion, and in a tranſport of joy receive the multitude of mariners, and armies of Gentile ſoldiers, that among others ſhall be converted unto the truth, v. 5. From Midian and Ephah they ſhall come in vaſt companies, riding on camels and dromedaries. From Sheba they ſhall bring gold and incenſe, See Matt. ii. 11. and ſhew forth the praiſes of the Lord, for his mercy in calling them to himſelf. v. 6. The inhabitants of Kedar and Nebaioth, in Arabia, whoſe riches chiefly conſiſted in their flocks, ſhall offer themſelves and their ſubſtance up to God, and through Chriſt their ſpiritual ſacrifices ſhall be accepted, and God glorified in their converſion, v. 7. As a cloud before the wind, and as the doves flying to their windows, ſo thick, unanimous, openly, and eagerly, ſhall the Gentiles haſten into the church of God, whilſt with wonder and delight, the faithful welcome them to their reſt. Note, (1.) When our ſouls, like the dove, are weary with wandering, or purſued by our ſpiritual enemies, as birds of prey, we muſt fly to Chriſt for ſhelter, and under the ſhadow of his wings ſhall be ſafe, and find a pleaſing reſting-place. (2.) It is among the chief delights of a ſoul that loves the Lord Jeſus Chriſt in ſincerity, to behold his kingdom eſtabliſhed, and many converted unto him.

9. [n] Surely the iſles ſhall wait for me, and the ſhips of Tarſhiſh firſt, [o] to bring thy ſons from afar, [p] their ſilver and their gold with them, [q] unto the name of the LORD thy God: and to the Holy One of Iſrael, becauſe he hath glorified thee. 10. And [r] the ſons of ſtrangers ſhall build up thy walls, and [s] their kings ſhall miniſter unto thee: for in my wrath I ſmote thee, but in my favour have I had mercy on thee. 11. Therefore [t] thy gates ſhall be open continually, they ſhall not be ſhut day nor night, that men may bring unto thee the † forces of the Gentiles, and that their Kings may be brought. 12. For [u] the nation and kingdom that will not ſerve thee, ſhall periſh: yea, thoſe nations ſhall be utterly waſted. 13. [x] The glory of Lebanon ſhall come unto thee, the fir-tree, the pine-tree, and the box together, to beautify the place of my ſanctuary, and I will make [y] the place of my feet glorious. 14. The ſons alſo of them that afflicted thee, ſhall come bending unto thee; and all they that deſpiſed thee, [z] ſhall bow themſelves down at the ſoles of thy feet; and they ſhall call thee, The city of the LORD, the Zion of the Holy One of Iſrael.

[n] Pſ. lxxii. 10.
[o] Gal. iv. 26.
[p] Pſ. lxviii. 30. Zech. xiv. 14.
[q] Jer. iii. 17.
[r] Zech. vi. 15.
[s] Chap. xlix. 23.
[t] Rev. xxi. 25.
† Or wealth. Ver. 5.
[u] Zech. xiv. 17, 19. Mat. xxi. 44.
[x] Chap. xxxv. 2. & xli. 19.
[y] See 1 Chro. xxviii. 2. Pſ. cxxxii. 7.
[z] Chap. xlix. 23. Rev. iii. 9.

v. 9—14. The ſame ſubject is here purſued as in the foregoing verſes.

1. The church ſhall gain vaſt acceſſions of ſtrength and wealth. The diſtant iſles ſhall wait for, and welcome the Saviour; the ſhips of Tarſhiſh readily convey the ſons of God to Zion, the ſpiritual church, with all their riches, willingly offering themſelves, and all they have, to be employed in his bleſſed ſervice, as the grateful return for the grace and glory he hath beſtowed upon them, v. 9. The ſons of ſtrangers, ſuch as were the Gentile nations, ſhall now greatly contribute to build up the church, and kings miniſter in the bleſſed work; as when Conſtantine, and other Chriſtian emperors and kings, eſpouſed the cauſe of truth, and as will be more eminently the caſe in the days to come. For in my wrath I ſmote thee; which may refer to the days of pagan perſecution, or to the prevailing power of Antichriſt, permitted for the coldneſs, formality, corruptions, and diviſions, among God's profeſſing people: but in my favour have I had mercy on thee; as when under the Chriſtian emperors the church enjoyed reſt; and as will be the caſe when Chriſt, having ſubdued the oppreſſors of his people, will ſet up his kingdom univerſally in the world, v. 10. and great will be the glory of it, v. 13. As the cedars of Lebanon, and every beautiful tree, contributed to the ſplendor of the temple, ſo ſhall thoſe who by the goſpel are called into the church, by the purity and holineſs of their lives adorn their profeſſion, and bring glory to God. Note, (1.) When the heart is truly given up to God, we ſhall liberally employ our wealth and influence in ſupport of his cauſe. (2.) The higheſt honour of kings is to be miniſters for good to Chriſt's people.

2. Many of the enemies of the church ſhall become converts. Thoſe who deſpiſed and afflicted the people of God ſhall be brought in deep humiliation to acknowledge their ſin, and highly reſpect thoſe they before inſulted and abuſed, v. 14. Thus the ſufferings of the martyrs often confounded their perſecutors; and many who have with bitter enmity oppoſed the goſpel, have been at laſt convinced by the word, and joined the people they had before reviled. And this will be more eſpecially the caſe in the expected day of power and grace, when many papiſts, pagans, and Mahometans, will be turned from darkneſs unto light, and make open profeſſion of the goſpel.

3. The gates of the church are open night and day continually; all are welcome to enter, and multitudes are daily coming in of all ranks and degrees: and this denotes the ſecurity in which they dwell, for none can diſturb their repoſe, v. 11. Note, The gate of mercy in Chriſt is ever open, and ſinners of every rank and degree are ſure of admiſſion into the city of God, whenever in faith and prayer they return to him.

4. Thoſe who obſtinately refuſe the proffers of grace, and perſiſt in their impenitence, muſt rue for it. They will periſh, and be utterly waſted, be they never ſo many, never ſo mighty, v. 12. Note, They who bow not before the calls of grace, muſt be broken under the iron rod of vengeance, 2 Theſ. i. 8.

15. Whereas thou haſt been forſaken and hated, ſo that no man went through thee, I will make thee an eternal excellency, a joy of many generations. 16. Thou ſhalt alſo ſuck the milk of the Gentiles, and [a] ſhalt ſuck the breaſt of kings, and thou ſhalt know that [b] I the LORD am thy ſaviour and thy redeemer, the mighty One of Jacob. 17. [c] For braſs I will bring gold, and for iron I will bring ſilver, and for wood braſs, and for ſtones iron: I will alſo make thy officers peace, and thine exactors righteouſneſs. 18. [d] Violence ſhall no more be heard in thy land, waſting nor deſtruction within thy borders; but thou ſhalt call [e] thy walls ſalvation, and thy gates praiſe. 19. [f] The ſun ſhall be no more thy light by day, neither for brightneſs ſhall the moon give light unto thee: but the LORD ſhall be unto thee an everlaſting light, and [g] thy God thy glory. 20. [h] Thy ſun ſhall no more go down, neither ſhall thy moon withdraw itſelf: for the LORD ſhall be thine everlaſting light, and the days of thy mourning ſhall be ended. 21. [i] Thy people alſo ſhall be all righteous: [k] they ſhall inherit the land for ever, [l] the branch of my planting, [m] the work of my hands, [n] that I may be glorified. 22. [o] A little one ſhall become a thouſand, and a ſmall one a ſtrong nation: I the LORD [p] will haſten it in his time.

[a] Chap. xlix. 23. & lxi. 6. & lxvi. 11, 12.
[b] Chap. xliii. 3. & xlix. 26.
[c] 1 Kings x. 27.
[d] Zech. ix. 8.
[e] Chap. xxvi. 1.
[f] Rev. xxi. 23. & xxii. 5.
[g] Zech. ii. 5.
[h] Am. viii. 9.
[i] Chap. lii. 1. & lxii. 12.
[k] Pſ. xxxvii. 11, 22. Mat. v. 5.
[l] Chap. lxi. 3. Mat. xv. 13.
[m] Chap. xxix. 23. Eph. ii. 10.
[n] Eph. i. 12.
[o] Acts ii. 41.
[p] Hab. ii. 3.

v. 15—22. What honour and reſpect ſhould be paid the church by thoſe who were once enemies and perſecutors, hath been intimated, v. 14. and here we ſee what juſt reaſon there would appear for it.

1. Her excellence and ſtability is for ever ſecured by the power and grace of the Saviour. Whereas thou haſt been forſaken and hated; to appearance, deſerted of God, and the object of the world's enmity; ſo that no man went through thee; a place unfrequented, like the ruins of Jeruſalem, whither none went up to worſhip: I will make thee an eternal excellency, to be had in the higheſt eſteem, adorned with the righteouſneſs of Jeſus, and all the graces of the Spirit, brighter than robes of wrought gold, ſhining with goſpel light, beautiful in diſcipline, and in the dignity, decency, ſimplicity, and order of her worſhip: a joy of many generations; as long as time ſhall laſt, ſo long muſt this church be the joy of all its members on earth; and to eternity its glory will extend, when in heaven the collected body ſhall for ever ſhine with their exalted head; and this ſhall be done, that all Chriſt's people may acknowledge the power, grace, faithfulneſs, and love of the Lord their Saviour and Redeemer, the mighty One of Jacob, v. 16. Note, Deſpicable as the church of Chriſt and her poor members now may appear, they will ſhortly be ſeen in a different point of view, when all thoſe who deſpiſed and hated them will wonder and periſh.

2. Her riches will be great. Thou ſhalt ſuck the milk of the Gentiles, and the breaſt of kings; their richeſt treaſures ſhall be offered to ſerve the intereſts of the church of Chriſt. The moſt precious metals ſhall be ſo plentiful, that gold and ſilver will be as common as braſs and iron, and iron and braſs become as wood and ſtones; which ſome refer to the excellence of the goſpel diſpenſation above the Moſaical; and others, to the glory of the latter day, when in ſpiritual gifts and graces, and in purity of doctrine and diſcipline, the church will as much exceed its preſent ſtate, as gold and ſilver do the baſer metals.

3. The governors, whether civil or eccleſiaſtical, ſhall be men of juſtice and uprightneſs. No oppreſſion will be committed, no injuſtice patronized; but the officers ſhall be men of peace, that ſeek to heal all differences, and accommodate every diſpute; and the exactors, the tax-gatherers, who uſed to fleece the people, ſhall be righteouſneſs, approve themſelves with the greateſt honeſty and integrity, v. 17.

4. All wars and rumours of wars ſhall ceaſe, and perſecution be at an end; and the moſt uninterrupted peace and proſperity will be eſtabliſhed. Salvation, ſtronger than walls and bulwarks, ſhall keep the people of God ſafe from every enemy. All their gates, the places of concourſe, ſhall be called praiſe, their aſſemblies continually reſounding with ſongs of triumph for redeeming love; a ſtate of bliſs and happineſs to which the church hath never yet arrived, v. 18.

5. God will be the everlaſting light and glory of his redeemed, v. 19, 20. And here the prophet ſeems to riſe from the happy days of the church on earth, to the conſummation of her bliſs in heaven, where they ſhall need neither ſun nor moon, but ſhall enjoy the brighter preſence of God, their everlaſting light and glory. No clouds ſhall ever interrupt the bliſsful viſion; no darkneſs of affliction, deſertion, or temptation, for a moment intervene; but bleſſedneſs, abiding and eternal as the ſource from whence it flows, be the portion of the redeemed. Thy ſun ſhall no more go down, but ſhine with unclouded ſplendor through the ages of eternity; nor thy moon withdraw itſelf; never will there be the leaſt diminution of their bliſs; for the Lord ſhall be thine everlaſting light; when this bright ſun plucked from his ſphere ſhall be extinguiſhed, and this pale moon in darkneſs hide her head, with infinitely tranſcending brightneſs ſhall the eternal God ſhine on his choſen, and everlaſting as his being ſhall be their joy and glory. And the days of thy mourning ſhall be ended; a period put to all their ſorrows, every tear wiped from their eye, and the cauſe of all, ſin and ſuffering, be for ever baniſhed from the place. O Lord! thy kingdom come!

6. They ſhall be perfected in holineſs. Thy people alſo ſhall be all righteous; not only as they are accepted in Chriſt, but as they are by the Holy Ghoſt ſanctified wholly in body, ſoul, and ſpirit, and made meet for the inheritance among the ſaints in light. They ſhall inherit the land for ever, the heavenly Canaan; the branch of my planting, ingrafted into Chriſt, and, after flouriſhing on earth, tranſplanted with him to the paradiſe of God; the work of my hands: the whole of ſalvation, from beginning to end, will in heaven be evidently ſeen and acknowledged to be God's own work, to the glory of his rich and ſovereign grace; that I may be glorified, as he will then be, in and by all his ſaints.

7. They ſhall be an innumerable multitude. A little one ſhall become a thouſand, and a ſmall one a ſtrong nation: few and feeble as the ſaints of God were in every age and place, when collected they will appear numerous and formidable, a hoſt like the hoſt of God. I the Lord will haſten it in his time; however difficult it may appear, or long as the final ſalvation of the faithful may ſeem to be delayed, the event is ſure, and in God's appointed ſeaſon it ſhall be accompliſhed. May we with faith and patience wait for it.

CHAP. LXI.

In this chapter we have, 1. Chriſt publiſhing to a loſt world the everlaſting goſpel, ver. 1—3. 2. The proſperity and enlargement of his church, ver. 4—9. 3. Her joy herein, and a promiſe made her of manifeſting her righteouſneſs and glory to all nations, ver. 10, 11.

1. [a] THE Spirit of the Lord GOD is upon me, becauſe [b] the LORD hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek, he hath ſent me [c] to bind up the broken-hearted, [d] to proclaim liberty to the captives, and [e] the opening of the priſon to them that

[a] Chap. xi. 2. Luke iv. 18, &c. John i. 33.
[b] Pſ. xlv. 7.
[c] Pſ. cxlvii. 3. Chap. lvii. 15.
[d] 2 Tim. ii. 26.
[e] Chap. xlii. 7. & xlix. 9.

that are bound : 2. To proclaim [f] the acceptable year of the LORD, and [g] the day of vengeance of our God, [h] to comfort all that mourn : 3. To appoint unto them that mourn † in Zion, [i] to give unto them beauty for aſhes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praiſe for the ſpirit of heavineſs, that they might be called trees of righteouſneſs, [k] the planting of the LORD, that he might be glorified.

[f] Lev. xxv. 9.
[g] Chap. lxiii. 4.
[h] Chap. lvii. 18. Mat. v. 4.
† Or, for.
[i] Pſ. xxx. 11.
[k] Chap. lx. 21.

v. 1—3. Our Lord, in the opening of his miniſtry at Nazareth, Luke iv. 17—21. hath left us no doubt to whom this prophecy belongs. We have here,

1. His qualifications for, and ordination to, the office of Mediator. The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me ; without meaſure the Father had given it unto him, that he might be enabled for the arduous work he had undertaken : becauſe the Lord hath anointed me ; he inveſted him with full power and authority for the diſcharge of his offices, as the prophet, prieſt, and king of his people.

2. In conſequence of this appointment he opens his commiſſion, which was, to preach good tidings unto the meek ; thoſe who are lowly in their own eyes, to whom free pardon and grace will be welcome news : or the poor, as Luke xi. 18. both in ſpirit and purſe, for unto theſe the goſpel is preached. He hath ſent me to bind up the broken-hearted ; thoſe, whoſe bleeding hearts, pierced with a ſenſe of guilt and ſin, no other phyſician can cure, he is ſent to bind up, to comfort, and heal them : to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the priſon to them that are bound. Captives are we all to ſin and Satan ; not even born free, and by willing ſubjection alſo under heavier bondage, from which, by reaſon of our native corruption, we are utterly unable to deliver ourſelves. He is come to purchaſe our liberty reſpecting God, by paying a ranſom for us in ſatiſfaction to the divine juſtice, which had delivered us up to the executioner of wrath : to reſcue us by his power from the hands of our enemy ; deſtroying death, and him that had the power of it, and providing a ſufficiency of grace and ſtrength to looſe our captive bands, and enable us to come forth at his call, delivered alike from the power and puniſhment of our ſins. To proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord ; as the jubilee trumpet proclaimed the releaſe of ſervants, the reſtoration of loſt inheritances, and reſt from all labour ; ſo doth the goſpel proclaim, with more acceptable ſound, a glorious liberty among the ſons of God ; a reſtoration to our forfeited inheritance, through the blood and righteouſneſs of a Redeemer ; and an eternal reſt in glory, ſecured not for a year, but for the ages of eternity : and the day of vengeance of our God ; the day of vengeance taken on Chriſt for our ſins, or rather on the powers of darkneſs, when he triumphed over them on his croſs, and which the ſinner, who obſtinately rejects his ſalvation, may expect, when he cometh on the clouds of heaven with power and great glory. To comfort all that mourn under a ſenſe of guilt, or corruption, or affliction, or who compaſſionately melt at others woes or danger ; and this he doth by his great and precious promiſes, which afford balm for every grief. To appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, or the mourners of Zion, whoſe hearts are tenderly affected with her corruptions, diviſions, declenſions, and ſufferings : to give unto them beauty for aſhes. In the original there is an elegant paranomaſia, Pheer for Epher ; they who lay in aſhes, and were disfigured with duſt, ſhall be raiſed up in beauty : the oil of joy for mourning ; for in ſeaſons of affliction they neglected to anoint themſelves, as at other times : the garments of praiſe for the ſpirit of heavineſs ; their ſackcloth changed for brighter robes : expreſſions which are deſigned to deſcribe the bleſſed change which is wrought upon the ſinner's heart by the goſpel of Jeſus, when from the duſt of death and hell, from the depths of deſpair and miſery, he is reſcued, refreſhed with the oil of Divine Grace, adorned with robes of a Redeemer's righteouſneſs, and his natural deformity removed, through that new creation in Chriſt Jeſus, whereby he puts on the image of God in righteouſneſs and true holineſs, and rejoices in God his Saviour with that holy chearfulneſs which adorns his profeſſion. That they might be called trees of righteouſneſs, whoſe bleſſed fruit proves the ſoundneſs of their root ; the planting of the Lord, to whoſe rich grace they are indebted for all ; that he may be glorified, this being his great deſign ; and to ſhew forth his glory in our lips and our lives, muſt be our chief labour.

4. ¶ And they ſhall [l] build the old waſtes, they ſhall raiſe up the former deſolations, and they ſhall repair the waſte cities, the deſolations of many generations. 5. And ſtrangers ſhall ſtand and [m] feed your flocks, and the ſons of the alien ſhall be your plowmen, and your vine-dreſſers. 6. But [n] ye ſhall be named the prieſts of the LORD : men ſhall call you the miniſters of our God : [o] ye ſhall eat the riches of the Gentiles, and in their glory ſhall you boaſt yourſelves. 7. ¶ [p] For your ſhame you ſhall have double ; and for confuſion they ſhall rejoice in their portion : therefore in their land they ſhall poſſeſs the double : everlaſting joy ſhall be unto them. 8. For [q] I the LORD love judgment, [r] I hate robbery for burnt-offering, and I will direct their work in truth, and [s] I will make an everlaſting covenant with them. 9. And their ſeed ſhall be known among the Gentiles, and their offspring among the people : all that ſee them ſhall acknowledge them, that [t] they are the ſeed which the LORD hath bleſſed.

[l] Chap. lviii. 12.
[m] Acts xx. 28.
[n] Chap. lx. 17. & lxvi. 21. 1 Pet. ii. 5, 9. Rev. i. 6. & v. 10.
[o] Chap. lx. 5, 6, 16.
[p] Chap. xl. 2. Zech. ix. 12.
[q] Pſ. xi. 7.
[r] Chap. i. 11, 13.
[s] Chap. lv. 3. Jer. xxxii. 40.
[t] Chap. lxv. 23.

v. 4—9. The promiſes here made might be deſigned for the encouragement of the Jews on their return from Babylon ; but they extend to the church of Chriſt, and every ſinner delivered from the bonds of corruption.

1. They ſhall be enabled to rebuild their waſte places, and repair their former deſolations, v. 4. and when deeper deſolations were ſpread over the world by ſin, ignorance, and idolatry, God was pleaſed to ſend his Son, and by his miniſtry, and thoſe whom he hath ordained, to raiſe up a glorious church in the midſt of a deſart world : and in every ſoul recovered by divine grace, the ruins of corruption are alſo repaired, and the heart renewed as a holy temple, an habitation for God through the Spirit.

2. They ſhould no longer be in ſubjection to others, but have plenty of ſervants at their command, v. 5. Or this may better refer to thoſe of the Gentile converts, who being put in truſt with the goſpel, became paſtors to the flock of Chriſt, and huſbandmen in his field, labouring aſſiduouſly in the work of the miniſtry, to ſow the ſeed of eternal life in men's hearts.

3. They ſhall be exalted and enriched ; honoured as prieſts of God, and enriched by the treaſures of the Gentiles, the kings of Perſia liberally aſſiſting them at their return, v. 6. But this belongs more particularly to the church of Chriſt, where every member is conſecrated a prieſt unto God, into which the riches of the Gentiles are brought, who at firſt contributed abundantly to the relief of the poor ſaints at Jeruſalem, and whoſe wealth is ſtill devoted to the ſervice of Chriſt and his people : and in their glory ſhall you boaſt yourſelves ; in Chriſt, the glory of all the faithful. Or it means, that the Jewiſh believers would rejoice to ſee the honour put upon the Gentiles, in making them fellow heirs, and of the ſame body. Note, (1.) Deſpicably as the men of the world account of God's miniſters, their honour in his ſight is great. (2.) They employ riches aright, who uſe them to promote the intereſts of Chriſt, and to ſerve his church and people.

4. They ſhall have abundant cauſe of joy and rejoicing, v. 7. For your ſhame you ſhall have double, or, for your double ſhame ; for that load of ignominy which the profeſſion of the goſpel at firſt expoſed them to, God would doubly repay them in inward conſolations ; and for confuſion they ſhall rejoice in their portion ; God can make them take pleaſure in reproaches, and his love will be a portion that will abundantly ſatisfy them, in ſpite of all tribulations they may be called to endure. Therefore in their land they ſhall poſſeſs the double ; whatever loſs they ſuſtain for Chriſt, he can give them in this world more in kind, or, what is better, double their inward comfort and joy, which is the beſt poſſeſſion : everlaſting joy ſhall be unto them ; they ſhall not only here be ſatisfied with the fulneſs of his houſe, but inherit an eternity of glory as their exceeding great reward.

5. God will be their guide, v. 8. to teach them his will, and how to pleaſe him. I the Lord love judgment, and therefore will right the wrongs of his people : or he urges it as an argument for them to walk in uprightneſs before him, and in the paths of juſtice reſpecting each other. I hate robbery for burnt-offering ; as when by their own deeds and duties men pretend to offer an acceptable ſacrifice to God, which is regarded as the higheſt robbery of the Redeemer's glory, in whoſe righteouſneſs we can be alone accepted : or it is a rebuke to thoſe who, like the Phariſees, were ſtrict in the obſervance of their ceremonial offerings, yet in temper were covetous, and offered in ſacrifice the fruits of their oppreſſion. From a heart enſlaved by iniquity no pleaſing ſervice can be rendered to God. And I will direct their work in truth ; his people ſhall be taught of him the true worſhip and way to pleaſe him : and I will make an everlaſting covenant with them, in which he engages to make them his people, and be their God for ever and ever ; and happy are the people who are in ſuch a caſe !

6. Their poſterity ſhall be bleſſed. Their ſeed ſhall be known among the Gentiles, and their offspring among the people ; diſtinguiſhed for their ſound faith and unfeigned piety : all that ſee them ſhall acknowledge them, that they are the ſeed which the Lord hath bleſſed ; the ſpiritual ſeed of Abraham, and bleſſed with all ſpiritual bleſſings in Chriſt Jeſus. And this, with all the foregoing verſes, ſome apply to the calling of the Jews in the latter day, when they ſhall poſſeſs an honourable place in the church of God. Note, Though to affect or deſire eſteem even from good men for our conduct would be evil, yet when, unſought, ſerious godlineſs engages their regard, it is an honourable diſtinction.

10. [u] I will greatly rejoice in the LORD, my ſoul ſhall be joyful in my God, for [x] he hath clothed me with the garments of ſalvation, he hath covered me with the robe of righteouſneſs, as a bridegroom † decketh himſelf with ornaments, and [y] as a bride adorneth herſelf with her jewels. 11. For as the earth bringeth forth her bud, and [z] as the garden cauſeth the things that are ſown in it to ſpring forth: ſo the Lord GOD will cauſe righteouſneſs and praiſe to ſpring forth before all the nations.

u Chap. lxvi. 10. Luke i. 46, 47.
x Pſ. cxxxii. 9, 16. Phil. iii. 9.
† Heb. Decketh as a prieſt. Exod. xxviii. 2, 3.
y Rev. xxi. 2.
z Num. xxiv. 6. Chap. lviii. 11.

v. 10, 11. Theſe ſeem to be the words of the church triumphing in God her Saviour.

1. For what he hath done for her. I will greatly rejoice in the Lord, my ſoul ſhall be joyful in my God; an intereſt in his love known and believed, cannot but fill the ſoul with joy unſpeakable, and full of glory. When we can ſay he is my God, we may well rejoice in him greatly: here we need fear no exceſs, whilſt he is the glorious object of our delight. For he hath cloathed me with the garments of ſalvation, he hath covered me with the robe of righteouſneſs; without, moſt ſplendidly adorned with the complete robe of a Redeemer's righteouſneſs, ſpotleſs and pure; within, all glorious with the garments of ſalvation, the divine tempers and graces, with which the Spirit of God arrays the ſouls of the redeemed: as a bridegroom decketh himſelf with ornaments, coming from his chamber compleatly dreſſed, or in ſacerdotal robes, glorious as thoſe the high-prieſt wore; and as a bride adorneth herſelf with jewels, glittering and ſplendid for the day of her eſpouſals: and thus are believers preſented to Chriſt, perfect in the comelineſs he hath put upon them, and decked with the beauty of holineſs. May my ſoul be thus arrayed!

2. For what he will do for her. Theſe robes of righteouſneſs and garments of ſalvation ſhall endure for ever; nor can time ever change their glorious hue. For as the earth bringeth forth her bud, and as the garden cauſeth the things that are ſown in it to ſpring forth; ſo that from year to year, in regular ſucceſſion, the earth brings forth her increaſe; ſo the Lord God will cauſe righteouſneſs and praiſe to ſpring forth before all the nations. To the end of time this divine righteouſneſs ſhall be the ornament of every believer, and the ſubject of our ceaſeleſs praiſe; and as it is wholly the Lord's prerogative both to work it out for us, and to apply it to us, to him alone muſt all the glory be aſcribed.

CHAP. LXII.

The buſineſs of prophets was both to preach and pray. In this chapter, 1. The prophet determines to apply himſelf cloſely and conſtantly to this buſineſs, ver. 1. 2. God appoints him and others of his prophets to continue to do ſo, for the encouragement of his people during the delays of their deliverance, ver. 6, 7. 3. The promiſes are here repeated and ratified of the great things God would do for his church; (1.) It ſhall be made honourable in the eyes of the world, ver. 2. (2.) It ſhall appear to be very dear to God, precious and honourable in his ſight, ver. 3—5. (3.) It ſhall enjoy great plenty, ver. 8, 9. (4.) It ſhall be releaſed out of captivity, and grow up again into a conſiderable nation, particularly owned and favoured by heaven, ver. 10—12.

1. FOR Zion's ſake will I not hold my peace, and for Jeruſalem's ſake I will not reſt, [a] until the righteouſneſs thereof go forth as brightneſs, and the ſalvation thereof as a lamp that burneth. 2. And the Gentiles ſhall ſee thy righteouſneſs, and all kings thy glory: and [b] thou ſhalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of the LORD ſhall name. 3. Thou ſhalt alſo be [c] a crown of glory in the hand of the LORD, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God. 4. [d] Thou ſhalt no more be termed, [e] forſaken; neither ſhall thy land any more be termed deſolate: but thou ſhalt be called † Hephzi-bah, and thy land, ‡ Beulah: for the LORD delighteth in thee, and thy land ſhall be married. 5. For as a young man marrieth a virgin, ſo ſhall thy ſons marry thee: and as the bridegrom rejoiceth over the bride, [f] ſo ſhall thy God rejoice over thee.

a Pſ. xxxvii. 6.
b Ver. iv. 12. Chap. lxv. 15.
c Zech. ix. 16.
d Hoſ. i. 10. 1 Pet. ii. 10.
e Chap. liv. 6, 7.
† i. e. My delight is in her.
‡ i. e. Married.
f Chap. lxv. 19. Zeph. iii. 17.

v. 1—5. With earneſt zeal the prophet profeſſes,

1. His determined purpoſe to labour ceaſeleſs in the execution of his office. For Zion's ſake will I not hold my peace, and for Jeruſalem's ſake I will not reſt: the concerns of God's church and people lay deep imprinted on his heart, and therefore his ſermons are frequent and urgent, and his prayers to God fervent in their behalf: until the righteouſneſs thereof go forth as brightneſs, and the ſalvation thereof as a lamp that burneth; either till her cauſe ſhould be clearly vindicated, and her enemies deſtroyed; or rather, till Chriſt, whoſe righteouſneſs and ſalvation are wrought out for her, ſhall cloath her therewith, and perfect her in holineſs: and ſo long will this prophecy endure; for Iſaiah, though dead, yet ſpeaketh. Note, (1.) The intereſts of Chriſt's kingdom are the great concern which lies upon a faithful miniſter's heart. (2.) In the ſervice of immortal ſouls he is ready to ſpend and be ſpent. (3.) They who labour in faith, will aſſuredly ſee the fruit of their labours..

2. The prophet expreſſes his confidence that God would hear and anſwer him. And the Gentiles ſhall ſee thy righteouſneſs; the perfection of righteouſneſs the church poſſeſſes in Chriſt, or the juſtice of her cauſe: and all kings thy glory; ſhall behold and admire, and deſire to partake of it; as when Conſtantine the Roman emperor, and others after his example, declared themſelves Chriſtians; and will be more univerſally the caſe in the day of the church's triumphs. And thou ſhalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of the Lord ſhall name; as a mark of that diſtinguiſhed honour and dignity to which ſhe ſhall be advanced by him who is the fountain of honour, who ſpeaks and it is done, See Rev. ii. 17. iii. 12. Thou ſhalt alſo be a crown of glory in the hand of the Lord; glorious in his righteouſneſs and grace; valued by him as the richeſt crown that ſhall for ever adorn his brows; and held in his hand, that none may pluck his people from him, nor rob him of the glory of their ſalvation: and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God. Thus diſtinguiſhed, thou ſhalt no more be termed forſaken, neither ſhall thy land any more be termed doſolate, as the Gentile world ſeemed to be, before the preaching of the goſpel: but thou ſhalt be called Hephzi-bah, a new and honourable title, ſignifying, My delight is in her; and thy land, Beulah, or married; for the Lord delighteth in thee, and in his love and favour all bliſs and bleſſedneſs is comprehended: and thy land ſhall be married; from eternity the contract ſubſiſted, but the Lamb's wife hath not yet made herſelf ready, till the fulneſs of the Gentiles is come in, then the heavenly bridegroom ſhall bring her home to himſelf, to his eternal manſions in glory. For as a young man marrieth a virgin; fond of his bride, delighting in her company, and from the union a numerous offspring is expected; ſo ſhall thy ſons marry thee; united to the church in warm affection, joining in her ordinances, delighting in the communion of the ſaints, and ſeeking to increaſe their number: and as a bridegroom rejoiceth over the bride, ſo ſhall thy God rejoice over thee: the church of the redeemed are the joy of the Redeemer's ſoul, in whoſe preſent converſion he is happy, and in them to all eternity will be his delight.

6. [g] I have ſet watchmen upon thy walls, O Jeruſalem, which ſhall never hold their peace day nor night: ye † that make mention of the LORD, keep not ſilence; 7. And give him no ‡ reſt, till he eſtabliſh, and till he make Jeruſalem a praiſe in the earth. 8. The LORD hath ſworn by his right hand, and by the arm of his ſtrength, § Surely, [h] I will no more give thy corn to be meat for thine enemies, and the ſons of the ſtranger ſhall not drink thy wine, for the which thou haſt laboured: 9. But they that have gathered it, ſhall eat it, and praiſe the LORD; and they that have brought it together, ſhall drink it [i] in the courts of my holineſs.

g Ezek. iii. 1. xxxiii. 9.
† Or, that are the Lord's remembrancers.
‡ Heb. Silence.
§ Heb. If I give, &c.
h Deut. xxviii. 31, &c. Jer. v. 17.
i Deut. xii. 12. & xiv. 26. & xvi. 11.

v. 6—9. The gracious proviſion God hath made for his people is here declared.

1. For their ſpiritual wants; giving them faithful miniſters, and pouring out a ſpirit of prayer and ſupplication on them.

[1.] I have ſet watchmen on thy walls, O Jeruſalem, which ſhall never hold their peace day nor night. The church militant is a city, defended by the walls of God's everlaſting love, yet beſieged by the powers of ſin, Satan, and the world inceſſantly, who fight, but cannot prevail. The miniſters of the goſpel are the watchmen appointed to give warning of approaching danger; and their ſtation demands, (1.) Fidelity and zeal for the cauſe of Chriſt and his people. (2.) Conſtancy and watchfulneſs, that in ſeaſon, out of ſeaſon, they preach, rebuke, exhort. (3.) Willingneſs to endure hardſhip, and not ſhrink from any danger or reproach, to which they may be expoſed. (4.) Inceſſant prayer, that they may be enabled to diſcharge their miniſtry, and be ſupported by that almighty grace, without which mortal ſpirits muſt faint and fail.

[2.] The prayers of the people muſt ſecond the preaching of the word. Ye that make mention of the Lord, are his profeſſing people, keep not ſilence, but be inſtant at a throne of grace; and give him no reſt, for importunity will not offend him, till he eſtabliſh, and till he make Jeruſalem a praiſe in the earth, by the purity of her doctrine and diſcipline; by eminent holineſs in the members; by their fervent love and charity one towards another; by vaſt acceſſions of converts; and, among theſe, the honourable of the earth. Note, (1.) God's people delight to mention his name, and to ſpeak to his praiſe of the things he hath done for their ſouls. (2.) Prayer is the natural and conſtant language of the heart touched by redeeming grace. (3.)

Nothing lies nearer the hearts of the faithful, than the intereſts of the Redeemer's kingdom. (4.) Perſevering importunity in prayer is ſure to find an anſwer of peace.

2. For their temporal wants. When their enemies prevailed, their country was ravaged, and their harveſt and vintage ſerved for a ſpoil; but now God, having for ever broken their arm, will feed his people with abundance of good things: they ſhall eat their bread and drink their wine with a merry heart in the courts of his holineſs, as the prieſts and Levites there partook of the conſecrated things, with holy ſobriety, and enlarged thankfulneſs. This may refer in part to the people of the Jews; but though for a while they enjoyed their land, they ſoon were, and continue to be, diſpoſſeſſed of it: therefore this muſt chiefly refer to the happy days of the church's proſperity, when God will give his people the abundance of outward bleſſings: or, as corn and wine may alſo figuratively ſignify the rich proviſions of the goſpel, which for ever undiſturbed the redeemed ſhall poſſeſs, and by an oath God confirms their faith in the immutability of his counſel and the eternity of their inheritance. Note, (1.) Whatever labours we employ, even for the things of this life, it is God only who giveth the increaſe. (2.) Temporal gifts are then truly bleſſings, when we receive them as coming from God's hand, and employ them for his glory. (3.) God, who gives us of this world's good, wills that we ſhould richly enjoy it, and praiſe him for his bounty. (4.) God's wine is to be drunk in the courts of his holineſs with temperance and ſobriety, elſe our bleſſings, abuſed, will prove our greateſt curſe.

k Chap. xl. 10. ¶ Go through, go through the gates; [k] prepare
3. & lvii. 14. you the way of the people, caſt up, caſt up the highway, gather out the ſtones, lift up a ſtandard for the l Rom. x. people. 11. Behold, the LORD hath proclaimed [l] un-18. to the end of the world, [m] Say ye to the daughter of m Zech. ix. Zion, Behold, thy ſalvation cometh; behold, [n] his re-9. Mat. xxi. ward is with him, and his † work before him. 12.
5. John xii. And they ſhall call them, [o] The holy people, the redeem-
15. ed of the LORD: and thou ſhalt be called, Sought n Chap. xl. out, a city [p] not forſaken.
10. Rev.
xxii. 12.
† Or, recompenſe.
o Chap. lx.
21.
p Ver. 4.

v. 10—12. Though there may be here an alluſion to the return of the Jews from Babylon at Cyrus's proclamation, this ſeems, with the preceding part of the chapter, to belong to the goſpel church.

1. Preparation is made for the return of captive ſouls. Go through, go through the gates; the priſon-doors are thrown open for their eſcape: prepare you the way of the people, caſt up, caſt up the high-way, gather out the ſtones: the miniſters of God, as John the Baptiſt, muſt prepare the way, remove all obſtacles, and make plain the road before their face; and eſpecially lift up a ſtandard for the people; diſplay the banner of Chriſt in the goſpel, around which they muſt aſſemble, that in a body, under his guidance and protection, they may march in the high-way of holineſs, towards the heavenly mount of Zion.

2. The glorious appearance of Chriſt in his church is proclaimed, who comes as the Captain of their ſalvation to lead the way. Behold, the Lord hath proclaimed unto the end of the world, to all nations under heaven, among whom the goſpel ſhall be preached; Say ye to the daughter of Zion, the members of the church, not only among the Jews, but the gentiles alſo, Behold, thy ſalvation, or thy Saviour, cometh, with power and great glory, as when he firſt appeared in the fleſh; or rather as he will appear hereafter, when his kingdom ſhall be eſtabliſhed in all the world. Behold, his reward is with him; either the glory himſelf ſhould receive as the reward of his ſufferings, or that which he hath to beſtow on his faithful people: and his work before him, which he undertakes to accompliſh for them, and in them, even their compleat ſalvation from Satan, ſin, death, and hell.

3. His people will then become dignified with the moſt honourable titles. They ſhall call them the holy people; for this is their diſtinguiſhing character and their honour, that they are conſecrated to God, and pure in heart: the redeemed of the Lord, this being their ſingular mercy, and the ſource of all their holineſs and happineſs, for both of which they are indebted to the redemption of Jeſus: and thou ſhalt be called, Sought out, a city not forſaken. Deſolate as before the church appeared, now the greateſt reſort ſhall be made thither; and ſhe ſhall be no more forſaken of her members, who will take up in her their continual abode; nor of her God, who will preſerve all who reſort thither, that they may never periſh, but have everlaſting life.

CHAP. LXIII.

In this chapter we have, 1. God coming towards his people in ways of mercy and deliverance, ver. 1—6. 2. God's people meeting him with their devotions, and addreſſing him with ſuitable affections; where we have, (1.) A thankful acknowledgment of the great favours God had beſtowed upon them, ver. 7. (2.) The magnifying of theſe favours, from the conſideration of God's relation to them, ver. 8. His compaſſionate concern for them, ver 9. Their unworthineſs, ver. 10. And the occaſion which it gave both him and them to call to mind former mercies, ver. 11—14. (3.) A very humble and earneſt prayer to God to appear for them in their preſent diſtreſs, pleading God's mercy, ver. 15. their relation to him, ver. 16. their deſire towards him, ver. 17. and the inſolence of their enemies, ver. 18, 19.

1. WHO is this [a] that cometh from Edom, with a Chap.
died garments from Bozrah? this that is xxxiv. 6.
† glorious in his apparel, travelling in the greatneſs of † Heb.
his ſtrength? I that ſpeak in righteouſneſs, [b] mighty to Decked.
ſave. 2. Wherefore art thou [c] red in thine apparel, and b Heb. vii.
thy garments like him that treadeth in the wine-fat? 25.
3. [d] I have troden the wine-preſs alone, and [e] of the c Rev. xix.
people there was none with me: for I will tread them 13.
in mine anger, and trample them in my fury, and their d Rev. xiv.
blood ſhall be ſprinkled upon my garments, and I will 19, 20. & ſtain all my raiment. 4. For [f] the day of vengeance is xix. 15.
in mine heart, and the year of my redeemed is come. e Chap. lix.
5. And [g] I looked, and [h] there was none to help; and 16. Ver. 5.
I wondered that there was none to uphold: therefore f Chap.
[i] mine own arm brought ſalvation unto me, and my xxxiv. 8. & fury, it upheld me. 6. And I will tread down the peo- lxi. 2.
ple in mine anger, and [k] make them drunk in my fury, g Chap. xli.
and I will bring down their ſtrength to the earth. 28. & lix.
16.
h John xvi.
32.
i Pſ. xcviii.
1. Chap. lix.
16.
k Rev. xvi.
6.

v. 1—6. The former chapter cloſed with the promiſe of the Saviour's appearing; this opens with the fulfilment of that promiſe, and the glorious victory obtained by the Redeemer over the powers of darkneſs, through his incarnation; or it points to the overthrow of all the enemies of his church in the laſt days.

1. The prophet, as ſuddenly ſurprized with the appearance of this glorious perſonage, with abrupt enquiry aſks, Who is this? Is the form human or divine, that I behold? He cometh from Edom, the country of the profeſſed enemies of the church, with dyed garments from Bozrah; like ſome victorious conqueror, who, having ſacked the capital of his foes, returns in triumph, his ſword yet reeking from the ſlaughter, and his garments dyed with the blood of the ſlain: this that is glorious in his apparel, bearing in his perſon, aſpect, and dreſs, the marks of tranſcendent dignity; travelling in the greatneſs of his ſtrength; not faint through fatigue, nor weary with his march; but with power irreſiſtible, and zeal unquenchable, advancing with majeſtic ſtatelineſs to new conqueſts, till every foe becomes his footſtool.

2. The great God-man approaches this devout enquirer, and, terrible as his aſpect ſeemed, his lips are full of grace, and his anſwer unſpeakably kind and gracious. I that ſpeak in righteouſneſs, whoſe word is truth itſelf, and his promiſes unchangeably faithful; or of righteouſneſs; that divine righteouſneſs, to accompliſh which, is the great deſign of my appearance, and to reveal it, the office of my Spirit; in virtue whereof I am mighty to ſave; to ſave to the uttermoſt from ſin, corruption, death, and hell; and none ſo guilty, none ſo deſperate, as to be beyond the power of my grace.

3. Encouraged by the condeſcenſions he had experienced, the prophet humbly preſumes to renew his enquiry. If thou art come not to deſtroy men's lives, but to ſave, Wherefore art thou red in thine apparel, and thy garments like him that treadeth in the wine-fat? Theſe bloody enſigns ſeem to beſpeak deſtruction, not ſalvation; and mark the arm of inexorable juſtice, rather than forbearing mercy. Note, Though doubts diſturb, and fears diſmay, the further we enquire into the divine word, the more will they be removed and ſilenced.

4. The Saviour with fulleſt ſatisfaction reſolves his queſtion. I have troden the wine-preſs, and underneath my feet ſin, death, and hell, as vanquiſhed foes, are fallen; and with the blood of theſe adverſaries of my people is my raiment diſcoloured. This victory have I gained alone, too great to need an aſſociate, and infinitely too jealous of my own honour to accept aſſiſtance. Of the people there was none with me; none of the inhabitants of heaven or earth to afford the leaſt ſuccour, or take the leaſt ſhare in the glorious work. The ſalvation of ſinners, their eternal redemption from wrath to glory, is my act alone: yours be the benefit, mine the honour. For I will tread them in mine anger, and trample them in my fury; my former victories enſure my future: what foes ſoever yet remain, in wrath unquenchable, and fury irreſiſtible, will I tread into the duſt; and their blood ſhall be ſprinkled upon my garments, and I will ſtain all my raiment: the powers of antichriſtian tyranny ſhall be broken, and my garments dipt in blood, Rev. xix. 13. for the day of vengeance is in my heart; fixed and immutable is the decree, the day determined, when the blood of my martyrs and ſuffering ſaints ſhall be recompenſed; and the year of my redeemed is come, when all my choſen ſhall be collected, and their triumphs begin.

gin. And I looked, and there was none to help; as at the firſt, when, ſunk in helpleſs miſery, the race of men lay weltering in their blood; ſo under the power of Antichriſt, proſtrate in the duſt, the Redeemer beholds his church in the latter day: and I wondered there was none to uphold the ſinking cauſe, and the afflicted people. None, none were found able or willing to eſpouſe their quarrel, or attempt their deliverance; therefore mine own arm brought ſalvation unto me; that arm of omnipotence, which alone could accompliſh it: and my fury, it upheld me; zeal for his people's ſafety and honour, indignation againſt their enemies, burned in his boſom, and urged him to take vengeance to the uttermoſt. And I will tread down the people in mine anger, and make them drunk in my fury; putting into their hands the cup of the wine of the wrath of God, and making them drink the dregs thereof: and I will bring down their ſtrength to the earth, giving them an utter overthrow, and covering them with everlaſting deſolations. Note, (1.) When all other help fails, Chriſt never fails thoſe that truſt him. (2.) Though our deliverance may ſeem long delayed, and our enemies triumphant, the decree is gone forth againſt them, and he that cometh, will come, and will not tarry. (3.) They who perſiſt to drink of the intoxicating cup of ſin, will ſhortly be made to drink the cup of trembling.

7. ¶ [l] I will mention the loving-kindneſſes of the LORD, and the praiſes of the LORD, according to all that the LORD hath beſtowed on us, and the great goodneſs towards the houſe of Iſrael, which he hath beſtowed on them, according to his mercies, and according to the multitude of his loving-kindneſſes. 8. For he ſaid, Surely they are my people, children that will not lie: ſo he was their Saviour. 9. ¶ [m] In all their afflictions † he was afflicted, and [n] the angel of his preſence ſaved them: [o] in his love and in his pity he redeemed them, and [p] he bare them, and carried them all the days of old. 10. ¶ But [q] they rebelled, and [r] vexed his holy Spirit: [s] therefore he was turned to be their enemy, and he fought againſt them. 11. Then he remembred the days of old, Moſes and his people, ſaying, Where is he [t] that brought them up out of the ſea, with the ‡ ſhepherd of his flock? where is he [u] that put his holy Spirit within him? 12. That led them by the right hand of Moſes, with his glorious arm, [x] dividing the water before them, to make himſelf an everlaſting name? 13. That led them through the deep as an horſe in the wilderneſs, that they ſhould not ſtumble? 14. As a beaſt goeth down into the valley, the Spirit of the LORD cauſed him to reſt: ſo didſt thou lead thy people, to make thyſelf § a glorious name.

[l] Pſ. lxxvii. 5, 10.
[m] Judg. x. 16. Zech. ii. 8. Acts ix. 4.
† Or, He afflicted them not.
[n] Ex. xxiii. 20, 21. & xxxiii. 14. Mal. iii. 1. 1 Cor. x. 9.
[o] Deut. vii. 7, 8.
[p] Ex. xix. 4. Deut. i. 31. & xxxii. 11. Chap. xlvi. 3, 4.
[q] Ex. xv. 24. Num. xiv. 11. Pſal. lxxviii. 56. & xcv. 9.
[r] Pſ. lxxviii. 40. Acts vii. 51. Eph. iv. 30.
[s] Ex. xxiii. 21.
[t] Ex. xiv. 30. Jer. ii. 6.
‡ Or ſhepherds, as Pſ. lxxvii. 20.
[u] Neh. ix. 20. Dan. iv. 8. Hag. ii. 5.
[x] Ex. xiv. 21. Joſh. iii. 16.
§ Heb. A name of glory.

v. 7—14. As an encouragement to hope for future mercies, the prophet takes a review of the paſt, ſo wonderfully and graciouſly vouchſafed unto them.

1. He makes a grateful acknowledgment in general of all the mercies and loving-kindneſſes of God to his people, ſo numberleſs, ſo great, that they were more than he is able to expreſs, and all the effects of his boundleſs grace and undeſerved favour, v. 7. Note, (1.) When we review God's mercies towards us with an enlightened mind, we ſhall be loſt in wonder, love, and praiſe. (2.) Every bleſſing we enjoy of providence, grace, or glory, in time or eternity, flows not from the leaſt merit in us, for we have none, but from God's infinitely rich and ſovereign mercy.

2. He mentions ſome eſpecial inſtances of his kindneſs. For he ſaid, Surely they are my people; he had taken them for his own in a covenant of everlaſting love, and he juſtly expected they would approve themſelves to him in all fidelity and truth: children that will not lie; neither be falſe to their vows, nor hypocritical in his ſervice: ſo he was their Saviour, from their houſe of bondage in Egypt particularly, and as he ever was and is, of all his people from every enemy, from every danger. In all their afflictions he was afflicted; he felt with tender ſympathy every burden under which they groaned, and came with kindeſt compaſſion and welcome relief to deliver them. Or it may be read, In all their afflictions there was no affliction; the ſenſe of his love alleviated their ſorrows, and made every burden light: and the angel of his preſence ſaved them; the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the uncreated angel, who was with Iſrael in the wilderneſs, and whoſe voice they were enjoined to obey, Exod. xxiii. 20, 21. In his love and in his pity he redeemed them from their ſtate of hard ſervitude; and he bare them in his arms, as a ſhepherd the weak lambs of his flock; and carried them all the days of old; amidſt their manifold provocations his paternal heart bore with them, and, as on eagles wings, he brought them ſafe to their promiſed reſt in Canaan. And thus doth the Redeemer regard all his people, carries them ſafe amidſt their trials and temptations, patiently in pity bears with their folly and perverſeneſs, and never leaves them till they are ſafe lodged in their eternal reſt. Note, (1.) The children of God will not lie; for they who do ſo, prove their parentage to be of their father the devil. (2.) It is a comfort to God's afflicted people, that they have a compaſſionate high-prieſt, who can be touched with the feeling of their infirmities. (3.) They who look for their portion in a better world, ſit eaſy under this world's troubles: they know, that they are both light and momentary. (4.) If the angel of God's preſence had not born us up, many a time muſt we have utterly fainted in our journey to glory.

3. Their repeated and long-continued ingratitude at laſt brought his rod upon them, v. 10. They rebelled, and vexed his holy Spirit; rejected God from being their king, caſt off their allegiance; and, by their unbelief, murmuring, and idolatry, forſook his covenant, deaf to the warnings of Moſes and the prophets; as the Scribes and Phariſees in our Lord's day, the true children of their fathers, always reſiſted the Holy Ghoſt; in conſequence of which, God, that offended God, whoſe favour they had ſo abuſed, turned to be their enemy, and fought againſt them, with repeated ſtrokes of his indignation, both in the wilderneſs, and after their ſettlement in Canaan, till their captivity in Babylon; and as he did afterwards, till the Romans came and deſtroyed them. Note, (1.) Sin is the cauſe of all our miſery: if God from our friend becomes our foe, ſurely this makes the quarrel. (2.) It is baſe as wicked, when God's children grieve that holy Spirit, whereby they are ſealed unto the day of redemption, and they will ſmart for it.

4. They reflect upon the particular favours of God when firſt he formed them into a people, v. 11—14. Some underſtand theſe as the words of God, calling to mind his own mercies of old, as an argument ſtill to do them good, and not caſt them away. Others ſuppoſe theſe to be the reflections of the few faithful among them, ſtill encouraging themſelves from paſt experience to hope for his mercy. Then he remembered the days of old, Moſes and his people, ſaying, Where is he that brought them up out of the ſea, with the ſhepherd, or ſhepherds, of his flock? Moſes, Aaron, and the elders of Iſrael; where is he that put his holy Spirit within him? in Moſes, or the people of Iſrael, who were taught and inſtructed of God: and this they mention as mourning over the ſad change, and complaining of the abſence of God's Spirit; or as an humble expoſtulation and prayer for the return of his bleſſed influences. That led them by the right hand of Moſes, ſtrengthening and proſpering him as their captain, with his glorious arm, enabling their leader to perform miracles for their preſervation; dividing the water before them, at the Red Sea, to make himſelf an everlaſting name? by their miraculous deliverance, and the deſtruction there brought upon their enemies. That led them through the deep as an horſe in the wilderneſs, or in the plain, that they ſhould not ſtumble? as eaſy their paſſage between the divided waters, as dry and ſafe, as when a horſe travels on a level road. As a beaſt goeth down into the valley, ſoftly and gently, ſo the Spirit of the Lord cauſed them to reſt; either when they deſcended from the ſhore into the depths of the ſea, they did it gently, and without precipitation, ſecure in the divine protection; or it refers to their ſeveral ſtations in the wilderneſs, where, under God's direction, they reſted, till they were brought to their journey's end. So didſt thou lead thy people, to make thyſelf a glorious name; his honour being concerned in their ſalvation, and this being the ultimate deſign of all his works and ways to manifeſt his own glory, and engage the everlaſting praiſe of his redeemed people. Note, (1.) If God calls us to paſs through the depths of the ſea, the foreſt trials, or the moſt imminent dangers, he can make the path plain, and enable us in confidence and peace to go ſafely through. (2.) If we ever find true reſt to our ſouls, it muſt come from the Eternal Spirit; for this world ſaith, It is not in me. (3.) When God's glory is the great end we aim at in all our works and ways, then we truly correſpond with the divine will.

15. ¶ [y] Look down from heaven, and behold from the habitation of thy holineſs and of thy glory: where is thy zeal and thy ſtrength, † the ſounding of [z] thy bowels, and of thy mercies towards me? are they reſtrained? 16. [a] Doubtleſs thou art our father, though Abraham [b] be ignorant of us, and Iſrael acknowledge us not: thou, O LORD, art our father, our redeemer, thy name is from everlaſting. 17. ¶ O LORD, why haſt thou made us to err from thy ways? and hardned our heart from thy fear? [c] Return for thy ſervants ſake, the tribes of thine inheritance. 18. The people of thy holineſs have poſſeſſed it but a little while: [d] our adverſaries have troden down thy ſanctuary. 19. We are thine, thou never bareſt rule over them, ‡ they were not called by thy name.

[y] Deut. xxvi. 15. Pſ. lxxx. 14.
† Or, the multitude.
[z] Jer. xxxi. 20. Hoſ. 11. 8.
[a] Chap. lxiv. 8.
[b] Job xiv. 21. Eccleſ. ix. 5.
[c] Num. x. 36. Pſ. xc. 13.
[d] Pſ. lxxiv. 7.
‡ Or, thy name was not called upon them.

v. 15—19. We have here the importunate prayer of God's people, which is continued through the following chapter. It was penned for their uſe in captivity, either in Babylon, or in their preſent diſperſion, and is applicable to the church of God, during its afflicted ſtate, as well as to particular believers.

Before Christ 698.

1. They deſire a gracious hearing. Look down from heaven; not that his eyes ever ceaſe to go to and fro in the earth, but they beg a look of tender pity and regard, and that God would bend his ear to the voice of their humble petitions; and behold from the habitation of thy holineſs and of thy glory; the place where he is pleaſed to fix his radiant throne, within the higheſt heavens, where the moſt Holy dwells, and holy angels celebrate his praiſe. Note, When we conſider what a holy God we approach, and what ſinful duſt and aſhes we are, it becomes us ever to appear before him with deepeſt humility, reverence, and godly fear.

2. They lament their miſerable caſe. O Lord, why haſt thou made us to err from thy ways? and hardened our heart from thy fear? They had erred from God's ways and worſhip, and hardened themſelves againſt his fear and his warnings, and God had now given them up to their own hard hearts in juſt judgment; and this was matter of deep complaint to thoſe whoſe eyes were opened to ſee their people's ſtate. They did not charge God with their ſins, as the author of them, but lamented the ſore viſitations they had provoked by them, and no ſufferings are more deplorable than theſe ſpiritual judgments. Our adverſaries alſo have troden down thy ſanctuary: the ruin of their land, the loſſes of their own family, were to the faithful, no doubt, heavy afflictions; but God's temple fallen, his ſervice interrupted, this ſwallowed up every other grief.

3. They make their plea for mercy to the God of all mercy.

[1.] They urge his former dealings with them. Where is thy zeal, thy jealouſy for thy own glory, whilſt the enemies of Zion blaſpheme; thy fervent love towards thy people, that of old appeared; and thy ſtrength? Is thine arm ſhortned that it cannot ſave? the ſounding of thy bowels, that uſed to melt over every diſtreſs of Iſrael, are they reſtrained? Hath the Lord forgotten to be gracious? will he be no more intreated? No; it cannot be: thou wilt ſurely turn and refreſh us, and bring us from the depths of the earth again. For,

[2.] Doubtleſs thou art our Father; provoking as our tranſgreſſions have been, we cannot quit the dear relation in which once we ſtood: and ſhall not the meltings of thy paternal heart ſtill admit the claim, and receive the returning prodigals? Though Abraham be ignorant of us, and Iſrael acknowledge us not; either they are gone, neither know our caſe, nor can aſſiſt us with their advice and prayers; or rather, though, were they again on earth, they might be led to diſown ſuch degenerate children; yet, greater are thy compaſſions, O Lord; thou art our Father; faith cannot quit the plea, unworthy as we are to be called thy ſons; our Redeemer, thy name is from everlaſting, the ſame in mercy and grace for ever; or, Our Redeemer from everlaſting, is thy name; having choſen us from eternity in Jeſus, thou never wilt, thou never canſt, (pardon the boldneſs thy faithfulneſs encourages!) thou never canſt utterly caſt us away.

[3.] They plead the covenant eſtabliſhed with their fathers and them. Return for thy ſervants ſake; return in mercy, or turn from thy wrathful indignation, for the ſake of Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, with whom the covenant was made; or for the ſake of the few faithful which remained, the tribes of thine inheritance, by right thine, and in duty and gratitude bound to be thy ſervants; ſave us, that we may be ſuch, nor ſuffer us longer to ſerve ſtrangers, or ſtrange gods in a ſtrange land.

[4.] They urge the ſhort enjoyment they had of the promiſed land and the ſanctuary of God. The people of thy holineſs have poſſeſſed it but a little while: ſeparated as they were from all others, and conſecrated to God, they hoped to have poſſeſſed the land for ever; but ſhort was comparatively their abode in Canaan, about 1400 years in all, and ſeldom in peace and quietneſs; whilſt their temple had a much ſhorter duration, and ſtood little more than 400.

[5.] They plead, We are thine: they were ſo in profeſſion, they continued ſuch in the covenant, and promiſed to be ſuch in practice, when the Lord ſhould turn their captivity. Thou never bareſt rule over them, their conquerors and oppreſſors, to whom God had not ſtood in that relation of King and Saviour, as he had done to the Jews: they were not called by thy name; not regarded as his children, nor profeſſed his bleſſed ſervice: and ſurely God will not ſuffer theſe to trample down that people, who, though they have been unfaithful, yet bore his name, and deſired to be re-admitted to his favour, and to yield themſelves up to his ſervice. Note, When we return unto God, we may be fully ſure he will return unto us.

CHAP. LXIV.

The prayer of the church is continued in this chapter. 1. She prays for ſome viſible diſplay of God's power, as in time paſt, ver. 1, 2. 2. She confeſſes her ſins, and implores the divine mercy, ver. 5—9. 3. She repreſents her diſtreſſed caſe, as an argument to obtain it, ver. 10—12.

1. OH that thou wouldſt [a] rend the heavens, that thou wouldſt come down, that [b] the mountains might flow down at thy preſence. 2. As when the † melting fire burneth, the fire cauſeth the waters to boil, [c] to make thy name known to thine adverſaries, that the nations may tremble at thy preſence. 3. When [d] thou didſt terrible things which we looked not for, thou cameſt down, the mountains flowed down at thy preſence. 4. For ſince the beginning of the world, [e] men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear, neither hath the eye ‡ ſeen, O God, beſides thee, what he hath prepared for him that waiteth for him. 5. Thou meeteſt him that rejoiceth, and worketh righteouſneſs, [f] thoſe that remember thee in thy ways: behold thou art wroth, for we have ſinned: [g] in thoſe is continuance, and we ſhall be ſaved.

v. 1—5. We have here,

1. The church's requeſt, v. 1, 2. deſiring ſome glorious manifeſtation, as in the days of old; that God would appear for the ſalvation of his people, and, with vengeance burning as the moſt vehement fire, terrify and conſume their enemies. And this may reſpect either Chriſt's firſt coming in the fleſh, to deſtroy the ſpiritual enemies of his people; or that manifeſtation of his glory which ſhall be made, when fire ſhall come down from heaven, devour the ſeat of Antichriſt, and deſtroy his tyranny; or that appearance of Jeſus on the clouds of heaven, when he ſhall come to judge the world, and all created nature be diſſolved in one univerſal conflagration. Note, God will make himſelf known to all; to his people in mercy, to his enemies in terrible judgment!

2. God had wrought ſtrange wonders of old, therefore his praying people hope for the ſame interpoſition. When thou didſt terrible things which we looked not for; when dejected in Egypt they ſaw no hopes of deliverance, then did God ſhew his wonders great and terrible; thou cameſt down, as on mount Sinai, in all the pomp of awful majeſty; the mountains flowed down at thy preſence; and if he is pleaſed ſtill to appear, all mountains of difficulty ſhall quickly vaniſh; and all oppreſſors, though lofty as the ſummit of theſe mighty hills, be laid in the duſt.

3. The promiſes of the great things in ſtore for God's people, more than eye hath ſeen, or ear heard, ſtrengthened their faith, and quickened their deſires of his appearing glorioufly and ſpeedily to help them. For ſince the beginning of the world, men have not heard, nor perceived by the ear, neither hath the eye ſeen, O God, beſides thee, what he hath prepared for him that waiteth for him: great as the wonders of God's mercy in the deliverance of his people have appeared, yet other wonders of mercy and grace, known only to God in his ſecret counſels, are yet in ſtore for them. The apoſtle, 1 Cor. xi. 9. particularly applies theſe words to the knowledge of the goſpel truths, which neither the light of nature, nor the deepeſt reſearches of human wiſdom, could diſcover, without a revelation from God; nor even then, till he gave the ſeeing eye, and opened the underſtanding to underſtand the ſcriptures: and when the eyes are in a meaſure enlightened, and we comprehend many truths, we ſtill know but in part; many revealed truths are ſtill myſterious and incomprehenſible, and we wait for a more perfect ſtate, when we ſhall know even as we are known. Thou meeteſt him that rejoiceth, and worketh righteouſneſs; rejoiceth in God his Saviour, in the grace beſtowed, and the glory promiſed; and, in conſequence, walks under the influence of the Spirit of holineſs, deſiring to pleaſe God in all things: thoſe that remember thee in thy ways; in all inſtituted ordinances, means of grace, and providences; improving them, in order to maintain nearer communion with God. Now, where a ſoul is thus found waiting on God, he will meet ſuch with his mercies, denoting his readineſs to hear, pardon, and ſave them out of all their troubles. Note, (1.) Faith in God will produce patient waiting upon him, and that ſhall never be diſappointed. (2.) Much is yet unknown by us of the riches of grace to which in this life we may attain, and more with reſpect to the glory prepared for us in eternity. (3.) They who would meet God, muſt be found in the way of righteouſneſs; out of that we may not expect his preſence or bleſſing. (4.) Chearfulneſs in the ways of God is the ornament of our walk, as well as highly our duty. Gloomy and melancholy Chriſtians are a diſcouragement to his ſervice. (5.) As all God's ways are right, in all let us remember him; in proſperity thankful and humble, in adverſity reſigned and patient; praiſing him in all and for all, and aſſured that all ſhall work together for our good.

4. They truſt in the unchangeableneſs of his promiſes, notwithſtanding their ſins. Behold, thou art wroth, for, or becauſe, we have ſinned, and juſtly provoked God's diſpleaſure; but he will not finally deſtroy his people, though he long and ſeverely corrects them. In theſe is continuance; in the ways of righteouſneſs God's favour would be ſecured to them; or in the ways of God's grace and mercy there is conſtancy and perpetuity; his covenant is everlaſting, and his gifts and callings without repentance: and we ſhall therefore be ſaved, finally and eternally. Some tranſlate the words, In theſe, our ſins, we have been ever, being thus conceived, and from the womb tranſgreſſors; yet we

[a] Pſ. cxliv. 5.

[b] Mic. i. 4.

Before Christ 698.

† Heb. The fire of meltings.

[c] Pſ. ix. 16.

[d] Ex. xxxiv. 10. Judg. v. 4, 5. Pſ. lxviii. 8. Hab. iii. 6.

[e] Pſ. xxxi. 19. 1 Cor. ii. 9.

‡ Or, ſeen a God beſides thee, which doth ſo for him, &c.

[f] Chap. xxvi. 8.

[g] Rom. ii. 4.

ſhall be ſaved, through the riches of a Redeemer's grace extending to the caſe of the moſt deſperate ſinner. Note, (1.) If the covenant of grace were not everlaſting, and the bleſſings of it ſecured by a better obedience than our own, we muſt ſink into deſpair. (2.) Whilſt we ſee and lament our ſins, acknowledge God's juſtice in our puniſhment, and caſt our ſouls at his feet, we cannot periſh there.

6. But we are all as an unclean thing, and all our righteouſneſſes are as † filthy rags, and [h] we all do fade as a leaf, and [i] our iniquities like the wind, have taken us away. 7. And [k] there is none that calleth upon thy name, that ſtirreth up himſelf to take hold of thee: for thou haſt hid thy face from us, and haſt ‡ conſumed us, [l] becauſe of our iniquities. 8. [m] But now, O LORD, thou art our father: we are the clay, [n] and thou our potter, and [o] we all are the work of thy hand. 9. ¶ [p] Be not wroth very ſore, O LORD, neither remember iniquity for ever: behold, ſee, we beſeech thee, we are all thy people. 10. [q] Thy holy cities are a wilderneſs, Zion is a wilderneſs, Jeruſalem a deſolation. 11. Our holy and our beautiful houſe, where our fathers praiſed thee, [r] is burnt up with fire: and all our pleaſant things are laid waſte. 12. [s] Wilt thou refrain thyſelf for theſe things, O LORD? [t] wilt thou hold thy peace, and afflict us very ſore?

† Heb. A garment of rags, or of ſeparation, Ezek. xxxvi. 17.
[h] Pſ. xc. 5, 6.
[i] Chap. lvii. 13.
[k] Hoſ. vii. 7.
‡ Heb. Melted us by thy hand.
[l] Job viii. 4.
[m] Chap. lxiii. 16.
[n] Chap. xlv. 9. Jer. xviii. 6. Rom. ix. 20, 21.
[o] Job x. 8—11. Pſ. cxix. 73.
[p] Pſ. lxxix. 8.
[q] Chap. i. 7.
[r] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 19.
[s] Chap. xlii. 14.
[t] Pſ. lxxxiii. 1, 2.

v. 6—12. They had confeſſed, We have ſinned; here they enlarge on their tranſgreſſions, confeſſing and bewailing them, juſtifying God in their afflictions, acknowledging their own unworthineſs of the grace they craved, and, pleading their miſery, caſt themſelves on his mercy.

1. They confeſs their guilty ſtate. But we are all as an unclean thing, or perſon, which is the ſtate of every man by nature; and they, whoſe eyes are moſt enlightened to know their real condition, will moſt lament their deep and deſperate corruption within. This alſo particularly reſpected the deplorable eſtate of the Jewiſh people, who were ſunk almoſt univerſally into the dregs of iniquity. And all our righteouſneſſes are as filthy rags, or a menſtruous cloth, impure and nauſeous, which is true, not only of the ceremonial righteouſneſs of forms, and rites, and outward devotions, but of all moral righteouſneſs, which, however plauſible, and wrought with greateſt exactneſs, if truſted upon to commend us to God, or to embolden us to appear in his preſence, can ſtand us in no more ſtead, than rags to cover our nakedneſs; can no more adorn us, than filthy rags can fit us to appear in the preſence of a king: for to all we can do ſo much pollution and impurity cleaves, that our righteouſneſs muſt be our ruin, and our very duties damn us, if on them we were to truſt for acceptance.

2. They acknowledge the general careleſſneſs and neglect of God's worſhip. And there is none that calleth upon thy name; none, comparatively ſpeaking, that had any deſire to ſeek to God for pardon or grace: There is none that ſtirreth up himſelf to take hold of thee; they who performed their devotions, did it either to ſupport a good opinion of themſelves, or merely to ſatisfy conſcience, or through the force of habit, and were ſo lifeleſs, lukewarm, and negligent in them, that they knew nothing of the importunity of prayer, or the wreſtlings of faith; and ſuch ſervices added but to the number of their ſins. Note, (1.) There is not a ſurer proof of a careleſs and loſt ſoul, than the neglect of private prayer. (2.) The life of prayer is faith, that layeth hold of God's promiſes, and will not quit him without a bleſſing. (3.) Our cold hearts need much to be ſtirred up to the work of prayer, for ſpiritual ſloth is grievouſly apt to creep even upon the faithful.

3. They own their afflictions to be the fruit of their ſins. We do all fade as a leaf; our profeſſions wither, our root is ſapleſs, our boughs blaſted; and our iniquities, like the wind, have taken us away. As the autumnal blaſts ſhake down the withered leaf, and hurl it away, ſo did the wrath of God, becauſe of their iniquities, diſperſe them firſt in Chaldea and the countries of the Babyloniſh monarchy, and now the diſperſion is become univerſal. For thou haſt hid thy face from us in diſpleaſure, and haſt conſumed us, becauſe of our iniquities. Note, (1.) Falſe profeſſors, however blooming they may for a time appear, will quickly be blaſted: uſually in this world their decays are manifeſt; at leaſt, at death their leaf falls and the wind of vengeance hurls them into hell. (2.) As God is of purer eyes than to behold iniquity, they who have no better covering than the filthy rags of their own miſerable performances, may never hope to ſee his face with comfort.

4. They plead their relation to God, notwithſtanding the prevailing iniquity. Some were ſtill found faithful, and, as a people, God had not caſt them away. But now, O Lord, thou art our father; though we have done ſo much againſt thee, we cannot quit this endeared relation: correct us as a father, but do not utterly diſinherit us. We are the clay, and thou our potter; mould us to thy will; we are content to be and ſuffer according to thy pleaſure; only remember, we are all the work of thy hands, created by thy power, by peculiar mercy collected into a people, therefore deſtroy not thine own work.

5. They intreat, if not the removal of their ſufferings, yet a mitigation of them, and ſome proſpect of their end. Be not wroth very ſore, O Lord; correct us, but in meaſure, not in fierce anger, leſt we be utterly conſumed; neither remember iniquity for ever; but forgive at laſt, and remove from us thy heavy hand. Behold, ſee, we beſeech thee, we are all thy people, in covenant, and therefore, according to the tenor of that, though thou viſit our iniquities with the rod, and our ſin with ſcourges, thou haſt promiſed that thy loving-kindneſs thou wilt not utterly take from us, nor ſuffer thy truth to fail.

6. They ſpread their miſerable ſtate before God. Their cities deſolate and in ruins, their country a wilderneſs, and Zion's palaces lying in the duſt; and, what was ſtill a bitterer cauſe of anguiſh, their holy and beautiful houſe, that temple, ſo magnificent and glorious, where the Shechinah once abode, and holy worſhip was offered to God, where their fathers of old praiſed the Lord, is now burnt with fire, which was the conſummation of their miſeries: and all our pleaſant things are laid waſte; not merely their palaces and poſſeſſions ruined, but, above all, their ſacrifices ceaſed, their feaſts of gladneſs at an end, the worſhip of God interrupted, and no more ſongs of praiſe reſound in the courts of the Lord's houſe. Note, (1.) Human miſery is an object of the divine compaſſions. (2.) They who have truly at heart the intereſts of God's kingdom, are more concerned for the deſolations of the temple, than for any loſſes of their own.

7. They humbly and earneſtly expoſtulate with the Lord on their unhappy caſe. Wilt thou refrain thyſelf for theſe things? ſhall not jealouſy for thy own glory awake? thy bowels of mercy yearn over our miſeries? Wilt thou hold thy peace, as an unconcerned ſpectator of theſe things, and afflict us very ſore? ſhall there be no end nor abatement of our ſufferings? ſurely thou wilt not contend for ever: ariſe, O Lord, plead thy own and thy people's cauſe! Note, Though God long and heavily afflict his people, let them not utterly deſpair; there is yet hope in their end.

CHAP. LXV.

This prophecy looks forward to goſpel times, and, as ſome think, to the latter days of it, when Jews, as well as Gentiles, ſhould come in, and the new heaven and earth appear, wherein righteouſneſs ſhould dwell. We have, 1. The preventing of the Gentiles with the goſpel call, ver. 1. 2. The rejection of the Jews for their obſtinacy and unbelief, ver. 2—7. 3. The ſaving of a remnant of them, ver. 8—10. 4. The judgments of God that ſhould purſue the rejected Jews, ver. 11—16. 5. The bleſſings reſerved for the Chriſtian church, which ſhould be its joy and glory, ver. 17—25.

1. [a] I AM ſought of them that aſked not for me: I am found of them that ſought me not: I ſaid, Behold me, behold me, unto a nation that was not called by my name. 2. I have ſpread out my hands all the day unto a rebellious people, which walketh in a way that was not good, [b] after their own thoughts: 3. A people [c] that provoked me to anger continually to my face, [d] that ſacrificeth in gardens, and burneth incenſe † upon altars of brick: 4. [e] Which remain among the graves, and lodge in the monuments, [f] which eat ſwines fleſh, and ‡ broth of abominable things is in their veſſels: 5. [g] Which ſay, Stand by thyſelf, come not near to me, for I am holier than thou: theſe are a ſmoke in my § noſe, a fire that burneth all the day. 6. Behold, [h] it is written before me, I will not keep ſilence, but [i] will recompenſe, even recompenſe into their boſom, 7. Your iniquities, [k] and the iniquities of your fathers together (ſaith the LORD) which have burnt incenſe upon the mountains, [l] and blaſphemed me upon the hills: therefore will I meaſure their former work into their ‖ boſom.

[a] Rom. ix. 24, &c. & x. 20. Eph. ii. 12, 13.
[b] Pſ. lxxxi. 12.
[c] Chap. iii. 8. Acts vii. 51.
[d] Chap. i. 29. & lxvi. 17.
† Heb. Upon bricks.
[e] Chap. lxvi. 17.
[f] Deut. xiv. 8.
‡ Or pieces.
[g] Jude 19.
§ Or anger.
[h] Deut. xxxii. 34. Mal. iii. 16.
[i] Pſ. lxxix. 12.
[k] Ex. xx. 5.
[l] Ezek. xx. 27, 28.
‖ Or lap, as Ver. 6.

v. 1—7. The application of theſe words to the converſion of the Gentiles, and the rejection of the Jews, is fixed by an infallible expoſitor, Rom. x. 20, 21.

1. The Gentiles, by divine grace and mercy, are brought into the church; and this not only when they had no deſert, but no deſire after God. He ſought them firſt, calling to them to behold him, his Son, his goſpel, when they had no thoughts about his ſalvation, nor ſtood, as the Jews, in any near relation to him as a people; but they were not diſobedient to the heavenly viſion; when he called, they anſwered; when he drew them, they ſought him early, Acts xiii. 42—48. Note, (1.) If God did not firſt ſeek us, we ſhould never have enquired after him. (2.) When he is graciouſly manifeſting himſelf in Before Chriſt 698. mercy to us, it becomes us to ſeek him earneſtly in all his appointed ways.

2. The Jews for their impenitence and rebellion are rejected by him. With long patience God bore with them; by a variety of means and methods he had ſought to reclaim them; after ſending all his prophets, he laſt of all ſent his Son; yet vain was every attempt of Chriſt and his apoſtles, inviting them by every endearing plea to turn from the evil of their ways; they obſtinately perſiſted in their own inventions, ſeeking to eſtabliſh a legal righteouſneſs, and riveted in their pride and prejudices to the ceremonial inſtitutions, rejected the counſel of God againſt themſelves, v. 2. Their fathers ſin had been groſs and impious idolatry, forſaking God for ſtocks and ſtones, and leaving his temple and altar for groves and altars of their own erecting, where they burnt incenſe, and offered ſacrifices to their idols; and this openly without a bluſh, as if wilfully deſigning to provoke God to his face, by their daring impiety, and contempt of his ſervice, v. 3. Addicted to necromancy, and among the graves and monuments conſulting the dead, or the evil ſpirits that were ſuppoſed to haunt thoſe melancholy abodes; paying no regard to the diſtinctions of clean and unclean ordained by the law, but eating ſwine's fleſh, and broth of abominable things, v. 4. Now theſe iniquities of their fathers, whoſe meaſure they filled up, God would viſit upon them; for though the Jews of our Saviour's day were cured of their idolatries, yet their pride and hypocriſy were yet more deteſtable; which ſay, Stand by thyſelf; come not near to me, for I am holier than thou; ſo high in their own conceits, and ſo holy, that they looked down with contempt on others, and thought defilement was contracted even by their touch. Theſe are a ſmoke in my noſe, offenſive and loathſome; a fire that burneth all the day; a continual provocation, againſt which his indignation and wrath burned like fire. For theſe abominations God will plead with them, and with juſt judgment recompenſe them for their iniquities; and all the former ſins ſhould come into the dreadful account, and be required of the men of that generation, Luke ii. 51. Note, (1.) Sooner or later God will viſit for ſin, and woe to the ſoul on whom the vengeance due to it ſhall be laid! (2.) Nothing is in God's ſight more odious, than a ſinner vaunting his own holineſs, and proudly looking down with contempt on others. (3.) Though vengeance may be long delayed, it will ſurely come at laſt, when the meaſure of the ſinner's iniquity is full.

[m] Rom. xi. 5. 8. ¶ Thus ſaith the LORD, [m] As the new wine is found in the cluſter, and one ſaith, Deſtroy it not, [n] Joel ii. 14. for [n] a bleſſing is in it: ſo will I do for my ſervants ſakes, that I may not deſtroy them all. 9. And I will [o] Rom. ix. 29. bring forth [o] a ſeed out of Jacob, and out of Judah an inheritor of my mountains: and mine elect ſhall inherit it, and my ſervants ſhall dwell there. 10. And Sharon [p] Hoſ. ii. 15. ſhall be a fold of flocks, and [p] the valley of Achor a place for the herds to lie down in, for my people that have ſought me.

v. 8—10. Though the generality of the Jewiſh people were rejected for their unbelief and rebellion, there was yet a remnant ſaved, according to the election of grace.

1. This is repreſented by a cluſter of grapes, hanging on a blighted vine, which the dreſſer of the vineyard, ſeeing it in general withered, is ready to cut down; but the maſter ſtays his hand for the ſake of that one cluſter, and becauſe it ſhews alſo there is ſtill life, and the tree may again revive. Deſtroy it not, for a bleſſing is in it. Note, (1.) The faithful are few, as one cluſter of grapes upon a vine; yet for their ſakes God ſpares the land. (2.) Wherever the truth of grace is found, though but in the weakeſt meaſure, the ſoul ſhall not periſh.

2. God promiſes, not only for his ſervants ſake, not to deſtroy them all, but to bring a ſeed out of Jacob and Judah, to inherit his holy mountain, the church, and his elect ſervants ſhall dwell there, ver. 9. enjoying all the ordinances, and enriched with all ſpiritual gifts and graces, as the flocks and herds that fed in the green paſtures of Sharon and Achor; which was fulfilled in the multitude of thoſe Jewiſh converts called by the preaching of the apoſtles, who were alſo themſelves all of the ſtock of Judah, and by whoſe labours the ſpiritual ſeed of Jacob throughout the world was ſo exceedingly increaſed. Note, (1.) The elect of God are known by their earneſtneſs in ſeeking God, and their fidelity in ſerving him. (2.) None ever ſought God in truth, but found him their exceeding great reward.

11. ¶ But ye are they that forſake the LORD, that † Or Gad. forget my holy mountain, that prepare a table for that ‡ Or Meni. † troop, and that furniſh the drink-offering unto that [q] Prov. i. 24, &c. ‡ number. 12. Therefore will I number you to the Chap. lxvi. 4. ſword, and ye ſhall bow down to the ſlaughter: [q] be-
Jer. vii. 13. cauſe when I called, ye did not anſwer; when I ſpake, ye did not hear, but did evil before mine eyes, and did chooſe that wherein I delighted not. 13. Therefore [r] Pſ. xxxv. 19, 20. thus ſaith the Lord GOD, Behold, [r] my ſervants ſhall eat, but ye ſhall be hungry: behold, my ſervants ſhall [s] Prov. xxix. 6. drink, but ye ſhall be thirſty: behold, [s] my ſervants ſhall rejoice, but ye ſhall be aſhamed: 14. Behold, my ſer-vants ſhall ſing for joy of heart, but ye ſhall cry for § Or breaking. ſorrow of heart, and ſhall howl for § vexation of ſpirit.
15, And ye ſhall leave your name for a curſe unto my [t] Chap. lxii. 2. John i. 12. or Acts xi. 28. choſen: for the Lord GOD ſhall ſlay thee, and [t] call his ſervants by another name: 16. [u] That he who [u] Pſ. lxxii. 17. Jer. iv. 2. bleſſeth himſelf in the earth, ſhall bleſs himſelf in the God of truth, and [x] he that ſweareth in the earth, ſhall [x] Deut. vi. 13. Pſ. lxiii. 11. Chap. xix. 18. & xlv. 23. Zeph. i. 5. ſwear by the God ‖ of truth; becauſe the former trou-‖ Heb. Amen. Rev. iii. 14. bles are forgotten, and becauſe they are hid from mine eyes.

v. 11—16. The body of the Jewiſh people perſiſted in their impiety and infidelity: to them theſe words are addreſſed.

1. They are upbraided with their ſins.

[1.] Apoſtacy from God and his ſervice. Ye are they that forſake the Lord, that forget my holy mountain; they rejected his government, and neglected his worſhip. Note, They who forſake the Lord, forſake their own mercies.

[2.] Idolatry. That prepare a table for that troop, and that furniſh the drink-offering unto that number; their idols ſo multiplied, and yet ſo liberally ſupplied with offerings, whilſt God's altar was utterly neglected. Some ſuppoſe the words Gad and Meni, rendered by troop and number, to be the names of their idols, and to ſignify the ſun and moon. Note, Men to gratify their luſts grudge no expence, and ſhall we then be niggards in the ſervice of the Lord?

[3.] Obſtinate impenitence. The former more properly were their fathers ſins, though to be viſited upon them; this the eſpecial guilt of the Jews in our Saviour's day. When I called, ye did not anſwer; when I ſpake, ye did not hear: nay, though he became incarnate in his own glorious perſon, to preach and teach the way of life, they rejected his words and warnings, contradicting and blaſpheming; but did evil before mine eyes, following determinedly the imaginations of their own evil hearts, and adding to all the reſt that daring conſummation of their evil, the crucifying the Lord of life and glory; and aia chooſe that wherein I delighted not, the traditions of the elders, and thoſe falſe gloſſes which deſtroyed the ſpirit of God's word; and ſhewed that pride, hypocriſy, and enmity againſt the goſpel, which were ſo peculiarly provoking to him.

2. Their puniſhment is denounced. I will number you to the ſword, and ye ſhall bow down to the ſlaughter; and dreadful was the maſſacre which the Roman ſoldiers made of them. Note, (1.) When the ſword devours, the number is fixed for the ſlaughter, and every bullet has its billet. (2.) When God fights againſt the ſinner, reſiſtance is vain, for he will overcome.

3. The bleſſedneſs of God's people, as contraſted with their miſery, will aggravate their doom. Note, It will be an additional torment to the miſeries of the damned, to ſee the righteous in the kingdom of God, and themſelves caſt out. This is inſtanced in three particulars.

[1.] The one ſhall be conſumed with famine and want, the other enjoy plenty and affluence, v. 13. which was literally the caſe, when the Chriſtians, before the ſiege of Jeruſalem, removed to Pella; whilſt the Jews, who were beſieged, terribly periſhed by famine. And alſo ſpiritually, thoſe who reject Chriſt and his goſpel, and ſeek to fill themſelves with the comforts of earth, will ever be unſatisfied here, and in hell want a drop of water to aſſuage their raging thirſt; whilſt his people, who feed upon him in his promiſes, find the hidden manna, ſweet and nouriſhing to their ſoul, and drink of thoſe conſolations which are better than wine; and theſe but foretaſtes of the proviſion God hath made for them in the eternal world, where they ſhall hunger no more, nor thirſt any more, the moſt boundleſs deſires of their ſouls being ſatisfied in the fruition of God.

[2.] God's ſervants ſhall rejoice and ſing, when his enemies are aſhamed, and with anguiſh cry out in their pangs. The paths of heavenly wiſdom are full of preſent peace and joy; the paths of ſin all lead to ſhame and miſery. And how much greater ſtill will the difference appear, when theſe ſhall be rejoicing in glory, and joining the ſongs of angels, whilſt the ſinner is covered with everlaſting confuſion, and gnawing his tongue for pain, in thoſe eternal torments, where the worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

[3.] The one ſhall be deteſted and infamous, the other honourable and diſtinguiſhed, v. 15. Hence the very name of Jew is become execrable; they are ſtigmatized for knavery and covetouſneſs; but God's people have a new and honourable name, Chriſtians, or Hephzibah and Beulah, intimating the Lord's love and delight in them. That he who bleſſeth himſelf in the earth, who looks for God's bleſſing, or thankfully acknowledges the mercies received from him, ſhall bleſs himſelf in the God of truth, as the faithful ſervants of God ever do, eſteeming God as their great portion, and expecting from him all their mercies: or, ſhall bleſs themſelves in God, Amen; in Jeſus Chriſt, who is the Amen, the faithful and true witneſs, Rev. iii. 14. And he that ſweareth in the earth, which is an act of religious worſhip, ſhall ſwear by the God of truth, to whom alone the ſolemn appeal ought to be made; becauſe the former troubles are forgotten; they are hid from my eyes; either the idolatry and ſuperſtition of the Gentile world, which were a grief to God's people, but now are deſtroyed; or the carnal ordinances, which were a heavy yoke, and were by Chriſt's ſacrifice aboliſhed; and this ſenſe ſeems beſt to ſuit the following words.

17. ¶ For behold, I create [y] new heavens, and a new earth: and the former ſhall not be remembered, nor come into mind. 18. But be you glad and rejoice for ever in that which I create: for behold, I create Jeruſalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy, 19. And [z] I will rejoice in Jeruſalem, and joy in my people, and [a] the voice of weeping ſhall be no more heard in her, nor the voice of crying. 20. There ſhall be no more thence an infant of days, nor an old man [b] that hath not filled his days: for the child ſhall die an hundred years old, but [c] the ſinner being an hundred years old ſhall be accurſed. 21. And [d] they ſhall build houſes and inhabit them; and they ſhall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them. 22. They ſhall not build, and another inhabit; they ſhall not plant, and another eat: for [e] as the days of a tree, are the days of my people, and mine elect ſhall long enjoy the work of their hands. 23. They ſhall not labour in vain, [f] nor bring forth for trouble: for they are the ſeed of the bleſſed of the LORD, and their offspring with them. 24. And it ſhall come to paſs, that [g] before they call, I will anſwer, and whiles they are yet ſpeaking, I will hear. 25. [h] The wolf and the lamb ſhall feed together, and the lion ſhall eat ſtraw like the bullock: and [i] duſt ſhall be the ſerpent's meat. They ſhall not hurt nor deſtroy in all my holy mountain, ſaith the LORD.

[y] Chap. li. 16. & lxvi. 22. 2 Pet. iii. 13. Rev. xxi. 1.
[z] Chap. lxii. 5.
[a] Chap. xxxv. 10. & li. 11. Rev. vii. 17. & xxi. 4.
[b] Job v. 26.
[c] Eccleſ. viii. 12.
[d] Lev. xxvi. 16. Deut. xxviii. 30. Am. ix. 14.
[e] Pſ. xcii. 12.
[f] Deut. xxviii. 41. Hoſ. ix. 12. Hag. i. 6. 1 Cor. xv. 58.
[g] Pſ. xxxii. 5. Dan. ix. 21.
[h] Chap. xi. 6, 7, 9.
[i] Gen. iii. 14.

v. 17—25. We ſee here,

1. A new creation riſe at God's command, new heavens expanded, a new earth framed, and theſe ſo glorious, that they obliterate the remembrance of the former; which ſome refer to the goſpel day, when ſuch a wondrous change ſhould be wrought in the hearts of men, that it ſhould be ſaid, Old things are paſt away; behold, all things are become new, 2 Cor. v. 17. Others ſuppoſe this will be literally fulfilled after the diſſolution of all things, and that Chriſt will come and reign with his ſaints upon earth a thouſand years; and to this they conceive the apoſtles to refer, Rev. xxi. 1—5. 2 Pet. iii. 13. whilſt others look farther, and interpret this of the ſtate and bleſſedneſs of the ſaints of God in glory everlaſting.

2. This will give occaſion to God's ſaints of everlaſting joy: But be you glad and rejoice for ever in that which I create, as partakers of the bleſſed change, the goſpel works, and inheritors of the eternal glory God beſtows. For behold, I create Jeruſalem a rejoicing, and her people a joy; with ſuch conſolation ſhall the church and every member of it be filled, and all her friends rejoice with and over her, becauſe of her proſperity. The voice of weeping ſhall no more be heard in her; there ſhall be no allay or interruption of her joys, but they ſhall be endleſs as the ſource from whence they flow.

3. God himſelf will rejoice in his own work. And I will rejoice in Jeruſalem, and joy in my people, when, through the righteouſneſs of Jeſus, and the effectual work of the Divine Spirit, they ſhall be wholly renewed in body, ſoul, and ſpirit, and become the object of God's eternal complacence.

4. In this bleſſed ſtate there ſhall be no untimely deaths, as now, when we ſee the infant carried almoſt from the womb to the grave; and few, even of thoſe who are aged, reach the full limits appointed to the life of man: the contrary to which ſome ſuppoſe will literally be the caſe in the latter day, when, among other inſtances of temporal bleſſings, long life ſhall be enjoyed. I rather incline to interpret this ſpiritually, as intimating that the youngeſt convert who departs, ſhall be raiſed in the fulneſs of the meaſure of the ſtature of Chriſt, as if he had lived an hundred years; and thoſe whoſe lives have been longer ſpent in Chriſt's ſervice, ſhall have their full reward in glory; whilſt the ſinner, to whatever extent God lengthens out his days, will be accurſed at the laſt. Note, (1.) We need not grieve for early converts ſnatched away by death; they are happily entered into their reſt, and the ſpace taken from the labours of time, ſhall be added to the rewards of eternity. (2.) An aged ſaint is a venerable object, an aged ſinner the moſt pitiable and deplorable. (3.) However long God's patience bears with the ſinner, his curſe will overtake him at laſt.

5. Their poſſeſſions ſhall not be precarious, nor their enjoyments interrupted. The houſes they build, the vineyards they plant, no enemy ſhall poſſeſs, nor ſpoiler deſtroy; but the elect of God ſhall long peaceably and comfortably enjoy the bleſſings he beſtows upon them: for as the days of a tree, are the days of my people; as the days of an oak, which lives for ages, or the tree of life in the paradiſe of God, to which there ſeems to be an alluſion: and this will be eminently true, when the redeemed enter their manſions in glory, and drink the new wine in the kingdom of God.

6. Their children after them ſhall inherit their bleſſings. They ſhall not labour in vain, but ſee the bleſſing of God upon all the work of their hands: nor bring forth trouble; their children ſhall be their comfort, not their ſorrow: for they are the ſeed of the bleſſed of the Lord, and their offspring with them: their mercies deſcend to their poſterity, together intereſted in a covenant of grace, and prevented and followed with the bleſſings of divine goodneſs.

7. A wondrous change ſhall paſs upon the tempers of men. The wolf and the lamb ſhall feed together; Gentiles and Jews ſhall now become one fold, and men of the moſt ſavage diſpoſitions be brought to the meekneſs of the lamb: and the lion ſhall eat ſtraw like the ox; ravening perſecutors not only brought to be men of peace, but laborious miniſters, as in the caſe of Paul and others: and duſt ſhall be the ſerpent's meat; the ſentence pronounced on the devil, Gen. iii. 14. and, in him, on all the enemies of God's church and people, ſhall be fulfilled; they ſhall be trodden under the feet of God's victorious ſaints. They ſhall not hurt or deſtroy in all my holy mountain, but their power be utterly broken, and themſelves ruined, ſaith the Lord, whoſe word is faithful, and the accompliſhment of it ſure.

CHAP. LXVI.

The firſt verſe of this chapter is applied by Stephen to the diſmantling of the temple by the planting of the Chriſtian church, Acts vii. 49, 50. which may ſerve as a key to the whole. We have here, 1. The contempt God puts upon ceremonial ſervices, in compariſon with moral duties, and an intimation therein of his purpoſe ſhortly to put an end to them, ver. 1—4. 2. The ſalvation God will in due time work for his people, out of the hands of their oppreſſors, ver. 5. ſpeaking terror to the perſecutors, ver. 6. and comfort to the perſecuted, a ſpeedy and compleat deliverance, ver. 7—9. a joyful ſettlement, ver. 10, 11. the acceſſion of the Gentiles to them, and abundance of ſatisfaction therein, ver. 12—14. 3. The terrible vengeance which God will bring upon the enemies of his church and people, ver. 15—18. 4. The happy eſtabliſhment of the church upon large and ſure foundations, its conſtant attendance on God, and triumph over its enemies, ver. 19—24. And we may well expect that this evangelical prophet, here in the cloſe of his prophecy, ſhould (as he doth) look as far forward as to the latter days, to the laſt day, to the days of eternity.

1. THUS ſaith the LORD, [a] The heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footſtool: where is the houſe that ye build unto me? and where is the place of my reſt? 2. For all thoſe things hath mine hand made, and all thoſe things have been, ſaith the LORD: but [b] to this man will I look, even [c] to him that is poor and of a contrite ſpirit, [d] and trembleth at my word. 3. [e] He that killeth an ox, is as if he ſlew a man: he that ſacrificeth a † lamb, as if he [f] cut off a dog's neck: he that offereth an oblation, as if he offered ſwine's blood: he that ‡ burneth incenſe, as if he bleſſed an idol: yea, they have choſen their own ways, and their ſoul delighteth in their abominations. 4. I alſo will chooſe their § deluſions, and will bring their fears upon them; [g] becauſe when I called, none did anſwer; when I ſpake, they did not hear: but they did evil before mine eyes, and choſe that in which I delighted not.

[a] 1 Kings viii. 27. 2 Chron. 6. 18. Mat. v. 34, 35. Acts vii. 49. & xvii. 24.
[b] Chap. lvii. 15. & lxi. 1.
[c] Pſ. xxxiv. 18. & li. 17.
[d] Ezra ix. 4. & x. 3. Prov. xxviii. 14. Ver. 5.
[e] Chap. i. 11.
† Or kid.
[f] Deut. xxiii. 18.
‡ Heb. Maketh a memorial of. Lev. ii. 2.
§ Or devices.
[g] Prov. i. 24. Chap. lxv. 12. Jer. vii. 13.

v. 1—4. The grand deluſion of the Jewiſh people was the confidence they placed in their outward privileges and ritual ſervices, their temple and ſacrifices. To undeceive them herein, the prophets and evangeliſts warn them of the vanity of theſe things, and that the temple they ſo highly prized, would ſoon be razed from its foundations, as it was by the Chaldeans, and more entirely afterwards by the Romans.

1. The prophet rebukes their mean and unworthy notions of God, as if confined to the temple they had built, whom heaven, and the heaven of heavens cannot contain. Thus ſaith the Lord, Heaven is my throne, where moſt tranſcendently he diſplays the infinite brightneſs of his glory; and the earth is my footſtool, ſubject to his government, and at his diſpoſal. Where is the houſe that ye build unto me? that can contain his immenſity, or be worthy of his dignity, who is exalted above all bleſſing and praiſe; and where is the place of my reſt? who needs no repoſe, and can take no ſatisfaction in the wretched fabrics of puny mortals: for all thoſe things hath mine hands made; heaven and earth, and the inhabitants of both: and all thoſe things have been, or are, ſaith the Lord; were created by his power, and ſubſiſt by his providence: how impoſſible therefore for this eternal Creator of all to need a temple made with hands, or this omnipreſent Deity to be circumſcribed within theſe narrow bounds?

2. The temple he delights in is not that which conſiſts of hewn ſtones, and cedars overlaid with gold; a far nobler manſion he hath formed for himſelf. To this man will I look, even to him that is poor and of a contrite ſpirit, and trembleth at my word; which ſome interpret of Chriſt, in whom dwelt all the fulneſs of the godhead bodily; but more generally may be applied to every believer, who is an habitation of God through the Spirit, and whoſe character is here delineated; poor in his own eyes, ſenſible of his abject ſpiritual wants and wretchedneſs; of a contrite heart, broken with conviction of his guilt and danger; and trembleth at my word, with that reverence and godly fear which faith inſpires; ſuch a heart is the living temple of the Deity.

3. Their ſacrifices are rejected, aboliſhed, abhorred: they were ever deteſtable, when offered by thoſe whoſe ways were wickedneſs; but now to perſiſt in them, and depend upon them for acceptance with God, when the one great ſacrifice once offered put a period to the ritual ſervice, was utterly abominable. Murder, idolatry, and the moſt unclean and forbidden ſacrifices, as the offering of a dog, or the blood of ſwine, were not more highly criminal, and abhorred of God, nor would be attended with deeper and more condign puniſhment, than the continuance of their incenſe and oblations, which was now in effect to trample under foot the blood of the Son of God, to reject his goſpel, and do deſpite to the ſpirit of grace. Note, Many think they take great pains to ſave their ſouls by their duties and ſervices, and will not be perſuaded, that their truſt in theſe only brings upon them more ſure deſtruction.

4. God gives them up to their own inventions, and woe to that ſoul whom he abandons! Yea, they have choſen their own ways; cleaving to the law for righteouſneſs, they wilfully and obſtinately rejected Chriſt and his ſalvation; and their ſoul delighteth in their abominations; they are pleaſed with their own ſervices, and flatter themſelves God approves them, when in fact he abhors them. Therefore, ſays he, I alſo will chooſe their deluſions, giving them up to their own deceived hearts; and will bring their fears upon them; the calamities they dreaded, eſpecially the horrible devaſtations of the Romans, who they feared would take away their place and nation, John xi. 48. which, whilſt they crucified the Redeemer to prevent, they thereby moſt effectually drew upon their heads the judgments which they ſought to avoid: becauſe when I called, none did anſwer; when I ſpake, they did not hear; deaf to the preaching of Chriſt and his apoſtles, they hardned their hearts in unbelief and impenitence. But they did evil before mine eyes; reviling, blaſpheming, perſecuting, and at laſt murdering the Lord Jeſus, and utterly rejecting his goſpel; and choſe that in which I delighted not; not only the ways of wickedneſs and ſin, but the falſe confidences of a legal righteouſneſs, and the vain interpretations of oral tradition. Note, (1.) They who are deaf to God's warnings, will be made to feel his wrath. (2.) Wilful rejection of the light is juſtly puniſhed by God's leaving a ſinner to the deluſions he hath choſen, and giving him up to a reprobate mind. (3.) Nothing more is needful to kindle up a hell within ſinners hearts, even on this ſide the grave, than to bring their own fears upon them.

5. ¶ Hear the word of the LORD, [h] ye that tremble at his word, your brethren that hated you, [i] that caſt you out for my name's ſake, ſaid, [k] Let the LORD be glorified: but [l] he ſhall appear to your joy, and they ſhall be aſhamed. 6. A voice of noiſe from the city, a voice from the temple, a voice of the LORD [m] that rendreth recompenſe to his enemies. 7. [n] Before ſhe travailed, ſhe brought forth: before her pain came, ſhe was delivered of a man-child. 8. Who hath heard ſuch a thing? who hath ſeen ſuch things? ſhall the earth be made to bring forth in one day, or ſhall a nation be born at once? for as ſoon as Zion travailed, ſhe brought forth her children. 9. [o] Shall I bring to the birth, and not cauſe to bring forth? ſaith the LORD: ſhall I cauſe to bring forth, and ſhut the womb? ſaith thy God. 10. Rejoice ye with Jeruſalem, and be glad with her, all ye that love her: rejoice for joy with her, all ye that mourn for her: 11. [p] That ye may ſuck, and be ſatisfied with the breaſts of her conſolations: that ye may milk out, and be delighted with the † abundance of her glory. 12. For thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, [q] I will extend peace to her like a river, and the glory of the Gentiles like a flowing ſtream: Then ſhall [r] ye ſuck, ye ſhall [s] be born upon her ſides, and be dandled upon her knees. 13. As one whom his mother comforteth, ſo [t] will I comfort you: and ye ſhall be comforted in Jeruſalem. 14. And when ye ſee this, [u] your heart ſhall rejoice, and [x] your bones ſhall flouriſh like an herb: and the hand of the LORD ſhall be known towards his ſervants, and his indignation towards his enemies.

[h] Ver. 2.
[i] John xvi. 2.
[k] Chap. v. 19.
[l] 2 Theſ. i. 10.
[m] Chap. lix. 18.
[n] Acts ii. 41. & iv. 4.
[o] Chap. xxxvii. 3.
[p] Pſ. xxxvi. 8. 1 Pet. ii. 2.
† Or brightneſs.
[q] Chap. xlviii. 18. & lx. 5.
[r] Chap. lx. 16.
[s] Chap. xlix. 22. & lx. 4.
[t] Chap. li. 3.
[u] John xvi. 22.
[x] Ezek. xxxvii. 1, &c.

v. 5—14. The prophet turns from the diſobedient, againſt whom God's judgments were denounced, to thoſe who trembled at his word, and encourages the humble and contrite with the aſſurances of God's regard, and his bleſſing upon them.

1. God will appear to vindicate them againſt their perſecutors. Your brethren that hated you, that caſt you out for my name's ſake; as the Jews did the apoſtles and diſciples of Chriſt, tho' their brethren, excommunicated them from their ſynagogues, and were their bittereſt and moſt implacable enemies, ſtirring up the Gentiles againſt them in every place; ſaying, Let the Lord be glorified; pretending zeal for his honour, and many really thinking, that he who killed them did God ſervice: but he ſhall appear to your joy, ſupporting and ſtrengthening them againſt all oppoſition, giving ſucceſs to their labours, and comforting them in all their tribulation: and they ſhall be aſhamed; all their devices baffled, the goſpel ſpreading in ſpite of their oppoſition, and ſpeedy deſtruction haſtening upon their own heads. Note, (1.) A Chriſtian's bittereſt foes are often thoſe of his own houſe. (2.) Church rulers have been in general the chief perſecutors, and cover with the fair pretext of zeal for religion, the enmity of their hearts againſt thoſe more faithful miniſters, whoſe boldneſs, diligence, and exemplary lives reproach their ſloth, negligence, and carnality. (3.) They who ſuffer for their fidelity, ſhall find the comforts of God an abundant ſupport and recompenſe.

2. Heavy will be the vengeance of God on their enemies, v. 6. A voice of noiſe from the city; the ſhrieks of the wounded, the groans of the dying, and the ſhouts of the conquerors: a voice from the temple; of lamentation, when ſet on fire by the Romans; or that which Joſephus reports was heard in the temple ſhortly before its deſtruction, when the doors flew open of their own accord, and a voice iſſued from the holy place, crying, Let us depart hence. A voice of the Lord that rendreth recompenſe to his enemies, by whoſe direction and order all theſe judgments came upon them.

3. To the wonder and joy of his people, and the confuſion and aſtoniſhment of his enemies, God will enlarge and eſtabliſh his church in the earth, v. 7—9. Before ſhe travailed, ſhe brought forth: before her pain came, ſhe was delivered of a man-child. The church of Chriſt is repreſented as a pregnant woman, that immediately, with little or no pain, brings forth her ſon; ſo ſpeedily and eaſily, by the preaching of a ſingle ſermon, Acts ii. 41. were multitudes regenerate and converted to Chriſt. Who hath heard ſuch a thing? who hath ſeen ſuch things? ſo ſtrange and uncommon. Shall the earth be made to bring forth in one day? ſince the creation the ſeaſons go on in gradual ſucceſſion, and the fruits require time to ripen them: or ſhall a nation be born at once? which is uſually the work of ages: for as ſoon as Zion travailed, ſhe brought forth her children; no ſooner began the goſpel to be preached, than multitudes both of men and women, as the drops of dew from the womb of the morning, were added to the church daily, Pſ. cx. 3. Acts iv. 4. Shall I bring to the birth, in conviction, and not bring forth, in converſion and regeneration? Shall I cauſe to bring forth, in one place and age, and ſhut the womb, ſaith thy God? that there ſhould not be a conſtant ſucceſſion of ſpiritual births? No: God's work is perfect; when he begins he will make an end, and, till time ſhall be no more, he will add unto the church daily ſuch as ſhall be ſaved. Note, (1.) Whatever labour, pains, and prayer miniſters uſe, ſo as to be ſaid to travail in birth, till Chriſt be formed in their hearers, it is God's work alone to regenerate the ſoul, and every real convert is born of him. (2.) God will maintain his church in the world to the end of time, and we may expect the fulfilment of this prophecy more eminently hereafter, both reſpecting Jews and Gentiles, Hoſ. i. 10, 11. Rom. xi. 25, 26.

4. All the friends of Jeruſalem are called to rejoice with her, as we congratulate each other on the birth of a ſon. Rejoice ye with Jeruſalem, and be glad with her, all ye that love her: rejoice for joy with her, all ye that mourn for her. They who love God, love his church and people; have their intereſts at heart, pray for their peace and proſperity, take delight in her communion, and mourn over her ſorrows, afflictions, declenſions, and perſecutions, and therefore they cannot but partake in her joys as their own. That ye may ſuck, and be ſatisfied with the breaſts of her conſolations: as full breaſts afford the ſweeteſt nouriſhment to the infant, and abundantly ſupply its wants; ſo plenteous, ſo precious, ſhall the conſolations of God's Spirit be to the ſoul that by faith feeds on the ſincere milk of the word, and on thoſe great and precious promiſes contained in the covenant of God's everlaſting love: that ye may milk out, and be delighted with the abundance of her glory; a glorious Saviour, a glorious Spirit, a glorious proviſion of promiſes, a glorious hope, a glorious inheritance: theſe are the delight of the believing ſoul, and there is abundance for all who ſeek it; they may come and milk out from theſe breaſts of glory, to the ſatisfying the moſt boundleſs deſires of their ſouls.

5. God will give them moſt abundant cauſe for joy in the gathering the Gentiles, and the ruin of every enemy. For thus ſaith the Lord, I will extend peace to her as a river; ſo plentiful, ſo perpetual; peace with God, peace of conſcience, peace among themſelves, and, like a river full to its margin, it ſhall flow uninterrupted into the boundleſs ocean of eternal joy: and the glory of the Gentiles like a flowing ſtream; multitudes of converts ſhall be made, and theſe of the mighty and noble, numerous as the drops of water in the river; or as Egypt by the overflowing of the Nile, the church ſhall be enriched with their abundance of good things. Then ſhall ye ſuck the milk, the riches, of the Gentiles, or the breaſts of the church's conſolations: ye ſhall be borne upon her ſides, or at her ſide, as the nurſe carries her infant charge, tenderly and ſafely; and be dandled on her knees, as the mother with fond delight dandles her darling boy. And this repreſents the tenderneſs with which young converts muſt be treated, and the delight of the church, her members, and eſpecially her miniſters, in thoſe that are born unto her. As one whom his mother comforteth, ſo will I comfort you; with that unutterable affection that mothers only know, yea, with tenderneſs infinitely greater than theirs, will God comfort his people. If he chides, their ſorrows melt his heart, and he returns with the kiſſes of his love to dry up the falling tear: if they fall, he raiſes them up, ſooths their anguiſh, and heals their hurt: if they are afflicted, he feels with more than human ſympathy, with his kind arm ſupports their reclining head, refreſhes them with his conſolations, and recovers them from the bed of languiſhing. And ye ſhall be comforted in Jeruſalem, in the church and her ordinances, where God eſpecially manifeſts his favour towards his people: and when ye ſee this, experiencing the wondrous grace of this compaſſionate God and Saviour, your heart ſhall rejoice, with joy unſpeakable and full of glory, and your bones ſhall flouriſh like an herb; you ſhall both be ſtrengthened and comforted with divine conſolations, ſpringing up within the heart, as an herb in a well-watered garden, and which will be as marrow to the bones, Prov. xvii. 22. And the hand of the Lord ſhall be known towards his ſervants; his care and protection of them, and kindneſs towards them, ſhall be manifeſted to their comfort and honour, and his great glory; and his indignation towards his enemies, upon whom his vengeance will fall ſo remarkably and terribly, that they who behold it will own, that it is the finger of God.

15. For behold, [y] the LORD will come with fire, and with his chariots like a whirlwind, [z] to render his anger with fury, and his rebuke with flames of fire.
16. For by fire, and by his ſword, will the LORD plead with all fleſh: and [a] the ſlain of the LORD ſhall be many. 17. [b] They that ſanctify themſelves, and purify themſelves in the gardens, † behind one tree in the midſt, eating ſwines fleſh, and the abomination, and the mouſe; ſhall be conſumed together, ſaith the LORD.
18. For [c] I know their works and their thoughts: it ſhall come, that I will gather all nations and tongues, and they ſhall come and ſee my glory. 19. And [d] I will ſet a ſign among them, and I will ſend thoſe that eſcape of them [e] unto the nations, to Tarſhiſh, Pul, and Lud, that draw the bow, to Tubal and Javan, to the iſles afar off, that have not heard my fame, neither have ſeen my glory; and [f] they ſhall declare my glory among the Gentiles. 20. And they ſhall bring all your brethren [g] for an offering unto the LORD, out of all nations, upon horſes, and in chariots, and in ‡ litters, and upon mules, and upon ſwift beaſts, to my holy mountain Jeruſalem, ſaith the LORD, as the children of Iſ-rael bring an offering in a clean veſſel into the houſe of the LORD. 21. And I will alſo take of them [h] for prieſts, and for Levites, ſaith the LORD. 22. For as [i] the new heavens, and the new earth which I will make, ſhall remain before me, ſaith the LORD, ſo ſhall your ſeed and your name remain. 23. And [k] it ſhall come to paſs, that from one new-moon to another, and from one ſabbath to another, [l] ſhall all fleſh come to worſhip before me, ſaith the LORD. 24. And they ſhall go forth, and look upon the carcaſes of the men that have tranſgreſſed againſt me: for [m] their worm ſhall not die, neither ſhall their fire be quenched, and they ſhall be an abhorring unto all fleſh.

[y] Ezek. xxxviii. 22. 2 Theſ. i. 8.
[z] Pſ. l. 3.
[a] Rev. xix. 18.
[b] Chap. lxv. 3, 4.
† Or one after another.
[c] Rev. ii. 2.
[d] Luke ii. 34.
[e] Mat. xxviii. 19.
[f] Mal. i. 11.
[g] Rom. xv. 16.
‡ Or coaches.
[h] Exod. xix. 6. Chap. lxi. 6. 1 Pet. ii. 9. Rev. i. 6.
[i] Chap. lxv. 17. 2 Pet. iii. 13. Rev. xxi. 1.
[k] Zech. xiv. 16.
[l] Pſ. lxv. 2.
[m] Mark ix. 44, 46, 48.

v. 15—24. We have here an awful diſplay of the wrath of God revealed from heaven againſt the ungodlineſs of men, and a bright proſpect of the glory and triumphs of the redeemed, that, like the pillar of the cloud, gives light to God's Iſrael, but hangs louring with vengeance over his enemies.

1. Chriſt will appear, to the terror of the wicked, in flaming fire, and with fury like a whirlwind, his judgments irreſiſtible as terrible, v. 15. Arraigned at his bar, and their guilt too glaring to be denied, the ſword of inexorable juſtice is unſheathed, and the multitude of criminals executed, v. 17. Their crimes are idolatry, ſuperſtition, and every abomination committed in defiance of God's law. They purify themſelves in gardens, according to their idolatrous rites, behind one tree in the midſt. Some ſuppoſe Achad, which we render one, to be the name of their idol; and others read the words, one after another, eagerly crouding to this hated worſhip; eating ſwines fleſh, and the abomination, and the mouſe; unclean and forbidden animals; and therefore they are conſumed together: God being privy to their works and thoughts, and ſeeing their utter apoſtacy from his worſhip and ſervice, executes vengeance upon them. This relates either to the Jews, as ſome interpret it, who might have brought back with them, and practiſed in ſecret, thoſe idolatries they had learnt in Babylon: or, as others, to the Antichriſtian church, in which idolatry ſhall revive, and Chriſt's ordinances be diſregarded: or it may more generally refer to all the wicked who rebel againſt God. We have ſeen fire and ſword terribly devour Jeruſalem; with the ſame temporal judgments ſhall the ſeat of Antichriſt be deſtroyed, Rev. xviii. 8. and we expect Jeſus, the Judge of all, to be at laſt revealed from heaven in flaming fire, taking vengeance on all who know not God, and obey not his goſpel.

2. He will ſet up his kingdom in the world, to the great joy of his people, as he did at the firſt preaching of the goſpel, or as he will do more univerſally at laſt, when his name will be ſpread from pole to pole.

[1.] All nations ſhall hear the goſpel word, and be gathered in to Chriſt. It ſhall come, that I will gather all nations and tongues, and they ſhall come and ſee my glory; the glory of Chriſt in his perſon and offices, or of his goſpel, in the great and precious promiſes of it; or of the church, into which they will be gathered, and where the members ſhall in purity of manners, beauty of order, and unity of affection, eminently adorn their profeſſion, and glorify their Lord. And I will ſet a ſign among them; an enſign, ſuch as Chriſt is, lifted up in the goſpel word, to whom the gathering of the people will be; or ſome miraculous ſign, as when on the day of Pentecoſt the Holy Ghoſt was poured out upon the apoſtles, and, to the aſtoniſhment of the different nations aſſembled at Jeruſalem, they heard them ſpeak all their ſeveral languages: and it is not improbable, that before the great day of the Lord's power, theſe miraculous gifts may be again reſtored. Others ſuppoſe this ſign will be the converſion of the Jews, or ſome diſtinguiſhing mark put upon the foreheads of God's people; but the former ſenſes are much preferable.

[2.] Preachers ſhall for this purpoſe be ſent forth. I will ſend thoſe that eſcape of them unto the nations; either the apoſtles and converts of the Jews, who eſcaped the general impenitence of their countrymen, and went forth into every place preaching the goſpel; or thoſe who eſcape when the Antichriſtian powers ſhall be broken, and are as brands plucked out of the burning, will be enabled feelingly to preach the grace of a Redeemer, and the dreadful danger of ſin: to Tarſhiſh, Pul and Lud, that draw the bow, to Tubal and Javan, and the iſles afar off. Concerning the countries here meant interpreters are divided and uncertain; but the ſenſe is clear, that they ſhould go into all lands far and near, even to the moſt diſtant iſles of the ſea, preaching the goſpel to thoſe that have not heard my fame, nor ſeen my glory; ſtrangers to Chriſt and his word, and to whom his fame had never reached: and they ſhall declare my glory among the Gentiles, the glory of the pardoning, ſanctifying, comforting, and ſaving grace of the Redeemer.

[3.] The effect of their miniſtry in the converſion of the Gentiles would be great. They ſhall bring your brethren, the Gentiles, and all converts who have one father, for an offering to the Lord out of all nations; either the miniſters ſhall preſent them before the Lord, as the fruit of their labours; or they ſhould offer up themſelves, their bodies, ſouls, and ſpirits, as living ſacrifices, Rom. xii. 1. Upon horſes, and in chariots, and in litters, and upon mules, and upon ſwift beaſts, according to the condition and circumſtances of the ſeveral converts; ſome rich, ſome poor, ſome weak, ſome ſtrong; but all eager to come into the church of Chriſt; or rather theſe carriages repreſent the goſpel miniſters, by which the ſouls of men are brought home to Chriſt; to my holy mountain Jeruſalem, ſaith the Lord, the place of general reſort; as the children of Iſrael bring an offering in a clean veſſel into the houſe of the Lord, ſo ſhall the Gentiles be preſented to God in the beauty of holineſs, their hearts purified by faith, and ſanctified by the Holy Ghoſt, as veſſels of honour, and accepted as a well-pleaſing oblation, Rom. xv. 16. Note, (1.) They who are brethren in Chriſt, muſt love as brethren. (2.) The moſt acceptable offering is the ſinner's heart, for this ſhall pleaſe the Lord better than a bullock that hath horns and hoofs.

Before Chriſt 698.

4. God will appoint the miniſters of his ſanctuary out of theſe Gentile converts. I will alſo take of them for prieſts, and for Levites, ſaith the Lord. Though the Aaronical prieſthood is deſtroyed, God reſerves this prerogative to himſelf, to appoint his own ambaſſadors, and no man who is not called of God, as was Aaron, has any right to miniſter, no ordination of man being able to make thoſe miniſters of God, who are not firſt inwardly moved by the Holy Ghoſt to take this office upon them. Let thoſe who dare make that profeſſion, in order to intrude into the ſacred office, whilſt conſcious of their utter unacquaintedneſs with any inward call, tremble at the complicated guilt they incur, by lying not only againſt their own conſciences, but againſt the Holy Ghoſt.

5. There ſhall be a ſucceſſion of ſuch goſpel miniſters to the end of time. For as the new heavens, and the new earth which I will make, ſhall remain before me, ſaith the Lord; the goſpel diſpenſation, which ſucceeded the Moſaical, wherein all things are become new, a new covenant eſtabliſhed, new inſtitutions made, new commandments given, and theſe to abide for ever; ſo ſhall your ſeed and your name remain; a ſpiritual ſeed, both of miniſters and people, who ſhall have a name in the earth, and in whom the church will be maintained and preſerved againſt all the powers of darkneſs.

6. The ſolemn, frequent, and conſtant returns of worſhip in the goſpel church, are deſcribed in terms borrowed from the Jewiſh diſpenſation. Their new moons indeed and ſabbaths are aboliſhed, but in their ſtead the Lord's-day is appointed for the religious aſſemblies of Chriſtians for prayer, the preaching of the word, and joining in the Lord's Supper; and all true believers are careful to maintain and keep up theſe ſtated opportunities of worſhip, not forſaking the aſſembling of themſelves together, as the manner of ſome is.

Laſtly, They ſhall with joy behold the Redeemer's triumphs in the final and eternal deſtruction of his enemies and theirs. They ſhall go forth, and look upon the carcaſes of the men that have tranſgreſſed againſt me; either of the Jews who ſhould be maſſacred by the Roman ſword, whom the Chriſtians would ſee lying unburied on the earth; or of the Antichriſtian powers overthrown and deſtroyed, Rev. xix. 19—21. by the word of God: or rather at the reſurrection-day, the ſaints of God going forth from their graves, ſhall ſee the wicked, loathſome and abhorred as putrid carcaſes, caſt into the everlaſting burnings of hell: for their worm ſhall not die; eternal horrors gnawing inceſſantly their guilty conſciences: neither ſhall their fire be quenched; conſuming, yet unconſumed; curſed with immortality; amidſt the unutterable tortures of thoſe raging flames no death, though courted, ſhall come to their releaſe; but, tormented day and night for ever, they ſhall have no reſt: and they ſhall be an abhorring to all fleſh; the ſaints of God beholding them with abhorrence, applauding the juſtice of God in their damnation, and admiring the diſtinguiſhing grace of their Redeemer, which plucked them as brands from the burning. Note, (1.) Let ſinners hear and fear; ſin will certainly receive its wages at the laſt; and it is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of that God who is a conſuming fire. (2.) In eternity God will be magnified for his judgments executed on the wicked, as well as for his grace manifeſted to his people; and they who join the ſongs of angels in celebrating redeeming mercy, will find matter for their praiſes alſo even in the miſeries of the damned; for when the ſmoke of their torment aſcendeth up for ever and ever, the ſaints of God will cry Allelujah! Rev. xix. 2, 3.

THE EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;
OR, A PRACTICAL COMMENT
Upon the Book of the PROPHET
JEREMIAH.

THE prophecy of Jeremiah ſucceeds that of Iſaiah, not as being next in order, but in bulk. His name is by ſome interpreted, The Lord ſhall exalt, he being raiſed up of God to this high dignity. Others derive it from a word ſignifying to caſt down, this being the great ſubject of his prophecy, that God would deſtroy the Jewiſh people and nation. He began to propheſy young, in the 13th year of Joſiah, which Archbiſhop Uſher places in the 629th before Chriſt, and of the Julian period from the creation, 4085, and continued upwards of forty years in Judea. How long he propheſied after he was carried into Egypt, is uncertain, where antient tradition reports he was ſtoned for his fidelity and zeal.

This book contains many diſcourſes of the prophet, delivered to his rebellious countrymen; teſtifying againſt their ſins, inviting them to repentance, and warning them of their ruin, if they perſiſted in their iniquities: particularly foretelling the deſtruction of their city and temple, and the captivity in Babylon; amidſt which threatned judgments ſome gracious promiſes of the Meſſiah's kingdom are interſperſed, to comfort the few faithful, and ſupport their hopes amidſt their deſolations. There are alſo ſeveral predictions in this book relative to other nations.

Some chapters are purely hiſtorical, and give a particular account of the taking of Jeruſalem; the miſeries the Jews endured; the captivity that followed; the ſad diſperſion of the remnant that was left; and to his bitter ſorrow he lived to ſee his prophecies accompliſhed, and in the book of Lamentations, generally aſcribed to him, with deepeſt anguiſh bewailed their deſolations.

Before Chriſt 628.

CHAP. I.

In this chapter we have, 1. The title of the book, with the time of the continuance of Jeremiah's public miniſtry, ver. 1—3. 2. His call to the prophetical office, ver. 4—10. 3. The viſions of an almond-rod and a ſeething pot, ſignifying the approaching ruin of Judah and Jeruſalem by the Chaldeans, ver. 11—16. 4. Encouragement given to the prophet to go on undauntedly in his work, in an aſſurance of God's preſence with him, ver. 17—19.

1. THE words of Jeremiah the ſon of Hilkiah, of the prieſts that were in [a] Anathoth in the land of Benjamin: 2. To whom the word of the LORD came in the days of Joſiah the ſon of Amon king of Judah, [b] in the thirteenth year of his reign. 3. It came alſo in the days of Jehoiakim the ſon of Joſiah king of Judah, [c] unto the end of the eleventh year of Zedekiah the ſon of Joſiah king of Judah, [d] unto the carrying away of Jeruſalem captive [e] in the fifth month.

628.

v. 1—3. We have here an account of the prophet's parentage, and the time of his prophecy.

1. He was of the ſacerdotal race, the ſon of Hilkiah, not the high-prieſt, nor of that family, but probably a deſcendant from Ithamar, of whoſe line Abiathar was the laſt high-prieſt, whoſe poſſeſſions were at Anathoth, ſee 1 Kings ii. 26. a city about three miles from Jeruſalem, in the tribe of Benjamin.

Before Chriſt 628.

2. He began to propheſy in the thirteenth year of Joſiah, and, no doubt, was a great encourager of that pious king in his work of reformation, and countenanced by him in his labours to bring Iſrael to repentance: but the attempts of both were fruitleſs; the people continued hypocritical, even when they pretended to reform, and thus filled up the meaſure of their iniquities, and brought down thoſe judgments Jeremiah was commiſſioned to denounce againſt them. He continued to propheſy during the wicked reigns of Joſiah's ſucceſſors, when the deſtruction of the people was haſtening apace, till he ſaw Jeruſalem, under Zedekiah, miſerably deſtroyed, and the people enſlaved. Note, (1.) All attempts to ſave a people devoted to ruin come too late. (2.) They who will not be reformed, muſt be deſtroyed.

4. Then the word of the LORD came unto me, ſaying, 5. Before I [f] formed thee in the belly, [g] I knew thee; and before thou cameſt forth out of the womb, I [h] ſanctified thee, and I ordained thee a prophet unto the nations. 6. Then ſaid I, Ah, [i] Lord GOD, behold, I cannot ſpeak, for I am a child. 7. ¶ But the LORD ſaid unto me, Say not, I am a child: for thou ſhalt

[a] Joſh. xxi. 18. 1 Chron. vi. 60. Chap. xxxii. 7, &c.

[b] Chap. xxv. 3.

[c] Chap. xxxix. 2.

[d] Chap. lii. 12.

[e] 1 Kings xxv. 8.

[f] Iſa. xlix. 1, 5. Eccluſ. xlix. 7.

[g] Ex. xxxiii. 12, 17.

[h] Luke i. 15, 41. Gal. i. 15, 16.

[i] Ex. iv. 10. & vi. 12, 30. Iſa. vi. 5.

Before Chriſt 628.

ſhalt go to all that I ſhall ſend thee, and [k] whatſoever I command thee thou ſhalt ſpeak. 8. [l] Be not afraid of their faces: for I [m] am with thee to deliver thee, ſaith the LORD. 9. Then the LORD put forth his hand, and [n] touched my mouth, and the LORD ſaid unto me, Behold, I have [o] put my words in thy mouth. 10. [p] See, I have this day ſet thee over the nations, and over the kingdoms, [q] to root out, and to pull down, and to deſtroy, and to throw down, to build, and to plant.

[k] Mat. xxviii. 20.
[l] Ezek. iii. 9.
[m] Ex. iii. 12. Deut. xxxi. 6, 8. Joſh. i. 5. Heb. xiii. 6.
[n] Iſa. vi. 7.
[o] Chap. v. 14.
[p] 1 Kings xix. 17.
[q] Chap. xviii. 7. 2 Cor. x. 4, 5.

v. 4—10. The deſignation of the prophet to his office, and God's encouragement of him to proceed in it, are here ſet forth.

1. His deſignation. God, before he formed him in the womb, had foreknown and predeſtinated him in his eternal counſels to be his ſervant, and ſanctified or ſeparated him for this peculiar ſervice, in which he was to be employed, as a prophet to the nations; not only to the Jews, but to other nations alſo, againſt whom his word ſhould go forth. Note, (1.) God from eternity knoweth thoſe that are his. (2.) What he predeſtinates us to, muſt infallibly take place. (3.) The eternal deſigns of God's mercy towards us are known by his word coming unto us, and calling us to the work and office he hath appointed us. (4.) None can miniſter acceptably before God, whom he hath not firſt ſanctified and ordained.

2. His diſtreſs, under the apprehenſion of his own inſufficiency. Ah, Lord God! I cannot, or I know not how to ſpeak, as ſuch an office requires; for I am a child, in weakneſs, probably alſo in years, it being certain he began to propheſy very early. Note, (1.) The work of the miniſtry is an arduous taſk; they may well tremble for themſelves who are called to undertake it. (2.) It becomes young men eſpecially to entertain a diffidence of their own abilities. No rock ſo fatal to youth as ſelf-conceit.

3. God encourages him for his work. Say not, I am a child: though never ſo inſufficient of ourſelves, we may not draw back when we have God's miſſion and promiſe of ſupport: his ſtrength ſhall be perfected in our weakneſs. Three arguments he urges: (1.) I ſend thee; and under a divine call we may be aſſured of divine help. (2.) I will inſtruct thee; what I command thee thou ſhalt ſpeak; and therefore he ſhould never be at a loſs for matter or words. (3.) I am with thee, to uphold thee with my arm, to comfort thee with my preſence, to deliver thee from all danger; be not afraid of their faces. He might expect oppoſition; to be brow-beat, threatned, and inſulted on account of his miniſtry; but he need not fear when God's omnipotence is engaged for him. Note, (1.) If God pleaſes, out of the mouth of babes and ſucklings he can ſhew forth his praiſe. (2.) A faithful reprover muſt expect to meet a frowning world; but we muſt not fear the faces of men; nor need we; if God's power protect, and his love comfort us, what can man do againſt us?

4. God gives him a ſign to confirm his word to him. The Lord put forth his hand; the Lord Jeſus, the God of his holy prophets, who appeared now in a human form; and touched my mouth, intimating that it was ſanctified, and fitted for his ſervice; and the Lord ſaid unto me, Behold, I have put my words into thy mouth, that he might with freedom and boldneſs deliver the meſſage he had received from his Maſter; and an awful one it was! See, I have ſet thee over the nations, and over the kingdoms, as a prophet, whoſe word concerning them would infallibly come to paſs; to root out, and to pull down, and to deſtroy, and to throw down; to pronounce their doom, and foretel the judgments that ſhould overturn them, as a houſe or a tree rooted up and thrown down by the whirlwind: and to build, and to plant; to propheſy the reſtoration of the Jews after their captivity; or to call them to repentance, that when others periſhed, they might be preſerved. Note, (1.) The ſword of God's word in the mouth of his miniſters is more to be feared than the glittering ſpear. (2.) The ſame prophetic word which is to ſome a ſavour of death unto death, becauſe they harden their hearts againſt the warning, becomes, through Divine Grace, to the penitent a ſavour of life unto life.

11. ¶ Moreover, the word of the LORD came unto me, ſaying, Jeremiah, what ſeeſt thou? and I ſaid, I ſee [r] a rod of an almond-tree. 12. Then ſaid the LORD unto me, Thou haſt well ſeen: for [s] I will haſten my word to perform it. 13. And the word of the LORD came unto me the ſecond time, ſaying, What ſeeſt thou? and I ſaid, I ſee [t] a ſeething pot, and the face thereof was † towards the north. 14. Then the LORD ſaid unto me, [u] Out of the north an evil ſhall break forth upon all the inhabitants of the land. 15. For lo, [x] I will call all the families of the kingdoms of the north, ſaith the LORD, and they ſhall come, and [y] they ſhall ſet every one his throne at the entering of the gates of Jeruſalem, and againſt all the walls thereof round about, and againſt all the cities of Judah. 16. And [z] I will utter my judgments againſt them touching all their wickedneſs, who have forſaken me, and have burnt incenſe unto other gods, and worſhipped the works of their own hands 17. ¶ Thou therefore [a] gird up thy loins and ariſe, and ſpeak unto them all that I command thee: [b] be not diſmayed at their faces, leſt I ‡ confound thee before them. 18. For behold, I have made thee this day [c] a defenced city, and an iron pillar, and braſen walls againſt the whole land, againſt the kings of Judah, againſt the princes thereof, againſt the prieſts thereof, and againſt the people of the land. 19. And they ſhall fight againſt thee, [d] but they ſhall not prevail againſt thee: for I am with thee, ſaith the LORD, to deliver thee.

[r] Iſa. x. 5.
[s] Amos viii. 2.
[t] Ezek. xi. 3, 7. & xxiv. 3, 5.
† Heb. From the face of the north.
[u] Chap. iv. 6. & vi. 1.
[x] Chap. v. 15. & vi. 22. & x. 22.
[y] Chap. xxxix. 3.

Before Chriſt 628.

[z] Deut. xxviii. 20.
[a] 1 Kings xviii. 46. 2 Kings iv. 29. & ix. 1.
[b] Ezek. ii. 6.
‡ Or, break to pieces.
[c] Iſa. l. 7. Chap. vi. 27. & xv. 20.
[d] Pſ. cxxix. 2.

v. 11—19. Jeremiah having received his miſſion, hath here a general view of the great ſubject of his prophecy, the deſtruction of the Jews for their ſins.

1. Their ruin is repreſented by two ſigns, ſhewing how ſpeedily and terribly it approached. The firſt is an almond rod, which is preſented to his view, and which God explains, as ſignifying that the deſtruction of the Jews ſhould be very ſoon, as the almond-tree haſtens before any other tree to put forth her bloſſoms. The other is a ſeething pot, with its face towards the north. This pot is Jeruſalem, and the fire under it the Chaldeans, as God explains it, aſſembling out of the north, under the conduct of Nebuchadnezzar, called of God, v. 15. to execute his judgments, coming under the divine direction, and therefore ſure to prevail. They ſhall ſet up not only their tents as beſieging foes, but their thrones as triumphant conquerors, in the gates of Jeruſalem, having ſubdued it, with all the defenced cities of Judah. Note, (1.) God will never want armies to execute his vengeance againſt a devoted people: at his ſummons inſtantly they aſſemble. (2.) Miniſters clearly in the Bible foreſee the ruin of ſinners, and forewarn them; but they will not believe, till too late they feel their doom inevitable.

2. The cauſe of their ruin is their ſins, eſpecially their idolatry. I will utter my judgments againſt them, paſs ſentence upon them, and execute it, touching all their wickedneſs, which was great and aggravated, who have forſaken me, apoſtatized from God's worſhip and ſervice, and have burnt incenſe to other gods; they have worſhipped the works of their own hands; gods of their own fancy, and the images of their own making; which argued their ſtupidity and ignorance, ſtrange as their impiety and ingratitude.

3. God directs him how to proceed, and encourages him to be faithful. Gird up thy loins; alluding to the long garments they wore in the eaſt, which, when they went in haſte, they girt about their waiſt. He muſt be expeditious and diligent: ariſe, and ſpeak unto them boldly and reſolutely, not intimidated by any fears or danger, all that I command thee, without adding thereto, or diminiſhing therefrom, however offenſive and provoking the meſſage might appear, and however great the perſonages to whom it muſt be delivered, to the kings, princes, prieſts, and people. The dignity of the magiſtrates doth not ſet them above reproof, nor the ſacredneſs of the ſacerdotal office exempt thoſe who diſhonour it from rebuke: rather, as their influence and example is ſo pernicious, and they are chief in the tranſgreſſion, they deſerve the ſevereſt ſcourge. To engage him with boldneſs and zeal to diſcharge his miſſion, God warns and promiſes. He warns him of his danger, if he proved fearful or faithleſs: Be not diſmayed at their faces, leſt I confound thee before them, and put ſuch marks of his diſpleaſure upon him, as would be his greateſt confuſion. He promiſes, if he perſiſted undiſmayed in the diſcharge of his duty, to protect and preſerve him ſafe as a defenced city, ſtrong as an iron pillar, and unſhaken as walls of braſs. Though all roſe up againſt him, as he might expect they would, kings, prieſts, and people, yet ſhall they not prevail to deſtroy thee, for I am with thee, ſaith the Lord, to deliver thee in every day of danger and difficulty. Note, (1.) The miniſters of God muſt ſhew no reſpect to perſons when they are delivering his word, nor dare to adulterate the awful truths of God, by ſoftening the expreſſions, or ſeeking to make their meſſage leſs offenſive. (2.) It requires much grace to ſtand againſt the torrent of ungodlineſs, and teſtify to great as well as ſmall the judgments of God. (3.) Negligent and faithleſs prieſts were ever the bittereſt enemies of God's prophets. (4.) We have need of every argument to work on our fears, as well as hopes, and all little enough to fix us unſhaken againſt the revilings and oppoſition we may expect to meet in the zealous diſcharge of our miniſtry. (5.) If God be with us, though princes threaten, and prieſts thunder their anathemas, and the people join the cry, we ſhall be enabled, unmoved and fearleſs, to witneſs to their faces their iniquities, and declare the wrath of God revealed againſt them.

Before Chriſt 628.

CHAP. II.

Jeremiah here opens his miniſtry with a moſt pathetic diſcourſe on the evil and danger of their ſins, and particularly of their ſhameful idolatries. They are told, 1. That this was ungrateful to God, who had been ſo kind to them, ver. 1—8. 2. That it was without precedent, that a nation ſhould change their god, ver. 9—13. 3. That hereby they had diſparaged and ruined themſelves, ver. 14—19. 4. That they had broken their covenants, and degenerated from their good beginnings, ver. 20, 21. 5. That their wickedneſs was too plain to be concealed, and too bad to be excuſed, ver. 22, 23, 25. 6. That they were irreclaimable and indefatigable in their idolatries, ver. 24, 25, 33, 36. 7. That they ſhamed themſelves by their idolatry, and ſhould ſhortly be made aſhamed of it, ver. 26—29, 37. 8. That they had not been reformed by the rebukes of providence, ver. 30. 9. That they had put a great contempt upon God, ver. 31, 32. 10. That with their idolatries they had mixed the moſt unnatural murders, ver. 34. And O that by meditating on this chapter we might be brought to repent of our ſpiritual idolatries, giving that place in our ſouls to the world and the fleſh, which ſhould have been reſerved for God only.

1. MOREOVER the word of the LORD came to me, ſaying, 2. Go, and cry in the ears of Jeruſalem, ſaying, Thus ſaith the LORD, I remember thee, the kindneſs of [a] thy youth, the love of thine eſpouſals, when thou wenteſt after me in the wilderneſs, in a land that was not ſown. 3. [b] Iſrael was holineſs unto the LORD, and [c] the firſt-fruits of his increaſe: [d] all that devour him, ſhall offend; evil ſhall come upon them, ſaith the LORD. 4. Hear ye the word of the LORD, O houſe of Jacob, and all the families of the houſe of Iſrael. 5. ¶ Thus ſaith the LORD, [e] What iniquity have your fathers found in me, that they are gone far from me, and [f] have walked after vanity, and are become vain? 6. Neither ſaid they, Where is the LORD, [g] that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, [h] that led us through the wilderneſs, through a land of deſerts, and of pits, through a land of drought, and of the ſhadow of death, through a land that no man paſſed through, and where no man dwelt? 7. And I brought you into a plentiful country to eat the fruit thereof, and the goodneſs thereof; but when ye entered, ye [i] defiled my land, and made mine heritage an abomination. 8. The prieſts ſaid not, Where is the LORD? and [k] they that handle the law, knew me not: the paſtors alſo tranſgreſſed againſt me, and [l] the prophets propheſied by Baal, and walked after things that do not profit.

v. 1—8. Being ordained a prophet to the Lord, Jeremiah hath his meſſage delivered to him, and is commanded to go to Jeruſalem from Anathoth, the place of his reſidence, and there publickly declare the word of God, that all may hear, and either repent of their iniquities, or be left inexcuſable in their unbelief and hardneſs of heart.

1. He reminds them of their own former profeſſions, and God's dealing with them; when by every inſtance of kindneſs he had engaged their affections, and they had given ſuch fair expectations of their making a ſuitable return. I remember thee, the kindneſs of thy youth; either God's kindneſs to them in their early days, or rather their affectionate regard to him; the love of thine eſpouſals, when their warm hearts, filled with affection, as a new-married bride, ſought only how to pleaſe their Lord; when thou wenteſt after me in the wilderneſs, truſting on his guidance, and depending on his providence; in a land that was not ſown, and where none of the neceſſaries of life were to be obtained, but they were fed by daily miracles. Iſrael was holineſs to the Lord, ſeparated for him, conſecrated to him, and in the bonds of his covenant ſolemnly engaged to be his, and his alone; and the firſt fruits of his increaſe, preſenting themſelves, bodies, ſouls, and ſpirits, as the firſt fruits at the temple, a holy offering unto him. Thus they did run well, and God's bleſſing was in the midſt of them: all that devour him ſhall offend, or be guilty; God protected them, they were as the apple of his eye dear to him, none dared touch them with impunity; evil ſhall come upon them, ſaith the Lord; God will be the avenger of their wrongs, and their enemies ſhall periſh. From Egypt's iron bondage he brought them, led them through the wilderneſs by his pillar of a cloud and fire; through a land of deſerts, and of pits, where venomous creatures lodged, ſcorpions, and fiery flying ſerpents; through a land of drought, where no water could be found, and of the ſhadow of death, diſmal and lonely; through a land that no man paſſed through, and where no man dwelt, pathleſs, without inhabitant, and yet amidſt difficulties ſo inſurmountable by human power, God ſafely conducted them, covered them with the ſhadow of his cloud from the ſcorching ſun, fed them with plenty of the richeſt food, opened ſtreams from the rock, protected them from every danger, and brought them ſafe at laſt to his promiſed reſt, to a plentiful country, to eat the fruit thereof, and the goodneſs thereof, to a land flowing with milk and honey, the glory of all lands; for which unſpeakable favours he juſtly might expect from them the deepeſt returns of duty, love, and ſervice. Note, (1.) Our firſt love ſhould be often remembered, to humble us for our departure from God, and to haſten our return to him, Rev. xi. 4, 5. (2.) God takes pleaſure in beholding the affections of his people placed upon him. (3.) When we love God in ſincerity, we ſhall follow him implicitly, and fear no dangers even in the wilderneſs. (4.) God's Iſrael are a holy people; they who anſwer not this character, have no lot nor portion among them. (5.) They who perſecute God's choſen, will find him the avenger of their quarrel. (6.) The way to heaven lies through difficulties impaſſable for mortal ſtrength; and if ever our ſouls are ſafely led to the heavenly Canaan, we muſt acknowledge ourſelves intirely indebted to his everlaſting arms of power and love. (7.) The greater our trials, the more is the grace of God magnified in our deliverance. (8.) For all the wonders of his grace, God hath the deepeſt and moſt juſt demands of love and ſervice from us. (9.) The promiſing beginnings we have ſhewn, and the fair profeſſions we have made, will greatly aggravate our guilt, ſhould we begin in the ſpirit and end in the fleſh.

Before Chriſt 682.

2. He upbraids them with their black ingratitude. Thus ſaith the Lord, What iniquity have your fathers found in me? Had he done them injuſtice, been a hard maſter, or unfaithful to any of his promiſes? No; there is no unrighteouſneſs in him: they who forſake him, forſake their own mercies, and out of their own mouths will be condemned—that they are gone far from me, apoſtates from his ſervice and worſhip; for thoſe who depart from a religious profeſſion, become uſually viler than thoſe who never pretended to it; and have walked after vanity, after idols, which are the greateſt vanities, and are become vain? corrupt in their practice, as dark in their imaginations; defiling the good land, into which the Lord had brought them, with their abominations, and which they held only on condition of their fidelity. God was utterly forgotten, none ſaid, Where is the Lord? notwithſtanding all his miracles of mercy ſhewn them: nay, the prieſts, who ſhould have been the firſt to reſtrain others, were chief in the tranſgreſſion; the prieſts ſaid not, Where is the Lord? and if they, who were their guides, took no pains to acquaint themſelves with him, no marvel the people forgot God: and they that handle the law knew me not; pretending to inſtruct others, but totally ignorant themſelves, and ſtrangers to all experimental knowledge of God and his truth. The paſtors alſo tranſgreſſed againſt me, civil, as well as eccleſiaſtical, caſting off all fear of God; and the prophets propheſied by Baal, pretending inſpiration from their idol to contradict the prophets of the Lord, and ſupported by the princes and prieſts in their impiety; and walked after things that do not profit, their falſe gods, from whom no bleſſing could be derived. Note, When blind prieſts lead a blind people, no marvel they periſh together.

9. ¶ Wherefore I will yet plead with you, ſaith the LORD, and [m] with your children's children will I plead. 10. For † paſs over the iſles of Chittim, and ſee; and ſend unto Kedar, and conſider diligently, and ſee if there be ſuch a thing. 11. [n] Hath a nation changed their gods, [o] which are yet no gods? [p] but my people have changed their glory for that which doth not profit. 12. [q] Be aſtoniſhed, O ye heavens, at this, and be horribly afraid, be ye very deſolate, ſaith the LORD. 13. For my people have committed two evils: they have forſaken me [r] the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out ciſterns, broken ciſterns that can hold no water.

v 9—13. Having rebuked their ingratitude, God pleads againſt them the unprecedented folly of their conduct. He deſires to convince ſinners, and therefore he uſes every argument, and at leaſt will leave them inexcuſable in their impenitence.

1. They were in this reſpect more falſe and fickle, even than the idolatrous nations they affected to reſemble. They retained a veneration for their fathers gods: baſe as the idols were which they worſhipped, nothing could prevail with them to forſake the religion of their anceſtors. Go to the iſles of Chittim, Greece, or Italy, or to Kedar in Arabia, and not an inſtance would be found of a nation that had changed their gods; but my people have changed their glory, have forſaken the living, true, and only God, whoſe ſervice they ſhould have accounted their higheſt honour, and their diſtinguiſhed ſeparation for him their moſt exalted glory; for that which doth not profit; for idols, for Baal, in whoſe worſhip neither honour nor advantage could be found, but the very contrary.

2. The heavens are called upon with wonder and horror to behold

[a] Ezek. xvi. 8, 22.

[b] Exod. xix. 5, 6.

[c] Jam. i. 18. Rev. xiv. 4.

[d] Chap. xii. 14. Chap. l. 7.

[e] Iſa. v. 4. Mic. vi. 3.

[f] Jonah ii. 8.

[g] Iſa. lxiii. 9, 11, 13. Hoſ. xiii. 4.

[h] Deut. viii. 15. & xxxii. 10.

[i] Pſ. lxxviii. 58. & cvi. 38.

[k] Mal. ii. 6, 7. Rom. ii. 20.

[l] Chap. xxiii. 13.

[m] Exod. xx. 5. Lev. xx. 5.

† Or paſs over to.

[n] Mic. iv. 5.

[o] Chap. xvi. 20.

[p] Pſ. cvi. 20. Rom. i. 23.

[q] Iſa. i. 2. Chap. vi. 19.

[r] Pſ. xxxvi. 9. Chap. xvii 13. & xviii. 14. John iv. 14.

behold this ſcene of aggravated guilt and folly. Be aſtoniſhed, O ye heavens, at this, the inhabitants of them, or the very inanimate creation might well be amazed, and be ye horribly afraid, trembling for ſins ſo great, and that muſt bring down judgments ſo heavy: be ye very deſolate, ſaith the Lord, as if the ſun ſhould refuſe his light to ſuch miſcreants, the clouds thicken with thunder and lightning over them, and ſweep them from the earth with the beſom of deſtruction. For my people, ſeparated for God, once profeſſors of his truth, and thereby every departure from him being rendered more infamous and exceeding ſinful; my people have committed two evils, their tranſgreſſions are numberleſs, but theſe the capital ſins, and the ſources of all the reſt: they have forſaken me the fountain of living waters, rejecting his government, neglecting his ordinances, and leaving him far above, out of their ſight; and in ſo doing, have cut themſelves off from the fountain of living waters, from that God of all grace and conſolation, in whom they might have for ever found a rich ſupply for all their wants; and hewed them out ciſterns, broken ciſterns that can hold no water; ſuch were their idols, that after all the pains and expence beſtowed on them, did not afford the leaſt conſolation, not even the miſerable relief of a drop of putrid ſtagnating water, to quench the thirſt of their votaries. Note, (1.) They who forſake God, forſake their own mercies. (2.) As long as our ſouls come to Jeſus the living fountain, ſo long ſhall we find the waters of his grace within us a well of water, ſpringing up to everlaſting life. (3.) Whatever creature enjoyments may promiſe, they will deceive our expectations: if we ſeek our happineſs from wealth, honour, or indulgence, toil as we can to ſecure the bliſs, we ſhall find the ciſterns empty; but one portion can adequately ſatisfy an immortal ſoul, and that is, the love of the eternal God.

14. ¶ Is Iſrael a ſervant? Is he a home-born ſlave? Why is he † ſpoiled? 15. [s] The young lions rored upon him, and ‡ yelled, and they made his land waſte: His cities are burnt without inhabitant. 16. Alſo the children of Noph and [t] Tahapanes || have broken the crown of thy head. 17. [u] Haſt thou not procured this unto thyſelf, in that thou haſt forſaken the LORD thy God, when he led thee by the way? 18. And now what haſt thou to do [x] in the way of Egypt, to drink the waters of Sihor? or what haſt thou to do in the way of Aſſyria, to drink the waters of the river? 19. [y] Thine own wickedneſs ſhall correct thee, and thy backſlidings ſhall reprove thee: know therefore and ſee, that it is an evil thing and bitter, that thou haſt forſaken the LORD thy God, and that my fear is not in thee, ſaith the LORD God of hoſts.

† Heb. Become a ſpoil.
s Chap. iv. 7.
‡ Heb. Gave out their voice.
t Chap. xliii 7, 8, 9.
|| Or feed on thy crown. Deut. xxxiii. 12. Iſa. viii. 8.
u Chap. iv. 18.
x Iſa. xxx. 2.
y Ibid. iii. 9. Hoſ. v. 5.

v. 14—19. The miſeries coming upon them for their ſins are ſpoken of as already preſent, becauſe they were ſo near and certain.

1. By their iniquities they had brought themſelves into ſlavery, were defeated by their enemies, and their country ravaged. Is Iſrael a ſervant? Is he a home-born ſlave? whence comes this grievous change, how is their glorious liberty loſt? Why is he ſpoiled? ſurely ſome awful provocation hath brought on him this calamity, for terrible are his deſolations. The young lions roared upon him, and yelled, and they made his land waſte; his invading foe, the King of Aſſyria with his army, fierce and cruel as theſe ravening beaſts, roaring and yelling with all the horrid din of war, hath plundered the country, and his cities are burnt without inhabitant; all led captives, or ſlain by the ſword, and none left to reſtore them from their ruins. Alſo the children of Noph and Tahapanes have broken the crown of thy head, the Egyptians, whoſe chief cities theſe were, as well as the Aſſyrians, contributed to their ruin, Joſiah being ſlain by Pharaoh Nechoh, his ſon dethroned, Jeruſalem plundered, and a tribute ſet upon them, 2 Kings xxiii. 29—35. Haſt thou not procured this unto thyſelf? yea, verily; none but themſelves had they to blame for their ſufferings, in that thou haſt forſaken the Lord thy God; him, who was ſo able to protect them, who ſtood in a relation to them ſo glorious, and from whom it was ſo fooliſh as well as wicked, to depart: him they forſook for idols, and human confidences, changing a rock for a reed; when he led thee by the way, the right way, the path of duty; in which had they abode, they would have certainly found it the way of ſafety, but they refuſed his guidance, and ruſhed on their own ruin. Note, Whatever miſeries a ſinner is involved in, whether in time or eternity, this bitter reflection will ſharpen their edge, Haſt thou not procured this unto thyſelf?

2. The ſinful methods they took to extricate themſelves from their troubles, ſerved but to haſten their deſtruction. Inſtead of ſeeking unto God for help againſt their enemies, they ſought other ſupports. When threatned by Aſſyria, they ran to Egypt for ſuccour; when invaded by Egypt, they courted the Aſſyrians help. What haſt thou to do with theſe, who in their turn will deceive, oppreſs, and plunder thee? Thine own wickedneſs in general, or this in particular, of truſting on theſe vain helpers, ſhall correct thee, bring ſevere chaſtiſement upon them, and thy backſlidings, their treacherous departure from God, ſhall reprove thee. Know therefore, and ſee, that it is an evil and bitter thing, that thou haſt forſaken the Lord thy God, and that my fear is not in thee, ſaith the Lord God of hoſts. The event would prove to their terrible conviction, the evil and miſery of the ways which they had choſen, and ſinners will find this truth univerſally verified. Obſerve, (1.) The root of all ſin. My fear is not in thee; there is deep unbelief in the natural heart, God's warnings make no impreſſion, and the practice can riſe no higher than the principle. Hence, (2.) The effect produced. Thou haſt forſaken the Lord; when the heart is not reſtrained by his fear, corrupt nature, prone to ſin, eaſily hurries on the ſoul to all the forbidden indulgencies of fleſh and ſpirit. (3.) The iſſue of ſin is evil and bitter. It is not only evil in its own nature, as oppoſite to God's purity and perfections, but the conſequences are ever evil and bitter to the ſoul; the curſe follows the ſinner cloſer than his ſhadow; his miſeries and diſappointments are many, his enjoyments embittered; and death, eternal death, ſtares him in the face, the terrible wages of ſin. (4.) It is happy for thoſe who are brought to ſee and know this, before it is too late; and all God's viſitations have this deſign to lead us to repentance for our ſins, that we may not periſh in them.

20. ¶ For of old time I have broken thy yoke, and burſt thy bands, and [z] thou ſaidſt, I will not † tranſgreſs: when [a] upon every high hill, and under every green tree, thou wandereſt, playing the harlot. 21. Yet I had [b] planted thee a noble vine wholly a right ſeed: how then art thou turned into [c] the degenerate plant of a ſtrange vine unto me? 22. For though thou [d] waſh thee with nitre, and take thee much ſope, yet [e] thine iniquity is marked before me, ſaith the Lord GOD. 23. [f] How canſt thou ſay, I am not polluted, I have not gone after Baalim? [g] ſee thy way in the valley, know what thou haſt done: thou art a ſwift dromedary traverſing her ways. 24. [h] A wild aſs ‡ uſed to the wilderneſs, that ſnuffeth up the wind at her pleaſure, in her occaſion who can || turn her away? all they that ſeek her, will not weary themſelves, in her month they ſhall find her. 25. Withhold thy foot from being unſhod, and thy throat from thirſt: but [i] thou ſaidſt, § There is no hope. No, for I have loved ſtrangers, and after them will I go. 26. As the thief is aſhamed when he is found: ſo is the houſe of Iſrael aſhamed; they, their kings, their princes, and their prieſts, and their prophets, 27. Saying to a ſtock, Thou art my father; and to a ſtone, Thou haſt † brought me forth: for they have turned their back unto me, and not their face: but [k] in the time of their trouble they will ſay, Ariſe, and ſave us. 28. But [l] where are thy gods that thou haſt made thee? let them ariſe, [m] if they can ſave thee in the time of thy ‡ trouble: for [n] according to the number of thy cities are thy gods, O Judah.

z Exod. xix. 8.
† Or ſerve.
a Iſa. lvii. 5, 7. Chap. iii. 6.
b Exod. xv. 17. Pſ. xliv. 2. & lxxx. 8. Iſa. v. 1, &c. Mat. xxi. 33.
c Deut. xxxii. 32. Iſa. i. 21.
d Job ix. 30.
e Deut. xxxii. 34. Job xiv. 17. Hoſ. xiii. 12.
f Prov. xxx. 12.
g Chap. iii. 2.
h Job xxxix. 5, &c. Chap. xiv. 6.
‡ Heb. Taught.
|| Or reverſe it.
i Chap. xviii. 12.
§ Or is the caſe deſperate?
† Or begotten me.
k Iſa. xxvi. 16.
l Deut. xxxii. 37. Judg. x. 14.
m Iſa. xlv. 20.
‡ Heb. Evil.
n Chap. xi. 13.

v. 20—28. The prophet proſecutes his charge againſt this rebellious people.

1. Their crying ſin was idolatry; and when they had left the one true God, their wanderings were endleſs, and their idols innumerable; every city had its god and tutelar deity, v. 28. On every hill their idols ſtood thick, and not a ſpreading tree or grove was there, where their incenſe had not ſmoaked, and where they had not played the harlot, committing ſpiritual adultery, v. 20. Nor was this the crime of the refuſe of the people only; their kings, princes, prieſts and prophet, horrible to tell! theſe were the patrons of idolatry, and the moſt bigotted votaries, ſaying to the ſtock, thou art my father; and to the ſtone, thou haſt brought me forth; and whilſt infatuated, and more ſenſeleſs than the images they worſhipped, to theſe they aſcribed divine honours, they turned their backs on God, with inſolent contempt of his worſhip and ſervice. Note, When a ſinner is given up to his own heart, there are no lengths of folly, iniquity, and impiety to which he may not run.

2. Their attempts to deny it were vain, and the methods they uſed to expiate their ſins uſeleſs. Like the adultereſs, Prov. xxx. 20. they diſowned the charge of idolatry, when the evidence was ſo notorious. In the valley, probably of Hinnom, where they burnt their children to Moloch, the monuments of their ſin teſtified againſt them, v. 23. And their excuſes were frivolous when God had, in his omniſcience, marked their iniquities with a brand they never could waſh out, or rather, as v. 22. may ſignify, their ceremonial ablutions and ſacrifices to which they had recourſe, could never cancel the guilt of their ſins, or remove the ſtain of them from their conſciences. Note, (1.) To deny, or ſeek to palliate the evil of our ſins, is the ſure ſign of an impenitent heart. (2.) Nothing can waſh out the ſtain of ſin's black guilt, but the blood of Jeſus; every other method will but fix the dye deeper and ſtronger.

3. Their ſins were abundantly aggravated by the mercies they had received, and the fair promiſes they had made. Of old God had delivered them from the Egyptian yoke, v. 20. planted them in the promiſed land as a noble vine wholly a right ſeed, v. 21. both with reſpect to their worthy anceſtors, and their own gracious conduct on their firſt poſſeſſing their inheritance, Joſh. xxiv. 31. nor could there be more ſolemn engagements, than they had repeatedly made of their perpetual fidelity, v. 20. Exod. xix. 8. xxiv. 7. yet like a broken bow they had ſtarted aſide, degenerated from their primitive piety, and became as wild gourds, not only uſeleſs but noxious. Note, (1.) The greatneſs of God's mercies aggravates our guilt and ingratitude. (2.) We need often reflect with ſhame on the promiſes we have made not to tranſgreſs, and on our repeated unfaithfulneſs.

4. They are repreſented as purſuing their idolatries with determined waywardneſs in ſpite of all warnings, as the dromedary and wild aſs, when in their occaſion they are ſeeking the males, are ſo eager in running from place to place to find them, that every attempt to reſtrain them is vain, and will only weary thoſe that purſue them, till their month comes, when big with young, they might more eaſily be found and caught: ſo were this people raging in their idolatrous luſts, and no hope remained of reclaiming them, till the judgments of God were heavy upon them, and ſtopped their career. Note, (1.) Nothing ſo lawleſs as brutal luſt; vain are all the reſtraints of reaſon, conſcience, honour, when appetite ſeizes the reins. (2.) However headſtrong in the vigour of health men are in the purſuit of their forbidden gratifications, the hours will come of deep remorſe, when their career will be ſtopped; and when the joys of ſin no more inebriate, the ſting of ſin, like a ſcorpion, will torment the guilty conſcience.

5. Fair warning is given them of the iſſue of their ways, and they are admoniſhed by repentance to prevent their captivity. Refrain thy feet from being unſhod, and thy throat from thirſt, for unleſs they repented of their evil ways, and turned from them, this would be the conſequence, that barefoot, and ready to be choaked with thirſt in the journey, they ſhould be led captives into a diſtant land. Some underſtand it as an admonition, not to wear out the ſhoes of their meſſengers, and be at the pains of ſending to Egypt or Aſſyria for help, ſince theſe ſuccours would be of no uſe to them; but the former ſenſe ſeems beſt.

6. Their obſtinacy, or their deſpair, is rebuked. But thou ſaidſt, there is no hope; bidding the prophets ceaſe their attempts, for they would never attend to them, either to quit their idolatries, or to deſiſt from ſeeking the help of their heathen neighbours; they liked, and would purſue their own inventions. Or this is the language of deſpair, as if their caſe was paſt hope either for God to pardon, or their corruptions ſo ſtrong, that to attempt to reſiſt them was vain, therefore they deſperately abandon themſelves to their iniquities. Note, Nothing ſo effectually enſlaves the ſoul to ſin, as deſpair; and therefore whilſt Satan is ever a preacher of preſumption to the careleſs, he fails not to be a preacher of deſpair to the awakened, as if their iniquities were too great to be forgiven, or their corruptions too ſtrong to be ſubdued; and therefore that it were beſt to baniſh their convictions, and abandon themſelves to their luſts, but he was a liar from the beginning. No ſin can be too great for ſovereign grace to pardon, no corruption ſo ſtrong, that Almighty grace cannot ſubdue. Let us take to us words, and return unto the Lord, and then there is ſurely yet hope in our end.

7. If they perſiſted in their ways, confuſion would cover them in the day of their calamity, as a thief detected in the fact, when their falſe gods cannot relieve them; and the true God, whom they have forſaken, will refuſe to hear their prayer, v. 27, 28. Note, (1.) In the day of calamity, many who never thought of him before, are driven to God to cry, ſave us; but when the fear of hell merely, not the ſenſe of the evil of ſin, dictates the prayer, no marvel it is rejected. (2.) Whatever the impenitent ſinner places his comfort or confidence in, the day will come when it will prove a refuge of lies.

29. Wherefore will ye plead with me? ye all have tranſgreſſed againſt me, ſaith the LORD. 30. In vain have [o] I ſmitten your children, they received no correction: [p] your own ſword hath devoured your prophets, like a deſtroying lion. 31. ¶ O generation, ſee ye the word of the LORD: [q] have I been a wilderneſs unto Iſrael? a land of darkneſs? wherefore ſay my people, We † are lords, we will come no more unto thee? 32. Can a maid forget her ornaments, or a bride her attire? yet my people [r] have forgotten me days without number. 33. Why trimmeſt thou thy way to ſeek love? therefore haſt thou alſo taught the wicked ones thy ways. 34. Alſo in thy ſkirts is found the blood of the ſouls of the poor innocents: I have not found it by ‡ ſecret ſearch, but upon all theſe. 35. Yet thou ſayeſt, Becauſe I am innocent, ſurely his anger ſhall turn from me: behold, [s] I will plead with thee, becauſe [t] thou ſayeſt, I have not ſinned. 36. [u] Why gaddeſt thou about ſo much to change thy way? [x] thou alſo ſhalt be aſhamed of Egypt, [y] as thou waſt aſhamed of Aſſyria. 37. Yea, thou ſhalt go forth from him, and [z] thine hands upon thine head: for the LORD hath rejected thy confidences, and thou ſhalt not proſper in them.

[o] Iſa. i. 5. & ix. 13. Chap. v. 3.
[p] Mat. xxiii. 29, &c.
[q] Ver. 5.
† Heb. Have dominion.
[r] Pſ. cvi. 21.

‡ Heb. Digging.
[s] Ezek. xvii. 20.
[t] Prov. xxx. 20. Ver. 23.
[u] Chap. xxxi. 22.
[x] Iſa. xxx. 3.
[y] 2 Chron. xxviii. 16, 20.
[z] 2 Sam. xiii. 19.

v. 29—37. It is the folly and wickedneſs of ſinners that they complain againſt God, as if his puniſhments were ſevere, and his ways unequal; when they alone are the authors of their own miſery, and their puniſhment leſs than their iniquities deſerve.

1. God vindicates his juſtice. Wherefore will ye plead with me? when their caſe was ſo indefenſible; ye all have tranſgreſſed againſt me, and therefore could neither exculpate themſelves from guilt, nor juſtly complain of their ſufferings. Note, We are all ſinners at God's bar; every mouth muſt be ſtopped; we have nothing to do but to confeſs our guilt, juſtify his judgments, and caſt ourſelves wholly on his mercy.

2. He charges upon them their incorrigibleneſs. In vain had been all the afflictions he had brought upon them; hardened under the rod, they received no correction, were not brought to any repentance. Nay, as if exaſperated by what they ſuffered, when he ſeconded the rebukes of his providences by the word of his prophets, like furious lions they ruſhed on theſe miniſters of God, and cruelly ſhed their blood for their fidelity, v. 30. Note, (1.) They who will be zealous in rebuking men's ſins, muſt put their life in their hands. (2.) It is the ſign of a deſperate ſtate when afflictions harden, inſtead of ſoftening the heart.

3. He expoſtulates with them on their ingratitude. Had he ſhewn them unkindneſs, or brought them into darkneſs and diſtreſs, they might have had ſome plea for their revolt; but his conduct to them in the wilderneſs, the rich proviſion he made for them, the light with which he led them, and the land in which he placed them, all evidenced his unutterable kindneſs; and the leaſt attention to his dealings with them might convince them of it: how ungrateful then was their rebellion, thus to caſt off his government, and reject his worſhip and ſervice? v. 31. Note, (1.) They who cleave to God, find all his ways pleaſantneſs and peace: if ſinners are entangled in a wilderneſs, or inveloped with darkneſs, it is becauſe of their departures from him. (2.) They who affect to emancipate themſelves from God's government, only exchange his ſervice, which is perfect freedom, for the baſe and tyrannical ſervitude of their luſts.

4. He accuſes them of ſundry crimes againſt him. (1.) Forgetfulneſs of him. It would be counted ſtrange if a maid forgot her ornaments, and a bride her attire; but, ſtranger far! my people have forgotten me days without number. They were his profeſſing people, and therefore the more criminal their neglect of him, and eſpecially when ſo long perſiſted in. (2.) They were corrupters of others. Like a lewd harlot that dreſſes and paints, to inveigle men into her ſnares, ſo had they ſought to engage their heathen neighbours to become their confederates, and join in their idolatries: therefore haſt thou alſo taught the wicked ones thy ways, inſtructing them in their ſuperſtitions; and vile as they were before, making them worſe by the connection. Note, (1.) They who entice others into ſin, will have moſt aggravated guilt on their heads. (2.) Fellowſhip with the workers of iniquity is dangerouſly infectious, and diligently to be avoided. (3.) They were polluted with innocent blood, v. 34. of the children whom they ſacrificed to Moloch; or of innocent perſons, eſpecially the prophets and faithful men, who were murdered for reproving their impieties, 2 Kings xxi. 16. and this openly and notoriouſly; it needed no ſearch, nor deep enquiry; their ſkirts were dyed with blood, and the corpſes cried for vengeance againſt them. And therefore, (4.) Their plea of innocence, v. 35. was preſumptuous, and their expectation of God's wrath being removed, vain. Behold, I will plead with thee, becauſe thou ſayeſt, I have not ſinned, which was an aggravation of their ſin, and provoked God the more to ariſe in judgment againſt them. Note, (1.) If we ſay we have not ſinned, we make God a liar. (2.) Until a ſinner is brought to acknowledge the juſtice of God's wrath, it will never depart from him.

5. Their confidences ſhould at laſt fail them, and they be led into a miſerable captivity. Like an adultereſs that gads about to gratify her lewdneſs, ſo had they gone to Aſſyria and Egypt, making leagues with them in turn for their aſſiſtance, as they were preſſed by either, but they would diſappoint them. Aſſyria had diſtreſſed them formerly as allies, 2 Chron. xxviii. 20. and the Egyptians would alike be their confuſion, as they afterwards proved, when againſt Nebuchadnezzar, they promiſed help in vain; ſo that thou ſhalt go forth with thine hands upon thine head, as a mourner, led into a ſhameful captivity; for the Lord hath rejected thy confidences, their allies, in whom they truſted, and thou ſhalt not proſper in them, but he gives them up for a prey to their enemies. Note, (1.) The ſoul that leaves God wanders endleſsly, ſeeking reſt, and finding none. (2.) Human confidences and comforts in the day of evil will prove a broken reed, unable to ſupport the ſoul.

CHAP. III.

The foregoing chapter was wholly taken up with reproofs and threatnings againſt the people of God for their apoſtaſies from him; but in this chapter gracious invitations and encouragements are given them to repent and turn, notwithſtanding the multitude and greatneſs of their provocations. Here, 1. It is farther ſhewn how bad they had been, and how well they deſerved to be abandoned, and yet how ready God was to receive them into his favour, ver. 1—5. 2. The impenitency of Judah is aggravated from the judgments of God upon Iſrael, ver. 6—11. 3. Great encouragements are given to theſe backſliders to repent; and promiſes made of great mercy which God had in ſtore for them, ver. 12—19. 4. The charge renewed againſt them for their apoſtaſy from God, and the invitation repeated to repent, to which are added the words which they ſhould make uſe of in their return to God, ver. 20—25.

1. THEY ſay, If a man put away his wife, and ſhe go from him, and become another man's, [a] ſhall he return unto her again? ſhall not that land be greatly polluted? but [b] thou haſt played the harlot with many lovers; [c] yet return again to me, ſaith the LORD. 2. Lift up thine eyes unto the high places, and ſee where thou haſt not been lien with: [d] in the ways haſt thou ſat for them, as the Arabian in the wilderneſs, and thou haſt polluted the land with thy whoredoms, and with thy wickedneſs. 3. Therefore [e] the ſhowers have been withholden, and there hath been no latter rain, and thou hadſt [f] a whore's forehead, thou refuſedſt to be aſhamed. 4. Wilt thou not from this time cry unto me, My Father, thou art [g] the guide of my youth? 5. [h] Will he reſerve his anger for ever? will he keep it to the end? Behold, thou haſt ſpoken and done evil things as thou couldſt.

[a] Deut. xxiv. 4.
[b] Chap. ii. 20.
[c] Chap. iv. 1.
[d] Gen. xxxviii. 14. Ezek. xvi. 25.
[e] Deut. xxviii. 24. Chap. ix. 12.
[f] Chap. vi. 15. & viii. 12. Ezek. iii. 7. Zeph. iii. 5.
[g] Prov. ii. 17.
[h] Pſ. ciii. 9. Iſa. lvii. 16. Ver. 12.

v. 1—5. When for our ſins we deſerve to be abandoned, our God is merciful, and not willing that any ſhould periſh; as here moſt eminently appears.

1. Their iniquities were great, numberleſs, and aggravated. Like the moſt infamous proſtitute, thou haſt played the harlot with many lovers, multiplying their idols as their cities, chap. xi. 28. and not an high place was in the land where their ſpiritual adulteries had not been committed, v. 2. Nay, they had courted others to join them, as a proſtitute ſits by the way, ſolliciting the traveller; or as the Arabian robber, lying in wait for his prey. Brazen againſt reproof, with a whore's forehead they bluſhed at none of their abominations; but as if trying how wicked they could be, thou haſt ſpoken and done evil things as thou couldſt; they gloried in their wickedneſs, and ſtudied to provoke God to the uttermoſt. Note, (1.) Lewdneſs indulged by degrees baniſhes ſhame; and this laſt relic of virtue loſt, there is no hope of recovery. (2.) The thief that lies in wait for our purſe is innocent, compared with the tempter, that by leading us into ſin, would rob us of our ſouls. (3.) They are advanced to the ſummit of wickedneſs, who give an unbounded looſe to all their appetites, and know no reſtraint from ſin, but the want of ability.

2. God would be perfectly juſtified in giving them up to deſtruction. The law was expreſs in caſe of an adultereſs divorced, that ſhe could no more be reſtored to her huſband's bed, for the land would have been polluted thereby. God might therefore well treat them in the ſame manner, by an utter rejection, eſpecially after he had in vain chaſtiſed them, by withholding their rain in its ſeaſon; and inſtead of repenting, they continued hardned under his judgments, v. 3. Note, (1.) If ſinners had to do with man inſtead of God, all reconciliation muſt be deſpaired of. (2.) When the heart is ſtubborn under the rod of correction, it is much to be feared the ſtroke of final judgment is near.

3. Notwithſtanding all that was paſt, God invites them to return, and directs them in the way. Return again unto me, ſaith the Lord, which contains a gracious intimation that he was yet ready to receive them. And the chief of ſinners may be aſſured, whenever they in penitence cry to him, he will yet ſpeak to them pardon; and therefore wilt thou not from this time cry to me? after ſo long and treacherous departures, it is high time at laſt, though late, to begin; and now is the accepted time, when the invitations of mercy are pleading, and without delay to be embraced. And leaſt, confounded at their guilt, they ſhould not know what to ſay, God puts words in their mouth, My Father, thou art the guide of my youth; as returning prodigals, unworthy to be called children, yet hoping to find in God a merciful father; and as thoſe, that ſince they have left him, have ever erred and wandered to and fro in miſery, and therefore deſire to be taken under his care; and henceforward, as in the days of youth, to be guided by his will and word. Will he reſerve his anger for ever? will he keep it to the end? No; he is God, and not man, and as his majeſty is, ſuch is his mercy. Note, (1.) If a ſenſe of God's grace does not engage the ſinner's heart to return, nothing can. (2.) They who begin to be ſenſible of their departures from God, will be importunate on their knees, to be reſtored to his forfeited favours. (3.) Whatever fears unbelief may ſuggeſt, God is a father, whoſe tender compaſſions fail not, and we may confidently truſt in his mercy.

6. ¶ The LORD ſaid alſo unto me in the days of Joſiah the king, [i] Haſt thou ſeen that which backſliding Iſrael hath done? [k] ſhe is gone up upon every high mountain, and under every green tree, and there hath played the harlot. 7. And I ſaid, after ſhe had done all theſe things, [l] Turn thou unto me; [m] but ſhe returned not: and her treacherous ſiſter [n] Judah ſaw it. 8. And I ſaw, when for all the cauſes whereby backſliding Iſrael committed adultery, [o] I had put her away, and given her a bill of divorce: yet her treacherous ſiſter Judah feared not, but went and played the harlot alſo. 9. And it came to paſs through the † lightneſs of her whoredom, that ſhe defiled the land, and committed adultery with ſtones and with ſtocks. 10. And yet for all this, her treacherous ſiſter Judah hath not turned unto me [p] with her whole heart, but ‡ feignedly, ſaith the LORD. 11. And the LORD ſaid unto me, [q] The backſliding Iſrael hath juſtified herſelf more than treacherous Judah.

[i] Ver. 11.
[k] Chap. ii. 20.
[l] 2 Kings xvii. 13. Hoſ. xiv. 1.
[m] 2 Kings xvii. 14. Hoſ. vii. 16.
[n] Ezek. xvi. 46. & xxiii. 2, 4.
[o] Ezek. xxiii 9.
† Or fame.
[p] 2 Chron. xxxiv. 33. Hoſ. vii. 14.
‡ Heb. In falſehood.
[q] Ezek. xvi. 51. & xxiii. 11.

v. 6—11. Joſiah heartily laboured after the reformation of the people, and the prophet, with his ſermons, ſeconded his pious deſign; but we find the labours of both were ineffectual. The kingdom of Judah was become apoſtate as the kingdom of Iſrael, and muſt ſhortly ſhare her fate.

1. The ſin and ruin of backſliding Iſrael are obſerved. The prophet, in the hiſtory of that kingdom, had ſeen their miſerable end about ninety years before. They firſt revolted from David's ſucceſſors, and then left God's worſhip for idolatry; not only in Dan and Bethel, but on every mountain and under every green tree their ſpiritual adulteries were committed, v. 6. In vain the prophets warned, in vain the patience of God waited, in vain were all his gracious invitations to return; they perſiſted in their impenitence, v. 7. and that produced their ruin: God gave them a divorce; thruſt out of his protection, and then they were quickly enſlaved, and became a prey to their enemies, v. 8. Note, Backſliders ſhall ſooner or later be filled with their own ways, and rue their choice.

2. Judah took no warning by the Judgment. She is called her treacherous ſiſter, ſprung from the ſame ſtock of Jacob, and though affecting to cleave to God's temple and worſhip, falſe and faithleſs in her profeſſions, v. 7. Inſtead of being awed, or reformed by her ſiſter's ruin, ſhe plunged into the ſame ſins, and played the harlot alſo, v. 8. As abominable as ever Iſrael had been, ſhe defiled the land, and with ſuch baſe gods as ſtocks and ſtones committed adultery, v. 9. Yea, notwithſtanding the efforts made by the gracious monarch Joſiah, and thoſe who aſſiſted him in the work, though for a time the people outwardly appeared reformed, their hearts were as unrenewed as ever, and their profeſſions utterly hypocritical, v. 10. Note, (1.) Appearances may impoſe upon men, but God trieth the heart. (2.) Hypocriſy is among the greateſt ſins, and the falſe-hearted profeſſor may expect to meet an avenging God, as much as the abandoned profligate. (3.) They who will not take warning by others falls, are haſtening to their own ruin.

3. God juſtifies backſliding Iſrael more than treacherous Judah. They had greater means, greater warnings, and made greater profeſſions, therefore their guilt was more aggravated. This doth not excuſe Iſrael, but it adds to Judah's iniquities. Note, The more we have received from God of mercies and means, the heavier will be our judgment, if we have neglected and abuſed them.

12. ¶ Go, and proclaim theſe words towards the north, and ſay, Return, thou backſliding Iſrael, ſaith the LORD, and I will not cauſe mine anger to fall upon you: for [r] I am merciful, ſaith the LORD, and I will not keep anger for ever. 13. Only acknowledge thine iniquity that thou haſt tranſgreſſed againſt the LORD thy God, and haſt ſcattered thy ways to the ſtrangers under every green tree, and ye have not obeyed my voice, ſaith the LORD. 14. Turn, O backſliding children, ſaith the LORD, for [s] I am married unto you: and [r] Pſ. lxxxvi. 15. & ciii. 8, 9. Ver. 5.

[s] Chap. xxxi. 32.

Before Chriſt 612.

and I will take you one of a city, and two of a family, and I will bring you to Zion. 15. And I will give you [t] paſtors according to mine heart, [u] which ſhall feed you with knowledge and underſtanding. 16. And it ſhall come to paſs when ye be multiplied and increaſed in the land; in thoſe days, ſaith the LORD, [x] they ſhall ſay no more, The ark of the covenant of the LORD: neither ſhall it come to mind, neither ſhall they remember it, neither ſhall they viſit it, neither ſhall † that be done any more. 17. At that time they ſhall call Jeruſalem the throne of the LORD, and all the nations ſhall be gathered unto it, [y] to the name of the LORD, to Jeruſalem: neither ſhall they [z] walk any more after the ‡ imagination of their evil heart. 18. In thoſe days [a] the houſe of Judah ſhall walk with the houſe of Iſrael, and they ſhall come together out of the land of the north, to the land that I have ‖ given for an inheritance unto your fathers. 19. But I ſaid, How ſhall I put thee among the children, and give thee [b] a § pleaſant land, † a goodly heritage of the hoſts of nations? and I ſaid, [c] Thou ſhalt call me, My father, and ſhalt not turn away from me.

[t] Chap. xxiii. 4. Ezek. xxxiv. 23. Eph. iv. 11.
[u] Chap. xx. 28.
[x] Heb. x. 8, 9.
† Or it be magnified.
[y] Iſa. lx. 9.
[z] Chap. xi. 8.
‡ Or ſtubbornneſs.
[a] Iſa. xi. 13. Ezek. xxxvii. 16, 22. Hoſ. i. 11.
‖ Or cauſed your fathers to poſſeſs.
[b] Pſ. cvi. 24. Ezek. xx. 6. Dan. viii. 9. & xi. 16, 41, 45.
§ Heb. Land of deſire.
† Heb. A heritage of glory, or beauty.
[c] Rom. viii. 15.

v. 12—19. Seldom do the prophets proclaim any ſingular mercies to the Jewiſh people, but they interſperſe ſome glorious promiſes of that mercy of all mercies, the coming of the Redeemer, to ſet up his church univerſally in the world, to be the light of the Gentiles, and the glory of his people Iſrael. We have here,

1. An invitation to Iſrael to return. This muſt be proclaimed towards the north, where now they were captives: Return, thou backſliding Iſrael, ver. 12. and again, turn, O backſliding children, ver. 14. Children, yet backſliders! aſtoniſhing ingratitude: Backſliders, yet children! amazing mercy! God, even when his children backſlide, will not renounce his relation to them, when ſeduced by temptation, overcome by corruption, plunged into guilt, diſcouraged from prayer, their conſcience ſtupified, they ſeem without power or inclination to return, even then he will not caſt them off; his voice can reach them, his grace conſtrain them, his word direct them how to come to him, and what to ſay; for he is merciful, and therefore there is hope. Only acknowledge thine iniquity, and what leſs can be enjoined? yea, how can we do otherwiſe, when we reflect confounded on the paſt? that thou haſt tranſgreſſed againſt the Lord thy God, which relation to him aggravates their guilt; and every penitent ſinner deſires never to extenuate his ſins, but to behold them in all their malignity; and haſt ſcattered thy ways to ſtrangers under every green tree, committing idolatry, as a proſtitute, who ſollicits every ſtranger ſhe meets. Thus our particular ſin muſt be confeſſed; the time, place, circumſtances reflected upon with ſhame and horror: and ye have not obeyed my voice, ſaith the Lord; and ſuch rebellion againſt the divine law, and rejection of God's warnings, call for deepeſt humiliation.

2. The great and precious promiſes made them to engage their return, which have a particular relation to their deliverance from captivity, when many of the ten tribes joined thoſe of Judah and Benjamin, and embraced the proclamation of Cyrus; but they look farther, and are to be extended to all the Iſrael of God in goſpel times, that ſhould be collected into his church.

(1.) God's anger ſhall remove, in conſequence of their ſins being forgiven, on their penitent return, v. 12. Note, The moſt powerful means to engage the ſoul to repent, is the promiſe of pardon.

(2.) They ſhould be taken into the ſame endeared relation to God as ever, for I am married unto you; and he would receive them into his arms, and give them the ſame place in his heart, as if they had never treacherouſly departed from him. Note, God not only forgives, but forgets the ſins of his people; they are as if they had never been committed; and when they return to him, they are reſtored to the ſame favour, as if no variance had ever ſubſiſted.

(3.) God will bring them to Zion, into the goſpel-church. I will take you one of a city, and two of a family, ſeparating them by diſtinguiſhing grace for himſelf; and though they were few comparatively who returned, none of them ſhould be loſt. Note, (1.) Backſliders recovered, are few, very few. (2.) If any ſuch be called, and reſtored, it is of God's rich and ſovereign mercy. (3.) When God engages to take and bring his people to the heavenly Zion, no difficulties are inſurmountable to him.

(4.) God will give them paſtors after his own heart, to feed them with knowledge and underſtanding; and under ſuch gracious miniſtrations their ſouls will grow in grace and in meetneſs for glory, v. 15. Note, (1.) They are no paſtors who intrude into the miniſtry without a divine call, but wolves in ſheep's cloathing. (2.) Chriſt's true miniſters reſemble their maſter in zeal, charity, and labour; the ſame mind is in them, and by their fruits ye ſhall know them. (3.) God's word is the food with which Chriſt's flock muſt be fed; and every paſtor muſt be a wiſe houſeholder, thoroughly acquainted with theſe ſacred ſtores, and ſkilful to produce what is moſt ſuited to the variety of the wants of thoſe to whom he miniſters.

Before Chriſt 612.

(5.) The typical and ceremonial inſtitutions ſhall be all aboliſhed. Chriſt, who is the ſum and ſubſtance of them, being come, the ark, that was of old their glory, ſhould be no more eſteemed or remembered, when the church was increaſed, and the Meſſiah's kingdom ſhould be ſet up, v. 16.

(6.) The church of God, adorned with his preſence and the acceſſion of the Gentiles, would be more glorious and more reſorted to, than the temple with its Shechinah, and Jeruſalem in the moſt frequented ſolemnities. They ſhall call Jeruſalem the throne of the Lord, where his glory eminently appears, and his government is with delight obeyed; and all nations ſhall be gathered into it from the Gentile lands; neither ſhall they walk any more after the imagination of their evil heart, being effectually turned from idols to ſerve the living and true God. Note, Our hearts are evil, very evil; yea, the imaginations of them only evil, till by divine grace renewed, God gives a new heart, and puts a right ſpirit within us.

(7.) All enmity between Iſrael and Judah ſhall ceaſe. They ſhall be united in affection, and become one people, v. 18. and this was the caſe after their return from Babylon, and prefigured the union of Jews and Gentiles, and that perfect harmony which ſhall ſubſiſt between them when joined in the ſame body, of which Chriſt is the living head.

3. Though on their part they were utterly unworthy of theſe mercies, yet God directs their plea, and will accept it. How ſhall I put thee among the children? ſo undeſerving as they were of the relation, and of all the great bleſſings provided, of a pleaſant land, and goodly heritage of the hoſts of the nations who poſſeſſed it, till God caſt them out, to make room for his people. Of ſuch favours they might well deſpair, but he contrives a way for overcoming the objections drawn from their unworthineſs, conſiſtent with his own glory. Thou ſhalt call me, My father, returning in faith to him, through the Son of his love, and ſhalt not turn away from me, but approve henceforward their fidelity unſhaken, Note, (1.) When we conſider what we are by nature, and what we have been in practice, we may well wonder how it is poſſible God ſhould ever put us among his children. (2.) When by faith we truly turn to God, the vileſt ſinners, and the fouleſt backſliders, ſhall be advanced to the tranſcendent dignity of being counted the ſons of God. (3.) God will keep his children that they ſhall not depart from him, and will engage them to ſtand faſt in his covenant. (4.) They who are called to be the ſons of God on earth, will be the heirs of glory; and poſſeſs that heavenly Canaan, that goodly heritage among the ſaints, prepared for them before the foundation of the world.

20. ¶ Surely, as a wife treacherouſly departeth from her † huſband: ſo [d] have you dealt treacherouſly with me, O houſe of Iſrael, ſaith the LORD. 21. A voice was heard upon the high places, weeping and ſupplications of the children of Iſrael: for they have perverted their way, and they have forgotten the LORD their God. 22. [e] Return, ye backſliding children, and [f] I will heal your backſlidings: behold, we come unto thee, for thou art the LORD our God. 23. Truly in vain is ſalvation hoped for from the hills, and from the multitude of mountains: [g] truly in the LORD our God is the ſalvation of Iſrael. 24. For ‡ ſhame hath devoured the labour of our fathers from our youth; their flocks and their herds, their ſons and their daughters. 25. [h] We lie down in our ſhame, and our confuſion covereth us: for we have ſinned againſt the LORD our God, we and our fathers, [i] from our youth even unto this day, and have not obeyed the voice of the LORD our God.

† Heb. Friend.
[d] Chap. v. 11.
[e] Hoſ. xiv. 1.
[f] Ibid. vi. 1. & xiv. 4.
[g] Pſ. cxxi. 1, 2.
‡ Or that ſhameful thing. Chap. xi. 13. Hoſ. ix. 10.
[h] Ezra ix. 7.
[i] Chap. xxii. 21.

v. 20—25. According to God's gracious invitation, we have Iſrael's penitent return. Like an adulterous wife, v. 20. that had eloped from her huſband, ſo had they departed from God; but now they begin to be convinced of their guilt and danger, and lament them.

1. They openly and aloud bewail their iniquities, on thoſe high places before the ſcene of their abominations, and with tears in prayer acknowledge that they have perverted their way, and forgotten the Lord their God, v. 21. Note, (1.) When do we ſo much need that our head ſhould be waters, and our eyes a fountain of tears, as when we remember our paſt rebellions againſt, and ingratitude towards the bleſſed God? (2.) Forgetfulneſs of God is at the root of all our ſins. (3.) When the ſinner is driven to a throne of grace, to unboſom his bitter anguiſh, he will ever find a God that heareth prayer.

2. God graciouſly invites them to come to him, backſliding children as they had been, and promiſes to heal their backſlidings and reſtore them again to his grace and favour. Note, (1.) God is more willing to hear than we to pray; and not a tear falls from the eye of his penitents but it is noted in his book. (2.) The ſinner's backſlidings are then healed, when God pardons the paſt, and by his grace renews the heart, and prevents it from relapſing again into ſin.

3. God's children earneſtly and inſtantly accept his call, and echo back, Behold we come unto thee, without delay, without reſerve; for thou art the Lord our God; late our offended but now our reconciled God, in whoſe favour we have a ſure intereſt, to whoſe ſervice we devote ourſelves, and on whom alone our dependance is placed. Truly in vain is ſalvation hoped for from the hills, and from the multitude of mountains: their idol gods and human confidences they now renounce, convinced of their vanity and inſufficiency. Truly in the Lord our God is the ſalvation of Iſrael: out of him there is no ſalvation; in him there is all ſufficiency to ſave to the uttermoſt; and as our God we may be aſſured of his power and grace to interpoſe on our behalf. Whilſt thus they expreſs their confidence in him, they own their ſin and ſhame, eſpecially their idolatry, which they and their fathers had committed, and the dreadful conſequences of which they felt to their confuſion, in the curſe of God upon all the labour of their hands, on their families and poſſeſſions; and own that the viſitation was altogether righteous, becauſe they obeyed not the voice of the Lord their God, v. 24, 25. Note, (1.) Penitent ſinners ever take ſhame and confuſion of face to themſelves, and juſtify God in his judgments. (2.) The ſenſe of our own great unworthineſs muſt not diſcourage us from exerciſing faith on the divine promiſes. (3) There is a ſalvation wrought out for Iſrael, by which the moſt deſperate may ſtill find mercy through a Redeemer, and a reconciled God. (4.) When we return to Chriſt, we muſt renounce all other confidences, and make mention of his ſtrength and righteouſneſs only.

CHAP. IV.

The two firſt verſes, as the foregoing chapter, are directed to Iſrael; the reſt of the chapter concerns Judah and Jeruſalem. 1. They are called to repent and reform, ver. 3, 4. 2. They are warned of the advance of Nebuchadnezzar againſt them, and told that it is for their ſins, from which they are again exhorted to waſh themſelves, ver. 5—18. 3. To affect them the more with the greatneſs of the deſolation that was coming, the prophet himſelf bitterly laments it, as a reduction of the world to its firſt chaos, ver. 19—31.

1. IF thou wilt return, O Iſrael, ſaith the LORD, [a] Chap. iii.
[a] return unto me: and if thou wilt put away 1, 22.
thine abominations out of my ſight, then ſhalt thou not Joel ii. 12.
remove. 2. And [b] thou ſhalt ſwear, The LORD liveth [b] Iſa. lxv. 16. Chap. v. 2.
[c] in truth, in judgment, and in righteouſneſs: [d] and the Zech. viii. 8.
nations ſhall bleſs themſelves in him, and in him ſhall [c] Iſa. xlviii. 1.
they [e] glory. [d] Pſ. lxxii. 17. [e] 2 Cor. x. 17.

v. 1, 2. Iſrael had made penitent profeſſions of returning; God accepts them, and directs them in the way.

If thou wilt return, O Iſrael, ſaith the Lord, return unto me; or, If thou wilt return unto me, thou ſhalt return; either let them immediately execute their purpoſe; or it is promiſed that, on their doing ſo, God will bring them back from their diſperſion; and if thou wilt put away thine abominations out of my ſight, all their idolatrous practices and images, then ſhalt thou not remove into captivity again; or, if thou ſhalt not move to and fro, be fickle and wavering, but ſteadfaſt in their adherence to God, then his bleſſing would be upon them. And thou ſhalt ſwear, The Lord liveth, making no more mention of their falſe gods; in truth, in judgment, and in righteouſneſs; ſolemnly, and with ſtricteſt regard to truth. And the nations ſhall bleſs themſelves in him; being called into communion with God's Iſrael, and counting themſelves happy in the pardon, grace, and glory, revealed in the Redeemer: and in him ſhall they glory, renouncing all other confidence, and glorying in the fulneſs of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Note, (1.) They who truly turn to God muſt put away all their abominations, and no allowed ſin be ſpared. (2.) An oath is an act of religious worſhip, and therefore to ſwear by any creature is blaſphemy againſt God. (3.) Every oath ſhould be taken in truth, with ſcrupulous adherence to it, aſſerting nothing of which we have not the fulleſt aſſurance, nor promiſing ought we do not really intend to perform: in judgment, when called upon before a magiſtrate; or ſolemnly, not raſhly, or in common converſation, but where the importance of the ſubject makes ſuch an appeal to God lawful: and in righteouſneſs, that juſtice may be done, and God glorified.

3. ¶ For thus ſaith the LORD to the men of Judah [f] Hoſ. x. 12.
and Jeruſalem, [f] Break up your fallow ground, and [g] Mat. xiii. 7, 22.
[g] ſow not among thorns. 4. [h] Circumciſe yourſelves to [h] Deut. x.
the LORD, and take away the foreſkins of your heart, 16. & xxx. 6. Rom. ii.
ye men of Judah and inhabitants of Jeruſalem: leſt my 29. Col. ii. 11.
fury come forth like fire, and burn that none can quench it, becauſe of the evil of your doings.

v. 3, 4. The prophet, having diſcharged his meſſage to the men of Iſrael, and ſet forth their repentance, here addreſſes himſelf to the men of Judah and Jeruſalem, whom he would provoke to jealouſy by their example, and excite to the like repentance. We have,

1. Their Duty. This is repreſented to them by two familiar images. (1.) Break up your fallow ground, and ſow not among thorns. Not that of their own ability they could do this. What God calls them to, he would enable them by his grace to perform. This is a ſtriking image of man's natural heart, bringing forth no fruit to God; barren of all grace; hard and impenitent; unfenced, where every lawleſs appetite ranges uncontrouled; overgrown with the briars and thorns of vile and corrupt affections; and therefore nigh unto burning, Heb. vi. 7, 8. This fallow ground muſt be broken up before it can produce fruit; and this is done by the word of God, convincing the ſinner's conſcience, and opening his heart to receive the ſeed of the goſpel, as the plough divides the ſoil, Heb. iv. 12. and the briars and thorns being rooted up, the ſeed is not choaked, but brings forth fruit unto perfection. (2.) Circumciſe yourſelves to the Lord, and take away the foreſkins of your heart. They placed great dependance on circumciſion: but without the circumciſion of the heart, and cutting off their corrupt affections, that which was outward in the fleſh ſignified nothing. Note, All inſtitutions and forms, however ſtrictly obſerved, can profit us nothing, if the ſpirit and power of Godlineſs be wanting within: nay, they ſerve but to delude and deceive the ſoul that truſts in them.

2. Their danger great and imminent. Leſt my fury come forth like fire, and burn that none can quench it, becauſe of the evil of your doings. Delays are dangerous. To day, whilſt it is called to day, they are warned not to harden their hearts. Note, (1.) It is ſin that provokes God's wrath, and kindles the unquenchable flames of hell. (2.) Nothing is ſo terrible as falling impenitent into the hands of that God who is a conſuming fire. (3.) The moment of delay God affords us ſhould be eagerly ſeized, before the flames kindle round us; for then it would be too late to call or return.

5. Declare ye in Judah, and publiſh in Jeruſalem, and ſay, Blow ye the trumpet in the land: cry, gather together, and ſay, [i] Aſſemble yourſelves, and let us go [i] Chap. viii.
into the defenced cities. 6. Set up the ſtandard towards 14.
Zion: † retire, ſtay not; for I will bring evil [k] from the † Or ſtrengthen.
north, and a great ‡ deſtruction. 7. [l] The lion is come [k] Chap. i.
up from his thicket, and the deſtroyer of the Gentiles is 14, 15. & vi. 22.
on his way; he is gone forth from his place [m] to make ‡ Heb.
thy land deſolate, and thy cities ſhall be laid waſte, with- Breaking.
out an inhabitant. 8. For this [n] gird you with ſackcloth, [l] Dan. vii. 4.
lament and howl: for the fierce anger of the LORD is [m] Chap. ii. 15.
not turned back from us. 9. And it ſhall come to paſs [n] Chap. vi. 26.
at that day, ſaith the LORD, that the heart of the king ſhall periſh, and the heart of the princes: and the prieſts ſhall be aſtoniſhed, and the prophets ſhall wonder. 10.
Then ſaid I, Ah LORD God, [o] ſurely thou haſt greatly [o] Ezek. xiv.
deceived this people, and Jeruſalem, [p] ſaying, Ye ſhall 9.
have peace; whereas the ſword reacheth unto the ſoul. [p] Chap. v. 12. & xiv.
11. At that time ſhall it be ſaid to this people, and to 13.
Jeruſalem, [q] A dry wind of the high places in the wilderneſs toward the daughter of my people, not to fan, nor [q] Hoſ. xiii. 15.
to cleanſe, 12. Even § a full wind from thoſe places ſhall come unto me: now alſo will I ‖ give ſentence againſt § Or a fuller wind than thoſe.
them. 13. Behold, he ſhall come up as clouds, and [r] his ‖ Heb. Utter judgments.
chariots ſhall be as a whirlwind: [s] his horſes are ſwifter than eagles: wo unto us, for we are ſpoiled. 14. O [r] Iſa. v. 28.
Jeruſalem, [t] waſh thine heart from wickedneſs, that thou [s] Hab. i. 8.
mayſt be ſaved: how long ſhall thy vain thoughts lodge [t] Iſa. i. 16.
within thee? 15. For [u] a voice declareth from Dan, and publiſheth affliction from mount Ephraim. 16. Make [u] Chap. viii.
ye mention to the nations, behold, publiſh againſt Jeru- 16.
ſalem, that watchers come from a far country, and give out their voice againſt the cities of Judah. 17. As keepers of a field are they againſt her round about; becauſe ſhe hath been rebellious againſt me, ſaith the LORD.
18. [x] Thy way and thy doings have procured theſe things [x] Pſ. cvii.
unto thee, this is thy wickedneſs, becauſe it is bitter, 17. Iſa. l.
becauſe it reacheth unto thine heart. 1. Chap. ii. 17, 19.

v. 5—18. The judgments coming upon Judah and Jeruſalem are foretold, as an awakening motive to their ſpeedy repentance.

1. The alarm is ſpread through the land of the invading foe coming from the north, and they who are diſperſed in the country are called to flee for ſafety to the defenced cities; flight being thought their only reſource where reſiſtance was vain, v. 5, 6.

2. The approach of the Chaldeans, with Nebuchadnezzar at their head, is deſcribed by a variety of images, expreſſive of the great deſtruction and ravages which would enſue. As a lion, v. 7. pinched with hunger, ſallies furiouſly from his thicket on the defenceleſs flocks, ſo fierce, ſo cruel, would the king of Babylon come at the head of his armies, the deſtroyer of the Gentiles, and now of the Jews, to ſpread deſolations on every ſide; as a dry wind, ſharp and piercing, violent and raging, that, inſtead of fanning or cleanſing the grain, would ſweep with reſiſtleſs fury all before it, v. 11, 12. Thick as clouds they advance, and ſwift as the whirlwind: their horſes are ſwifter than eagles; and therefore flight as impracticable as oppoſition was vain. From Dan, the moſt northern border, the firſt alarm is ſpread, v. 15. that the nations may hear who were to drink of the ſame cup, and eſpecially Jeruſalem, againſt whom this armament is intended: behold watchers come from a far country, or beſiegers, threatning ruin to all the cities of Judah; and ſhouting, as confident of victory, v. 16. As keepers of a field, who guard the corn, and prevent all entrance into it, ſo ſhould theſe cut off from Jeruſalem all ſupplies, and ſuffer none to eſcape. See 2 Kings xxv. 4.

3. The cauſe of theſe judgments is their ſin. Thou haſt been rebellious againſt me, ſaith the Lord, v. 17. Thy way and thy doings have procured theſe things unto thee: they had none to blame but themſelves for what they ſuffered; it was the juſt recompence of their iniquities: this is thy wickedneſs, the fruit of it; becauſe it is bitter, both the ſin and the puniſhment; becauſe it reacheth to the heart, a mortal blow, an utter deſtruction. Note, (1.) Whatever we ſuffer, we have only ourſelves to blame; our ſins are our tormentors. (2.) If we feel not the bitterneſs of ſin to repent of it, we ſhall feel the bitterneſs of the puniſhment when repentance will come too late.

4. The terrible conſequences of theſe judgments are deſcribed, Their hearts fail them. The king and princes, that ſhould have rouſed the people to a brave defence, have loſt all ſpirit, and cannot conceal their coward fears; the prieſts, whoſe office it was to animate them to the battle, are themſelves aſtoniſhed, and unable to ſound a blaſt from the ſilver trumpets; and the falſe prophets, who had deceived them with viſions of peace, are dumb with horror and amazement. Every warrior is ſunk in deſpair, every face gathers blackneſs, and one univerſal groan is heard, wo unto us, for we are ſpoiled, v. 13. In vain then will they gird themſelves with ſackcloth, lament and howl; their deſolations are determined, and the fierce anger of the Lord is not turned back; the decree of their ruin is gone forth, I will give ſentence againſt them; and their deſtruction is inevitable, becauſe the meaſure of their iniquities is full. Note, (1.) A ſenſe of guilt makes men cowards. (2.) Wicked prieſts and falſe prophets, who deceived the people with viſions of peace, in a judgment-day will find God's terrors around them.

5. The prophet laments the deceptions of the people through their falſe prophets, v. 10. to believe whoſe lies God in juſt judgment gave them up, which was among the foreſt of their viſitations. They had promiſed them peace; but now the ſword reached unto the ſoul, drenched in the blood of the ſlain. Note, (1.) Among the heavieſt curſes of God this may be juſtly reckoned, when he gives up the heart to deluſion, and ſuffers the blind to lead the blind. (2.) The faithful miniſters of God behold with deep concern thoſe who pretend to be teachers of God's word vending their falſe doctrines, and lulling the ſouls of ſinners into a fatal ſecurity, endeavouring to prejudice them againſt the truth, and prevent every awakening impreſſion which the zealous and true preachers ſeek to make upon their hearts.

6. He ſeeks to ſnatch them as a brand from the burning. O Jeruſalem, waſh thine heart from thy wickedneſs, that thou mayſt be ſaved. He deals faithfully; not as the falſe prophets, gloſſing over their iniquities, but charging them home upon their conſciences. Their heart was wicked; there the deep root of bitterneſs lay; and from that they muſt be cleanſed, if they would be ſaved. And he expoſtulates on the folly and danger of delaying their repentance, How long ſhall vain thoughts lodge within thee? too long had they done ſo; 'twas high time to awake out of ſleep, the judgments of God were haſtening on; in a moment it would be too late to prevent them. Note, (1.) Whilſt wickedneſs continues indulged in the heart, there can be no ſalvation hoped for. (2.) There is but one fountain that is capable of waſhing the ſinner's heart from his iniquities, and that was opened in the Redeemer's ſide, of blood and water: blood, to pardon the deepeſt guilt of ſin; water, to purify from every ſtain of corruption. The pardoning and ſanctifying grace of Jeſus are inſeparable. (3.) Vain thoughts are ſinful; and if our hearts are not purged from theſe imaginations, our ways will be quickly perverſe. (4.) When we conſider how ſhort our life is, how much is paſt, how uncertain the moment yet to come, it ſhould be an awakening admonition to ſeize the preſent now, and ſeek to God to day, whilſt it is called to day.

19. ¶ [y] My bowels, my bowels, I am pained at † my very heart, my heart maketh a noiſe in me, I cannot hold my peace, becauſe thou haſt heard, O my ſoul, the ſound of the trumpet, the alarm of war. 20. [z] Deſtruction upon deſtruction is cried, for the whole land is ſpoiled: ſuddenly are my tents ſpoiled, and my curtains in a moment. 21. How long ſhall I ſee the ſtandard, and hear the ſound of the trumpet? 22. For my people is fooliſh, they have not known me, they are ſottiſh children, and they have none underſtanding: [a] they are wiſe to do evil, but to do good they have no knowledge. 23. [b] I beheld the earth, and lo, it was without form, and void: and the heavens, [c] and they had no light. 24. I beheld the mountains, and lo, [d] they trembled, and all the hills moved lightly. 25. I beheld, and lo, there was no man, and [e] all the birds of the heavens were fled. 26. I beheld, and lo, the fruitful place was a wilderneſs, and all the cities thereof were broken down [f] at the preſence of the LORD, and by his fierce anger. 27. For thus hath the LORD ſaid, The whole land ſhall be deſolate; [g] yet will I not make a full end. 28. For this ſhall the earth mourn, and [h] the heavens above be black: becauſe I have ſpoken it, I have purpoſed it, and will not repent, neither will I turn back from it. 29. The whole city ſhall flee for the noiſe of the horſemen, and bowmen, [i] they ſhall go into thickets, and climb up upon the rocks: every city ſhall be forſaken, and not a man dwell therein. 30. And when thou art ſpoiled, what wilt thou do? Though thou clotheſt thyſelf with crimſon, though thou deckeſt thee with ornaments of gold, [k] though thou renteſt thy ‡ face with painting, in vain ſhalt thou make thyſelf fair, thy lovers will deſpiſe thee, they will ſeek thy life. 31. For I have heard a voice [l] as of a woman in travail, and the anguiſh as of her that bringeth forth her firſt child, the voice of the daughter of Zion: that bewaileth herſelf, [m] that ſpreadeth her hands, ſaying, Wo is me now, for my ſoul is wearied, becauſe of [n] murderers.

[y] Iſa. xv. 5. & xvi. 11. & xxi. 3. & xxii. 4. Chap. ix. 1, 10.

† Heb. The walls of my heart.

[z] Pſ. xlii. 7. Ezek. vii. 6.

[a] Rom. xvi. 19.

[b] Gen. i. 2. Iſa. xxiv. 19.

[c] Iſa. v. 30.

[d] Iſa. v. 25. Ezek. xxxviii. 20.

[e] Zeph. i. 3.

[f] Nah. i. 5.

[g] Iſa. i. 9. Chap. v. 18. & xxx. 11. & xlvi. 28.

[h] Iſa. v. 30. & l. 3.

[i] 2 Chron. xxxiii. 11.

[k] Ezek. xxiii. 40.

‡ Heb. Eyes.

[l] Chap. vi. 24.

[m] Lam. i. 17.

[n] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 17.

v. 19—31. With deep concern and anguiſh the prophet beheld the miſeries coming upon his people: his bowels yearned over the diſtreſs of his country, and his heart throbbed with bitter anguiſh.

1. For their ſins: My people is fooliſh. This is the character God gives them; for ſin is the greateſt folly. Yet not abandoned: he acknowledges them for his people ſtill, though they have not known me. In name and in profeſſion they had owned him, but had no experimental knowledge of him as their God. They are ſottiſh children, ſtupid and untractable; and they have no underſtanding, reſpecting their true happineſs, or the means of attaining it. They are wiſe to do evil; cunning to contrive and accompliſh their ſinful ſchemes; a wiſdom which is their curſe; but to do good they have no knowledge, nor deſire to know; their inclination is averſe to it. Such is the character of every natural man, till God takes away the blindneſs, and cures the perverſeneſs, of his heart, by beſtowing on him the wiſdom and grace which come from above.

2. For their ſufferings; and theſe are enlarged upon and ſtrongly deſcribed. The trumpet ſpreads the alarm of war, v. 19. ſwift and ſudden the deſtruction ſpreads, and, ſucceſſive as Job's meſſengers of evil, the dreadful tidings fly, of one city taken after another, till the whole land is ſpoiled, and all the country where the ſhepherds pitched their tents ravaged, v. 20. no end of the calamity appears. The banners of the invading foe are diſplayed, and their warlike inſtruments are heard on every ſide, v. 21. The country, utterly waſted, appears like the firſt chaos, when the earth was without form and void, and darkneſs upon the face of the deep; or it may be applied to the utter confuſion of their affairs, political and eccleſiaſtical: and the heavens, as if unwilling to look upon their abominations, veil their bright luminaries with darkneſs: or ſo darkened and bewildered were their kings and princes, not knowing what courſe to take, v. 23. The mountains trembled and the hills fled before the face of the offended God; ſuch terrors ſeized the moſt ſtout-hearted warriors, v. 24. Univerſal deſolation ſeems to reign through that once populous and fruitful land: the cities, without an inhabitant, lye in ruins; the country is waſted and barren as a rock; the very birds are fled, no food remaining for them: and all this ariſing from God's fierce anger, which is itſelf the heavieſt part of the judgment, v. 25, 26. And this is not the caſe with one city or part of the country, the whole is utterly ruined, v. 27, 28. Affrighted at the horſemen and bowmen, they flie to rocks and thickets to hide themſelves: the cities are deſerted and deſtroyed, and not a living ſoul remains in them, v. 29. and, but for one word of mercy, v. 27. they might expect a total extirpation, and their very name to be blotted out from under heaven: but God will not make a full end, a remnant ſhall eſcape. Note, (1.) Theſe awful images of Judea's deſtruction give ſome faint deſcription of that great and terrible day of the Lord, when his wrath ſhall finally be poured out on the ungodly; the heavens be diſſolved, the earth burnt up, and all created nature return to its original chaos. (2.) Whatever viſitations come upon us from the hands of men, we muſt look farther for the cauſe of them, if we would profit under them. (3.) In all God's judgments below ſome mercy is mingled with vengeance; but hereafter there will be judgment without mercy.

Before Chriſt 612.

3. Their ſufferings are remedileſs. God will not help them; they cannot deliver themſelves; and their human confidences will fail, and leave them in deſpair. If the earth mourn, and the heavens are black with ſtorms of wrath, 'tis becauſe God hath ſpoken their doom. His purpoſe is fixed; his ſentence irrevocable: ſince they refuſed to repent of their ſins, he will not repent of his judgments for them, v. 28. He being againſt them, what can they do, whither can they go. Their own force is inſufficient to reſiſt the invading foe, and as vain their hope in their confederates. Though like a proſtitute, that by painting and dreſs ſeeks to conceal her wrinkles, and hide her decays, Judah courted her allies, in vain ſhalt thou make thyſelf fair, every wile ſhe can uſe will no longer ſecure her gallants: ſenſible of her ruined ſtate, they will forſake her in the day of her calamity, and help forward her deſtruction, v. 30. In agonies, as a woman in the pangs of the moſt difficult travail, the daughter of Zion ſhall cry out, Wo is me now; her ſufferings ſo intolerable; her caſe ſo deſperate; my ſoul is wearied becauſe of murderers; either thoſe that dwelt in Jeruſalem, at whoſe hands the blood they had ſhed was now required; or through thoſe horrid maſſacres made by the Chaldean ſword. Note, (1.) They who fall into adverſity will generally feel, to their coſt, the vanity of creature confidences. The friendſhips of the world are faithleſs: God is the only friend who never fails. (2.) The paint of duties and devotions can ſtand us in little ſtead, if the deformity of ſin continues underneath. (3.) They are remedileſs indeed whom God abandons.

CHAP. V.

Reproofs for ſin and threatnings of judgment are intermixed in this chapter. (1.) The ſins they are charged with are, Injuſtice, ver. 1. Hypocriſy in religion, ver. 2. Incorrigibleneſs, ver. 3. Both poor and rich are corrupt, ver. 4, 5. Idolatry and adultery, ver. 7, 8. Treacherous departures from God, ver. 11. An impudent defiance of him, ver. 12, 13. And that which is at the bottom of all this, want of the fear of God, ver. 20—24. Violence and oppreſſion, ver. 26—28. And a combination of thoſe to debauch the nation that ſhould have been active to reform it, ver. 30, 31. (2.) The judgments they are threatned with are very terrible: In general, they ſhall be reckoned with, ver. 9, 29. A foreign enemy ſhall be brought in upon them, ver. 15—17. Shall ſet guards upon them, ver. 6. Shall deſtroy their fortifications, ver. 10. Shall carry them away into captivity, ver. 19. And keep all good things from them, ver. 25. And herein the word of God's prophets ſhall be fulfilled, ver. 14. But, (3.) Here is an intimation twice given that God would in the midſt of wrath remember mercy, and not utterly deſtroy them, ver. 10, 18.

1. RUN ye to and fro through the ſtreets of Jeruſalem, and ſee now, and know, and ſeek in the broad places thereof, [a] if ye can find a man, [b] if there be any that executeth judgment, that ſeeketh the truth, and I will pardon it. 2. And though they ſay, [c] The LORD liveth, ſurely they ſwear falſly. 3. O LORD, are not thine eyes upon the truth? thou haſt [d] ſtricken them, but they have not grieved: thou haſt conſumed them, but [e] they have refuſed to receive correction: [f] they have made their faces harder than a rock, they have refuſed to return. 4. Therefore I ſaid, Surely theſe are poor, they are fooliſh: for [g] they know not the way of the LORD, nor the judgment of their God. 5. I will get me unto the great men, and will ſpeak unto them;
for [h] they have known the way of the LORD, and the judgment of their God: but theſe have altogether [i] broken the yoke, and burſt the bonds. 6. Wherefore [k] a lion out of the foreſt ſhall ſlay them, and a [l] wolf of the † evenings ſhall ſpoil them, [m] a leopard ſhall watch over their cities: every one that goeth out thence ſhall be torn in pieces: becauſe their tranſgreſſions are many, and their backſlidings are ‡ increaſed. 7. ¶ How ſhall I pardon thee for this? thy children have forſaken me, and [n] ſworn by them that are no gods: when [o] I had fed them to the full, they then [p] committed adultery, and aſſembled themſelves by troops in the harlots houſes. 8. [q] They were as fed horſes in the morning: every one neighed after his neighbour's wife. 9. [r] Shall I not viſit for theſe things?
ſaith the LORD: and ſhall not my ſoul be avenged on ſuch a nation as this?

[a] Ezek. xxii. 30.
[b] Gen. xviii. 23, &c. Pſ. xii. 1.
[c] Chap. iv. 2.
[d] Iſa. i. 5. & ix. 13. Chap. ii. 30.
[e] Zeph. iii. 2.
[f] Prov. xxi. 29. Zech. vii. 12.
[g] Chap. viii. 7.
[h] Mic. iii. 1.
[i] Pſ. ii. 3.
[k] Chap. iv. 7.
[l] Pſ. civ. 20. Hab. i. 8.
† Or deſarts.
[m] Hoſ. xiii. 7.
‡ Heb. Strong.
[n] Joſh. xxiii. 7. Zeph. i. 5.
[o] Deut. xxxii. 15. Hoſ. iv. 7.
[p] Numb. xxv. 1.
[q] Ezek. xxii. 11.
[r] Ver. 29. Chap. ix. 9.

v. 1—9. God will ever be juſtified in his judgments: and when he viſits, verily there is a cauſe. We have here,

1. Their many and aggravated ſins.

(1) All truth and honeſty were baniſhed. Search Jeruſalem throughout, in all the places of concourſe, and neither a magiſtrate could be found upright, nor a man faithful, ſuch a univerſal corruption was ſpread through all ranks and degrees. To ſpare Sodom ten righteous were required; to ſpare Jeruſalem one would have ſufficed, and is not found; at leaſt no ſuch was to be met in the places of public reſort, where, if a few remained, they dared not appear.

(2.) They were falſe-hearted hypocrites. Some indeed made profeſſion of religion, and pretended a regard for truth; but they were perjured wretches, and faithleſs in all their vows of fidelity to God, whoſe eye was upon them, and from whom they could not be concealed, v. 2, 3. Note, (1.) Perjury is a crying ſin, and there is an avenging God who hears. (2). They who are inſincere in their profeſſions of Godlineſs, are more guilty than the openly abandoned.

(3.) They were obſtinately hardened. All God's viſitations produced no humiliation: they neither grieved for the ſins that provoked him, nor ſought to anſwer the end of his corrections; but daringly braved the divine vengeance, as neither aſhamed of their wickedneſs nor afraid of the puniſhment, and inſolently refuſed to return. Note, When judgments have no effect, and men grow impudent in ſin, their caſe appears deſperate.

(4.) They were ſhamefully ignorant, v. 4. They knew not the way of the Lord, nor the judgment of their God. They underſtood neither his word, the manner of his worſhip, or the deſigns of his providences. But the prophet was willing to hope theſe were foolſh, becauſe poor, and might have leſs opportunities of improvement: yet he found the caſe no way mended with their betters. Note, (1.) Prevailing ignorance of the things of God cannot but be accompanied with abounding iniquity. (2.) Tho' high attainments of knowledge may not be in their power, all truths needful to ſalvation the pooreſt may learn. So that they are without excuſe: for wilful ignorance is wilful ſin.

(5.) The great had utterly caſt off the divine government. Among the princes, the prieſts, and the elders, at leaſt, he expected wiſdom and piety, and that they would pay attention to his word. But juſt the reverſe: whatever their knowledge was, their practice was avowed ungodlineſs; breaking the yoke, and burſting the bonds of God's commands. Note, In a corrupted ſtate, the higher men's ſtations are, we may expect to find in them the greater abominations.

(6.) Their idolatries were infamous. Forſaking God, they paid their worſhip to ſtocks and ſtones, and ſwore by them that were no gods. Well might he therefore ſay, How ſhall I pardon thee for this? v. 7.

(7) They gave full ſcope to their beſtial luſts, abuſed the plenty God beſtowed to pamper their bodies, and, having made proviſion for the fleſh, ſo impudent and barefaced were they in their indulgences, that in troops they aſſembled in the harlots houſes; and, inſatiable in their raging luſts, like fed horſes in the morning, they neighed after their neighbour's wife, and added adultery to whoredom, to fill up the meaſure of their iniquities. Note, They who would keep from groſſer pollutions muſt bridle their appetites, and ſhun idleneſs. If the fuel be prepared, the fire will quickly kindle.

2. Their deſtruction is threatned by Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon. As a lion, reſiſtleſs in ſtrength; as an evening wolf, fierce with hunger; and as a leopard, watching, darts on his prey; ſo irreſiſtible, ravening, and ſwift, ſhall he come to execute God's judgments, to beſiege their cities, and rend in pieces thoſe who either come forth to oppoſe him, or ſeek to eſcape: and this becauſe their tranſgreſſions are ſo many, and their backſlidings ſo increaſed.

3. God appeals to them for the juſtice of this procedure. Shall I not viſit for theſe things? The honour of his government, as well as the holineſs of his nature, requires that inquiſition ſhould be made, and judgment paſs upon ſuch offenders. And ſhall not my ſoul be avenged on ſuch a nation as this? His vindictive juſtice is eſſential to his nature; and national ſins call for national judgments. Note, Sin muſt be avenged, and viſited either on the ſinner's perſon or his ſurety.

10. ¶ [s] Go ye up upon her walls, and deſtroy, [t] but make not a full end: take away her battlements, for they are not the LORD's. 11. For [u] the houſe of Iſrael and the houſe of Judah have dealt very treacherouſly againſt me, ſaith the LORD. 12. [x] They have belied the LORD, and ſaid, [y] It is not he, neither ſhall evil come upon us, neither ſhall we ſee ſword nor famine:
13. And the prophets ſhall become wind, and [z] the word is not in them: thus ſhall it be done unto them.
14. Wherefore thus ſaith the LORD God of hoſts, Becauſe ye ſpeak this word, behold, [a] I will make my words in thy mouth fire, and this people wood, and it ſhall devour them. 15. Lo, [b] I will bring a nation upon you from far, O houſe of Iſrael, ſaith the LORD: it is a mighty nation, it is an ancient nation, a nation whoſe

[s] Chap. xxxix. 8.
[t] Chap. iv. 27.
[u] Chap. iii. 20.
[x] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 16. Chap. iv. 10.
[y] Iſa. xxviii. 15.
[z] Chap. xliii. 2.
[a] Chap. i. 9.
[b] Deut. xxviii. 49. Iſa. v. 26. Chap. i. 15. & vi. 22.

Before Chriſt 612.

whoſe language thou knoweſt not, neither underſtandeſt what they ſay. 16. Their quiver is as an open ſepulchre, they are all mighty men. 17. And [c] they ſhall eat up thine harveſt, and thy bread, which thy ſons and thy daughters ſhould eat: they ſhall eat up thy flocks and thine herds; they ſhall eat up thy vines and thy fig-trees:
they ſhall impoveriſh thy fenced cities, wherein thou truſtedſt, with the ſword. 18. Nevertheleſs in thoſe days, ſaith the LORD, [d] I will not make a full end with you.
19. ¶ And it ſhall come to paſs when ye ſhall ſay, [e] Wherefore doth the LORD our God all theſe things unto us? then ſhalt thou anſwer them, Like as ye have forſaken me, and ſerved ſtrange gods in your land; ſo [f] ſhall ye ſerve ſtrangers in a land that is not yours.

[c] Lev. xxvi. 16. Deut. xxviii. 31, 33.
[d] Chap. iv. 27.
[e] Chap. xiii. 22. & xvi. 10.
[f] Deut. xxviii. 47, 48.

v. 10—19. The ſubject of theſe verſes is nearly the ſame as the foregoing.

1. The provocations they have given. Iſrael and Judah, alike rebellious, have treacherouſly departed from God's ways and worſhip, v. 11. fearleſs of God's warnings, yea daring to give the lie to his word in the mouth of his prophets, and vainly promiſing themſelves peace and plenty: as if the threatnings they denounced were melancholy fancies in their own brains, v. 12. and would prove but as a puff of wind; and as if their own falſe prophets were rather to be regarded, retorting their denunciations upon them; thus ſhall it be done unto them, or let it be done, giving orders to puniſh the true prophets with the famine and the ſword, for preſuming to predict ſuch judgments againſt them, v. 13. Note, (1.) It is at the bottom of the ſinner's preſumption and ſecurity, that he does not believe God is ſo holy as his word declares, and flatters himſelf there are ſome reſerves of mercy, or that his faithful ſervants are too ſevere, and miſrepreſent his word. (2.) Many now ſcoff at the preaching of God's prophets as folly, and treat them as viſionary enthuſiaſts, who will ſhortly find that what they deſpiſe as fictions, contrived to frighten the minds of the ſuperſtitious, are fearful realities.

2. The puniſhment threatned for their impenitence. That word of God's prophets they had deſpiſed ſhould fearfully be fulfilled: as fire it ſhould burn, and they be fuel to the flame, v. 14. Thoſe proud battlements, in which they relied, deſerted of God their only ſure defence, ſhall be eaſily thrown down by the beſieging foe, v. 10. From far, a mighty nation, an ancient nation, to whom they were utter ſtrangers, marches at God's command againſt them, v. 15. Their arrows devouring as the grave, and their warriors ſo mighty that they cannot ſtand before them, v. 16. Their country ſhall be forraged, waſted, and plundered; their corn and cattle ſeized, and themſelves and children left to pine with hunger; their cities ruined, and their garriſons ſlain with the ſword, v. 17. Note, (1.) God will make ſinners know at laſt whoſe word ſhall ſtand, his or theirs. (2.) Vain are all our confidences, when God hath forſaken us. (3.) The God of hoſts hath all nations at his beck, and ſoon can make one ſinful nation a ſcourge to its neighbour.

3. In wrath God remembers mercy. For the ſake of the remnant according to the election of grace, a full end ſhall not be made of this ſinful nation, v. 18. Note, When God gives a commiſſion to the ſword, he preſcribes the bounds; hitherto ſhalt thou come, and no further.

4. God's juſtice will appear in his judgments. Many of them quarrelling with their puniſhment would charge God fooliſhly; and, as if undeſerving of this treatment, expoſtulate with him thereupon: wherefore doth the Lord our God (to whom they hypocritically pleaded relation) all theſe things unto us? The reaſon is obvious, and the uprightneſs of his procedure clear: thou ſhalt anſwer them, Like as ye have forſaken me, my worſhip and ſervice, and ſerved ſtrange Gods in your land, ſo ſhall ye ſerve ſtrangers, the Chaldeans, in a land which is not yours: and this a moſt juſt retaliation. Note, (1.) It is a ſure ſign of an unhumbled heart, when we murmur againſt and find fault with the ſeverity of our corrections. (2.) They who make themſelves ſervants of ſin ſhall, ſooner or later, be made ſick of the ſervice.

20 Declare this in the houſe of Jacob, and publiſh it in Judah, ſaying, 21. Hear now this, O [g] fooliſh people, and without † underſtanding, which have eyes and ſee not, which have ears and hear not: 22. [h] Fear ye not me? ſaith the LORD: will ye not tremble at my preſence, which have placed the ſand for [i] the bound of the ſea, by a perpetual decree that it cannot paſs it; and though the waves thereof toſs themſelves, yet can they not prevail; though they rore, yet can they not paſs over? 23. But this people hath a revolting and a rebellious heart: they are revolted and gone. 24. Neither ſay they in their hearts, Let us now fear the LORD our God [k] that giveth rain, [l] both the former and the latter in his ſeaſon: he reſerveth unto us the appointed weeks of the harveſt.

[g] Iſa. vi. 9. Ezek. xii. 2. Mat. xiii. 14. Joh. xii. 40. Acts xxviii. 26. Rom. xi. 8.
† Heb. Heart.
[h] Rev. xv. 4.
[i] Job xxxviii. 10, 11. Pſ. 104. 9.
[k] Chap. xiv. 22.
[l] Deut. xi. 14.

Before Chriſt 612.

v. 20—24. When the prophet had to do with a people ſo obſtinate and perverſe, he had need cry aloud and ſpare not. He charges them,

1. With their ſtupidity and ſottiſhneſs. They neither uſed their ears to attend to God's word, nor their eyes to contemplate his works; but, as if blind and deaf, continued void of underſtanding. Note, None ſo blind as thoſe who will not ſee, or deaf as they who refuſe to hear; and none ſo criminal as thoſe that, in the midſt of means and mercies, chuſe darkneſs rather than light.

2. They were deſtitute of God's fear, notwithſtanding the diſplays of majeſty and mercy they beheld and experienced. They ſaw the raging ſeas ariſe, and threaten to raiſe another deluge; yet, by his mighty power ſhut up as with gates of adamant, the proud waves are ſtayed, and their limits fixed by a perpetual decree; and Fear ye not me? ſaith the Lord; will ye not tremble at my preſence? Surely this muſt prove them more ſenſeleſs, perverſe, and diſobedient, than theſe foaming billows. Yet, if his majeſty moved them not, his mercy ſhould engage them to fear the Lord and his goodneſs; who, with ſuch conſtant providential care, cauſeth the rain to deſcend; the former, which in Judea was in part of October and November, after the ſowing; and the latter rain, in part of March and April; in his ſeaſon, as would be moſt conducive to produce a plenteous harveſt, which he graciouſly beſtowed on them. Yet ſo ungrateful and inſenſible were they, that all this kindneſs wrought not on their obdurate ſouls, nor engaged them to ſay in their hearts, Let us now fear the Lord our God. Note, (1.) If the Lord put not his fear in our hearts, neither the works of his power nor the wonders of his providence will affect us: yet will they leave us inexcuſable. (2.) Where the fear of God is not, there muſt be confuſion and every evil work.

3. They were obſtinately rebellious, and revolted from God: their hearts were apoſtate from him: and not for a ſeaſon merely, but they went on in one continued courſe of iniquity, daily widening the breach, and filling up the meaſure of their iniquities. Note, Such rebels are we all by nature; ſo fooliſh, fearleſs, and revolted: at enmity againſt God, and hating the reſtraints of his law, till he by his grace open our eyes, put his fear in our hearts, and reduce them to the obedience of Chriſt.

25. ¶ [m] Your iniquities have turned away theſe things, and your ſins have withholden good things from you.
26. For among my people are found wicked men: [n] they † lay wait as he that ſetteth ſnares, they ſet a trap, they catch men. 27. As a cage is full of birds, ſo are their houſes full of deceit: therefore they are become great, and waxen rich. 28. They [o] are waxen fat, they ſhine:
yea, [p] they overpaſs the deeds of the wicked: [q] they judge not the cauſe, the cauſe of the fatherleſs, [r] yet they proſper: and the right of the needy do they not judge. 29. [s] Shall I not viſit for theſe things? ſaith the LORD: ſhall not my ſoul be avenged on ſuch a nation as this? 30. ¶ A wonderful and horrible thing is committed in the land. 31. [t] The prophets propheſy falſly, and the ‡ prieſts bear rule by their means, and [u] my people love to have it ſo: and what will ye do in the end thereof?

[m] Pſ. cvii. 34. Iſa. lix. 2.
[n] Prov. i. 11, 17.
† Or pry, as fowlers lay in wait.
[o] Deut. xxxii. 15.
[p] Ezek. v. 6, 7.
[q] Iſa. i. 23. Zech. vii. 10.
[r] Job xii. 6. Pſ. lxxiii. 12. Chap. xii. 1.
[s] Ver. 9.
[t] Chap. xiv. 14. & xxiii. 25, 26. Ezek. xiii. 6.
‡ Or princes.
[u] Mic. ii. 6, 11.

v. 25—31. We have here,

1. The miſeries their ſins had already brought upon them: Your iniquities have turned away theſe things, and your ſins have holden good things from you. The heavens had been ſhut up, the earth unfruitful, the ſeaſons unkindly, and their harveſts had failed. Note, Leſſer viſitations, ſlighted, prepare the way for heavier judgments.

2. Their provocations continued as bad as ever, yea grew worſe and worſe. Their general character was wickedneſs, and that the more aggravated as being in profeſſion God's people. They were deceitful, treacherous, oppreſſive, covetous. They laid ſnares to entrap and deſtroy thoſe who any ways interfered with their intereſts, or were become the objects of their reſentment for reproving them for their ſins, v. 26. As a cage with birds ſet for a decoy, that is filled with thoſe that are caught, ſo are their houſes filled with the gain of fraud and deceit. Thus they become great, v. 27. and, indulging their appetites out of their ill-gotten wealth, wax fat and ſhine. They overpaſs the deeds of the wicked, are worſe than the heathens around them; or, though pretending to religion, they exceed in iniquity the moſt abandoned profligates. In vain the fatherleſs and needy cry for their aſſiſtance, to vindicate them from oppreſſion, or relieve them from their diſtreſſes; their ears are deaf to their cry; neither as advocates for them, or magiſtrates, do they regard right or juſtice; and yet, aſtoniſhing to tell! they proſper, v. 28. Yet ſurely they fatten but for the ſlaughter. But, above all other crimes, a wonderful and horrible thing is committed in the land, enough to make the ears of every one that heareth it to tingle, and be amazed at the pitch of impiety to which they are arrived; The prophets propheſy falſely, ſee lying divinations, and viſions of peace for this devoted people; and, far from being diſcountenanced, the prieſts, or princes as the word ſignifies alſo, eſpouſe them, and oppoſe them againſt the true prophets as the tools of their ambition, that they may bear rule by their means, ſupporting themſelves by a combination in iniquity; and my people, who ſhould have eſpouſed his cauſe againſt ſuch a confederacy of iniquity, love to have it ſo; were well enough pleaſed with ſuch prieſts as flattered them in their vices, and propheſied ſmooth things; and with rulers that took no care to execute the laws that ſhould have reſtrained them. Note, (1.) An honeſt man, in this wicked world, is almoſt ſure of being a prey; for, unable to ſpeak lies and act deceitfully, he cannot deal on even terms. (2.) We are here often ſtruck with the view of proſperous wickedneſs: but let us not be ſtaggered: mark the end of thoſe men. (3.) Sin is a horrible thing; we need ſtartle at it. (4.) They who pretend a commiſſion from God, yet by their lies contradict his revealed word, are the moſt dangerous deceivers.

3. The conſequences of theſe iniquities would be fatal. God will viſit for their ſins: his juſtice obliges that condign puniſhment be executed on ſuch offenders; and what will ye do in the end thereof? What a ſtate of miſery and deſpair would they be driven to, when their country ſhould be conquered, and themſelves captives in Babylon? Note, An end will come of the longeſt life of proſperous wickedneſs; and it is an awful conſideration what ſinners will then do when they ſhall fall into the hands of the living God.

CHAP. VI.

In this chapter, as before, we have, (1.) A prophecy of the invading of the land of Judah, and the beſieging of Jeruſalem by the Chaldean army, ver. 1—6. with the ſpoils they ſhould make of the country, ver. 9. and the terror which all ſhould be ſeized with on that occaſion, ver. 22—26. (2.) An account of thoſe ſins of Judah and Jeruſalem, which provoked God to bring this deſolating judgment upon them. Their oppreſſion, ver. 7. Their contempt of the word of God, ver. 10—12. Their worldlineſs, ver. 13. The treachery of their prophets, ver. 14. Their impudence in ſin, ver. 15. Their obſtinacy againſt reproofs, ver. 18, 19. Which made their ſacrifices unacceptable to him, ver. 20. and for which he gave them up to ruin, ver. 21. But tried them firſt, ver. 27. And then rejected them as irreclaimable, ver. 28—30. (3.) Good counſel given them in the midſt of all this, but in vain, ver. 8, 16, 17.

1. O Ye children of Benjamin, [a] gather yourſelves to flee out of the midſt of Jeruſalem, and blow the trumpet in Tekoa: and ſet up a ſign of fire in Beth-haccerem: for [b] evil appeareth out of the north, and great deſtruction. 2. I have likened the daughter of Zion to a † comely and delicate woman. 3. The ſhepherds with their flocks ſhall come unto her: they ſhall pitch their tents againſt her round about: they ſhall feed every one in his place. 4. Prepare ye war againſt her: ariſe and let us go up at noon: wo unto us, for the day goeth away, for the ſhadows of the evening are ſtretched out. 5. Ariſe, and let us go by night, and let us deſtroy her palaces. 6. ¶ For thus hath the LORD of hoſts ſaid, Hew ye down trees, and ‡ caſt a mount againſt Jeruſalem: this is the city to be viſited, ſhe is wholly oppreſſion in the midſt of her. 7. [c] As a fountain caſteth out her waters, ſo ſhe caſteth out her wickedneſs: [d] violence and ſpoil is heard in her, before me continually is grief and wounds. 8. Be thou § inſtructed, O Jeruſalem, leſt [e] my ſoul ‖ depart from thee: leſt I make thee deſolate, a land not inhabited.

[a] Iſa. lii. 11. Chap. li. 6.
[b] Chap. i. 14. & iv. 6.
† Or dwelling at home,
‡ Or pour out the engine of ſhot.
[c] Iſa. lvii. 20.
[d] Pſ. lv. 9, 10, 11. Chap. xx. 8. Ezek. vii. 11, 23.
§ Heb. Corrected.
[e] Ezek. xxiii. 18.
‖ Heb. Be looſed or disjointed.

v. 1—8. We have here,

1. An alarm ſpread of the approaching foe coming from the north, and ſpreading deſtruction before him. The trumpet is blown in Tekoa, the beacon lighted in Beth-haccerem, a place between Tekoa and Jeruſalem, as a ſignal for their flight, if they hoped to eſcape, Jeruſalem being ready to be beſieged, v. 1.

2. Their weakneſs, and the formidable power of their foes, is deſcribed. The daughter of Zion is as helpleſs, and unable to make reſiſtance, as a comely and delicate woman. Some inſtead of woman read paſture, in correſpondence with the following ſimilitude, where their invaders are compared to ſhepherds with their flocks, who would pitch their tent there, and eat up the land as eaſily, and make it bare, as the Ox licks up the graſs of the field. Note, To have been brought up delicately makes every hardſhip more acutely felt.

3. In purſuance of God's commiſſion their enemies haſten to the attack. Prepare ye war againſt her, and preſs the ſiege; hew ye down trees, and caſt a mount againſt Jeruſalem, to batter the walls, and, as ſoon as the breach is practicable, give the aſſault. With mutual encouragements they quicken each other boldly to ſtorm the place; ariſe, let us go up at noon; and, as if ſome delay had prevented their deſign from being immediately executed, they regret that the ſhadows of the evening are advancing, v. 4. yet reſolved to carry their point, and confident of ſucceſs, the time of Jeruſalem's viſitation being come, v. 6. they are too impatient to wait for the morning, and reſolve that night to attempt the breach, v. 5. Some refer the words, wo unto us, &c. to the beſieged, lamenting their deſperate caſe, the day of their proſperity being at an end, and the dark night of their diſtreſs approaching. Note, (1.) When God's day of viſitation is come, the ſinner can be no longer ſafe. (2.) If they are ſo eager to ſtorm the city and ſeize the wealth of Jeruſalem, ſhall we ſhew leſs zeal and earneſtneſs to enter the kingdom of heaven and obtain the unſearchable riches of glory. (3.) Nothing encourages the heart ſo much as confidence of ſucceſs. And thus it it is, in our ſpiritual warfare, that faith enables us to overcome. Poſſunt quia poſſe videntur.

4. The cauſe of all theſe judgments is their ſins. Jeruſalem was become a ſink of wickedneſs: it flowed inceſſantly and abundantly, as the waters of a fountain; and all ranks and degrees of men were tainted: and particularly the whole city was a ſcene of oppreſſion, where, like fiſhes in the ſea, the great preyed upon the little; violence and ſpoil is heard in every corner, and grief and wounds, the blood and the cries of the oppreſſed, are continually before God, calling for vengeance. Note, There is a day when the wrongs of the oppreſſed will be examined and avenged.

5. A fair admonition is once more given, if they have yet ears to hear. Be thou inſtructed, O Jeruſalem: at laſt attend to underſtand and obey the calls to repentance, leſt my ſoul depart from thee, or be violently plucked away from thee; his favour utterly departing from them: and his love to them turned into abhorrence; leſt I make thee deſolate, a land not inhabited. Note, (1.) God is unwilling to give up the ſinner, and therefore he is patient, and pleads with him at laſt, though late, to return. (2.) When all his offers of mercy are obſtinately rejected, at laſt God will depart, and leave the ſinner to his ruin; and then wo, wo unto him.

9. ¶ Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, [f] They ſhall throughly glean the remnant of Iſrael as a vine: turn back thine hand as a grape-gatherer into the baſkets. 10. To whom ſhall I ſpeak and give warning, that they may hear? behold, [g] their ear is uncircumciſed, and they cannot hearken: behold the word of the LORD is unto them a reproach: [h] they have no delight in it. 11. Therefore [i] I am full of the fury of the LORD: I am weary with holding in: I will pour it out [k] upon the children abroad, and upon the aſſembly of young men together: for even the huſband with the wife ſhall be taken, the aged with him that is full of days. 12. And [l] their houſes ſhall be turned unto others, with their fields and wives together: for I will ſtretch out my hand upon the inhabitants of the land, ſaith the LORD. 13. For from the leaſt of them, even unto the greateſt of them, every one is given [m] to covetouſneſs; and from the prophet even unto the prieſt, every one dealeth falſly. 14. They have [n] healed alſo the † hurt of the daughter of my people ſlightly, ſaying, Peace, peace, when there is no peace. 15. [o] Were they aſhamed when they had committed abomination? nay, they were not at all aſhamed, neither could they bluſh: therefore they ſhall fall among them that fall: at the time that I viſit them, they ſhall be caſt down, ſaith the LORD. 16. Thus ſaith the LORD, Stand ye in the ways and ſee, and aſk for [p] the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and [q] ye ſhall find reſt for your ſouls: but they ſaid, We will not walk therein. 17. Alſo [r] I ſet watchmen over you, ſaying, Hearken to the ſound of the trumpet: but they ſaid, [s] We will not hearken.

[f] 2 Kings xxiv. 16. & xxv. 4, &c. Chap. xvi. 16.
[g] Chap. vii. 26. Acts vii. 51.
[h] 2 Tim. iv. 3.
[i] Chap. xx. 9.
[k] Ezek. ix. 6.
[l] Deut. xxviii. 30. Chap. viii. 10.
[m] Iſa. lvi. 11. Chap. viii. 10. Mic. iii. 5, 11.
[n] Chap. viii. 11. Ezek. xiii. 10.
† Heb. Bruiſe or breach.
[o] Chap. iii. 3. & viii. 12.
[p] Iſa. viii. 20. Chap. xviii. 15. Mal. iv. 4. Luke xvi. 29.
[q] Mat. xi. 29.
[r] Iſa. xxi. 11. Ezek. iii. 17. Hab. ii. 1.
[s] Chap. xxii. 21 & xliv. 16.

v. 9—17. Farther iniquities are here diſcovered, and farther judgments denounced.

1. Their tranſgreſſions were multiplied.

(1.) They were deaf to all the warnings of the prophets. To whom ſhall I ſpeak and give warning, that they may hear? intimating the univerſal diſregard paid to his meſſage. Their ear is uncircumciſed. At firſt they would not hearken, and now they are left to the hardneſs of their hearts, and they cannot hearken. Nay, they counted God's word, that rebuked their ſins, a reproach to them; and treated it, and thoſe who delivered it, with inſult and contempt. They have no delight in it; but the very contrary, a loathing and averſion to it. Note, (1.) The fidelity of God's miniſters, in rebuking men's ſins, is often conſtrued into perſonal abuſe. (2.) We are not to wonder that the word of the goſpel is looked upon as a reproach; it was ſo from the begin-beginning. (3.) They who have no delight in the Bible, have no name in the book of life.

Before Christ 612.

[2.] They were ſlaves to the love of money. High and low, rich and poor, prieſt and prophet, all were given to covetouſneſs, and cared not by what falſhoods or means they enriched themſelves, ſo they could but ſecure the mammon of unrighteouſneſs. Note, Nothing more fatally hardens the heart againſt God's word, than this rooted attachment to gain.

[3.] The prophets and prieſts, who by profeſſion and office ſhould have endeavoured to ſtop the torrent of ungodlineſs, contributed to make the diſeaſe more deſperate and incurable by their lying viſions, falſe gloſſes, and ſmooth diſcourſes, ſuited to lull the ſinner's conſcience into a fatal ſecurity, crying, Peace, peace, when there is no peace. Note, There is no ſurer mark of a falſe prophet than this, that he avoids thoſe alarming expreſſions of God's word, that are ſuited to ſtartle the ſinner; that he is ſollicitous to ſoften what are counted harſh ſayings; that it is his ſtudy not to offend, and his labour to lull thoſe to their reſt, who may have been made uneaſy by more faithful advocates for the truth.

[4.] They were ſhameleſs in their abominations. The preachers of lies refuſed to bluſh, when never ſo clearly detected in their falſe doctrines and flattering divinations; and the people, alike hardened, neither were aſhamed of their ſins, nor afraid of the threatned puniſhments, v. 15. Note, Thoſe faces that would not bluſh at rebuke, ſhall ſoon be pale as flames, when the terrors of God ſhall ſeize them.

[5.] The kindeſt admonitions of God had no influence on them: he would have gathered them, but they would not. Thus ſaith the Lord, Stand ye in the way and ſee; conſider your path, and whither it will lead you, to heaven or to hell; and aſk for the old paths; conſult your Bibles, enquire the way wherein the holy patriarchs walked. Where is the good way, the good old way of faith and holineſs, which was revealed in the firſt promiſe, and which all God's ſaints have trod from the beginning: and ye ſhall find reſt unto your ſouls, from all your fears; but they ſaid, We will not walk therein, as if determined to ruſh on their deſtruction. Every method had God taken to deter and divert them from ſo fatal a reſolution. I ſet watchmen over you, faithful miniſters of the ſanctuary, ſaying, Hearken to the ſound of the trumpet, breathing the voice of peace and mercy, or ſpreading the tremendous alarm of the guilt and puniſhment of ſin. But they ſaid, We will not hearken; refuſing every method God had taken to ſave them, and, faithleſs and fearleſs of his judgments, perſiſting in their impenitence. Note, (1.) The importance of that eternity which depends thereon, ſhould engage us to a frequent and ſerious conſideration of our ways, what we are doing, and whither we are going. (2.) The paths of life and truth are eaſily found of thoſe who are at pains to enquire after them. (3.) The good way to heaven is Chriſt, his righteouſneſs and grace, and he is the old way; for from the beginning the goſpel was preached, and the ſaints of old were ſaved, even as we. (4.) They who are found in this way will obtain reſt to their ſouls, peace with God, internal conſolation, and comfortable confidence of arriving ſafe at their journey's end in heaven. (5.) God's faithful miniſters muſt lead men in this way, and cry aloud to invite ſinners to walk in it. (6.) They who will not be perſuaded by God's word, muſt be left to their own deluſions; and miſerable, eternally miſerable, will be the end of thoſe men.

2. The terrible puniſhment of the Jewiſh people is foretold. Becauſe they are thus obſtinate and hardned, the prophet declares, I am full of the fury of the Lord; the revelation made to him of the wrath ready to be revealed, was ſo awful, that it filled his heart with terrible apprehenſions for them; I am weary with holding it; as if unwilling to be the meſſenger of evil, he had refrained, till like a fire within him, it forced a paſſage, and he was conſtrained to ſpeak. And fearful indeed are the devaſtations threatned; I will pour out my fury upon the little children playing in the ſtreets, upon the aſſemblies of young men aſſociated for mirth and pleaſure, huſband and wife ſhall be taken captives, and the moſt decrepid with age find no reverence, or pity, v. 11. Their houſes are given to their enemies, with their fields; and what is ſtill more bitter, their wives are proſtituted to their luſts: upon the whole land the hand of God's vengeance is ſtretched out, v. 12. Their lying prophets ſhall then meet their doom, and fall among them that fall, in ſpite of all their vain confidence; at the time that I viſit them ſhall they be caſt down, ſaith the Lord, v. 15. Thus ſhall their enemies plunder and deſtroy them; and as if ſollicitous to leave none to eſcape, they ſhall thoroughly glean the remnant of Iſrael as a vine, as the poor after the vintage picked off every berry which was left. Turn back thine hand as a grape-gatherer into the baſkets, till all the ſpoil is collected, and every Iſraelite led captive, v. 9. Note, It is the moſt unpleaſing part of our office to be the meſſengers of evil; but it is abſolutely neceſſary that by the terrors of the Lord we ſhould perſuade men: and however tremendous the ſubject, they who hear ought not to be diſpleaſed with the ſervants who barely report what they have received of the Lord.

18. ¶ Therefore hear, ye nations, and know, O congregation, what is among them. 19. [t] Hear, O earth, behold, I will bring evil upon this people, even [u] the fruit of their thoughts, becauſe they have not hearkned unto my words, nor to my law, but rejected it. 20. [x] To what purpoſe cometh there to me incenſe [y] from Sheba? and the ſweet cane from a far country? your burnt-offerings are not acceptable, nor your ſacrifices ſweet unto me. 21. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, I will lay ſtumbling-blocks before this people, and [z] the fathers and the ſons together ſhall fall upon them: the neighbour and his friend ſhall periſh. 22. Thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, a people cometh [a] from the north-country, and a great nation ſhall be raiſed from the ſides of the earth. 23. They ſhall lay hold on bow and ſpear: they are cruel, and have no mercy: their voice roareth like the ſea, and they ride upon horſes, ſet in array as men for war againſt thee, O daughter of Zion. 24. We have heard the fame thereof: our hands wax feeble: [b] anguiſh hath taken hold of us, and pain, as of a woman in travail. 25. Go not forth into the field, nor walk by the way; for the ſword of the enemy, and fear is on every ſide. 26. ¶ O daughter of my people, [c] gird thee with ſackcloth, and [d] wallow thyſelf in aſhes: [d] make thee mourning as for an only ſon, moſt bitter lamentation: for the ſpoiler ſhall ſuddenly come upon us. 27. I have ſet thee for a † tower, and [e] a fortreſs among my people, that thou mayeſt know and try their way. 28. They are all ‡ grievous revolters, [f] walking with ſlanders: [g] they are braſs and iron, [h] they are all corrupters. 29 [i] The bellows are burnt, the lead is conſumed of the fire, the founder melteth in vain; for [k] the wicked are not plucked away. 30. [l] § Reprobate ſilver ſhall men call them: becauſe the LORD hath rejected them.

v. 18—30. We have here,

1. God's appeal to the whole world for the equity of his procedure. When tidings of what was done among them, judgments ſo terrible and ſtrange, were reported, it might aſtoniſh them that God ſhould thus deal with his once ſo favoured people; but the wonder will ceaſe when their provocations are known. Their ſufferings are the neceſſary fruit of their thoughts; evil, and only evil, and that continually; and the conſequence of their wicked ways, as diſobedient againſt all the warnings of God's prophets, and rebellious againſt all the reſtraints of his law. Note, If men will not be ruled by God's word, they will juſtly be ruined by his wrath.

2. The vanity of their pretended ſervices. Their incenſe and perfumes, their offerings and ſacrifices, however rich, expenſive, and numerous, when brought with an hypocritical heart, as a means of purchaſing God's favour, with the hopes of expiating unrepented ſins, or to obtain a licence to abide in them; ſo far were they from being pleaſing and acceptable, they were his deteſtation and abhorrence, v. 20.

3. The deſtruction God would bring upon them. Stumbling-blocks ſhould be ſet in their ways, their falſe prophets permitted to delude them, or the Chaldeans, by whom they ſhould be daſhed in pieces, both father and ſon; for ſinners together muſt ſuffer together; the neighbour and his friend; for thoſe who have walked in evil fellowſhip, will be involved in the ſame calamity, v. 21. From the north, a far diſtant country, the mighty enemies come, v. 22. armed with bow and ſpear; fierce and cruel, they ſhew no mercy; their voice terrible as the roaring of the ſea; their cavalry ſwift and ſtrong; advancing in battle array againſt thee, O daughter of Zion.

4. Terrible conſternation will ſeize the Jewiſh people at their approach. Frightened at the very report, like a woman with child, that falls into travailing pangs, anguiſh will ſeize them, their hearts fail them, and their hands be feeble and incapable of reſiſtance, v. 24. In terror they ſhut themſelves up within their city, not daring to ſtir, to face the foe, or carry on their huſbandry, or attempt to travel, for the ſword of the enemy, or becauſe the enemy hath a ſword ready drawn to ſlay; and fear is on every ſide, no place being ſafe. Note, (1.) The ſinner's terrors will ſeize him ſuddenly and ſeverely, as the pains of a travailing woman. (2.) When God ſends his panic into the heart, the mighty are feeble, and the brave turn cowards.

5. The prophet calls them to lamentation and bitter mourning, to lie in ſackcloth and aſhes, as one under the moſt afflicting anguiſh for the loſs of an only ſon; and this either as a token of repentance for their ſin, or as expreſſive of their deſperate ſorrows under their ſudden deſolations, v. 26. Note, How much wiſer is it to prevent the judgment by ſpeedy humiliation, than by impenitence provoke the ſcourge, when our anguiſh will come too late to profit us?

6. God

Before Christ 612.

[t] Iſa. i. 2.

[u] Prov. i. 31.

[x] Pſ. xl. 6. & l. 8, 9. Iſa. i. 11. & lxvi. 3. Am. v. 21. Mic. vi. 6, &c.

[y] Iſa. lx. 6.

[z] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 17.

[a] Chap. i. 15. & v. 15. & x. 22.

[b] Chap. iv. 31. & xiii. 21.

[c] Chap. iv. 8.

[d] Chap. xxv. 34. Mic. i. 10.

[d] Zech. xii. 10.

† Or trier.

[e] Chap. i. 18. & xv. 20.

‡ Heb. Revolters of revolters.

[f] Chap. ix. 4.

[g] Ezek. xxii. 18.

[h] Iſa. i. 4.

[i] Iſa. xlix. 4.

[k] Ezek. xxiv. 12, 13.

[l] Iſa. i. 22.

§ Or, refuſe ſilver.

6. God appoints the prophet to inſpect their ways, and a ſad report he makes of them. I have ſet thee for a tower, to obſerve them; or a trier, to examine them; and for a fortreſs among my people, that as ſafe in the divine protection he might not fear their threatnings: that thou mayeſt know and try their way, which the more it was ſearched into, the more would God's judgments appear righteous. And what is the conſequence of this inquiſition? They are grievous revolters, or revolters of revolters, the moſt contumacious and ſtubborn tranſgreſſors: walking with ſlanders; playing the hycocrite with God, or inceſſantly backbiting one another. They are braſs and iron; baſe and vile as theſe metals, having braſen fronts that cannot bluſh, and hearts ſteeled that are impenetrably hardened. They are all corrupters; as thoſe who adulterate metals, ſo they corrupt the doctrines of truth; or, in Satan's ſtead, turn tempters to each other. The bellows are burnt; either the judgments they ſuffered had no effect on them; or the true prophets, who propheſied till they were hoarſe with crying, could avail nothing; or the falſe prophets, who flattered them, are now conſumed with them. The lead is conſumed in the fire, which was uſed in refining ſilver, but here was in vain: or, out of the fire it is perfect lead; ſuch are the people, without any thing precious or valuable in them, notwithſtanding the furnace of affliction they had gone through. The founder melteth in vain; all the prophet's labours were fruitleſs, and God's diſpenſations without effect: for the wicked are not plucked away from their former abominations, but perſiſt in them. Reprobate ſilver ſhall men call them; mere droſs, for the Lord hath rejected them from being his people, and given them up for a prey to their enemies. Note, God tries every method with ſinners, by calls of grace, and corrections of providence; and if, after all, they continue reprobate ſilver, their eternal ruin will lie at their own door.

CHAP. VII.

The prophet having in God's name reproved the people for their ſins, and given them warning of the judgments of God that were coming upon them, in this chapter proſecutes the ſame intention for their humiliation and awakening. 1. He ſhews them the vanity of truſting on their privileges and performances, ver. 1—11. 2. He minds them of the deſolations of Shiloh; and foretels that ſuch ſhould be the deſolations of Jeruſalem, ver. 12—16. 3. God repreſents to the prophet their abominable idolatries, for which he was thus incenſed againſt them, ver. 17—20. 4. He aſſures the people, that to obey is better than ſacrifice, and that God would not accept the ſacrifices of thoſe that obſtinately perſiſted in diſobedience, ver. 21—28. 5. He threatens to lay the land utterly waſte for their idolatry and impiety, and to multiply their ſlain as they had multiplied their ſin, ver. 29—34.

About 600.

1. THE word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, ſaying, 2. [a] Stand in the gate of the LORD's houſe, and proclaim there this word, and ſay, Hear the word of the LORD, all ye of Judah that enter in at theſe gates to worſhip the LORD. 3. Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts the God of Iſrael, [b] Amend your ways and your doings, and I will cauſe you to dwell in this place. 4. [c] Truſt ye not in lying words, ſaying, The temple of the LORD, the temple of the LORD, the temple of the LORD are theſe. 5. For if ye throughly amend your ways, and your doings; if you throughly execute judgment between a man and his neighbour; 6. If ye oppreſs not the ſtranger, the fatherleſs, and the widow, [d] and ſhed not innocent blood in this place, neither walk after other gods to your hurt: 7. Then will I cauſe you to dwell in this place, in the land that I gave to your fathers for ever and ever. 8. ¶ Behold, [e] ye truſt in lying words that cannot profit. 9. [f] Will ye ſteal, murder, and commit adultery, and ſwear falſely, and burn incenſe unto Baal, and walk after other gods whom ye know not; 10. And come and ſtand before me in this houſe, which is called by my name, and ſay, We are delivered to do all theſe abominations? 11. Is [g] this houſe, which is called by my name, become [h] a den of robbers in your eyes? behold, even I have ſeen it, ſaith the LORD. 12. But go ye now unto [i] my place, which was in Shiloh, where I ſet my name at the firſt, and ſee [k] what I did to it for the wickedneſs of my people Iſrael. 13. And now, becauſe ye have done all theſe works, ſaith the LORD, and I ſpake unto you, [l] riſing up early and ſpeaking, but ye heard not; and I [m] called you, but ye anſwered not: 14. Therefore will I do unto this houſe which is called by my name, wherein ye truſt, and unto the place which I gave to you, and to your fathers, [n] as I have done to Shiloh. 15. And I will caſt you out of my ſight, as [o] I have caſt out all your brethren, even the whole ſeed of Ephraim.

[a] Chap. xxvi. 2.
[b] Chap. xviii. 11. & xxvi. 13.
[c] Mic. iii. 11.
[d] Iſa. lix. 7.
[e] Ver. 4.
[f] 1 Kings xviii. 21. Zeph. i. 5.
[g] Iſa. lvi. 7.
[h] Mat. xxi. 13. Mark xi. 17. Luke xix. 46.
[i] Joſh. xviii. 1. Judg. xviii. 31.
[k] 1 Sam. iv. 10, 11. Pſ. lxxviii. 60. Chap. xxvi. 6.
[l] Ver. 25. Chap. xi. 7.
[m] Prov. i. 24. Iſa. lxv. 12. & lxvi. 4.
[n] 1 Sam. iv. 10, 11. Pſ. lxxviii. 60. & cxxxii. 6. Chap. xxvi. 6.
[o] 2 Kings xvii. 6.

v. 1—15. This chapter begins a new ſermon and prophecy, deſigned, as the former, to lead the people to repentance.

1. Directions are given what to ſpeak, and where to deliver his meſſage. He muſt proclaim the word of the Lord, without adding thereto, or diminiſhing therefrom; and ſtand in the gate of the houſe of the Lord, the moſt frequented place, where thoſe who came up to worſhip might hear; and probably was then one of the three great feſtivals, when the concourſe was greateſt. Note, (1.) A large auditory is deſirable, where the words of truth are diſpenſed. (2.) We muſt not be afraid of being cenſured for extravagant zeal: when in general the miniſters of the ſanctuary are careleſs, we cannot be faithful without being ſingular.

2. The general contents of his diſcourſe are, an exhortation to a repentance, with a gracious promiſe annexed. Thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts, at whoſe command, and by whoſe authority, he ſpeaks, the God of Iſrael, whom they, as his covenant people, are bound to obey; Amend your ways, and your doings; make a thorough change in them, for they are at preſent utterly perverſe; and I will cauſe you to dwell in this place; to enjoy their land, and the temple ſervice, and not remove into captivity, as would infallibly be the caſe if they continued impenitent.

3. He ſpecifies the particulars, which immediately, heartily, and thoroughly, muſt be amended; and they are ſummed up in two points, as being their grand evils, oppreſſion and idolatry. They muſt be juſt; their magiſtrates impartial; no allowed diſhoneſty permitted in their dealings; the fatherleſs and widows muſt not be injured, nor innocent blood any more defile the land; and all falſe gods muſt be utterly rejected and abhorred: then God will make their abode in the good land given their fathers both ſafe and laſting, v. 6, 7. Note, God only ſaith to the ſinner, Do thyſelf no harm: all that he requires of us is purely for our own good and happineſs.

4. He rebukes their vain confidence, and urges them no longer to truſt in their formal duties and external privileges. The falſe prophets magnified the outward ſervice of the temple, as if in this all godlineſs conſiſted; and they readily embraced a religion that reſted in mere externals of worſhip, and required no inward mortification of ſin. The temple of the Lord was ever in their mouths, their boaſt and confidence; and whilſt thrice a year they attended there, they thought they fully ſatisfied their duty. But alas! theſe were lying words, a deluſive hope, that could not profit them, whilſt they looked no further than the ritual ſervice, and exerciſed no faith in Chriſt, which alone gave it any efficacy, and eſpecially whilſt all their ſins continued unrepented of, and indulged. Will ye ſteal? or, ye do ſteal. He expoſtulates on their abſurdity, and charges them with abominations. They continued in murder, theft, perjury, adultery, idolatry; and yet dared appear before God in the temple, as if their ſacrifices could atone for their crimes; and impudently affected ſtill to paſs for true ſervants and worſhippers of God, ſaying in their words, or, which ſpoke as loud, in their actions, we are delivered to do all theſe abominations; either they thought themſelves at liberty to ſin, after they had appeared at the temple with their ſacrifices; or, that having been delivered ſo long, they might go on ſtill with impunity in their iniquities. This with deepeſt indignation God beholds, and upbraids them with. Is this houſe, that is called by my name, become a den of robbers in your eyes? as robbers take refuge in their den, ſo did they in the temple, thinking to cover their enormities with the cloak of ceremonies and ſacrifices; but vain before God were theſe wretched coverings. Behold, I have ſeen it, ſaith the Lord, their hypocriſy great as their impiety. Note, (1.) Many pride themſelves in a form of godlineſs, who are ſtrangers to the power of it; and whilſt they boaſt of the church, and their attendance thrice in a year at the Lord's table, are in fact the fartheſt from the kingdom of God. (2.) To plead the ſacrifice of Chriſt for ſin, as a licenſe to continue in it, is the moſt deteſtable abuſe of goſpel grace. (3.) Few dare avow what notwithſtanding their conduct evidently declares. (4.) The guiſe of godlineſs may paſs upon men, but no hypocriſy can be concealed from the heart-ſearching God.

5. He ſets before them, for their admonition, and to ſhew the vanity of their hopes, the deſtruction of Iſrael, notwithſtanding the tabernacle once pitched in Shiloh. Let them go thither, and read on the ruins of this once famed abode of God's ark, the inſufficiency of that protection, when the wickedneſs of the worſhippers, and of the prieſts, provoked God's wrath againſt them, Joſh. xviii. 1. 1 Sam. iv. 4—11. Pſ. lxxviii. 60—67. and ſuch would be their doom, ſince ſuch had been their ſins, v. 13—15. With like abominations they had offended God, and equally deaf to the repeated admonitions of God's prophets had they been, v. 13. therefore the temple and city of Jeruſalem ſhall become as Shiloh, a deſolation, v. 14. and God will caſt off the whole people of Judah, as he had already done by their brethren of Iſrael, who were gone long ſince into captivity, v. 15. Note, (1.) God's judgments on others are warnings to us to avoid their ways, if we would eſcape their puniſhment. (2.) They who follow ſinners examples will ſurely ſuffer with them. (3.) They who are caſt off from God are truly miſerable, and muſt, as the neceſſary conſequence, be ſhortly caſt down into hell.

[p] Ex. xxxii. 10. Chap. xi. 14. & xiv. 11.
[q] Chap. xv. 1.
[r] Chap. xliv. 17, 19.
† Or frame, or workmanſhip of heaven.
[s] 1 Cor. x. 22.
[t] Zeph. i. 3.
[u] Chap. iv. 4.

16. Therefore [p] pray not thou for this people, neither lift up cry nor prayer for them, neither make interceſſion to me; for [q] I will not hear thee. 17. ¶ Seeſt thou not what they do in the cities of Judah, and in the ſtreets of Jeruſalem? 18. [r] The children gather wood, and the fathers kindle the fire, and the women knead their dough to make cakes to the † queen of heaven, and to pour out drink-offerings unto other gods, that they may provoke me to anger. 19. [s] Do they provoke me to anger? ſaith the LORD: do they not provoke themſelves to the confuſion of their own faces? 20. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord GOD, Behold, mine anger, and my fury ſhall be poured out upon this place, [t] upon man and upon beaſt, and upon the trees of the field, and upon the fruit of the ground; and [u] it ſhall burn, and ſhall not be quenched.

v. 16—20. Their own prayers and ſervices, were ſo hypocritical and abominable, no good could be expected from them; but the prophet ſtill continued their advocate, and his prayers were uſually availing; but God will cut off from them every reſource.

1. He is ſorbid to pray for them. Much as the prophet had their ſalvation at heart, God's decree is fixed, prayer comes too late, their ruin is determined, v. 16. Note, (1) They who preach to ſinners muſt pray for them; yea, though they revile and perſecute. (2.) In a deſperate ſtate is that people, concerning whom God refuſes to be intreated, and ſhuts up the mouths of his prophets.

2. God aſſigns the reaſon for his prohibition; their impudent iniquities, and incorrigible obſtinacy. Openly in the cities of Judah, yea, in the very ſtreets of Jeruſalem, under the prophet's eye, unawed by his preſence, and unaffected with his warnings, they performed their idolatrous rites, offering meat-offerings and drink-offerings to the queen of heaven, the moon, conſecrated for a goddeſs, and to their other idols; and in the work all ages and ſexes joined, ſo univerſal was the corruption ſpread. The very children gathered the wood, whilſt their fathers kindled the fire, and the women kneaded the cakes, to provoke God to anger, v. 17, 18. See how carefully idolaters initiated betimes their children in the ſervice of their idols; ſhall we be leſs ſollicitous to inſtruct ours in the knowledge of the living God? Could they ſo freely part with their bread and wine in theſe deteſtable rites; and ſhall not we more liberally in God's ſervice break our bread to the hungry, and open our bottle to the thirſty?

3. He threatens them with the dire conſequences of this conduct. Do they provoke me to anger? No: ſuch perturbation as we feel, enters not into the eternal mind. Or doth he receive any damage by their wickedneſs? No: as their goodneſs could not add to his ſelf-ſufficient bliſs and happineſs, neither can their wickedneſs take from it. The hurt they do is only to themſelves, bringing upon their own heads ſwift deſtruction. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord God, Behold, mine anger and my fury ſhall be poured out upon this place; a deluge of wrath, ſuch as ſwept away the world of the ungodly, or which fell upon devoted Sodom. The temple and city ſhall be utterly deſtroyed; both man and beaſt be conſumed; and the very trees and fruits of the ground devoured by the fire of divine wrath. It ſhall burn with irreſiſtible fury, and ſhall not be quenched. And herein we have an awful repreſentation of the puniſhment of all the wicked in hell, who depart accurſed into everlaſting fire.

[x] Iſa. i 11. Chap. vi. 20. Am. v. 21.
[y] Hoſ. vi. 6.
[z] Ex. xv. 26. Deut. vi. 3. Chap. xi. 4.
[a] Ex. xix. 5. Lev. xxvi. 12
[b] Deut. v. 33.
[c] Deut. xxix. 19. Pſal. lxxxi. 12. Chap. xi. 8.
† Or ſtubbornneſs.
[d] Chap. xxxii. 33.
[e] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 15. Chap. xxv. 4
[f] Ver. 13.
[g] Chap. xi. 8.
[h] Neh. ix. 17, 29. Chap. xvi. 12. & xvii. 23. & xix. 15.
[i] Ezek. ii. 7.
‡ Or, inſtruction. Chap. vi. 8.

21. ¶ Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts the God of Iſrael, [x] Put your burnt-offerings unto your ſacrifices, and eat fleſh. 22. For [y] I ſpake not unto your fathers, nor commanded them in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, concerning burnt-offerings or ſacrifices. 23. But this thing commanded I them, ſaying, [z] Obey my voice, and [a] I will be your God, and ye ſhall be my people: and [b] walk ye in all the ways that I have commanded you, that it may be well unto you. 24. But [c] they hearkned not, nor inclined their ear, but walked in the counſels and in the † imagination of their evil heart, and [d] went backward, and not forward. 25. Since the day that your fathers came forth out of the land of Egypt unto this day, [e] I have even ſent unto you all my ſervants the prophets, daily [f] riſing up early, and ſending them. 26. [g] Yet they hearkned not unto me, nor inclined their ear, but [h] hardned their neck, they did worſe than their fathers. 27. Therefore [i] thou ſhalt ſpeak all theſe words unto them, but they will not hearken to thee: thou ſhalt alſo call unto them, but they will not anſwer thee. 28. But thou ſhalt ſay unto them, This is a nation, that obeyeth not the voice of the LORD their God, nor receiveth ‡ correction: truth is periſhed, and is cut off from their mouth.

v. 21—28. As they placed ſo much dependance on their ſacrifices to procure their acceptance with God, God will have them know theſe are inſignificant and vain, whilſt they miſtook their end, and perverted their inſtitution. Put your burnt-offerings unto your ſacrifices, and eat fleſh; either give over ſuch vain oblations, and uſe them rather at your own tables; or add never ſo many or expenſive offerings, and pretend never ſo religiouſly to eat them before the Lord; they are utterly unacceptable, whilſt the love and power of ſin remains unſubdued in your hearts. For,

1. Obedience, not ſacrifice, is the great thing God requires. The ten commandments were firſt delivered to their fathers in the wilderneſs; and though ſacrifices were afterwards inſtituted, it was not for their own ſake, but in order to lead them by ſaith to the great Antitype, whoſe atonement was therein repreſented, excluſive of which, they were utterly uſeleſs and unacceptable. The principal part therefore of the Sinai covenant was, Obey my voice; and to this the promiſe was annexed, I will be your God, and ye ſhall be my people; protecting them from their enemies, and preſerving them in the poſſeſſion of the promiſed land; and as long as they thus carefully walked in all God's ways, ſo long it ſhould be well with them, and proſperity continually attend them.

2. Diſobedience to the moral law is their great offence, and this had been their caſe from their very coming out of Egypt to that day. Their fathers and they had together rejected God's law, to walk after the imaginations of their own evil hearts; and, inſtead of advancing in the ways of holineſs and happineſs, turned back into the paths of ſin and miſery, v. 24. and this in oppoſition to long and repeated warnings, brought them from thoſe divinely-appointed miniſters, whom God from time to time raiſed up to admoniſh them of the evil and danger of their ways, v. 25. Inſtead of amending, every generation grew worſe, and more hardened, till the meaſure of their iniquities now roſe to the brim, v. 26. therefore the prophet is commanded to ſpeak all theſe words unto them; thoſe charges of their rebellion and obſtinacy, and thoſe warnings of their impending ruin. Not that theſe would have any effect; God foretels him they would not hearken, nor anſwer to his calls: but, to leave them inexcuſable in their wickedneſs, thou ſhalt ſay unto them, This is a nation that obeyeth not the voice of the Lord their God, which relation aggravated their diſobedience, nor receiveth correction; they will not be taught by the word, nor reclaimed by the rod: truth is periſhed, and is cut off from their mouth; they are falſe and faithleſs to God and man, and nothing but lies, inſincerity, and hypocriſy, is to be found amongſt them, and therefore nothing but ruin to be expected. Note, We may not ceaſe to admoniſh ſinners, though we ſee no proſpect of reclaiming them; we muſt ſpeak, if but for a teſtimony againſt them.

[k] Job i. 20. Iſa. xv. 2. Chap. xvi. 6. Mic. i. 16.
[l] 2 Kings xxi. 4. 2 Chron. xxxiii. 5. Ezek. vii. 10. & viii. 5, 6.
[m] 2 Kings xxiii. 10. Chap. xix. 5.
[n] Lev. xviii. 21. & xx. 2.
† Heb. Upon.
[o] Chap. xix. 6.
[p] Deut xxviii. 26. Pſ. lxxix. 2. Chap. xvi. 4 & xxxii. 20.
[q] Iſa. xxiv. 7, 8. Chap. xvi. 9. & xxv. 10. & xxxiii. 11. Ezek. xxvi. 13. Hoſ. ii. 11. Rev. xviii. 23.

29. ¶ [k] Cut off thine hair, O Jeruſalem, and caſt it away, and take up a lamentation on high places; for the LORD hath rejected and forſaken the generation of his wrath. 30. For the children of Judah have done evil in my ſight, ſaith the LORD: [l] they have ſet their abominations in the houſe which is called by my name, to pollute it. 31. And they have built [m] the high places of Tophet, which is in the valley of the ſon of Hinnom, to burn their ſons and their daughters in the fire, [n] which I commanded them not, neither came it † into my heart. 32. ¶ Therefore behold, [o] the days come, ſaith the LORD, that it ſhall no more be called Tophet, nor the valley of the ſon of Hinnom, but the valley of ſlaughter: for they ſhall bury in Tophet, till there be no place. 33. And [p] the carcaſes of this people ſhall be meat for the fowls of the heaven, and for the beaſts of the earth, and none ſhall fray them away. 34. Then [q] will I cauſe to ceaſe from the cities of Judah, and from the ſtreets of Jeruſalem, the voice of mirth, and the voice of gladneſs, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride: for the land ſhall be deſolate.

v. 29—34. Jeruſalem, in the proſpect of her approaching deſolations, is called upon to cut off her hair, in token of deepeſt mourning, Job i. 20. and on the high places, the ſcene of her abominations, to lift up an exceeding bitter cry, as rejected of God, devoted to wrath, and given up into the hands of her cruel enemies.

Before Chriſt 600.

1. Her ſin is exceeding ſinful. They have done evil in my ſight, ſaith the Lord; continued in a courſe of open and daring impiety: particularly their abominable idolatries provoked him, which to ſuch an enormous height they had carried, that in God's own houſe they had dared to ſet up their images, and rear their altars, as if they deſigned on purpoſe to defile that holy place; and their ſacrifices were as horrid and inhuman, as their deities were deteſtable. They built the high places of Tophet, where Moloch's hated image ſtood, and, deaf to the cries of nature, and the ſhrieks of murdered infants, there parents, loſt to every feeling of natural affection, burnt their children in the fire. It is ſaid, this was performed by heating the brazen idol red hot, and then the parent laid the child on his arms, whilſt the prieſts beat drums to drown the horrid ſhrieks and cries: ſacrifices which God never commanded, and ſuch as he never thought of enjoining his worſhippers. Note, When ſin hath hardened the heart, it is amazing to what a pitch of barbarity and inhumanity men may go.

2. The vengeance denounced for this is exceeding terrible. Tophet, the ſcene of theſe abominations, ſhall ſhortly change its name for the valley of ſlaughter, or of the ſlain; for there ſhall multitudes fall by the ſword, or be carried thither to be buried; multitudes ſo great, that graves ſhall be wanting for them, v. 32. and the unburied corpſes lie for meat to the fowls of heaven, and beaſts of the earth, and not a man be left to fray them away, v. 33. Deſerted now are the ſtreets of Jeruſalem; no voice of joy is heard; no congratulations of the bride or bridegroom; but either the ſound of mournful lamentations, or the land ſo deſolate, that none are left to weep, and more melancholy ſilence reigns. Note, God will ſoon change ſinful mirth into everlaſting mourning: we need rejoice with trembling.

C H A P. VIII.

The prophet proceeds in this chapter both to magnify and to juſtify the deſtruction that God was bringing upon this people. 1. He repreſents the judgments coming ſo very terrible, that death, though dreadful, ſhould be deſired, ver. 1—3. 2. He aggravates the ſtupidity and wilfulneſs of the people, as what brought this ruin upon them, ver. 4—12. 3. He deſcribes the great confuſion and conſternation that the whole land ſhould be in upon the alarm of it, ver. 13—17. 4. The prophet is himſelf deeply affected with it, ver. 18—22.

1. AT that time, ſaith the LORD, they [a] ſhall bring out the bones of the kings of Judah, and the bones of his princes, and the bones of the prieſts, and the bones of the prophets, and the bones of the inhabitants of Jeruſalem out of their graves. 2. And they ſhall ſpread them before the ſun, and the moon, and all the hoſt of heaven whom they have loved, and whom they have ſerved, and after whom they have walked, and whom they have ſought, and [b] whom they have worſhipped: they ſhall not be gathered, nor be buried, [c] they ſhall be for dung upon the face of the earth. 3. And [d] death ſhall be choſen rather than life, by all the reſidue of them that remain of this evil family, which remain in all the places whither I have driven them, ſaith the LORD of hoſts.

[a] 2 Kings xiii. 2.
[b] 2 Kings xxiii. 5. 2 Chron. xxxiii. 5.
[c] Chap. ix. 22. & xvi. 4.
[d] Rev. ix. 6.

v. 1—3. In the dreadful deſolations before deſcribed, the unburied corpſes lie expoſed; here theſe ſavage invaders ſuffer not the dead to enjoy quiet repoſe.

1. The graves and ſepulchres of Judah's kings and princes ſhall be opened, either thro' covetouſneſs to ſearch for treaſures; or to ſhow inſult even to their aſhes; or as a juſt judgment of God, who ſuffered the bones of the kings, prieſts, prophets, and people, who had ſo rebelled againſt him, to be expoſed with infamy before thoſe luminaries of heaven whom they had worſhipped, loved, ſerved, and ſought; they had walked in the moſt abominable idolatries, and ſet up theſe for their gods, as if their favour was to be deſired, and their bleſſing to be obtained: fooliſh and impious the ſervice! and now it appeared ſo, when they could not afford the leaſt help, nor ſo much as collect their ſcattered bones, ſpread for dung upon the face of the earth, v. 1, 2. Note, In the day of judgment the ſinner's loathſome carcaſe will be more ſhamefully expoſed, Iſa. lxvi. 24.

2. Death, the moſt dreaded of human evils, now ſhall be courted; not that it hath loſt ought of its horrors, but becauſe life is become intolerable; not from a hope of happineſs in the exchange, but from deſpair of reſt or eaſe below. The ſurvivors of this evil family, for to ſo ſmall a number will they be reduced, ſhall be ſo harraſſed and tormented in every place whither they are driven, that they ſhall look with envy on thoſe who have periſhed by famine and the ſword, and count their lot more eligible than their own, v. 3. Note, That caſe is terrible indeed, when life becomes a burden, and the ſinner is tempted to prefer ſtrangling and death.

4. ¶ Moreover, thou ſhalt ſay unto them, Thus ſaith the LORD, Shall they fall, and not ariſe? ſhall he turn away, and not return? 5. Why then is this people of Jeruſalem ſlidden back, [e] by a perpetual backſliding? [f] they hold faſt deceit, they refuſe to return. 6. I hearkned and heard, but they ſpake not aright: no man repented him of his wickedneſs, ſaying, What have I done? every one turned to his courſe, as the horſe ruſheth into the battle. 7. Yea, [g] the ſtork in the heaven knoweth her appointed times, and the turtle, and the crane, and the ſwallow obſerve the time of their coming, but my people [h] know not the judgment of the LORD. 8. How do ye ſay, We are wiſe, and [i] the law of the LORD is with us? Lo, certainly † in vain made he it, the pen of the ſcribes is in vain. 9. ‡ The wiſe men are aſhamed, they are diſmayed and taken; Lo, they have rejected the word of the LORD, and [k] what wiſdom is in them? 10. Therefore [l] will I give their wives unto others, [m] and their fields to them that ſhall inherit them: for [n] every one from the leaſt even unto the greateſt is given to covetouſneſs, from the prophet even unto the prieſt every one dealeth falſly. 11. For [o] they have healed the hurt of the daughter of my people ſlightly, ſaying, [p] Peace, peace, when there is no peace. 12. [q] Were they aſhamed when they had committed abomination? nay, they were not at all aſhamed, neither could they bluſh: therefore ſhall they fall among them that fall, in the time of their viſitation they ſhall be caſt down, ſaith the LORD.

Before Chriſt 600.

[e] Chap. v. 3.
[f] Pſ. xxxvi. 3. Chap. ix. 6.
[g] Iſa. i. 3.
[h] Chap. v. 4, 5. Luke xix. 42.
[i] Rom. ii. 17.
† Or, the falſe pen of the ſcribes worketh for falſhood. Iſa. x. 1.
‡ Or, Have they been aſhamed, &c. Chap. vi. 15.
[k] Iſa. viii. 20.
[l] Deut. xxviii. 30. Chap. vi. 12.
[m] Am. v. 11. Zeph. i. 13.
[n] Iſa. lvi. 11. Chap. vi. 13.
[o] Chap. vi. 14.
[p] Ezek. xiii. 10.
[q] Chap. iii. 3. & vi. 15.

v. 4—12. Never was people ſo infatuated to their ruin.

1. They perſevered in their evil ways. In general, when a man falls, he ſeeks immediately to recover himſelf; and if he loſes his way, he is ſollicitous to return into the right path, v. 4. Why then is this people of Jeruſalem ſlidden back by a perpetual backſliding? and inſtead of any deſire to amend, they hold faſt deceit; obſtinate againſt every means of conviction, they refuſe to return. Note, (1.) They who backſlide from God, wander endleſsly and perpetually, unleſs his grace plucks them from ruin. (2.) Nothing is ſo great a deceit as ſin; it promiſes ſo much enjoyment, and ever produces ſo much miſery.

2. They diſappointed God's expectations from them. He patiently waited and hearkned, if ſo be they might at laſt be prevailed upon to change their note, and learn the language of penitence: but not one ſpake aright, nor repented of his wickedneſs, reflecting with ſhame upon his conduct: but juſt the very reverſe; they urged on their mad career in ſin with ſuch determined waywardneſs and fearleſſneſs, as the horſe ruſheth into the battle. Note, (1.) God is long-ſuffering to usward, not willing that any ſhould periſh, but that all ſhould come unto repentance. (2.) The firſt ſtep to real penitence is ſerious reflection upon the evil of our paſt ways, What have I done? (3.) The daring ſinner that mocks at the terrors of the Lord, as chimeras, and fearleſs ruſhes into the depths of iniquity, will find them fearful realities, and that half was not told him.

3. They were more ſtupid and irrational than the fowls of heaven, whilſt they made the higheſt pretenſions to wiſdom, v. 7—9. The birds of paſſage by inſtinct know the proper ſeaſon for their coming and going, and how to direct their flight; but my people know not the judgment of the Lord; neither how to improve the calls of mercy in God's word, nor the corrections of affliction, nor his viſitations on others; and yet they ſay, We are wiſe, and the law of the Lord is with us. How ſhameleſs their pretenſions! when their whole conduct appeared ſo contradictory. In vain had they the law, and the pen of the ſcribes to write out copies or comments upon it; their expoſitions were falſe, or at leaſt they paid no regard to them, if true. Their wiſe men themſelves are confounded at calamities they could neither foreſee nor avert: nor can it be wondered, when, lo! they have rejected the word of the Lord, ſent by his prophets; and what wiſdom is in them, when they reject the counſel of God, and refuſe to be inſtructed? Note, (1.) Many enjoy plenty of means, have Bibles and miniſters, and yet are never the wiſer for them. (2.) Whatever pretences to wiſdom they may make, who reject God's revealed word, they will be confounded in the day of judgment at their own egregious folly.

4. For their ſins they ſhall ſuffer. Their ſins are before charged on them, chap. vi. 13—15. Love of filthy lucre, moſt ſcandalous in thoſe who are to preach, and be examples to others of deadneſs to the world. Inſincerity; their profeſſions were falſe, and their doctrine diabolical, tending to lull the ſinner's ſoul into fatal ſecurity, inſtead of rouſing him to a ſenſe of his danger; and daring impudence, that knew not to bluſh, though convicted of their lies, and upbraided for their

Before Chriſt 600.

us to avoid their ways, if we would eſcape their puniſhment. (2.) They who follow ſinners examples will ſurely ſuffer with them. (3.) They who are caſt off from God are truly miſerable, and muſt, as the neceſſary conſequence, be ſhortly caſt down into hell.

p Ex. xxxii. 10. Chap. xi. 14. & xiv. 11.
q Chap. xv. 1.
r Chap. xliv. 17, 19.
† Or frame, or workmanſhip of heaven.
s 1 Cor. x. 22.
t Zeph. i. 3.
u Chap. iv. 4.

16. Therefore [p] pray not thou for this people, neither lift up cry nor prayer for them, neither make interceſſion to me; for [q] I will not hear thee. 17. ¶ Seeſt thou not what they do in the cities of Judah, and in the ſtreets of Jeruſalem? 18. [r] The children gather wood, and the fathers kindle the fire, and the women knead their dough to make cakes to the † queen of heaven, and to pour out drink-offerings unto other gods, that they may provoke me to anger. 19. [s] Do they provoke me to anger? ſaith the LORD: do they not provoke themſelves to the confuſion of their own faces? 20. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord GOD, Behold, mine anger, and my fury ſhall be poured out upon this place, [t] upon man and upon beaſt, and upon the trees of the field, and upon the fruit of the ground; and [u] it ſhall burn, and ſhall not be quenched.

v. 16—20. Their own prayers and ſervices, were ſo hypocritical and abominable, no good could be expected from them; but the prophet ſtill continued their advocate, and his prayers were uſually availing; but God will cut off from them every reſource.

1. He is forbid to pray for them. Much as the prophet had their ſalvation at heart, God's decree is fixed, prayer comes too late, their ruin is determined, v. 16. Note, (1) They who preach to ſinners muſt pray for them; yea, though they revile and perſecute. (2.) In a deſperate ſtate is that people, concerning whom God refuſes to be intreated, and ſhuts up the mouths of his prophets.

2. God aſſigns the reaſon for his prohibition; their impudent iniquities, and incorrigible obſtinacy. Openly in the cities of Judah, yea, in the very ſtreets of Jeruſalem, under the prophet's eye, unawed by his preſence, and unaffected with his warnings, they performed their idolatrous rites, offering meat-offerings and drink-offerings to the queen of heaven, the moon, conſecrated for a goddeſs, and to their other idols; and in the work all ages and ſexes joined, ſo univerſal was the corruption ſpread. The very children gathered the wood, whilſt their fathers kindled the fire, and the women kneaded the cakes, to provoke God to anger, v. 17, 18. See how carefully idolaters initiated betimes their children in the ſervice of their idols; ſhall we be leſs ſollicitous to inſtruct ours in the knowledge of the living God? Could they ſo freely part with their bread and wine in theſe deteſtable rites; and ſhall not we more liberally in God's ſervice break our bread to the hungry, and open our bottle to the thirſty?

3. He threatens them with the dire conſequences of this conduct. Do they provoke me to anger? No: ſuch perturbation as we feel, enters not into the eternal mind. Or doth he receive any damage by their wickedneſs? No: as their goodneſs could not add to his ſelf-ſufficient bliſs and happineſs, neither can their wickedneſs take from it. The hurt they do is only to themſelves, bringing upon their own heads ſwift deſtruction. Therefore thus ſaith the Lord God, Behold, mine anger and my fury ſhall be poured out upon this place; a deluge of wrath, ſuch as ſwept away the world of the ungodly, or which fell upon devoted Sodom. The temple and city ſhall be utterly deſtroyed; both man and beaſt be conſumed; and the very trees and fruits of the ground devoured by the fire of divine wrath. It ſhall burn with irreſiſtible fury, and ſhall not be quenched. And herein we have an awful repreſentation of the puniſhment of all the wicked in hell, who depart accurſed into everlaſting fire.

x Iſa. i. 11. Chap. vi. 20. Am. v. 21.
y Hoſ. vi. 6.
z Ex. xv. 26. Deut. vi. 3. Chap. xi. 4.
a Ex. xix. 5. Lev. xxvi. 12
b Deut. v. 33.
c Deut. xxix. 19. Pſal. lxxxi. 12. Chap. xi. 8.
† Or ſtubbornneſs.
d Chap. xxxii. 33.
e 2 Chron. xxxvi. 15. Chap. xxv. 4
f Ver. 13.
g Chap. xi. 8.
h Neh. ix. 17, 29. Chap. xvi. 12. & xvii. 23. & xix. 15.
i Ezek. ii. 7.
‡ Or, inſtruction. Chap. vi. 8.

21. ¶ Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts the God of Iſrael, [x] Put your burnt-offerings unto your ſacrifices, and eat fleſh. 22. For [y] I ſpake not unto your fathers, nor commanded them in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, concerning burnt-offerings or ſacrifices. 23. But this thing commanded I them, ſaying, [z] Obey my voice, and [a] I will be your God, and ye ſhall be my people: and [b] walk ye in all the ways that I have commanded you, that it may be well unto you. 24. But [c] they hearkned not, nor inclined their ear, but walked in the counſels and in the † imagination of their evil heart, and [d] went backward, and not forward. 25. Since the day that your fathers came forth out of the land of Egypt unto this day, [e] I have even ſent unto you all my ſervants the prophets, daily [f] riſing up early, and ſending them. 26. [g] Yet they hearkned not unto me, nor inclined their ear, but [h] hardned their neck, they did worſe than their fathers. 27. Therefore [i] thou ſhalt ſpeak all theſe words unto them, but they will not hearken to thee: thou ſhalt alſo call unto them, but they will not anſwer thee. 28. But thou ſhalt ſay unto them, This is a nation, that obeyeth not the voice of the LORD their God, nor receiveth ‡ correction: truth is periſhed, and is cut off from their mouth.

v. 21—28. As they placed ſo much dependance on their ſacrifices to procure their acceptance with God, God will have them know theſe are inſignificant and vain, whilſt they miſtook their end, and perverted their inſtitution. Put your burnt-offerings unto your ſacrifices, and eat fleſh; either give over ſuch vain oblations, and uſe them rather at your own tables; or add never ſo many or expenſive offerings, and pretend never ſo religiouſly to eat them before the Lord; they are utterly unacceptable, whilſt the love and power of ſin remains unſubdued in your hearts. For,

1. Obedience, not ſacrifice, is the great thing God requires. The ten commandments were firſt delivered to their fathers in the wilderneſs; and though ſacrifices were afterwards inſtituted, it was not for their own ſake, but in order to lead them by faith to the great Antitype, whoſe atonement was therein repreſented, excluſive of which, they were utterly uſeleſs and unacceptable. The principal part therefore of the Sinai covenant was, Obey my voice; and to this the promiſe was annexed, I will be your God, and ye ſhall be my people; protecting them from their enemies, and preſerving them in the poſſeſſion of the promiſed land; and as long as they thus carefully walked in all God's ways, ſo long it ſhould be well with them, and proſperity continually attend them.

2. Diſobedience to the moral law is their great offence, and this had been their caſe from their very coming out of Egypt to that day. Their fathers and they had together rejected God's law, to walk after the imaginations of their own evil hearts; and, inſtead of advancing in the ways of holineſs and happineſs, turned back into the paths of ſin and miſery, v. 24. and this in oppoſition to long and repeated warnings, brought them from thoſe divinely-appointed miniſters, whom God from time to time raiſed up to admoniſh them of the evil and danger of their ways, v. 25. Inſtead of amending, every generation grew worſe, and more hardened, till the meaſure of their iniquities now roſe to the brim, v. 26. therefore the prophet is commanded to ſpeak all theſe words unto them; thoſe charges of their rebellion and obſtinacy, and thoſe warnings of their impending ruin. Not that theſe would have any effect; God foretels him they would not hearken, nor anſwer to his calls: but, to leave them inexcuſable in their wickedneſs, thou ſhalt ſay unto them, This is a nation that obeyeth not the voice of the Lord their God, which relation aggravated their diſobedience, nor receiveth correction; they will not be taught by the word, nor reclaimed by the rod: truth is periſhed, and is cut off from their mouth; they are falſe and faithleſs to God and man, and nothing but lies, inſincerity, and hypocriſy, is to be found amongſt them, and therefore nothing but ruin to be expected. Note, We may not ceaſe to admoniſh ſinners, though we ſee no proſpect of reclaiming them; we muſt ſpeak, if but for a teſtimony againſt them.

k Job i. 20. Iſa. xv. 2. Chap. xvi. 6. Mic. i. 16.
l 2 Kings xxi. 4. 2 Chron. xxxiii. 5. Ezek. vii. 10. & viii. 5, 6.
m 2 Kings xxiii. 10. Chap. xix. 5.
n Lev. xviii. 21. & xx. 2.
† Heb. Upon.
o Chap. xix. 6.
p Deut. xxviii. 26. Pſ. lxxix. 2. Chap. xvi. 4 & xxxii. 20.
q Iſa. xxiv. 7, 8. Chap. xvi. 9. & xxv. 10. & xxxiii. 11. Ezek. xxvi. 13. Hoſ. ii. 11. Rev. xviii. 23.

29. ¶ [k] Cut off thine hair, O Jeruſalem, and caſt it away, and take up a lamentation on high places; for the LORD hath rejected and forſaken the generation of his wrath. 30. For the children of Judah have done evil in my ſight, ſaith the LORD: [l] they have ſet their abominations in the houſe which is called by my name, to pollute it. 31. And they have built [m] the high places of Tophet, which is in the valley of the ſon of Hinnom, to burn their ſons and their daughters in the fire, [n] which I commanded them not, neither came it † into my heart. 32. ¶ Therefore behold, [o] the days come, ſaith the LORD, that it ſhall no more be called Tophet, nor the valley of the ſon of Hinnom, but the valley of ſlaughter: for they ſhall bury in Tophet, till there be no place. 33. And [p] the carcaſes of this people ſhall be meat for the fowls of the heaven, and for the beaſts of the earth, and none ſhall fray them away. 34. Then [q] will I cauſe to ceaſe from the cities of Judah, and from the ſtreets of Jeruſalem, the voice of mirth, and the voice of gladneſs, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride: for the land ſhall be deſolate.

v. 29—34. Jeruſalem, in the proſpect of her approaching deſolations, is called upon to cut off her hair, in token of deepeſt mourning, Job i. 20. and on the high places, the ſcene of her abominations, to lift up an exceeding bitter cry, as rejected of God, devoted to wrath, and given up into the hands of her cruel enemies.

1. Her ſin is exceeding ſinful. They have done evil in my ſight, ſaith the Lord; continued in a courſe of open and daring impiety: particularly their abominable idolatries provoked him, which to ſuch an enormous height they had carried, that in God's own houſe they had dared to ſet up their images, and rear their altars, as if they deſigned on purpoſe to defile that holy place; and their ſacrifices were as horrid and inhuman, as their deities were deteſtable. They built the high places of Tophet, where Moloch's hated image ſtood, and, deaf to the cries of nature, and the ſhrieks of murdered infants, there parents, loſt to every feeling of natural affection, burnt their children in the fire. It is ſaid, this was performed by heating the brazen idol red hot, and then the parent laid the child on his arms, whilſt the prieſts beat drums to drown the horrid ſhrieks and cries: ſacrifices which God never commanded, and ſuch as he never thought of enjoining his worſhippers. Note, When ſin hath hardened the heart, it is amazing to what a pitch of barbarity and inhumanity men may go.

2. The vengeance denounced for this is exceeding terrible. Tophet, the ſcene of theſe abominations, ſhall ſhortly change its name for the valley of ſlaughter, or of the ſlain; for there ſhall multitudes fall by the ſword, or be carried thither to be buried; multitudes ſo great, that graves ſhall be wanting for them, v. 32. and the unburied corpſes lie for meat to the fowls of heaven, and beaſts of the earth, and not a man be left to fray them away, v. 33. Deſerted now are the ſtreets of Jeruſalem; no voice of joy is heard; no congratulations of the bride or bridegroom; but either the ſound of mournful lamentations, or the land ſo deſolate, that none are left to weep, and more melancholy ſilence reigns. Note, God will ſoon change ſinful mirth into everlaſting mourning: we need rejoice with trembling.

CHAP. VIII.

The prophet proceeds in this chapter both to magnify and to juſtify the deſtruction that God was bringing upon this people. 1. He repreſents the judgments coming ſo very terrible, that death, though dreadful, ſhould be deſired, ver. 1—3. 2. He aggravates the ſtupidity and wilfulneſs of the people, as what brought this ruin upon them, ver. 4—12. 3. He deſcribes the great confuſion and conſternation that the whole land ſhould be in upon the alarm of it, ver. 13—17. 4. The prophet is himſelf deeply affected with it, ver. 18—22.

1. AT that time, ſaith the LORD, they [a] ſhall bring out the bones of the kings of Judah, and the bones of his princes, and the bones of the prieſts, and the bones of the prophets, and the bones of the inhabitants of Jeruſalem out of their graves. 2. And they ſhall ſpread them before the ſun, and the moon, and all the hoſt of heaven whom they have loved, and whom they have ſerved, and after whom they have walked, and whom they have ſought, and [b] whom they have worſhipped: they ſhall not be gathered, nor be buried, [c] they ſhall be for dung upon the face of the earth. 3. And [d] death ſhall be choſen rather than life, by all the reſidue of them that remain of this evil family, which remain in all the places whither I have driven them, ſaith the LORD of hoſts.

[a] 2 Kings xiii. 2.
[b] 2 Kings xxiii. 5. 2 Chron. xxxiii. 5.
[c] Chap. ix. 22. & xvi. 4.
[d] Rev. ix. 6.

v. 1—3. In the dreadful deſolations before deſcribed, the unburied corpſes lie expoſed; here theſe ſavage invaders ſuffer not the dead to enjoy quiet repoſe.

1. The graves and ſepulchres of Judah's kings and princes ſhall be opened, either thro' covetouſneſs to ſearch for treaſures; or to ſhow inſult even to their aſhes; or as a juſt judgment of God, who ſuffered the bones of the kings, prieſts, prophets, and people, who had ſo rebelled againſt him, to be expoſed with infamy before thoſe luminaries of heaven whom they had worſhipped, loved, ſerved, and ſought; they had walked in the moſt abominable idolatries, and ſet up theſe for their gods, as if their favour was to be deſired, and their bleſſing to be obtained: fooliſh and impious the ſervice! and now it appeared ſo, when they could not afford the leaſt help, nor ſo much as collect their ſcattered bones, ſpread for dung upon the face of the earth, v. 1, 2. Note, In the day of judgment the ſinner's loathſome carcaſe will be more ſhamefully expoſed, Iſa. lxvi. 24.

2. Death, the moſt dreaded of human evils, now ſhall be courted; not that it hath loſt ought of its horrors, but becauſe life is become intolerable; not from a hope of happineſs in the exchange, but from deſpair of reſt or eaſe below. The ſurvivors of this evil family, for to ſo ſmall a number will they be reduced, ſhall be ſo harraſſed and tormented in every place whither they are driven, that they ſhall look with envy on thoſe who have periſhed by famine and the ſword, and count their lot more eligible than their own, v. 3. Note, That caſe is terrible indeed, when life becomes a burden, and the ſinner is tempted to prefer ſtrangling and death.

4. ¶ Moreover, thou ſhalt ſay unto them, Thus ſaith the LORD, Shall they fall, and not ariſe? ſhall he turn away, and not return? 5. Why then is this people of Jeruſalem ſlidden back, [e] by a perpetual backſliding? [f] they hold faſt deceit, they refuſe to return. 6. I hearkned and heard, but they ſpake not aright: no man repented him of his wickedneſs, ſaying, What have I done? every one turned to his courſe, as the horſe ruſheth into the battle. 7. Yea, [g] the ſtork in the heaven knoweth her appointed times, and the turtle, and the crane, and the ſwallow obſerve the time of their coming, but my people [h] know not the judgment of the LORD. 8. How do ye ſay, We are wiſe, and [i] the law of the LORD is with us? Lo, certainly † in vain made he it, the pen of the ſcribes is in vain. 9. ‡ The wiſe men are aſhamed, they are diſmayed and taken; Lo, they have rejected the word of the LORD, and [k] what wiſdom is in them? 10. Therefore [l] will I give their wives unto others, [m] and their fields to them that ſhall inherit them: for [n] every one from the leaſt even unto the greateſt is given to covetouſneſs, from the prophet even unto the prieſt every one dealeth falſly. 11. For [o] they have healed the hurt of the daughter of my people ſlightly, ſaying, [p] Peace, peace, when there is no peace. 12. [q] Were they aſhamed when they had committed abomination? nay, they were not at all aſhamed, neither could they bluſh: therefore ſhall they fall among them that fall, in the time of their viſitation they ſhall be caſt down, ſaith the LORD.

[e] Chap. v. 3.
[f] Pſ. xxxvi. 3. Chap. ix. 6.
[g] Iſa. i. 3.
[h] Chap. v. 4. 5. Luke xix. 42.
[i] Rom. ii. 17.
† Or, the falſe pen of the ſcribes worketh for falſhood. Iſa. x. 1.
‡ Or, Have they been aſhamed, &c. Chap. vi. 15.
[k] Iſa. viii. 20.
[l] Deut. xxviii. 30. Chap. vi. 12.
[m] Am. v. 11. Zeph. i. 13.
[n] Iſa. lvi. 11. Chap. vi. 13.
[o] Chap. vi. 14.
[p] Ezek. xiii. 10.
[q] Chap. iii. 3. & vi. 15.

v. 4—12. Never was people ſo infatuated to their ruin.

1. They perſevered in their evil ways. In general, when a man falls, he ſeeks immediately to recover himſelf; and if he loſes his way, he is ſollicitous to return into the right path, v. 4. Why then is this people of Jeruſalem ſlidden back by a perpetual backſliding? and inſtead of any deſire to amend, they hold faſt deceit; obſtinate againſt every means of conviction, they refuſe to return. Note, (1.) They who backſlide from God, wander endleſsly and perpetually, unleſs his grace plucks them from ruin. (2.) Nothing is ſo great a deceit as ſin; it promiſes ſo much enjoyment, and ever produces ſo much miſery.

2. They diſappointed God's expectations from them. He patiently waited and hearkned, if ſo be they might at laſt be prevailed upon to change their note, and learn the language of penitence: but not one ſpake aright, nor repented of his wickedneſs, reflecting with ſhame upon his conduct: but juſt the very reverſe; they urged on their mad career in ſin with ſuch determined waywardneſs and fearleſſneſs, as the horſe ruſheth into the battle. Note, (1.) God is long-ſuffering to usward, not willing that any ſhould periſh, but that all ſhould come unto repentance. (2.) The firſt ſtep to real penitence is ſerious reflection upon the evil of our paſt ways, What have I done? (3.) The daring ſinner that mocks at the terrors of the Lord, as chimeras, and fearleſs ruſhes into the depths of iniquity, will find them fearful realities, and that half was not told him.

3. They were more ſtupid and irrational than the fowls of heaven, whilſt they made the higheſt pretenſions to wiſdom, v. 7—9. The birds of paſſage by inſtinct know the proper ſeaſon for their coming and going, and how to direct their flight; but my people know not the judgment of the Lord; neither how to improve the calls of mercy in God's word, nor the corrections of affliction, nor his viſitations on others; and yet they ſay, We are wiſe, and the law of the Lord is with us. How ſhameleſs their pretenſions! when their whole conduct appeared ſo contradictory. In vain had they the law, and the pen of the ſcribes to write out copies or comments upon it; their expoſitions were falſe, or at leaſt they paid no regard to them, if true. Their wiſe men themſelves are confounded at calamities they could neither foreſee nor avert: nor can it be wondered, when, lo! they have rejected the word of the Lord, ſent by his prophets; and what wiſdom is in them, when they reject the counſel of God, and refuſe to be inſtructed? Note, (1.) Many enjoy plenty of means, have Bibles and miniſters, and yet are never the wiſer for them. (2.) Whatever pretences to wiſdom they may make, who reject God's revealed word, they will be confounded in the day of judgment at their own egregious folly.

4. For their ſins they ſhall ſuffer. Their ſins are before charged on them, chap. vi. 13—15. Love of filthy lucre, moſt ſcandalous in thoſe who are to preach, and be examples to others of deadneſs to the world. Inſincerity; their profeſſions were falſe, and their doctrine diabolical, tending to lull the ſinner's ſoul into fatal ſecurity, inſtead of rouſing him to a ſenſe of his danger; and daring impudence, that knew not to bluſh, though convicted of their lies, and upbraided for their abominations. Therefore God's wrath is upon them; their wives ſhall be captives, and concubines to their enemies; their land poſſeſſed by aliens; and they in the time of viſitation, when God makes inquiſition for ſin, ſhall fall with them that fall, caſt down, and utterly conſumed. Note, (1.) Companions in ſin will fall together into the pit of deſtruction. (2.) They who have been inſtrumental to deceive others to their ruin, ſhall receive the greater damnation.

13. ¶ I will ſurely conſume them, ſaith the LORD; [r] there ſhall be no grapes on the vine, nor figs on the fig-tree, and the leaf ſhall fade, and the things that I have given them ſhall paſs away from them. 14. Why do we ſit ſtill? [s] aſſemble yourſelves, and let us enter into the defenced cities, and let us be ſilent there: for the LORD our God hath put us to ſilence, and [t] given us water of † gall to drink, becauſe we have ſinned againſt the LORD. 15. [u] We looked for peace, but no good came: and for a time of health, and behold trouble. 16. The ſnorting of his horſes was heard from Dan: the whole land trembled at the ſound of the neighing of his ſtrong ones, for they are come and have devoured the land, and ‡ all that is in it, the city, and thoſe that dwell therein. 17. For behold, I will ſend ſerpents, cockatrices among you, which will [y] not be charmed, and they ſhall bite you, ſaith the LORD. 18. ¶ When I would comfort myſelf againſt ſorrow, my heart is faint in me. 19. Behold, the voice of the cry of the daughter of my people, § becauſe of them that dwell in a far country: Is not the LORD in Zion? is not her king in her? why have [z] they provoked me to anger with their graven images, and with ſtrange vanities? 20. [a] The harveſt is paſt, the ſummer is ended, and we are not ſaved. 21. For the hurt of the daughter of my people am I hurt, I am black: aſtoniſhment hath taken hold on me. 22. [b] Is there no balm in Gilead? is there no phyſician there? ‖ why then is not the health of the daughter of my people recovered?

[r] Hoſ. ii. 9. Joel i. 7, 12. Luke xiii. 6, &c.
[s] Chap. iv. 5.
[t] Chap. ix. 15. & xxiii. 15.
† Or poiſon.
[u] Chap. xiv. 19.
[x] Chap. iv. 15.
‡ Heb. The fulneſs thereof.
[y] Pſ. lviii. 4, 5. Eccleſ. x. 11.
§ Or, becauſe of the country of them that are far off.
[z] Iſa. i. 4.
[a] Ver. 15.
[b] Chap. xlvi. 11. & li. 8.
‖ Heb. Why is not the cure or recovery of my people gone up?

v. 13—22. Wicked men are plagued for their offences.

1. God threatens utterly to conſume them with famine and the ſword. Blaſting and mildew ſhall ſtrip their vines and fig-trees bare, and leave not a leaf thereon: or their enemies would thus utterly conſume their fruits, and rob them of all the providential gifts God had ſo richly beſtowed on them in that land of plenty, v. 13. and the Chaldeans with a mortal ſting, as the fiery flying ſerpents in the wilderneſs, ſhall bite them with their invenomed fangs, and no charm be found to ſooth their rage, or ſtop their ravages, v. 17. Note, (1.) It is juſt in God to take from us the mercies we have abuſed. (2.) When the worm in hell begins to gnaw the ſinner's conſcience, it never can be charmed to reſt.

2. Their complaints and diſtreſs are very bitter. To ſit ſtill in the country muſt be their ruin, where famine waſted, and which would be firſt over-run by the invaders; therefore they reſolve to enter the defenced cities, and be ſilent there; either hoping for protection, or rather intimating, that it were uſeleſs to complain when they deſpaired of redreſs; becauſe their deſtruction was from God, who, in juſt puniſhment for their ſins, which they are compelled to own, though they perſiſted in them, had given them this gall of affliction to drink. And herein they ſeem rather to ſpeak the language of indignation againſt God for their ſufferings, than of humiliation for their ſins, v. 14. Their expectations of peace, with which the lying prophets had flattered them, and their own fooliſh hearts promiſed them, were now at an end. Nothing but trouble and terror was before them, v. 15. The very neighing of the numerous cavalry advancing from Dan made them tremble, whilſt they beheld the cities and country waſted, and the inhabitants captives or ſlain, v. 16. Note, (1.) Unhumbled ſinners in ſullen ſilence behold their ruin approach, without power to avoid it, and without a heart to deprecate the wrath they have provoked. (2.) When God ſends his terrors before him, the ſtrongeſt tremble for fear. (3.) They who continue in their ſins look for peace in vain; for there is no peace, ſaith my God, to the wicked.

3. All their confidence had failed. They buoyed themſelves up with vain hopes that God, as king in Zion, would, notwithſtanding all their provocations, not ſuffer the habitation of his holineſs to be deſtroyed: and they expoſtulate with him, as if he was faithleſs to his promiſes, or his power weakened; but God replies, to their confuſion, Why have they provoked me to anger with their graven images? Their deſtruction was their own ſeeking; they firſt rejected him for their God, before he forſook them as his people. Their expectations from their Egyptian allies were diſappointed alſo: they continued to hope they would come and force the Chaldeans to raiſe the ſiege, but the harveſt is paſt, when they expected them, in April and May; the ſummer is ended, in July; and winter now approached, without the leaſt proſpect of deliverance, and we are not ſaved; ſo that they ſunk into deſpair. Note, (1.) When the day of grace is over, nothing remains for the ſinner, but a fearful looking-for of judgment. (2.) They who apoſtatize from God, can have no reaſonable expectation of help and deliverance from him.

4. The prophet bewails the miſeries of his countrymen. When I would comfort myſelf againſt ſorrow, either by meditating on God's promiſes, or ſuggeſting to himſelf arguments for hope and patience, my heart is faint in me, overcome with the views of the impending calamities, v. 18. The cry of Zion's inhabitants rung doleful in his ears, groaning under the miſeries they endured from the ſiege, or in their hard captivity, v. 19. He felt his heart wounded through them, and was broken by the tender ſympathy of their ſufferings; black as mourners in deepeſt diſtreſs, and overwhelmed with aſtoniſhment at the miſeries he beheld, v. 21. Is there no balm in Gilead? is there no phyſician there? either intimating the incurableneſs of their diſeaſe, and the death-ſtroke given to the kingdom; or as upbraiding them with their ſtupidity and obſtinacy in refuſing to be healed by the rich mercies of God, and rejecting the prophets that he had ſent to them. Why then is not the health of my people recovered? It was not for want of balm, or a phyſician, but purely owing to their wilful oppoſition to all the means and methods God had taken for their recovery. Note, (1.) A good man, a faithful miniſter, cannot but tenderly feel and lament for the miſeries they ſee diſobedient ſinners pulling on their own heads. (2.) Sometimes even gracious ſouls find their anguiſh ſo great, that for a time they are dejected under it, and cannot take hold of the conſolations of God's word. (3.) There is balm in Gilead, a cure for every ſin-ſick ſoul; even the blood of Jeſus; and he is a phyſician, whoſe ſkill no ſpiritual diſeaſe, however inveterate, can baffle, and in his hands the moſt deſperate caſe never miſcarries.

CHAP. IX.

In this chapter the prophet goes on faithfully to reprove ſin, and to threaten God's judgments for it, and yet bitterly to lament both. He here, 1. expreſſeth his grief for the miſeries of Judah and Jeruſalem, and his deteſtation of their ſins, which brought thoſe miſeries upon them, ver. 1—11. 2. He juſtifies God in the greatneſs of their deſtruction, ver. 9, 12—16. 3. He calls upon others to bewail their woeful caſe, ver. 17—22. 4. He ſhews them the folly of truſting in their own ſtrength or wiſdom, or the privileges of their circumciſion, or any thing but God only, ver. 23—26.

1. [a] OH that my head were waters, and mine eyes a fountain of tears, that I might weep day and night for the ſlain of the daughter of my people! 2. Oh that I had in the wilderneſs a lodging-place of wayfaring men, that I might leave my people, and go from them: for [b] they be all adulterers, an aſſembly of treacherous men. 3. And [c] they bend their tongues like their bow for lies: but they are not valiant for the truth upon the earth; for [d] they proceed from evil to evil, and [e] they know not me, ſaith the LORD. 4. [f] Take ye heed every one of his † neighbour, and truſt ye not in any brother: for every brother will utterly ſupplant, and every neighbour will [g] walk with ſlanders. 5. And they will ‡ deceive every one his neighbour, and will not ſpeak the truth: they have taught their tongue to ſpeak lies, and weary themſelves to commit iniquity. 6. Thine habitation is in the midſt of deceit, through deceit they refuſe to know me, ſaith the LORD. 7. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, Behold, I will melt them, and try them; for [h] how ſhall I do for the daughter of my people? 8. [i] Their tongue is as an arrow ſhot out, it ſpeaketh [k] deceit: one ſpeaketh [l] peaceably to his neighbour with his mouth, but in heart he layeth § his wait. 9. ¶ [m] Shall I not viſit them for theſe things? ſaith the LORD: ſhall not my ſoul be avenged on ſuch a nation as this? 10. For the mountains will I take up a weeping and wailing, and for the ‖ habitations of the wilderneſs a lamentation, becauſe they are burnt up, ſo that none can paſs through them, neither can men hear the voice of the cattle, both [n] the fowl of the heavens and the beaſt are fled, they are gone. 11. And I will make Jeruſalem [o] heaps, and [p] a den of dragons, and I will make the cities of Judah † deſolate, without an inhabitant.

[a] Iſa. xxii. 4. Chap. iv. 19. & xiii. 17. & xiv. 17. Lam. iii. 48.
[b] Chap. v. 7, 8.
[c] Pſ. lxiv. 3. Iſa. lix. 4, 13, 15.
[d] 2 Tim. iii. 13.
[e] Hoſ. iv. 3.
[f] Chap. xii. 6. Mic. vii. 5, 6.
† Or friend.
[g] Chap. vi. 28.
‡ Or mock, or beguile.
[h] Hoſ. xi. 8.
[i] Pſ. lxiv. 3. Prov. xxx. 14.
[k] Pſ. xii. 2. & cxx. 3.
[l] Pſ. xxviii. 3. & lv. 21.
§ Or wait for him.
[m] Chap. v. 9, 29.
‖ Or paſtures.
[n] Chap. iv. 25. & xii. 4. Hoſ. iv. 3.
[o] Iſa. xxv. 2.
[p] Chap. x. 22.
† Heb. Deſolation.

Before Chriſt 600.

v. 1—11. With bitter grief the prophet beheld the ſins of his people, and the ruin they provoked.

1. He wiſhes that his head were waters, and his eyes a fountain of tears, that ſtreams inceſſant might run down his cheeks for the miſeries he foreſaw, v. 1. Weary of dwelling amidſt ſo polluted a people, and that he might give full vent to his ſorrows, or be removed from the dreadful ſpectacle before him, he wiſhes for ſome deſart lonely cave; preferring the company of the ſavages of the wood, to ſo wicked a nation; and ſafer amidſt the lions of the foreſt, than his own treacherous and cruel countrymen. Note, (1.) A good man muſt be a patriot, and cannot unmoved behold the ruin of his country. (2.) In this vale of miſery we may expect to have many a cauſe for weeping over our own ſins, as well as others. They who ſuffer nothing to interrupt their carnal joy, may never hope to receive the bleſſedneſs promiſed to thoſe that mourn. (3.) It is a dreadful ſymptom of the wickedneſs, and a ſign of the approaching ruin of a people, when the ſouls of God's prophets, like Lot, are vexed with their abomination, and weary of dwelling in the midſt of them.

2. The cauſe of theſe complaints is,

[1.] The ſins of his people. They were all adulterers, corporally and ſpiritually; an aſſembly of treacherous men, apoſtates from God and his worſhip, v. 2. and falſe and faithleſs one to another; bending their tongues like their bow for lies; deſtitute of all zeal for truth, yea, rather oppoſing it with all their power; proceeding from evil to worſe, inſtead of repenting and reforming; ignorant of God, and deſiring to remain ſo, v. 3. Not a neighbour, no, not a brother could be truſted, ſo ſelfiſh and perfidious were they grown, v. 4. Lies were become familiar to their tongue, and ſlander the conſtant topic of their converſation, and no truth was to be expected from them. They ſtuck at no pains to compaſs their ends; they weary themſelves to commit iniquity, ſo eagerly were they bent on it, v. 5. In the midſt of ſuch a people the prophet dwelt, and therefore need be on his guard againſt them; nor marvel if they acted deceitfully with him, when they acted hypocritically towards God, as the latter clauſe of v. 6. may be interpreted. Through the deluſions of their falſe prophets they refuſed to receive the knowledge of God: no arrow was ſharper than their bitter and lying words: and, whilſt the guiſe of friendſhip and peace ſeemed to breathe in all their diſcourſe, miſchief was in their hearts, and they lay in wait to make a prey of thoſe they had deluded. Note, (1.) Lewdneſs and lying are among the moſt deadly and prevailing iniquities. (2.) To be ſilent, and refuſe to eſpouſe the ſuffering cauſe of God and truth, is highly criminal. (3.) They who have accuſtomed themſelves to a habit of lying, will not ſpeak truth, even when they have no purpoſe or deſign to ſerve, but lye for lying ſake. (4.) The ſervice of ſin is uſually a weariſome taſk; and yet ſo enſlaved are ſinners to the love of it, that though the pain exceeds the pleaſure, they purſue it yet again, and take more pains to go to hell, than was required to carry them to heaven. (5.) There is no ſtopping in the way of wickedneſs; every ſin indulged opens a way for a greater. (6.) In a wicked and deceitful world we need be ever on our guard.

[2.] The ſufferings of his people. They ſhall be put in the hotteſt furnace of affliction, to melt and try them, ſince all other methods have proved ineffectual, v. 7. The ſword ſhall be bathed in blood, v. 1. the country waſted, the villages burnt, the lowing herds and bleating ſheep no more be heard on the mountains, plundered and carried off by the Chaldean army; nor a living creature ſeen paſſing through the deſolate land; even the wild beaſts and the fowls of heaven ſhall deſert it, unable to find food for their hunger, v. 10. except the dragons, who take up their abode in the ruined palaces of Jeruſalem; and ſo utter will be the overthrow, that not an inhabitant ſhall remain in all the cities of Judah, v. 11. Thus will God viſit for their iniquities, and his ſoul be avenged on ſuch a people as this, v. 9. Note, (1.) In the ſevereſt of the afflictions God lays upon any land, he intends to make the ſame fire which conſumes the wicked, a means of purifying the remnant of his choſen, and ſeparating them as ſilver from the droſs. (2.) The Iniquities of the people have often turned a fruitful land into barrenneſs. (3.) The prophet who beholds theſe deſolations cannot withhold the tear of pity; yea, his eyes are fountains to bewail them: and when we look round upon the world that lieth in wickedneſs, and ſee that great day of the perdition of ungodly men approach, need we not be more affected at a ſight ſo unſpeakably more terrible?

[q] Pſ. cvii. 43. Hoſ. xiv. 3.
[r] Chap. vii. 24.
† Heb. Stubbornneſs.
[s] 1 Pet. i. 18.

12. ¶ [q] Who is the wiſe man that may underſtand this, and who is he to whom the mouth of the LORD hath ſpoken, that he may declare it, for what the land periſheth, and is burnt up like a wilderneſs that none paſſeth through? 13. And the LORD ſaith, Becauſe they have forſaken my law which I ſet before them, and have not obeyed my voice, neither walked therein; 14. [r] But have walked after the † imagination of their own heart, and after Baalim, [s] which their fathers taught them: 15. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, Behold, I will feed them, even this people, [t] with wormwood, and give them water of gall to drink. 16. [u] I will ſcatter them alſo among the heathen, whom neither they nor their fathers have known: and I will ſend a ſword after them, till I have conſumed them. 17. ¶ Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, Conſider ye, and [x] call for the mourning-women, that they may come, and ſend for cunning women, that they may come. 18. And let them make haſte, and take up a wailing for us, [y] that our eyes may run down with tears, and our eye-lids guſh out with waters. 19. For a voice of wailing is heard out of Zion, How are we ſpoiled! we are greatly confounded, becauſe [z] we have forſaken the land, becauſe [a] our dwellings have caſt us out. 20. Yet hear the word of the LORD, O ye women, and let your ear receive the word of his mouth, and teach your daughters wailing, and every one her neighbour lamentation. 21. For death is come up into our windows, and is entred into our palaces, to [b] cut off the children from without, and the young men from the ſtreets. 22. Speak, Thus ſaith the LORD, Even [c] the carcaſes of men ſhall fall as dung upon the open field, and as the handful after the harveſt-man, and none ſhall gather them.

Before Chriſt 600.

[t] Chap. viii. 14. & xxiii. 15. Lam. iii. 15, 19.
[u] Lev. xxvi. 33. Deut. xxviii. 64. Chap. xv. 4.
[x] 2 Chron. xxxv. 25. Job iii. 8. Eccleſ. xii. 5. Ex. v. 16.
[y] Ver. 1. Chap. xiv. 17.
[z] Iſa. vi. 12.
[a] Lev. xviii. 28. & xx. 22.
[b] Chap. vi. 11. Ezek. ix. 5, 6.
[c] Chap. viii. 2.

v. 12—22. If the people periſh, it is not for want of awful and repeated warnings.

1. A ſummons is given to the wiſe men among them to underſtand and declare the cauſe of theſe calamities, v. 12. but as no ſuch are found, the prophet himſelf is commiſſioned to proclaim both the reaſon of God's judgments and the terribleneſs of the vengeance he is about to execute. Their ſin is apoſtacy from the worſhip and ſervice of God commanded in the law, and diſobedience againſt all the warnings and notices he had ſent unto them, v. 13. in direct oppoſition to which, they followed the imaginations of their own wicked hearts, and ſerved Baalim, a multitude of falſe gods, plunging into idolatry after their fathers example, and filling up the meaſure of their iniquities, v. 14. Moſt righteous therefore, and juſt as fearful, are God's judgments upon them. They ſhall be fed with bread of wormwood, and water of gall, the bittereſt afflictions, v. 15. The ſword and the famine ſhall devour them, and their carcaſes lie unburied on the plain as dung, or as a handful dropped after the harveſt-man, which is not regarded or gathered up, v. 22. and if a few eſcape the general maſſacre, they ſhall be ſcattered in heathen lands, which their fathers never knew, and even there ſhall find no reſt, the ſword of vengeance ſtill purſuing them till they are conſumed, v. 16. Note, (1.) Every ſtep of departure from God tends only to miſery. (2.) Wherever the ſinner flies, or is driven, the curſe of God follows him cloſer than his ſhadow.

2. A ſummons is ſent to the mourning women. It was cuſtomary among the Jews, as well as other nations, to hire ſuch on the deceaſe of their relations, who, by their cries, their doleful plaints, and melancholy ditties, awakened afreſh the ſorrows of the ſurvivors. There would now be abundant occaſion for them, when the multitude of deaths by famine and the ſword ſhould fill every houſe with lamentation, v. 17, 18. and cauſe not merely fictitious, but real anguiſh, when out of Zion the voice of wailing is heard, How are we ſpoiled! we are greatly confounded, at ſeeing their city ſtormed and taken, themſelves captives, driven from their dwellings, and forced from their own, are led into a ſtrange land, v. 19. Under ſuch a dire calamity God calls on them, as moſt befitting their circumſtances, to weep and wail. The word is addreſſed to the women, whoſe huſbands probably had fallen in the ſiege; and the men being chiefly ſlain, none but they remained to lament the deſolations. They are enjoined to teach their daughters wailing, and every one her neighbour lamentation. So univerſal would be the miſery, that none would be exempted from feeling it, and therefore all are called to bewail it. For death is come up into our windows, like an enemy that ſcales the walls, though the gates are ſhut; and is entered into our palaces: the king on the throne, as well as the beggar on the dunghill, is expoſed to the famine and the ſword; and even the children in the ſtreets are murdered; and the young men, unable to make reſiſtance, are ſlain by their cruel enemies, who have ſtormed the city, v. 21. Note, (1.) This is a vale of tears, where death continually ſpreads his ravages, and wakens up our ſorrows. (2.) No palaces can keep out this invader: kings and princes are dying worms. (3.) To grieve for the dead is natural, humane, pious; only let us not be ſwallowed up with immoderate ſorrow. (4.) Many lament their loſſes and croſſes bitterly, who never lament their ſins, which are the occaſion of them; and this is the ſorrow of the world that worketh death.

Before Christ 600.

23. ¶ Thus ſaith the LORD, [d] Let not the wiſe man glory in his wiſdom, neither let the mighty man glory in his might; let not the rich man glory in his riches. 24. [e] But let him that glorieth, glory in this, that he underſtandeth and knoweth me, that I am the LORD [f] which exerciſe loving-kindneſs, judgment and righteouſneſs in the earth: for [g] in theſe things I delight, ſaith the LORD. 25. ¶ Behold, the days come, ſaith the LORD, that [h] I will puniſh all them which are circumciſed with the uncircumciſed; 26. Egypt, and Judah, and Edom, and the children of Ammon, and Moab, and all that are † in [i] the utmoſt corners, that dwell in the wilderneſs: for all theſe nations are uncircumciſed, and all the houſe of Iſrael are [k] uncircumciſed in the heart.

[d] Eccleſ. ix. 11.
[e] 1 Cor. i. 31. 2 Cor. x. 17.
[f] Pſ. xxv. 10.
[g] Mic. vii. 18.
[h] Rom. ii. 8—12.
† Heb. Cut off into corners, or having the corners of their hair polled.
[i] Chap. xxv. 23. & xlix. 32.
[k] Lev. xxvi. 41. Rom. ii. 28, 29.

v. 23—26. Having foretold their impending calamities, the prophet concludes with a warning to them, not to have recourſe to thoſe vain confidences, which would prove a refuge of lies; but to take that only method which remained of preventing their ruin, returning to the knowledge of God, and obedience to his will.

1. He warns them againſt depending on their own wiſdom, power, and wealth, to protect them, and directs them to the only ſure refuge. Let not the wiſe man glory in his wiſdom; as if by his politics he could avert the ſtorm: neither let the mighty man glory in his might, which would afford no ſafety when fighting againſt God. Let not the rich man glory in his riches; as if theſe could bribe the invaders, or hire auxiliaries to defend them; for vain would theſe things prove. If therefore any man would have ſolid grounds for glorying, it muſt be in this, that he underſtandeth and knoweth me, the only object in whom a ſinner can glory; that I am, the Lord, the only hope, help, and Saviour of the guilty; which exerciſe loving-kindneſs, judgment, and righteouſneſs in the earth; ſhewing mercy to the miſerable, pardoning the ſinful, ſtrengthening the weak, juſt in all his providences, and righteous in all his ways; for in theſe things I delight, ſaith the Lord. Note, (1.) Worldly ſupports are often a dangerous ſnare. Wiſdom, ſtrength, and riches are apt to ſwell the heart with pride and ſelf-importance, and then they prove our ruin. (2.) Chriſt is our only glory. In ourſelves we have nothing but what we need be aſhamed of, and renounce; in him there is all fulneſs. (3.) What is God's delight, ſhould be ours; and to be partakers of his compaſſions, to walk in his judgments, and be found in the practice of righteouſneſs and true holineſs, will be infinitely more profitable than the higheſt attainment of worldly wiſdom, or the greateſt poſſeſſions of worldly wealth.

2. He warns them againſt truſting on their peculiar privileges; as promiſing themſelves, becauſe of the covenant of circumciſion, that they ſhould be preſerved from evil; for this would ſtand them in no ſtead whilſt their hearts were uncircumciſed, and they continued devoted to the ſervice not of the Lord, but of their luſts; therefore they would ſhare with Egypt, and Edom, and the neighbouring uncircumciſed nations, in their puniſhment, and find no diſtinction in the day when God aroſe to judgment Note, Our partaking of the outward privileges and ſeals of the covenant will ſtand us in no ſtead, if we are deſtitute of the inward and ſpiritual grace; yea, will rather aggravate our guilt. The baptized, unconverted, and unhumbled ſinner will meet even a heavier doom than the unbaptized heathen.

CHAP. X.

We have here, 1. A caution given the Jews not to learn the way of the heathen, ver. 1, 2. Particularly their aſtrology and idolatry, which are both fooliſh things, ver 3—5. and the worſhippers of idols brutiſh, ver. 8, 9. as will appear in the day of their viſitation, ver. 14, 15. 2. They are exhorted to adhere firmly to the God of Iſrael, for there is none like him, ver. 6, 7. He is the true God, lives for ever, and governs the world, ver. 10—13. And his people are happy in him, ver. 16. 3. They are bid to expect diſtreſs, ver. 17, 18. And that by a foreign enemy, which God would bring upon them for their ſin, ver. 20—22. 4. This calamity the prophet laments, ver. 19. and prays for the mitigation of it, ver. 23—25.

1. HEAR ye the word which the LORD ſpeaketh unto you, O houſe of Iſrael. 2. Thus ſaith the LORD, [a] Learn not the way of the heathen, and be not diſmayed [b] at the ſigns of heaven, for the heathen are diſmayed at them. 3. For the † cuſtoms of the people are vain: for [c] one cutteth a tree out of the foreſt (the work of the hands of the workman) with the axe. 4. They deck it with ſilver and with gold, they faſten it with nails and with hammers, that it move not. 5. They are upright as the palm-tree, [d] but ſpeak not: they muſt needs [e] be borne, becauſe they cannot go: be not afraid of them, for [f] they cannot do evil, neither alſo is it in them to do good. 6. Foraſmuch as [g] there is none like unto thee, O LORD, thou art great, and thy name is great in might. 7. [h] Who would not fear thee, O King of nations? for ‡ to thee doth it appertain: foraſmuch as among all the wiſe men of the nations, and in all their kingdoms there is none like unto thee. 8. But they are § altogether [i] brutiſh and fooliſh: the ſtock is a doctrine of vanities 9. Silver ſpread into plates is brought from Tarſhiſh, and [k] gold from Uphaz, the work of the workman, and of the hands of the founder: blue and purple is their clothing: they are all the work of cunning men. 10. But the LORD is ‖ the true God, he is the living God, and † an [l] everlaſting king: at his wrath the earth ſhall tremble, and the nations ſhall not abide his indignation. 11. ‡ Thus ſhall ye ſay unto them, [m] The gods that have not made the heavens and the earth, even [n] they ſhall periſh from the earth, and from under theſe heavens. 12. [o] He hath made the earth by his power, he hath eſtabliſhed the world by his wiſdom, and [p] hath ſtretched out the heavens by his diſcretion. 13. When [q] he uttereth his voice there is § a multitude of waters in the heavens, and [r] he cauſeth the vapours to aſcend from the ends of the earth: he maketh lightnings with rain, and bringeth forth the wind out of his treaſures. 14. Every man is [s] brutiſh in his knowledge: [t] every founder is confounded by the graven image: for his molten image is falſhood, and there is no breath in them. 15. They are vanity, and the work of errors: in the time of their viſitation they ſhall periſh. 16. [u] The portion of Jacob is not like them: for he is the former of all things, and [x] Iſrael is the rod of his inheritance; the LORD of hoſts is his name.

[a] Lev. xviii. 3. & xx. 23.
[b] Iſa. xlvii, 12, 13.
† Heb. Statutes, or ordinances.
[c] Iſa. xl. 19. & xliv. 11, &c.

Before Christ 600.

[d] Pſ. cxv. 5. & cxxxv. 16.
[e] Iſa. xlvi. 1, 7.
[f] Iſa. xli. 23.
[g] Ex. xv. 11. Pſ. lxxxvi. 8, 10. & lxxxix. 8.
[h] Rev. xv. 4.
‡ Or, it liketh thee.
§ Heb. In one, or at once.
[i] Pſ. cxv. 8. Iſa. xli. 29. Hab. ii. 18. Zech. x. 2. Rom. i. 21, 22.
[k] Dan. x. 5.
‖ Heb. The God of truth. Pſ. xxxi. 5.
† Heb. A king of eternity.
[l] Pſal. x. 16. Iſa. ix. 6. 1 Tim. vi. 16.
‡ In the Chaldee language.
[m] Pſ. xcvi. 5.
[n] Zeph. ii. 11.
[o] Gen. i. 1, 6. Pſ. cxxxvi. 5, 6. Chap. li. 15, &c.
[p] Job ix. 8. Pſ. civ. 2. Iſa. xl. 22.
[q] Job xxxvii. 2—5. Pſ. xviii. 13. & lxviii. 33.
§ Or noiſe, as 1 Kings xviii. 41.
[r] Pſ. cxxxv. 7.
[s] Ver. 8. Chap. li. 17, 18.
[t] Iſa. xlii. 17. & xliv. 11. & xlv. 16.
[u] Chap. li. 19. Lam. iii. 24.
[x] Pſ. lxxiv. 2.

v. 1—16. As they were ſhortly to be carried captives to Babylon, a place moſt remarkably given to idolatry, ſuperſtition, and judicial aſtrology, need there was to guard them againſt the temptations to which they would be there expoſed.

1. They muſt not learn their ways, nor follow their works. From the aſpect of the heavens, from eclipſes, and the conjunction of the planets, the aſtrologers pretended to foretel the fate of kingdoms, and the deſtiny of men; and their predictions, heard with ſuperſtitious awe, terrified the heathen: but they muſt ſhew no regard to theſe prognoſtications, and much leſs pay divine honours to the ſun, moon, and ſtars, as theſe men did, v. 2. Nor muſt they join in their idolatry, and the vain cuſtoms or ceremonies of religion which they uſed. A ſenſeleſs log is the object of their adoration, cut from the wood, and ſquared by the carpenter, v. 3. and however decked with gold and ſilver, and adorned with coſtlieſt robes of blue and purple, v. 9. yet is unable to ſtand without being nailed and faſtened, or to move without being carried. It can neither hear the prayer of its votaries, or ſpeak a word in anſwer to their requeſts. Such a doctrine of vanities is the ſtock, v. 8. a work of errors and falſhood, that muſt deceive and diſappoint thoſe who are ſo infatuated as to expect ought from it: unable alike to do good or evil, and therefore in no wiſe to be made the object either of fear or hope, v. 5. Brutiſh altogether and fooliſh are the worſhippers, v. 8. and equally brutiſh the maker in his knowledge, who vainly conceits the work of his hands can be poſſeſſed of divinity, v. 14. Every founder is confounded, who, after all his pains to make his god, can receive no benefit from him: for how ſhould they convey life, or any of the bleſſings of it, to others, who have no breath in them, inanimate themſelves? v. 14. yea, ſo far from helping others, that they are unable to help themſelves, and in the day of viſitation, theſe gods, who have made neither the heaven nor the earth, ſhall periſh, with their ſenſeleſs devotees, v. 11.

2. The prophet directs them to the only proper object of their worſhip, fear, and love; and that is the glorious Jehovah, the only living and true God.

[1.] There is none like unto him. He is without a rival, and above all compariſon: none can either beſtow ſuch mercies, or inflict ſuch miſeries as he. O Lord, thou art great, tranſcendently great and glorious in his adorable perfections, and all his works of creation, providence, and grace; and thy name is great, exalted far above all bleſſing and praiſe. Who would not fear thee, O King of nations? whoſe kingdom ruleth over all, the work of whoſe hands the whole creation is, and therefore by right ſhould be univerſally feared and worſhipped: for to thee doth it appertain, and to thee alone: to place that fear, and offer that worſhip elſewhere, argues both deep impiety, and ſenſeleſs ſtupidity. For none in wiſdom, none in power, among among earth's mightieſt ſons with him can be compared, v. 7. Note, (1.) God's eternal power and deity by the works of creation are ſo declared to all the world, as to leave idolaters without excuſe. (2.) The more we contemplate the unſearchable greatneſs and glory of our God, the more we ſhall be filled with reverence and godly fear, and loſt in wonder and adoration.

Before Chriſt 600.

[2.] He is the only true God, and all pretenders to deity beſides are falſe and counterfeit. He is the living God, or Gods, the trinity in unity, having life in and of himſelf, whilſt all creatures receive theirs from him, and idols are dead and inanimate. He is an everlaſting king, ſubſiſting from all eternity, ruling over all, and of his dominion there is no end, whilſt theſe are all the creatures of yeſterday, and hourly running to decay. Note, If God be our king, it behoves us to ſee that we approve ourſelves faithful ſubjects, dependent on his protection, devoted to his ſervice.

[3.] He is the Creator, Governor, and Judge of all. He hath made the earth by his power, ſuſpended in the vaſt expanſe, and yet ſo firm that it cannot be moved from the place where God hath appointed it to perform its revolutions; and in the beautiful diſpoſition of all things in it his infinite wiſdom as well as power appears; and hath ſtretched out the heavens by his diſcretion, as a canopy over us, decked with thoſe bright luminaries that peculiarly diſplay his glory. At his will, the whole machine is governed; he ſpeaks, the heavens lour, the vapours riſe, the lightnings flaſh, the thunders roll, the rain deſcends, the tempeſts roar, and all under his controul, v. 13. When he cometh forth in judgment, at his wrath the earth ſhall tremble, afraid to meet the judge upon his throne, and the nations ſhall not be able to abide his indignation; if his wrath be kindled, yea, but a little, it will burn to the nethermoſt hell. Moſt juſtly therefore doth he claim, and we are bound to pay our worſhip, adoration, and ſervice to him, and him alone.

[4.] He is the portion of Jacob, and therefore they are under peculiar obligations to adore and ſerve him. He has choſen and redeemed them; ſhowered upon them his bleſſings on every ſide, and will be for ever their exceeding great reward: he is the former of all things, and not like idol vanities, and Iſrael is the rod of his inheritance, ſeparated for his peculiar people; the Lord of hoſts is his name, his diſtinguiſhed title, foraſmuch as he doth whatſoever pleaſeth him in the hoſts of heaven, as well as among the inhabitants of the earth. Note, (1.) They who have God for their portion, cannot wiſh for more, for he is able to do for them exceeding abundantly above all they can aſk or think. (2.) God's Iſrael are his inheritance; for they who chuſe him for their God, in them he delights as his people, and his love and favour are better than the life itſelf.

17. ¶ [y] Gather up thy wares out of the land, O † inhabitant of the fortreſs. 18. For thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, I will [z] fling out the inhabitants of the land at this once, and will diſtreſs them, that they may find it ſo. 19. ¶ Wo is me for my ‡ hurt, my wound is grievous: but I ſaid, Truly this is a grief, [a] and I muſt bear it. 20. [b] My tabernacle is ſpoiled, and all my cords are broken: my children are gone forth of me, and they are not: there is none to ſtretch forth my tent any more, and to ſet up my curtains. 21. For [c] the paſtors are become brutiſh, and have not ſought the LORD: therefore they ſhall not proſper, and all their flocks ſhall be ſcattered. 22. Behold, the noiſe of the bruit is come, and a great commotion [d] out of the north-country, to make the cities of Judah deſolate, and [e] a den of dragons. 23. ¶ O LORD, I know that [f] the way of man is not in himſelf: it is not in man that walk-eth to direct his ſteps. 24. O LORD, [g] correct me, but with judgment; [h] not in thine anger, leſt thou ‖ bring me to nothing. 25. [i] Pour out thy fury upon the heathen that know thee not, and upon the families that call not on thy name: for they have eaten up Jacob, [k] and devoured him, and conſumed him, and have made his habitation deſolate.

[y] Chap. vi. 1. Ezek. xii. 3.
† Heb. Inhabitreſs.
[z] Chap. xxi. 13. 1 Sam. xxv. 29. Chap. xvi. 13.
‡ Heb. Breach.
[a] Pſ. xxxix. 9. Mic. vii. 9.
[b] Chap. iv. 20.
[c] Iſa. lvi. 10.
[d] Chap. i. 15. & iv. 6. & v. 15. & vi. 22.
[e] Chap. ix. 11.
[f] Prov. xvi. 9. & xx. 24.
[g] Pſ. vi. 1. & xxxviii. 1. Chap. xxx. 11.
[h] Iſa. lvii. 16.
‖ Heb. Diminiſh me.
[i] Pſ. lxxix. 6.
[k] Chap. viii. 16.

v. 17—25. We have here,

1. The threatned ruin of Judah and Jeruſalem. To ſecure their goods from the Chaldean army, the Jews are here repreſented as gathering them together, and conveying them to the fortreſs of Zion, but they will find it no place of ſafety. As a ſtone out of a fling, ſo eaſily, ſo violently ſhould they be caſt out of their land and city, and ſink into the depths of diſtreſs, that they may find it ſo, as the prophets have ſpoken, to whoſe word they refuſed to attend. Note, They who have mocked at hell and damnation, as bugbears deſigned to awe the minds of the ſuperſtitious, will, to their coſt, find it ſo, that theſe are dreadful realities.

2. A mournful lamentation is made over their calamities: which ſome regard as the language of Zion bemoaning herſelf, but rather ſeems to be the words of the prophet affected at the view of their miſeries, and ſympathizing with them. Wo is me, for my hurt, or my breach, when the walls of Jeruſalem were battered down, the Chaldeans entered, and terribly maſſacred the inhabitants; but I ſaid, This is a grief, and I muſt bear it; it was bitter indeed, but he deſired to ſubmit with patience: my tabernacle is ſpoiled, both the city and temple, and all my cords are broken, ſo that the ruin is irreparable. My children are gone forth of me into captivity, and none left to repair the deſolation, v. 20. And no marvel their affairs are ſo deſperate, when the paſtors are become brutiſh; the rulers in church and ſtate, inſtead of attempting to prevent, haſtened their ruin by their ſin and folly; they have not ſought the Lord in any of their diſtreſſes, but left him far above out of their ſight, therefore they ſhall not proſper, no attempts to ſecure themſelves ſhall ſucceed, and all their flocks ſhall be ſcattered; their enemies ſhall prevail, and that ſuddenly, Behold, the noiſe of the bruit is come, intelligence of the Chaldean army advancing; a great commotion out of the north country, from Babylon, to make the cities of Judah deſolate, and a den of dragons; a righteous retaliation upon thoſe who made them a den of thieves. Note, (1.) In our afflictions God permits us to complain, but he forbids us to murmur. (2.) When the paſtors are brutiſh, no marvel the people are blind. (3.) They who live without prayer, and ſeek not to God for counſel and help, muſt needs err from the right way, and periſh in their ſins.

Before Chriſt 608.

3. Though the people have no ears to hear his preaching, God hath an ear to hear his prayer, and therefore to him the prophet looks up.

(1.) He acknowledges God's over-ruling providence and guidance, in all the affairs of men. O Lord, I know that the way of man is not in himſelf: it is not in man that walketh to direct his ſteps; a ſuperior power controuls his thoughts and deſigns, and an unſeen hand guides his ſteps, as was the caſe of Nebuchadnezzar in this invaſion, and more generally may be applied to all mankind. Whatever ſchemes we form, the event is not in our own power: when we mean only to purſue our own purpoſes, God leads us inſenſibly to fulfil his deſigns; therefore amidſt all our contrivances we muſt entirely refer ourſelves to him for the ſucceſs, conſcious that we have no power of ourſelves to help ourſelves. The Lord muſt dictate, guide, ſupport, and proſper us, and then we ſhall walk aright.

(2.) In the name of the people, he entreats the removal or alleviation of their heavy judgments. O Lord, correct me, for that they muſt expect, and acknowledge it to be their juſt deſert, but with judgment, in meaſure; not in thine anger, as the wrath of an enemy, but in love, as the chaſtiſement of a father, leaſt thou bring me to nothing; for if his wrath be kindled, yea, but a little, who may abide it? Note, (1.) Correction from God is kindneſs, and this rod, however grievous for the time to the fleſh, we may not wiſh to have removed till it hath done its work. (2.) God's afflictions on his people are deſigned not to bring them to nothing, but to bring them to himſelf and to glory.

(3.) He beſeeches God to remember their oppreſſors, and to recompence them according to the work of their hands. Pour out thy fury upon the heathen that know thee not; God's own people are corrected in mercy, his enemies are to be deſtroyed in wrath; and upon the families that call not upon the name of the Lord, the nations of the ungodly, who neither know nor worſhip the true God; for they have eaten up Jacob, and devoured him, and conſumed him, and have made his habitation deſolate, which though God hath permitted as their juſt puniſhment, doth not at all leſſen the guilt and malice of their perſecutors. Note, (1.) Families who live without prayer, are to be accounted heathens. (2.) Ignorance of God is the inlet to all ſin. (3.) When God hath corrected his people, he often turns the rod, and leaves on the inſtruments he employs the ſevereſt marks of his indignation.

CHAP. XI.

In this chapter, 1. God, by the prophet, puts the people in mind of the covenant made with their fathers, and the condition of it, that they ſhould be obedient to him, ver. 1—7. 2. He charges them with obſtinately refuſing to obey him, ver. 8—10. 3. He threatens them with utter ruin for their diſobedience, eſpecially for their idolatry, ver. 11, 13. their idols ſhall not ſave them, ver. 12. nor their prophets pray for them, ver. 14. and juſtifies his proceedings herein, they having brought all this miſchief upon themſelves by their own wilfulneſs, ver. 15—17. 4. A conſpiracy is formed againſt Jeremiah by the men of Anathoth, which God diſcovers to him, ver. 18, 19. His prayer againſt them, ver. 20. and a prediction of God's judgments upon them for it, ver. 21—23.

1. THE word that came to Jeremiah from the 608.
LORD, ſaying, 2. Hear ye the words of this covenant, and ſpeak unto the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jeruſalem, 3. And ſay thou unto

Before Christ 608.

[a] Deut. xxvii. 26. Gal. iii. 10.
[b] Chap. vii. 23.
[c] Deut. iv. 20. 1 Kings viii. 51.
[d] Lev. xxvi. 3, 12.
[e] Deut. vii. 12.
[f] Exod. iii. 8, 17. Lev. xx. 24. Deut. vi. 3. & xi. 9.
† Heb. Amen. Deut. xxvii. 26.
[g] Pſ. xv. 5.
[h] Chap. vii. 13, 25.
[i] Chap. vii. 26.
[k] Chap. iii. 17. & vii. 24. & ix. 14.
‡ Or ſtubbornneſs.
[l] Ezek. xxii. 25.

them, Thus ſaith the LORD God of Iſrael, [a] Curſed be the man that obeyeth not the words of this covenant, 4. [b] Which I commanded your fathers in the day that I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, [c] from the iron furnace, ſaying, [d] Obey my voice, and do them, according to all which I command you: ſo ſhall ye be my people, and I will be your God: 5. That I may perform [e] the oath which I have ſworn unto your fathers, [f] to give them a land flowing with milk and honey, as it is this day. Then anſwered I, and ſaid, † So be it, O LORD. 6. Then the LORD ſaid unto me, Proclaim all theſe words in the cities of Judah, and in the ſtreets of Jeruſalem, ſaying, Hear ye the words of this covenant, [g] and do them. 7. For I earneſtly proteſted unto your fathers, in the day that I brought them up out of the land of Egypt, even unto this day, [h] riſing early and proteſting, ſaying, Obey my voice. 8. [i] Yet they obeyed not, nor inclined their ear, but [k] walked every one in the ‡ imagination of their evil heart: therefore I will bring upon them all the words of this covenant, which I commanded them to do, but they did them not. 9. And the LORD ſaid unto me, [l] A conſpiracy is found among the men of Judah, and among the inhabitants of Jeruſalem. 10. They are turned back to the iniquities of their forefathers, which refuſed to hear my words; and they went after other gods to ſerve them: the houſe of Iſrael and the houſe of Judah have broken my covenant which I made with their fathers.

v. 1—10. A new prophecy ſeems to begin at this chapter. Jeremiah is ſent of God again to this rebellious houſe of Judah.

1. To remind them of the tenor of that covenant, by which they held the land of promiſe. The great condition of which was their obedience, v. 4. and this God earneſtly preſſed upon them as the one thing needful, charging their fathers to obſerve and do all his commandments, as the only means to ſecure his favour, and their relation to him, v. 4. promiſing that, in conſequence of this, they ſhould poſſeſs the land of Canaan flowing with milk and honey; and this was farther enforced by the awful ſanction of that terrible curſe which would overtake the breakers of this covenant, v. 3. God had not ceaſed from that day to continue his admonitions to them, and urge that fidelity to which they were ſo ſtrictly obliged, v. 7. And now this prophet muſt ſecond thoſe who went before in the ſame proteſtations and urgent calls to them, to hear and obey, v. 6. which that they may do, he earneſtly prays, So be it, Lord! ver. 5. Note, (1.) They who withdraw themſelves from God's ſervice, have no right to expect his protection. (2.) The condition of the legal covenant is obedience, and a curſe is denounced on every tranſgreſſor. Bleſſed be God for a covenant of grace, eſtabliſhed on better promiſes, and ſecured for ever by a better obedience than our own.

2. To charge them with their groſs violations of this covenant, by which they had forfeited all the bleſſings promiſed, and incurred all the penalties annexed to it, They obeyed not, neither they, nor their fathers; nor inclined their ear to the divinely commiſſioned meſſengers, that from time to time God ſent to admoniſh them, but walked every one in the imaginations of their evil heart, without the leaſt regard to God's law; therefore all the curſes denounced againſt the diſobedient lie at their door, v. 8. and God ſaw their ſecret as well as their open wickedneſs. A general conſpiracy is formed among them, to diſcard God's worſhip and law, and to introduce the idols and cuſtoms of the heathens around them. The men of Judah, and inhabitants of Jeruſalem, city and country, high and low, are engaged in it, v. 9. A little reformation had been made in the days of Joſiah, but they quickly turned back to the iniquities of their forefathers, and ſunk again into idolatry. Iſrael firſt led the way, and Judah copied their abominations, ſo that the covenant God had made with their fathers was utterly broken, v. 10. Note, (1.) They who will not be ruled by God's law, muſt be deſtroyed under his curſe. (2.) Though hand join in hand, the wicked ſhall not go unpuniſhed.

† Heb. To go forth of.
[m] Pſ. xviii. 41. Prov. i. 28. Iſa. i. 15. Chap. xiv. 12. Ezek. viii. 18. Mic. iii. 4. Zech. vii. 13.
[n] Deut. xxxii. 37, 38.
‡ Heb. Evil.
[o] Chap. ii. 28.
‖ Heb. Shame. Chap. iii. 24. Hoſ. ix. 10.

Before Christ 608.

[p] Ex. xxxii. 10. Chap. vii. 16. & xiv. 11. 1 John v. 16.
[q] Iſa. i. 11, &c.
§ Heb. What is there to my beloved in my houſe.
[r] Prov. ii. 14.
[s] Exod. xv. 17. Iſa. v. 2. Chap. ii. 21.

11. ¶ Therefore thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, I will bring evil upon them, which they ſhall not be able to † eſcape; and [m] though they ſhall cry unto me, I will not hearken unto them. 12. Then ſhall the cities of Judah, and inhabitants of Jeruſalem go, [n] and cry unto the gods unto whom they offer incenſe; but they ſhall not ſave them at all in the time of their ‡ trouble. 13. For [o] according to the number of thy cities were thy gods, O Judah; and according to the number of the ſtreets of Jeruſalem, have ye ſet up altars to that ‖ ſhameful thing, even altars to burn incenſe unto Baal. 14. Therefore [p] pray not thou for this people, neither lift up a cry or prayer for them: for I will not hear them in the time that they cry unto me for their trouble. 15. [q] § What hath my beloved to do in mine houſe, ſeeing ſhe hath wrought lewdneſs with many? and the holy fleſh is paſſed from thee: [r] when thou doſt evil, then thou rejoiceſt. 16. The LORD called thy name, A green olive-tree, fair and of goodly fruit: with the noiſe of a great tumult he hath kindled fire upon it, and the branches of it are broken. 17. For the LORD of hoſts, [s] that planted thee, hath pronounced evil againſt thee, for the evil of the houſe of Iſrael, and of the houſe of Judah, which they have done againſt themſelves to provoke me to anger, in offering incenſe unto Baal.

v. 11—17. The curſe follows ſin as cloſe as the ſhadow does the body. We have here,

1. Their miſerable and helpleſs caſe. Therefore I will bring evil upon them, the evil of puniſhment for the evil of ſin, which they ſhall not be able to eſcape; neither their wiſdom, nor might, nor riches, ſhall be able to avert the ſtorm. In vain will be their applications to God, he will not hear them, v. 11. In vain their application to their idols, they cannot help them, v. 12. Though ſo numberleſs, that not only every city, but every ſtreet had altars erected to that ſhameful thing Baal, ver. 13. Note, (1.) When wrath purſues the ſinner, flight is vain. (2.) Prayer comes too late, when it is the time of judgment. (3.) Many cry to God to ſave them from their ſufferings, who never lament the evil of the ſins which procured them, and well may he therefore refuſe to hear. (4.) All our idols and creature-dependances in a day of calamity, will be found miſerable comforters. (5.) Sin is a ſhameful thing, and we muſt either take ſhame to ourſelves now for it, or be put to everlaſting ſhame in the day of viſitation.

2. The prophet is forbid to pray for them. The decree was gone forth againſt them, and the prayers of good men now would be unavailable as their own, v. 14. Note, They are deſperate indeed that are beyond the reach of prayer.

3. Their attendance at God's houſe could profit them nothing, when their hearts were ſo falſe and faithleſs with him. What hath my beloved to do in mine houſe? This title was given them for the fathers ſake, Rom. xi. 28. but to what purpoſe did they keep up their attendance, ſeeing ſhe hath wrought lewdneſs with many? committing ſuch ſcandalous idolatry, as utterly ſeparated them from all communion with God, and made their ſervices barefaced hypocriſy; and the holy fleſh is paſſed from thee; their ſacrifices were no longer acceptable to God, and an end would quickly be put to them, when their temple was laid in ruins: when thou doeſt evil, then thou rejoiceſt, and whilſt this love of, and delight in iniquity remained, all ſervices and ſacrifices were but an abomination before God. Note, They who truſt on their external privileges, and outward attendance on the worſhip and ordinances of God, whilſt their hearts are ſtrangers to vital holineſs, and enſlaved by ſin, will find themſelves diſowned of God, and all their dependance a deluſion.

4. The former favours they enjoyed, as they ſerved but to aggravate their ingratitude, would be no ſecurity to them at preſent. They were once indeed called a green olive-tree, fair and of goodly fruit: God's bleſſing was upon them, and proſperity ſurrounded them on every ſide; but ſince they have changed their conduct, God hath changed his diſpenſations of providence towards them. The Chaldeans, at his command, have kindled a fire, and burnt it; and the branches, their princes, prieſts, and great men, are broken and conſumed, v. 16. God hath pronounced ſentence againſt them for their ſins, eſpecially their worſhip of Baal, which provoked his anger, and brought wrath upon their ſouls; and though he planted them, he will utterly root them up, v. 17. Note, (1.) They who ſin againſt God, bring ruin upon their own ſouls. (2.) They who produce no fruits of holineſs, like barren trees are only fit fuel for the flames.

[t] Chap. xviii. 18.
† Heb. The ſtalk with his bread.
[u] Pſ. lxxxiii. 4.
[x] 1 Sam. xvi. 7. 1 Chron. xxviii. 9. Pſ. vii. 9. Chap. xvii. 10. & xx. 12. Rev. ii. 23.
[y] 1 Pet. ii. 23.
[z] Chap. xii. 6.
[a] Iſa. xxx. 10. Amos ii. 12. & vii. 13, 16. Mic. ii. 6.

18. ¶ And the LORD hath given me knowledge of it, and I know it, then thou ſhewedſt me their doings. 19. But I was like a lamb, or an ox that is brought to the ſlaughter, and I knew not that [t] they had deviſed devices againſt me, ſaying, Let us deſtroy † the tree with the fruit thereof, and [u] let us cut him off from the land of the living, that his name may be no more remembred. 20. But, O LORD of hoſts, that judgeſt righteouſly, [x] that trieſt the reins and the heart, let me ſee thy vengeance on them; for [y] unto thee have I revealed my cauſe. 21. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD of the men of Anathoth, [z] that ſeek thy life, ſaying, [a] Prophecy not in the name of the LORD, that thou thou die not by our hand: 22. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, Behold, I will ‡ puniſh them; the young men ſhall die by the ſword, their ſons and their daughters ſhall die by famine. 23. And [b] there ſhall be no remnant of them, for I will bring evil upon the men of Anathoth, even the year of their viſitation.

Before Chriſt 608.

‡ Heb. Viſit upon them.
b Ver. 19. Deut. xix. 19. Mat. vii. 2.

v. 18—23. They who are ſent to bear witneſs againſt obſtinate ſinners, muſt, with Jeremiah, put their lives in their hand. His fidelity here begins to expoſe him to the moſt imminent danger.

1. A conſpiracy is formed againſt him, v. 19. by the men of Anathoth, his brethren; a city of prieſts, who ſhould have been foremoſt to ſupport him, but are ſo exaſperated at his ſharp reproofs, that nothing but his blood will ſatisfy them. Let us deſtroy the tree with the fruit thereof, either the prophet and his family, or his prophecy: ſome render the words, Let us corrupt his bread with poiſon, ſignifying the method they intended to take, in order to diſpatch him; and let us cut him off from the land of the living, that his name be no more remembered, and he and his prophecy buried in everlaſting oblivion. Note, (1.) It is no wonder to ſee wicked prieſts the bittereſt perſecutors of their faithful brethren; it was ever ſo of old. (2.) People take great pains to be rid of their troublers, but they muſt have God's permiſſion before any of their crafty deſigns can take place.

2. God diſappoints their ſcheme, by informing the prophet of his danger, and ſetting him on his guard, v. 18. for he was as a lamb or an ox that is brought to the ſlaughter, without the leaſt ſuſpicion of their deſigns. Note, (1.) They who are conſcious of the integrity of their own conduct, are leaſt ready to entertain ſuſpicions of others. (2.) God preſerves us from many unforeſeen dangers, which we ſhould elſe have blindly ruſhed into. (3.) His prophets and faithful miniſters are his peculiar care.

3. He lodges his appeal with God, the righteous judge, who knew his ſimplicity and their iniquity, therefore he prays, Let me ſee thy vengeance on them; not from a ſpirit of revenge, but from zeal for God's glory: or it may be conſidered as prophetical of what would be their caſe; for unto thee have I revealed my cauſe, and therefore reſt ſatisfied in full confidence that juſtice will be done. Note, (1.) Whatever man doth againſt us, it is a comfort we have a righteous judge, who will vindicate thoſe that are oppreſſed with wrong. (2.) They who deviſe miſchief againſt others, will find the ſtone they have rolled return upon themſelves.

4. Judgment is pronounced on the men of Anathoth. They determined to ſilence the prophet at all hazards. The provocation he had given them was prophecying in the name of the Lord without their licence, and in a way that reflected ſuch infamy upon their falſe doctrine and faithleſs conduct; and if they could not intimidate him from preaching, they reſolved to murder him, v. 21. therefore God denounces his judgments on the men of Anathoth. Famine and the ſword ſhall ſlay them and their families, and not ſo much as a remnant ſhall eſcape the univerſal deſtruction. Note, (1.) No prohibition or threatning can ſtop the mouths of God's true miniſters; they are ready to ſuffer, but reſolved to cry aloud and ſpare not. (2.) The day of viſitation is at hand, when all the perſecutors of God's people, and eſpecially thoſe perfidious prieſts, who abuſe their power to ſuppreſs the teſtimony of God's few faithful ſervants, whoſe life and doctrine reflects upon their ignorance, errors, ſloth, and immoralities, ſhall receive their righteous doom.

CHAP. XII.

In this chapter we have, 1. The prophet's humble complaint to God of the proſperity of the wicked, ver. 1, 2. and his appeal to God concerning his own integrity, ver. 3. with a prayer that God would for the ſake of the public puniſh the wicked, ver. 3, 4. 2. God's rebuke to the prophet for his uneaſineſs at his preſent troubles, bidding him prepare for greater, ver. 5, 6. 3. A ſad lamentation of the preſent deplorable ſtate of the Iſrael of God, ver. 7—13. 4. An intimation of mercy to God's people in a denunciation of wrath againſt thoſe that afflicted them; but with a promiſe, that if they would at laſt join themſelves with the people of God, they ſhould come in ſharers with them in their privileges, ver. 14—17.

1. [a] Righteous art thou, O LORD, when I plead with thee: yet let me † talk with thee of thy judgments: [b] Wherefore doth the way of the wicked proſper? wherefore are all they happy that deal very treacherouſly? 2. Thou haſt planted them, yea, they have taken root: they grow, yea, they bring forth fruit; [c] thou art near in their mouth, and far from their reins. 3. But thou, O LORD, [d] knoweſt me: thou haſt ſeen me, and [e] tried mine heart towards thee: pull them out like ſheep for the ſlaughter, and prepare them for the day of ſlaughter. 4. How long ſhall [f] the land mourn, and the herbs of every field wither, [g] for the wickedneſs of them that dwell therein? [h] the beaſts are conſumed, and the birds, becauſe they ſaid, He ſhall not ſee our laſt end. 5. ¶ If thou haſt run with the footmen, and they have wearied thee, then how canſt thou contend with horſes? and if in the land of peace wherein thou truſtedſt they wearied thee, then how wilt thou do in [i] the ſwelling of Jordan? 6. For even [k] thy brethren, and the houſe of thy father, even they have dealt treacherouſly with thee, yea, they ‡ have called a multitude after thee; [l] believe them not, though they ſpeak ‖ fair words unto thee.

a Pſ. li. 4.
† Or reaſon the caſe with thee.
b Job xii. 6. & xxi. 7. Pſ. xxxvii. 1, 35. & lxxiii. 3, &c. Chap. v. 28. Hab. i. 4. Mal. iii. 15.
c Iſa. xxix. 13.
d Pſ. xvii. 3. & cxxxix. 1.
e Chap. xi. 20.
f Hoſ. iv. 3.

Before Chriſt 608.

g Pſ. cvii. 34.
h Chap. iv. 25. & vii. 20. & ix. 10.
i Joſh. iii. 15. 1 Chron xii. 15. Chap. xlix. 19. & l. 44.
k Chap. ix. 4. & xi. 21.
‡ Or cried after thee fully.
l Prov. xxvi. 25.
‖ Heb. Good things.

v. 1—6. The proſperity of the wicked hath been a great temptation to more than one good man, Pſal. lxxiii. Jeremiah is ſtaggered with it, and fain deſires to be reſolved concerning this point.

1. He preſumes to plead with God, and talk with him of his judgments; deſiring to obtain information, and have his own doubts ſilenced, fully perſuaded that God is righteous, though he ſees myſterious providences he cannot ſolve, v. 1. Note, (1.) Though we may not find fault with God's diſpenſations, we may reaſon with him upon them, and enquire into the grounds of them, for our greater ſatisfaction. (2.) Tho' there may be dark providences we cannot underſtand, we muſt never quit this great and general truth, that God is righteous, and whatever he doth, is well done.

2. The particular ſubject of his enquiry is, the proſperity of the wicked. Their way proſpers, their malicious deſigns take effect, their treachery and hypocriſy meet with ſucceſs, and they are happy to outward appearance; living at eaſe, and enjoying every earthly good. Thou haſt planted them, as if they were God's peculiar care; yea, they have taken root: they grow, yea, they bring forth fruit; their families increaſe, their wealth accumulates, and they ſeem fixed in their poſſeſſions; thou art near in their mouth, they make a profeſſion of godlineſs, and have the Lord's name often in their lips, but notwithſtanding he is far from their reins, they have no real inward faith, fear, or love of him. Note, (1.) Worldly proſperity is here frequently the lot of God's enemies, who in their life-time receive their good things. (2.) The language of piety is eaſily learnt, but God trieth the reins, and requireth truth in the inward parts; without which, all beſides is but ſounding braſs, and a tinkling cymbal.

3. God knew his ſimplicity as well as their hypocriſy, that his heart was right towards him; and that in all the trials he had been expoſed to, he had approved his fidelity, v. 3. Note, (1.) It is happy for us when we can appeal to God for our uprightneſs before him. (2.) God's judgment concerning us is not taken from our outward appearance, but from our hearts; keep, therefore, thy heart with all diligence. (3.) We may ſit eaſy under men's revilings, if we are conſcious of God's approbation of us.

4. He deſires to ſee the ruin of thoſe wicked ones, that as fattened for ſlaughter God would pull them out, and rid the land of that burden under which it groaned. For their wickedneſs, the famine devoured, and even the beaſts and birds periſhed for want of ſuſtenance, becauſe they ſaid, he ſhall not ſee our laſt end; either God, whoſe judgments they defied, or Jeremiah, whoſe prophecy they deſpiſed, and whom they reſolved to diſpatch, that he at leaſt ſhould not live to ſee the fulfilment of the threatnings he denounced againſt them. Note, (1.) Proſperous ſinners are only as the ox fattened for the ſlaughter. (2.) The earth groans under men's iniquities, but it ſhall ſhortly be relieved in their deſtruction.

5. God anſwers his complaints; not indeed in a direct explication of his diſpenſations, but in an admonition deſigned for his own profiting. If thou haſt run with the footmen, and they have wearied thee, then how canſt thou contend with horſes? If thou canſt not find out the devices of the men of Anathoth, how ſhould he fathom the ſecrets of God's providence? ſo ſome interpret it: or rather, if theſe conflicts with the men of Anathoth diſcouraged him, how would he be able to cope with the King, princes, and prieſts at Jeruſalem? and if in the land of peace wherein thou truſtedſt, in his own city, where he promiſed himſelf peace and ſafety, they have wearied thee; made ſuch an impreſſion on his ſpirits; what wilt thou do in the ſwellings of Jordan? when a flood of greater perſecution ſhould burſt forth upon him, and threaten to overwhelm him. For even thy brethren, the prieſts, the houſe of thy father, to whom by blood he was ſo nearly connected; even they have dealt treacherouſly with thee, ſeeking to ſilence or deſtroy him: yea, they have called a multitude after thee, raiſed a mob againſt him, and inſtigated them to inſult and hoot him as he paſſed; believe them not, though they ſpeak fair words unto thee; they pretend to abhor perſecution, and to diſcountenance ſuch riotous proceedings, when in fact they are at the bottom of them; and when their words are ſmoother than oil, they have hearts full of rancorous enmity. Note, (1.) They who ſtand up for God and his truth, muſt prepare themſelves for the world's oppoſition. (2.) Our bittereſt

Before Chriſt 608.

tereſt enemies are often our neareſt kinſmen, or our brethren in office. (3.) God prepares his ſervants by leſſer trials for greater ones. (4.) In our own ſtrength the leaſt temptation will weary us; in God's ſtrength, we ſhall be enabled to ſtem the ſwellings of Jordan.

† Heb. The love. ‡ Heb. Giveth out his voice. m Luke xx. 40. || Heb. A bird with talons. n Rev. xix. 17. o Chap. vi. 3. p Iſa. lxiii. 18. § Heb. Portion of deſire. q Iſa. xlii. 25. r Lev. xxvi. 16. Deut. xxviii. 38. Mic. vi. 15. Hag. i. 6. † Or ye. s Chap. iii. 25.

7. ¶ I have forſaken mine houſe, I have left mine heritage, I have given † the dearly beloved of my ſoul into the hands of her enemies. 8. Mine heritage is unto me as a lion in the foreſt, it ‡ crieth out againſt me: therefore have I hated it. 9. Mine heritage is unto me [m] as || a ſpeckled bird, the birds round about are againſt her; come ye, aſſemble all the beaſts of the field, [n] come to devour. 10. [o] Many paſtors have deſtroyed my vineyard, [p] they have troden my portion under foot, they have made my § pleaſant portion a deſolate wilderneſs. 11. They have made it deſolate, and being deſolate it mourneth unto me; the whole land is made deſolate, [q] becauſe no man layeth it to heart. 12. The ſpoilers are come upon all high places through the wilderneſs: for the ſword of the LORD ſhall devour from the one end of the land even to the other end of the land: no fleſh ſhall have peace. 13. [r] They have ſown wheat, but ſhall reap thorns: they have put themſelves to pain, but ſhall not profit: and † they [s] ſhall be aſhamed of your revenues, becauſe of the fierce anger of the LORD.

v. 7—13. We have here,

1. God's derelιction of his people. His temple he deſerts, his heritage he forſakes, the dearly-beloved of his ſoul he gives up into the hands of his enemies. Once they bore theſe favoured titles, God delighted in them, ſeparated them for himſelf, and choſe them for a peculiar people, ſetting his love upon them; but their ingratitude drove him from them, and left them an eaſy prey to every invader, v. 7. The people of his heritage were as lions in the foreſt, roaring againſt God in the perſons of his prophets, blaſpheming his name, and renouncing his government, and become cruel, blood-thirſty and oppreſſive, therefore have I hated it; withdrawn every token of favour from them, and devoted them to deſtruction. Mine heritage is unto me as a ſpeckled bird, a ſtrange bird, around which the reſt gather, and peck and perſecute it: or, a bird with talons, ravenous, and ſprinkled with the blood of its prey. Note, Wo unto the ſoul, to the people from whom God departs; they are on the verge of ruin.

2. Their deſtruction by the Chaldeans. Come ye, aſſemble all ye beaſts of the field, come to devour; the armies of Nebuchadnezzar, fierce and ſavage, are ſummoned to take the field, and conſume this devoted people, Rev. xix. 17, 18. and no ſooner is it ſpoken than done. Many paſtors, the captains of the Chaldean hoſt, have deſtroyed my vineyard, they have trodden my portion under foot, they have made my pleaſant land a wilderneſs; once God regarded this place and people as his own, and delighted in it as his portion; but now univerſal deſolation reigns, the country is turned into a wilderneſs, the cities ſacked, burnt, and raſed from their foundations, the ſword devours from one end of the land to the other: and whilſt this impenitent people layeth not their ſins to heart, the very earth mourns as more deeply affected than they, upbraiding their ingratitude and hardneſs of heart, v. 11, 12. and all attempts to extricate themſelves are vain. It is the ſword of the Lord, and therefore no fleſh ſhall have peace; though they ſow wheat, they ſhall reap thorns; literally a curſe being upon the ground for their ſins, and figuratively though they contrived to engage the Egyptians as their auxiliaries, they would prove a vexation to them, rather than aſſiſtance. Their pains are ſpent to no profit, and ſhame and confuſion will cover them when they ſee all their ſchemes diſappointed; and their revenues, ſo laviſhly ſpent to hire foreign aid, thrown away, becauſe of the fierce anger of the Lord; againſt which, all their policy and power were equally fruitleſs, and which was infinitely more to be feared than even the Chaldean army. Note, (1.) If we have God for our enemy, we can hope for no peace in time or eternity. (2.) Nothing can engage ſinners to lay to heart the evil of their ways, when God withdraws his ſpirit from them; even the heavieſt judgments then but harden and exaſperate. (3.) If God ſpared not his own pleaſant land, let no other guilty land hope to eſcape.

t Zech. ii. 8. u Deut. xxx. 3. Chap. xxxii. 37. x Iſa. xix. 22, 24.

14. ¶ Thus ſaith the LORD againſt all mine evil neighbours, [t] that touch the inheritance which I have cauſed my people Iſrael to inherit, Behold, I [u] will pluck them out of their land, and pluck out the houſe of Judah from among them. 15. And it ſhall come to paſs after that I have plucked them out, I will return, and [x] have compaſſion on them, and will bring them again every man to his heritage, and every man to his land. 16. And it ſhall come to paſs, if they will diligently learn the ways of my people, to ſwear by my name, The LORD liveth (as [y] they taught my people to ſwear by Baal) then [z] ſhall they be built in the midſt of my people. 17. But [a] if they will not obey, I will utterly pluck up, and deſtroy that nation, ſaith the LORD.

Before Chriſt 608.

y Num. xxv. 1, &c. z Zech. x. 10. Eph. ii. 18. a Iſa. lx. 12. Zech. xiv. 17. Luke xix. 27.

v. 14—17. Jeremiah's commiſſion extended not merely to his own people, but to the neighbouring nations.

1. God threatens them with deſtruction for their unkindneſs to Iſrael. They are called his evil neighbours, ſuch as the Moabites, Ammonites, Philiſtines, &c. by their connections with whom God's people had been led into ſin and idolatry, and that is the greateſt evil that any can do us; that touch the inheritance that I have cauſed my people Iſrael to inherit, made inroads upon them, aſſiſted the Chaldeans to deſtroy them, and led away many captives: for this God will viſit them. Behold, I will pluck them out of their land, they too ſhall be utterly waſted and deſtroyed; and pluck the houſe of Judah from among them; who, when their ruin came, would be releaſed, and eſcape from their captivity. Note, (1.) It is a dangerous and irkſome ſtate to dwell in the midſt of evil neighbours. (2.) They who have been our tempters, are often made our tormentors. (3.) If judgment begin at the houſe of God, let not the ungodly and the ſinner think of eſcaping.

2. God ſtill appears ready to have compaſſion on them, notwithſtanding his judgments againſt them. Though caſt out, and captives, he will bring them again every man to his heritage, and his own land, on this condition, that forſaking their former idolatries, they diligently learn the ways of my people, to worſhip and ſerve the true God, to ſwear by my name, The Lord liveth, and renounce all idols, in oppoſition to their former wicked conduct, when they taught my people to ſwear by Baal; then, not only ſhall their captivity be turned, but they ſhall be built in the midſt of my people, become entitled to all the bleſſings and benefits of native Iſraelites, united with them in love, and admitted to the worſhip and ſervice of God's temple. And this ſeems to look farther than the converſion of many to the Jewiſh religion, who returned with them from Babylon, and had moſt eminently its accompliſhment when the Gentiles were gathered into the church, made fellow-heirs, and of the ſame body, and partakers of the promiſe in Chriſt by the goſpel, Eph. xi. 20, 21. when Jews and Gentiles became, without diſtinction, one fold under one ſhepherd. Note, (1.) The bittereſt enemies of God and his people may yet be reconciled; there is ever hope for the returning ſinner. (2.) They who learn the ways of God's people, will have their happy lot with them. (3.) They who would be proficients in the ſchool of Chriſt, muſt uſe all diligence; ſloth and ignorance are inſeparable.

3. Judgment is denounced on thoſe who refuſed to obey the goſpel, and return to God. I will utterly pluck up and deſtroy that nation, ſaith the Lord. Note, There is but one alternative; either we muſt turn to God, and be made happy in everlaſting bleſſedneſs, or by departing from God, and continuing impenitent, go down into everlaſting burnings.

CHAP. XIII.

Still the prophet attempts to awaken this ſecure and ſtubborn people to repentance, by the conſideration of the judgments that were coming upon them. He is to tell them, 1. By the ſign of a girdle ſpoiled, that their pride ſhould be ſtained, ver. 1—11. 2. By the ſign of bottles filled with wine, that their counſels ſhould be blaſted, ver. 12—14. 3. In conſideration hereof he is to call them to repent and humble themſelves, ver. 15—21. 4. He is to convince them that for their obſtinacy the judgments of God are ſo prolonged, ver. 22—27.

602.

1. THUS ſaith the LORD unto me, Go, and get thee a linen girdle, and put it upon thy loins, and put it not in water. 2. So I got a girdle, according to the word of the LORD, and put it on my loins. 3. And the word of the LORD came unto me the ſecond time, ſaying, 4. Take the girdle that thou haſt got, which is upon thy loins, and ariſe, go to Euphrates, and hide it there in a hole of the rock. 5. So I went and hid it by Euphrates, as the LORD commanded me. 6. And it came to paſs after many days, that the LORD ſaid unto me, Ariſe, go to Euphrates, and take the girdle from thence, which I commanded thee to hide there. 7. Then I went to Euphrates, and digged, and took the girdle from the place where I had hid it; and behold, the girdle was marred, [a] it was profitable for nothing. 8. Then the a Pſ. xiv. 3. Iſa. i. 4, 5.

Before Chriſt 602.

word of the LORD came unto me, ſaying, 9. Thus ſaith the LORD, After this manner [b] will I mar the pride of Judah, and the great pride of Jeruſalem. 10. This evil people which refuſe to hear my words, [c] which walk in the † imagination of their heart, and walk after other gods to ſerve them, and to worſhip them, ſhall even be as this girdle, which is good for nothing. 11. For as the girdle cleaveth to the loins of a man; ſo have I cauſed to cleave unto me the whole houſe of Iſrael, and the whole houſe of Judah, ſaith the LORD; that they might be unto me for a people, and [d] for a name, and for a praiſe, and for a glory: [e] but they would not hear.

[b] Lev. xxvi. 19. Iſa. ii. 11, 17. & xxiii. 9.
[c] Chap. ix. 14. & xi. 8. & xvi. 12. & xviii. 12.
† Or ſtubbornneſs.
[d] Chap. xxxiii. 9.
[e] Pſ. lxxxi. 11. Chap. vii. 24.

v. 1—11. They who ſtopped their ears againſt the prophet's words, have now a ſign before their eyes, if any means might be found to faſten conviction upon their hearts. We have,

1. The ſign. A linen girdle, or ſaſh, which the prophet is commanded to procure and wear; and which would be the more taken notice of, as his rough garments were unuſed to be bound with ſuch finery. No water muſt touch it, but when worn a while, he muſt go to the river Euphrates, and hide it in a hole in the rock, where, by the riſing and falling of the river, it would wet and dry, and rot the ſooner. After a while he is ſent to fetch it from thence, and found it ſpoiled and rotten, v. 1—7. Interpreters are divided concerning this matter, whether it was only done in viſion, as Ezek. viii. 3. xi. 24. or real. The former ſeems more generally received, becauſe of the length of they way, and the time required to be ſpent in the journey, when his preſence at home was ſo neceſſary; but I rather incline to the latter opinion. It is expreſsly ſaid, he did as the Lord commanded him; it gave a ſignal proof of the prophet's obedience, was a reproof of the people's ſtubbornneſs, that refuſed to take a ſtep in God's ways, and pointed out the long journey they ſhould make over the Euphrates when carried captive to Babylon.

2. The explanation. God had choſen Iſrael, and cauſed them to cleave to him, as a girdle about the loins of a man; intimating how near and dear they were to him, brought into a ſtate of moſt intimate communion with him, permitted to enter into the courts of his houſe, favoured with his preſence, and engaged by innumerable favours to cleave to him in all fidelity and love. That they might be to him for a people, a peculiar people; for a name renowned in the earth, and to ſhew forth his praiſe and glory; and thus, like the curious girdle of the ephod, be ornamental to their profeſſion, and an honour to their holy religion. But they would not hear, and therefore he threatens to mar the pride of Judah, and the great pride of Jeruſalem, eſpecially elated with having the temple in the midſt of her; but the higher their pride roſe, the lower ſhould their fall be, v. 9. Since they had corrupted their ways by wickedneſs, and refuſed to hear the words of God's prophets, following their own vain imaginations, and ſunk into abominable idolatries, God will utterly conſume them, and make them vile as that girdle of rags, v. 10. Note, (1.) The greater the mercies we enjoy, the greater are our obligations to be faithful. (2.) God's ſervice is the higheſt honour; and whilſt we are moſt ſollicitous to glorify him, we at the ſame time gain for ourſelves that great name which is worth our ambition. (3.) It is folly to pretend a relation to God as his people, if we are not to him for a praiſe. (4.) They who have ſtrutted here in the high conceit of their own goodneſs and excellence, will find their ſhame moſt confounding when this their vaunted righteouſneſs ſhall appear in the preſence of God no better than filthy rags. (5.) Whatever we are proud of, whether parts, gifts, ſtation, wealth, power, God regards ſuch ſelf-complacence with abhorrence; and what turned angels into devils, will make men, who imitate their ſins, companions in their ſufferings.

12. ¶ Therefore thou ſhalt ſpeak unto them this word, Thus ſaith the LORD God of Iſrael, Every bottle ſhall be filled with wine: and they ſhall ſay unto thee, Do we not certainly know, that every bottle ſhall be filled with wine? 13. Then ſhalt thou ſay unto them, Thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, I will fill all the inhabitants of this land, even the kings that ſit upon David's throne, and the prieſts, and the prophets, and all the inhabitants of Jeruſalem [f] with drunkenneſs. 14. And I will daſh them † one againſt another, even the fathers, and the ſons together, ſaith the LORD: I will not pity, nor ſpare, nor have mercy, ‡ but deſtroy them. 15. ¶ Hear ye, and give ear, [g] be not proud: for the LORD hath ſpoken. 16. [h] Give glory to the LORD your God before he cauſe [i] darkneſs, and before your feet ſtumble upon the dark mountains, and while ye [k] look for light, he turn it into [l] the ſhadow of death, and make it groſs darkneſs. 17. But if ye will not hear it, my ſoul ſhall weep in ſecret places for your pride, and [m] mine eyes ſhall weep ſore, and run down with tears, becauſe the LORD's flock is carried away captive. 18. Say unto the king, and to the queen, Humble yourſelves, [n] ſit down; for your ‖ principalities ſhall come down, even the crown of your glory. 19. [o] The cities of the ſouth ſhall be ſhut up, and none ſhall open them; Judah ſhall be carried away captive all of it, it ſhall be wholly carried away captive. 20. Lift up your eyes, and behold them that come [p] from the north: where is the flock that was given thee, thy beautiful flock? 21. What wilt thou ſay when he ſhall § puniſh thee? (for [q] thou haſt taught them to be captains, and as chief over thee) [r] ſhall not ſorrows take thee as a woman in travail?

[f] Iſa. li. 17, 21. & lxiii. 6. Chap. xxv. 27. & li. 7.
† Heb. A man againſt his brother.
‡ Heb. From deſtroying them.]
[g] Iſa. xxviii. 22.
[h] Joſh. vii. 19.
[i] Iſa. viii. 22. Lam. ii. 1.
[k] Iſa. lix. 9.
[l] Pſ. xliv. 19.

Before Chriſt 602.

[m] Chap. ix. 1. Lam. i. 2, 8. 16. & ii. 1.
[n] Iſa. xlvii. 1.
‖ Or head-tires.
[o] Deut. xxviii. 52.
[p] Chap. i. 14. & vi. 22.
§ Heb. Viſit upon thee. Chap. xi. 22.
[q] 2 Kings xvi. 7.
[r] Chap. vi. 24.

v. 12—21. We have here,

1. Another judgment threatned, under the figure of bottles filled with wine. They were filled with drunkenneſs, and they ſhall be filled with wrath: not underſtanding the prophet's meaning, they ſeem to ridicule it; Do we not certainly know that every bottle ſhall be filled with wine; this is not ſuch a ſtrange thing that it need be uſhered in with ſuch pomp, as thus ſaith the Lord God of Iſrael; but let them attend the explanation, and it will be found momentous, for God threatens to fill all the inhabitants of the land, king, prieſts, prophets and people, high and low, with drunkenneſs, with a ſpirit of infatuation, which will have the ſame effect upon them as wine; their counſels ſhall be confounded, they ſhall ſtagger, be weak as a drunken man, and be made ſick with ſmiting; daſhed one againſt another with inteſtine quarrels, they ſhall help forward their own ruin, even the fathers and the ſons together; I will not pity nor ſpare, nor have mercy, but deſtroy them with an utter deſtruction. Note, Drunkards are chief among thoſe whoſe damnation ſlumbereth not.

2. An admonition given them of God, to humble themſelves before it was too late. Be not proud, above being taught, or too ſtubborn to bend to reproof. Yea, the king and queen are called upon to ſet their ſubjects the example, and to ſit down in the duſt, and there confeſſing their ſins, and acknowledging the juſtice of their ſufferings, to give glory to God, before he come forth in judgment, and cauſe darkneſs, giving them up to the Babyloniſh captivity; and before your feet ſtumble upon the dark mountains, or of the twilight; when in the evening they ſhould ſteal from the city in hopes of eſcaping, but ſhould be ſeized; or referring to the afflictions they ſhould ſuffer in the land of Babylon, whither they ſhould be carried priſoners; and while ye look for light, a gleam of proſperity, and aſſiſtance from their confederates, he turn it into the ſhadow of death, and make it groſs darkneſs, overwhelming them with their calamities and diſappointments, and ſinking them in deſpair. For unleſs they prevented their doom by a timely repentance, it is determined your principalities ſhall come down, all the power and dignity in which they prided themſelves and confided, even the crown of your glory, plucked from the king's head with all the enſigns of royalty, and he, among the reſt, led into an inglorious captivity. Note, (1.) They who are too proud to bend, are not too high to be broken. (2.) If ſinners will not give God glory by their penitence, he will glorify himſelf in their perdition. (3.) There is no eſcaping God's judgments by attempting to fly from them; the only door of hope is in humiliation to fly to him. (4.) The vain hopes of ſinners will ſerve but to aggravate their miſery, and to increaſe their confuſion. (5.) It becomes thoſe who are moſt exalted to ſet the gracious example; kings are not too great to ſit in the duſt, when God calls to weeping and mourning for the ſins of the land.

3. The prophet expreſſes the unſpeakable grief it would give him to ſee them reject the divine admonitions. If ye will not hear it, and obey, my ſoul ſhall weep in ſecret places for your pride; to ſome lonely ſolitude he would retire, and pour out his griefs before God, ſince it was vain to expoſtulate with them. That pride and ſtubbornneſs they would not repent of, he with tears would bewail, and weep ſore for thoſe deſolations they would not believe, nor ſeek to avert, becauſe the Lord's flock, for ſuch they had once been, is carried away captive; and hereby God would be diſhonoured and blaſphemed, which eſpecially affected the prophet's heart. Note, (1.) They who know the terrors of the Lord themſelves, cannot but tremble for thoſe who appear inſenſible of their danger. (2.) The ſins of their people cauſe many an aching heart to God's miniſters, and they mourn ſore over thoſe they cannot mend.

4. Their ruin was inevitable. Their cities (which lay ſouth of Babylon) ſhall be ſhut up, either beſieged, or left without inhabitant, and their captivity be compleat. In Jehoiakim's time ſome were carried away, but in Zedekiah's none ſhall be left, v. 19. The terrible army of invaders is already in view, coming from the north. Where is thy flock that was given thee, thy beautiful flock? once ſo diſtinguiſhed with every mark of God's favour and regard, and the glory of the whole earth, now diſ-

tereſt enemies are often our neareſt kinſmen, or our brethren in office. (3.) God prepares his ſervants by leſſer trials for greater ones. (4.) In our own ſtrength the leaſt temptation will weary us; in God's ſtrength, we ſhall be enabled to ſtem the ſwellings of Jordan.

7. ¶ I have forſaken mine houſe, I have left mine heritage, I have given † the dearly beloved of my ſoul into the hands of her enemies. 8. Mine heritage is unto me as a lion in the foreſt, it ‡ crieth out againſt me: therefore have I hated it. 9. Mine heritage is unto me [m] as || a ſpeckled bird, the birds round about are againſt her; come ye, aſſemble all the beaſts of the field, [n] come to devour. 10. [o] Many paſtors have deſtroyed my vineyard, [p] they have troden my portion under foot, they have made my § pleaſant portion a deſolate wilderneſs. 11. They have made it deſolate, and being deſolate it mourneth unto me; the whole land is made deſolate, [q] becauſe no man layeth it to heart. 12. The ſpoilers are come upon all high places through the wilderneſs: for the ſword of the LORD ſhall devour from the one end of the land even to the other end of the land: no fleſh ſhall have peace. 13. [r] They have ſown wheat, but ſhall reap thorns: they have put themſelves to pain, but ſhall not profit: and † they [s] ſhall be aſhamed of your revenues, becauſe of the fierce anger of the LORD.

† Heb. The love.
‡ Heb. Giveth out his voice.
[m] Luke xx. 40.
|| Heb. A bird with talons.
[n] Rev. xix. 17.
[o] Chap. vi. 3.
[p] Iſa. lxiii. 18.
§ Heb. Portion of deſire.
[q] Iſa. xlii. 25.
[r] Lev. xxvi. 16. Deut. xxviii. 38. Mic. vi. 15. Hag. i. 6.
† Or ye.
[s] Chap. iii. 25.

v. 7—13. We have here,

1. God's dereliction of his people. His temple he deſerts, his heritage he forſakes, the dearly-beloved of his ſoul he gives up into the hands of his enemies. Once they bore theſe favoured titles, God delighted in them, ſeparated them for himſelf, and choſe them for a peculiar people, ſetting his love upon them; but their ingratitude drove him from them, and left them an eaſy prey to every invader, v. 7. The people of his heritage were as lions in the foreſt, roaring againſt God in the perſons of his prophets, blaſpheming his name, and renouncing his government, and become cruel, blood-thirſty and oppreſſive, therefore have I hated it; withdrawn every token of favour from them, and devoted them to deſtruction. Mine heritage is unto me as a ſpeckled bird, a ſtrange bird, around which the reſt gather, and peck and perſecute it: or, a bird with talons, ravenous, and ſprinkled with the blood of its prey. Note, Wo unto the ſoul, to the people from whom God departs; they are on the verge of ruin.

2. Their deſtruction by the Chaldeans. Come ye, aſſemble all ye beaſts of the field, come to devour; the armies of Nebuchadnezzar, fierce and ſavage, are ſummoned to take the field, and conſume this devoted people, Rev. xix. 17, 18. and no ſooner is it ſpoken than done. Many paſtors, the captains of the Chaldean hoſt, have deſtroyed my vineyard, they have trodden my portion under foot, they have made my pleaſant land a wilderneſs; once God regarded this place and people as his own, and delighted in it as his portion; but now univerſal deſolation reigns, the country is turned into a wilderneſs, the cities ſacked, burnt, and raſed from their foundations, the ſword devours from one end of the land to the other: and whilſt this impenitent people layeth not their ſins to heart, the very earth mourns as more deeply affected than they, upbraiding their ingratitude and hardneſs of heart, v. 11, 12. and all attempts to extricate themſelves are vain. It is the ſword of the Lord, and therefore no fleſh ſhall have peace; though they ſow wheat, they ſhall reap thorns; literally a curſe being upon the ground for their ſins, and figuratively though they contrived to engage the Egyptians as their auxiliaries, they would prove a vexation to them, rather than aſſiſtance. Their pains are ſpent to no profit, and ſhame and confuſion will cover them when they ſee all their ſchemes diſappointed; and their revenues, ſo laviſhly ſpent to hire foreign aid, thrown away, becauſe of the fierce anger of the Lord; againſt which, all their policy and power were equally fruitleſs, and which was infinitely more to be feared than even the Chaldean army. Note, (1.) If we have God for our enemy, we can hope for no peace in time or eternity. (2.) Nothing can engage ſinners to lay to heart the evil of their ways, when God withdraws his ſpirit from them; even the heavieſt judgments then but harden and exaſperate. (3.) If God ſpared not his own pleaſant land, let no other guilty land hope to eſcape.

14. ¶ Thus ſaith the LORD againſt all mine evil neighbours, [t] that touch the inheritance which I have cauſed my people Iſrael to inherit, Behold, I [u] will pluck them out of their land, and pluck out the houſe of Judah from among them. 15. And it ſhall come to paſs after that I have plucked them out, I will return, and [x] have compaſſion on them, and will bring them again every man to his heritage, and every man to his land. 16. And it ſhall come to paſs, if they will diligently learn the ways of my people, to ſwear by my name, The LORD liveth (as [y] they taught my people to ſwear by Baal) then [z] ſhall they be built in the midſt of my people. 17. But [a] if they will not obey, I will utterly pluck up, and deſtroy that nation, ſaith the LORD.

[t] Zech. ii. 8.
[u] Deut. xxx. 3. Chap. xxxii. 37.
[x] Iſa. xix. 22, 24.
[y] Num. xxv. 1, &c.
[z] Zech. x. 10. Eph. ii. 18.
[a] Iſa. lx. 12. Zech. xiv. 17. Luke xix. 27.

v. 14—17. Jeremiah's commiſſion extended not merely to his own people, but to the neighbouring nations.

1. God threatens them with deſtruction for their unkindneſs to Iſrael. They are called his evil neighbours, ſuch as the Moabites, Ammonites, Philiſtines, &c. by their connections with whom God's people had been led into ſin and idolatry, and that is the greateſt evil that any can do us; that touch the inheritance that I have cauſed my people Iſrael to inherit, made inroads upon them, aſſiſted the Chaldeans to deſtroy them, and led away many captives: for this God will viſit them. Behold, I will pluck them out of their land, they too ſhall be utterly waſted and deſtroyed; and pluck the houſe of Judah from among them; who, when their ruin came, would be releaſed, and eſcape from their captivity. Note, (1.) It is a dangerous and irkſome ſtate to dwell in the midſt of evil neighbours. (2.) They who have been our tempters, are often made our tormentors. (3.) If judgment begin at the houſe of God, let not the ungodly and the ſinner think of eſcaping.

2. God ſtill appears ready to have compaſſion on them, notwithſtanding his judgments againſt them. Though caſt out, and captives, he will bring them again every man to his heritage, and his own land, on this condition, that forſaking their former idolatries, they diligently learn the ways of my people, to worſhip and ſerve the true God, to ſwear by my name, The Lord liveth, and renounce all idols, in oppoſition to their former wicked conduct, when they taught my people to ſwear by Baal; then, not only ſhall their captivity be turned, but they ſhall be built in the midſt of my people, become entitled to all the bleſſings and benefits of native Iſraelites, united with them in love, and admitted to the worſhip and ſervice of God's temple. And this ſeems to look farther than the converſion of many to the Jewiſh religion, who returned with them from Babylon, and had moſt eminently its accompliſhment when the Gentiles were gathered into the church, made fellow-heirs, and of the ſame body, and partakers of the promiſe in Chriſt by the goſpel, Eph. xi. 20, 21. when Jews and Gentiles became, without diſtinction, one fold under one ſhepherd. Note, (1.) The bittereſt enemies of God and his people may yet be reconciled; there is ever hope for the returning ſinner. (2.) They who learn the ways of God's people, will have their happy lot with them. (3.) They who would be proficients in the ſchool of Chriſt, muſt uſe all diligence; ſloth and ignorance are inſeparable.

3. Judgment is denounced on thoſe who refuſed to obey the goſpel, and return to God. I will utterly pluck up and deſtroy that nation, ſaith the Lord. Note, There is but one alternative; either we muſt turn to God, and be made happy in everlaſting bleſſedneſs, or by departing from God, and continuing impenitent, go down into everlaſting burnings.

CHAP. XIII.

Still the prophet attempts to awaken this ſecure and ſtubborn people to repentance, by the conſideration of the judgments that were coming upon them. He is to tell them, 1. By the ſign of a girdle ſpoiled, that their pride ſhould be ſtained, ver. 1—11. 2. By the ſign of bottles filled with wine, that their counſels ſhould be blaſted, ver. 12—14. 3. In conſideration hereof he is to call them to repent and humble themſelves, ver. 15—21. 4. He is to convince them that for their obſtinacy the judgments of God are ſo prolonged, ver. 22—27.

602.

1. THUS ſaith the LORD unto me, Go, and get thee a linen girdle, and put it upon thy loins, and put it not in water. 2. So I got a girdle, according to the word of the LORD, and put it on my loins. 3. And the word of the LORD came unto me the ſecond time, ſaying, 4. Take the girdle that thou haſt got, which is upon thy loins, and ariſe, go to Euphrates, and hide it there in a hole of the rock. 5. So I went and hid it by Euphrates, as the LORD commanded me. 6. And it came to paſs after many days, that the LORD ſaid unto me, Ariſe, go to Euphrates, and take the girdle from thence, which I commanded thee to hide there. 7. Then I went to Euphrates, and digged, and took the girdle from the place where I had hid it; and behold, the girdle was marred, [a] it was profitable for nothing. 8. Then the word word of the LORD came unto me, ſaying, 9. Thus ſaith the LORD, After this manner [b] will I mar the pride of Judah, and the great pride of Jeruſalem. 10. This evil people which refuſe to hear my words, [c] which walk in the † imagination of their heart, and walk after other gods to ſerve them, and to worſhip them, ſhall even be as this girdle, which is good for nothing. 11. For as the girdle cleaveth to the loins of a man; ſo have I cauſed to cleave unto me the whole houſe of Iſrael, and the whole houſe of Judah, ſaith the LORD; that they might be unto me for a people, and [d] for a name, and for a praiſe, and for a glory: [e] but they would not hear.

[a] Pſ. xiv. 3. Iſa. i. 4, 5.

[b] Lev. xxvi. 19. Iſa. ii. 11, 17. & xxiii. 9.
[c] Chap. ix. 14. & xi. 8. & xvi. 12. & xviii. 12.
† Or ſtubbornneſs.
[d] Chap. xxxiii. 9.
[e] Pſ. lxxxi. 11. Chap. vii. 24.

v. 1—11. They who ſtopped their ears againſt the prophet's words, have now a ſign before their eyes, if any means might be found to faſten conviction upon their hearts. We have,

1. The ſign. A linen girdle, or ſaſh, which the prophet is commanded to procure and wear; and which would be the more taken notice of, as his rough garments were unuſed to be bound with ſuch finery. No water muſt touch it, but when worn a while, he muſt go to the river Euphrates, and hide it in a hole in the rock, where, by the riſing and falling of the river, it would wet and dry, and rot the ſooner. After a while he is ſent to fetch it from thence, and found it ſpoiled and rotten, v. 1—7. Interpreters are divided concerning this matter, whether it was only done in viſion, as Ezek. viii. 3. xi. 24. or real. The former ſeems more generally received, becauſe of the length of they way, and the time required to be ſpent in the journey, when his preſence at home was ſo neceſſary; but I rather incline to the latter opinion. It is expreſsly ſaid, he did as the Lord commanded him; it gave a ſignal proof of the prophet's obedience, was a reproof of the people's ſtubbornneſs, that refuſed to take a ſtep in God's ways, and pointed out the long journey they ſhould make over the Euphrates when carried captive to Babylon.

2. The explanation. God had choſen Iſrael, and cauſed them to cleave to him, as a girdle about the loins of a man; intimating how near and dear they were to him, brought into a ſtate of moſt intimate communion with him, permitted to enter into the courts of his houſe, favoured with his preſence, and engaged by innumerable favours to cleave to him in all fidelity and love. That they might be to him for a people, a peculiar people; for a name renowned in the earth, and to ſhew forth his praiſe and glory; and thus, like the curious girdle of the ephod, be ornamental to their profeſſion, and an honour to their holy religion. But they would not hear, and therefore he threatens to mar the pride of Judah, and the great pride of Jeruſalem, eſpecially elated with having the temple in the midſt of her; but the higher their pride roſe, the lower ſhould their fall be, v. 9. Since they had corrupted their ways by wickedneſs, and refuſed to hear the words of God's prophets, following their own vain imaginations, and ſunk into abominable idolatries, God will utterly conſume them, and make them vile as that girdle of rags, v. 10. Note, (1.) The greater the mercies we enjoy, the greater are our obligations to be faithful. (2.) God's ſervice is the higheſt honour; and whilſt we are moſt ſollicitous to glorify him, we at the ſame time gain for ourſelves that great name which is worth our ambition. (3.) It is folly to pretend a relation to God as his people, if we are not to him for a praiſe. (4.) They who have ſtrutted here in the high conceit of their own goodneſs and excellence, will find their ſhame moſt confounding when this their vaunted righteouſneſs ſhall appear in the preſence of God no better than filthy rags. (5.) Whatever we are proud of, whether parts, gifts, ſtation, wealth, power, God regards ſuch ſelf-complacence with abhorrence; and what turned angels into devils, will make men, who imitate their ſins, companions in their ſufferings.

12. ¶ Therefore thou ſhalt ſpeak unto them this word, Thus ſaith the LORD God of Iſrael, Every bottle ſhall be filled with wine: and they ſhall ſay unto thee, Do we not certainly know, that every bottle ſhall be filled with wine? 13. Then ſhalt thou ſay unto them, Thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, I will fill all the inhabitants of this land, even the kings that ſit upon David's throne, and the prieſts, and the prophets, and all the inhabitants of Jeruſalem [f] with drunkenneſs. 14. And I will daſh them † one againſt another, even the fathers, and the ſons together, ſaith the LORD: I will not pity, nor ſpare, nor have mercy, ‡ but deſtroy them. 15. ¶ Hear ye, and give ear, [g] be not proud: for the LORD hath ſpoken. 16. [h] Give glory to the LORD your God before he cauſe [i] darkneſs, and before your feet ſtumble upon the dark mountains, and while ye [k] look for light, he turn it into [l] the ſhadow of death, and make it groſs darkneſs. 17. But if ye will not hear it, my ſoul ſhall weep in ſecret places for your pride, and [m] mine eyes ſhall weep ſore, and run down with tears, becauſe the LORD's flock is carried away captive. 18. Say unto the king, and to the queen, Humble yourſelves, [n] ſit down; for your ‖ principalities ſhall come down, even the crown of your glory. 19. [o] The cities of the ſouth ſhall be ſhut up, and none ſhall open them; Judah ſhall be carried away captive all of it, it ſhall be wholly carried away captive. 20. Lift up your eyes, and behold them that come [p] from the north: where is the flock that was given thee, thy beautiful flock? 21. What wilt thou ſay when he ſhall § puniſh thee? (for [q] thou haſt taught them to be captains, and as chief over thee) [r] ſhall not ſorrows take thee as a woman in travail?

[f] Iſa. li. 17, 21. & lxiii. 6. Chap. xxv. 27. & li. 7.
† Heb. A man againſt his brother.
‡ Heb. From deſtroying them.
[g] Iſa. xxviii. 22.
[h] Joſh. vii. 19.
[i] Iſa. viii. 22. Lam. ii. 1.
[k] Iſa. lix. 9.
[l] Pſ. xliv. 19.
[m] Chap. ix. 1. Lam. i. 2, 8, 16. & ii. 1.
[n] Iſa. xlvii. 1.
‖ Or head-tires.
[o] Deut. xxviii. 52.
[p] Chap. i. 14. & vi. 22.
§ Heb. Viſit upon thee. Chap. xi. 22.
[q] 2 Kings xvi. 7.
[r] Chap. vi. 24.

v. 12—21. We have here,

1. Another judgment threatned, under the figure of bottles filled with wine. They were filled with drunkenneſs, and they ſhall be filled with wrath: not underſtanding the prophet's meaning, they ſeem to ridicule it; Do we not certainly know that every bottle ſhall be filled with wine; this is not ſuch a ſtrange thing that it need be uſhered in with ſuch pomp, as thus ſaith the Lord God of Iſrael; but let them attend the explanation, and it will be found momentous, for God threatens to fill all the inhabitants of the land, king, prieſts, prophets and people, high and low, with drunkenneſs, with a ſpirit of infatuation, which will have the ſame effect upon them as wine; their counſels ſhall be confounded, they ſhall ſtagger, be weak as a drunken man, and be made ſick with ſmiting; daſhed one againſt another with inteſtine quarrels, they ſhall help forward their own ruin, even the fathers and the ſons together; I will not pity nor ſpare, nor have mercy, but deſtroy them with an utter deſtruction. Note, Drunkards are chief among thoſe whoſe damnation ſlumbereth not.

2. An admonition given them of God, to humble themſelves before it was too late. Be not proud, above being taught, or too ſtubborn to bend to reproof. Yea, the king and queen are called upon to ſet their ſubjects the example, and to ſit down in the duſt, and there confeſſing their ſins, and acknowledging the juſtice of their ſufferings, to give glory to God, before he come forth in judgment, and cauſe darkneſs, giving them up to the Babyloniſh captivity; and before your feet ſtumble upon the dark mountains, or of the twilight; when in the evening they ſhould ſteal from the city in hopes of eſcaping, but ſhould be ſeized; or referring to the afflictions they ſhould ſuffer in the land of Babylon, whither they ſhould be carried priſoners; and while ye look for light, a gleam of proſperity, and aſſiſtance from their confederates, he turn it into the ſhadow of death, and make it groſs darkneſs, overwhelming them with their calamities and diſappointments, and ſinking them in deſpair. For unleſs they prevented their doom by a timely repentance, it is determined your principalities ſhall come down, all the power and dignity in which they prided themſelves and confided, even the crown of your glory, plucked from the king's head with all the enſigns of royalty, and he, among the reſt, led into an inglorious captivity. Note, (1.) They who are too proud to bend, are not too high to be broken. (2.) If ſinners will not give God glory by their penitence, he will glorify himſelf in their perdition. (3.) There is no eſcaping God's judgments by attempting to fly from them; the only door of hope is in humiliation to fly to him. (4.) The vain hopes of ſinners will ſerve but to aggravate their miſery, and to increaſe their confuſion. (5.) It becomes thoſe who are moſt exalted to ſet the gracious example; kings are not too great to ſit in the duſt, when God calls to weeping and mourning for the ſins of the land.

3. The prophet expreſſes the unſpeakable grief it would give him to ſee them reject the divine admonitions. If ye will not hear it, and obey, my ſoul ſhall weep in ſecret places for your pride; to ſome lonely ſolitude he would retire, and pour out his griefs before God, ſince it was vain to expoſtulate with them. That pride and ſtubbornneſs they would not repent of, he with tears would bewail, and weep ſore for thoſe deſolations they would not believe, nor ſeek to avert, becauſe the Lord's flock, for ſuch they had once been, is carried away captive; and hereby God would be diſhonoured and blaſphemed, which eſpecially affected the prophet's heart. Note, (1.) They who know the terrors of the Lord themſelves, cannot but tremble for thoſe who appear inſenſible of their danger. (2.) The ſins of their people cauſe many an aching heart to God's miniſters, and they mourn ſore over thoſe they cannot mend.

4. Their ruin was inevitable. Their cities (which lay ſouth of Babylon) ſhall be ſhut up, either beſieged, or left without inhabitant, and their captivity be compleat. In Jehoiakim's time ſome were carried away, but in Zedekiah's none ſhall be left, v. 19. The terrible army of invaders is already in view, coming from the north. Where is thy flock that was given thee, thy beautiful flock? once ſo diſtinguiſhed with every mark of God's favour and regard, and the glory of the whole earth, now diſ-perſed and ſcattered, and their place is no more found. What wilt thou ſay when he ſhall puniſh thee? how ſpeechleſs would they be found before God, when by the Chaldean ſword he ſhould ariſe to viſit their iniquities? for thou haſt taught them to be captains, and as chief over thee; having invited them into their country formerly, and thereby opened a door for their conqueſts, 2 Kings xvi. 7. Shall not ſorrows take thee as a woman in travail? ſorrows, ſudden, terrible, and unavoidable, would then ſeize on this devoted Judea. Note, (1.) They who have the charge of others committed to them, parents, magiſtrates, and eſpecially miniſters, ſhould often think of the ſolemn account they muſt one day make before the great ſhepherd and biſhop of ſouls. (2.) They who have rejected God's admonitions will be ſpeechleſs in the day of their viſitation.

Before Chriſt 602.

22. ¶ And if thou ſay in thine heart, [s] Wherefore come theſe things upon me? For the greatneſs of thine iniquity are [t] thy ſkirts diſcovered, and thy heels † made bare. 23. Can the Ethiopian change his ſkin, or the leopard his ſpots? then may ye alſo do good, that are ‡ accuſtomed to do evil. 24. Therefore [u] will I ſcatter them as ſtubble that paſſeth away by the wind of the wilderneſs. 25. [x] This is thy lot, the portion of thy meaſures from me, ſaith the LORD; becauſe thou haſt forgotten me, and [y] truſted in falſhood. 26. Therefore [z] will I diſcover thy ſkirts upon thy face, that thy ſhame may appear. 27. [a] I have ſeen thine adulteries, and thy neighings, the lewdneſs of thy whoredom, and thine abominations [b] on the hills in the fields: wo unto thee, [c] O Jeruſalem, wilt thou not be made clean? § when ſhall it once be?

[s] Chap. v. 19. & xvi. 10.
[t] Iſa. xlvii. 2, 3. Ver. 26. Nah. iii. 5.
† Or ſhall be violently taken away.
‡ Heb. Taught.
[u] Hoſ. xiii. 3.
[x] Job xx. 29.
[y] Chap. vii. 4.
[z] Lam. i. 8. Ezek. xvi. 37. & xxiii. 29. Hoſ. ii. 10.
[a] Chap. v. 8.
[b] Iſa. lxv. 7. Chap. ii. 20. Ezek. vi. 13.
[c] Chap. iv. 14.
§ Heb. After when, or how long yet.

v. 22—27. It is here foretold, as before, that captivity awaited them, when naked and barefoot they ſhould be led away, confounded and aſhamed before their conquerors, v. 26. In this miſerable caſe,

1. They are repreſented as enquiring into the cauſe of their calamities. If thou ſay in thine heart, for God knows what paſſes there, Wherefore come theſe things upon me? either quarrelling with their afflictions and fretting againſt the Lord, or driven by the ſeverity of their ſufferings penitently to enquire into their cauſe.

2. God anſwers them, For the greatneſs of thine iniquity are thy ſkirts diſcovered, and thy heels made bare. God had not laid on them more than they had deſerved; for their iniquities were great and numberleſs, and they utterly incorrigible: the black Ethiopian as ſoon might change his ſkin, or the leopard his ſpots, as they be reclaimed from their abominations, which habit and cuſtom had ingrained, and made a ſecond nature, or learn that good which their prophets inculcated, v. 23. God had been forgotten by them, and their confidence placed on falſhood, the broken reed of Egyptian aid, v. 25. Their idolatries and adulteries had been multiplied on every hill, in every field, openly and without a bluſh; therefore they might eaſily perceive the cauſe of their ruin. Woe unto thee, O Jeruſalem: for theſe things they are ſcattered as ſtubble before the wind of the wilderneſs, the Chaldean army, v. 24. and this is their lot, and the portion aſſigned them of God, in juſt judgment for ſuch impieties and impenitence, v. 25. Note, (1.) God never lays upon ſinners more than they deſerve, but in all his judgments will be juſtified. (2.) Every man by nature is born like the ſooty Ethiopian, black in original ſin, and by practice and habit the ſtain is ſtill deeper fixed in the ſoul. Not all the waters of the ocean can change the hue; no labours or attempts of man to cleanſe himſelf are of any avail; the fountain of a Redeemer's blood alone can waſh this Ethiopian white, and change this leopard's ſpots. (3.) Inveterate habits are very difficultly conquered; but divine grace is all-ſufficient.

3. The prophet expoſtulates once more with them; dangerous as their caſe was, it might not be yet utterly deſperate; wilt thou not be made clean? ſhall no entreaty prevail, when the fountain is yet open, and God's patience waits; when ſhall it once be? ſurely it was now high time to bethink themſelves, when ruin was almoſt at the door. Note, (1.) The reaſon why ſinners periſh is becauſe they will not come to Chriſt that they might have life. (2.) We muſt be made clean, or we can never enter God's holy place in heaven. (3.) God waits long upon ſinners, and expoſtulates with them on their delays, and they who diſappoint his patience will be left without excuſe. (4.) Moſt men reſolve ſome time or other to repent; but, putting it off to a diſtant day, death ſurprizes them in their ſins.

CHAP. XIV.

This chapter was penned upon occaſion of a great drought: this judgment began in the latter end of Joſiah's reign; but, as it ſhould ſeem, continued in the beginning of Jehoiakim's. Here is, (1.) A melancholy deſcription of it, ver. 1—7. (2.) A prayer to God to put an end to it, and to return in mercy to their land, ver. 7—9. (3.) A ſevere threatning, that God would proceed in his controverſy, becauſe they proceeded in their iniquity, ver. 10—12. (4.) The prophet lays the blame on their falſe prophets; and the doom is paſſed both on the deceivers and the deceived, ver. 13—16. (5.) Directions given to the prophet to lament over them, and his continuing to intercede for them, ver. 17—22.

Before Chriſt 601.

1. THE word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah concerning † the dearth. 2. Judah mourneth, and the gates thereof languiſh, they are black unto the ground, and the cry of Jeruſalem is gone up. 3. And their nobles have ſent their ‡ little ones to the waters, they came to the pits, and found no water, they returned with their veſſels empty: they were aſhamed and confounded, and [a] covered their heads. 4. Becauſe the ground is chapt, for there was no rain in the earth, [b] the plowmen were aſhamed, they covered their heads. 5. Yea, the hind alſo calved in the field, and forſook it, becauſe there was no graſs. 6. And the wild aſſes did ſtand in the high places, [c] they ſnuffed up the wind like dragons: their eyes did fail becauſe there was no graſs. 7. ¶ O LORD, though our iniquities teſtify againſt us, [d] do thou it for thy name's ſake: for our backſlidings are many, we have ſinned againſt thee. 8. O [e] the hope of Iſrael, [f] the ſaviour thereof in time of trouble, why ſhouldſt thou be as a ſtranger in the land, and as a wayfaring man, [g] that turneth aſide to tarry for a night? 9. Why ſhouldſt thou be as a man aſtoniſhed, as a mighty man [h] that cannot ſave? yet thou, O LORD, art in the midſt of us, and we are called by thy name, leave us not.

601.
† Heb. The words of the dearth.
‡ Heb. Or meaner ones.
[a] 2 Sam. xv. 30.
[b] Joel i. 11.
[c] Chap. ii. 24.
[d] Pſ. xxv. 11. Iſa. xlviii. 11.
[e] Chap. xvii. 13.
[f] Pſ. xlvi. 1.
[g] See 2 Chron. xxxiii. 8. Pſ. cxxxii. 14.
[h] See Iſa. lix. 1.

v. 1—9. The dearth, here at large deſcribed, had been before intimated. It was the beginning of ſorrows, and a call to them by repentance to prevent the greater judgments in ſtore. We have here,

1. A moſt affecting deſcription, which God gives the prophet, of the diſtreſs this viſitation would bring upon the land, v. 1. The voice of bitter mourning and the cry of anguiſh is heard throughout Judah and Jeruſalem. The very gates languiſh, deſerted by thoſe who uſed to ſit in them, and every face gathers blackneſs, pining with famine, and bowed to the ground with weakneſs and deſpair, v. 2. The nobles, as well as people, are involved in the calamity: in vain their ſervants ſearch for water; the heavens give no ſhowers, the rivers are dry; they return with their veſſels empty, and, with their maſters, are overwhelmed with grief and ſhame at the diſappointment, v. 3. Parched up for want of rain, the earth cleaves in wide fiſſures, impenetrable to the plough, and leaves the huſbandman confounded under the affliction, v. 4. The very beaſts ſuffer: the loving hind, now grown unnatural, abandons her young for want of nouriſhment to ſupply them; the wild aſſes on the mountains top, ſcorched with the heat, pant for breath, and ſnuff the wind; and their eyes fail, famiſhed, becauſe there is no graſs. Note, (1.) The common bleſſings of life are uſually diſregarded: yet, if God ſtays the bottles of heaven, we ſhall quickly find a drop of water more valuable than mountains of gold. (2.) They that take no ſhame for their ſins juſtly provoke God to confound them with diſappointments. (3.) Many mourn over their miſeries, who ſhed no tears over the guilt which provokes them.

2. The prophet addreſſes his importunate prayer to God in this their wretched ſituation, and herein ſets them an example to pray for themſelves, and in what manner.

(1.) He begins with deep and humbling acknowledgments of their guilt and ſinfulneſs, O Lord, our iniquities teſtify againſt us; too great to be palliated or excuſed, too public to be denied; for our backſlidings are many, we have ſinned againſt thee; in open violation of thy law, and in oppoſition to all the methods of thy grace; for which they ſtand convicted before God, and own the juſtice of his judgments. Note, True penitents are liberal in ſelf-accuſation, and deſire never to cover their ſins, but to confeſs them in all their malignity.

(2.) He pleads earneſtly for mercy, though he acknowledges they deſerve puniſhment: do thou it for thy name's ſake, this being the ſinner's prevailing plea; not his own deſerts, but that God would glorify the riches of his ſovereign grace and power in the ſalvation of the unworthy.

(3.) He fills his mouth with arguments, to enforce his petition, drawn from their relation to God, and his glory concerned in their ſufferings: O the hope of Iſrael, their only hope, who had in time paſt ſaved them notwithſtanding their provocations, and to whoſe endleſs mercy they had ſtill recourſe: the ſaviour thereof in time of trouble; who had often heard and anſwered their cries and prayers in the day of their diſtreſs, and in whom they truſted that he would yet deliver them: why ſhouldſt thou be as a ſtranger in the land? an unconcerned ſpectator of their miſeries, as not intereſted in them; and as a way-faring man, that turneth aſide to tarry for a night? lodging at an inn, and departing without the leaſt connection formed with the people. Why ſhouldſt thou be as a man aſtoniſhed, as a mighty man that cannot ſave? for ſuch reflections would be caſt upon him by the heathen, if he ſuffered his own people to become a prey to their enemies, as if he wanted wiſdom or power to deliver them. Yet thou, O Lord, art in the midſt of us, no ſtranger among them, but had long dwelt in the temple at Jeruſalem, and therefore he begs that it may not now be forſaken; and we are called by thy name; in profeſſion, in outward covenant, the people of God; leave us not, for this is the conſummation of all miſery; to be deſerted by him is to be irrecoverably loſt and undone. Note, (1.) The moſt powerful arguments are thoſe drawn from God's own glory. (2.) They who fly to God as their alone hope and ſaviour in their deepeſt diſtreſs ſhall not periſh. (3.) If God ſeems to diſregard the afflictions of his people, they have only themſelves to blame for provoking him to leave them. (4.) They may ſeem deſerted for a while whom the Lord really loves, and he departs from them only to quicken their repentance, and awaken their importunity in prayer for his return.

10. ¶ Thus ſaith the LORD unto this people, Thus have [i] they loved to wander, they have not refrained their feet, therefore the LORD doth not accept them; [k] he will now remember their iniquity, and viſit their ſins. 11. Then ſaid the LORD unto me, [l] Pray not for this people for their good. 12. [m] When they faſt I will not hear their cry, and [n] when they offer burnt-offering and an oblation, I will not accept them: but [o] I will conſume them by the ſword, and by the famine, and by the peſtilence. 13. ¶ [p] Then ſaid I, Ah, LORD GOD, behold, the prophets ſay unto them, Ye ſhall not ſee the ſword, neither ſhall ye have famine, but I will give you aſſured peace in this place. 14. Then the LORD ſaid unto me, [q] The prophets propheſy lies in my name; [r] I ſent them not, neither have I commanded them, neither ſpake unto them: they propheſy unto you a falſe viſion and divination, and a thing of nought, and the deceit of their heart. 15. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD concerning the prophets that propheſy in my name, and I ſent them not, yet they ſay, Sword and famine ſhall not be in this land: by ſword and famine ſhall thoſe prophets be conſumed. 16. And the people to whom they propheſy, ſhall be caſt out in the ſtreets of Jeruſalem, becauſe of the famine, and the ſword, and [s] they ſhall have none to bury them, their wives, nor their ſons, nor their daughters: for I will pour their wickedneſs upon them.

[i] Chap. ii. 23, &c.
[k] Hoſ. viii. 13. & ix. 9.
[l] Ex. xxxii. 10. Chap. vii. 16. & xi. 14.
[m] Prov. i. 28. Iſa. i. 15. & lviii. 3. Chap. xi. 11. Ezek. viii. 18. Mic. iii. 4.
[n] Chap. vi. 20. & vii. 21, 22.
[o] Chap. ix. 16. Ezek. iv. 21.
[p] Chap. iv. 10.
[q] Chap. xxvii. 10.
[r] Chap. xxiii. 21. & xxvii. 15. & xxix. 8, 9.
[s] Pſ. lxxix. 3.

v. 10—16. If ought could have prevailed to obtain pardon or reſpite, it had been this interceſſion; but we find it in vain.

1. God forbids him to pray for what he cannot grant; and he will not have the precious breath of prayer waſted, v. 11. The meaſure of their iniquities was full, their ſentence paſſed. They have loved to wander, have taken delight in ſin, and, notwithſtanding the repeated warnings, they have not refrained their feet, but continued to that hour obſtinately impenitent; therefore the Lord doth not accept them: indeed it was impoſſible he ſhould: he will now remember their iniquity, and viſit their ſins, to puniſh them. In vain they faſted, prayed, ſacrificed; their ſervices were hypocritical, and, whilſt their iniquities were not put away, ſo far from being acceptable, they were an abomination. Devoted therefore to deſtruction, he threatens, I will conſume them by the ſword, and by the famine, and by the peſtilence, his three ſore judgments. Note, (1.) Whilſt men continue determinately bent in the ways of ſin, nothing can prevent their approaching ruin. (2.) They who bring down God's wrath on their heads by their iniquities, will not be able to caſt their deſtruction on any fatal neceſſity they were under, but owe it to their own choice, they have loved to wander. (3.) All formal duties and devotions are but hypocriſy and a provocation, when offered by an unregenerate heart.

2. The prophet, loth utterly to abandon his people, ſuggeſts that they had been deluded by the fair promiſes and confident aſſertions of the falſe prophets. A poor excuſe, it muſt be owned, when they had before warning of their danger, and rules to judge them by; but it was the beſt he could make for them, and therefore pleads it in their behalf. Note, When a caſe is really bad, charity will teach us to make the beſt of it.

3. God over-rules his plea. He diſclaims all thoſe prophets who pretended a commiſſion from him which he never gave. Their divination is falſe, a thing of nought, the deceit of their heart, groundleſs, worthleſs, and deluſive, v. 15. as will quickly appear, when the judgments of God ſhall begin with them, and that ſword and famine, which they ſo confidently pronounced would never come, ſhall conſume thoſe lying prophets, v. 16. And thoſe who have been deceived by them muſt periſh with them by ſword and famine, together with their wives, their ſons and their daughters, and their corpſes lie unburied in the ſtreets of Jeruſalem; God being determined to bring the puniſhment of their wickedneſs in full meaſure upon them. Note, (1.) They who flatter ſinners to their ruin ſhall themſelves receive the greater damnation. (2.) It will be no excuſe for the deceived that they followed thoſe who pretended a miſſion from God, when they have their Bibles, and ſome few faithful miniſters who warn them of their deluſions. (3.) When ſinners ſuffer, they may look upon their wickedneſs as the cauſe of it. And when the deceived and deceiver lie down in hell together, they will prove but miſerable comforters to each other.

17. ¶ Therefore thou ſhalt ſay this word unto them, [t] Let mine eyes run down with tears night and day, and let them not ceaſe: for the virgin daughter of my people is broken with a great breach, with a very grievous blow. 18. [u] If I go forth into the field, then behold the ſlain with the ſword; and if I enter into the city, then behold them that are ſick with famine; yea, both the prophet and the prieſt go about into a land that they know not. 19. Haſt thou utterly rejected Judah? hath thy ſoul lothed Zion? why haſt thou ſmitten us, and there is no healing for us? [x] we looked for peace, and there is no good; and for the time of healing, and behold trouble: 20. We acknowledge, O LORD, our wickedneſs, and the iniquity of our fathers, for [y] we have ſinned againſt thee. 21. Do not abhor us, for thy name's ſake, do not diſgrace the throne of thy glory: [z] remember, [a] break not thy covenant with us. 22. Are there any among [b] the vanities of the Gentiles that can cauſe rain? or can the heavens give ſhowers? [c] art not thou he, O LORD our God? therefore we will wait upon thee: for thou haſt made all theſe things.

[t] Chap. ix. 1. & xiii. 17. Lam. i. 16. & ii. 18.
[u] Ezek. vii. 15.
[x] Chap. viii. 15.
[y] Pſ. cvi. 6. Dan. ix. 8.
[z] Pſ. lxxiv. 20. & cvi. 45.
[a] Pſ. lxxxix. 39.
[b] Deut. xxxii. 21.
[c] Pſ. cxxxv. 7. & cxlvii. 8. Iſa. xxx. 23. Chap. v. 24. & x. 13.
[d] Iſa. viii. 17.

v. 17—22. The deſolations of Judah affect the prophet's heart, and he is permitted to lament them; and though diſcouraged from prayer, he doth not eſteem it an abſolute prohibition; therefore once more he intercedes in behalf of this guilty people.

1. He weeps, with ceaſeleſs ſorrow, over the dreadful calamities of his people, and God enjoins him to inform them of the cauſe of his tears, if peradventure it might affect their hearts with ſome apprehenſion of their impending miſeries, v. 17. Wherever he went, nothing but horrid ſcenes of devaſtation preſented themſelves to his view. Without, the Chaldean ſword ſtrewed the ground with the corpſes of the ſlain; within the city famine raged, and every where the dying groans were heard of thoſe who periſhed for want of food; and both the prieſt and prophet, thoſe who had been the deceivers of the people, are ſharers in their ſufferings, dragged captives into a ſtrange land, or wandring as vagabonds. Some underſtand this of the true prophets, ſuch as Ezekiel and Daniel, who were carried into Babylon with the reſt, and which would excite freſh grief to ſee the righteous involved with the wicked. Note, Though we may not refuſe pronouncing the ſinner's doom, it ſhould appear we deſire not the woful day; and they, who will not hear our warnings, ſhould ſee our weeping over their loſt ſouls.

2. Once more, he cannot keep ſilence: he pours out his prayer, if there be but the peradventure of hope.

(1.) He humbly expoſtulates. Haſt thou utterly rejected Judah? that once favoured family, that ſtock from which Shiloh comes; hath thy ſoul lothed Zion? that once loved name, where God delighted to dwell: why haſt thou ſmitten us, and there is no healing for us? not merely with the rod of affliction, but with the ſword of judgment, whoſe wound is incurable. Far other expectations had they entertained: we looked for peace; ſuch was their fond hope, and ſo had their prophets flattered them; and there is no good; their affairs went from evil to worſe: and for a time of healing, after the heavy chaſtiſement they had endured; and behold trouble, without proſpect of its end or abatement. But will God be no more entreated?

(2.) He confeſſes they deſerve all and more than all they have yet endured. We acknowledge, O Lord, our wickedneſs, that it is great and aggravated, and the iniquity of our fathers, whoſe examples they imitated, and filled the meaſure of their iniquities; for we have ſinned againſt thee, and juſtly provoked his wrath and indignation againſt them. They own their guilt, they caſt themſelves on his mercy; which,

3. The prophet, in their behalf, earneſtly begs, Do not abhor us; if not embraced with the wonted tokens of divine favour, yet let us not be treated with utter deteſtation, and ſuffered to be entirely rooted out; for thy name's ſake, for they have nothing but this to plead; his honour is concerned in their ruin; do not diſgrace the throne of thy glory, that temple where his honour dwelt; and if this was laid deſolate, the heathen would triumph as if their gods were greater than Jehovah, that ſat between the cherubims. Remember, break not thy covenant with us. Indeed the covenant was broken on their part; but, on their penitent return, they might ſtill plead his promiſe, and would prove his fidelity. Note, (1.) The moſt prevailing plea in prayer is to be drawn from God's glory, as intereſted in our ſalvation. (2.) It is a bitter grief to the faithful heart to ſee religion diſgraced, and God blaſphemed. (3) We muſt plead God's covenant, not as doubting his fidelity to his promiſes, but for the encouragement of our own faith.

4. He diſclaims all dependance upon idols, and looks to God alone for relief under the preſent diſtreſs by reaſon of the drought. Are there any among the vanities of the Gentiles that can cauſe rain? No. All theſe idols cannot produce one drop of dew. Or can the heavens give ſhowers? No. All ſecond cauſes only can act according to the will of the firſt mover. Therefore they will look from theſe to him who alone bindeth up the waters in the thick cloud. Art not thou he, O Lord our God? on whom our confidence is placed, and who alone canſt open the windows of heaven. Therefore we will wait upon thee, till thou art pleaſed to anſwer our prayer, and cauſe the clouds to drop down from above: for thou haſt made all theſe things, the heavens and earth, and all that in them is; even the rain hath a father, and the drops of dew are formed by him, and deſcend at his command. Note, (1.) We cannot place too little dependance on the creature, nor too much on the Creator. (2.) They who wait upon God muſt wait for him; and they who patiently continue ſo to do will not be diſappointed of their hope.

CHAP. XV.

Notwithſtanding the prophet's prayer, (1.) God abandons the people to ruin. (2.) The prophet himſelf complains to God of his continual ſtruggle with his perſecutors, ver. 10. God aſſures him that he ſhall be taken under ſpecial protection, ver. 11—14. He appeals to God concerning his ſincerity in the diſcharge of his prophetical office, and thinks it hard he ſhould not have more of the comfort of it, ver. 15—18. Freſh ſecurity is given him that, if he continues faithful, God will continue his care and favour to him, ver. 19—21.

1. THEN ſaid the LORD unto me, [a] Though [b] Moſes and [c] Samuel ſtood before me, yet my mind could not be towards this people; caſt them out of my ſight, and let them go forth. 2. And it ſhall come to paſs, if they ſay unto thee, Whither ſhall we go forth? then thou ſhalt tell them, Thus ſaith the LORD, [d] Such as are for death, to death; and ſuch as are for the ſword, to the ſword; and ſuch as are for the famine, to the famine; and ſuch as are for the captivity, to the captivity. 3. And I will [e] appoint over them four kinds, ſaith the LORD: the ſword to ſlay, and the dogs to tear, and [f] the fowls of the heaven, and the beaſts of the earth, to devour and deſtroy. 4. And I will cauſe them [g] to be removed into all kingdoms of the earth; becauſe of [h] Manaſſeth the ſon of Hezekiah king of Judah, for that which he did in Jeruſalem. 5. For [i] who ſhall have pity upon thee, O Jeruſalem? or who ſhall bemone thee? or who ſhall go aſide † to aſk how thou doſt? 6. [k] Thou haſt forſaken me, ſaith the LORD, thou art gone backward: therefore will I ſtretch out my hand againſt thee, and deſtroy thee; [l] I am weary with repenting. 7. And I will fan them with a fan in the gates ‡ of the land: I will bereave them of children, I will deſtroy my people, ſith [m] they return not from their ways. 8. Their widows are increaſed to me above the ſand of the ſeas: I have brought upon them § againſt the mother of the young men, a ſpoiler at noon-day: I have cauſed him to fall upon it ſuddenly, and terrors upon the city. 9. [n] She that hath born ſeven, languiſheth: ſhe hath given up the ghoſt, [o] her ſun is gone down while it was yet day: ſhe hath been aſhamed and confounded, and the reſidue of them will I deliver to the ſword before their enemies, ſaith the LORD.

a Ezek. xiv. 14, &c.
b Exod. xxxii. 11, 14. Pſ. xcix. 6.
c 1 Sam. vii. 9.
d Chap. xliii. 11. Ezek. v. 2, 12. Zech. xi. 9.
e Lev. xxvi. 16, &c. f Chap. vii. 33.
g Deut. xxviii. 25. Chap. xxiv. 9. Ezek. xxiii. 46.
h 2 Kings xxi. 11. & xxiii. 26. & xxiv. 3.
i Iſa. li. 19.
† Heb. To aſk thy peace.
k Chap. ii. 13, 19.
l Hoſ. xiii. 14.
‡ Or of the earth. Lev. xxvi. 33.
m Iſa. ix. 13. Chap. v. 3. Am. iv. 10, 11.
§ Or againſt the mother-city, a young man ſpoiling, &c. or againſt the mother, and the young men.
n 1 Sam. ii. 5.
o Am. viii. 9.

v. 1—9. When the meaſure of a nation's iniquities are full, then vengeance to the uttermoſt will overtake them, and all interceſſion for them is vain.

1. The decree is gone forth; terrible, irreverſible. The greateſt favourites of heaven, the mightieſt men in prayer, if they were again upon earth, could avail nothing. They are abandoned to their fate, and doomed to deſtruction, v. 1. And if, when their ruin was told them, they ſhould tauntingly ſay, Whither ſhall we go forth? the anſwer is ready. According to the divine decree, ſome ſhould die by the ſword, by peſtilence, by famine, and their carcaſes unburied, v. 3. be food for dogs and the fowls of heaven, and the remnant go into a miſerable captivity, v. 4. not a friend ſhall remain to pity their deplorable caſe, or to teſtify the leaſt concern for them, v. 5. God's patience is at an end; his hand ſtretched out to deſtroy them without ſparing, v. 6. and they ſhall be diſperſed as chaff before the fan: a ſpoiler at noon-day, Nebuchadnezzar, with the Chaldean army, ſhall come upon them openly, ſuddenly conſume their men of war, increaſe the number of their widows, v. 8. and leave the mothers childleſs, robbed of thoſe darlings which were as the light of their eyes; aſhamed, confounded, and deprived of that ſupport on which they truſted; part ſhall be ſlain with the famine, and the reſidue fall by the ſword of the enemy, when Jeruſalem ſhall be taken. Note, (1.) God's ſpirit will not always ſtrive, nor his patience wait for ſinners: when their day of grace is trifled away, the day of recompence will overtake them. (2.) When the Lord begins, he will make an end. Let us fear to provoke his indignation, leſt repentance ſhould come too late.

2. The cauſe of theſe judgments is their ſins, paſt and preſent: for God never ſmites without cauſe. Their former iniquities under Manaſſeh, ſon of Hezekiah; his idolatry, murders, and abominations, aggravated by the conſideration how horridly he had degenerated from his pious father's ways, cried for vengeance; and the meaſure of the ſins of that generation was filled by the impenitence of the preſent. They forſook God, went backward, apoſtate from his commands and ways and worſhip, and, notwithſtanding all the methods he had uſed to reclaim them both by his miniſters and his providences, they returned not from their ways. And when ſinners perſiſt in their wickedneſs, and refuſe to hearken, they may be aſſured eternal perdition will be the conſequence.

10. ¶ [p] Wo is me, my mother, that thou haſt born me a man of ſtrife, and a man of contention to the whole earth: I have neither lent on uſury, nor men have lent to me on uſury, yet every one of them doth curſe me. 11. The LORD ſaid, Verily it ſhall be well with thy remnant, verily [q] I will † cauſe the enemy to entreat thee well in the time of evil, and in the time of affliction. 12. Shall iron break the northern iron and the ſteel? 13. [r] Thy ſubſtance and thy treaſures will I give to the ſpoil without price, and that for all thy ſins, even in all thy borders. 14. And [s] I will make thee to paſs with thine enemies, into a land which thou knoweſt not: for [t] a fire is kindled in mine anger, which ſhall burn upon you.

p Job iii. 1, &c. Chap. xx. 14.
q Chap. xl. 4.
† Or intreat the enemy for thee.
r Chap. xvii. 3.
s Chap. xvii. 4.
t Deut. xxxii. 22.

v. 10—14. Jeremiah, returned from his public miniſtry, in private here pours out his complaints unto God.

1. He bewails his unhappy caſe; perſecuted and reviled by his ungrateful countrymen; and this not without ſome appearance of impatience, as if angry with his mother for having born him: ſo hard it is, under great provocations, to keep the heart quiet. He complains he was a man of ſtrife: not contentious in his own ſpirit; but abuſed for his faithfulneſs, and every occaſion taken to quarrel with him, though he had given them not the leaſt cauſe: he had neither lent on uſury, nor borrowed; had not entangled himſelf with ſecular affairs, but given himſelf up wholly to the work of his miniſtry; was engaged in no tranſactions and trade that could give occaſion to debate, or afford matter for litigious ſuits at law: yet they curſed him; treated him with contempt or with abhorrence, pouring out curſes upon him for the fidelity he ſhewed in delivering the meſſages he received from God. Note, (1.) It is the lot of the faithful miniſters of God to meet with the baſeſt uſage, and the moſt ungrateful return for their labours. (2.) The goſpel teaches us to follow peace with all men; yet, through the perverſeneſs of the world, too commonly it happens, that when we ſpeak to them of peace they make them ready to battle. (3.) Deſirable as it is to live in friendſhip and quiet with thoſe around us, it muſt never be purchaſed by baſe compliances, or flattering them in their ſins. (4.) Miniſters of God muſt not entangle themſelves with the affairs of this world; the care of men's ſouls ought wholly to engroſs their time and thoughts.

2. The Lord in mercy anſwers him with gracious aſſurances of his protection: Verily it ſhall be well with thy remnant. The words are in form of an oath, aſſuring him of God's bleſſing during the reſidue of his days: whatever became of the people, he ſhould be preſerved. Thoſe very enemies, that were the rod of God's indignation to his countrymen, ſhould ſhew him kindneſs and favour, as was fulfilled chap. xxxix. 11, 12. Note, (1.) They who are faithful to God, he will be careful of them. He hath in his hands the hearts of all men, and can raiſe us up friends where we leaſt expected them. (2.) The zealous miniſters of God have often found protection from thoſe who ſhew no concern about religion, when bitterly perſecuted by the falſe profeſſors of it.

3. God threatens his enemies with ruin. Shall iron break the northern iron? Either the Jews ſhould not be able to hurt him, who had been ſet, chap. i. 18. as an iron pillar againſt them; or rather, all their efforts to reſiſt the northern army of the Chaldeans ſhould be uſeleſs; their ſubſtance and treaſures ſhall fall an eaſy prey; in ſhameful captivity they ſhould be led to Babylon; and the heavy wrath of God purſue them; and this the juſt puniſhment of their ſins, aggravated and univerſal in all their borders, the corruption of their manners being general, and ſpread from one end of the land to the other.

Before Christ 601.

15. ¶ O LORD, thou knoweſt, remember me, and viſit me, and [u] revenge me of my perſecutors, take me not away in thy long-ſuffering: know that [x] for thy ſake I have ſuffered rebuke. 16. Thy words were found, and I did [y] eat them, and thy word was unto me the joy and rejoicing of mine heart, for † I am called by thy name, O LORD God of hoſts. 17. [z] I ſat not in the aſſembly of the mockers, nor rejoiced: I ſat alone becauſe of thy hand: for thou haſt filled me [a] with indignation. 18. Why is [b] my pain perpetual? and my wound incurable, which refuſeth to be healed? wilt thou be altogether unto me as [c] a liar, and as [d] waters that fail? 19. ¶ Therefore thus ſaith the LORD, [e] If thou return, then will I bring thee again, and thou ſhalt ſtand before me: and if thou [f] take forth the precious from the vile, [g] thou ſhalt be as my mouth: let them return unto thee, but return not thou unto them. 20. And I will [h] make thee unto this people a fenced braſen wall, and they ſhall fight againſt thee, but [i] they ſhall not prevail againſt thee; for I am with thee to ſave thee, and to deliver thee, ſaith the LORD. 21. And I will deliver thee out of the hand of the wicked, and I will redeem thee out of the hand of the terrible.

[u] 2 Tim. iv. 14.
[x] Mat. v. 10, 11.
[y] Job xxiii. 12. Ezek. iii. 1, 3. Rev. x. 9.
† Heb. Thy name is called upon me.
[z] Pſ. i. 1. & xxvi. 4, 5.
[a] Mark iii. 5.
[b] Chap. xxx. 15.
[c] Chap. i. 17—19.
[d] Job vi. 15. &c.
[e] Zech. iii. 7.
[f] Ezek. xxii. 26. & xliv. 23.
[g] 2 Cor. v. 20.
[h] Chap. i. 18. & vi. 27. Ezek. iii. 9.
[i] Pſ. cxxix. 2. Chap. xx. 11, 12.

v. 15—21. We have here,

1. The prophet's earneſt application to God, appealing to him who ſearcheth the heart for his integrity, and intreating the fulfilment of his promiſes.

(1.) He prays; O Lord, thou knoweſt my innocence, my ſufferings, and the malice of my enemies; remember me for good, and viſit me with thy ſalvation, and revenge me of my perſecutors. Perhaps this was his infirmity; or he deſired it for God's glory, in whoſe name he had ſpoken: take me not away in thy long-ſuffering; give me my life for a prey, when they are cut off; or leave me not to their power and malice. He acknowledges that to the long-ſuffering of God he muſt owe it; the beſt, in the rigour of juſtice, being obnoxious to God's wrath. Know, acknowledge and make it evident to my enemies, by thy interpoſition on my behalf, that for thy ſake I have ſuffered rebuke, becauſe of his fidelity in diſcharging his office: and when this is really the caſe, we may confidently expect God will plead our quarrel, and vindicate our integrity from all the revilings of men.

(2.) He pleads the diligence he uſed in executing his commiſſion, the delight he took in God's word, and his carefulneſs to keep himſelf from every ſinful compliance with them. Thy words were found, and I did eat them, as a hungry man his food: his ears were attentive to drink in what God delivered to him; he carefully thought over and digeſted the words in his mind, and his heart feaſted upon them: thy word was unto me the joy and rejoicing of my heart: either he hoped the terrible threatnings he brought would move the people to repentance; or the gracious aſſurance that God would ſupport him encouraged him; or, above all, amidſt the dark judgments the promiſes of the incarnation of the Meſſiah, and his great ſalvation, which mingled therewith, revived and comforted his ſoul. For I am called by thy name, O Lord of hoſts, which he delighted in as his greateſt honour, though others perhaps turned it to his reproach. I ſat not in the aſſembly of mockers, partaking with them in their ſins, or by ſilence conniving at their wickedneſs; or with them that make merry, levity being inconſiſtent with the ſeriouſneſs of his character, and the melancholy meſſage he bore; and rejoiced not, even partaking of any lawful recreation, which the dreadful evils he beheld approaching would not ſuffer him to taſte. I ſat alone, meditating on his meſſage, and mourning over the people, becauſe of thy hand, which he ſaw lighting down upon the nation in vengeance; or becauſe of the ſpirit of prophecy which he felt; for thou haſt filled me with indignation; either the indignation of the people againſt him, or his diſpleaſure againſt them for their impenitence, or a ſenſe of the heavy wrath of God ready to overtake them. Note, (1.) The word of God is the ſweeteſt repaſt to the believer's ſoul, and thence he derives his moſt reviving draughts of conſolation. (2.) When we have work to do for God, we muſt not only forſake what is in itſelf ſinful, but forego what to others might be innocent. (3.) There is a holy indignation without ſin, when miniſters grieve over the hardneſs of men's hearts.

(3.) He expoſtulates with God: it ſeems with ſomething of a murmuring ſpirit: why is my pain perpetual? which he ſuffered for the people's ſake in his own mind, or from their ill uſage. Why is my wound incurable, which refuſeth to be healed? there appearing no hopes of a change for the better, or any end of their reproaches. Wilt thou be altogether unto me as a liar, and as waters that fail? leaving him in their hands, though he had promiſed to deliver him, chap. i. 19. and giving his enemies occaſion to reproach his confidence? No. God will not ſuffer him to be thus confounded, nor any that put their truſt in him. Therefore,

2. God anſwers his prayer. He had expreſſed ſome diſtruſt and impatience; therefore, ſays God, if thou wilt return, aſhamed of this impatience, and humbly confeſſing it; then I will bring thee again to peace of conſcience, and the exerciſe of the miniſtry with which God had entruſted him; and thou ſhalt ſtand before me, eſtabliſhed in his office as a prophet: and if thou take forth the precious from the vile, ſpeaking comfort to God's people and terror to the impenitent, thou ſhalt be as my mouth, employed as God's mouth to the people. Let them return unto thee, in penitence and obedience to thy word; but return not thou unto them, giving way in the leaſt, keeping back a ſyllable of the threatnings to be denounced againſt them, or making any compliance with them: and then, if he approved himſelf thus faithful, God would fulfil to him his promiſe, chap. i. 18. making him a brazen wall, againſt which all the efforts of the princes ſhould be vain and impotent: God's preſence ſhould comfort, his power ſupport him, and ſave him from his foes, however many or mighty, v. 20, 21. Note, (1.) If we would return to the enjoyment of comfort, we muſt be reſtored to the right ſpirit from which we have departed. (2.) They who miniſter before God muſt carefully divide the word of truth, giving to the faithful their portion of comfort, and to the ungodly faithful warnings of their danger. (3.) When we approve ourſelves faithful, we ſhall be ſupported againſt all oppoſition; God's ſtrength ſhall be made perfect in our weakneſs, and all our terrible foes ſhall be compelled to lick the duſt.

CHAP. XVI.

In this chapter, (1.) The greatneſs of the Jews calamity is illuſtrated by prohibitions given to the prophet, neither to ſet up a houſe of his own, ver. 1—4. nor to go into the houſe of mourning, ver. 5, 6, 7, nor into the houſe of feaſting, ver. 8, 9. (2.) God is juſtified in theſe ſevere proceedings againſt them, by an account of their great wickedneſs, ver. 10—13. (3.) An intimation is given of mercy in reſerve, ver. 14, 15. But, (4.) They muſt firſt ſmart ſeverely, ver. 16—18. (5.) The prophet prays for and expreſſes his faith in the converſion of the Gentiles, ver. 19—21.

1. THE word of the LORD came alſo unto me, ſaying, 2. Thou ſhalt not take thee a wife, neither ſhalt thou have ſons nor daughters in this place. 3. For thus ſaith the LORD concerning the ſons and concerning the daughters that are born in this place, and concerning their mothers that bare them, and concerning their fathers that begat them in this land, 4. [a] They ſhall die of grievous deaths, [b] they ſhall not be lamented, neither ſhall they be buried: but they ſhall be as dung upon the face of the earth, and they ſhall be conſumed by the ſword, and by famine, and [c] their carcaſes ſhall be meat for the fowls of heaven, and for the beaſts of the earth. 5. For thus ſaith the LORD, [d] Enter not into the houſe of † mourning, neither go to lament, nor bemone them: for I have taken away my peace from this people, ſaith the LORD, even loving-kindneſs and mercies. 6. Both the great and the ſmall ſhall die in this land: they ſhall not be buried, neither ſhall men lament for them, nor [e] cut themſelves, nor [f] make themſelves bald for them. 7. Neither ſhall men ‡ tear themſelves for them in mourning to comfort them for the dead, neither ſhall men [g] give them the cup of conſolation to drink for their father or for their mother. 8. Thou ſhalt not alſo go into the houſe of feaſting, to ſit with them to eat and to drink. 9. For thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, Behold, [h] I will cauſe to ceaſe out of this place in your eyes, and in your days, the voice of mirth, and the voice of gladneſs, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride.

[a] Chap. xv. 2.
[b] Chap. xxv. 33.
[c] Pſ. lxxix. 2. Chap. vii. 33. & xxxiv. 20.
[d] Ezek. xxiv. 17, 22.
† Or mourning feaſt.
[e] Lev. xix. 28. Deut. xiv. 1.
[f] Iſa. xxii. 12.
‡ Or Break bread for them. Deut. xxvi. 14. Job xlii. 11. Ezek. xxiv. 17.
[g] Prov. xxxi. 6, 7.
[h] Iſa. xxiv. 7, 8. Chap. vii. 34. & xxv. 10. Ezek. xxvi. 13. Hoſ. ii. 11. Rev. xviii. 23.

v. 1—9. Example is often more effectual than precept. He, who was ſent to warn others of the deſtruction of the land, muſt by his conduct ſhew his aſſured conviction of the truth of what he preached. They, who are urging men to look to the eternal world, muſt ſhew their own hearts fixed upon it, by their holy ſelf-denial and deadneſs to every thing on earth. Three things are forbidden the prophet, and the reaſons for theſe prohibitions ſubjoined.

1. He muſt not marry, nor have a family. Not as if a life of celibacy were enjoined or deſirable, but becauſe of the diſtreſs coming upon the land, which would make a family a burden, and occaſion the bittereſt anguiſh from the grievous deaths of thoſe ſo near and dear to him. For God was about to pour down his judgments; to ſend forth death in all its terrors, armed with the famine, peſtilence, and ſword; and to cover the earth with carcaſes ſo numerous, that there ſhould not be graves to receive them, nor any to lament over or to bury them.

Before Chriſt 601.

2. He muſt not go to the houſe of mourning, v. 5. With friendly ſympathy he had, no doubt, been wont to weep with thoſe that wept; but now he muſt abſtain, and ſhew no uſual expreſſion of grief for his neareſt friend or relation, becauſe either the dead were removed from the evils to come, or rather as a ſign to them of the greatneſs of the approaching calamities, when death would make ſuch terrible devaſtation, that even the great ſhould lie unburied on the ground, and none be left to ſhew the laſt kind office to the corpſe, or to mourn over it. God having removed his peace from the land, a conſumption utter and univerſal is decreed againſt it.

3. He muſt not go to the houſe of feaſting, v. 8. He had been accuſtomed, no doubt, to join with his friends when they made an entertainment, and innocently to partake of their repaſt; but now mirth was unſeaſonable; and when he foreſaw the terrible wrath of God impending, he wanted by his own conduct to awaken their concern. The voice of mirth and bridal ſongs were about to ceaſe, and no voice to be heard but the ſhricks of the miſerable and the groans of the dying.

10. ¶ And it ſhall come to paſs when thou ſhalt ſhew this people all theſe words, and they ſhall ſay unto thee, [i] Wherefore hath the LORD pronounced all this great evil againſt us? or [k] what is our iniquity? or what is our ſin that we have committed againſt the LORD our God? 11. Then ſhalt thou ſay unto them, Becauſe [l] your fathers have forſaken me, ſaith the LORD, and have walked after other gods, and have ſerved them, and have worſhipped them, and have forſaken me, and have not kept my law: 12. And [m] ye have done worſe than your fathers, (for behold, [n] ye walk every one after the † imagination of his evil heart, that they may not hearken unto me) 13. Therefore will I [o] caſt you out of this land, into a land that ye know not, neither ye nor your fathers, and there ſhall ye ſerve other gods day and night, where I will not ſhew you favour.

[i] Chap. v. 19. & xiii. 22.
[k] Mal. iii. 13.
[l] Deut. xxix. 25. Chap. ii. 5. & xxii. 9.
[m] Chap. vii. 26.
[n] Chap. xiii. 10.
† Or Stubbornneſs.
[o] Deut. iv. 27. & xxviii. 64, 65.

v. 10—13. We have here,

1. The inſolent and unhumbled challenge this hardened people ſhould make, beholding his conduct and hearing his warnings. They would aſk, Wherefore hath the Lord pronounced all this great evil againſt us? as if they had never given him any provocation: or, What is our iniquity? or what is our ſin that we have committed againſt the Lord our God? They pretend a claim to God, as their God, and would deny the charge the prophet continued to lay againſt them; ſo blind, hardened, and obſtinate, are ſinners in the error of their ways; and, inſtead of juſtifying God in his judgments, quarrel with his viſitations as unjuſt or ſevere.

2. The prophet has his anſwer given him, and enough to ſilence their preſumption. Their fathers iniquities, backſlidings, diſobedience, and idolatries, were great and ſhameful, v. 11. but their own far exceeded: inſtead of being warned by the judgments they ſuffered, or being led to repentance by God's patience, they had grown worſe and worſe, filling up what was lacking of the wickedneſs of their predeceſſors; more perverſely ſet on their own evil ways, and more reſolutely hardened againſt all the rebukes of God's prophets, v. 12. therefore no wonder that, as the juſt puniſhment of their iniquities, God would caſt them out of that good land which they had defiled, ſend them far off into a miſerable captivity, make that iolatry which had been their ſin their grievous puniſhment, and withdraw from them every token of favour that might alleviate their miſeries.

14. ¶ Therefore behold, the [p] days come, ſaith the LORD, that it ſhall no more be ſaid, The LORD liveth that brought up the children of Iſrael out of the land of Egypt; 15. But, The LORD liveth that brought up the children of Iſrael from the land of the north, and from all the lands whither he had driven them: and [q] I will bring them again into their land that I gave unto their fathers. 16. ¶ Behold, I will ſend for many [r] fiſhers, ſaith the LORD, and they ſhall fiſh them; and after will I ſend for many hunters, and they ſhall hunt them from every mountain, and from every hill, and out of the holes of the rocks. 17. For [s] mine eyes are upon all their ways: they are not hid from my face, neither is their iniquity hid from mine eyes. 18. And firſt I will recompenſe their iniquity, and their ſin double; becauſe [t] they have defiled my land, they have filled mine inheritance with the carcaſes of their deteſtable and abominable things. 19. O LORD, [u] my ſtrength and my fortreſs, and [x] my refuge in the day of affliction, [y] the Gentiles ſhall come unto thee from the ends of the earth, and ſhall ſay, Surely our fathers have inherited lies, vanity, and things [z] wherein there is no profit. 20. Shall a man make gods unto himſelf, and [a] they are no gods? 21. Therefore behold, I will this once cauſe them to know, I will cauſe them to know mine hand, and my might, and they ſhall know that [b] my name is the LORD.

[p] Iſa. xliii. 18. Chap. xxiii. 7, 8.
[q] Chap. iii. 18.
[r] Am. iv. 2. Hab. i. 15.
[s] Job xxxiv. 21. Prov. v. 21. & xv. 3. Chap. xxxii. 19.
[t] Ezek. xliii. 7, 9.
[u] Pſ. xviii. 1, 2.
[x] Chap. xvii. 17. Nah. i. 7.
[y] Mal. i. 11.
[z] Iſa. xliv. 10.
[a] Chap. ii. 11. Gal. iv. 8.
[b] Chap. xxxii. 2.

v. 14—21. In judgment God ſtill remembers mercy.

1. He gives them hopes that a glorious day of deliverance ſhould come, ſo much greater than that of their redemption from Egypt, that in a meaſure it ſhould obliterate the mention of it, v. 14, 15. And this was primarily fulfilled in the recovery of the Jews from Babylon, and the countries of the north whither they had been carried away captives, and may have reference to that more glorious expected event, when the Lord ſhall call them into his church from their preſent diſperſion.

2. Before he ſhewed them this favour he would ſeverely viſit their iniquities. As fiſhes taken in an evil net, and beaſts in the hunter's ſnare, ſo would God give them up to the Chaldeans to be taken and deſtroyed, who ſhould purſue them into all their lurking places, and drag them into captivity, v. 16. Their evil ways, however ſecret, were not hid from God's eye: he marked their impious rites and abominable idolatries, the carcaſes of their deteſtable things, offered to their idols, ſo many, and ſo univerſally practiſed through the land, that they had filled God's inheritance with their horrid profanations. For this therefore he threatens to recompenſe their ſin double; not beyond what it deſerved, but double above all other viſitations he had brought upon them, or much more than they feared or apprehended. Note, (1.) No darkneſs can hide the ſinner from God's eye. (2.) Flight is in vain when he purſues: no cave, no mountain, can then conceal the guilty from his judgment.

3. The prophet is comforted not only in the proſpect that the puniſhment of his people, however ſevere, would have an end, but alſo with the foreſight of the converſion of the Gentiles; O Lord, my ſtrength and fortreſs, who had hitherto ſupported him amidſt all his infirmities, and againſt all his enemies; and my refuge in the day of affliction, who would preſerve him amidſt all the approaching evils: the Gentiles ſhall come unto thee from the ends of the earth; either when the Jews returned from Babylon, and many proſelytes came up with them; or when the goſpel was preached, and the Gentiles became obedient to the faith, renouncing the idols of their fathers, convinced of their vanity and unprofitableneſs, v. 19. and aſtoniſhed at their abſurdity, who ever could think thoſe to be gods which were the workmanſhip of their own hands, wood or ſtone, v. 20. But now God will cauſe them to know better, making them, by his efficacious grace, acquainted with his own glorious perfections as the only living Jehovah, with the goſpel of his dear Son, and the way of life and ſalvation attainable through the Redeemer.

Some chuſe rather to underſtand all this of the Jews, called Gentiles, becauſe of their imitation of their ſins, and now quitting with ſhame their idolatries, and returning to the one living and true God. Note, (1.) They who make God their refuge ſhall find ſupport under the heavieſt afflictions. (2.) When the ſinner, convinced and aſhamed of his folly, begins bitterly to reflect upon himſelf, then God will again reſtore him to his favour, and make him know once more the wonders of his grace.

CHAP. XVII.

In this chapter, (1). God convicts the Jews of idolatry, and condemns them to captivity for it, ver. 1—4. (2.) He ſhews them the folly of all their carnal confidences, and that this was one of the ſins upon which his controverſy with them was grounded, ver. 5—11. (3.) The prophet appeals to God on account of the malice of his enemies, committing himſelf to the divine protection, and begging of God to appear for him, ver. 12—18. (4.) God by the prophet warns the people to keep holy the ſabbath day, aſſuring them that, if they did, it ſhould be the lengthening out of their tranquillity; but if not, God would, by ſome deſolating judgment, aſſert the honour of his ſabbaths, ver. 19—27.

1. THE ſin of Judah is written with [a] a pen of iron, and with the † point of a diamond; [b] it is graven upon the table of their heart, and upon the horns of your altars: 2. ‡ Whilſt [c] their children remember their altars and [d] their groves by the green trees upon the high hills. 3. O my mountain in the field, [e] I will give thy ſubſtance, and all thy treaſures to the ſpoil, and thy high places for ſin, throughout all thy borders. 4. And thou, even § thyſelf ſhalt diſcontinue from thine heritage that I gave thee, and I will cauſe thee to ſerve thine enemies in the land which thou knoweſt not: for ye have kindled [f] a fire in mine anger, which ſhall burn for ever.

[a] Job xix. 24.
† Heb. Nail.
[b] Prov. iii. 3.
‡ Or, As they remember their children, ſo remember they their altars.
[c] Chap. vii. 18.
[d] Judg. iii. 7. Iſa. i. 29. & xvii. 8. Chap. ii. 20.
[e] Chap. xv. 13.
§ Heb. In thyſelf.
[f] Deut. xxxii. 22. Chap. xv. 14.

v. 1—4. They ſeemed to wonder, chap. xvi. 10. what they had done to deſerve ſuch heavy judgments. But ſurely there was cauſe abundant given.

1. The ſin of Judah is written with a pen of iron, with the point of a diamond; deep, legible, and laſting are the characters; the love of their iniquities is graven upon their hearts; the horns of the altars of their idols, ſprinkled with the blood of their ſacrifices, proclaimed their guilt; and their very children, trained up in their idolatrous rites, were evidences againſt them; or, as they remember their children, ſo do they their altars, with the ſame fondneſs, and ſo ſtrongly attached to their abominations. Note, The iniquity of ſinners is written before God. If the blood of Jeſus blot not out the deadly charge, woe unto them in the day when the judgment ſhall ſit, and the books be opened.

2. The charge being proved, judgment is paſſed on them. The city and temple, called the mountain of the Lord's houſe, Mic. iv. 1. are devoted to the ſpoil, with all their treaſures, for the ſin of the people throughout the land. The ſin was univerſal, and ſo would be the deſolation. And thou, even thyſelf, or in thee, thoſe who dwell in the land, or through thyſelf, the ruin is of thy own ſeeking, ſhalt diſcontinue from the heritage that I gave thee, led captive into a ſtrange land, and doomed to hard ſervitude under their tyrannical conquerors, and this through the fierce anger of the Lord kindled againſt them, and which would burn againſt the impenitent among them, not only all their days, but to eternity. Note, If ſinners continue hardened under God's preſent judgments, they will find theſe but the beginning of ſorrows, and the ſparks of thoſe everlaſting burnings which are kindling for them.

5. ¶ Thus ſaith the LORD, Curſed be the man that truſteth in man, and [g] maketh fleſh his arm, and whoſe heart departeth from the LORD. 6. For he ſhall be [h] like the heath in the deſart, and ſhall not ſee when good cometh, but ſhall inhabit the parched places in the wilderneſs, in [i] a ſalt land, and not inhabited. 7. [k] Bleſſed is the man that truſteth in the LORD, and whoſe hope the LORD is. 8. For he ſhall be [l] as a tree planted by the waters, and that ſpreadeth out her roots by the river, and ſhall not ſee when heat cometh, but her leaf ſhall be green, and ſhall not be careful in the year of drought, [m] neither ſhall ceaſe from yielding fruit. 9. ¶ The heart is deceitful above all things, and [n] deſperately wicked, who can know it? 10. [o] I the LORD ſearch the heart, I try the reins, [p] even to give every man according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings. 11. As the partridge ſitteth on eggs, and hatcheth them not: ſo he that getteth riches, and not by right, [q] ſhall leave them in the midſt of his days, and [r] at his end ſhall be a fool.

g Iſa. xxxi. 3.
h Chap. xlviii. 6.
i Deut. xxix. 23.
k Pſ. ii. 12. & xxxiv. 8. & cxxv. 1. & cxlvi. 5. Prov. xvi. 20. Iſa. xxx. 18.
l Job. viii. 16. Pſ. i. 3.
m John xv. 16.
n Gen. vi. 5.
o 1 Sam. xvi. 7. 1 Chron. xxviii. 9. Pſ. vii. 9. Prov. xvii. 3. Chap. xi. 20. & xx. 12. Rom. viii. 27. Rev. ii. 23.
p Pſ. lxii. 12.
q Pſ. lv. 23.
r Luke xii. 20.

v. 5—11. The Jews often thought by their alliances with the neighbouring nations to gain protection againſt their invading enemies. This was both their ſin, and a chief cauſe of their ruin.

1. The prophet denounces the curſe of God againſt ſuch as truſted in man, and made fleſh their arm, and whoſe heart departed from the Lord, withdrawing their confidence from him, to place it on worms, which was to change a rock for a reed. Thus they truſted alternately on the Egyptians and Aſſyrians, ſee chap. xi. 36, 37. to their ſad diſappointment; or they placed ſuch confidence in their relation after the fleſh to Abraham, that they promiſed themſelves ſecurity, notwithſtanding their faithleſs departures from Abraham's God. But the conſequences would be ruinous; like the heath in the wilderneſs, ſo deſolate ſhould they be made, and ſerve as fuel to the flames of God's wrath, and ſee no good days, or behold and pine away at the mercies others ſhould receive, from which they would be excluded, and become as a land parched and uninhabited; their country a deſart, themſelves deſtitute of every comfort. Note, (1.) God is the only worthy object of our faith and hope: human confidences may fail us, he never will. (2.) When we depend on our own doings and duties to recommend us to God's favour, inſtead of truſting on the divine righteouſneſs and grace of Jeſus, we ſhall by the iſſue be convinced of the vanity of our dependance.

2. As miſerable as they are who depart from God, ſo bleſſed and happy are they, who, renouncing all other grounds of hope, reſt their ſouls on God in Chriſt alone, v. 7. They ſhall be like the tree planted by the rivers, always flouriſhing and fruitful, firm-rooted, and in the moſt ſcorching ſeaſon watered abundantly. Their profeſſion ſhall be ornamental, their ſtability ſecured; in time of ſevereſt temptation they ſhall be kept from withering, and their fruits of holineſs ſhall abound and abide, till grace ripens into glory.

3. The cauſe of all departures from God is here laid open. The heart is deceitful above all things, and deſperately wicked, who can know it? Man's nature is fallen; his heart is radically corrupt, all its faculties perverted, and his whole mind and conſcience defiled: deceitful above all things; puts falſe gloſſes upon ſin, that hide its malignity and danger; fancies delights in the ways of indulgence, that are never found; buoys up the vain confidence of the ſinner with hopes of impunity and peace, when God hath ſaid, There is no peace: and deſperately wicked; not only evil, but evil continually and incurably, deſperately ſet upon it, without power to abſtain from it, or ability to get rid of the bondage of corruption; nay, rather hugging the chains: who can know it? The more we know of ourſelves, far from having fathomed the abyſs of evil, we diſcover but the more clearly, that the depths of corruption are unfathomable; we can neither underſtand the number of our errors, nor promiſe ourſelves for a moment ſecurity from the deepeſt and fouleſt falls. There is a myſtery of iniquity within us, that none can know but God alone, and nothing can cure but his almighty grace; and therefore it were folly to depend on ourſelves or others, in whoſe hearts ſuch deceit and deſperate wickedneſs are ſo deeply rooted. But I the Lord ſearch the heart; its moſt ſecret purpoſes are known to him: I try the reins, and ſee the riſing thought afar off: from him nothing is hid, nothing is ſecret; and thus all-ſeeing ought he to be, who is the final judge of all, and by whoſe deciſions our eternal ſtate muſt be determined, and every man receive judgment according to truth. Note, (1.) Nothing affords ſo humbling a conſideration to us, as this ſtriking view of our fallen nature; the pride of man muſt here for ever ſtand aghaſt and confounded. (2.) They who place confidence in their own hearts, in their reſolutions and purpoſes, prove how ignorant they are of themſelves, and predict only their own falls. (3.) Since at God's awful judgment we muſt ſhortly ſtand to receive our doom, it becomes us daily to be proving ourſelves, and begging of God to diſcover to us our own hearts, that we may now ſo judge ourſelves, as not then to be condemned of the Lord.

4. A heavy charge is laid againſt them for their covetouſneſs and injuſtice. They would be rich, and ſtuck at no methods to ſucceed, right or wrong; but God will not ſuffer them to enjoy their ill-gotten gains. Though brooding over them, as a partridge on her neſt, their riches, like her eggs addled or broken, ſhould afford them no ſolid ſatisfaction; and in the midſt of their days, when they thought their toils were over, and began to talk of enjoying themſelves, they ſhall be cut off, and leave their wealth all behind, made monuments of the folly of truſting on uncertain riches more than in the living God; and theſe things are written for our admonition: may we hear and be wiſe.

12. ¶ A glorious high throne from the beginning, is the place of our ſanctuary. 13. O LORD, the hope of Iſrael, [s] all that forſake thee ſhall be aſhamed, and they that depart from me ſhall be written in the earth, becauſe [t] they have forſaken the LORD, the fountain of living waters. 14. Heal me, O LORD, and I ſhall be healed: ſave me, and I ſhall be ſaved: for [u] thou art my praiſe. 15. ¶ Behold, they ſay unto me, [x] Where is the word of the LORD? let it come now. 16. As for me, [y] I have not haſtned from being a paſtor † to follow thee, neither have I deſired the woful day, thou knoweſt: that which came out of my lips was right before thee. 17. Be not [z] a terror unto me, [a] thou art my hope in the day of evil. 18. [b] Let them be confounded that perſecute me, but [c] let not me be confounded; let them be diſmayed, but let not me be diſmayed: bring upon them the day of evil, [d] and ‡ deſtroy them with double deſtruction.

s Pſ. lxxiii. 27. Iſa. i. 28.
t Chap. ii. 14.
u Deut. x. 21.
x Iſa. v. 19. Am. v. 18. 2 Pet. iii. 4.
y Chap. i. 4, &c.
† Heb. After thee.
z Job vi. 4. Pſ. lxxxviii. 15.
a Chap. xvi. 19.
b Pſ. xxxv. 4. & xl. 14.
c Pſ. xxv. 2.
d Chap. xi. 20.
‡ Heb. Break them with a double breach.

v. 12—18. We have the prophet here,

1. Acknowledging how well they deſerved to be rejected, who were ungrateful to a God ſo great and gracious. A glorious high throne from the beginning is the place of our ſanctuary; in the temple at Jeruſalem God had erected his throne, there he manifeſted his preſence, and thither, as to a ſanctuary, the guilty might flee, and find an hiding-place, even to the mercy-ſeat. O God, the hope of Iſrael, the never-failing refuge of the faithful, in whom none ever truſted and were confounded; but all that forſake thee, baſely withdraw their allegiance, turn aſide unto idols, or place their dependance on an arm of fleſh, they ſhall be aſhamed; their confidences ſhall fail them, and their iniquities iſſue in their confuſion. They that depart from me, and will not hear the warnings of God in the mouth of his prophet, ſhall be written in the earth, numbered with tranſgreſſors, and trampled upon with contempt; or rather conſigned to the grave, cut off in their iniquities, becauſe they have forſaken the Lord, the fountain of living waters, the ſource of all bleſſedneſs; and they who depart from him court their own miſery.

2. He prays for himſelf. Heal me, O Lord; for though a prophet, he found much infirmity cleaving to him, and the inveterate diſeaſe of ſin ſtill rooted in his heart, the effects of which would prove mortal, without the powerful efficacy of divine grace: or he was broken-hearted for the ſins of the people, and in the view of the evils coming upon them, Heal me, and I ſhall be healed: ſave me, and I ſhall be ſaved. God's power was all-ſufficient; on this he placed his dependance, and with humble prayer, in God's appointed way, ſought the bleſſing he wanted ; for thou art my praiſe, the object of it continually, who hitherto had given him abundant matter for his praiſes, and he truſted would continue to do ſo. Note, (1.) Every bleſſing we need muſt be ſought by the prayer of faith. (2.) Sin is the ſoul's diſeaſe, and will be fatal unleſs healed by grace. The ſalvation of eternity muſt be begun on earth : they who would be ſaved in heaven, muſt now be ſaved from the power of evil.

Before Chriſt 601.

3. He complains of their hardened infidelity. He faithfully delivered the meſſage he received from God, and they treated it with contempt. Where is the word of the Lord ? where are the threatned judgments ? they ſaw no ſymptoms of their approach, and utterly diſbelieved them ; and therefore in defiance bid them come. Let it come now, as if they were above all fear, and dared the arm of omnipotence. Note, When ſinners are thus incorrigible, their damnation ſlumbereth not.

4. Their ill uſage and inſolent treatment had not diſcouraged him from the faithful and diligent diſcharge of his office. I have not haſtned from being a paſtor after thee ; following God's directions, notwithſtanding every oppoſition : neither have I deſired the woful day, or wiſhed to ſee the miſeries he foretold ; but prayed and preached with all his might, that by a timely repentance they might prevent the threatned judgments. And for this he could appeal to the heart-ſearching God ; Thou knoweſt it : that which came out of my lips was right before thee : he ſpoke exactly according to God's word, with uprightneſs and ſimplicity, and was conſcious of God's approbation of his conduct. Note, (1.) Whatever treatment we meet with, we muſt patiently and boldly perſiſt in the work of our miniſtry. (2.) Many think the preachers of God's word delight in declaring the terrors of the Lord, but it is the moſt painful part of their office. (3.) They who have the heart-ſearching God to appeal to, need not regard the revilings of men.

5. He begs God's protection and ſupport, and that his enemies might be put to confuſion. Be not a terror to me ; not only do not confound me before them, but comfort me under their oppoſition ; for more ſeems to be implied than is expreſſed. Thou art my hope in the day of evil, I diſclaim all other dependance. Let them be confounded ; convinced and penitent, or ſilenced by the infliction of the threatned vengeance ; but let not me be confounded by their wickedneſs, or in the event proved to have ſpoken falſely. Let them be diſmayed, with the ſenſe of their danger ; but let not me be diſmayed by their revilings or perſecutions. Bring upon them the day of evil, at which they ſcoff ; ſince they will not be reformed, it is but juſt they ſhould ſuffer for their impenitence : and deſtroy them with a double deſtruction ; utterly, or beyond all their apprehenſions ; or by the Chaldeans firſt, and finally by the Romans : and this he prays, not out of revenge for a private injury done to him, but in zeal for God's glory diſhonoured by them. Note, (1.) There is enough in the beſt to terrify them, if God were ſtrict to mark what is amiſs (2.) When he is our hope, we need fear no evil. (3.) If we are faithful, God will never ſuffer us to be confounded.

19. ¶ Thus ſaid the LORD unto me, Go and [e] ſtand e Prov. viii.
in the gate of the children of the people, whereby the 2, 3.
kings of Judah come in, and by the which they go out, and in all the gates of Jeruſalem ; 20. And ſay unto them, Hear ye the word of the LORD, ye kings of Judah, and all Judah, and all the inhabitants of Jeruſalem, that enter in by theſe gates. 21. Thus ſaith the LORD, [f] Take heed to yourſelves, and bear no burden f Num. xv.
on the ſabbath-day, nor bring it in by the gates of Je- 32, &c. Neh.
ruſalem. 22. Neither carry forth a burden out of your xiii. 19.
houſes on the ſabbath-day, neither do ye any work, but hallow ye the ſabbath-day, as [g] I commanded your fa- g Ex. xx. 8.
thers. 23. But [h] they obeyed not, neither inclined their & xxiii. 12.
ear, but made their neck ſtiff, that they might not hear, & xxxi. 13. Ezek. xx. 12.
nor receive inſtruction. 24. And it ſhall come to paſs, h Chap. xi. 10.
if ye diligently hearken unto me, ſaith the LORD, to bring in no burden through the gates of this city on the ſabbath-day, but hallow the ſabbath-day, to do no work therein : 25. [i] Then ſhall there enter into the i Chap. xxii.
gates of this city, kings and princes ſitting upon the 4.
throne of David, riding in chariots, and on horſes, they and their princes, the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jeruſalem, and this city ſhall remain for ever. 26.
And they ſhall come from the cities of Judah, and from [k] the places about Jeruſalem, and from the land of Ben- k Chap.
jamin, and from the plain, and from the mountains, xxxii. 44.
and from the ſouth, bringing burnt-offerings, and ſacrifices, and meat-offerings, and incenſe, and [l] † bringing l Pſ. l. 14.
ſacrifices of praiſe unto the houſe of the LORD. 27. † Heb.
But if you will not hearken unto me to hallow the ſab- Bringing praiſe or confeſſion.
bath-day, and not to bear a burden, even entring in at Before Chriſt 601.
the gates of Jeruſalem on the ſabbath-day : then [m] will I kindle a fire in the gates thereof, and it ſhall devour the m Chap. lii.
palaces of Jeruſalem, and it ſhall not be quenched. 13. Am. ii. 5.

v. 19—27. This is a new diſcourſe ; the ſubject relates to the ſanctification of the ſabbath-day. We have,

1. The places where he muſt deliver it. In the gate of the king, that all the great men at the court might hear it, whoſe good example would be very influential, or their bad conduct productive of peculiar evil : and then in all the gates of Jeruſalem, that all might hear, and none plead ignorance, from the leaſt to the greateſt, where the matter was of ſuch univerſal concern.

2. The manner is preſcribed in which the ſabbath-day ſhould be obſerved. Thus ſaith the Lord, whom all are bound to obey, and whoſe word whoever tranſgreſſes, doth it at his peril ; Take heed to yourſelves ; where ſo much depended upon it, they had need be careful : or, take heed to your ſouls ; for nothing is well done in God's ſight, but what comes from the heart. They muſt bear no burden, be employed in no ſervile work of their ordinary calling, in huſbandry, traffic, or merchandize ; but hallow the ſabbath-day, in the diligent and conſcientious improvement of thoſe ſacred hours in every public and private means of grace, as I commanded your fathers. It was no new commandment, but enjoined from the day they were taken into covenant with God, on their deliverance from Egypt, though their fathers had rebelled and ſmarted for it, whoſe ill examples they muſt ſhun, and be admoniſhed by their ſuffering, and not be, like them, untractable and diſobedient.

3. The bleſſedneſs and benefit of obſerving the divine command would be very great to the nation, and to all who belonged thereunto. Their kings of the royal race of David ſhould continue to reign in ſplendor, and they be happy under their mild government, v. 25. Their city and country ſhould proſper exceedingly, religion flouriſh through the land, God's altar never want ſacrifices, nor they the liberal offerings to bring, out of the abundance which God would beſtow on them. Note, (1.) True religion is the greateſt friend to national happineſs. (2.) Nothing hath ſo immediate a tendency to promote godlineſs, as the conſcientious obſervation of the ſabbath-day.

4. Diſobedience to this injunction would certainly be attended with the moſt fatal conſequences. In juſt indignation for his ſlighted ſabbaths, the fire of God's wrath would be kindled, nor ever be quenched, till the gates of Jeruſalem are in flames by invading foes, the executioners of his vengeance, her palaces laid in ſmoky ruins, and utter deſolations poured out upon all the cities of Judah. Let ſabbath-breakers remember, and tremble at the fire of divine vengeance which they provoke.

CHAP. XVIII.

In this chapter we have, 1. God's ways of dealing with nations and kingdoms pointed out ; that he can as eaſily do what he will with them, as the potter can with the clay, ver. 1—6. But that he certainly will do what is juſt ; nothing but impenitence will be a nation's ruin, ver. 7—10. 2. The folly of the Jews demonſtrated in departing from their God to idols, and ſo bringing ruin upon themſelves, notwithſtanding the fair warnings given them, and God's kind intentions towards them, ver. 11—17. 3. The prophet's complaint to God of the ingratitude and malice of his enemies, and his prayers againſt them. ver. 18—23.

1. THE word which came to Jeremiah from the 605.
LORD, ſaying, 2. Ariſe, and go down to the potter's houſe, and there I will cauſe thee to hear my words. 3. Then I went down to the potter's houſe, and behold, he wrought a work on the † wheels. 4. † Or frames, or ſeats.
And the veſſel that he made of clay was marred in the hands of the potter, ſo he made it again another veſſel, [a] as ſeemed good to the potter to make it. 5. a Pſ. cxv. 3.
Then the word of the LORD came to me, ſaying, Rom. ix. 21.
6. O houſe of Iſrael, [b] cannot I do with you as this pot- b Iſa. xlv. 9 ter ? ſaith the LORD. Behold, [c] as the clay is in the Wiſd. xv. 7. Rom. ix. 20.
potter's hand, ſo are ye in mine hand, O houſe of c Iſa. lxiv.
Iſrael. 7. At what inſtant I ſhall ſpeak concerning a 8.
nation, and concerning a kingdom, to [d] pluck up, and d Chap. i.
to pull down, and to deſtroy it : 8. [e] If that nation 10.
againſt whom I have pronounced, turn from their evil, e Ezek. xviii. 21. & [f] I will repent of the evil that I thought to do unto xxxiii. 11.
them. 9. And at what inſtant I ſhall ſpeak concerning f Jonah iii. 10.
a nation, and concerning a kingdom, to build and to plant it : 10. If it do evil in my ſight, that it obey not my voice, then [g] I will repent of the good where- g 1 Sam. ii.
with I ſaid I would benefit them. 30.

Before Chriſt 605.

v. 1—10. God often teaches by ſimilitudes to make the deeper impreſſion, and that the truths may be the better remembered. We have,

1. The prophet ſent to the potter's houſe, and informed, that God would there inſtruct him. Inſtantly obedient, he goes down, obſerves the workman turning the wheel, faſhioning the veſſels, marring and making them according to his pleaſure.

2. God's application of the ſubject. Such abſolute power as the potter hath over the clay, hath God over the ſons of men. He hath the moſt inconteſtible right over us: it were arrogance in us to find fault with his procedure, and folly to oppoſe what we cannot prevent. According to the counſels of his own will he may diſpoſe of nations and individuals, and none can ſay unto him, What doſt thou? Submiſſion abſolute and entire to his will is our bounden duty: not that he exerciſes his power in any manner to the impeachment of his juſtice or mercy. He will be found righteous in all his ways; not only ſovereignly great, but infinitely gracious. Even when his threatnings have gone forth againſt a nation, and their deſtruction approaches, if they repent and return, he will change the method of his diſpenſations towards them, remove their fears, and return to them in mercy. On the other hand, if he have ſpoken by way of promiſe, to crown a people with every national bleſſing, to enrich them with good, and proſper all their enterprizes; if they prove ungrateful for his favours, deſert his ſervice, and diſobey his word, then he will turn the current of his kindneſs from them, and pour on them the wrath they have provoked. Note, (1.) All our miſeries may be traced from our ſins, whether private or public. (2.) God will make his glory to appear; and though as abſolutely ſovereign none have a right to queſtion him, he will vindicate his ways to man, and appear juſt when he judgeth.

11. ¶ Now therefore go to, ſpeak to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jeruſalem, ſaying, Thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, I † frame evil againſt you, and deviſe a device againſt you: [h] return ye now every one from his evil way, and make your ways and your doings good. 12. And they ſaid, [i] There is no hope, but we will walk after our own devices, and we will every one do the imagination of his evil heart. 13. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD, [k] Aſk ye now among the heathen, who hath heard ſuch things: the virgin of Iſrael hath done [l] a very horrible thing. 14. Will a man leave ‡ the ſnow of Lebanon, which cometh from the rock of the field? or ſhall the cold flowing waters that come from another place, be forſaken? 15. Becauſe [m] my people hath forgotten me, they have burnt incenſe to vanity, and they have cauſed them to ſtumble in their ways from [n] the ancient paths, to walk in paths, in a way not caſt up; 16. To make their land deſolate, [o] and a perpetual hiſſing: every one that paſſeth thereby ſhall be aſtoniſhed, and wag his head. 17. [p] I will ſcatter them [q] as with an eaſt-wind before the enemy: I will ſhew them the back and not the face in the day of their calamity.

† Heb. Frame, potter-like.
[h] 2 Kings xvii. 13 Chap. vii. 3. & xxv. 5. & xxvi. 13. & xxxv. 15.
[i] Chap. ii. 25.
[k] Chap. ii. 10. 1 Cor. v. 1.
[l] Chap. v. 30.
‡ Or, my fields for a rock, or for the ſnow of Lebanon? Shall the running waters be forſaken for the ſtrange cold waters?
[m] Chap. ii. 13, 32. & iii. 21. & xiii. 25. & xvii. 13.
[n] Chap. vi. 16.
[o] Chap. xix. 8. Mic. vi. 16.
[p] Chap. xiii. 24.
[q] Pſ. xlviii. 7. Iſa. xxvii. 8.

v. 11—17. The foregoing truths are here particularly applied to the Jewiſh nation. Here is,

1. The warning and admonition given to the Jewiſh people. Evil was on the wheel for them, though the execution was for a while ſuſpended; and one more invitation given them, by their ſpeedy and penitent return to prevent the impending ruin, v. 11. Note, God never ſtrikes without warning: they who continue impenitent are inexcuſable.

2. Their hardened rejection of the warning. They ſaid, There is no hope; if nothing but parting from their ſins would do, they reſolved to abide the conſequences. Let God do his worſt, we will walk after our own devices, and we will do every one the imagination of his evil heart. Note, Sinners often dare not expreſs themſelves with ſuch effrontery in words, yet practically every ſinner doth it in works, and theſe ſpeak moſt ſtrongly.

3. Their monſtrous folly and wickedneſs upbraided. Among the vileſt heathen nations were no abominations or inſolence found equal to theirs; even the people of Nineveh repented at the preaching of Jonah; but, horrible to tell! Iſrael, that virgin daughter, that by her relation to God ſhould have kept herſelf wholly for him, pure in his ways and worſhip, hath apoſtatized from him, hath forſaken the living God for dumb idols. Will a man, parched with thirſt, leave the ſnow water of Lebanon, which cometh down melted in ſummer from the rock of the field? or ſhall the cold flowing waters that come from another place be forſaken by the thirſty traveller? This would be folly unheard-of; yet more egregiouſly fooliſh were they; becauſe my people hath forgotten me, the fountain of living waters, to drink at the broken ciſterns of idol altars. They have burnt incenſe to vanity, to wretched deities, who could not profit them: or, in vain they burn incenſe; their ſervices were an abomination whilſt their ſins remained: and they have cauſed them to ſtumble in their ways, their idols, or their falſe prophets, from the ancient paths, the way revealed of old in God's word; or the paths of eternity, which led to glory everlaſting, to walk in paths, in a way not caſt up; a road unknown to the ſaints of God; a way of wickedneſs and idolatry, in which they ſtumbled and fell into the pit of eternal miſery; this being the certain and fatal conſequence of their ways, to make their land deſolate, ravaged by the enemy, and depopulated by famine and the ſword; a perpetual hiſſing, every one who paſſed by expreſſing their abhorrence of ſuch guilty conduct; aſtoniſhed at the devaſtations they beheld, and wagging their head, deriding or upbraiding them. With blaſts of diſpleaſure, furious as the eaſt wind, God will ſcatter them before their enemies, weak as ſtubble to reſiſt their attacks, and in the day of their calamity turn a deaf ear to their cries, nor caſt a look of compaſſion on their miſeries. Note, (1.) Apoſtates deſerve to be upbraided, and they will ſhortly awake to everlaſting ſhame and contempt. (2.) They who perſevere in the ways of ſin, muſt expect no mercy in the day of judgment. God will then mock at their calamities, Prov. i. 26—28.

Before Chriſt 605.

18. ¶ Then ſaid they, [r] Come, and let us deviſe devices againſt Jeremiah: for [s] the law ſhall not periſh from the prieſt, nor counſel from the wiſe, nor the word from the prophet: come, and let us ſmite him † with the tongue, and let us not give heed to any of his words. 19. Give heed to me, O LORD, and hearken to the voice of them that contend with me. 20. Shall evil be recompenſed for good? for they have digged a pit for my ſoul: remember that I ſtood before thee to ſpeak good for them, and [t] to turn away thy wrath from them. 21. Therefore [u] deliver up their children to the famine, and ‡ pour out their blood by the force of the ſword, and let their wives be bereaved of their children, and be widows, and let their men be put to death, let their young men be ſlain by the ſword in battle. 22. Let a cry be heard from their houſes, when thou ſhalt [x] bring a troop ſuddenly upon them, for [y] they have digged a pit to take me, and hid ſnares for my feet. 23. Yet, LORD, thou knoweſt all their counſel againſt me § to ſlay me: [z] forgive not their iniquity, [a] neither blot out their ſin from thy ſight, but let them be overthrown before thee; deal thus with them in the time of thine anger.

[r] Chap. xi. 19.
[s] Lev. x. 11. Mal. ii. 7. John vii. 48, 49.
† Or, for the tongue. Chap. xxvi. 8, 9.
[t] Pſ. cvi. 23.
[u] Pſ. cix. 10.
‡ Heb. Pour them out.
[x] 2 Kings xxiv. 2.
[y] Pſ. lvii. 6. Ver. 20.
§ Heb. For death.
[z] Pſ. lix. 5.
[a] Pſ. cix. 14, 15.

v. 18—23. Behold the treatment the faithful miniſters may expect from a diſobedient and gainſaying people.

1. Enraged by his rebukes, they conſult how to deſtroy him. To cover their malice, they pretend zeal for religion, and would brand him as a falſe prophet. Then ſaid they, Come, and let us deviſe devices againſt Jeremiah, to get rid of him and his prophecies; for the law ſhall not periſh from the prieſt, &c. Notwithſtanding his predictions of the ceſſation of the temple ſervice; of the infatuation of their counſels; and his warnings of the falſhood of their prophets; they flattered themſelves their prieſthood ſhould continue, their rulers in church and ſtate conſult and ſecure their ſafety; and that they ſhould ſee the fulfilment of the viſions of peace with which their own prophets flattered them: therefore, ſaid they, Come, let us ſmite him with the tongue; either accuſe him as a lying prophet before the magiſtrates, to put him to death, v. 23. or load him with reproaches, and make him contemptible in the eyes of the people: and let us not give heed to any of his words, but treat him as a deceiver, who ſpeaks not from the Lord, but out of his own heart. Note, (1.) The wicked world is in a confederacy againſt the true prophets, and none forwarder to ſhew their malice, than the falſe and faithleſs miniſters who cannot bear their juſt rebukes. (2.) To cloak the malice of perſecutors this was the old pretence, to repreſent the faithful and zealous miniſters as men dangerous to the ſtate, and not to be tolerated; or as deluders and enthuſiaſts, and to be trampled on. (3.) They who dare not encounter the laſh of men's tongues, muſt never think of ſtanding up for God. (4.) Rejection of the ſervant is an inſult on the maſter. Little do the revilers of Chriſt's miniſters think, that their reproaches light not ſo much on them as him.

2. He lodges his appeal with God, and begs his interpoſition on his behalf. He prayed God to take notice of their blaſphemies and reproaches, v. 19. their ingratitude and cruelty, in returning him evil for good, and thirſting for his blood, when God, the ſearcher of hearts, knew how earneſtly he had laboured, how fervently he had prayed, to avert the impending judgments from them, v. 20. Therefore in juſt indignation he imprecates upon them the vengeance they had provoked; that death in every tremendous ſhape might ſeize both young and old, and their widows, bereaved of huſbands and children together, lament the fearful ravages they beheld; that ſhrieks and cries might fill the houſes, when the enemy ſuddenly entering at the breach, maſſacred and plundered without pity or remorſe: for this would be but the juſt retaliation for the ſnares they laid to murder him, which, however ſecret, God knew and would avenge. Their ſin was now unpardonable; he that had often prayed for them, now abandons them to their ruin; not in a ſpirit of revenge deſiring their miſery, but in zeal for God's glory, to ſee that vindicated, waiting their final overthrow, and expecting and deſiring God would deal with them in the time of his anger according to the denunciations which, as his prophet, he had delivered. Note, (1.) Jeremiah was a type of Jeſus, thus baſely reviled, ungratefully perſecuted, and all his prayers returned with blaſphemies. (2.) What Jeremiah ſpoke in the ſpirit of prophecy muſt not be pleaded as an example for our imitation. We muſt pray for thoſe that perſecute us, if peradventure God may yet give them repentance. (3.) The perſecutors of his prophets will find at laſt an avenging God, and woe to them againſt whom thoſe abuſed miniſters of grace ſtand up to bear witneſs in a judgment day.

Before Chriſt 605.

CHAP. XIX.

The ruin of Jeruſalem and Judah is ſtill the burden of the prophecy, and is prefigured by the breaking of a potter's veſſel. 1. In the preſence of the elders, in the valley of Tophet, the approaching deſtruction, and the cauſe of it, is foretold, ver. 1—9. 2. The breaking of the veſſel ſignified the irretrievableneſs of their caſe, ver. 10—13. 3. The ſame proclamation is repeated in the temple, ver. 14, 15.

1. THUS ſaith the LORD, Go and get a potter's earthen bottle, and take of the ancients of the people, and of the ancients of the prieſts, 2. And go forth unto the valley of the ſon of Hinnom, which is by the entry of † the eaſt-gate, and proclaim there the words that I ſhall tell thee: 3. And ſay, Hear ye the word of the LORD, O kings of Judah, and inhabitants of Jeruſalem, Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, Behold, I will bring evil upon this place, the which whoſoever heareth, [a] his ears ſhall tingle. 4. Becauſe [b] they have forſaken me, and have ‡ eſtranged this place, and have burnt incenſe in it unto other gods, whom neither they nor their fathers have known, nor the kings of Judah, and have filled this place with the blood of innocents; 5. They have built alſo the high places of Baal, [c] to burn their ſons with fire for burnt-offerings unto Baal, [d] which I commanded not, nor ſpake it, neither came it into my mind: 6. Therefore behold, the days come, ſaith the LORD, that this place ſhall no more be called Tophet, nor the valley of the ſon of Hinnom, but the valley of ſlaughter. 7. And I will make void the counſel of Judah and Jeruſalem in this place, and I will cauſe them to fall by the ſword before their enemies, and by the hands of them that ſeek their lives: and [e] their carcaſes will I give to be meat for the fowls of the heaven, and for the beaſts of the earth. 8. And [f] I will make this city deſolate, and an hiſſing; every one that paſſeth thereby ſhall be aſtoniſhed and hiſs, becauſe of all the plagues thereof. 9. And I will cauſe them [g] to eat the fleſh of their ſons, and the fleſh of their daughters, and they ſhall eat every one the fleſh of his friend in the ſiege and ſtraitneſs, wherewith their enemies, and they that ſeek their lives, ſhall ſtraiten them.

† Heb. The ſun-gate.

[a] 1 Sam. iii. 11. 2 Kings xxi. 12.

[b] Iſa. lxv. 11. Chap. ii. 13, 17, 19. & xv. 6. & xvii. 13.

‡ Or ſtrangely abuſed.

[c] Lev. xviii. 21.

[d] Chap. vii. 31, 32. & xxxii. 35.

[e] Chap. vii. 33. & xvi. 4. & xxxiv. 20.

[f] Chap xviii. 16.

[g] Lev. xxvi. 29. Deut. xxviii. 53. Lam. iv. 10.

v. 1—9. To awaken conviction in the hearts of a ſtupid people every method it tried, that they may be left at laſt utterly inexcuſable.

1. Jeremiah is ordered down to the valley of the ſon of Hinnom, the place where their moſt ſhocking idolatries were committed, and the deſtined ſpot of their terrible execution. He is commanded to take an earthen pitcher, and, as witneſſes of what he was about to do and ſay, to bring with him ſome of the antients of the prieſts and people; for when God ſpeaks by the meaneſt of his prophets, the greateſt ſhould not think themſelves above attending their miniſtry.

2. God will tell him there his meſſage, which he muſt proclaim aloud as an herald; and the purport of it is moſt tremendous, which all are ſummoned to attend, from the greateſt to the leaſt; and enough it is to make the ears of every one that heareth it to tingle, as thunder-ſtruck with the dreadful ſound. The ſins charged upon them are moſt ſhocking and aggravated; apoſtacy from God, profanation of his temple, foul idolatry, barbarous cruelty, the inhuman ſacrifice of infants to their abominable deities, yea, even the burning their ſons with fire, as burnt-offerings unto Baal; ſacrifices abhorred of God, and ſuch as he never thought of, nor expected from his worſhippers. For theſe abominations judgment is threatened proportionate to ſuch atrocious guilt: on that very ſpot the wrath of God ſhould be executed upon them, and the valley acquire a new name: no more called Tophet, from the drums that were beat to drown the cries of infants burning alive in ſacrifice to Moloch, but the valley of ſlaughter, from the multitudes who ſhould there be maſſacred by the Chaldeans. Their counſels then ſhould be made vain, which in that place they had taken to oppoſe their invaders, or to fly to their idols for relief in the day of their calamity, v. 7. There they muſt fall by the ſword of their merciles ſ enemies, thirſting for their blood; their carcaſes ignominiouſly expoſed, and unburied; a prey to the fowls of heaven, and the beaſts of the earth. Such plagues and deſolation ſhall come upon their city and country, that aſtoniſhment at the greatneſs of the calamity ſhall mix with indignation againſt their ſins in every paſſer by: yea, to ſuch ſtraits ſhould they be reduced in the ſiege, that famine ſhould compel them to feed upon their deareſt friends, and even their children, on their dead corpſes, or murdered to ſatisfy their raging hunger; a ſcene of wretchedneſs that makes us ſhudder but to relate. O ſin! ſin! what haſt thou done!

Before Chriſt 665.

10. Then ſhalt thou break [h] the bottle in the ſight of the men that go with thee, 11. And ſhalt ſay unto them, Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, [i] Even ſo will I break this people and this city, as one breaketh a potter's veſſel that cannot be † made whole again, and they ſhall [k] bury them in Tophet, till there be no place to bury. 12. Thus will I do unto this place, ſaith the LORD, and to the inhabitants thereof, and even make this city as Tophet. 13. And the houſes of Jeruſalem, and the houſes of the kings of Judah ſhall be defiled as the place of Tophet, becauſe of all the houſes upon whoſe [l] roofs they have burnt incenſe unto all the hoſt of heaven, and [m] have poured out drink-offerings unto other gods. 14. Then came Jeremiah from Tophet, whither the LORD had ſent him to prophecy, and he ſtood in the court of the LORD's houſe, and ſaid to all the people, 15. Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, Behold, I will bring upon this city and upon all her towns, all the evil that I have pronounced againſt it; becauſe [n] they have hardned their necks, that they might not hear my words.

[h] Ver. 1.

[i] Iſa. xxx. 14. Lam. iv. 2.

† Heb. Healed.

[k] Chap. vii. 32.

[l] 2 Kings xxiii. 12. Chap. xxxii. 29.

[m] Chap. vii. 18.

[n] Chap. vii. 26. & xvii. 23.

v. 10—15. The judgment denounced is here,

1. Confirmed by a ſignificant ſign. The earthen bottle in his hand is daſhed in pieces on the ground, and the explication of it given, that ſo utter and irreparable ſhould be their deſtruction. The city and people ſhould be broken like this veſſel, and the ſpot whereon they ſtood be the place of execution, where ſo many ſhould be ſlain, that graves ſhould be wanting to bury them; yea, the city of Jeruſalem ſhould be as Tophet, and every houſe defiled with corpſes of the ſlain, and rendered filthy and abominable as that deteſted place, becauſe of the idolatries that had been practiſed therein, and the incenſe which on their roofs they had offered to the hoſts of heaven.

2. What he now ſpake in the preſence of the ancients, in the valley of the ſon of Hinnom, he repeats ſolemnly in the courts of the Lord's houſe before all the people, that if they continue impenitent, they may be at leaſt inexcuſable. All the denunciations of wrath God had ſpoken by Jeremiah were now ready to be executed on Jeruſalem and all her towns, becauſe they have hardned their necks, that they might not hear my words; obſtinately perſiſting in their iniquities, and deaf to all admonition. Note, (1.) Miniſters muſt deliver their own ſouls, whether men will hear, or whether they will forbear. (2.) They who harden their hearts againſt God's warnings, muſt periſh without remedy. (3.) In the day of judgment the damned will only have themſelves to blame, and the ſenſe of their wilfulneſs will aggravate their miſery.

CHAP. XX.

Such plain-dealing as Jeremiah uſed in the foregoing chapter, one might eaſily foreſee, if it did not convince and humble men, would provoke and exaſperate them, and ſo it did; for here we find, 1. Jeremiah perſecuted by Paſhur, for preaching that ſermon, ver. 1, 2. 2. Paſhur threatned for ſo doing, and the word which Jeremiah had preached confirmed, ver. 3—6. 3. Jeremiah complaining to God concerning the ill uſage he had met with ſince he began to be a prophet, ver. 7—10. encouraging himſelf in God, and lodging his appeal with him, ver. 11—13, and yet peeviſhly curſing the day of his birth, ver. 14—18. by which it appears he had

Before Chriſt 605.

ſad remainders of corruption in him ſtill, and was a man ſubject to like paſſions as we are.

1. NOW Paſhur the ſon of [a] Immer the prieſt, who was alſo chief governor in the houſe of the LORD, heard that Jeremiah propheſied theſe things. 2. Then Paſhur [b] ſmote Jeremiah the prophet, and put him in the ſtocks that were in the high gate of Benjamin, which was by the houſe of the LORD. 3. And it came to paſs on the morrow, that Paſhur brought forth Jeremiah out of the ſtocks. Then ſaid Jeremiah unto him, The LORD hath not called thy name Paſhur, but † Magor-miſſabib. 4. For thus ſaith the LORD, Behold I will make thee [c] a terror to thyſelf, and to all thy friends, and they ſhall fall by the ſword of their enemies, and thine eyes ſhall behold it, and I will give all Judah into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he ſhall carry them captive into Babylon, and ſhall ſlay them with the ſword. 5. Moreover, [d] I will deliver all the ſtrength of this city, and all the labours thereof, and [e] all the precious things thereof, and all the treaſures of the kings of Judah will I give into the hand of their enemies, which ſhall ſpoil them, and take them, and carry them to Babylon. 6. And thou Paſhur, and all that dwell in thine houſe, ſhall go into captivity, and thou ſhalt come to Babylon, and there thou ſhalt die, and ſhalt be buried there, thou and all thy friends, to whom thou haſt propheſied lies.

[a] 1 Chron. xxiv. 14.
[b] Mat. xxi. 35.
† i. e. Fear round about. Chap. vi. 25. & xlvi. 5.
[c] Job xviii. 11.
[d] 2 Kings xx. 17.
[e] Iſa. xxxix. 6.

v. 1—6. They who will be zealous for God, and faithful to men's ſouls, muſt expect to be abuſed and inſulted. We have here,

1. The prophet ſmitten by Paſhur, a prieſt, and a chief governor of the houſe of the Lord, perhaps the head of his courſe, See 1 Chron. xxiv. 14. or captain of the temple, See Acts iv. 1. hearing the prophet's diſcourſe, or being informed of it, tho' his ſacred character ſhould have been a protection, and his own ſtation and profeſſion reſtrained him from ſuch violence, he fell into a rage, ſtruck the prophet himſelf to ſilence him, or commanded ſome inferior officer to beat him; and, to add ignominy to the inſult, he ordered him to be ſet in the ſtocks, or pillory, at the high gate of Benjamin, which was by the houſe of the Lord, that he might there be expoſed, his perſon rendered contemptible, and his prophecies deſpiſed. Note, (1.) Falſe prophets, and worldly-minded prieſts have been ever the bittereſt perſecutors of God's faithful miniſters. (2.) They who dare remonſtrate againſt the iniquity of wicked prieſts, and an abandoned people, may not wonder if even the formalities of juſtice are not obſerved to oppreſs them.

2. God's judgment upon this proud prieſt and perſecutor, and the ſentence on the land confirmed. In ſilent ſuffering the prophet all night ſubmitted to his ignominious confinement; but on the morrow, when brought forth for examination before the ſanhedrim, or diſcharged becauſe no real charge could be ſupported againſt him, he hath a revelation from God, which he denounces againſt this wicked man. The Lord had changed his name from Paſhur into Magor-miſſabib, Terror round about, importing the horror that would ſeize him and all his wicked adherents, when the Chaldean army ſhould compaſs the city, and verify Jeremiah's prophecy. His eyes ſhould ſee his deareſt friends and relations maſſacred; his country enſlaved by the king of Babylon; the people ſlain or carried captive; the fortifications of Jeruſalem razed to the ground; the treaſures of the kings of Judah given for a prey to their invaders; and himſelf, with all his houſe, be led into ſlavery to Babylon, and die in that polluted land, with all his friends deceived by him, and to whom he had propheſied viſions of peace. Note, (1.) God can ſoon make thoſe who would frighten his prophets with menaces, a terror to themſelves. Let every perſecutor tremble at Paſhur's doom. (2.) They who think by ſtopping the mouths of God's prophets to procure themſelves eaſe, but bind on their ſentence, and haſten their doom.

7. ¶ O LORD, thou haſt † deceived me, and I was deceived: thou art ſtronger than I, and haſt prevailed: I am in deriſion daily, every one mocketh me. 8. For ſince I ſpake, I cried out, [f] I cried violence and ſpoil; becauſe the word of the LORD was made a reproach unto me, and a deriſion daily. 9. Then I ſaid, I will not make mention of him, nor ſpeak any more in his name. But ‡ his word was in mine heart as [g] a burning fire ſhut up in my bones, and [h] I was weary with forbearing, and I could not ſtay. 10. ¶ For [i] I heard the defaming of many, fear on every ſide: Report, ſay they, and we will report it: § all my familiars [k] watched for my halting, ſaying, Peradventure he will be enticed, and we ſhall prevail againſt him, and we ſhall take our revenge on him. 11. But [l] the LORD is with me as a mighty terrible one: therefore my perſecutors ſhall ſtumble, and [m] they ſhall not prevail, they ſhall be greatly aſhamed; for they ſhall not proſper, [n] their everlaſting confuſion ſhall never be forgotten. 12. But, O LORD of hoſts, [o] that trieſt the righteous, and ſeeſt the reins and the heart, [p] let me ſee thy vengeance on them: for unto thee have I opened my cauſe. 13. Sing unto the LORD, praiſe ye the LORD: for [q] he hath delivered the ſoul of the poor from the hand of evil doers.

† Or perſuaded me, and I was perſuaded. Chap. i. 7.
[f] Chap. vi. 7.
‡ Or, There was in mine heart as a burning fire. 1 Kings xix. 10.
[g] Job xxxii. 18, 19. Pſ. xxxix. 3.
[h] Job xxxii. 18. Acts xvii. 16.
[i] Pſ. xxxi. 13.
§ Heb. Every man of my peace.
[k] Job xix. 19. Pſ. xli. 9 & lv. 13, 14.
[l] Chap. i. 19.
[m] Chap. xv. 20. & xvii. 18.
[n] Chap. xxiii. 40.
[o] Chap. xi. 20. & xvii. 10.
[p] Pſ. lix. 10.
[q] Pſ. xxxv. 10. & cix. 31.

v. 7—13. Jeremiah, though a good man and a true prophet, appears here compaſſed with infirmities. What he ſuffered ſeems to have exaſperated his ſpirit, ſo that he ſpake unadviſedly with his lips.

1. He is tempted to find fault with God. Thou haſt deceived me, and I was deceived; either in not bringing the judgments God had ſent him to foretel, or not protecting him from the inſults of his enemies, as he had promiſed him, chap. i. 18, 19. But this was his impatience and haſtineſs: God will ever be found true, and never deceive thoſe who truſt in him. Or the words may be rendered in another manner, Thou didſt perſuade me, and I was perſuaded, ſo Gen. ix. 27. when reluctant to take the prophetic office: thou art ſtronger than I, and haſt prevailed; ſilencing his pleas to be excuſed by unanſwerable arguments, and injunctions not to be diſobeyed: and therefore ſince he was as it were preſſed into the ſervice, he was ready to think it hard in God, that he ſhould leave him expoſed to ſuch ill-uſage. This was his infirmity.

2. He complains of the affronts he met, and the injuries he received. I am in deriſion daily; every one mocketh me; and nothing wounds a generous mind deeper than ſcorn. But what hurt him more than any perſonal inſults, was their contemptuous diſregard of the word of God he preached. They ridiculed the earneſtneſs with which he delivered his meſſage, and treated the charges he brought againſt them of violence and oppreſſion, with deriſion at his preciſeneſs; or the threatnings of the ravages their enemies ſhould make, with contempt and diſbelief. He heard the vileſt miſrepreſentations of his words and conduct, v. 10. as ſeditious, falſe, and dangerous to the ſtate; and his enemies ſtuck at no lies to blacken his character. Report, ſay they, and we will report it; ready to ſpread the moſt malignant aſperſions, and on the leaſt ſhadow of offence to accuſe him before the governors, and procure his condemnation. For this purpoſe they ſet ſpies around him, who, under the guiſe of moſt cordial friendſhip, watched for his halting, in hopes that he would be taken in ſome or other of the ſnares they laid for him, give them a handle for accuſation, and an opportunity to revenge themſelves in his deſtruction for the threatnings he had denounced againſt them. Note, (1.) Ridicule and contempt are the common weapons of infidels and ungodly men againſt the preachers of the truth. (2.) It is grievous to a faithful ſoul to hear the word of God treated with levity and deriſion. (3.) The faireſt profeſſions often cloak the fouleſt deſigns. (4.) Neither the pureſt innocence, nor moſt conſummate prudence, can protect us from malignant tongues, reſolved to find or invent ſome cauſe of accuſation.

3. Diſcouraged with ill treatment he owns himſelf ready to give up his miniſtry. Since he deſpaired of doing any good, he thought he might as well be ſilent, as exaſperate them with fruitleſs rebukes. Note, It is a moſt diſcouraging thing to the preachers of God's word, to ſee their labours in vain, and themſelves rendered odious for their fidelity; but we muſt leave the event to God: our duty is to perſevere.

4. He reſolves, notwithſtanding, to go on, and truſt God; nay, he was conſtrained to ſpeak: the word of God was as a burning fire in his bones, that muſt have vent: or, there was in mine heart as a burning fire, ſuch zeal for God, and love of men's ſouls, that he could not keep ſilence, and now his faith triumphs over his fears. The Lord is with me, and therefore their malicious devices ſhall be diſappointed, and return in vengeance on their own ſouls; for he is as a mighty terrible one, ſtrong to avenge, and jealous to return the wrongs of his inſulted ambaſſadors. Therefore their perſecutors will with ſhame and grief ſee their miſchievous deſigns abortive, and ſtumble and fall into the pit they have digged, covered with an everlaſting confuſion, never to be forgotten: and ſuch ſhall be the end of all the enemies of God's church and people. No weapon formed againſt them can proſper; and every tongue that ſhall riſe up in judgment againſt them he will condemn.

5. He appeals to the heart-ſearching God for the goodneſs of his cauſe, and, conſcious of his integrity, expects to ſee juſtice done him on his enemies, and vengeance poured on their devoted heads. Note, (1.) It is a comfort to us, when, in the ſight of that God who trieth the reins, we can boldly appeal for our ſimplicity and ſincerity. (2.) In all our ſufferings it is a great

Before Chriſt 605.

a great relief to have a gracious God, into whoſe compaſſionate boſom we can pour out our complaints.

6. He rejoices in the confidence, that God will hear and grant his requeſts. Sing unto the Lord, praiſe ye the Lord; the few faithful in Zion are called upon to join in his thankſgivings, for he hath delivered the ſoul, or life of the poor, from the hand of evil doers; he means himſelf, now reſcued from the hands of Paſhur; or, ſince he can by faith embrace God's promiſes, he exults in the performance of them as equally ſure as if already fulfilled. Note, They who truſt on God, and are ſincere before him, may rejoice always in the confidence that he will never leave nor forſake them.

14. ¶ [r] Curſed be the day wherein I was born: let not the day wherein my mother bare me be bleſſed. 15. Curſed be the man who brought tidings to my father, ſaying, A man-child is born unto thee, making him very glad. 16. And let that man be as the cities [s] which the LORD overthrew, and repented not: and let him hear [t] the cry in the morning, and the ſhouting at noon-tide: 17. [u] Becauſe he ſlew me not from the womb; or that my mother might have been my grave, and her womb to be always great with me. 18. [x] Wherefore came I forth out of the womb to ſee labour and ſorrow, that my days ſhould be conſumed with ſhame?

[r] Job iii. 3. Chap. xv. 10.
[s] Gen. xix. 25.
[t] Job xv. 21.
[u] Ibid. iii. 10.
[x] Ibid. v. 20.

v. 14—18. Dire is the change between the notes of praiſe wherewith the former verſes cloſed, and the melancholy ſounds which here ſucceed. Some have ſuppoſed, that this is here recorded as the humbling acknowledgment of what paſſed in his mind, during his confinement in the ſtocks, from which ſad prevalence of impatience he was now recovered, but remembers to his ſhame how ill he had borne it. He utters imprecations,

1. On the day of his birth, that uſhered him into a world of miſery. Inſtead of celebrating its return with joy, he regards it as ominous, and brands it with a curſe.

2. On the meſſenger who carried the tidings to his father, and made him glad with the news that a ſon was born; he wiſhes that he might be deſtroyed as the inhabitants of Sodom, and be in perpetual terrors, as in the agonies of death, from ſome invading foe: an imprecation ſhockingly ſevere and uncharitable. Into ſuch unbecoming extravagancies may paſſion, when prevailing, tranſport even good men, and leave them deep cauſe to repent their raſhneſs.

3. He wiſhes the meſſenger of his birth had been his murderer, or his mother's womb never releaſed from its burden; which muſt have been highly criminal to the one, and a perpetual and intolerable pain to the other: wiſhes unnatural, as they were wicked and wilful.

4. He expoſtulates with God. Why came I forth out of my mother's womb? as if God had done him injuſtice in bringing him into the world, that my days ſhould be conſumed with ſhame, expoſed to a continued ſeries of inſult, deriſion, and contempt; and herein he ſhewed much, very much of human infirmity, ſo weak are the beſt of men when left to themſelves. Let it ſerve to warn us againſt ſuch a haſty ſpirit; that it is not only highly criminal before God, but makes us appear abſurd and brutiſh, and muſt expoſe us to juſt cenſure from men.

CHAP. XXI.

It is plain that the prophecies of this book are not placed in the ſame order that they were preached; for there are chapters after this which concern Jehoahaz, Jehoiakim, and Jeconiah, who all reigned before Zedekiah, in whoſe reign the prophecy of this chapter bears date. Here is, 1. The meſſage which Zedekiah ſent to the prophet, to deſire him to enquire of the Lord for them, ver. 1, 2. 2. The anſwer which Jeremiah, in God's name, ſent to that meſſage; in which he, (1.) Foretels the certain and inevitable ruin of the city, and the fruitleſſneſs of their attempts for its preſervation, ver. 3—7. (2.) He adviſes the people to go over to the king of Babylon, ver. 8—10. (3.) He adviſes the king and his family to repent and reform, ver. 11, 12. and not to truſt to the ſtrength of their city and grow ſecure, ver. 13, 14.

589.

1. THE word which came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, when king Zedekiah [a] ſent unto him Paſhur the ſon of Melchiah, and Zephaniah the ſon of Maaſeiah the prieſt, ſaying, 2. † Enquire, I pray thee, of the LORD for us, (for Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon maketh war againſt us) if ſo be that the LORD will deal with us according to all [b] his wondrous works, that he may go up from us. 3. ¶ Then ſaid Jeremiah unto them, Thus ſhall ye ſay to Zedekiah, 4. Thus ſaith the LORD God of Iſrael, Behold, I will turn back the weapons of war that are in your hands, wherewith ye fight againſt the king of Babylon, and againſt the Chaldeans which beſiege you without the walls, and I will aſſemble them into the midſt of this city. 5. And I myſelf will fight againſt you [c] with an outſtretched hand, and with a ſtrong arm, even in anger, and in fury, and in great wrath. 6. And I will ſmite the inhabitants of this city, both man and beaſt: they ſhall die of a great peſtilence. 7. And afterwards, ſaith the LORD, [d] I will deliver Zedekiah king of Judah, and his ſervants, and the people, and ſuch as are left in this city from the peſtilence, from the ſword, and from the famine, into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of thoſe that ſeek their life, and he ſhall ſmite them with the edge of the ſword: [e] he ſhall not ſpare them, neither have pity, nor have mercy.

[a] Exod. ix. 28. 2 Chron. xxxvi. 12.
† Or intreat.
[b] Pſ. xliv. 1, 2.

Before Chriſt 589.

[c] Exod. vi. 6.
[d] Chap. xxxix. 5. & lii. 9.
[e] Ezek. ix. 5.

v. 1—7. When the danger is diſtant, many affect to deſpiſe it who tremble at its approach, and inſtantly fly to thoſe miniſters in their diſtreſs, whoſe warnings in their proſperity they diſregarded.

1. Zedekiah is no ſooner beſieged by the Chaldeans, than he ſends to conſult with Jeremiah, under whoſe predictions he had refuſed to humble himſelf, 2 Chron. xxxvi. 12. and by the moſt honourable meſſengers entreats him to enquire of the Lord for them, and adviſe them how to get rid of their enemies, and raiſe the ſiege; thus magnifying his mercy, and adding to his former wondrous works, manifeſted to Hezekiah in the like diſtreſs, 2 Chron. xxxii. 20, 21. Note, (1.) Many in trouble are willing enough to cry to God to eaſe them of their ſufferings, who expreſs little concern about their ſins. (2.) They who have ſcorned the prayers of good men, in the day of evil will be glad of an intereſt in them. (3.) The gracious interpoſitions of God in behalf of the penitent and faithful, are no precedents to embolden the hope of the unhumbled.

2. A tremendous anſwer is given to the enquiry from Iſrael's God, who tho' he diſclaimed not the relation, and ſtill had mercy in ſtore for the nation, had decreed to give up the men of that wicked generation to deſerved puniſhment. Therefore he informs them, that all their efforts againſt their enemies would prove unſucceſsful, and their city be taken by the Chaldeans, v. 4. That reſiſtance was vain, ſince God was their enemy, whoſe wrath burned like fire againſt them, and whoſe outſtretched arm would deſtroy them with a terrible deſtruction. The famine, peſtilence, ſword ſhould conſume them; and when at laſt the caſe proved deſperate, and the few that remained with their king attempted to ſave themſelves, they ſhould be ſeized and maſſacred without remorſe and pity, by their cruel enemies who ſought their life; and having taken the city by ſtorm, would glut their bloody revenge for their reſiſtance. Note, They who fight againſt God, ruſh on their own ruin, and there is no eſcape when the decree is gone forth; flight is then as fruitleſs as reſiſtance.

8. ¶ And unto this people thou ſhalt ſay, Thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, I [f] ſet before you the way of life, and the way of death. 9. [g] He that abideth in this city ſhall die by the ſword, and by the famine, and by the peſtilence: but he that goeth out, and falleth to the Chaldeans that beſiege you, he ſhall live, and [h] his life ſhall be unto him for a prey. 10. For I have ſet my face againſt this city for evil, and not for good, ſaith the LORD, it ſhall be given into the hand of the king of Babylon, and [i] he ſhall burn it with fire. 11. ¶ And touching the houſe of the king of Judah, ſay, Hear ye the word of the LORD, 12. O houſe of David, thus ſaith the LORD, [k] Execute judgment [l] in the morning, and deliver him that is ſpoiled, out of the hand of the oppreſſor, leſt my fury go out like fire, and burn that none can quench it, becauſe of the evil of your doings. 13. Behold, I am againſt thee, O † inhabitant of the valley, and rock of the plain, ſaith the LORD; which ſay, Who ſhall come down againſt us? or who ſhall enter into our habitations? 14. But I will ‡ puniſh you [m] according to the fruit of your doings, ſaith the LORD: and I will kindle a fire in the foreſt thereof, and [n] it ſhall devour all things round about it.

[f] Deut. xxx. 19.
[g] Chap. xxxviii. 2.
[h] Chap. xxxix. 18. & xlv. 5.
[i] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 19.
609.
[k] Chap. xxii. 3. Zech. vii. 9.
[l] Pſ. ci. 8.
† Heb. Inhabitreſs.
‡ Heb. Viſit upon.
[m] Prov. i. 31. Iſa. iii. 11.
[n] Chap. lii. 13.

v. 8—14. The meſſengers being diſmiſſed with this rough reply, the prophet is ſent to the people,

1. To admoniſh them of the only way which remained of ſaving their lives, by ſurrendering themſelves up to the Chaldeans, as inevitable ruin would be the conſequence of perſiſting to defend themſelves; God's wrath being upon the city, the devouring fire ready to ſeize its palaces, and whoever abode in it being doomed to periſh by the ſword, the famine, and the peſtilence. A dreadful alternative! either an ignominious ſlavery, or a miſerable death.

2. To warn their king and princes, and call them to repentance at the peril of their ſouls. In vain they boaſted their deſcent from the houſe of David, who were ſo degenerate from his piety; they ſhould, as his ſucceſſors, diſcharge the duties of their high ſtation; execute judgment in the morning, ſpeedily, not ſpending their days in ſloth and luxury; and deliver the ſpoiled from the hand of the oppreſſor, againſt whom he cried for juſtice: this they had grievouſly neglected, and therefore God was about to viſit them; nor ſhould their greatneſs be any protection from the fire of his wrath. One moment's reſpite is yet afforded them, one warning more given them, if ſo be by an immediate return, they may ſuſpend, if not avert the deſcending blow. Note, (1.) They who are entruſted with the adminiſtration of juſtice, ſhould be ſpeedy as well as impartial in their deciſions: the delays of juſtice are almoſt as intolerable as oppreſſion. (2.) Faithful prophets will not fear great men's faces, but plainly rebuke their ſins. (3.) The ſins of rulers will be moſt ſeverely brought to account, as their influence and example are moſt pernicious.

3. To confound the folly of the hopes they entertained. They thought their city by ſituation, as well as art, impregnable; fortified by ſurrounding hills and craggy rocks, that rendered the approach of an enemy difficult; and therefore with confidence of ſafety defied all invaders; who ſhall come down againſt us, who ſhall enter into our habitation; but what defence is available when God ſaith, Behold, I am againſt thee, ſince his vengeance awoke to puniſh them for the fruit of their doings, their munition of rocks is levelled to the ground. In righteous judgment the fire is kindled, and Jeruſalem with all her palaces, like a foreſt, periſhes in the flames. Wo to the ſinner againſt whom this devouring fire of wrath is ſtirred up; who can dwell in everlaſting burnings?

CHAP. XXII.

This chapter contains ſome warnings that in the preceding reigns God had given the kings of Judah. 1. A meſſage is ſent to the royal family, as it ſhould ſeem, in the reign of Jehoiakim, relating partly to Jehoahaz, who was carried away captive into Egypt, and partly to Jehoiakim who ſucceeded him, and was now upon the throne. The king and princes are exhorted to execute judgment, and are aſſured that if they did ſo, the royal family ſhould flouriſh, but otherwiſe it ſhould be ruined, ver. 1—10. Jehoahaz is lamented, ver. 10—12. Jehoiakim is reproved, ver. 13—19. 2. Another meſſage ſent them in the reign of Jehoiachin. He is charged with an obſtinate refuſal to hear, threatned with deſtruction, and it is foretold that in him Solomon's houſe ſhould fail, ver. 20—30.

1. THUS ſaith the LORD, Go down to the houſe of the king of Judah, and ſpeak there this word, 2. And ſay, Hear the word of the LORD, O king of Judah, that ſitteſt upon the throne of David, thou, and thy ſervants, and thy people that enter in by theſe gates; 3. Thus ſaith the LORD, [a] Execute ye judgment and righteouſneſs, and deliver the ſpoiled out of the hand of the oppreſſor: and do no wrong, do no violence to the ſtranger, the fatherleſs, nor the widow, neither ſhed innocent blood in this place. 4. For if ye do this thing indeed, [b] then ſhall there enter in by the gates of this houſe, kings ſitting † upon the throne of David, riding in chariots, and on horſes, he, and his ſervants, and his people. 5. But [c] if ye will not hear theſe words, [d] I ſwear by myſelf, ſaith the LORD, that this houſe ſhall become a deſolation. 6. For thus ſaith the LORD unto the king's houſe of Judah, Thou art Gilead unto me, and the head of Lebanon: yet ſurely [e] I will make thee a wilderneſs, and cities which are not inhabited. 7. And I will prepare deſtroyers againſt thee, every one with his weapons, and they ſhall cut down [f] thy choice cedars, and caſt them into the fire. 8. And many nations ſhall paſs by this city, and they ſhall ſay every man to his neighbour, [g] Wherefore hath the LORD done thus unto this great city? 9. Then they ſhall anſwer, [h] Becauſe they have forſaken the covenant of the LORD their God, and worſhipped other gods, and ſerved them.

[a] Chap. xxi. 12.
[b] Chap. xvii. 25.
† Heb. For David upon his throne.
[c] Iſa. i. 20.
[d] Heb. vi. 13.
[e] Pſ. cvii. 34.
[f] Chap. xxi. 14.
[g] Deut. xxix. 24. 1 Kings ix. 8.
[h] 2 Chron. xxxiv. 25.

v. 1—9. Kings are God's vicegerents, accountable to him for their conduct; and when they abuſe the power wherewith they are entruſted, or neglect the duties of their ſtation, may expect his rebukes. Jeremiah is here ſent to the king of Judah Jehoiakim, the ſucceſſor of David, and ſitting on his throne, but grievouſly degenerated from his virtues. He and his ſervants are ſummoned to attend.

1. Their duty is ſet before them. To adminiſter judgment with impartiality; to vindicate the oppreſſed and injured; to do no wrong themſelves, nor permit others to do it with impunity; to protect the ſtranger, the fatherleſs, and widow; and ſhed no innocent blood, either by lawleſs violence, or under the cloak of juſtice. Very oppoſite to which had hitherto been their conduct, v. 17.

2. This would ſecure their proſperity, and entail a bleſſing upon their poſterity; preſerving long the crown of Judah to the royal race of David, and enabling them to live in ſplendor, anſwerable to their high dignity, v. 4.

3. On the contrary, if they perſiſted in their diſobedience, by an oath, to make the ſentence more awful and tremendous, God ſwears to make the houſe of the king of Judah a deſolation, and that his kingdom ſhould be involved in his ruin. Though thou art Gilead unto me, and the head of Lebanon, full of riches, and ſtrongly fortified, yet ſuch ravages ſhould be made in the land, that it ſhould be wholly depopulated, and its fertile plains become an howling wilderneſs: nor ſhould inſtruments be wanting to execute the threatned vengeance; I will prepare, or ſanctify deſtroyers, raiſe them up, and give them a commiſſion of moſt righteous judgment. In conſequence of which, they ſhall as eaſily cut down and deſtroy the mighty men of Judah, as the cedars fall before the axe of the hewer, and are caſt into the fire. With aſtoniſhment the neighbouring nations behold the deſtruction, and enquire into the cauſe, that a people once ſo favoured of God, ſhould now be ſo abandoned; and the anſwer is ready, becauſe they have apoſtatized from God's worſhip, and ſunk into foul idolatry. Note, They who forſake God, are juſtly forſaken of him.

10. ¶ [l] Weep ye not for the dead, neither bemoan him, but weep ſore for him [k] that goeth away: for he ſhall return no more, nor ſee his native country. 11. For thus ſaith the LORD touching Shallum the ſon of Joſiah king of Judah, which reigned inſtead of Joſiah his father, which went forth out of this place, He ſhall not return thither any more: 12. But he ſhall die in the place whither they have led him captive, and ſhall ſee this land no more. 13. ¶ [l] Wo unto him [m] that buildeth his houſe by unrighteouſneſs, and his chambers by wrong; that uſeth his neighbours ſervice without wages, and [n] giveth him not for his work: 14. That ſaith, I will build me a wide houſe, and † large chambers, and cutteth him out windows, and it is cieled with cedar, and painted with vermillion. 15. Shalt though reign, becauſe thou cloſeſt thyſelf in cedar? [o] did not thy father eat and drink, and do judgment and juſtice, and then it was well with him? 16. He judged the cauſe of the poor and needy, [p] then it was well with him: was not this to know me? ſaith the LORD. 17. But thine eyes and thine heart are not but for thy covetouſneſs, and for to ſhed innocent blood, and for oppreſſion, and for ‡ violence to do it. 18. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD concerning Jehoiakim the ſon of Joſiah king of Judah, They ſhall not lament for him, ſaying, [q] Ah my brother, or, ah ſiſter: they ſhall not lament for him, ſaying, Ah lord, or ah his glory. 19. [r] He ſhall be buried with the burial of an aſs, drawn and caſt forth beyond the gates of Jeruſalem.

[l] 2 Chron. xxxv. 25.
[k] 2 Kings xxiii. 34. Ezek. xix. 4.
[l] Ver. 18.
[m] Lev. xix. 13. Deut. xxiv. 14, 15. Mic. iii. 10. Hab. ii. 9.
[n] Jam. v. 4.
† Heb. Thorough aired.
[o] Pſ. cxxviii. 2. Iſa. iii. 10.
[p] Prov. xvi. 12.
‡ Or incurſion.
[q] 1 Kings xiii. 30. Fulfilled 599.
[r] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 6. Chap. xxxvi. 30.

v. 10—19. Kings are not too high for God to humble, nor for his prophets to reprove. We have here the ſad doom of two read, who reigned ſucceſſively in Judah, the ſons of good Joſiah, from whoſe ſteps they ſhamefully departed.

1. Shallum, the ſame as Jehoahaz, the immediate ſucceſſor of Joſiah, 2 Chron. xxxvi. 1. After a ſhort reign of three months, ſee 2 Kings xxiii. 34. he was carried captive into Egypt, and from thence he muſt, by the divine decree, never return, but die in ignominy. Him therefore the people are called upon to bewail, and rather weep over the captive ſon, than bedew with their tears the corpſe of his pious father, who was at reſt, and removed from beholding the evil to come. Note, Dying ſaints may be juſtly envied, whilſt living ſinners are to be pitied.

2. Jehoiakim, his ſucceſſor, has not a more favourable judgment. His ſins were great, and though he now ſat on the throne, the prophet faithfully dares to rebuke him. Proud, and affecting to rival the greatneſs of his moſt illuſtrious predeceſſors, during the moſt flouriſhing ſtate of their kingdom: tho' himſelf no better than a viceroy, firſt to the king of Egypt, and then to the Babyloniſh monarch, he was building or enlarging his palace, in the moſt magnificent taſte, and with the moſt expenſive decorations; and as the revenues of his kingdom probably were inſufficient, he became tyrannical and oppreſſive, extorting money from his ſubjects, or conſtraining them to ſerve and ſupply him with materials, without paying them for their labour. Secure, and ſelf-confident; he promiſed himſelf many long years to enjoy his houſe of cedar, and that his pomp would be his protection: unjuſt and cruel withal, unlike his pious father, who lived in ſobriety and temperance, and adminiſtred juſtice with impartiality. Was not this to know me? ſaith the Lord; it ſhewed true regard to God, and conſequently was attended with the divine bleſſing; then it was well with him. But he with harpy talons ſtuck at no violence to gratify the inſatiate covetouſneſs of his heart, and ſhed the blood of the innocent, that he might ſeize their ſubſtance. In conſequence of which his doom is read: he ſhall die unlamented; neither his ſubjects nor relations ſhall expreſs the leaſt concern for his fate; his corpſe ſhall not have a tear dropped over it, and even want a grave: buried with the burial of an aſs; drawn with ignominy, and caſt forth beyond the gates of Jeruſalem; which, though not obſerved in the hiſtory of the kings, was no doubt literally accompliſhed. Note, (1.) That great men ſhould dwell in palaces, is becoming; but when pride rears the ſtructure, condemnation lies againſt the ſoul. (2.) The chambers built by wrong will cry out for vengeance on the oppreſſor; and God will not let the defrauded labourer's complaint paſs by unheard. (3.) They who place dependance on proſperity and the enjoyment of the fruits of iniquity, will find their hopes terribly diſappointed. (4.) Covetouſneſs is the root of all evil: from hence ſpring rapine, bloodſhed, and every evil work. (5.) The way to proſper is to know God, and ſerve him; whilſt deſtruction inevitable muſt be the portion of thoſe who forget and forſake him. (6.) It is an aggravation of ſin to have lived under pious parents, and in the face of their inſtructions and examples to prove rebellious. (7.) They who are lifted up the higheſt in pride, will ſhortly fall the loweſt in miſery.

Before Chriſt 609.

598.
[s] 2 Kings xxiv. 7.
[t] Chap. vi. 17.
[u] Ibid. vii. 23, &c.
[x] Ibid. xxiii. 1.
† Heb. Inhabitreſs.
[y] 2 Kings xxiv. 6, 8. Chap. xxxvii. 1.
[z] Cant. viii. 6. Hag. ii. 23.
[a] 2 Kings xxiv. 15.
‡ Heb. Lift up their mind.
[b] Chap. xlviii. 38. Hoſ. viii. 8.

20. ¶ Go up to Lebanon, and cry, and lift up thy voice to Baſhan, and cry from the paſſages: for all [s] thy lovers are deſtroyed. 21. I ſpake unto thee in thy proſperity, but [t] thou ſaidſt, I will not hear: [u] this hath been thy manner from thy youth, that thou obeyedſt not my voice. 22. The wind ſhall eat up all [x] thy paſtors, and thy lovers ſhall go into captivity, ſurely then ſhalt thou be aſhamed and confounded for all thy wickedneſs. 23. O † inhabitant of Lebanon, that makeſt thy neſt in the cedars, how gracious ſhalt thou be when pangs come upon thee, the pain as of a woman in travail? 24. As I live, ſaith the LORD, though [y] Coniah the ſon of Jehoiakim king of Judah were [z] the ſignet upon my right hand, yet would I pluck thee thence, 25. And I will give thee into the hand of them that ſeek thy life, and into the hand of them whoſe face thou feareſt, even into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and into the hand of the Chaldeans. 26. And [a] I will caſt thee out, and thy mother that bare thee, into another country, where ye were not born, and there ſhall ye die. 27. But to the land whereunto they ‡ deſire to return, thither ſhall they not return. 28. Is this man Coniah a deſpiſed broken idol? is he [b] a veſſel wherein is no pleaſure? wherefore are they caſt out, he and his ſeed, and are caſt into a land which they know not? 29. O earth, earth, earth, hear the word of the LORD. 30. Thus ſaith the LORD, Write ye this man childleſs, a man that ſhall not proſper in his days: for no man of his ſeed ſhall proſper, ſitting upon the throne of David, and ruling any more in Judah.

v. 20—30. We have line upon line, and warning upon warning, yet all inſufficient to alarm a ſtupid people.

1. Their miſery and diſtreſs are painted in lively colours. When their enemies were advancing, they are repreſented as running to the mountain-tops, and calling out for help to the neighbouring nations; but in vain; for all thy lovers are deſtroyed, and none willing to ſhew them the leaſt kindneſs in the day of their calamity. They had been deaf to the warnings of the prophets, from the day they came out of Egypt, and diſobedient to the voice of God; vain of their proſperity, and confident they ſhould never be removed. But now their deſolation approaches, when they ſhould be confounded and aſhamed for all their wickedneſs; as deſtitute of help within, as of aſſiſtance from without; becauſe the wind ſhall eat up all thy paſtors, the governors in church and ſtate, kings, nobles, prieſts, and prophets, as weak to reſiſt the Chaldean hoſts, as ſtubble to oppoſe the furious whirlwind. Though lofty in pride as Lebanon, and dwelling in houſes cieled with cedar, theſe would be no ſecurity, but be food for the devouring flames; whilſt from their enemies they might expect to find no favour, in the day when their deepeſt anguiſh ſhould ſeize them, as the pangs of a travailing woman, v. 22. The words, How gracious ſhalt thou be, may be rendered, What favour wilt thou find? and intimates the deſperateneſs of their caſe, which ſeems moſt agreeable to the context; though they may alſo be interpreted of the effects theſe judgments ſhould have upon them, when their diſtreſſes ſhould drive them in penitence to God, and they ſhould find mercy with him in the land of their captivity. Note, (1.) Proſperity is a dangerous ſtate: they who live at eaſe too often care not to attend the warnings of God. (2.) Creature-dependance will fail in the day of calamity. (3.) It is well for us, if what we ſuffer brings us at laſt in pangs of real repentance to God.

Before Chriſt 598.

2. Their king's judgment is pronounced. He is called Coniah, inſtead of Jeconiah, in contempt. His name is ſhortned, intimating that his reign ſhould be cut ſhort, and his regal honour depart from him. Doomed to a miſerable ſervitude, God threatens to give him up into the hands of the king of Babylon, whom he feared, and who ſought his life, with his mother and family, v. 28. and pining in vain for the land of their nativity, they ſhould long drag their ignominious chain, and die in the place of their captivity. His pious fathers had been as a ſignet on God's right hand; ſo dear to him, and valued by him, as the ring that bears the picture, or is the gift, of the perſon we love: but his ill conduct had caſt him out of favour, and therefore God in high diſpleaſure threatens he will pluck him thence, and abandon him to ruin: and this his determination is irrevocable, confirmed with an oath: As I live, ſaith the Lord, who, ſince he can ſwear by no greater, ſwears by himſelf, v. 24. Note, (1.) They are undone for ever whom God abandons. (2.) The greateſt muſt not be too confident: they know not what ſtrange calamities may await them.

3. All who beheld this monarch fallen would tauntingly ſay, Is this Coniah, a deſpiſed broken idol? Yes: ſo deſpicable is he grown, who late was idolized. Is he a veſſel wherein is no pleaſure? he that was late the people's darling, is now diſregarded, and caſt by as a broken veſſel; led, with all that pertained to him, into a ſtrange land, there to ſuffer the puniſhment of his iniquities.

4. The earth is ſummoned to mark his judgment: either the people of Judea in particular, or of the world in general: or, as if the clod under their feet would be more attentive than the hardened hearts of the men of that generation, it is called upon to hear the ſolemn ſentence. Thus ſaith the Lord, Write ye this man childleſs, a man that ſhall not proſper in his days; after a ſhort reign of three months, he ſpent his whole life in captivity in Babylon: for no man of his ſeed ſhall proſper, ſitting on the throne of David, and ruling any more in Judah. In him ended the race of Judah's kings, and probably the line of Solomon was now extinct, Salathiel being ſuppoſed his adopted heir, to whom his pretenſions were bequeathed, and, though accounted his ſon, Mat. i. 12. was a deſcendant of Nathan, and the ſon of Neri, Luke iii. 27.

CHAP. XXIII.

In this chapter the prophet, in God's name, deals out his reproofs and threatnings, 1. Among the careleſs paſtors of the people, ver. 1, 2. yet God promiſes to take care of the flock, ver. 3—8. 2. Among the wicked prophets and prieſts, whoſe ill character is here given at large, for which they muſt expect to be puniſhed, ver. 9—32. 3. Among the profane people, who ridiculed God's prophets, ver. 33—40.

[a] Chap. x. 21. & xxii. 22. Ezek. xxxiv. 2.
[b] Ezek. xxxiv. 4, 5.
[c] Exod. xxxii. 34.
[d] John x. 16.
[e] Chap. iii. 15. Ezek. xxxiv. 11, &c.
[f] Iſa. iv. 2. & xi. 1. & xl. 1. Chap. xxxiii. 14, 15. Dan. ix. 24. Zech. iii. 8. & vi. 12. John i. 45.
[g] Iſa. ix. 7.
[h] Pſ. lxxii. 2. Iſa. xxxii. 1.
[i] Deut. xxxiii. 28. Zech. xiv. 11.
[k] Chap. xxxiii. 16.
[l] Iſa. xlv. 24. 1 Cor. i. 30. 2 Cor. v. 21.
[m] Chap. xvi. 14, 15.
[n] Iſa. xliii. 5, 6.

1. WO be unto [a] the paſtors that deſtroy and ſcatter the ſheep of my paſture, ſaith the LORD. 2. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD God of Iſrael againſt the paſtors that feed my people, [b] Ye have ſcattered my flock, and driven them away, and have not viſited them; [c] behold, I will viſit upon you the evil of your doings, ſaith the LORD. 3. And I will gather the remnant of my flock, out of all countries whither I have driven them, and will bring them again to [d] their folds, and they ſhall be fruitful and increaſe. 4. And I will ſet up [e] ſhepherds over them, which ſhall feed them, and they ſhall fear no more, nor be diſmayed, neither ſhall they be lacking, ſaith the LORD. 5. ¶ Behold, [f] the days come, ſaith the LORD, that I will raiſe unto David a righteous branch, and [g] a king ſhall reign and proſper, and [h] ſhall execute judgment and juſtice in the earth. 6. [i] In his days Judah ſhall be ſaved, and Iſrael ſhall dwell ſafely: [k] and this is his name whereby he ſhall be called, [l] THE LORD OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS. 7. Therefore behold, [m] the days come, ſaith the LORD, that they ſhall no more ſay, The LORD liveth which brought up the children of Iſrael out of the land of Egypt: 8. But, the LORD liveth, which brought up, and which led the ſeed of the houſe of Iſrael out of the north country, and [n] from all the countries whither I had driven them, and they ſhall dwell in their own land.

v. 1—8. The prophet's meſſage is a roll full of woes againſt a wicked nation, utterly corrupt both in its head and members.

Before Chriſt 598.

1. He pronounces a woe on the paſtors of Iſrael, their rulers in church and ſtate, whoſe duty it was to have fed and protected the flock of God committed to their charge, but who had not only neglected to viſit, and take care of the ſheep, but had ſcattered and deſtroyed them by oppreſſion and covetouſneſs; by their bad examples leading them into ſin, and thereby bringing ruin upon them; for theſe evils God would viſit them with righteous judgment. Note, They who have the rule over men's perſons, and eſpecially thoſe who have the care of men's ſouls entruſted with them, ſhould remember the awful charge, and what a ſolemn account they muſt one day make.

2. He promiſes to take care of the flock they neglected.

[1.] He will bring the ſcattered captives to their own land again, under the conduct of the ſhepherds Zerubbabel, Nehemiah, and others, raiſed up by his providence, men faithful in their office, under whoſe government they ſhould increaſe in numbers, build again the waſte places of Jeruſalem and the cities of Judah, enjoy peace and proſperity, and no ſpoiler be permitted to devour them. Some ſuppoſe this refers to goſpel-times, when the elect of God ſhould be gathered into his church; when under the miniſtry of the apoſtles and preachers the ſheep of Chriſt ſhould be fed with the rich doctrines of grace; filled with that divine faith which caſteth out fear, and not one of the redeemed be ever ſuffered to periſh, John x. 28.

[2.] God bids them expect with confidence the coming of the promiſed Meſſiah. Behold, the days come, ſaith the Lord, ſwiftly advancing, and ſurely approaching, that I will raiſe unto David a righteous branch, by which name the Meſſiah is prefigured, Iſa. iv. 2. Zech. iii. 8. A branch, becauſe of his mean appearance, and the weakneſs of his incarnation; a righteous branch, perfectly ſo himſelf, and the author of all righteouſneſs to others; and raiſed unto David, unto whom God had promiſed that from him the Meſſiah ſhould deſcend; and a king ſhall reign and proſper; for mean as his appearance was, his throne was higher than the kings of the earth, eſtabliſhed from eternity, continuing to eternity. The kingdom he came to erect among men is an everlaſting kingdom; victory and proſperity marked all his ſteps, the powers of ſin and Satan were broken, and peace, love, and joy diffuſed in the hearts of all his redeemed people; and he ſhall execute judgment and juſtice in the earth, governing his people in righteouſneſs, and executing judgment on their enemies. In his days Judah, the choſen of God, ſhall be ſaved with an everlaſting ſalvation; and Iſrael, the ſpiritual Iſrael, ſhall dwell ſafely; delivered from the power of Satan, the fears of guilt, the prevalence of corruption, enjoying the preſent favour of a covenant God, and expecting a reſt eternal in the heavens: and this is the name whereby he ſhall be called, The Lord, Jehovah, our Righteouſneſs: by his obedience unto death, even the death of the croſs, he hath brought in an everlaſting righteouſneſs, and all who by faith apprehend him, are made partakers of it; God imputes it to them, and regards them as compleat in him. A righteouſneſs this, infinitely tranſcending all the righteouſneſs of men or angels, as being the righteouſneſs of Jehovah; and therefore, whoever make Jeſus their refuge, and this righteouſneſs their plea, can never enter into condemnation, but are entitled to the favour of God here, and to the inheritance of glory hereafter.

3. The greatneſs of this ſalvation would ſo far obſcure all the former deliverances God had wrought for his people, even their wondrous redemption from Egypt, that they ſhould no more be mentioned. And this muſt refer, not merely to their return from Babylon, but to their converſion under the preaching of the goſpel, when multitudes were turned to the Lord, and may have yet a farther reſpect to the latter days, when the fulneſs of the Gentiles being come in, all Iſrael ſhall be ſaved, and literally be gathered, as many learned men ſuppoſe, to dwell in their own land, which hath never been the caſe with the ten tribes, ſince their firſt diſperſion.

9. ¶ Mine heart within me is broken, becauſe of [o] the prophets, [p] all my bones ſhake: I am like a drunken man, and like a man whom wine hath overcome; becauſe of the LORD, and becauſe of the words of his holineſs. 10. For [q] the land is full of adulterers, for becauſe of † ſwearing the land mourneth: [r] the pleaſant places of the wilderneſs are dried up, and their courſe is evil, and their force is not right. 11. For [s] both prophet and prieſt are profane, yea, [t] in my houſe have I found their wickedneſs, ſaith the LORD. 12. [u] Wherefore their way ſhall be unto them as ſlippery ways in the darkneſs: they ſhall be driven on and fall therein: for I will bring evil upon them, even the year of their viſitation, ſaith the LORD. 13. And I have ſeen ‡ folly in the prophets of Samaria, [x] they propheſied in Baal, and [y] cauſed my people Iſrael to err. 14. I have ſeen alſo in the prophets of Jeruſalem an horrible thing: [z] they commit adultery, and [a] walk in lies: [b] they ſtrengthen alſo the hands of evil doers, that none doth return from his wickedneſs: they are all of them unto me [c] as Sodom, and the inhabitants thereof as Gomorrah. 15. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts concerning the prophets, Behold, I will feed them [d] with wormwood, and make them drink the water of gall: for from the prophets of Jeruſalem is ‖ profaneneſs gone forth into all the land. 16. Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, [e] Hearken not unto the words of the prophets that propheſy unto you; they make you vain: [f] they ſpeak a viſion of their own heart, and not out of the mouth of the LORD. 17. They ſay ſtill unto them that deſpiſe me, The LORD hath ſaid, [g] Ye ſhall have peace; and they ſay unto every one that walketh after the § imagination of his own heart, [h] No evil ſhall come upon you. 18. For [i] who hath ſtood in the † counſel of the LORD, and hath perceived and heard his word? who hath marked his word and heard it? 19. Behold, [k] a whirlwind of the LORD is gone forth in fury, even a grievous whirlwind, it ſhall fall grievouſly upon the head of the wicked. 20. [l] The anger of the LORD ſhall not return, until he have executed, and till he have performed the thoughts of his heart: in the latter days [m] ye ſhall conſider it perfectly. 21. [n] I have not ſent theſe prophets, yet they ran: I have not ſpoken to them, yet they propheſied. 22. But if they had ſtood in my counſel, and had cauſed my people to hear my words, then they ſhould have turned them from their evil way, and from the evil of their doings. 23. Am I a God at hand, ſaith the LORD, and not a God afar off? 24. [o] Can any hide himſelf in ſecret places, that I ſhall not ſee him? ſaith the LORD: [p] do not I fill heaven and earth? ſaith the LORD. 25. I have heard what the prophets ſaid, that propheſy lies in my name, ſaying, I have dreamed, I have dreamed. 26. How long ſhall this be in the heart of the prophets that propheſy lies? yea, they are prophets of the deceit of their own heart; 27. [q] Which think to cauſe my people to forget my name by their dreams which they tell every man to his neighbour, [r] as their fathers have forgotten my name, for Baal. 28. The prophet that hath a dream, let him tell a dream; and he that hath my word, let him ſpeak [s] my word [t] faithfully: what is the chaff to the wheat? ſaith the LORD. 29. Is not my word like [u] as a fire? ſaith the LORD: and like a hammer [x] that breaketh [y] the rock in pieces? 30. Therefore behold, [z] I am againſt the prophets, ſaith the LORD, that ſteal my words, every one from his neighbour. 31. Behold, I am againſt the prophets, ſaith the LORD, that ‡ uſe their tongues, and ſay, He ſaith. 32. Behold, I am againſt them that propheſy falſe dreams, ſaith the LORD, and do tell them, and [a] cauſe my people to err by their lies and [b] by their lightneſs, yet I ſent them not, nor commanded them: therefore [c] they ſhall not profit this people at all, ſaith the LORD.

[o] Lam. ii. 14.
[p] Hab. iii. 16.
[q] Chap. v. 7, 8. & ix. 2.
† Or curſing.
[r] Chap. ix. 10. & xii. 4.
[s] Chap. vi. 13. & viii. 10. Zeph. iii. 4.
[t] Chap. xi. 15. Ezek. viii. 11. & xxiii. 39.
[u] Pſ. xxxv. 6. Prov. iv. 19. Chap. xiii. 16.
‡ Heb. An unſavoury thing.
[x] Chap. ii. 8.
[y] Iſa. ix. 16.
[z] Chap. xxix. 23.
[a] 1 Tim. iv. 2.
[b] Ezek. xiii. 22.

Before Chriſt 598.

[c] Deut. xxxii. 32. Iſa. i. 9, 10.
[d] Chap. viii. 14. & ix. 15.
‖ Or hypocriſy.
[e] Mat. vii. 15.
[f] Chap. xiv. 14.
[g] Chap. vi. 14. & viii. 11. Ezek. xiii. 10. Zech. x. 2.
§ Or ſtubbornneſs.
[h] Mic. iii. 11.
[i] Job xv. 8.
† Or ſecret.
[k] Chap. xxv. 32. & xxx. 23.
[l] Chap. xxx. 24.
[m] Ezek. ii. 5.
[n] Chap. xiv. 14. & xxvii. 15. & xxix. 9.
[o] Pſal. cxxxix. 7, &c. Amos ix. 2, 3.
[p] 1 Kings viii. 27. Pſ. cxxxix. 7.
[q] Acts xiii. 8.
[r] Judg. iii. 7. & viii. 33, 34.
[s] 1 Pet. iv. 11.
[t] 2 Cor. ii. 17.
[u] Chap. v. 14. Luke xxiv. 32. 2 Cor. ii. 16. Heb. iv. 12.
[x] 2 Cor. x. 4, 5.
[y] Ezek. xi. 19. Zech. vii. 12.
[z] Deut. xviii. 20. Chap. xiv. 14, 15.
‡ Or ſmooth.
[a] Ver. 16.
[b] Zeph. iii. 4.
[c] Lam. ii. 14.

v. 9—32. When God comes to viſit, none will ſuffer ſeverer vengeance than thoſe whoſe duty it was to have ſtood in the gap againſt the growing evils; but who baſely joined in the general defection, and hardened and encouraged ſinners by their ſmooth prophecies and ill examples. Againſt theſe the prophet is ſent to denounce God's wrath.

1. He appears deeply affected with what he ſaw, and the fearful meſſage he was about to deliver. My heart within me is broken with grief, becauſe of the wickedneſs he beheld, and the ruin ready to enſue; all my bones ſhake with horror; I am as a drunken man, at a loſs what to ſay or do; ſo confounded was he with the abominations he ſaw, becauſe of the Lord, whoſe name was ſo diſhonoured, and becauſe of the words of his holineſs, profanely abuſed by thoſe who pretended to inſpiration from him; or becauſe of the dire judgments, which in righteous wrath he was ſent to denounce againſt them. Note, A true prophet grieves for the diſhonour caſt on God by men's wickedneſs, whilſt he trembles at their approaching doom.

2. He declares the dreadful ſtate of the whole land. Full of adulterers, corporally and ſpiritually; full of ſwearers, perjured or profane, who having caſt off the fear of God, made no conſcience of an oath. For theſe things God had begun to viſit them; the land mourned already with drought, the paſtures failed, and famine devoured them; and yet, hardened in ſin, their courſe is evil, they attend not to theſe warnings of God, but run to the ſame exceſs of evil, and will not be reſtrained; and their force is not right; their power and influence was exerted, not to ſuppreſs, but to encourage iniquity; or their violence is not right, full of rapine and injuſtice, as well as adultery and profaneneſs. No marvel ſuch a people are devoted to ruin.

Before Christ 595.

3. They who ſhould have reſtrained them, are the ringleaders in ſin. For both prophets and prieſts are profane in their converſation and their lives; or play the hypocrite, pretending zeal for religion, and with the cloak of piety covering the fouleſt abominations: yea, in my houſe, where moſt peculiarly God required purity, have I found their wickedneſs, ſaith the Lord, defiling the ſacred place with their falſe doctrines, their flagrant immoralities, or idolatry, 1 Sam. xi. 22. The prophets of Iſrael had been bad, very bad, God had ſeen their wickedneſs and folly; propheſying in the name of Baal, and cauſing the people to err by their words, and debauching them by their ill examples: but bad as the prophets of Samaria had been, the prophets of Jeruſalem have equalled, yea, exceeded them in their abominations. Horrible to tell! even in the face of God's temple they commit adultery, and walk in lies, reporting lying viſions, making falſe pretences to prophecy, and turning the people from God to idols; hardening ſinners in iniquity, crying peace, to lull their conſciences aſleep in fatal ſecurity, profaning God's name to vouch for their lies, v. 17. and by their wicked deeds encouraging and emboldening others to ſin. Note, (1.) No guilt ſo aggravated as theirs, who have not only their own blood, but the blood of loſt ſouls lying upon them. (2.) Nothing ſo emboldens and hardens ſinners, as when their teachers give them an occaſion of offence by their ungodly converſation.

4. An awful threatning is pronounced againſt them. God regarded them as the inhabitants of Sodom and Gomorrah, their guilt ſo great, and crying to heaven for vengeance: and ſwift it deſcends; the Lord will bring evil upon them, even the year of their viſitation. The time is fixed, the judgment ready to ſeize them, their ſlippery ways ſhall lead them into horrible darkneſs, they ſhall not be able to forſee nor avoid the ruin that approaches, but be driven on by irreſiſtible violence, captivated by Satan and their own luſts, and fall therein from the depths of ſin into the depths of miſery, led into a miſerable ſlavery, or periſhing with famine and the ſword, v. 12. The bittereſt and moſt poiſonous cup of affliction, wormwood and gall, or the juice of hemlock, a cup of trembling, is mingled for them, to puniſh them for their horrid profaneneſs, the contagion of which had ſpread over the land. Nothing being ſo dangerouſly infectious, and ſo fatally deſtructive, as the example of a debauched and abandoned miniſtry.

5. God cautions the people to pay no regard to the lying ſuggeſtions of theſe falſe prophets, v. 16. They make you vain, bolſter you up in falſe hopes, ſpeak the fancies of their own corrupted hearts, not the viſions of inſpiration, v. 17. They cry peace to the wicked, to whom God hath ſaid there is no peace; and promiſe them impunity when vengeance is ready to light upon them, v. 17. Inſulting and contradicting the prophets of the Lord, who affirmed God's wrath was ready to be revealed, they ridiculed their pretenſions to propheſy; or boaſting themſelves of God's counſel, they vaunted their knowledge of his word and will, for who were ſo deep in his ſecrets as they? v. 18. therefore, as the moſt effectual method of conviction, God will ariſe, Behold, a whirlwind of the Lord is gone forth in fury; the executioners of his judgments, the Chaldeans, with reſiſtleſs violence are haſting to deſtroy; even a grievous whirlwind, it ſhall fall grievouſly on the head of the wicked, both on the deceived and the deceivers, but eſpecially on the wicked prophets; nor depart from them till it hath anſwered God's decree and purpoſe, and extirpated them from the land; and conviction will come too late, when the ſentence begins to be executed; they ſhall then ſee what they will not now believe, v. 20. Or, in the latter days, may refer to the times of the goſpel, or the final converſion of the Jews, when they ſhall conſider all their paſt viſitations, and be convinced and turned unto the Lord; tho' the former ſenſe ſeems preferable, as more agreeable to the context. God, by theſe his judgments, made it evident, that he had not ſent theſe prophets, yet they ran without any commiſſion from him, ſelf-ordained, and pretending to propheſy when he had never taught them, but they palmed on the people the effuſions of their corrupted hearts for his inſpirations, v. 21. and this was proved alſo from the effects of their miniſtry; for had they been ſent of God, as they pretended, they would have made his word the ſtandard of their preaching; and, as the bleſſed effect of their labours, would have beheld the converſion of men's ſouls turned by their preaching from the evil of their ways; the very reverſe of which was evident, v. 22. Note, (1.) We need be often cautioned againſt falſe prophets, they are in every day more numerous than the true; and by authority and numbers ſeek to caſt on them the brand of falſhood, but by their fruits ye ſhall know them. (2.) No man may take on him the office of the miniſtry who is not called of God, and moved by the inſpiration of the Holy Ghoſt. They who profeſs they are, and yet are conſcious of the falſehood of ſuch declarations, God will not only diſown, but fearfully puniſh. (3.) They who go forth in God's name, and pretend to labour for him, yet ſee no effect of their miniſtry, and no one ſoul brought to a ſenſe of ſin and the knowledge of reconciliation by them, may juſtly ſuſpect their doctrine is falſe, and themſelves deluded.

6. God expoſtulates with them on their folly and wickedneſs. Do they think to deceive him by their lies? Can he, like man, a worm, only ſee the objects near him; and becauſe afar off in heaven, is he unable to deſcry what paſſes here below, and in the hearts of men? Vain hope! to think of impoſing on Omniſcience, and evading his eye, who filleth heaven and earth with his preſence. The darkeſt receſſes of the globe, or the darker devices of the human mind, are all naked and open to him; for there is no darkneſs, nor ſhadow of death, where any of the workers of wickedneſs can hide themſelves, v. 24. He heard and ſaw what theſe falſe prophets thought and ſpoke, he detected their impoſtures and lying dreams, which they reported as divine inſpirations; and ſeverely upbraids them with their hardened effrontery, How long ſhall this be in the heart of the prophets that propheſy lies? will they never have done with their lies? Or the words may be read, How long will they go on thus? Is there any thing in the heart of the prophets that propheſy lies? No; their mind and conſcience is defiled; yea, they are prophets of the deceit of their own hearts, deceiving and being deceived, given up to their deluſions to believe their own lie; and with moſt malignant intentions ſtriving to debauch the minds of God's people to atheiſm and idolatry, as their fathers, by Baal's prophets, had been ſeduced before them, v. 27. Note, (1.) A ſenſe of God's all-ſeeing eye is the great preſervative from evil. (2.) They who would call off God's people, by pretences of new revelation, from the worſhip he hath preſcribed, and the obedience he hath enjoined, evidently prove the falſehood of their pretenſions.

Before Christ 598.

7. The prophet, in God's name, lays down the criterion to judge the falſe prophets and the true. He that hath a dream, let him tell his dream, and the event will prove whether it comes from God: or this is addreſſed to the falſe prophets, warning them not to call it a viſion from God, but report what they dream as a dream. And he that hath my word, a real and experimental knowledge of it, let him ſpeak my word faithfully, without keeping back a tittle, however offenſive or dangerous it may be to bear teſtimony to the truth. What is the chaff to the wheat, ſaith the Lord? As different as theſe are, ſo different is the word of truth from the vain imaginations of the falſe prophets: the one nutritive, ſubſtantial, weighty; the other light, vain, and deluſive. Is not my word like fire, ſaith the Lord? its operations quick, piercing, kindling a fire of conviction in the ſinner's conſcience; a fire of trial, ſeparating the precious from the vile; a fire of love in the hearts of the faithful; and like a hammer that breaketh the rock in pieces? breaking the rocky heart of fallen man with deep contrition, and leading it to Chriſt; or ſtamping the hardened ſinner to powder, denouncing upon him the vengeance of eternal puniſhment. So effectual and mighty was the word in the mouth of the true prophets, whilſt the preaching of the falſe prophets neither communicated light nor heat, was accompanied with no power, nor produced the leaſt good effects on the people.

8. God charges them with other notorious crimes. They ſteal my word, every one from his neighbour, either the words of the true prophets, which they introduced the better to inſinuate their falſhoods, as if mimicking their language, they alſo partook of their inſpiration: or they prejudiced the people againſt them, and prevented them from paying regard to their admonitions and warnings. They uſe their tongues, and ſay, He ſaith, pretending a divine commiſſion, and taking the name of God in their mouths in vain; or they ſmooth their tongues, propheſy what will pleaſe and flatter men in their ſins, and dare add God's ſanction to their lies. They propheſy falſe dreams, impoſing the reveries of their own brain for inſpiration, and cauſe the people to err by their lies and by their lightneſs; their falſe doctrines and evil examples encourage ſinners in their wickedneſs, and for theſe things God threatens them with his vengeance. Behold, I am againſt the prophets; three times he repeats it, to ſhew the certainty and terribleneſs of the wrath they had provoked. He diſowns the leaſt connection with them; I ſent them not, neither commanded them; they were lying boaſters, who had no commiſſion from him; therefore they ſhall not profit this people at all, but, the very reverſe, ſhall bring down deſtruction on their heads as well as their own. Note, None do more irreparable miſchief in the church of God, than they who, pretending to be preachers of the truth, advance the doctrines of error, and beguile unſtable ſouls.

33. ¶ And when this people, or the prophet, or a prieſt ſhall aſk thee, ſaying, What is the burden of the LORD? thou ſhalt then ſay unto them, What burden?
[d] I will even forſake you, ſaith the LORD. 34. And d Ver. 39.
as for the prophet, and the prieſt, and the people that ſhall ſay, The burden of the LORD, I will even † pu- † Heb.
niſh that man and his houſe. 35. Thus ſhall ye ſay Viſit upon.
every one to his neighbour, and every one to his bro- Ver. 2.
ther, What hath the LORD anſwered? and, What hath the LORD ſpoken? 36. And the burden of the LORD ſhall ye mention no more: for every man's word ſhall be his burden: for ye have perverted the words of the living God, of the LORD of hoſts our God.

Before Chriſt 598.

God. 37. Thus ſhalt thou ſay to the prophet, What hath the LORD anſwered thee? and, What hath the LORD ſpoken? 38. But ſith ye ſay, The burden of the LORD; therefore thus ſaith the LORD, Becauſe you ſay this word, The burden of the LORD, and I have ſent unto you, ſaying, Ye ſhall not ſay, The burden of the LORD: 39. Therefore behold, I, even I will utterly forget you, and [e] I will forſake you, and the city that I gave you and your fathers, and [f] caſt you out of my preſence. 40. And I will bring [g] an everlaſting reproach upon you, and a perpetual ſhame, which ſhall not be forgotten.

[e] Ver. 33.
[f] Chap. xv. 1.
[g] Chap. xx. 11.

v. 33—40. It is evil indeed with any nation, when the moſt awful words of God are ſcoffed at, and made the object of ridicule.

1. The ſin here charged on the falſe prophets, prieſts, and people, is their horrid profaneneſs. Inſtead of humbly enquiring concerning God's mind and will, v. 35. they ſcoffingly repeated the prophet's words, and contemptuouſly enquired, What is the burden of the Lord? mocking the phraſe, as a cant term, becauſe the true prophets often made uſe of it, and deſpiſing the judgments which this word uſually imported; perverting thus the words of the living God, of the Lord of hoſts our God, contemning his power, and inſulting his majeſty; and though warned to deſiſt, they perſevered in their impious deriſion, v. 38. Note, (1.) It hath been the common effort of the wicked in all ages, to make God's word the butt of their wit; and by torturing ſome expreſſion to a ludicrous meaning, to turn the warnings of his miniſters into contempt. (2.) As long ago as Jeremiah, the burden of the Lord afforded matter of deriſion; he was one of thoſe preachers of hell and damnation which the men of that generation mocked at. Let ſuch ſinners then mock on, and fill up the meaſure of their iniquities. (3.) Wicked prophets and falſe preachers are uſually chief in this tranſgreſſion, and the great accuſers and revilers of the faithful; but that damnation they deride ſlumbereth not.

2. God declares his full purpoſe condignly to puniſh ſuch profaneneſs, v. 34. Every man's word ſhall be his burden, lay on him a load of guilt that, if unrepented of, ſhall ſink his ſoul into the depths of hell. Behold, I, even I, that living God, againſt whom ſuch wretches dare open their impious lips, will utterly forget and forſake you, and give you up to your terrible doom, without one kind remembrance to alleviate your miſery. The city God had given them and their fathers, ſhould be a prey for the Chaldean army, and they be led into a miſerable captivity; nor ſhould their ſhame and diſgrace come to an end. For a long while the whole nation ſhould ſuffer the marks of his fierce diſpleaſure, which to this day lies upon them, and the impenitent among them be ſentenced to everlaſting ſhame and contempt in the day of final recompence and perdition of ungodly men. Note, (1.) However men may mock at God's word, it will be ſeen at laſt whoſe word ſhall ſtand, his or theirs. (2.) The damnation ſinners deſpiſe, ſhall ſhortly and terribly come upon them, and their laugh of deriſion be turned into everlaſting weeping, and wailing, and gnaſhing of teeth.

CHAP. XXIV.

In the moſt deſolating judgments God knows how to ſeparate the precious from the vile. We have here, 1. A viſion of two baſkets of figs, one very good, and the other very bad, ver. 1, 2, 3. 2. The explication of this viſion, applying the good figs to thoſe that were already ſent into captivity for their good, ver. 4—7. The bad figs to thoſe that ſhould hereafter be ſent into captivity for their hurt, ver. 8, 9, 10.

1. THE LORD ſhewed me, and behold, two baſkets of figs were ſet before the temple of the LORD, after that Nebuchadrezzar [a] king of Babylon had carried away captive [b] Jeconiah the ſon of Jehoiakim king of Judah, and the princes of Judah, with the carpenters and ſmiths from Jeruſalem, and had brought them to Babylon. 2. One baſket had [c] very good figs, even like the figs that are firſt ripe: and the other baſket had [d] very naughty figs, which could not be eaten, † they were ſo bad. 3. Then ſaid the LORD unto me, What ſeeſt thou, Jeremiah? and I ſaid, Figs: the good figs, very good; and the evil, very evil, that cannot be eaten, they are ſo evil. 4. ¶ Again the word of the LORD came unto me, ſaying, 5. Thus ſaith the LORD the God of Iſrael, Like theſe good figs, ſo will I acknowledge ‡ them that are carried away captive of Judah, whom I have ſent out of this place into the land of the Chaldeans [e] for their good. 6. For [f] I will ſet mine eyes upon them for good, and [g] I will bring them again to this land, and [h] I will build them, and not pull them down; and I will plant them, and not pluck them up. 7. And I will give them [i] an heart to know me, that I am the LORD, and [k] they ſhall be my people, and I will be their God: for they ſhall return unto me with their whole heart. 8. ¶ And as [l] the evil figs, which cannot be eaten, they are ſo evil: (ſurely thus ſaith the LORD) ſo will I give Zedekiah the king of Judah, and his princes, and the reſidue of Jeruſalem, that remain in this land, and [m] them that dwell in the land of Egypt. 9. And I will deliver them ‖ to be [n] removed into all the kingdoms of the earth for their hurt, [o] to be a reproach and a proverb, a taunt and [p] a curſe in all places whither I ſhall drive them. 10. And [q] I will ſend the ſword, the famine, and the peſtilence among them, till they be conſumed from off the land, that I gave unto them and to their fathers.

[a] 2 Kings xxiv. 12, &c. 2 Chron. xxxvi. 10.
[b] Chap. xxii. 24.
[c] Ver. 5.
[d] Ver. 8.
† Heb. For badneſs.
‡ Heb. The captivity.
[e] Rom. viii. 28.
[f] Pſ. xxxiv. 15.

Before Chriſt 593.

[g] Chap. xii. 15. & xvi. 15.
[h] Chap. xxxiii. 7. & xlii. 10.
[i] Deut. xxx. 6. Chap. xxxii. 39. Ezek. xi. 19. & xxxvi. 26, 27.
[k] Chap. xxx. 22. & xxxi. 33. & xxxii. 38.
[l] Chap. xxix. 17.
[m] Chap. xliii. & xliv.
‖ Heb. For removing, or vexation.
[n] Deut. xxviii. 25, 37. 1 Kings ix. 7. 2 Chron. vii. 20. Chap. xv. 4. & xxix. 18.
[o] Pſ. xliv. 14.
[p] Chap. xxix. 22.
[q] Ibid. xxix. 17.

v. 1—10. Though in general the prophet's word was rejected by the people, yet there were ſome who heard it, and to whom it was a ſavour of life unto life. And tho' the nation's iniquities now being full, they fell into the promiſcuous ruin, yet even in their captivity God will take care of them, and make even this moſt afflictive providence work for their good.

1. The date of the viſion is in the beginning of Zedekiah's reign, when Nebuchadnezzar had carried away Jeconiah the king, and the princes of Judah, captives to Babylon, and with them the carpenters and ſmiths; either to employ them in his own works, or to deprive the captive land of their aſſiſtance in making fortifications and weapons of war.

2. The viſion itſelf conſiſted of two baſkets of figs, placed before the temple; the one, vile and refuſe, that could not be eaten; the other, very good, v. 2, 3. The explication of which the Lord gives him, v. 5.

(1.) The good figs were the captives gone into Babylon: theſe God promiſes to regard, to cauſe their captivity to iſſue for their good; thoſe who were faithful ſhould be improved in the furnace of affliction, and thoſe who were otherwiſe till then, ſhould be, by grace, wrought upon and led to repentance by the viſitation. In conſequence of which, the eyes of his favour ſhould be upon them, they ſhould be again reſtored and firmly eſtabliſhed in their own land; and, better than all temporal good, the Lord engages to enrich them with enlarged ſpiritual underſtanding, and to beſtow on them the beſt of bleſſings; I will give them a heart to know me, that I am the Lord, by experience of his power, grace, and love exerted eminently for them, and exerciſed richly towards them; and they ſhall be my people, enjoying his protection, and taken into covenant with him, and I will be their God, their helper and defender, their portion, their exceeding great reward; for they ſhall return unto me with their whole heart, in ſimplicity and ſincerity, aſhamed of their backſliding, and unfeignedly penitent. Note, (1.) The ways of providence are myſterious; what ſeemed the greateſt affliction, proves often in its iſſue the moſt ſubſtantial bleſſing. (2.) God's hand is to be acknowledged in all our ſufferings; whatever inſtruments are employed, we muſt ſay, I became dumb, and opened not my mouth, for it was thy doing. (3.) If ever we come to the true knowledge of God, it muſt be wholly the gift of his grace; for without this, we can know nothing as we ought to know. (4.) Whatever our ſins and backſlidings have been, whenever God gives us a heart to return unto him, we may be aſſured his arms are ſtill open to receive us. (5.) God ſays, I will, and ye ſhall; for the ſinner and backſlider are worſe than merely paſſive, they are reluctant; yea, the carnal mind is enmity againſt God; unleſs God therefore over-ruled our perverſeneſs and conquered our obſtinacy, we never ſhould be his people, nor he our God.

(2.) The evil figs repreſented the remnant which were left in Jeruſalem under Zedekiah, who, tho' they ſtood before the temple, yet were much worſe than their brethren that had gone into captivity, for not the greateſt ſinners are always the firſt to ſuffer; God permits them to ſtand to fill up the meaſure of their iniquities, whilſt he corrects his dear children with the ſcourges of paternal love: but their judgment advances; ſurely, thus ſaith the Lord, the decree is gone forth, and the execution of it ſure; Zedekiah and his princes, with the reſidue of Jeruſalem, are devoted to deſtruction; nor ſhould they, who fled to Egypt for ſhelter, be exempted, ſince thither the judgments of God ſhould follow them. The ſword, the famine, the peſtilence, ſhall conſume them; and thoſe who ſurvive, be doomed to a miſerable ſlavery, worſe than death; ſcattered into all lands for their hurt, where they ſhould have no intercourſe to adminiſter friendly conſolation to each other; and hardened, inſtead of repentant under their ſufferings, their yoke ſhould be made heavy, and their perſons deſpicable and odious; they ſhould be a reproach, a proverb, a taunt, and a curſe in all places whither God would drive them; and this ſeems to have a reference, not only to their deſolations under Nebuchadnezzar, but alſo to look forward to their laſt more terrible deſtruction by the Romans; and the truth of the prediction appears verified this day in that unhappy people, who live under the evident curſe of God, and the contempt of all nations whither they are ſcattered.

Before Christ 598.

CHAP. XXV.

This prophecy bears date ſome time before thoſe prophecies in the foregoing chapters, for they are not placed in the exact order of time in which they were delivered. Here is, 1. A review of the prophecies that had been delivered to Judah and Jeruſalem for many years laſt paſt, with the little ſucceſs of them, ver. 1—7. 2. The deſtruction of Jeruſalem by the king of Babylon, threatned for their contempt of God and their continuance in ſin, ver. 8—11. To which is annexed, a promiſe of their deliverance out of captivity, after ſeventy years, ver. 12, 13, 14. 3. A prediction of the devaſtation of divers other nations by Nebuchadrezzar, repreſented by a cup of fury put into their hands, ver. 15—28. By a ſword ſent among them, ver. 29—33. And a deſolation made among the ſhepherds, and their flocks and paſtures, ver. 34—38.

606.

[a] Chap. xxxvi. 1.

[b] Chap. i. 2. From 629 to 606.

[c] Chap. xi. 7, 8. & xiii. 10, 11. & xvi. 12. & xvii 23. & xviii. 12. & xix. 15. & xxii. 21.

[d] Chap. vii. 13, 25. & xxix. 19.

[e] 2 Kings xvii. 13. Chap. xviii. 11. & xxxv. 15. Jonah iii. 8.

[f] Pſ. xxxvii. 27.

1. THE word that came to Jeremiah concerning all the people of Judah, [a] in the fourth year of Jehoiakim the ſon of Joſiah king of Judah, that was the firſt year of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon: 2. The which Jeremiah the prophet ſpake unto all the people of Judah, and to all the inhabitants of Jeruſalem, ſaying, 3. [b] From the thirteenth year of Joſiah the ſon of Amon king of Judah, even unto this day (that is the three and twentieth year) the word of the LORD hath come unto me, and I have ſpoken unto you, riſing early and ſpeaking, [c] but ye have not hearkned. 4. And the LORD hath ſent unto you all his ſervants the prophets, [d] riſing early and ſending them, but ye have not hearkned, nor inclined your ear to hear. 5. They ſaid, [e] Turn ye again now every one from his evil way, and from the evil of your doings, and [f] dwell in the land that the LORD hath given unto you and to your fathers, for ever and ever: 6. And go not after other gods to ſerve them, and to worſhip them, and provoke me not to anger with the works of your hands, and I will do you no hurt. 7. Yet ye have not hearkened unto me, ſaith the LORD; that ye might provoke me to anger with the works of your hands, to your own hurt.

v. 1—7. This prophecy bears date in the firſt year of the reign of Nebuchadrezzar, and the fourth of Jehoiakim; and it is directed to the people in general, probably when aſſembled at Jeruſalem on one of the three annual feaſts. If the princes will not hear, perhaps the people may, at leaſt it will leave both inexcuſable.

1. The prophet reminds them how long and how earneſtly God had been exhorting them, by his miniſters and others, to turn from the evil of their ways. Three and twenty years he had preached, from the 13th of Joſiah, to the 4th of Jehoiakim, riſing early, and ſpeaking diligently, conſtantly, faithfully; whilſt Micah, Nahum, and Habakkuk, had juſt preceded him, and Zephaniah was his cotemporary; beſides many others whom God in mercy had ſent to warn them, unwilling they ſhould periſh, and accompanied his admonitions with the moſt gracious promiſes. They are plainly told of their ſins, and exhorted to repent of them; if they would return from their ſhameful idolatries, and from all their other evil works, then God's threatnings ſhould not light upon them, but they ſhould long and peaceably enjoy their good land. Note, (1.) God will remember againſt the ſinner all the means of grace he hath abuſed, as his greateſt condemnation in the day of judgment. (2.) They who are ſent on God's meſſages, need be earneſt and diligent in delivering them, that they may at leaſt be free from the blood of all men. (3.) God doth not ſtrike without warning; but if we will not hear, we muſt periſh.

2. The prophet upbraids them with their impenitence and hardneſs of heart. They hearkened not, nor inclined their ear; they would not ſo much as pay a moment's attention to the meſſage, their heart was ſo averſe to it; they reſolved to abide in their ſins and provocations, let the conſequence be never ſo much to their hurt; and thus, as all impenitent ſinners do, deſtroyed themſelves.

[g] Chap. i. 15.

[h] Ibid. xxvii. 6. & xliii. 10. Iſa. xliv. 28.

[i] Chap. xviii. 16. & xix. 8.

8. ¶ Therefore thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, Becauſe ye have not heard my words, 9. Behold, I will ſend and take [g] all the families of the north, ſaith the LORD, and Nebuchadrezzar the king of Babylon [h] my ſervant, and will bring them againſt this land, and againſt the inhabitants thereof, and againſt all theſe nations round about, and will utterly deſtroy them, and [i] make them an aſtoniſhment and an hiſſing, and perpetual deſolations. 10. Moreover, I will † take from them [k] the voice of mirth, and the voice of gladneſs, the voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride, the ſound of the millſtones, and the light of the candle. 11. And this whole land ſhall be a deſolation, and an aſtoniſhment; and theſe nations ſhall ſerve the king of Babylon ſeventy years. 12. And [l] it ſhall come to paſs when ſeventy years are accompliſhed, that I will ‡ puniſh the king of Babylon, and that nation, ſaith the LORD, for their iniquity, and the land of the Chaldeans, [m] and will make it perpetual deſolations. 13. And I will bring upon that land all my words which I have pronounced againſt it, even all that is written in this book, which Jeremiah hath propheſied againſt all the nations. 14. For [n] many nations and [o] great kings ſhall [p] ſerve themſelves of them alſo: and I will [q] recompenſe them according to their deeds, and according to the works of their own hands.

Before Christ 606.

† Heb. Cauſe to periſh from them.

[k] Iſa. xxiv. 7. Chap. vii. 34. & xvi. 9. Ezek. xxvi. 13. Hoſ. ii. 11. Rev. xviii. 23.

[l] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 21, 22. Ezra i. 1. Chap. xxix. 10. Dan. ix. 2.

‡ Heb. Viſit upon.

[m] Iſa. xiii. 19. & xiv. 23. & xxi. 1. Chap. l. 13, 23, 39, 40. & li. 26.

[n] Iſa. xiii. 4. Chap. l. 9. & li. 27.

[o] Chap. l. 41. & li. 27.

[p] Chap. xxvii. 7.

[q] Chap. l. 29. & li. 24. Rev. xviii. 6.

v. 8—14. The judgment is pronounced on the rebellious people of Judah, and their deſtroyers ſhall not go unpuniſhed.

1. Judah ſhall be deſtroyed by the king of Babylon, God's ſervant in this behalf to execute vengeance on this devoted nation. Around his ſtandard the families of the north are ſummoned, his victorious army marches, and deſolation marks their way; Judea falls, and all her neighbours, ſo far from affording her aſſiſtance, are involved in the general ruin; and ſo terrible the ravages, that they ſhall be an aſtoniſhment and an hiſſing, and perpetual deſolations: during ſeventy years their miſeries ſhould laſt, the voice of joy be never heard in the city, no nuptial ſongs, no ſound of mirth, no proviſion ſhould be left, no candle burn in it, but melancholy ſilence reign; the land uncultivated, deſtitute of inhabitants, and ſwept with the beſom of deſtruction. Note, (1.) They who will not be ruled by God's word, muſt be ruined. (2.) God often uſes wicked inſtruments to chaſtiſe his own people; and they are made to do his work, when meaning only to aggrandiſe themſelves.

2. Babylon, the deſtroyer of others, ſhall herſelf alſo, after ſeventy years, be deſtroyed for her iniquity, her tyranny, pride, and cruelty to God's Iſrael; and the land of the Chaldeans ſhall be made perpetual deſolations, when all the evil pronounced by Jeremiah, chap. xlvi—li. ſhall come upon them; and as ſhe hath ſerved herſelf of other nations, ſubduing and plundering them, God will recompenſe her in kind, and raiſe up many nations and great kings, the Medes, Perſians, and their allies, to lay her waſte, and enrich themſelves with her ſpoils.

Commentators differ in the date from whence theſe ſeventy years commence; ſome begin with the firſt of Nebuchadnezzar, others not till the captivity of Jehoiachim, eight years after. Certain however it is, it was accompliſhed in its ſeaſon; nor ſhall one jot or tittle ever paſs from God's word, until the whole be fulfilled.

[r] Job xxi. 20. Pſ. lxxv. 8. Iſa. li. 17. Rev. xiv. 10.

[s] Ezek. xxiii. 34. Nah. iii. 11.

[t] Chap. li. 7.

[u] 1 Pet. iv. 17.

[x] Chap. xlvi. 2, &c.

[y] Chap. xlvii. 1, 5, 7.

[z] Iſa. xx. 1.

[a] Chap. xlix. 7, &c.

[b] Chap. xlviii. 1, &c.

[c] Chap. xlix. 1.

[d] Chap. xlvii. 4.

† Or regions by the ſea-ſide. Chap. xlix. 23.

[e] Chap. xlix. 8, 28.

‡ Or, that have the corners of the hair polled. Chap. ix. 26. & xlix. 32.

[f] Ver. 20.

Chap. xlix. 31. Ezek. xxx. 5.

[g] Chap. xlix. 34.

[h] Chap. li. 41.

[i] Hab. ii. 16.

[k] Iſa. lxiii. 6.

15. ¶ For thus ſaith the LORD God of Iſrael unto me, Take [r] the wine-cup of this fury at my hand, and cauſe all the nations to whom I ſend thee, to drink it. 16. And [s] they ſhall drink, and be moved, and [t] be mad, becauſe of the ſword that I will ſend among them. 17. Then took I the cup at the LORD's hand, and made all the nations to drink, unto whom the LORD had ſent me: 18. To wit, [u] Jeruſalem, and the cities of Judah, and the kings thereof, and the princes thereof, to make them a deſolation, an aſtoniſhment, an hiſſing, and a curſe, (as it is this day) 19. [x] Pharaoh king of Egypt, and his ſervants, and his princes, and all his people, 20. And all the mingled people, and all the kings of the land of Uz, [y] and all the kings of the land of the Philiſtines, and Aſhkelon, and Azzah, and Ekron, and [z] the remnant of Aſhdod, 21. [a] Edom, [b] and Moab, and the children of [c] Ammon. 22. And all the kings of [d] Tyrus, and all the kings of Zidon, and the kings of the † iſles which are beyond the ſea. 23. [e] Dedan, and Tema, and Buz, and all ‡ that are in the utmoſt corners, 24. And all the kings of Arabia, and all the kings of [f] the mingled people that dwell in the deſart. 25. And all the kings of Zimri, and all the kings of [g] Elam, and all the kings of the Medes. 26. And all the kings of the north, far and near, one with another, and all the kingdoms of the world, which are upon the face of the earth: and [h] the king of Sheſhach ſhall drink after them. 27. Therefore thou ſhalt ſay unto them, Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, [i] Drink ye, [k] and be drunken, and ſpew and fall, and riſe no more, becauſe of the ſword which I will ſend

Before Christ 606.

ſend among you. 28. And it ſhall be, if they refuſe to take the cup at thine hand to drink, then ſhalt thou ſay unto them, Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, Ye ſhall certainly drink. 29. For lo, [l] I begin to bring evil on the city [m] which is called by my name, and ſhould ye be utterly unpuniſhed? Ye ſhall not be unpuniſhed: for I will call for a ſword upon all the inhabitants of the earth, ſaith the LORD of hoſts.

[l] Chap. xlix. 12. Ezek. ix. 6. Luke xxiii. 31. 1 Pet. iv. 17.
[m] Dan. ix. 18.

v. 15—29. Judgment here begins at the houſe of God, but it ſpreads far and near. The neighbouring nations muſt drink of the ſame cup, and at laſt Babylon herſelf take it in turn.

1. The judgment is repreſented under a wine-cup of fury. The ſins of all theſe nations had provoked God's wrath, and heavy it falls on them; like men intoxicated with liquor, without wiſdom or might, they ſhould become an eaſy conqueſt, and the ſword of God devour them. Nor would their reluctance to ſubmit to their doom avail any thing, v. 28. The prophet is commanded to make them drink, denouncing the judgments of God, that would quite overwhelm them and ſink them into ruin, from which they ſhould never, or at leaſt not for a long while, recover. Note, It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God: then all reſiſtance is vain.

2. The nations who are the ſubjects of this prophecy are, firſt Jeruſalem and the cities of Judah: their ſins being moſt aggravated, they ſuffer firſt. Egypt, on whom they placed dependance, next falls under the Babyloniſh yoke: then all the mingled people, the bordering nations; ſome, as Tyre and Zidon, that had been the friends; others, as Moab and Edom, who had been the inveterate foes of Judah, but now ſink in the promiſcuous ruin: far and wide the rapid conqueror ſpreads his arms, even to all the kingdoms of the then known world, at leaſt to the whole extent of that great monarchy, which was termed, from its vaſt territory, univerſal. At laſt the lofty queen of nations herſelf muſt be laid in the duſt, and the king of Sheſhach, or Babylon, ſee chap. li. 41. muſt drink of the ſame cup, and periſh as the kingdoms he had deſtroyed. It is added, v. 18. as it is this day, in a parentheſis: probably that was inſerted by Jeremiah, who lived to ſee the ruin of his country; or by him, whether Baruch or Ezra, who collected theſe propecies when the event had verified the prediction.

3. If God ſpares not his own people, let not the reſt of the nations, of whom they have learnt idolatry, think to go unpuniſhed. His determination is fixed, and the accompliſhment of it is inevitable. Note, (1.) When God ariſes to judge, the greateſt nations are but as ſtubble before the whirlwind. (2.) Wherever ſinners are, however many, however mighty, ſurely they ſhall not go unpuniſhed.

30. Therefore propheſy thou againſt them all theſe words, and ſay unto them, [n] The LORD ſhall rore from on high, and utter his voice from his holy habitation, he ſhall mightily rore upon his habitation, he ſhall give [o] a ſhout, as they that tread the grapes, againſt all the inhabitants of the earth. 31. A noiſe ſhall come even to the ends of the earth; for the LORD hath a controverſy with the nations: he will plead with all fleſh, he will give them that are wicked to the ſword, ſaith the LORD. 32. Thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts, Behold, evil ſhall go forth from nation to nation, and [p] a great whirlwind ſhall be raiſed up from the coaſts of the earth. 33. And the ſlain of the LORD ſhall be at that day from one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth: [q] they ſhall not be lamented, neither gathered, nor buried, they ſhall be dung upon the ground. 34. ¶ [r] Howl, ye ſhepherds, and cry, and wallow yourſelves in the aſhes, ye principal of the flock: for † the days of your ſlaughter, and of your diſperſions, are accompliſhed, and ye ſhall fall like a ‡ pleaſant veſſel. 35. [s] And § the ſhepherds ſhall have no way to flee, nor the principal of the flock to eſcape. 36. A voice of the cry of the ſhepherds, and an howling of the principal of the flock ſhall be heard: for the LORD hath ſpoiled their paſture. 37. And the peaceable habitations are cut down, [t] becauſe of the fierce anger of the LORD. 38. [u] He hath forſaken his covert, as the lion: for their land is ‖ deſolate becauſe of the fierceneſs of the oppreſſor, and becauſe of his fierce anger.

[n] Iſa. xlii. 13. Joel iii. 16. Amos i. 2.
[o] Iſa. xvi. 9. Chap. xlviii. 33.
[p] Iſa. xxx. 30. Chap. xxiii. 19. & xxx. 23.
[q] Chap. xvi. 4.
[r] Chap. iv. 8. & vi. 24.
† Heb. Your days for ſlaughter.
‡ Heb. Veſſel of deſire.
[s] Am. ii. 14.
§ Heb. Flight ſhall periſh from the ſhepherds, and eſcaping from &c.
[t] Chap. iv. 8.
[u] Chap. iv. 7. & xlix. 19.
‖ Heb. A deſolation.

v. 30—38. The ſword threatned is Nebuchadnezzar's; but the war is of God, who clothes him with all his power, and enſures to him the victory. The terribleneſs of the judgment is here deſcribed.

1. The tremendous voice of God ſhall be heard from on high in mighty thunderings. He ſhall roar upon his habitation, the earth in general, or Jeruſalem in particular; or out of his habitation, from the heavens, where he hath placed his radiant throne. He ſhall give a ſhout, as when contending armies ruſh into the battle, and as thoſe that tread the grapes at the vintage; and ſo loud the ſound, the moſt diſtant realms ſhall hear, even to the ends of the earth.

Before Christ 606.

2. Righteous vengeance ſhall ſeize the wicked. The Lord hath a controverſy with the nations for their wickedneſs, and he will plead with all fleſh, will bring them to his tribunal; and he will give them that are wicked to the ſword; from nation to nation the judge ſhall go in circuit. A great whirlwind ſhall be raiſed up from the ends of the earth; the Chaldean army firſt, then the Medes, afterwards the Greeks, and laſtly the Romans, all God's executioners of vengeance; and thoſe who fall by their arms are the ſlain of the Lord, from one end of the earth to the other; he marks the victims, and gives the ſword its direction. Unlamented they ſhall fall, v. 33. for want of mourners, or becauſe their friends and relations are ſo occupied with their own danger that they are inſenſible to every thing beſide; unburied they ſhall lie as dung upon the earth, and no compaſſionate hand be found to gather the ſcattered corpſes and hide them in a grave.

3. The ſhepherds are called upon to howl for theſe horrible deſolations: either the kings of the earth in general, or the rulers of Judah in particular, to whom the words ſeem to be addreſſed. Wallow yourſelves in the aſhes, ye principal of the flock, in the deepeſt agony, moſt bitter ſorrow, and hopeleſs miſery; for the days of your ſlaughter and of your diſperſions are accompliſhed, like ſheep before the wolf, torn, worried, and diſperſed; and ye ſhall fall like a pleaſant veſſel, irreparably broken in pieces. Then flight will be vain, and all hope of eſcape deſperate, v. 35. See chap. xxxix. 4—6. Shrieks ſhall aſcend on every ſide, the heart of the mightieſt fail, ruin and deſolation univerſal be ſpread around, and even the peaceable habitations are cut down, the palaces where peace and plenty reigned; or, as is common in the ravages of war, they who lived inoffenſively, and never provoked the ſcourge, ſhare in the general calamity of the land, becauſe of the fierce anger of the Lord, the cauſe of all theſe fearful judgments. He hath forſaken his covert as a lion; either God, going forth againſt the ſhepherds and their flocks to deſtroy them; or rather Nebuchadrezzar, rouſed up from Babylon; and the land is deſolate, ravaged by his army, becauſe of the fierceneſs of the oppreſſor, or oppreſſing ſword, and becauſe of his fierce anger; either the wrath of God or of the king of Babylon, ruſhing forth to the ſlaughter. Note, (1.) War is a dreadful ſcourge. (2.) The rulers, who were deepeſt in tranſgreſſion, ſhall be chief in ſuffering. (3.) Wo unto the ſinful ſoul againſt whom God riſes up as an enemy. May others judgments be our warnings, that we may hear and fear, and do no more wickedly.

CHAP. XXVI.

As in the hiſtory of the Acts of the Apoſtles, that of their preaching and that of their ſuffering is interwoven, ſo it is in the account we have of the prophet Jeremiah; witneſs this chapter, where we are told, (1.) How faithfully he preached, ver. 1—6. (2.) How ſpitefully he was perſecuted for ſo doing, ver. 7—11. (3.) How bravely he ſtood to his doctrine in the face of his perſecutors, ver. 12—15. (4.) How wonderfully he was protected by the prudence of the princes, ver. 16—19. And tho' Urijah, another prophet, was about the ſame time put to death by Jehoiakim, ver. 20—23. yet he eſcaped, ver. 24.

610 ending. 609 beginning.

1. IN the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim the ſon of Joſiah king of Judah, came this word from the LORD, ſaying, 2. Thus ſaith the LORD, Stand in the court of the LORD's houſe, and ſpeak unto all the cities of Judah, which come to worſhip in the LORD's houſe, all the words that I command thee to ſpeak unto them; [a] diminiſh not a word: 3. If ſo be they will hearken, and turn every man from his evil way, that I may [b] repent me of the evil which I purpoſe to do unto them, becauſe of the evil of their doings. 4. And thou ſhalt ſay unto them, Thus ſaith the LORD, If ye will not hearken to me to walk in my law, which I have ſet before you, 5. To hearken to the words of my ſervants the prophets, [c] whom I ſent unto you, both riſing up early, and ſending them (but ye have not hearkened) 6. Then will I make this houſe like [d] Shiloh, and will make this city a curſe to all the nations of the earth.

[a] Acts xx. 27.
[b] Chap. xviii. 8. Jonah iii. 9.
[c] Chap. vii. 13, 25. & xi. 7. & xxv. 3.
[d] 1 Sam. iv. 12. Pſ. lxxviii. 60. Chap. vii. 12, 14.

v. 1—6. They who would be faithful to God, in the diſcharge of their miniſtry, muſt ſet their faces like a flint, and be above the fear of man.

1. Jeremiah is ſent into the courts of the Lord's houſe, whither, on one of their ſolemn feaſts, the people of the land were aſſembled out of the cities of Judah, and there, in the midſt of that great congregation, he muſt deliver his meſſage: and, leaſt their greatneſs, their multitude, or their known enmity againſt ſuch faithful warnings, might daunt his courage, or warp him to palliate the ſeverity of the threatning, he is charged not to diminiſh a word. When we ſpeak for God, we muſt neither be afraid nor aſhamed to declare his whole counſel, and reſolutely abide by the conſequences.

2. The purport of his diſcourſe is to adviſe them of the danger of their ſins, and the purpoſe of God to puniſh them; to exhort them to a ſpeedy and unfeigned repentance; to aſſure them that then God would turn away his anger from them; but that, if they perſiſted in their impenitence, diſobedience to his holy law, and diſregard of his divinely appointed miniſters, the conſequences would be inevitably fatal, and their ruin enſue; Jeruſalem and the temple, like Shiloh and the tabernacle there pitched of old, would be given into the hands of her enemies, and her judgment be ſo terrible, that it ſhould be the deepeſt imprecation to ſay, the Lord make thee like Jeruſalem! Now nothing here could give reaſonable offence. God graciouſly waited; he offered mercifully to receive them; they had only to return to him, and then the meſſage breathed nothing but peace and pardon: but they, who reſolved to perſiſt in their iniquities, could not bear to be told of the iſſue of them. Note, (1.) There is nothing in the moſt terrible denunciations of wrath to quarrel with, when the only end of theſe terrors of the Lord is to lead us to pardon and everlaſting peace. But, (2.) If men will not be warned, they muſt be damned.

7. So the prieſts, and the prophets, and all the people, heard Jeremiah ſpeaking theſe words in the houſe of the LORD. 8. ¶ Now it came to paſs, when Jeremiah had made an end of ſpeaking all that the LORD had commanded him to ſpeak unto all the people, that the prieſts, and the prophets, and all the people took him, ſaying, [e] Thou ſhalt ſurely die. 9. Why haſt thou propheſied in the name of the LORD, ſaying, This houſe ſhall be like Shiloh, and this city ſhall be deſolate without an inhabitant? and all the people were gathered againſt Jeremiah, in the houſe of the LORD. 10. ¶ When the princes of Judah heard theſe things, then they came up from the king's houſe unto the houſe of the LORD, and ſat down † in the entry of the new gate of the LORD's houſe. 11. Then ſpake the prieſts, and the prophets unto the princes, and to all the people, ſaying, ‡ This man is worthy to die, for he hath propheſied againſt this city, as ye have heard with your ears. 12. ¶ Then ſpake Jeremiah unto all the princes, and to all the people, ſaying, the LORD ſent me to propheſy againſt this houſe, and againſt this city, all the words that ye have heard. 13. Therefore now [f] amend your ways, and your doings, and obey the voice of the LORD your God, and [g] the LORD will repent him of the evil that he hath pronounced againſt you. 14. As for me, behold, [h] I am in your hand: do with me as § ſeemeth good and meet unto you. 15. But know ye for certain, that if ye put me to death, ye ſhall ſurely bring innocent blood upon yourſelves, and upon this city, and upon the inhabitants thereof: for of a truth [i] the LORD hath ſent me unto you, to ſpeak all theſe words in your ears.

[e] Mat. xxvi. 66. Acts xxii. 22.
† Or at the door.
‡ The judgment of death is for this man.
[f] Chap. vii. 3.
[g] Ver. 19.
[h] Chap. xxxviii. 5.
§ Heb. It is good and right in your eyes.
[i] Ver. 12.

v. 7—15. The plaineſt and moſt reaſonable admonitions, delivered with the tendereſt affection, and urged with the moſt ſolemn weight of God's authority, have no effect upon the hardened ſinner but to exaſperate his corruptions, as it here appears.

1. Jeremiah is arreſted for his preaching, and dragged before the magiſtrates, that he may be condemned and executed. The ungodly prieſts and falſe prophets, that in all ages and places have been the bittereſt enemies and perſecutors of the few faithful, aroſe, exaſperated at what they heard, and the people, at their inſtigation, readily followed them; they ſeize the poor prophet, and threaten him with immediate death, either in the rage of pretended zeal, or by form of law, v. 8. The charge againſt him is for falſehood, and blaſphemous words ſpoken againſt that holy place, becauſe in the name of the Lord he had ſaid, this houſe ſhall be like Shiloh, and this city ſhall be deſolate without inhabitants. Such an uproar raiſed a vaſt tumult, and all the people ran together; the tidings of which ſoon brought up the princes from the king's houſe into the temple, and before them as judges the criminal is produced, at the entry of the new gate of the Lord's houſe, where they ſat to hear the cauſe. The falſe prophets and prieſts, whoſe hand was ever firſt in the tranſgreſſion of oppoſing the miniſters of truth, ſtand forth to accuſe him, not doubting but to gain a verdict in their favour, appealing for the truth of their charge to all the people who had heard Jeremiah's diſcourſe, and demanding judgment againſt him as moſt worthy to die. Note, They who will be zealous for God muſt ſometimes put their lives in their hand. How often ſince this have the true preachers of Chriſt been in danger by tumultuous mobs, inſtigated by apoſtate prieſts!

2. Jeremiah vindicates himſelf from the charge, not by denying it, but by maintaining the truth of what he had ſpoken. The words were not his own. God had ſent him, and how could he then be ſilent? Beſides, the threatnings only affected the impenitent. So far therefore from deſiſting, he urges the admonition he had given; Therefore now amend your ways and your doings, and obey the voice of the Lord your God, who yet did not diſclaim the relation, and was ready inſtantly, on their repentance, to reverſe the threatnings iſſued againſt them. What was urged with ſo kind an intention ſurely deſerved not puniſhment, but praiſe. However, he ſubmits to whatever ſentence they thought fit to pronounce, but warns them of the danger of ſhedding the blood of an innocent man, which would cry for vengeance; and the ſtill more atrocious guilt of ſlaying a prophet purely for delivering the words which of a truth the Lord had ſent him to ſpeak, who would not fail condignly to avenge ſuch a flagrant inſult upon himſelf, as well as ſuch cruel injuſtice done to his ſervant. Note, (1.) To preach boldly, and ſuffer patiently for well-doing, is the true ſpirit of a Chriſtian miniſter. (2.) We muſt abide by God's word, nor ever recede a ſtep, though the greateſt loſs and damage, yea though death itſelf, threatens us for our fidelity.

16. ¶ Then ſaid the princes, and all the people unto the prieſts, and to the prophets, This man is not worthy to die: for [k] he hath ſpoken to us in the name of the LORD our God. 17. Then roſe up certain of the elders of the land, and ſpake to all the aſſembly of the people, ſaying, 18. [l] Micah the Moraſthite propheſied in the days of Hezekiah king of Judah, and ſpake to all the people of Judah, ſaying, Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, [m] Zion ſhall be plowed like a field, and Jeruſalem ſhall become heaps, and the mountain of the houſe, as the high places of the foreſt. 19. Did Hezekiah king of Judah, and all Judah put him at all to death? did he not fear the LORD, and beſought † the LORD, and the LORD [n] repented him of the evil which he had pronounced againſt them? Thus might we procure great evil againſt our ſouls. 20. And there was alſo a man that propheſied in the name of the LORD, Urijah the ſon of Shemaiah of Kirjath-jearim, who propheſied againſt this city, and againſt this land, according to all the words of Jeremiah. 21. And when Jehoiakim the king, with all his mighty men, and all the princes heard his words, the king ſought to put him to death; but when Urijah heard it, he was afraid, and fled, and went into Egypt. 22. And Jehoiakim the king ſent men into Egypt, namely, Elnathan the ſon of Achbor, and certain men with him into Egypt. 23. And they fet forth Urijah out of Egypt, and brought him unto Jehoiakim the king, who [o] ſlew him with the ſword, and caſt his dead body into the graves of ‡ the common people. 24. Nevertheleſs the hand of [p] Ahikam the ſon of Shaphan was with Jeremiah, that they ſhould not give him into the hand of the people to put him to death.

[k] Ver. 12, 15.
[l] Mic. i. 1. about 710.
[m] Mic. iii. 12.
† The face of the Lord.
[n] Ver. 13.
[o] Mat. xxiii. 34.
‡ Heb. The ſons of the people.
[p] 2 Kings xxii. 12, 14. Chap. xxxix. 14. & xl. 5.

v. 16—24. God knoweth how to deliver his people out of temptation, and, when their caſe appears moſt deſperate, to reſcue them from the jaws of the lion.

1. Jeremiah is acquitted, notwithſtanding the malicious accuſations of his enemies. Such an evidence attended his defence, ſuch a noble ſimplicity appeared in it, ſuch approved fidelity, and God himſelf put ſuch an awe upon the princes and people, that though they ſtrangely hardened their hearts againſt the admonition given, yet they own God's authority, and dare not condemn the innocent prophet. Note, There are many on whom the word of God hath ſo far an influence as to extort their aſſent to its truth, who nevertheleſs continue unhumbled in their ſins.

2. Some of the court, from among the princes, and perhaps Ahikam after-mentioned at their head, roſe up in the prophet's defence, and, as a precedent, quoted the caſe of Micah, who a little before, in the days of Hezekiah, had propheſied as ſevere things as ever Jeremiah had done, that Jeruſalem ſhould become heaps, the city ploughed as a field, and the temple utterly demoliſhed, v. 18. yet ſo far were Hezekiah and his princes from condemning him to death for his fidelity, that they trembled at God's word, beſought the Lord, repented of their evil deeds, and this was the lengthening of their proſperity, God accepting their repentance, and withholding the threatned judgments. And ſuch conduct, they inſinuate, in the preſent caſe, would be moſt fit and becoming; whereas to act otherwiſe, in ſhedding innocent blood at the inſtigation of exaſperated prieſts, incenſed at having their pride, hypocriſy, and falſehood detected, would procure great evil againſt their ſouls, lay them under heavy guilt, and expoſe them to God's awful vengeance. Note, (1.) The greateſt men ſhew their wiſdom in hearing and obeying the admonitions of God. (2.) The dreadful conſequences of ſin, if nothing elſe, ſhould deter us from it; if we have little ſenſe of its evil and malignity, the fear of hell at leaſt ſhould reſtrain us.

3. Another inſtance is quoted of a prophet put to death in the preſent reign, which ſome ſuppoſe to be a caſe in point urged by Jeremiah's perſecutors in reply to the former, and in order to obtain his condemnation. Others, that it is the continuation of the ſame perſon's diſcourſe, urging the guilt already brought upon the land by the murder of one prophet, and that to increaſe it, by a repetition of the like crime, could not but haſten their deſtruction. Others ſuppoſe this ſtory was added by Jeremiah himſelf, or whoever collected his prophecies, as an inſtance of God's extraordinary interpoſition in the preſent caſe, when ſo lately, in the ſame reign, another holy man, Urijah, met his fate in the diſcharge of his office, and for the very ſame words Jeremiah had ſpoken. Provoked by his preaching, the king and his nobles ſought to ſlay him; and, to avoid it, the prophet either prudently abſconded, or rather timorouſly deſerted his poſt; for men of true grace may at times be overcome with fear; though uſually little is to be got by flight, as in the preſent caſe. Cowardice often expoſes thoſe to ruin whom courage might have extricated from danger. The king ſent after him to Egypt, whither he had fled, got him delivered up as a ſtate-criminal, and ſlew him, probably with his own hand, at leaſt commanded it to be done; and, to make the ignominy the greater, and his prophecies diſregarded, caſt his dead body into the graves of the common people.

4. Notwithſtanding all the pleas of his accuſers, Ahikam, the ſon of Shaphan, 2 Kings xxii. 12. a man who had lived under pious Joſiah, a great man, yet a good man, and the prophet's friend, ſtood by him, and prevailed upon the princes not to deliver him into the hand of the enraged people, whom the prieſts had inflamed, and were ready to murder him, as ſoon as they could obtain permiſſion. Note, God hath in his hands the hearts of all men, and can raiſe us up friends, in the day of trial, where we leaſt expected to find them.

CHAP. XXVII.

Since they will not ſubmit to God's warnings, the prophet exhorts them to ſubmit to his decree, and yield themſelves up to the king of Babylon. He gives this counſel in God's name to the kings of the neighbouring nations, aſſuring them that there was no remedy, but they muſt ſerve the king of Babylon; and yet in time there ſhould be relief, for his dominion ſhould laſt but ſeventy years, ver. 1—11. (2.) To Zedekiah king of Judah, ver. 12—14. and to the prieſts and people, aſſuring them that the king of Babylon ſhould ſucceed againſt them, and that a patient ſubmiſſion would be the only way to mitigate the calamity, and make it eaſy, ver. 12—22. Thus the prophet, if they would but have hearkned to him, would have directed them in the paths of true policy, as well as of true piety.

1. IN the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim the ſon of Joſiah king of Judah, came this word unto Jeremiah from the LORD, ſaying, 2. Thus † ſaith the LORD to me, Make thee bonds and yokes, and [a] put them upon thy neck, 3. And ſend them to the king of Edom, and to the king of Moab, and to the king of the Ammonites, and to the king of Tyrus, and to the king of Zidon, by the hand of the meſſengers which come to Jeruſalem unto Zedekiah king of Judah; 4. And command them ‡ to ſay unto their maſters, Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, thus ſhall ye ſay unto your maſters, 5. [b] I have made the earth, the man and the beaſt that are upon the ground, by my great power, and by my outſtretched arm, and [c] have given it unto whom it ſeemed meet unto me. 6. And now I have given all theſe lands into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon [d] my ſervant, and [e] the beaſts of the field have I given him alſo to ſerve him. 7. [f] And all nations ſhall ſerve him and his ſon, and his ſon's ſon, [g] until the very time of his land come; [h] and then many nations and great kings ſhall ſerve themſelves of him. 8. And it ſhall come to paſs, that the nation and kingdom which will not ſerve the ſame Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, and that will not put their neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, that nation will I puniſh, ſaith the LORD, with the ſword, and with the famine, and with the peſtilence, until I have conſumed them by his hand. 9. Therefore [i] hearken not ye to your prophets, nor to your diviners, nor to your § dreamers, nor to your enchanters, nor to your ſorcerers, which ſpeak unto you, ſaying, Ye ſhall not ſerve the king of Babylon: 10. For [k] they propheſy a lie unto you, to remove you far from your land, and that I ſhould drive you out, and ye ſhould periſh. 11. But the nations that bring their neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and ſerve him, thoſe will I let remain ſtill in their own land, ſaith the LORD, and they ſhall till it, and dwell therein.

† Or hath ſaid.
[a] Chap. xviii. 10, 12.
‡ Or concerning your maſters, ſaying.
[b] Iſa. xlv. 12.
[c] Dan. iv. 17, 25, 32.
[d] Chap. xxv. 9. & xliii. 10. Ezek. xxix. 18, 20.
[e] Chap. xxviii. 14. Dan. ii. 38.
[f] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 20.
[g] Chap. xxv. 12. Dan. v. 26.
[h] Chap. xxv. 14.
[i] Ver. 14.
§ Heb. Dreams.
[k] Ver. 14. Chap. xxiii. 25. Lam. ii. 14.

v. 1—11. The date of this prophecy is in the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim; then probably the yokes were made in token of Judah's ſubjection, which ſoon began, though only ſent to the neighbouring nations ſeveral years after, in the reign of Zedekiah, when the time of their captivity drew nearer.

1. The ſign given is the making bonds and yokes, and the putting one on his own neck, in token of the bondage to which the people ſhould be delivered; and this he wore many years, as appears chap. xxviii. 1—10.

2. He is commanded to ſend one of theſe to all the neighbouring nations, v. 3. by the hand of the meſſengers who came to Jeruſalem to congratulate Zedekiah on his acceſſion, or to make a league with him to oppoſe the growing power of the king of Babylon, and, in caſe of invaſion, to unite their forces. A vain deſign! which God had determined to diſappoint; and therefore they are enjoined to tell their maſters from God, when they delivered the prophetic ſymbol of their captivity, that the Lord of hoſts, at whoſe beck are the armies of heaven and earth; the God of Iſrael, in a covenant of peculiar grace; the great Creator of all, and who therefore had an abſolute right to diſpoſe of all the creatures of his hand, v. 5. had given theſe lands, with all their produce, into the hands of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, his ſervant, raiſed up to be his miniſter of wrath, v. 6. and under his dominion they muſt continue, and under his ſon, and his ſon's ſon, ſee chap. xxv. 14. till the ſeventy years ſhould be completed, during which the captivity ſhould laſt, and then other mightier kings and nations ſhould deſtroy this monarchy, and raiſe another on its ruins, v. 7. Reſiſtance to the divine decree would but aggravate their miſery, and expoſe them to more horrid deſolation, and diverſe kinds of death, v. 8. nor muſt they give heed to their diviners and ſorcerers, who ſhould flatter them with lying hopes, which would infallibly diſappoint them, and, by encouraging them to reſiſt, exaſperate their conquerors more fearfully to deſtroy them, v. 9, 10. whilſt thoſe who patiently ſubmitted and ſurrendered themſelves ſhould find favour in the ſight of their enemies, and be ſuffered quietly to remain under tribute, and not be carried away captive into a ſtrange land. Note, (1.) The earth is the Lord's, and he doth as pleaſes him with it, and none have reaſon to murmur againſt his diſpoſal of his own. (2.) The wicked frequently enjoy the greateſt ſhare of this world's good. (3.) To ſtruggle againſt God's providence is to kick againſt the pricks; for when he judges he will overcome. (4.) Patience will alleviate the burthens which perverſeneſs but aggravates.

12. I ſpake alſo [l] to Zedekiah king of Judah, according to all theſe words, ſaying, Bring your necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and ſerve him and his people, and live. 13. [m] Why will you die, thou and thy people, by the ſword, by the famine, and by the peſtilence, as the LORD hath ſpoken againſt the nation that will not ſerve the king of Babylon? 14. Therefore hearken not unto the words of the prophets that ſpeak unto you, ſaying, Ye ſhall not ſerve the king of Babylon: for [n] they propheſy a lie unto you. 15. For I have not ſent them, ſaith the LORD, yet they propheſy † a lie in my name, that I might drive you out, and that ye might periſh, ye, and the prophets that propheſy unto you. 16. Alſo I ſpake to the prieſts, and to all this people, ſaying, Thus ſaith the LORD, Hearken not to the words of your prophets, that propheſy unto you, ſaying, Behold [o] the veſſels of the LORD's houſe ſhall now ſhortly be brought again from Babylon; for they propheſy a lie unto you. 17. [p] Hearken not unto them, ſerve the king of Babylon and live: wherefore ſhould this city be laid waſte? 18. But [q] if they be prophets, and if the word of the LORD be with them, let them now make interceſſion to the LORD of hoſts, that the veſſels which are left in the houſe of the LORD, and in the houſe of the king of Judah, and at Jeruſalem, go not to Babylon. 19. ¶ For thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, [r] concerning the pillars, and concerning the ſea, and concerning the baſes, and concerning the reſidue of the veſſels that remain in this city, 20. Which Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon took not, when he carried away [s] captive Jeconiah the ſon of Jehoiakim king of Judah, from Jeruſalem to Babylon, and all the ‡ nobles of

[l] Chap. xxviii. 1.
[m] Ezek. xviii. 31.
[n] Ver. 10. Chap. xiv. 14. & xxiii. 25. & xxix. 9.
† Heb. In a lie, or lyingly.
[o] Chap. xxviii. 3.
[p] Ver. 9, 14.
[q] See Gen. xx. 7. Ezek. xxii. 30.
[r] Chap. lii. 17, 20, 21.
[s] 2 Kings xxiv. 14, 15. Chap. xxiv. 1.
‡ Heb. White ones. So Iſa. xxxiv. 12.

Before Chriſt 598.

of Judah and Jeruſalem: 21. Yea, thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, concerning the veſſels that remain in the houſe of the LORD, and in the houſe of the king of Judah, and of Jeruſalem, 22. They ſhall be [t] carried to Babylon, and there ſhall they be until the day that I [u] viſit them, ſaith the LORD: then [x] will I bring them up, and reſtore them to this place.

[t] 2 Kin. xxv. 13. 2 Chron. xxxvi. 18.
[u] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 21. Chap. xxix. 10.
[x] Ezra i. 7, 11. & vii. 19.

v. 12—22. Jeruſalem was now tributary to the king of Babylon, but Zedekiah was meditating rebellion, and his falſe prophets encouraging him with hopes of ſucceſs; but the conſequence would be the completion of the nation's ruin.

1. He addreſſes the king of Judah with earneſtneſs, beſeeching him, for his own and his people's ſake, patiently to ſubmit and live, ſince all revolt againſt the king of Babylon would certainly prove fatal in the iſſue, and expoſe them to all the miſeries of a ſiege and the maſſacre of a city taken by ſtorm, v. 13. notwithſtanding the lies of the falſe prophets, who flattered him and the people to their ruin, and would themſelves fall under the judgment, v. 14, 15. Note, (1.) Rebellion againſt God will be attended with ſtill more fearful conſequences: how much better is it to bow our necks to the eaſy yoke of Chriſt, and live? (2.) They who embolden ſinners in their evil ways ſhall periſh with them, the deceived and the deceiver together.

2. He gives the prieſts and people the ſame warning as he had given to their king, v. 17. admoniſhing them of the folly of hearkning to the falſe prophets; your prophets he calls them, becauſe they choſe their lying viſions, and loved to have it ſo. They told them that they ſhould be ſucceſsful in their revolt, v. 14. and that the king of Babylon would ſoon be willing to purchaſe peace from them by the reſtoration of the ſacred veſſels which had been carried to Babylon, v. 16. but, alas! they were only puſhing them to the precipice of deſtruction, bringing on the utter ruin of their city, and the demolition of the temple; when, as Nebuchadnezzar had before taken the veſſels of gold, 2 Kings xxiv. 13—15. ſo far would he be from reſtoring them, that all the other veſſels, with the pillars, ſea, and baſes of braſs, ſhould follow them into Babylon, v. 19, 20. Better therefore, far better were it, that they ſhould become interceſſors with God to prevent the impending judgments, and preſerve what was left, than flatter them with the deluſive hopes of the reſtoration of what had been carried away. Note, (1.) True prophets will be advocates before God in prayer for thoſe to whom they preach. They who maintain no communion with God can have no commiſſion from him. (2.) The general ruin of ſinners ariſes from falſe hopes, with which their lying and lazy teachers flatter them, who cry peace when there is no peace.

3. The prophecy concludes with a gleam of hope amidſt the darkneſs of this long captivity. Though the veſſels of the Lord's houſe, and of the houſes of the kings and princes of Judah, ſhould be thus carried to Babylon, they ſhould not be loſt, but ſafely laid up againſt the time appointed of God, when, after the ſeventy years were fulfilled, they ſhould again be reſtored; which was marvellouſly fulfilled by Cyrus, Ezra i. 7. Note, (1.) In wrath God ſtill remembers mercy. (2.) If the time of the church's diſtreſs be long, we may not deſpair; the viſion is for an appointed time, at the end it ſhall ſpeak: bleſſed are all they that wait for it.

CHAP. XXVIII.

We have here, (1.) Hananiah's falſe prophecy, in oppoſition to what Jeremiah had ſaid, who breaks the yoke which was over Jeremiah's neck, as a ſign of the looſing the yoke of the king of Babylon, ver. 1—4. 10, 11. (2). Jeremiah declares his wiſh it were true, but aſſures them it was falſe, ver. 5—9. and reads the doom of the people, ver. 12, 14. and of the prophet, ver. 15, 17. which received a ſpeedy accompliſhment.

595. 1. AND it came to paſs the ſame year, in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the fourth year, and in the fifth month, that Hananiah the ſon of Azur the prophet, which was of Gibeon, ſpake unto me in the houſe of the LORD, in the preſence of the prieſts, and of all the people, ſaying, 2. Thus ſpeaketh the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, ſaying, [a] I have broken the yoke of the king of Babylon. 3. [b] Within † two full years will I bring again into this place all the veſſels of the LORD's houſe, that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon took away from this place, and carried them to Babylon. 4. And [c] I will bring again to this place, Jeconiah the ſon of Jehoiakim king of Judah, with all the ‡ captives of Judah, that went into Babylon, ſaith the LORD; for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon. 5. ¶ Then the prophet Jeremiah ſaid unto the prophet Hananiah in the preſence of the prieſts, and in the preſence of all the people that ſtood in the houſe of the LORD, 6. Even the prophet Jeremiah ſaid, [d] Amen: the LORD do ſo, the LORD perform thy words which thou haſt propheſied, to bring again the veſſels of the LORD's houſe, and all that is carried away captive, from Babylon into this place. 7. Nevertheleſs, hear thou now this word that I ſpeak in thine ears, and in the ears of all the people, 8. The prophets that have been before me, and before thee of old, propheſied both againſt many countries, and againſt great kingdoms, of war, and of evil, and of peſtilence. 9. [e] The prophet which propheſied of peace, when the word of the prophet ſhall come to paſs, then ſhall the prophet be known, that the LORD hath truly ſent him.

[a] Chap. xxvii. 12.
[b] Chap. xxvii. 16.
† Heb. Two years of days.
[c] 2 Pet. ii. 19.
‡ Heb. Captivity.

Before Chriſt 595.

[d] 1 Kin. i. 36.
[e] Deut. xviii. 22.

v. 1—9. The date of this prophecy is the fourth of Zedekiah, called the beginning of his reign, or the former part, it continuing ſeven years longer; or becauſe in this year he paid a viſit to the king of Babylon, and received, as ſome ſuggeſt, a freſh inveſtiture of his dominions, with conſiderable additions of territory, chap. li. 59. or, as others, the fourth from the ſabbatical year; though the firſt ſenſe ſeems moſt natural.

We have here the ſtruggle between a falſe and true prophet.

1. Hananiah, the ſon of Azur, a falſe prophet, in the Lord's houſe, in the preſence of the prieſts and people, undertook to contradict all that Jeremiah had ſpoken, and, uſing the ſolemn preface of Thus ſaith the Lord, the God of Iſrael, as if he ſpoke by inſpiration from him, confidently aſſerts, both that the Babyloniſh yoke ſhould be broken, the veſſels of the ſanctuary reſtored, and the captive king Jeconiah, with all the priſoners, return from Babylon to Judea; and fixes the term, within two full years. Note, The ſmooth tongues of lying prophets never ſpeak reproof, but flattery. By this ye ſhall know them.

2. Jeremiah heard him, and immediately replies. Warm in his country's intereſt, he wiſhed nothing more ardently than its proſperity, and therefore adds his Amen, the Lord do ſo, the Lord perform the words which thou haſt ſpoken; as, if the Lord ſo pleaſed, he could be content to be counted a falſe prophet for the ſake of his brethren; ſo unjuſt were all their calumnies againſt him, as if he deſired the ruin of the nation. Though ſome ſuppoſe he ſpoke theſe words ironically, fully ſure, as the next words ſhew, of the determined deſtruction coming upon them; and therefore appeals to the event to prove the falſehood of Hananiah's aſſertion. He reminds him, before the people, how the prophets who were before their days ſpoke, all of whom, to a man, had denounced God's judgments againſt that and the neighbouring lands; ſuch as Iſaiah, Hoſea, Joel, Amos, Micah, Nahum, v. 8. it was therefore rather a preſumption in Jeremiah's favour, who correſponded with them herein, that he had drank at the ſame fountain of inſpiration; whereas the prophet, which propheſieth of peace, as Hananiah had done, and unconditionally, without any calls to repentance, was much to be ſuſpected, that he ſought to pleaſe men; and at leaſt the event of the prediction ſhould be waited for ere his claim to a divine miſſion ſhould be admitted.

10. ¶ Then Hananiah the prophet took [f] the yoke from off the prophet Jeremiah's neck, and brake it. 11. And Hananiah ſpake in the preſence of all the people, ſaying, Thus ſaith the LORD, Even ſo [g] will I break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon from the neck of all nations [h] within the ſpace of two full years. And the prophet Jeremiah went his way. 12. ¶ Then the word of the LORD came unto Jeremiah the prophet (after that Hananiah the prophet had broken the yoke from off the neck of the prophet Jeremiah) ſaying, 13. Go, and tell Hananiah, ſaying, Thus ſaith the LORD, Thou haſt broken the yokes of wood, but thou ſhalt make [i] for them yokes of iron. 14. For thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, [k] I have put a yoke of iron upon the neck of all theſe nations, that they may ſerve Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and they ſhall ſerve him; [l] and I have given him the beaſts of the field alſo. 15. ¶ Then ſaid the prophet Jeremiah unto Hananiah the prophet, Hear now, Hananiah, [m] The LORD hath not ſent thee, but thou makeſt this people to truſt in a lie. 16. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, I will caſt thee from off the face of the earth: this year thou ſhalt die, becauſe [n] thou haſt taught † rebellion againſt the LORD. 17. So Hananiah the prophet died the ſame year, in the ſeventh month.

[f] Chap. xxvii. 2.
[g] Chap. xxvii. 7. Ver. 2, 4.
[h] Ver. 3. Ezek. xiii. 22.
[i] Deut. xxviii. 48.
[k] Chap. xxvii. 4, 7.
[l] Chap. xxvii. 6.
[m] Chap. xxvii. 14, 15.
[n] Deut. xiii. 5. Chap. xxix. 32.
† Heb. Revolt.

v. 10—17. Enraged with ſuch a reply,

1. Hananiah ſeizes the yoke which Jeremiah wore, in token of the ſubjection of the nations by Nebuchadnezzar, and, plucking it from his neck, broke it in the preſence of all the people, impiouſly

Before Chriſt 595.

impiouſly and daringly adding this explication, which he prefaces with, thus ſaith the Lord; ſo will I break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon from the neck of all nations within two full years. Note, (1.) Falſehood advanced with ſolemnity and confidence, often gains regard. (2.) Many dare affirm that to be God's truth, which ſhortly will be found a lie to their own damnation.

2. Jeremiah went his way, diſdaining to contend with him; or abhorring his profaneneſs; or withdrawing himſelf from the rage he ſaw kindling; or patiently ſitting down under theſe reproaches; or to wait an anſwer from God.

3. He is ſent back with a fearful meſſage. Probably the ſame day, perhaps the ſame hour, whilſt the people were yet aſſembled before the temple, and Hananiah triumphing, as if the day was his own; but ſhort is the triumphing of the wicked. So far ſhould the nations be from breaking the yoke of the king of Babylon, as Hananiah had broken the yoke of wood, that it ſhould grow more rigorous and ſevere, a yoke of iron; all efforts to ſhake it off would be fruitleſs, and all the foregoing prophecies, chap. xxvii. 6. be to a tittle fulfilled. Such is the nation's doom. But Hananiah hath a burden peculiarly his own, the puniſhment of his atrocious crimes. He had pretended a commiſſion from God, and with his name given ſanction to his own lies; he had led the people with a deluſive hope, to ruſh on their deſtruction; and above all, had taught rebellion againſt God, encouraging them to reject the warnings of the true prophets, and deſpiſe the divine admonitions, for which crimes he is doomed to death by the immediate judgment of God, within the courſe of that very year, which was within two months fulfilled; for he died in the ſeventh month, and this was the fifth: and in his doom the people might have read the certainty of their own, and the truth of all Jeremiah had ſpoken, but their fooliſh hearts were darkened. Note, (1.) God will not ſuffer his prophets to be inſulted with impunity. (2.) None may expect heavier judgment, than they who are hinderers of the word of God, and ſeek to prejudice men's minds againſt the faithful miniſters of it. (3.) That ſudden death is terrible indeed, which comes from God in a way of judgment.

CHAP. XXIX.

We have here, 1. Jeremiah's letter to the captives, cautioning them to beware of the falſe prophets, to ſettle in Babylon, and patiently expect the expiration of the ſeventy years, denouncing death on two of their deceivers, ver. 1—23. 2. Shemaiah's letter againſt Jeremiah, ver. 24—29. 3. A denunciation of God's wrath againſt him, ver. 30—32.

597. 1. NOW theſe are the words of the letter, that Jeremiah the prophet ſent from Jeruſalem unto the reſidue of the elders which were carried away captives, and to the prieſts, and to the prophets, and to all the people, whom Nebuchadnezzar had carried away captive from Jeruſalem to Babylon, 2. (After that [a] Jeconiah the king, and the queen, and the † eunuchs, the princes of Judah and Jeruſalem, and the carpenters, and the ſmiths were departed from Jeruſalem) 3. By the hand of Elaſah the ſon of Shaphan, and Gemariah the ſon of Hilkiah, (whom Zedekiah king of Judah ſent unto Babylon to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon) ſaying, 4. Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts the God of Iſrael unto all that are carried away captives, whom I have cauſed to be carried away from Jeruſalem unto Babylon, 5. [b] Build ye houſes, and dwell in them, and plant gardens, and eat the fruit of them. 6. Take ye wives, and beget ſons and daughters, and take wives for your ſons, and give your daughters to huſbands, that they may bear ſons and daughters, that ye may be increaſed there, and not diminiſhed. 7. And ſeek the peace of the city whither I have cauſed you to be carried away captives, and [c] pray unto the LORD for it: for in the peace thereof ſhall ye have peace.

[a] 2 Kings xxiv. 12, &c.
† Or chamberlains.
[b] Ver. 28.
[c] Ezra vi. 10. 1 Mac. xii. 11. 1 Tim. ii. 2.

v. 1—7. We have here the letter of Jeremiah to the captives in Babylon, written by divine authority. It is directed to the prophets, prieſts, and people carried away captive by Nebuchadnezzar, after Jeconiah had ſurrendered himſelf, whoſe caſe ſeemed moſt peculiarly miſerable, and perhaps they envied their brethren who were left; though their own lot, if they knew how to improve it, was far more deſirable. The letter was ſent by Zedekiah's meſſengers, who went with the tribute, or to cultivate the friendſhip of the king of Babylon; and the contents of it were deſigned to encourage their hopes in God; to comfort them under their afflictions, to exhort them patiently to wait God's appointed time, and prevent their being deluded by falſe prophets to expect a deliverance ſooner than the expiration of the ſeventy years.

Before Chriſt 597.

1. He addreſſes them in God's name, and by his authority, Thus ſaith the Lord of hoſts, able to ſave to the uttermoſt, and the God of Iſrael, who ſtill acknowledged his relation to them, and had not caſt them out of covenant, though he had caſt them out of their land: thus, though perplexed, they may not be in deſpair. I have cauſed you to be carried away from Jeruſalem to Babylon, God's hand was in it; without which, no human power could have prevailed againſt them. Note, (1.) Though God viſit the iniquities of his people with a rod, and their ſin with ſcourges, he is ſtill their God, and will not take his loving kindneſs utterly from them. Let his Iſrael ſtill hope in the Lord. (2.) The conſideration from whoſe hand all our ſufferings come, ſhould ſilence every murmuring thought.

2. He encourages them to ſit down content in their preſent ſtate, to wait patiently God's time of deliverance; and in the mean while ſettle themſelves as comfortably as might be; to build, and plant, and marry, that they might not be diminiſhed either in wealth or numbers, when they ſhould return again unto their own land, v. 5, 6. and intimates that God would give them a peaceable abode, and comfortable enjoyment of their poſſeſſions, even in the land of their captivity. Note, Wherever we are caſt by God's providence, or into whatever ſtate of affliction, it is our wiſdom not only to ſubmit, but make the beſt of our ſituation, and live in hopes of better days.

3. He exhorts them to be peaceable under the government of the king of Babylon, though a heathen, and an enemy to God; yet to ſhew all good fidelity, and ſo far from plotting againſt the ſtate, in order to recover their liberty, to ſeek the proſperity of the country in which they were captives, and pray to God to preſerve and increaſe it, for in the peace thereof ſhould they have peace. It was their intereſt to do ſo; ſeeing in every calamity of that land they would be involved, and in the proſperity of it find their advantage. Note, If we muſt ſubmit to the power of oppreſſors, and pray for the peace of the land of our captivity, how much more are we bound to be loyal ſubjects under the mildeſt government, and in this our land of liberty to ſeek and pray for the peace thereof?

8. ¶ For thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, Let not your prophets and your diviners that be in the midſt of you, [d] deceive you, neither hearken to your dreams which ye cauſe to be dreamed. 9. For they propheſy falſly unto you in my name; [e] I have not ſent them, ſaith the LORD. 10. ¶ For thus ſaith the LORD, that [f] after ſeventy years be accompliſhed at Babylon, [g] I will viſit you, and perform my good word towards you, in cauſing you to return to this place. 11. For I know the thoughts that I think towards you, ſaith the LORD, thoughts of peace, and not of evil, to give you † an expected end. 12. [h] Then ſhall ye call upon me, and ye ſhall go and pray unto me, [i] and I will hearken unto you. 13. And [k] ye ſhall ſeek me, and find me, when ye ſhall ſearch for me [l] with all your heart. 14. And [m] I will be found of you, ſaith the LORD, and I will turn away your captivity, and [n] I will gather you from all the nations, and from all the places whither I have driven you, ſaith the LORD, and [o] I will bring you again into the place whence I cauſed you to be carried away captive.

[d] Chap. xiv. 14. & xxiii. 21. & xxvii. 15. Eph. v. 6.
[e] Chap. xxvii. 15. Reckoning from 606.
[f] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 21, 22. Ezra i. 1. Chap. xxv. 12. & xxvii. 22. Dan. ix. 2.
[g] Luke i. 68.
† Heb. An end and expectation.
[h] Dan. ix. 2, 3.
[i] Pſ. x. 17.
[k] Lev. xxvi. 39, 40. Deut. xxx. 1.
[l] Chap. xxiv. 7.
[m] Deut. iv. 7. Pſ. xxxii. 6. Iſa. lv. 6.
[n] Chap. xxiii. 3. Ezek. xx. 34, 41.
[o] Chap. xxiv. 6. & xxxii. 37.

v. 8—14. To engage them to patient waiting upon God,

1. He warns them to pay no regard to the falſe prophets, who promiſed them a ſpeedy return to their own land, and thereby diſcouraged them from ſettling in Babylon. Their dreams were the fancies of their own imagination, and never to be encouraged or liſtened to; ſince though they uſed the name of God, they lied, and never had a revelation from him, v. 9, 10. Note, When people love to be deceived, they will readily find flatterers to their ruin.

2. He aſſures them, though their prophets were falſe, God's promiſes would be found true, and accompliſhed in due ſeaſon. When the ſeventy years were ended, his purpoſes concerning them were all gracious, even their captivity was deſigned for their good, chap. xxiv. 5. and the expected end ſhould aſſuredly come; only let them with patience wait for it, and in earneſt prayer and ſupplication ſeek the fulfilment of the divine promiſes; ſearching after God with all their heart, in fervency and ſimplicity, and then he will aſſuredly be found of them in mercy, and turn their captivity into a bleſſed reſtoration unto their own land. Note, (1.) They who truſt the promiſes of God, ſhall never be diſappointed. (2.) As nothing can haſten any event one moment ſooner than the divine decree hath fixed it, neither can any difficulties retard the execution of God's word when the appointed ſeaſon comes. (3.) God's promiſes ſhould excite, not ſuperſede our prayers. (4.) They who ſearch for God with all their heart, are ſure to find him near to hear and anſwer them.

Before Christ 597.

p Chap. xxviii. 1. Ver. xxi. 24.
q Chap. xxiv. 10.
r Ibid. 8.
s Deut. xxviii. 25. 2 Chron. xxix. 8.
t Chap. xv. 4. & xxiv. 9. & xxxiv. 17.
† Heb. For a curſe.
t Chap. xlii. 18.
u Ibid. xxv. 4. & xxxii. 33.
x Gen. xlviii. 20.
y Chap. xxiii. 14.
z Prov. v. 21.

15. ¶ Becauſe ye have ſaid, The LORD hath raiſed us up [p] prophets in Babylon: 16. Know that thus ſaith the LORD, of the king that ſitteth upon the throne of David, and of all the people that dwelleth in this city, and of your brethren that are not gone forth with you into captivity; 17. Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, Behold, I will ſend upon them, [q] the ſword, the famine, and the peſtilence, and will make them like vile [r] figs, that cannot be eaten, they are ſo evil. 18. And I will perſecute them with the ſword, with the famine, and with the peſtilence, and [s] will deliver them to be removed to all the kingdoms of the earth, † to be [t] a curſe, and an aſtoniſhment, and an hiſſing, and a reproach among all the nations, whither I have driven them: 19. Becauſe they have not hearkened to my words, ſaith the LORD, which [u] I ſent unto them by my ſervants the prophets, riſing up early, and ſending them, but ye would not hear, ſaith the LORD. 20. ¶ Hear ye therefore the word of the LORD, all ye of the captivity, whom I have ſent from Jeruſalem to Babylon: 21. Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, of Ahab the ſon of Kolaiah, and of Zedekiah the ſon of Maaſeiah, which propheſy a lie unto you in my name, Behold, I will deliver them into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and he ſhall ſlay them before your eyes. 22. [x] And of them ſhall be taken up a curſe by all the captivity of Judah, which are in Babylon, ſaying, The LORD make thee like Zedekiah, and like Ahab, whom the king of Babylon roſted in the fire. 23. Becauſe [y] they have committed villany in Iſrael, and have committed adultery with their neighbours wives, and have ſpoken lying words in my name, which I have not commanded them, [z] even I know, and am a witneſs, ſaith the LORD.

v. 15—23. Though there were ſome gracious ſouls among the captives, yet were there many who paid no regard to the words of Jeremiah, but hearkened to the falſe prophets, and received them as ſent from God; and boaſted they needed not look to Judea for advice, when they had prophets of their own in Babylon, on whom they might depend. To theſe therefore the prophet addreſſes himſelf,

1. He warns them of the falſhood of the declarations of their prophets. They flattered the people with a ſpeedy return to Judea; when, ſo far from it, the reſidue of thoſe who were left in Jeruſalem were doomed to the moſt grievous devaſtations by famine, peſtilence, and the ſword; and the few who ſurvived, ſhould be ſcattered into all kingdoms, and made the objects of deriſion, ſcorn, and deteſtation in every place, like vile figs unfit to be eaten, and caſt as refuſe on the dunghill; and this becauſe of their impenitence and rejection of the repeated and earneſt warnings which God, by his prophets, had vouchſafed them, as had been threatned before, chap. xxiv. Note, (1.) They who flatter ſinners with hopes contrary to God's word, are infallibly falſe prophets. (2.) When men make themſelves vile by their ſins, God, in juſt judgment, will make them viler in their ſufferings.

2. He denounces judgment on two of the falſe prophets, Ahab and Zedekiah; whoſe abominable lives, as well as atrocious lies, called for vengeance. They were horrible adulterers, and yet dared to take God's name in their lips, and pretend he had ſent them, when they knew he never commanded them; and under the cloak of profound hypocriſy practiſed every villany. But though men might not diſcover their wickedneſs, God ſaw, and will recompenſe them according to their deeds. Detected probably in ſome ſeditious practices, the king of Babylon would ſeize them, and burn them alive before their eyes for a terror to others. A cataſtrophe ſo dreadful, that when any would wiſh the heavieſt curſe on their enemies, they ſhould not be able to conceive a worſe imprecation, than the Lord make thee like Zedekiah, and like Ahab, whom the king of Babylon roſted in the fire. Note, (1.) They who live in the practice of lewdneſs and adultery, and the like villany themſelves, muſt needs bely their pretenſions to a miſſion from God, and will have no boldneſs to rebuke the like practices in others. (2.) Secret as men's ſins may be committed, the day is near when no darkneſs or ſhadow of death ſhall hide the workers of iniquity. (3.) Though wicked prophets and wicked men may eſcape the judgments of God in this life, there is a fire kindled for them where they muſt burn eternally, and none ſhall quench it.

596.
† Or dreamer.
a 2 Kings xxv. 18.

24. ¶ Thus ſhalt thou alſo ſpeak to Shemaiah the † Nehelamite, ſaying, 25. Thus ſpeaketh the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, ſaying, Becauſe thou haſt ſent letters in thy name unto all the people that are at Jeruſalem, and to [a] Zephaniah the ſon of Maaſeiah the prieſt, and to all the prieſts, ſaying, 26. The LORD hath made thee prieſt in the ſtead of Jehoiada the prieſt, that ye ſhould be officers in the houſe of the LORD, for every man that is [b] mad, and maketh himſelf a prophet, that thou ſhouldſt [c] put him in priſon and in the ſtocks: 27. Now therefore why haſt thou not reproved Jeremiah of Anathoth, [d] which maketh himſelf a prophet to you? 28. For therefore he ſent unto us in Babylon, ſaying, This captivity is long, [e] build ye houſes and dwell in them, and plant gardens, and eat the fruit of them. 29. And Zephaniah the prieſt read this letter in the ears of Jeremiah the prophet. 30. ¶ Then came the word of the LORD unto Jeremiah, ſaying, 31. Send to all them of the captivity, ſaying, Thus ſaith the LORD, concerning Shemaiah [f] the Nehelamite, Becauſe that Shemaiah hath propheſied unto you, and [g] I ſent him not, and he cauſed you to truſt in a lie: 32. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, I will puniſh Shemaiah the Nehelamite and his ſeed: he ſhall not have a man to dwell among this people, [h] neither ſhall he behold the good that I will do for my people, ſaith the LORD, becauſe [i] he hath taught ‡ rebellion againſt the LORD.

Before Christ 596.

b Ibid. ix. 11. Acts xxvi. 24.
c Chap. xx. 2.
d Num. xvi. 3. 2 Tim. iii. 8.
e Ver. 5.
f Ver. 24.
g Chap. xxviii. 15. Ver. 9.
h Chap. xvii. 6.
i Ibid. xxviii. 16.
‡ Heb. Revolt.

v. 24—32. Whatever effect Jeremiah's letter had upon the people, we are not to wonder if the falſe prophets, whoſe ſins he ſo faithfully rebuked, were exaſperated. We have here,

1. The endeavours uſed by one of them to get Jeremiah ſeverely puniſhed. His name is Shemaiah, the Nehelamite, or the dreamer; one of thoſe lying prophets who deceived the people, and, in revenge for the reproofs contained in Jeremiah's letter, by the return of the meſſengers probably who had brought it, he writes in his own name, without conſulting his brethren, to the people in general, and to Zephaniah in particular, who ſeems to have been in ſome chief ſtation in the temple, well knowing that the church rulers bore no good will to the reforming prophets. He ſuggeſts to him the neceſſity of exerting the authority with which he was inveſted: The Lord hath made thee prieſt, inſtead of Jehoiada the prieſt. Either he would inſinuate, that he was, in zeal for God's glory, ſuch another; or rather Jehoiada might be another name of Seraiah the high-prieſt, whoſe ſagan or deputy he might be, or in ſome other chief office in the temple, ſee chap. lii. 24. He therefore, with the prieſts his brethren, ſhould take cognizance of every enthuſiaſtic fellow, who is mad, and maketh himſelf a prophet. Such ill names do God's faithful miniſters often bear, and to ſuch inſolent reproaches are they expoſed, as if intruders into the ſacred ſervice, diſturbed in mind, or under diabolical poſſeſſion. That thou ſhouldeſt put him in priſon, and in the ſtocks; both to expoſe and puniſh ſuch delinquents, of which number he affirms Jeremiah to be, and blames Zephaniah for not proceeding againſt him as a falſe prophet, v. 27. the proof of which he ſuppoſes would be no longer doubted, when he repeated but one line of Jeremiah's letter, that This captivity is long, and that inſtead of hoping for a ſpeedy reſtoration, the captives ſhould ſettle themſelves peaceably in Babylon, v. 28. Note, (1.) They who will be faithful to men's ſouls, muſt expect often to be treated as deceivers or madmen. (2.) Church power hath been often employed in tormenting her beſt friends. (3.) The accuſations generally brought againſt the miniſters of zeal are by their adverſaries looked upon to carry evidence inconteſtible of their enthuſiaſm and deluſion; yet when their words and preaching are calmly conſidered and examined, they contain nothing but the true ſayings of God.

2. Shemaiah's doom is read. Zephaniah read the letter in the ears of Jeremiah; either privately out of kindneſs, to warn him of his enemies; for when known they are more eaſily guarded againſt; or to acquaint him with the charge before he proceeded to judgment upon the caſe. And God gives Jeremiah an anſwer, which he is commanded to ſend to all thoſe of the captivity, that they might be warned againſt the impoſtor, and mark his puniſhment for daring to pretend a divine miſſion, and teaching rebellion againſt the Lord, by diſſuading the people from paying regard to his prophets. Shemaiah ſhall not only periſh himſelf, but his family be utterly cut off, his name be buried in oblivion, and none of his race ever ſee or taſte of the goodneſs God hath ſtill in ſtore for his people. Note, None periſh under ſuch aggravated guilt as thoſe falſe teachers, at whoſe hands God will require the ſouls they have deceived and flattered to their ruin.

CHAP. XXX.

Theſe two chapters, very different from the former, are wholly taken up with precious promiſes of a return out of captivity, and that typical of the glorious things reſerved for the church in the days of the Meſſiah. 1. Notwithſtanding their ſituation from a variety of

Before Christ 606.

of circumſtances appeared deſperate, they ſhall be reſtored, ver. 1—17. 2. That at their return they ſhould enjoy ſingular bleſſings ſpiritual and temporal, ver. 18—24.

1. THE word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, ſaying, 2. Thus ſpeaketh the LORD God of Iſrael, ſaying, Write thee all the words that I have ſpoken unto thee in a book. 3. For lo, the days come, ſaith the LORD, [a] that I will bring again the captivity of my people Iſrael and Judah, ſaith the LORD, and I will cauſe them to return to the land that I gave to their fathers, and they ſhall poſſeſs it. 4. ¶ And theſe are the words that the LORD ſpake concerning Iſrael, and concerning Judah. 5. For thus ſaith the LORD, We have heard a voice of trembling, † of fear, and not of peace. 6. Aſk ye now, and ſee whether ‡ a man doth travail with child? wherefore do I ſee every man with his hands on his loins, [b] as a woman in travail, and all faces are turned into paleneſs? 7. [c] Alas, for that day is great, ſo that none is like it: it is even the time of Jacob's trouble, but he ſhall be ſaved out of it. 8. For it ſhall come to paſs in that day, ſaith the LORD of hoſts, that I will break his yoke from off thy neck, and will burſt thy bonds, and ſtrangers ſhall no more ſerve themſelves of him. 9. But they ſhall ſerve the LORD their God, [d] and David their king, [e] whom I will raiſe up unto them.

[a] Chap. xxvii. 22. & xxix. 14. Ezek. xxxviii. 8. Hoſ. ix. 14.
† Or, there is fear and not peace.
‡ Heb. A male.
[b] Chap. iv. 31.
[c] Joel ii. 11. Amos v. 18. Zeph. i. 14, &c.
[d] Ezek. xxxiv. 23. & xxxvii. 24. Hoſ. iii. 5.
[e] Acts ii. 30.

v. 1—9. To perpetuate the memory of the great and gracious promiſes, God commands the prophet to write in a book all the words he had ſpoken to him; either all the preceding prophecies, or thoſe he had now ſpoken to him, relative to the enlargement of the Jews from their captivity, and the coming of the Meſſiah; and this to ſupport the faith and hope of the people of God, both of Iſrael and Judah.

1. They are repreſented under the greateſt terror and diſtreſs. It was a ſtrange ſight, but deſcriptive of the acuteneſs of their pains, to behold the men of war, like women in travail, with their hands on their loins, trembling, pallid, and crying out in their pangs, Alas! for that day is great, ſo that none is like it, ſo terrible and afflictive; and this may refer to the deſtruction of the Jews by the Chaldeans, or to their more terrible deſolations by the Romans: and ſome ſuppoſe that it hath a farther reſpect even to the reign of Antichriſt, when the witneſſes ſhall be ſlain, and the church of Chriſt reduced to the moſt abject ſtate of wretchedneſs.

2. The prophet muſt write a word of comfort for that gloomy and dark day. Though it is the time of Jacob's trouble, he ſhall be ſaved out of it; God will ſtand by his ſuffering people, and reſcue them from the hands of their enemies. He will break their yoke, deliver them from the Babyloniſh chains; or rather from their preſent ſtate of bondage, when ſtrangers in all nations whither they are diſperſed, ſhall ſerve themſelves of them, oppreſs and harraſs them no more: or, beſt of all, from the bondage of ſin and Satan, their unbelief and impenitence, when they ſhall be turned unto the Lord, and ſerve the Lord their God, and David their king, which hath certainly a farther view than to the reſtoration of the temple ſervice, and the governors of David's line, who preſided over them after the captivity in Babylon, even to the adored Meſſiah, David's Son, raiſed up to ſit on his throne, and David's Lord, whoſe divine character they ſhould acknowledge, ſubmit to his government, and join with his church in his worſhip, whom I will raiſe up to them; God, according to his promiſes, having conſtituted him to be a Prince and Saviour, to whom every knee muſt bow, and whom every tongue muſt confeſs. Note, They who take Chriſt for their king, are bound to prove their profeſſions by their fidelity. Loyalty conſiſts not in words but deeds.

10. ¶ Therefore [f] fear thou not, O my ſervant Jacob, ſaith the LORD, neither be diſmayed, O Iſrael; for lo, I will ſave thee from afar, and thy ſeed from the land of their captivity, and Jacob ſhall return, and ſhall be in reſt and quiet, [g] and none ſhall make him afraid. 11. For I am with thee, ſaith the LORD, to ſave thee: [h] though I make a full end of all nations whither I have ſcattered thee, yet will I not make a full end of thee: but I will correct thee [i] in meaſure, and will not leave thee altogether unpuniſhed. 12. For thus ſaith the LORD, [k] Thy bruiſe is incurable, and thy wound is grievous. 13. There is none to plead thy cauſe, that thou mayſt be bound up: [l] thou haſt no healing medicines. 14. [m] All thy lovers have forgotten thee: they ſeek thee not, for I have wounded thee with the wound [n] of an enemy, with the chaſtiſement [o] of a cruel one, for the multitude of thine iniquity: [p] becauſe thy ſins were increaſed. 15. Why [q] crieſt thou for thine affliction? thy ſorrow is incurable, for the multitude of thine iniquity: becauſe thy ſins were increaſed, I have done theſe things unto thee. 16. Therefore [r] all they that devour thee ſhall be devoured, and all thine adverſaries, every one of them ſhall go into captivity: and they that ſpoil thee ſhall be a ſpoil, and all that prey upon thee will I give for a prey. 17. For I will reſtore health unto thee, and I will heal thee of thy wounds, ſaith the LORD, becauſe they called thee an outcaſt, ſaying, [s] This is Zion, [t] whom no man ſeeketh after.

[f] Iſa. xli. 13. & xliii. 5. & xliv. 2. Chap. xlvi. 28.
[g] Ezek. xxxiv. 28.
[h] Amos ix. 8.
[i] Pſ. vi. 1. Iſa. xxvii. 8. Chap. x. 24. & xlvi. 28.
[k] Chap. xv. 18
[l] Chap. viii. 22.
[m] Lam. i. 2.
[n] Job xiii. 24. & xvi. 9. & xix. 11.
[o] Job xxx. 21.

Before Christ 606.

[p] Chap. v. 6.
[q] Ibid. xv. 18. Lam. iii. 39.
[r] Ex. xxiii. 22. Iſa. xxxiii. 1. & xli. 11. Chap. x. 25. Rev. xii. 10.
[s] Lam. ii. 15.
[t] Ibid. i. 2.

v. 10—17. When God viſits his people, he ſtill in wrath remembers mercy.

1. Their ſtate appears very deplorable; yea, to human view utterly deſperate. Their bruiſe incurable, their wound grievous, ver. 12. ſo that all reſtoration was deſpaired of; God himſelf ſeemed to be their enemy, their cruel enemy, ver. 14. So ſevere, ſo long continued were the ſtrokes of his judgments upon them, they had not a friend in their troubles to plead for them, either with God or man; or ſo much as a kind hand ſtretched out to bind up their gaping wounds, or adminiſter the healing medicine of conſolation or advice, v. 13. Their lovers, the neighbouring nations, who courted them in their proſperity, deſerted them in the day of their diſtreſs, v. 14. and looked upon their caſe as deſperate, regarding Zion as an outcaſt, whom no man ſeeketh after, abandoned to deſtruction; all which extorted from them bitter complaints, v. 15. not that they had any cauſe to charge God as ſevere, for becauſe of the multitude of their iniquities and their aggravated ſins, had theſe viſitations been ſent upon them, and their ſufferings were leſs than they deſerved; for however heavy the viſitation ſeemed to them, God corrected them in meaſure, and for their good, that he might not leave them wholly unpuniſhed; as a father chaſtiſing them, that they might be reformed, and not ruined. Note, (1.) If God's people ſin, they may not hope for impunity; the ſcourge ſhall ſurely come upon them, as well as others. (2.) In our ſufferings we are too apt to call the rod of a father the chaſtiſements of a cruel one. (3.) Sin hath a mortal ſting; none but God can heal the guilty ſoul. (4.) Whatever burden God lays upon us, we are bound to acknowledge it leſs than our iniquity hath deſerved. (5.) When the ſinner is reduced to the depths of ſelf-deſpair, then is the time when God magnifies the riches of his grace in his ſalvation.

2. The Lord declares his purpoſe of mercy towards them. Deſperate as their caſe ſeemed, both from their ſins and ſufferings, God bids them not fear, or be diſmayed; he owns them ſtill as his ſervants, v. 10. and engages to ſave them; and when he will work, who ſhall let him? Though far diſperſed in diſtant lands, he will bring them back, and give them, for all the wars and tumults with which they had been harraſſed, peace and quiet in their own land; which ſeems more applicable to their laſt recovery, when they ſhall be gathered into the goſpel-church, than to their return from Babylon, when their ſettlement met with many obſtructions. As for their enemies, God threatens to deſtroy them utterly; I will make a full end of all nations whither I have ſcattered thee, yet will I not make a full end of thee: the mightieſt monarchies are long ſince utterly ſubverted, and all other nations, among whom they had been captives, devoured, deſtroyed, and incorporated with their conquerors, v. 16. but to this hour we ſee the people of the Jews as much a diſtinct and ſeparate people, as if they had been ſtill ſhut up from all other nations in their own land, preſerved for the promiſed mercy: and notwithſtanding all their ſins and dire calamities, God promiſes to pardon the one and heal the other; to reſtore their health, and heal their wounds, bringing them into a ſtate of temporal proſperity, and ſaving them from the power of corruption; converting their ſouls, and cauſing them to partake of all the bleſſings of his ſpiritual kingdom in Chriſt Jeſus. Note, (1.) No ſinner's caſe is ſo far gone, as to be paſt the divine phyſician's cure. (2.) They who believe God's promiſes, will be delivered from diſtreſſing fears. (3.) The preſent ſtate of the Jewiſh people is a great and conſtant evidence of the inſpiration of the prophetic word.

18. ¶ Thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, [u] I will bring again the captivity of Jacob's tents, and [x] have mercy on his dwelling-places: and the city ſhall be builded upon her own heap, and the palace ſhall remain after the manner thereof. 19. And [y] out of them ſhall proceed thankſgiving, and the voice of them that make merry: and I will multiply them, and they ſhall not be few; I will alſo glorify them, and they ſhall not be ſmall. 20. Their children alſo ſhall be as aforetime, and their congregation ſhall be eſtabliſhed before me, and I will puniſh all that oppreſs them. 21. And their † nobles ſhall be of themſelves, and [z] their governor ſhall proceed from the midſt of them, and I will cauſe

[u] Ver. 3.
[x] Pſ. cii. 13.
[y] Iſa. xxxv. 10. & li. 11.
† Heb. Noble, or glorious One.
[z] Gen. xlix. 10. Iſa. ix. 6.

Before Chriſt 606.

him to draw near, and [a] he ſhall approach unto me: for who is this that engaged his heart to approach unto me? ſaith the LORD. 22. And [b] ye ſhall be my people, and I will be your God. 23. Behold, [c] the whirlwind of the LORD goeth forth with fury, a ‡ continuing whirlwind, it ſhall || fall with pain upon the head of the wicked. 24. The fierce anger of the LORD ſhall not return, until he have done it, and until he have performed the intents of his heart: [d] in the latter days ye ſhall conſider it.

[a] Heb. iv. 14.
[b] Chap. xxiv. 7. & xxxi. 1, 33. & xxxii. 38.
[c] Chap. xxiii. 19, 20. & xxv. 32.
‡ Heb. Cutting.
|| Or remain.
[d] Gen. xlix. 1.

v. 18—24. The ſame ſubject is here purſued, and the promiſes here ſpoken have a twofold reſpect.

1. To the return of the Jews from Babylon. Then their city ſhould be rebuilt on the ſame ſpot, the temple raiſed from its aſhes, v. 18. the ſacred feſtivals be reſtored, their numbers be multiplied, their nation be reſpected, their children be playing in the ſtreets in peace, their congregation at the temple undiſturbed, their oppreſſors puniſhed; their rulers, of themſelves, not ſtrangers; their governor one of their own nation; appointed of God, accepted of him, a pattern of devotion and piety to his ſubjects, v. 21. The covenant of peculiarity ſhall be re-eſtabliſhed, God their God, they his people, v. 22. whilſt all the wicked, who had perſecuted them, ſhall be ſwept away as with a whirlwind, through the fierce anger of the Lord, that ſhall not return until he hath done it, fully eſtabliſhed his people, and deſtroyed their foes.

2. To their return to the church of God from their preſent diſperſion, and this ſeems chiefly intended.

(1.) They ſhall be recovered from their captivity. Some ſuppoſe literally that they ſhall be collected in Judea, and that the city of Jeruſalem ſhall be rebuilt in all its former magnificence; however, they ſhall come into the church of Chriſt, the city of the living God, the ſpiritual Jeruſalem, and the voice of thankſgiving for goſpel-grace ſhall ſound louder than the ſongs which accompanied the ſacred feſtivals.

(2.) Their numbers will be great in the day of their converſion, and a moſt glorious appearance will they make, when they ſhall be at once brought to the faith of the goſpel, and a nation be born in a day. At that day the children of the church ſhall be multiplied in a more aſtoniſhing manner than at the firſt preaching of the goſpel, and no more perſecuting powers remain to diſturb the congregation of the faithful, v. 20.

(3.) They will then be brought to know and acknowledge the true Meſſiah. His noble one, his glorious, or mighty one, as the word may be rendered, ſhall be of themſelves; and their governour, the Prince of Peace, able to ſave and to deſtroy, ſhall proceed out of the midſt of them, riſe up from the ſtock of Iſrael; I will cauſe him to draw near, and he ſhall approach unto me as mediator, appointed to be the ſurety and advocate of his people, and ever living in heaven to make interceſſion for them, in conſequence of his having engaged his heart to God in the covenant of grace, to draw near to him by an obedience to death, even the death of the croſs, in behalf of his people, who by ſin were excluded from the divine favour and preſence. And this may well deſerve a note of admiration, Who is this! This is Jeſus, by whom loſt ſouls are reſtored to the favour of the juſtly offended Jehovah, and he becomes their God, and they his people, which will be the caſe with the Jews at the latter day.

(4.) All the wicked will be cut off; they who will not ſubmit to the Meſſiah's government, muſt periſh under his wrath terrible and irreſiſtible, which ſinners will be made to feel, if not before, at leaſt at the great day of his appearing and glory, and then it will be too late to conſider when wrath comes upon them to the uttermoſt: or, in the latter days ye ſhall conſider it, ſhall ſee this prophecy accompliſhed, all the purpoſes of God's love to his people, and of wrath to his enemies, being fully performed.

CHAP. XXXI.

This chapter is of the ſame nature with the former, and full of great and precious promiſes to the people of God. 1. They ſhall be reſtored to peace and honour, joy and plenty, ver. 1—14. 2. Their ſorrow for the loſs of their children ſhall be at an end, ver. 15, 16, 17. 3. They ſhall repent of their ſins, and God will graciouſly accept them, ver. 18, 19, 20. 4. They ſhall be increaſed, both in children and cattle, and not diminiſhed as they had been, ver. 21—30. 5. God will renew his covenant with them, and enrich it with ſpiritual bleſſings, ver. 31—34. 6. Theſe bleſſings ſhall be ſecured to theirs after them, even to the ſpiritual ſeed of Iſrael for ever, ver. 35, 36, 37. 7. As an earneſt of this, the city of Jeruſalem ſhall be rebuilt, ver. 38, 39, 40.

[a] Chap. xxx. 24.
[b] Chap. iii. 18. Acts ii. 39. Rom. xi. 26.
[c] Exod. xxxiii. 17.

1. [a] AT the ſame time, ſaith the LORD, will I be [b] the God of all the families of Iſrael, and they ſhall be my people. 2. Thus ſaith the LORD, The people which were left of the ſword, [c] found grace in the wilderneſs; even Iſrael, when [d] I went to cauſe him to reſt. 3. The LORD hath appeared † of old unto me, ‡ ſaying, Yea, I have loved thee [e] with an everlaſting love: therefore with loving kindneſs [f] have I drawn thee. 4. Again [g] I will build thee, and thou ſhalt be built, O virgin of Iſrael, thou ſhalt again be adorned with thy [h] || tabrets, and ſhalt go forth in the dances of them that make merry. 5. [i] Thou ſhalt yet plant vines upon the mountains of Samaria, the planters ſhall plant, and ſhall § eat them as common things. 6. For there ſhall be a day, that [k] the watchmen upon the mount Ephraim ſhall cry, [l] Ariſe ye, and let us go up to Zion unto the LORD our God. 7. For thus ſaith the LORD, [m] Sing with gladneſs for Jacob, and ſhout among the chief of the nations: publiſh ye, praiſe ye, and ſay, O LORD, ſave thy people the remnant of Iſrael. 8. Behold, [n] I will bring them from the north-country, and gather them from the coaſts of the earth, and with them [o] the blind and the lame, the woman with child, and her that travaileth with child together, a great company ſhall return thither. 9. [p] They ſhall come with weeping, and [q] with † ſupplications will I lead them: I will cauſe them to walk by the rivers of waters, [r] in a ſtraight way wherein they ſhall not ſtumble: for I am a father to Iſrael, and Ephraim is [s] my firſt-born.

Before Chriſt 606.

[d] Num. x. 33. Deut. i. 33. Pſ. xcv. 11.
† Heb. From afar.
‡ Or ſay they.
[e] Iſa. liv. 8.
[f] John vi. 44.
[g] Chap. xxxiii. 7.
[h] Exod. xv. 20. Judg. xi. 34.
|| Or timbrel
[i] Iſa. lxv. 21.
§ Heb. Profane them.
[k] Iſa. lxii. 6.
[l] Ibid. ii. 3. Mic. iv. 2.
[m] Iſa. xii. 6.
[n] Chap. iii. 18.
[o] Iſa. xxxv. 5, 6.
[p] Pſ. cxxvi. 5, 6. Chap. l. 4.
[q] Zech. xii. 10.
† Or favours.
[r] Iſa. xxxv. 8. & xliii. 19.
[s] Ex. iv. 22.

v. 1—9. The great mercy God had yet in ſtore for his people is here at large declared for the ſupport of their faith and hope.

1. They ſhall all be his, and he will work for them a greater deliverance, than when he brought them out of Egypt. At the ſame time, in the latter days, will I be the God of all the families of Iſrael; he will take them into covenant with him, after their long alienation from him, and all ſhall know him from the leaſt to the greateſt: and they ſhall be my people; conſtrained by his grace, and devoting themſelves to his ſervice. For as of old, the people that eſcaped the ſword of Pharaoh in Egypt, found grace in the wilderneſs, being preſerved and protected; even Iſrael, when I went to cauſe them to reſt in Canaan; ſo now ſhould they be preſerved, and reſtored from their captive ſtate to their own land. But then the people might be apt to ſay, admitting his paſt deliverances, The Lord hath appeared of old unto me, but now we ſee none of his tokens, and therefore conclude ourſelves rejected. No, ſays God, I have loved thee with an everlaſting love, which having ſubſiſted from eternity, will endure to eternity; therefore with loving-kindneſs have I drawn thee; I have delivered thee out of thy former troubles, and will draw thee out of every pit. Note, (1.) Long afflictions are ready to breed deſpondence; but we ſhould remember the paſt experience of God's people, and comfort our ſouls in hope. (2.) It is the abiding ground of conſolation, that God's love is everlaſting: thoſe who are once the objects of it, ſhall never be finally caſt away. (3.) All our mercies in time or eternity flow from this everlaſting love of God. We have not choſen him, but he hath choſen us, called us by his grace, delivered us from the horrible pit of nature, conſtrained us by the cords of love to follow him; with the over-ruling energy of his grace hath overcome the ſtrong bias of our corruptions, and drawn us from ſin to holineſs, from earth to heaven. Lord, thus draw me, that I may run after thee.

2. They ſhall be re-ſettled, and bleſt with plenty; either literally, when they ſhould return from the captivity in Babylon; or ſpiritually, when, being converted to the Lord, Iſrael ſhould be preſented a chaſte virgin to Chriſt, be built up on him the ſure foundation, a glorious church, and filled with the abundance of ſpiritual joy, far exceeding the muſic and dances with which they celebrated the ceremonial feſtivals, ſee Rev. xiv. 2—4. xix. 7—9. In all their country, even Samaria, the ſeat of idolatry, goſpel churches, repreſented by vines, ſhould be planted, and enriched with numerous converts, from whom the planters, the miniſters of the goſpel, would receive the moſt abundant fruit.

3. They ſhall with one heart, and in one place, unite in the worſhip of God. The kingdoms of Iſrael and Judah ſhall be no more divided, but there ſhall be a day, the goſpel-day, that the watchmen upon mount Ephraim, the miniſters of the goſpel, ſhall cry, Ariſe ye, and let us go up to Zion unto the Lord our God. Though Ephraim was chief in the revolt from the houſe of David, and the worſhip at Jeruſalem, now they ſhall be among the firſt to expreſs their zeal for the worſhip and ordinances of the church of Chriſt, the ſpiritual Zion, and confeſs him to be their Lord and their God. Note, They who were once chief rebels againſt God, when converted become his moſt zealous ſubjects and ſervants.

4. The Gentiles are called upon to rejoice in the converſion of Iſrael, and to pray for their compleat ſalvation, v. 7. for thus our praiſes for paſt mercies ſhould ever quicken our ſupplications, and confirm our faith of greater yet in ſtore for us.

5. Notwithſtanding all difficulties in the way, God will lead them ſafely home; either from Babylon, when no bodily infirmities ſhould detain them, God being their ſtrength and helper; or this may be interpreted ſpiritually of their recovery from the bondage of corruption, when God will lead the blind in a way they knew not, and make the lame man leap as an hart; when the travailing ſoul ſhall find reſt from its pangs in Chriſt, and all the redeemed, a great company which no man can number, ſhall be brought into the church, with weeping for paſt offences, whilſt they look upon him whom they have pierced, and ſupplications for preſent grace, which in the moſt abundant meaſure God will beſtow, like rivers of water, to refreſh them in their journey to glory; and he will make ſtrait paths for their feet, that nothing may cauſe them to fall; whilſt as a father with tendereſt regard he watches over, and in his arms ſupports, the children of his grace, as Iſrael and Ephraim ſhould be then accounted. Note, (1.) When God will work, all difficulties quickly vaniſh. (2.) We have a total impotence to take one ſtep towards our own ſalvation; but when God calls, he will beſtow the ability. (3.) All who return to God in truth, come to him with weeping and ſorrow for paſt guilt, and ſupplication for preſent help. (4.) When we follow a divine call, we are ſure of a divine protection, and ſhall find comfort in all the way. (5.) They who have God for their father, can want no manner of thing that is good.

10. ¶ Hear the word of the LORD, O ye nations, and declare it in the iſles afar off, and ſay, He that ſcattered Iſrael [t] will gather him, and keep him, as a ſhepherd doth his flock. 11. For [u] the LORD hath redeemed Jacob, and ranſomed him from the hand of him [x] that was ſtronger than he. 12. Therefore they ſhall come and ſing in the height of Zion, and ſhall flow together to the goodneſs of the LORD, [y] for wheat, and for wine, and for oil, and for the young of the flock, and of the herd: and their ſoul [z] ſhall be as a watered garden, and they ſhall not ſorrow any more at all. 13. Then [a] ſhall the virgin rejoice in the dance, both young men and old together: for I will turn their mourning into joy, and [b] will comfort them, and make them rejoice from their ſorrow. 14. And I will ſatiate the ſoul of the prieſts with fatneſs, and [c] my people ſhall be ſatisfied with my goodneſs, ſaith the LORD. 15. ¶ Thus ſaith the LORD, [d] A voice was heard in Ramah, lamentation and bitter weeping: Rachel weeping for her children, refuſed to be comforted for her children, becauſe they were not. 16. Thus ſaith the LORD, [e] Refrain thy voice from weeping, and thine eyes from tears: for thy work ſhall be rewarded, ſaith the LORD, and they ſhall come again from the land of the enemy. 17. And there is hope in thine end, ſaith the LORD, that thy children ſhall come again to their own border.

[t] Ex. xxxiv. 13.
[u] Iſa. xlix. 24, 25. Gal. iii. 13.
[x] Luke xi. 21, 22.
[y] Ezek. xxxvi. 35. Joel iii. 18.
[z] Iſa. lviii. 11.
[a] Pſ. cxlviii. 12, 13.
[b] Iſa. li. 3. & lii. 9.
[c] Pſ. xxxvi. 8.
[d] Mat. ii. 17, 18.
[e] 1 Theſ. iv. 13.

v. 10—17. The diſtant nations, and the iſles afar off, are called upon to hear and obſerve the deſigns of mercy and grace which God hath towards his Iſrael.

1. He will collect them from their diſperſion, keep them as a ſhepherd his flock, and redeem them from the hand of all their mighty enemies, who had prevailed againſt them, v. 10, 11. which was true of Iſrael after the fleſh, when they were reſtored from Babylon, and will be ſtill more eminently fulfilled, when they are brought in from their preſent ſtate of captivity. But it is alſo eſpecially applicable to all the ſpiritual Iſrael of God, redeemed by the blood of Jeſus, reſcued from the power of ſin and Satan, gathered in from the ſtate of nature and corruption, in which they lay before diſperſed amidſt the world of the ungodly, and preſerved and kept by the great ſhepherd of ſouls, out of whoſe hands none can pluck them.

2. They ſhall be filled with plenty, joy, and gladneſs. The returning captives with delight once more will ſtand on Zion's hill, and ſing his praiſe, Ezra iii. 11. His goodneſs ſhall engage their hearts to him, and all temporal good things ſhall abound: they ſhall flouriſh as a watered garden; their ſorrows be at an end; the voice of joy again fill the ſtreets of Jeruſalem; and God's hand, ſeen in the viſitation, ſhall turn their mourning and ſorrow into overflowing joy and conſolation; ſo that both prieſts and people ſhall be ſatiated with God's goodneſs, v. 12—14. The ſouls of ſinners, whether Jews or Gentiles, ſhall alſo experience this prophecy more glorioully fulfilled, when brought into the church of Chriſt, the ſpiritual Zion, their hearts ſhall be enlarged with love and praiſe; conſtrained by the experience of divine goodneſs, and flowing together to Jeſus, ſhall be filled with good things, the heavenly bread of goſpel grace, the word of life; the chearing wine of the great and precious promiſes, whereby we become partakers of a divine nature; the oil of gladneſs, the unction from the holy One; and all the beſt of bleſſings he hath to beſtow; making the ſoul as a watered garden, abounding in all the gifts and graces of the Spirit, in all the fruits of righteouſneſs; the effects of which will be the exchange of all their mourning over their ſins, corruptions, temptations, deſertions, for joy in the ſenſe of pardon, ſtrength, and the light of God's countenance lifted up upon them; ſo that both miniſters and people ſhall be ſatisfied with God's goodneſs; and as thus the tears at preſent are wiped away from their eyes, ſo ſhall they quickly go where they ſhall not ſorrow any more at all, where every cauſe of it will be removed for ever, and their everlaſting bleſſedneſs be compleat. Haſten, Lord, this happy day!

3. The great cauſe of their grief would be removed. Rachel, as if riſing out of her grave, which lay between Ramah and Bethlehem, to bewail this cataſtrophe, perſonates the Jewiſh mothers with inconſolable anguiſh weeping over their children ſlain or gone into captivity; but the Lord ſilences her mourning with aſſurances, that ſhe ſhould not have borne theſe children in vain, ſince however now they ſeemed loſt irrecoverably, he would bring them to their own border again; ſo that there was ſtill hope in their end that it would be happy, and make the former days of ſorrow forgotten. This prophecy we are aſſured had alſo a particular reference to the ſlaying the infants by Herod, Mat. xi. 16—18. the maſſacre reaching from Bethlehem to Ramah, and waking, as it were, Rachel that mother of Iſrael from her ſepulchre, to lament the inhuman deed; and ſhe is comforted with the aſſurance, that there is hope in their end, and at a reſurrection day theſe infants ſhall come from the land of death their enemy, to their own borders, the heavenly Canaan. Note, (1.) If we have hope in our end, we ought to be comforted under the troubles of the way. (2.) Parents are too apt to indulge inordinate ſorrow for the death of their children, and refuſe to be comforted; whereas, if they were gracious, they have cauſe to rejoice, and, if they died in infancy, have abundant reaſon to believe there is hope in their end: we ſhall meet them in a better country.

18. ¶ I have ſurely heard Ephraim bemoaning himſelf thus, [f] Thou haſt chaſtiſed me, and I was chaſtiſed, as a bullock unaccuſtomed to the yoke: [g] turn thou me, and I ſhall be turned; for thou art the LORD my God. 19. Surely [h] after that I was turned, I repented; and after that I was † inſtructed, I ſmote upon my thigh: I was aſhamed, yea, even confounded, becauſe [i] I did bear the reproach of my youth. 20. [k] Is Ephraim my dear ſon? is he a pleaſant child? for ſince I ſpake againſt him, I do earneſtly [l] remember him ſtill: therefore [m] my bowels ‡ are troubled for him: [n] I will ſurely have mercy upon him, ſaith the LORD. 21. Set thee up way-marks, make thee high heaps: [o] ſet thine heart toward the high-way, even the way which thou wenteſt: turn again, O virgin of Iſrael, turn again to theſe thy cities. 22. ¶ How long wilt thou [p] go about, O thou backſliding daughter? for the LORD hath created a new thing in the earth, [q] A woman ſhall compaſs § a man. 23. Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, As yet they ſhall uſe this ſpeech in the land of Judah and in the cities thereof, when I ſhall bring again their captivity, [r] The LORD bleſs thee, [s] O habitation of juſtice, and mountain of holineſs. 24. And there ſhall dwell in Judah itſelf, and in all the cities thereof together, huſbandmen, and they that go forth with flocks. 25. For [t] I have ſatiated the weary ſoul, and I have repleniſhed every ſorrowful ſoul. 26. Upon this I awaked, and beheld; and my ſleep was ſweet unto me.

[f] Pſ. xciv. 12.
[g] Lam. v. 21.
[h] Deut. xxx. 2.
† Or, knew myſelf. Luke xv. 17.
[i] Job xiii. 26.
[k] Luke xv. 32.
[l] Iſa. xlix. 15.
[m] Iſa. lxiii. 15. Hoſ. xi. 8. Luke xv. 20.
‡ Heb. Bound for him.
[n] Hoſ. xiv. 4.
[o] Chap. l. 5.
[p] Chap. ii. 18, 23, 36.
[q] Iſa. vii. 14. Mat. i. 18, 20.
§ Or, a mighty man.
[r] Pſ. cxxii. 6, 7.
[s] Iſa. lx. 21.
[t] Pſ. cvii. 9. Mat. v. 4, 6. & xi. 28.

v. 13—26. We have here,

1. Ephraim's repentance, repreſenting the whole body of the Jewiſh people, and the figure of every awakened ſoul that returns to God. He bemoans himſelf in the remembrance of his paſt iniquities; acknowledges the juſtice of the chaſtiſement which his ſins had provoked; reproaches his own ſtubbornneſs for ſtruggling ſo long againſt God, as a bullock unaccuſtomed to the yoke. He prays to the Lord for that converting grace which only can turn his perverſe heart; and if God will work, then ſhall the happy change be wrought, and he be enabled by faith to reſt upon God, and claim an intereſt in his regard; for thou art the Lord my God. And when he can thus caſt his burden upon the Lord, inſtantly the bleſſed effects appear: Surely after that I was turned, I repented; the ſenſe of the divine love, now more experimentally taſted, wrought a deeper ſenſe of the evil and ingratitude of ſin, and a greater abhorrence of it: and after that I was inſtructed, in the knowledge of his own impurity and pollution, by the light of God's Spirit, and of the tranſcendent excellence and infinite grace of the neglected Saviour; I ſmote upon my thigh, with holy indignation at his baſeneſs, ſtupidity, and perverſeneſs: I was aſhamed, yea, even confounded; ſcarce able to look up to God from the conſciouſneſs of guilt, becauſe I did bear the reproach of my youth; all his ſins, long ſince committed and forgotten, roſe up freſh to his memory, and from the earlieſt days of youth, gave him abundant cauſe for confuſion and ſelf-abhorrence. Note, When a ſoul is by divine grace brought thus far, he is in the ſure road to glory.

2. God's arms of love are open to receive the returning prodigal; with delight he bends over him, and pours out his paternal heart. Is Ephraim my dear ſon? is he a pleaſant child? It expreſſes with a kind of ſurprize the joy God takes in ſeeing ſuch a change wrought upon a hardened ſinner, and intimates his readineſs to own the endeared relation of father, however unworthy the ſinner is to bear the name of child: a pleaſant child too, for when the penitent returns to God, all his evil is forgiven and forgotten, and he becomes dear to God, as if he had never offended. For ſince I ſpake againſt him, corrected him with ſome rebukes, and threatned him with more, I do earneſtly remember him ſtill with tender affection; my bowels are troubled for him, grieved for his afflictions, yearning over him in the duſt of humiliation: I will ſurely have mercy on him, ſaith the Lord; pardon all that is paſt, reſtore him to what he hath loſt, beſtow new ſavours, and make him the object of eternal grace and mercy. Note, (1.) God's compaſſions to his undutiful children ſhould teach parents never to be inexorable, however offended. (2.) When the heavieſt afflictions for their ſins light on God's children, it is not becauſe he hath forgotten to be gracious, but that they have neglected to be dutiful; when they return to him, he will ſtill be found a father of mercies.

3. The people of Iſrael, in the perſon of Ephraim, repentant and obtaining mercy with God, are called to return to their own land. Set thee up way marks, make thee high heaps, as a direction in the road, that they may not err; ſet thine heart toward the highway, even the way that thou wenteſt from Judea to Babylon; turn again, O virgin of Iſrael, turn again to theſe thy cities, which God now would reſtore to them. How long wilt thou go about, O thou backſliding daughter? departing from God, and therefore wandering in endleſs mazes of error and miſery; for the Lord hath created a new thing in the earth, a woman ſhall compaſs a man, a mighty one, the Meſſiah, born of a virgin, by the immediate power of God, a ſtrange and unheard-of conception; to him the gathering of the people ſhall be, and they may be confident of their recovery, when this breaker ſhall go up before their king at the head of them. Note, (1.) The incarnation of Jeſus is the foundation of every bleſſing to God's Iſrael. (2.) Go about where we will, our ſouls never can find reſt, till we return from our backſliding, to the God from whom we have ſo greatly departed. (3.) We may expect many a difficulty in our path, when our faces are turned from the houſe of our priſon, towards God's Zion, and therefore need ſet our heart towards it, diſcouraged by no oppoſition.

4. Great ſhall be the peace and proſperity of God's Iſrael. Thoſe who behold them would admire them, and wiſh them the beſt of bleſſings; The Lord bleſs thee, O habitation of juſtice, and mountain of holineſs, for ſuch Jeruſalem ſhould become; and this, whatever reformation might be wrought by Nehemiah and Ezra, ſeems to have its full accompliſhment yet to come. In conſequence of ſuch piety, great plenty ſhould be given them of all good things; their flocks ſhall abound, and a liberal proviſion be made to repleniſh and ſatisfy every weary and ſorrowful ſoul; and this is eſpecially to be referred to the ſpiritual Iſrael, to whom God will raiſe up paſtors after his own heart, under whoſe miniſtry they ſhall be abundantly repleniſhed, and their ſouls, weary and heavy laden with guilt and ſin, be refreſhed with a ſenſe of the love of Chriſt, and their ſorrows exchanged for joy and peace in believing.

5. The viſion afforded the prophet great ſatisfaction and delight. Upon this I awakened, perhaps with the tranſport of joy he felt at the revelation of theſe deſigns of grace to God's people; and beheld, for nothing fills a faithful miniſter's heart with greater pleaſure, than the proſpect of Chriſt's kingdom increaſing; and my ſleep was ſweet unto me, peculiarly refreſhing and ſtrengthening. Note, The mind much occupied on God, will often in ſleep find the communion ſtill maintained with him, and the very dreams holy and comforting.

27. ¶ Behold, the days come, ſaith the LORD, that [w] I will ſow the houſe of Iſrael, and the houſe of Judah with the ſeed of man, and with the ſeed of beaſt. 28. And it ſhall come to paſs, that like as I have watched over them, [x] to pluck up, and to break down, and to throw down, and to deſtroy, and to afflict; ſo will I watch over them, [y] to build, and to plant, ſaith the LORD. 29. In thoſe days they ſhall ſay no more, [z] The fathers have eaten a ſour grape, and the childrens teeth are ſet on edge. 30. But [a] every one ſhall die for his own iniquity, every man that eateth the ſour grape, his teeth ſhall be ſet on edge. 31. ¶ Behold, [b] the days come, ſaith the LORD, that I will make a [c] new covenant with the houſe of Iſrael, and with the houſe of Judah: 32. [d] Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand, to bring them out of the land of Egypt (which my covenant they brake, † although I was an huſband unto them, ſaith the LORD:) 33. [e] But this ſhall be the covenant that I will make with the houſe of Iſrael, After thoſe days, ſaith the LORD, [f] I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts, and [g] will be their God, and they ſhall be my people. 34. And they ſhall teach no more every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, ſaying, Know the LORD: for [h] they ſhall all know me, from the leaſt of them unto the greateſt of them, ſaith the LORD: for [i] I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their ſin no more.

[w] Hoſ. ii. 23. Zech. x. 9.
[x] Chap. i. 10. & xviii. 7.
[y] Chap. xxiv. 6.
[z] Lam. v. 7. Ezek. xviii. 2.
[a] Gal. vi. 5, 7.
[b] Chap. xxxii. 40. & xxxiii. 14. Heb. viii. 8. & x. 16.
[c] 1 John ii. 7, 8.
[d] John i. 17.
† Or, ſhould I have continued an huſband to them?
[e] Chap. xxxii. 38, 40.
[f] Pſ. xl. 8. Ezek. xi. 19, 20. & xxxvi. 26, 27. 2 Cor. iii. 3.
[g] Chap. xxiv. 7. & xxx. 22.
[h] Iſa. liv. 13. John vi 45. 1 Cor. ii. 10. 1 John ii. 20.
[i] Chap. xxxiii. 8. Mic. vii. 18. Acts x. 43. Rom. xi. 27.

v. 27—34. Farther diſcoveries of God's deſigns of grace towards his people are here made.

1. They ſhall be multiplied exceedingly: as a field ſown with ſeed, ſo ſhall both the men and cattle increaſe under the divine bleſſing; and inſtead of their former deſolations God promiſes to turn his hand, and to be as careful to protect and proſper them, as ever he had watched over them to afflict and deſtroy them, v. 28. Note, They are truly ſafe and happy, who have God for their guardian.

2. They ſhould no more be viſited for their fathers iniquities, and ſhould have no more reaſon to complain, that the fathers have eaten a ſour grape, and the children's teeth are ſet on edge; being puniſhed for the ſins of their anceſtors, particularly of Manaſſeh: but now every one ſhall die for his own iniquity; for tho' the nation be no more expoſed to wrath as a body, ſinful individuals ſhould bear their own guilt. Every man that eateth the ſour grape, his teeth ſhall be ſet on edge; and ſin, however tempting to the eye, well ever be found ſour in its effects, and produce much anguiſh to the ſoul, either in time or eternity.

3. God will eſtabliſh his covenant with them: the covenant of grace in Chriſt Jeſus, of which all the Iſrael of God are partakers; not of the Jews only, but of the Gentiles alſo; for ſo the apoſtle underſtands theſe words, Heb. viii. 8—12. This covenant is called new, not as in ſubſtance different from that made with the people when they came out of Egypt, but in the form in which it was exhibited. Then it was delivered in type and figure, wrapped up under the veil of ceremonial rites and ſervices; whilſt now as with open face we behold the glory of God manifeſt in the face of Jeſus Chriſt, and in the goſpel ſee the cleareſt diſcoveries of his grace; though ſome ſuppoſe the Sinai covenant to be in ſubſtance different from the covenant of grace, as a covenant of peculiarity, and merely of a temporal nature. The covenant made with them they quickly broke, by the moſt ungrateful departures from God, and ſetting up that hated thing idolatry; notwithſtanding all the diſtinguiſhing kindneſs of God to them as a tender huſband, patient under their provocations, and wooing them to return to him.

4. The tenor of the covenant here promiſed is all mercy, and the bleſſings wholly ſpiritual, where God is all and in all. He engages to write his law upon their hearts, and to enable them for the obedience he demands. He will be their God, to bleſs them, and they ſhall be his people, conſtrained by his powerful grace, and engaged to give up themſelves to his government. Abundance of divine knowledge ſhall then be diffuſed, and all the Iſrael of God be enriched with wiſdom and ſpiritual underſtanding: and he concludes with the crowning bleſſing of all, I will forgive their iniquity, and remember their ſin no more; and every true Iſraelite is now entitled to theſe ineſtimable bleſſings.

35. ¶ Thus ſaith the LORD, [k] which giveth the ſun for a light by day, and the ordinances of the moon and of the ſtars for a light by night, which divideth [l] the ſea when the waves thereof roar; the LORD of hoſts is his name. 36. [m] If thoſe ordinances depart from before me, ſaith the LORD, then the ſeed of Iſrael alſo ſhall ceaſe from being a nation before me for ever. 37. Thus ſaith the LORD, If [n] heaven above can be meaſured, and the foundations of the earth ſearched out beneath, I will alſo caſt off all the ſeed of Iſrael, for all that they have done, ſaith the LORD. 38. ¶ Behold, [o] the days come, ſaith the LORD, that the city ſhall be built to the LORD [p] from the tower of Hananeel unto the gate of the corner. 39. And [q] the meaſuring-line ſhall yet go forth over againſt it, upon the hill Gareb, and ſhall compaſs about to Goath. 40. And the whole valley of the dead bodies, and of the aſhes, and all the fields unto the brook of Kidron, [r] unto the corner of the horſe-gate, towards the eaſt, ſhall be [s] holy unto the LORD,

[k] Gen. i. 16.
[l] Pſ. lxxii. 5, 17. & lxxxix. 36. & cxix. 89. Iſa. li. 15.
[m] Pſ. cxlviii. 6. Iſa. liv. 9. Chap. xxxiii. 20.
[n] Chap. xxxiii. 22.
[o] Zech. xiv. 10.
[p] Neh. iii. 1.
[q] Zech. ii. 1.
[r] 2 Chron. xxv. 15. Neh. iii. 2
[s] Zech. xi 20.

Before Chriſt 606.

LORD, [t] it ſhall not be plucked up, nor thrown down any more for ever.

[t] Mat. xvi. 18.

v. 35—40. We have here,

1. The perpetuity of the church of Chriſt engaged for by him, whoſe omnipotence can enſure the fulfilment of the promiſes of his grace. That Lord of hoſts, whoſe power created, and whoſe arm upholds and guides the ordinances of heaven in regular ſucceſſion; who firſt ſhut up the ſea in bounds, and ſtill, when it rages, cauſes the foaming billows to ſubſide; who meted out the heavens, and laid the foundation of the deep; immenſe the ſpace, unfathomable the abyſs: this mighty God declares, that ſooner ſhall theſe heavenly orbs unruly leave their ſpheres, and the deep forſake its bed, to cover again the earth, than Iſrael ceaſe to be a nation: yea, ſooner ſhall impoſſibilities be practicable, the immenſity of ſpace be meaſured, and the foundations of the earth be ſearched out, by what ſupported, and how it is hung in air, than the ſeed of Iſrael be caſt off, ſo as to be utterly abandoned, notwithſtanding all they have done. All their iniquities and unbelief ſhall not prevent the covenant of grace from taking effect: and this is equally true of all the Iſrael of God, who, notwithſtanding all they have done, ſhall never periſh, but have everlaſting life; and in the worſt of times a remnant, according to the election of grace, ſhall ever remain.

2. The rebuilding and duration of the city of Jeruſalem, the figure of the church. Though it would quickly be laid in ruins, it ſhould be raiſed again as large as ever, and be holy unto the Lord; no more polluted with idols, but wholly devoted to the worſhip and ſervice of God. It ſhall not be plucked up, nor thrown down any more for ever; which, if applied to the city of Jeruſalem, can only ſignify that it ſhould continue a long while; or, ſpoken of the church of Chriſt, ſhall be literally fulfilled, againſt which the gates of hell ſhall never prevail.

CHAP. XXXII.

In this chapter, 1. Jeremiah is impriſoned for foretelling the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and the captivity of king Zedekiah, ver. 1—5. 2. He buys ſome land, by God's appointment, as an aſſurance that in due time a happy end ſhould be put to the preſent troubles, ver. 6—15. 3. He prays to God on this occaſion, ver. 16—25. 4. God ſends him a meſſage to deliver to the people, (1.) He muſt foretel the utter deſtruction of Judah and Jeruſalem for their ſins, ver. 26—35. But, (2.) At the ſame time aſſure them, that tho' the deſtruction was total, it ſhould not be final, ver. 36—44.

589.

1. THE word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD [a] in the tenth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, which was the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar. 2. For then the king of Babylon's army beſieged Jeruſalem: and Jeremiah the prophet [b] was ſhut up in [c] the court of the priſon, which was in the king of Judah's houſe. 3. For Zedekiah king of Judah had ſhut him up, ſaying, [d] Wherefore doſt thou propheſy, and ſay, Thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, [e] I will give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he ſhall take it. 4. And Zedekiah king of Judah ſhall not eſcape out of the hand of the Chaldeans, but ſhall ſurely [f] be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon, and ſhall ſpeak with him mouth to mouth, and his eyes ſhall behold his eyes. 5. And he ſhall lead Zedekiah to Babylon, and there ſhall he be until I viſit him, ſaith the LORD: though ye fight with the Chaldeans, [g] ye ſhall not proſper. 6. ¶ And Jeremiah ſaid, The word of the LORD came unto me, ſaying, 7. Behold, Hanameel the ſon of Shallum thine uncle, ſhall come unto thee, ſaying, Buy thee my field that is in Anathoth, for [h] the right of redemption is thine to buy it. 8. So Hanameel mine uncle's ſon came to me in the court of the priſon, according to the word of the LORD, and ſaid unto me, Buy my field, I pray thee, that is in Anathoth, which is in the country of Benjamin: for the right of inheritance is thine, and the redemption is thine, buy it for thyſelf: then I knew that this was the word of the LORD. 9. And I bought the field of Hanameel my uncle's ſon, that was in Anathoth, and weighed him the money, even † ſeventeen ſhekels of ſilver. 10. And I ‡ ſubſcribed the evidence, and ſealed it, and took witneſſes, and weighed him the money in the balances. 11. So I took the evidence of the purchaſe, both that which was ſealed according to the law and cuſtom, and that which was open.

[a] 2 Kings xxv. 1, 2.
[b] Mat. v. 12.
[c] Neh. iii. 25. Chap. xxxiii. 1. & xxxvii. 21. & xxxviii. 6. & xxxix. 14.
[d] Chap. xxxvi. 29.
[e] Chap. xxxiv. 2.
[f] Chap. xxxiv. 3. & lii. 9.
[g] Prov. xxi. 30.
[h] Lev. xxv. 24, 25. Ruth iv. 4.
† Or, ſeven ſhekels and ten pieces of ſilver.
‡ Heb. Wrote in the book.

Before Chriſt 589.

12. And I gave the evidence of the purchaſe unto Baruch the ſon of Neriah, the ſon of Maaſeiah, in the ſight of Hanameel my uncle's ſon, and in the preſence of the witneſſes that ſubſcribed the book of the purchaſe, before all the Jews that ſat in the court of the priſon. 13. ¶ And I charged Baruch before them, ſaying, 14. Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, Take theſe evidences, this evidence of the purchaſe, both which is ſealed, and this evidence which is open, and put them in an earthen veſſel, that they may continue many days. 15. For thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, [k] Houſes and fields, and vineyards ſhall be poſſeſſed again in this land.

[i] Iſa. viii. 2.
[k] Ver. 43.

v. 1—15. The fatal hour approached of Jeruſalem's deſtruction; already the Chaldean army ſurrounded the walls; the prophecies of Jeremiah that were before deſpiſed, now we ſhould have thought would carry conviction to every heart, and his advice be ſought and followed implicitly in the preſent emergency. How different the caſe!

1. Behold him a priſoner, ſhut up by the king's order in the court of the king's houſe; a place where probably the ſtate-priſoners were kept. The cauſe of his confinement was his declaration that Jeruſalem ſhould infallibly be taken; their deſperate reſiſtance againſt the beſiegers be fruitleſs; and Zedekiah himſelf attempt to eſcape in vain: he ſhould be ſeized, delivered up to the victorious king of Babylon, ſee his indignation, and hear him pronounce judgment upon him; be led into an ignominious captivity, and there abide, till death came as a kind viſitant to releaſe him from his miſeries. This prophecy, ſo far from humbling, exaſperated them againſt him, and leſt by his preaching he ſhould diſcourage the hearts of the people to ſurrender, they put him under this confinement, though not ſo rigorous but that he was allowed the air and company of his friends. Note, (1.) They who will go on God's meſſages muſt not be ſhocked at a priſon. (2.) Nothing will convince hardned ſinners: even when God's judgments begin to operate, they flatter themſelves they ſhall weather the ſtorm.

2. In the priſon he becomes a purchaſer. Hanameel, his uncle's ſon, had a field to diſpoſe of, and, as neareſt of kin, the right of redemption was in Jeremiah. The Lord let him know in the priſon, that an offer of ſelling it would be made to him, as happened, v. 2. and that it was his will he ſhould buy the land, which was in the ſuburbs of Anathoth, a city of the prieſts, and which one of them might lawfully transfer to another; or ſome inheritance by the mother's ſide, which Hanameel had a right to part with. The bargain is eaſily made, the money paid; the land conveyed with all the uſual formalities; the deeds conſigned to the care of Baruch, in the preſence of the witneſſes who ſubſcribed them, to be ſet in an earthen veſſel, and hid probably in the field: for though the deſtruction of the city and country by the Chaldeans was certain, and therefore the money might appear loſt; yet God aſſured him, on whoſe veracity he could depend, that the time would come, when every man's property would be reſtored, and houſes, fields, and vineyards be bought and ſold as uſual: and it was deſigned for an encouragement of the faith and hope of the people, when they ſaw the prophet himſelf acting in the full aſſurance of the truth he declared. Note, When miniſters ſhew themſelves influenced by the word they preach, and fully perſuaded of it, its effects will be more powerful on their hearers.

16. ¶ Now when I had delivered the evidence of the purchaſe unto Baruch the ſon of Neriah, I prayed unto the LORD, ſaying, 17. Ah, LORD God; behold, [l] thou haſt made the heaven and the earth by thy great power and ſtretched-out arm, and [m] there is nothing † too hard for thee. 18. Thou ſheweſt [n] loving-kindneſs unto thouſands, and recompenſeſt the iniquity of the fathers into the boſom of their children after them: the great, the mighty God, the LORD of hoſts is his name. 19. [o] Great in counſel, and mighty in work (for [p] thine eyes are open upon all the ways of the ſons of men, [q] to give every one according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings) 20. Which haſt ſet ſigns and wonders in the land of Egypt, even unto this day, and in Iſrael, and amongſt other men, and [r] haſt made thee a name, as at this day. 21. And [s] haſt brought forth thy people Iſrael out of the land of Egypt, [t] with ſigns and with wonders, and with a ſtrong hand, and with a ſtretched-out arm, and with great terror, 22. And haſt given them this land which thou didſt ſwear to their fathers to give them, [u] a land flowing with milk and honey. 23. And they came in and poſſeſſed it, [x] but they obeyed not thy voice, neither [l] Gen. i. 1. Pſ. cxlvi. 6.

[m] Gen. xviii. 14. Job xlii. 2. Ver. 27. Luke i. 37.
† Or, hid from thee.
[n] Ex. xx. 6. & xxxiv. 7. Deut. v. 10.
[o] Iſa. ix. 6. & xxviii. 29.
[p] Job xxxiv. 21. Pſal. xxxiii. 13. Prov. v. 21. Chap. xvi. 17.
[q] Pſ. lxii. 12. Chap. xvii. 10.
[r] Ex. ix. 16. Iſa. lxiii. 12.
[s] Ex. vi. 6. 2 Sam. vii. 23. 1 Chron. xvii. 21.
[t] Deut. iv. 34.
[u] Ex. iii. 8.
[x] Neh. ix. 26.

‡ Or engines of ſhot.

§ Or though.

walked in thy law, they have done nothing of all that thou commandedſt them to do: therefore thou haſt cauſed all this evil to come upon them. 24. Behold the ‡ mounts, they are come unto the city to take it, and the city is given into the hand of the Chaldeans that fight againſt it, becauſe of the ſword, and of the famine, and of the peſtilence; and what thou haſt ſpoken is come to paſs, and behold, thou ſeeſt it. 25. And thou haſt ſaid unto me, O LORD God, Buy thee the field for money, and take witneſſes: § for the city is given into the hand of the Chaldeans.

v. 16—25. Having tranſacted this buſineſs, and delivered the writings to Baruch's care, the prophet directs his prayer to God, grieved for the calamities impending, and in ſome perplexity how the deſolations ready to be accompliſhed on this people could correſpond with thoſe promiſes of their reſtoration.

1. He adores the infinite perfections of God: his almighty power, manifeſted in the amazing works of creation, which nothing can controul or reſiſt, v. 17. his boundleſs mercy, ſhewing loving-kindneſs to thouſands: his inflexible juſtice, in puniſhing ſin in thoſe who hate him, upon children's children, that copy after their fathers tranſgreſſions: his univerſal ſovereignty, the great, the mighty God, the Lord of hoſts, who doth whatſoever pleaſeth him, and whom all the armies of heaven and earth obey, v. 11. his infinite wiſdom; great in counſel, his deſigns planned with the moſt conſummate knowledge, and carried into execution with the moſt irreſiſtible energy. Omniſcient; he beholds all the ways of the ſons of men, and knoweth every device of their hearts: the eternal judge; who will in the day of recompenſe render to every man according to his works.

2. He recounts the wonders he had wrought for his people of old, evident in the plagues of Egypt, their deliverance from thence, and in all the diſpenſations of his providence towards them from that day, bringing them into Canaan, according to the promiſe made to their fathers, as well as in what he did among the nations around them; in all which he got to himſelf great glory, and appeared worthy of their higheſt praiſe. Note, The gracious dealings of God towards his people ſhould ever afford matter for our thanks, and encouragement to our faith.

3. He laments their diſobedience, as the cauſe of all the miſeries to which they were now expoſed. By a long train of rebellions they had brought their preſent evils upon themſelves, and the prophetic word, which they had diſregarded, began to receive its terrible accompliſhment. Behold, the beſiegers compaſs the city, and raiſe their mounts and batteries againſt it; ſo that their caſe was deſperate, the city is given into the hands of the Chaldeans.

4. He lays the doubts and perplexities of his mind before God. Thou haſt ſaid unto me, in this ruinous ſituation of affairs, Buy thee a field, and take witneſſes; and this ſeemed ſtrange, when the land was devoted to deſtruction. Note, (1.) God's providences ſometimes appear to contradict his promiſes. (2.) When we have God's orders, we have nothing to do but obey, and truſt him with the iſſue. (3.) When we are in the dark concerning God's diſpenſations, we may humbly by prayer beg to be taught of God.

[y] Num. xvi. 22.
[z] Ver. 17.
[a] Ver. 3.
[b] Chap. xxi. 10. xxxvii. 10.
[c] Chap. xix. 13.
† Heb. For my anger.
[d] Iſa. i. 4—6. Dan. ix. 8.
[e] Chap. ii. 27. & vii. 24.
[f] Chap. xxv. 3.

26. ¶ Then came the word of the LORD unto Jeremiah, ſaying, 27. Behold, I am the LORD, [y] the God of all fleſh: [z] Is there any thing too hard for me? 28. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, [a] I will give this city into the hand of the Chaldeans, and into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and he ſhall take it. 29. And the Chaldeans that fight againſt this city, ſhall come and [b] ſet fire on this city, and burn it, with the houſes [c] upon whoſe roofs they have offered incenſe unto Baal, and poured out drink-offerings unto other gods to provoke me to anger. 30. For the children of Iſrael, and the children of Judah have only done evil before me from their youth: for the children of Iſrael have only provoked me to anger with the work of their hands, ſaith the LORD. 31. For this city hath been to me, † as a provocation of mine anger, and of my fury, from the day that they built it, even unto this day; that I ſhould remove it from before my face: 32. Becauſe of all the evil of the children of Iſrael, and of the children of Judah, which they have done to provoke me to anger, [d] they, their kings, their princes, their prieſts, and their prophets, and the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jeruſalem. 33. And they have turned unto me [e] the back, and not the face; though I taught them, [f] riſing up early, and teaching them, yet they have not hearkned to receive inſtruction. 34. But they ſet their abominations in the houſe (which is called by my name) to defile it. 35. And they built the high places of Baal, which are in the valley of the ſon of Hinnom, to [g] cauſe their ſons and their daughters to paſs through the fire unto [h] Molech, which I commanded them not, neither came it into my mind, that they ſhould do this abomination to cauſe Judah to ſin. 36. And now therefore thus ſaith the LORD the God of Iſrael concerning this city, whereof ye ſay, [i] It ſhall be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon, by the ſword, and by the famine, and by the peſtilence: 37. Behold, [k] I will gather them out of all countries whither I have driven them in mine anger and in my fury, and in great wrath; and I will bring them again unto this place, and I will cauſe [l] them to dwell ſafely. 38. And [m] they ſhall be my people, and I will be their God. 39. And [n] I will give them one heart, [o] and one way, that they may fear me ‡ for ever, for the good of them, and of their children after them. 40. And [p] I will make an everlaſting covenant with them, that I will not turn away from them to do them good; but I will put my fear in their hearts, that [q] they ſhall not depart from me. 41. Yea, [r] I will rejoice over them to do them good, and [s] I will plant them in this land § aſſuredly, with my whole heart, and with my whole ſoul. 42. For thus ſaith the LORD, Like as I have brought all this great evil upon this people, ſo will I bring upon them all the good that I have promiſed them. 43. And fields ſhall be bought in this land, whereof ye ſay, [t] It is deſolate without man or beaſt, it is given into the hand of the Chaldeans. 44. Men ſhall buy fields for money, and ſubſcribe evidences, and ſeal them, and take witneſſes [u] in the land of Benjamin, and in the places about Jeruſalem, and in the cities of Judah, and in the cities of the mountains, and in the cities of the valley, and in the cities of the ſouth: for [x] I will cauſe their captivity to return, ſaith the LORD.

[g] Chap. vii. 31. & xix. 5.
[h] Lev. xviii. 21. 1 Kings xi. 33.
[i] Ver. 24.
[k] Deut. xxx. 3. Chap. xxiii. 3. & xxix. 14. & xxxi. 10. Ezek. xxxvii. 21.
[l] Chap. xxxiii. 16.
[m] Chap. xxiv. 7. & xxx. 22. & xxxi. 33.
[n] Ezek. xi. 19. & xxxvi. 26.
[o] Chap. vi. 16. Eph. iv. 3.
‡ Heb. All days.
[p] Chap xxxi. 31.
[q] Pſ. lxxx. 18. 1 John ii. 19.
[r] Deut. xxx. 9. Zeph. iii. 17.
[s] Chap. xxiv. 6. Am. ix. 15.
§ Heb. In truth and ſtability.
[t] Chap. xxxiii. 10.
[u] Chap. xvii. 26. & xxxiii. 13.
[x] Chap. xxxiii. 7, 11.

v. 26—44. We have here an immediate anſwer given to the prophet's prayer, and his mind fully ſatisfied. The deſtruction wrought by the Chaldeans is perfectly conſiſtent with the promiſe, that the land ſhould be reinhabited, and fields and vineyards again be bought and ſold as before.

1. The deſolations of the city and nation are determined by that almighty Jehovah, who is the God of all fleſh, weak and unable to reſiſt him; corrupt, and therefore provoking his wrath. Nothing is too hard for him to do; he can ſave or deſtroy againſt all human probabilities. This impregnable fortreſs, as it ſeems, muſt totter, ſince ſuch is his decree, before the arms of the Chaldean monarch; the city and temple be burnt with fire, with all the houſes where incenſe had been offered to Baal; and this the juſt judgment due to their aggravated provocations. From their youth, the time when firſt they were formed into a people; or from the earlieſt infancy, corruption being in our nature from the womb, they had tranſgreſſed, and by their idolatries provoked God's anger, and ſeemed as if they ſtudied to offend him by their daring impiety, v. 29, 30. Ever ſince the day Jeruſalem was built, either by the Jebuſites, or from the days of David, who ſo greatly beautified and enlarged it, the ſins of the inhabitants have been a continual provocation, for which the Lord had long ſince reſolved to remove them from before his face into a miſerable captivity, v. 31. All orders and degrees of men were involved in the common guilt, from the loweſt to the king on the throne; and even the prieſts and prophets, who ſhould have been the reprovers of others by their word and example, were chief in the tranſgreſſion, v. 32. In vain God ſent them warning upon warning; they turned a deaf ear to his faithful prophets, and refuſed to bend either under the rebukes of his word, or the corrections of his providence, v. 33. Nay, to ſuch a height of effrontery did they carry their impiety, that even in that temple built for his honour, they ſet up their hated idols, v. 34. and with unnatural cruelty, as well as horrid profaneneſs, burnt even their children in the fire to Molech; or at leaſt cauſed them to paſs between the flames, as a luſtration and dedication to the idol's ſervice. For ſuch ſins no marvel judgment came upon them to the uttermoſt; and that after the deſolating ſcourges of the ſword, the famine, and peſtilence had waſted them, the remnant was ſent into a miſerable captivity.

2. Notwithſtanding, God hath mercy ſtill in ſtore. Though the city is given up, and the land deſolate without man or beaſt, there ſhall be a door of hope opened; for in the worſt of times we ſhould not deſpair. Many great and precious promiſes are here delivered.

[1.] They ſhall return, after ſeventy years, from all the countries whither in anger God had diſperſed them, and dwell in peace, under the divine protection, in their own land, acknowleged again of God as his people, and profeſſing their fidelity and allegiance to him as their God.

[2.] God will make with them an everlaſting covenant, the tenor of which is moſt amazingly gracious, and which ſtands faſt not only with them but with all the Iſrael of God. (1.) He promiſes to put his fear into their hearts, the principle of all true wiſdom and godlineſs, v. 39. Note, A heart to fear God muſt be his own gift. (2.) He will give them one heart and one way, a ſingle eye to God's glory; fervent charity among themſelves; one path of grace and holineſs in which they ſhould walk, and leave their bleſſing and good examples as the beſt inheritance to children's children. Note, All who have truly given up their hearts to Chriſt, whatever leſſer differences may ſubſiſt between them, will ever be united in love, and walk in one way of holineſs as Chriſt alſo walked. (3.) He will never turn away from doing them good. Whatever aſpect his providences may have, all ſhall work together for their benefit; the riches of his grace ſhall miniſter a conſtant and abundant ſupply for their neceſſities; and, whilſt he will never leave or forſake them, he will take care they ſhall never leave or forſake him, kept by his power, through faith, unto ſalvation. Note, If the final perſeverance of the ſaints depended on themſelves, their ſtability would reſt on a precarious foundation; but, bleſſed be God, it is in better hands: the faithfulneſs of the promiſe ſecures, amidſt all dangers and difficulties, the certainty of the event.

[3.] His temporal, as his ſpiritual mercies, ſhall be great. God will plant them firmly in their own land; his heart and ſoul ſhall be, as it were, firmly engaged in it, ſuch delight will he take to do them good. And this ſhall be as ſurely accompliſhed, as the evil which he had brought upon them.

[4.] Then the whole country ſhould be inhabited, property ſecure, eſtates valuable, and no land want a purchaſer; ſo that Jeremiah may be at reſt reſpecting that which he hath bought; and it is the earneſt of what ſhall in that day be the caſe: it will then be found that the money is not laid out unprofitably, when the Lord ſhall thus cauſe their captivity to return. Some apply this ſpiritually to the deliverance from the bondage of corruption, and thoſe purchaſed poſſeſſions provided for the redeemed in the heavenly Canaan.

CHAP. XXXIII.

The ſcope of this chapter is much the ſame with that of the foregoing. It is here promiſed, 1. That the city ſhall be rebuilt, ver. 1—6. 2. That the captives having their ſins pardoned, ſhall be reſtored, ver. 7, 8. 3. That this ſhall redound very much to the glory of God, ver. 9. 4. That the country ſhall have both joy and plenty, ver. 10—14. 5. That a way ſhall be made for the coming of the Meſſiah, ver. 15, 16. 6. That the houſe of David, Levi, and Iſrael ſhall flouriſh again, and be eſtabliſhed in the kingdom of Chriſt; a goſpel miniſtry and the goſpel church ſhall continue while the world ſtands, ver. 17—26.

1. MOreover, the word of the LORD came unto Jeremiah the ſecond time, (while he was yet [a] ſhut up in the court of the priſon) ſaying, 2. Thus ſaith the LORD, [b] the maker thereof, the LORD that formed it, to eſtabliſh it, the LORD is his name. 3. [c] Call unto me, and I will anſwer thee, and [d] ſhew thee great and † mighty things, which thou knoweſt not. 4. For thus ſaith the LORD, the God of Iſrael, concerning the houſes of this city, and concerning the houſes of the kings of Judah, [e] which are thrown down by the mounts, and by the ſword. 5. They come to fight with the Chaldeans, but it is to fill them with the dead bodies of men, whom I have ſlain in mine anger, and in my fury, and for all whoſe wickedneſs I have hid my face from this city. 6. Behold, I will bring it health and cure, and I will cure them, and [f] will reveal unto them the abundance of peace and truth. 7. And [g] I will cauſe the captivity of Judah, and the captivity of Iſrael to return, and [h] will build them as at the firſt. 8. And [i] I will cleanſe them from all their iniquity, whereby they have ſinned againſt me, and [k] I will pardon all their iniquities whereby they have ſinned, and whereby they have tranſgreſſed againſt me. 9. ¶ And [l] it ſhall be to me a name of joy, a praiſe and an honour before all the nations of the earth, which ſhall hear all the good that I do unto them: and [m] they ſhall fear and tremble for all the goodneſs, and for all the proſperity that I procure unto it.

[a] Chap. xxxii. 2.
[b] Iſa. xxxvii. 26.
[c] Ezek. xxxvi. 37.
[d] Iſa. xlviii. 6.
† Or hidden.
[e] Chap. xxxii. 24.
[f] Pſ. lxxxv. 8.
[g] Iſa. xi. 12. Chap. xxxii. 44. Hoſ. i. 11.
[h] Iſa. i. 26. Chap. xxiv. 6. & xxxi. 4.
[i] Ezek. xxxvi. 25. Joel iii. 21. Zech. xiii. 1. Heb. ix. 14.
[k] Chap. xxxi. 34. Mic. vii. 18.
[l] Chap. xiii. 11.
[m] Iſa. lx. 5. Phil. ii. 12.

v. 1—9. Jeremiah ſtill continued under confinement, but God's viſits made the prophet's priſon a more deſirable place than the palace of Zedekiah. The ſecond time a meſſage of peace is ſent by him, to encourage the drooping hopes of the people ready to fall under their enemies, and ſink into deſpair.

1. The prophecy is from the Lord, whoſe power is able to accompliſh all his promiſes; the maker and former of the earth, and all things therein; who firſt eſtabliſhed, and when he pleaſes can rebuild, his Zion. Jehovah is his name, ſelf-ſufficient, and faithful to his word.

2. Though God promiſes, the prophet muſt in prayer intercede for the fulfilment. Call upon me, and I will anſwer thee, for promiſes do not ſuperſede, but encourage our ſupplications, and ſhew thee great and mighty things, which thou knoweſt not; either the ſtrange deliverance of the people from Babylon, when their ſituation ſeemed deſperate, an event no human foreſight could diſcover; or the greater wonders of goſpel-grace, of which this temporal redemption was the figure.

3. Notwithſtanding their preſent miſeries, their houſes, even thoſe of their kings and nobles, battered down; their auxiliaries, or the beſieged, ſlain under the ruins; or thoſe which remained filled, through famine and peſtilence, with the dead corpſes of thoſe who were ſlain in God's anger becauſe of their wickedneſs; yet deplorable as their ſituation is, it is not deſperate: Behold, I will bring it health and cure, reſtore their deſolations; I will reveal unto them the abundance of peace and truth; peace to enjoy their bleſſings, and truth, the true worſhip of God and fidelity between man and man being reſtored: and I will cauſe the captivity of Judah and Iſrael to return; many of the other tribes returning to Judea from Babylon, with thoſe of Judah and Benjamin; and I will cleanſe them from all their iniquity, the cauſe of their ſufferings; both pardoning their guilt, and delivering them from the power of ſin. And it ſhall be to me a name of joy, a praiſe, and an honour before all nations; God would glorify himſelf in ſhewing them ſuch mercy, which would be attended with the moſt bleſſed effects; their proſperity not breeding ſecurity and neglect of God, but engaging them more faithfully to ſerve him, and making them jealous of offending a God ſo gracious. And this was ſtill more eminently fulfilled by the coming of the Meſſiah; who, as the Sun of Righteouſneſs, aroſe with healing in his wings; Peace was eſtabliſhed by him between God and fallen man, and abundance of peace diffuſed in the ſinner's conſcience. Truth, the only true way of approaching God, and walking ſo as to pleaſe him, was by him revealed; then the dreadful captivity of ſin was looſed, and the ſouls of men delivered from the bondage of corruption. In a dying Saviour's blood a fountain was opened, that cleanſeth from all ſin; and now reſcued from the power, as well as guilt of their iniquities, the people of Jeſus appear pleaſing in his ſight, an honour to their profeſſion; and engaged by all the goodneſs they have taſted, with godly jealouſy and fear to work out their ſalvation, diligent to pleaſe, and careful not to offend their merciful Saviour and reconciled God. Bleſſed and happy are they who experience this great redemption, begun in preſent pardon, peace, grace and holineſs; they ſhall ſee it ſhortly compleated in glory everlaſting.

10. Thus ſaith the LORD, Again there ſhall be heard in this place ([n] which ye ſay ſhall be deſolate without man and without beaſt, even in the cities of Judah, and in the ſtreets of Jeruſalem, that are deſolate without man and without inhabitant, and without beaſt) 11. [o] The voice of joy, and the voice of gladneſs, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, the voice of them that ſhall ſay, [p] Praiſe the LORD of hoſts, for the LORD is good, for his mercy endureth for ever, and of them that ſhall bring the ſacrifice of praiſe into the houſe of the LORD; for [q] I will cauſe to return the captivity of the land, as at the firſt, ſaith the LORD. 12. Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, Again in this place which is deſolate without man and without beaſt, and in all the cities thereof, ſhall be an habitation of [r] ſhepherds cauſing their flocks to lie down. 13. [s] In the cities of the mountains, in the cities of the vale, and in the cities of the ſouth, and in the land of Benjamin, and in the places about Jeruſalem, and in the cities of Judah ſhall the flocks [t] paſs again under the hands of him that telleth them, ſaith the LORD. 14. [u] Behold, the days come, ſaith the LORD, that I will perform that good thing which I have promiſed unto the houſe of Iſrael, and to the houſe of Judah. 15. ¶ In thoſe days, and at that time will I cauſe [x] the Branch of righteouſneſs to grow up unto David, and [y] he ſhall execute judgment and righteouſneſs in the land. 16. [z] In thoſe days ſhall Judah be ſaved, and Jeruſalem ſhall dwell ſafely: and this is the name wherewith ſhe ſhall be called, The LORD our Righteouſneſs.

[n] Chap. xxxii. 43.
[o] Hoſ. ii. 15. Zech. x. 7.
[p] 1 Chron. xvi. 8, 34. 2 Chron. vii. 3. Pſal. cxxxvi. 1. Iſa. xii. 4.
[q] Ver. 7.
[r] Chap. xxxi. 24.
[s] Chap. xvii. 26. & xxxii. 44.
[t] Lev. xxvii. 32.
[u] Chap. xxiii. 5. & xxxi. 31.
[x] Iſa. iv. 2. & xi. 1. Chap. xxiii. 5. Zech. iii. 8. & vi. 12.
[y] Pſ. lxxii. 2. Iſa. xi. 4.
[z] Chap. xxiii. 6.

v. 10—16. We have here farther bleſſings promiſed to the people of God.

Before Chriſt 589.

1. The voice of joy ſhall return to Zion. The deſolations under which it had lain made many abandon themſelves to deſpair of ever ſeeing the country raiſed from its ruins, but God will again repleniſh Jeruſalem and the cities of Judah with multitudes of inhabitants; then the bridal ſongs ſhall be heard, and the more delightful ſounds of ſacred melody echo through the courts of the temple, when this freſh inſtance of his aſtoniſhing goodneſs would make them with ſacred rapture repeat the well known pſalm, where the burden of each verſe is, "For "his mercy endureth for ever;" and theſe moſt pleaſing ſacrifices of praiſe be offered without ceaſing. This may alſo be referred to the times of the goſpel, the preaching of which would diffuſe the greateſt joy and gladneſs, and awaken the warmeſt praiſes for the infinite mercies of redeeming love, when all other ſacrifices ſhould ceaſe; but the ſpiritual ſacrifices of praiſe ſhall never ceaſe; begun in the church on earth, continued in heaven to eternity.

2. Plenty ſhall fill their land. The long deſerted fields ſhall now again be covered with bleating flocks, the ſhepherds in full ſecurity feeding them, and all the land over-ſpread with cattle, both mountains and vallies, paſſing under the hands of him that telleth them, that none may be lacking. Myſtically this may be interpreted of the miniſters of Chriſt, the ſhepherds, and his redeemed people, the flock of his paſture, gathered out from all nations; vaſt in multitude, feeding ſecurely under the divine protection, known and numbered by him, and not one found wanting of all the Father hath given unto him.

3. Greater than all temporal mercies, the divine Meſſiah is promiſed. Long he had been expected as the hope of his Iſrael, and now the fulneſs of time approaches when he ſhall be revealed. In thoſe days, and at that time, appointed in the eternal councils, will I cauſe the Branch of Righteouſneſs to grow up unto David; the Meſſiah, the great Author of all Righteouſneſs, and raiſed up to ſet on the throne of his father David; and he ſhall execute judgment and righteouſneſs in the land; all judgment being committed to him, and in righteouſneſs he will diſcharge the truſt committed to him, executing vengeance on the enemies of his people, vindicating them from wrong, and juſtifying them from every accuſation of ſin or Satan. In thoſe days ſhall Judah, the choſen ſeed, be ſaved from wrath and hell, and all the powers of Satan, corruption, and the grave, with a certain and everlaſting ſalvation; and Jeruſalem ſhall dwell ſafely, delivered from the fear of every foe, and no more under condemnation; enjoying peace with God, and in their conſciences, which no enemy can diſturb or take away: and this is the name wherewith ſhe ſhall be called, The Lord our Righteouſneſs; his church being joined to Chriſt in an everlaſting covenant, all things are hers; ſhe bears his name, his righteouſneſs is imputed to her, ſhe is made partaker of a divine nature, and ſtands compleat in him, righteous as he is righteous, 1 John iii. 7.

† Heb. There ſhall not be cut off from David.

[a] 2 Sam. vii. 16. 1 Kings ii. 4. Pſ. lxxxix. 29, 36.

[b] Iſa. liv. 9. Pſ. lxxxix. 37. Ver. 25. Chap. xxxi. 36.

[c] Iſa. ix. 6.

[d] Gen. xiii. 15. & xv. 5. & xxii. 17. Chap. xxxi. 37.

[e] Ver. 20.

[f] Ver. 7, 11.

17. ¶ For thus ſaith the LORD, † David ſhall never [a] want a man to ſit upon the throne of the houſe of Iſrael. 18. Neither ſhall the prieſts the Levites, want a man before me to offer burnt-offerings, and to kindle meat-offerings, and to do ſacrifice continually. 19. ¶ And the word of the LORD came unto Jeremiah, ſaying, 20. Thus ſaith the LORD, [b] If you can break my covenant of the day, and my covenant of the night, and that there ſhould not be day and night in their ſeaſon: 21. Then may alſo my covenant be broken with David my ſervant, [c] that he ſhould not have a ſon to reign upon his throne, and with the Levites the prieſts, my miniſters. 22. As [d] the hoſt of heaven cannot be numbred, neither the ſand of the ſea meaſured: ſo will I multiply the ſeed of David my ſervant, and the Levites that miniſter unto me. 23. Moreover, the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, ſaying, 24. Conſidereſt thou not what this people have ſpoken, ſaying, The two families which the LORD hath choſen, he hath even caſt them off? thus they have deſpiſed my people, that they ſhould be no more a nation before them. 25. Thus ſaith the LORD, [e] If my covenant be not with day and night, and if I have not appointed the ordinances of heaven and earth: 26. Then will I caſt away the ſeed of Jacob, and David my ſervant, ſo that I will not take any of his ſeed to be rulers over the ſeed of Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob: for [f] I will cauſe their captivity to return, and have mercy on them.

v. 17—26. In the former verſe, the branch from the root of Jeſſe was promiſed. Here the perpetuity of his kingdom is enſured.

1. Chriſt's kingdom will be an everlaſting kingdom, for in him alone can this promiſe be fulfilled. The houſe of David is long ſince extinct, or at leaſt his deſcendants are utterly unknown, and for near two thouſand years have been without the ſhadow of ſovereignty; but Jeſus reigns, and ſhall for ever ſit on the throne of glory, whilſt ſun and moon endureth; and ſooner ſhall the covenant of day and night be broken, than the covenant of redemption fail, which is eſtabliſhed with this Son of David.

Before Chriſt 589.

2. He will have an everlaſting prieſthood, v. 18. of which the Aaronical prieſthood was typical. This hath long ſince been aboliſhed, but Chriſt ever liveth to make interceſſion for us, and having offered one ſacrifice for ſin, is gone up into the preſence of God, to plead continually the efficacy of that oblation once offered, and in virtue thereof to obtain eternal redemption for his people; and this ſeems rather the ſenſe of the prophecy, than either the application of it to the Chriſtian miniſtry, or to believers in general, who are indeed a holy prieſthood ordained to offer up ſpiritual ſacrifices, and which will be continued to the end of time.

3. God will multiply his ſeed beyond the ſtars of heaven, or the ſand of the ſea ſhore, v. 22. And the Levites that miniſter unto me, the faithful ſo called, becauſe all of them are his miniſters; conſecrated for him, and offering continually before him, the ſacrifices of prayer and praiſe.

4. His church ſhall never fail, or his redeemed people periſh. During their captivity, many of the unbelieving Jews in deſpondence, or their enemies in triumph, were ready to conclude that the Lord had caſt off the two families he had choſen, the houſe of David and Aaron, or the two nations of Iſrael and Judah; thus they have deſpiſed my people, as if they were abandoned, and no more likely to be a nation; ſwallowed up by their conquerors, and ready to ſink into oblivion. But ſooner ſhall the ſucceſſion of day and night be at an end, or the revolutions of the heavenly bodies be interrupted, than the ſeed of Jacob be caſt off, or a ruler of their own nation be wanting to reign over them; when God, as he hath decreed, ſhall in mercy turn their captivity. What God did in bringing his people from Babylon but imperfectly anſwers the greatneſs of this promiſe; and therefore we muſt look farther to the church of his redeemed, the Iſrael of God; who, whatever ſtate of ſufferings they may for a while be expoſed to, ſhall ſtill be preſerved under the government of Chriſt their king: their captivity from the bondage of corruption God will cauſe to return; and though under Antichriſtian tyranny they may groan, God will break the yoke from off their necks; ſo that neither men nor devils ſhall ever be able to root out their memorial from the earth. We ſee the church of Chriſt hath, in virtue of this promiſe, ſtood the fierceſt fires of perſecution during more than ſeventeen hundred years, and we may reſt aſſured ſhe will not only be preſerved to the end, and every member thereof, but that her latter end ſhall have great increaſe, and all her enemies be made her footſtool.

CHAP. XXXIV.

In this chapter we have two meſſages which God ſent by Jeremiah. (1.) One to foretel the fate of Zedekiah king of Judah, that he ſhould fall into the hands of the king of Babylon, and live and die in captivity, ver. 1—7. (2.) Another to read the doom both of prince and people for bringing back their ſervants into bondage, whom they had releaſed according to the law, ver. 8—11. therefore God will bring the Chaldean army upon them again, when they began to hope they were got clear of them, ver. 12—22.

[a] 2 Kings xxv. 1, &c. Chap. xxxix. 1, &c. & lii. 1.

† Heb. The dominion of his hand.

[b] Chap. xxi. 10. & xxxii. 3.

[c] Chap. xxxii. 29.

[d] Chap. xxxii. 4.

‡ Heb. His mouth ſhall ſpeak to thy mouth.

[e] 2 Chron. xvi. 14. & xxi. 19.

[f] Chap. xxii. 18.

1. THE word which came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, ([a] when Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and all his army, and all the kingdoms of the earth † of his dominion, and all the people fought againſt Jeruſalem, and againſt all the cities thereof) ſaying, 2. Thus ſaith the LORD the God of Iſrael, Go, and ſpeak to Zedekiah king of Judah, and tell him, Thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, [b] I will give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and [c] he ſhall burn it with fire. 3. And [d] thou ſhalt not eſcape out of his hand, but ſhalt ſurely be taken, and delivered into his hand, and thine eyes ſhall behold the eyes of the king of Babylon, and ‡ he ſhall ſpeak with thee mouth to mouth, and thou ſhalt go to Babylon. 4. Yet hear the word of the LORD, O Zedekiah king of Judah, Thus ſaith the LORD of thee, Thou ſhalt not die by the ſword; 5. But thou ſhalt die in peace, and with [e] the burnings of thy fathers the former kings which were before thee, ſo ſhall they burn odours for thee, and [f] they will lament thee, ſaying, Ah lord: for I have pronounced the word, ſaith the LORD. 6. Then Jeremiah the prophet ſpake all theſe words unto Zedekiah king of Judah in Jeruſalem, 7. When the king of Babylon's army fought againſt Jeruſalem, and againſt all the cities of Judah that were left, againſt Lachiſh, and againſt Azekah: for theſe defenced cities remained of the cities of Judah.

Before Chriſt 605.

v. 1—7. This prophecy in its date precedes the former, being, it ſeems, the cauſe of Jeremiah's commitment to the court of the priſon, chap. xxxii. 2—5. It was directed particularly to Zedekiah, and, though a king, the prophet faithfully delivered it, v. 6. for they who will be true to their truſt muſt not flatter nor fear the greateſt. Matters were now brought to a very deſperate point: but two cities, Azekah and Lachiſh, remained to Judah; and theſe, as well as Jeruſalem, were now inveſted by the army of Nebuchadnezzar, v. 7. yet Zedekiah and the people perſiſted in their obſtinacy, and refuſed to ſurrender. Hereupon,

1. Their doom is read. Jeruſalem ſhould be burnt to the ground, himſelf made a priſoner, and, though attempting to eſcape, ſhall be ſeized and brought to the king of Babylon, and carried by him into a miſerable captivity: the juſt puniſhment of his rebellion againſt Nebuchadnezzar, and diſobedience to the warnings of God.

2. A gleam of mercy breaks through the gloom. God aſſures him, and his word cannot fail, he ſhall not be put to death, but die in peace, on his bed; treated kindly by the king of Babylon; or, it may be, in peace with God, his ſufferings in Babylon having been bleſſed to bring about his repentance; and, though a captive, he ſhould be honourably interred, with the uſual reſpect paid to the kings of Judah, and with the lamentations of the people, deeply afflicted with his loſs. Note, They who at laſt, though late, return to God, will find peace with him; and, however ſevere their afflictions may have been, they will have reaſon to bleſs God for them as their chief mercies. The priſon that leads to repentance is far preferable to the palace that is the ſcene of iniquity.

† Heb. Cut.
g Ex. xxi. 2. Deut. xv. 12.
h Neh. v. 11.
589.
i Ex. xxi. 2. & xxiii. 10. Deut. xv. 12.
‡ Or hath ſold himſelf.
§ Heb. To day.
|| Heb. Upon which my name is called. Chap. 7. 10.
k Lev. xix. 12.
l Judg. i. 7. Mat. vii. 2. 1 Theſſ. iv. 6.
† Heb. For a removing.
m Deut. xxviii. 64. Chap. xxix. 18.
n Gen. xv. 10, 17.
o Chap. vii. 33. & xvi. 4. & xix. 7.
p Chap. xxxvii. 5, 11.
q Chap. xxxvii. 8, 10.

8. ¶ This is the word that came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, after that the king Zedekiah had † made a covenant with all the people which were at Jeruſalem, to proclaim [g] liberty unto them; 9. [h] That every man ſhould let his man-ſervant, and every man his maid-ſervant, being an Hebrew or an Hebreweſs, go free, that none ſhould ſerve himſelf of them, to wit, of a Jew his brother. 10. Now when all the princes, and all the people which had entred into the covenant, heard that every one ſhould let his man-ſervant, and every one his maid-ſervant go free, that none ſhould ſerve themſelves of them any more, then they obeyed and let them go. 11. But afterwards they turned and cauſed the ſervants and the handmaids, whom they had let go free, to return, and brought them into ſubjection for ſervants and for handmaids. 12. ¶ Therefore the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah from the LORD, ſaying, 13. Thus ſaith the LORD, the God of Iſrael, I made a covenant with your fathers in the day that I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, out of the houſe of bondmen, ſaying, 14. [i] At the end of ſeven years, let ye go every man his brother an Hebrew, which ‡ hath been ſold unto thee; and when he hath ſerved thee ſix years, thou ſhalt let him go free from thee: but your fathers hearkned not unto me, neither inclined their ear. 15. And ye were § now turned, and had done right in my ſight, in proclaiming liberty every man to his neighbour, and ye had made a covenant before me in the houſe || which is called by my name. 16. But ye turned [k] and polluted my name, and cauſed every man his ſervant, and every man his handmaid, whom he had ſet at liberty at their pleaſure, to return, and brought them into ſubjection, to be unto you for ſervants and for handmaids. 17. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD, Ye have not hearkned unto me in proclaiming liberty every one to his brother, and every man to his neighbour: behold, [l] I proclaim a liberty for you, ſaith the LORD, to the ſword, to the peſtilence, and to the famine, and I will make you † to be [m] removed into all the kingdoms of the earth. 18. And I will give the men that have tranſgreſſed my covenant, which have not performed the words of the covenant which they had made before me, when [n] they cut the calf in twain, and paſſed between the parts thereof, 19. The princes of Judah, and the princes of Jeruſalem, the eunuchs, and the prieſts, and all the people of the land which paſſed between the parts of the calf, 20. I will even give them into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them that ſeek their life; and [o] their dead bodies ſhall be for meat unto the fowls of the heaven, and to the beaſts of the earth. 21. And Zedekiah king of Judah, and his princes, will I give into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them that ſeek their life, and into the hand of the king of Babylon's army [p] which are gone up from you. 22. [q] Behold I will command, ſaith the LORD, and cauſe them to return to this city, and they ſhall fight againſt it, and take it, and burn it with fire, and I will make the cities of Judah a deſolation without an inhabitant.

v. 8—22. This prophecy was delivered during that interval when Nebuchadnezzar had raiſed the ſiege of Jeruſalem to go to meet the army of Egypt which was advancing to relieve it.

1. The occaſion of the prophecy was their unjuſt and hypocritical conduct towards their ſervants. The law had enjoined them every ſeventh year to releaſe their brethren, who for poverty or debt had been ſold for bondmen, in gratitude for their own deliverance from Egypt. But this, amongſt their other ſins, their fathers had neglected, v. 14. and they kept them ſtill in ſervitude, notwithſtanding the year of releaſe was paſſed: and, cuſtom having authoriſed the evil, it was become general. But, when the Chaldean army beſieged the city, as the prophets no doubt had before rebuked them for ſuch an avowed diſobedience to the law, they now laid the matter to heart, convinced of the evil of the practice, and an edict was publiſhed by the king, princes, and people, for a general releaſe; and, to confirm it, they made a ſolemn covenant in the temple to abide by God's law for the future, paſſing between the parts of the divided calf, as imprecating God's wrath, that they might be thus cut aſunder, if they failed of performing their engagement. In conſequence of this, all their ſervants and handmaids were ſet free, as was right in God's ſight, v. 15. but when the ſiege was raiſed, and the ſtorm ſeemed to be blown over, they again forced them to return to ſervitude, committing a moſt flagrant piece of injuſtice to them, playing a part moſt hypocritical and affronting to God, and juſtly bringing upon their heads the curſe of a broken covenant. Note, (1.) The reformations which fear and danger make are ſeldom ſincere or abiding. (2.) The moſt ſolemn bonds and vows will not long reſtrain thoſe whoſe hearts are not right with God. (3.) If God's reprieves are abuſed, and made an encouragement to perſiſt in the ways of wickedneſs, he will then proceed to execution; for none ever yet hardned their hearts againſt him and proſpered.

2. God pronounces judgment upon them for this treacherous dealing. He diſmiſſes them from his ſervice and protection, v. 17. devotes them to famine, peſtilence, and the ſword; the men who have tranſgreſſed the covenant ſhall be as the calf they divided, even the princes of Judah and Jeruſalem, the eunuchs, the prieſts, and all the people of the Land, who had ſo ſolemnly ſworn to obſerve it, v. 18, 19. Given up into the hands of the Chaldeans, they are doomed to a miſerable death, their carcaſes unburied, ſhall be caſt as dung upon the earth, and be meat for the beaſts and birds. Nor may they think, becauſe the king of Babylon is gone up from them, that they are ſafe. He ſhall return infallibly, beſiege, ſtorm, and burn Jeruſalem, with all the other cities of Judah, ſpread deſolation on the land, and leave it as an uninhabited wilderneſs, dragging Zedekiah and his princes, with the remnant that eſcape the ſword, into an ignominious captivity, to know themſelves the miſeries of that ſervitude which they had made ſo heavy to their brethren. Note, (1.) The ſinner's ſecurity is a ſad preſage of his deſtruction. (2.) Promiſing beginnings, to which the end does not correſpond, only bring more aggravated guilt, and ſurer deſtruction. Apoſtates, who were once profeſſors, ſhall receive greater damnation.

CHAP. XXXV.

A variety of methods is tried to awaken the Jews to a ſenſe of their ſin, and to bring them to repentance and reformation. (1.) He ſets before them the unſhaken perſeverance of the family of the Rechabites in their obedience to the commands of Jonadab their anceſtor, ver. 1—11. (2.) With this he aggravates their diſobedience to God, and contempt of his precepts, ver. 12—15. (3.) He foretels the judgments of God upon the Jews for their impious diſobedience, ver. 16, 17. (4.) He aſſures the Rechabites of the bleſſing of God upon them, for their pious obedience to their father, ver. 18, 19.

606.
a 2 Kings x. 15. 1 Chron. ii. 55.

1. THE word which came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, in the days of Jehoiakim, the ſon of Joſiah king of Judah, ſaying, 2. Go unto the houſe of [a] the Rechabites, and ſpeak unto them, and bring them into the houſe of the LORD, into one of the chambers, and give them wine to drink. 3. Then I took Jaazaniah, the ſon of Jeremiah, the ſon of Habaziniah, and his brethren, and all his ſons, and the whole houſe of the Rechabites. 4. And I brought them into the houſe of the LORD, into the chamber of the ſons of Hanan, the ſon of Igdaliah a man of God, which was by the chamber of the princes, which was above the chamber of Maaſeiah the ſon of Shallum, the keeper of the door. 5. And I ſet before the ſons of the houſe of the Rechabites pots full of wine, and cups, and I ſaid unto them, Drink ye wine. 6. But they ſaid, We will drink no wine: for [b] Jonadab the ſon of Rechab our father commanded us, ſaying, Ye ſhall drink no wine, neither ye, nor your ſons for ever. 7. Neither ſhall ye build houſe, nor ſow ſeed, nor plant vineyard, nor have any: but all your days ye ſhall dwell in tents, [c] that ye may live many days in the land where ye be ſtrangers. 8. [d] Thus have we obeyed the voice of Jonadab the ſon of Rechab our father, in all that he hath charged us, to drink no wine all our days, we, our wives, our ſons, nor our daughters; 9. Nor to build houſes for us to dwell in: [e] neither have we vineyard, nor field, nor ſeed. 10. But we have dwelt in tents, and have obeyed, and done according to all that Jonadab our father commanded us. 11. But it came to paſs when Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came up into the land, that we ſaid, Come, and let us go to Jeruſalem for fear of the army of the Chaldeans, and for fear of the army of the Syrians: ſo we dwell at Jeruſalem.

Before Christ 606.

[b] 2 Kings x. 15.
[c] Ex. xx. 12. Eph. vi. 2.
[d] Mal. i. 6.
[e] 1 Tim. vi. 6.

v. 1—11. The date of this chapter ſeems to be about the fourth year of Jehoiakim, when, on account of his rebellion, Nebuchadnezzar invaded the land, and about ſeventeen years before the preceding prophecies were delivered.

The Rechabites here mentioned were Kenites, of the poſterity of Hobab, Moſes's father-in-law, 1 Chron. ii. 55. Judg. i. 16. one family of which, denominated from Rechab their great progenitor, obſerved ſome peculiar rites, enjoined them by Jonadab, the ſon or lineal deſcendant of Rechab, a man famous for his piety in the days of Jehu, about 300 years before this time, 2 Kings x. 15, 16.

1. The injunctions Jonadab laid on them were, to drink no wine, and dwell in tents, having neither houſes nor land, nor vineyard, nor tillage; but to devote themſelves to a paſtoral life, remote from the buſy world, where corruption and vice moſt abound, and thereby be farther removed from temptation: as they were ſtrangers in the land, they muſt be content with their lot, and deſire no great things; nor ſeek to accumulate wealth, which might provoke the envy of the people among whom they dwelt: luxury alſo, the bane of body and ſoul, would thus be baniſhed from them; and, accuſtomed to hard fare, they would be the better able to meet the days of calamity, which the ſins of the land where they ſojourned were bringing upon them. Note, (1.) Though God hath not forbid us wine, temperance will dictate caution and ſelf-denial. (2.) It is deſirable to ſit looſe to this preſent world; and the leſs we have in it, generally, the leſs unwilling we ſhall be to part from it. (3.) They who are ſtrangers upon earth muſt never think of taking up their reſt below, but be ready, at a moment's warning, to put off this tabernacle.

2. The Rechabites ſtrictly obſerved Jonadab's rule. Men, women, and children, were all a family of Nazarites: and tho' they were now obliged through neceſſity, by reaſon of the invaſion, to diſpenſe with one part of their father's injunctions, and had for ſafety retired to Jeruſalem, yet not with an intention to take up their abode there longer than the danger threatned: and as for the other, they ſtill religiouſly obſerved it; and therefore, though urged by the prophet to drink, who had invited them together into one of the chambers of the temple, and ſet before them pots of wine, they abſolutely refuſed, and pleaded their father's order as the reaſon of their conduct. Note, When there is a ſpirit of real ſobriety, the wine, even when it ſparkles, will have no influence, nor the ſollicitations of others be able to extort a compliance with the leaſt exceſs.

12. ¶ Then came the word of the LORD unto Jeremiah, ſaying, 13. Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, Go, and tell the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jeruſalem, Will ye not receive inſtruction to hearken to my words, ſaith the LORD. 14. The words of Jonadab the ſon of Rechab, that he commanded his ſons not to drink wine, are performed; for unto this day they drink none, but obey their father's commandment: [f] notwithſtanding I have ſpoken unto you, [g] riſing early, and ſpeaking, but ye hearkned not unto me. 15. I have ſent alſo unto you all my ſervants the prophets, riſing up early and ſending them, ſaying, [h] Return ye now every man from his evil way, and amend your doings, and go not after other gods to ſerve them, [i] and ye ſhall dwell in the land, which I have given to you, and to your fathers: but ye have not inclined your ear, nor hearkned unto me. 16. Becauſe the ſons of Jonadab the ſon of Rechab have performed the commandment of their father, which he commanded them; but this people hath not hearkned unto me: 17. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD God of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, Behold, I will bring upon Judah, and upon all the inhabitants of Jeruſalem, all the evil that I have pronounced againſt them: becauſe [k] I have ſpoken unto them, but they have not heard, and I have called unto them, but they have not anſwered. 18. ¶ And Jeremiah ſaid unto the houſe of the Rechabites, Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, Becauſe ye have obeyed the commandment of Jonadab your father, and kept all his precepts, and done according to all that he hath commanded you: 19. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, † Jonadab the ſon of Rechab ſhall not want a man to ſtand before me for ever.

[f] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 15.
[g] Chap. vii. 13, 25. & xi. 7.
[h] Chap. xviii. 11. & xxv. 5.
[i] Pſ. xxxvii. 27. Iſa. i. 19.

Before Christ 606.

[k] Prov. i. 24. Chap. vii. 23, 24.
† Heb. There ſhall not a man be cut off from Jonadab, &c.

v. 12—19. It was not the prophet's intention to draw the Rechabites into a breach of their rule, but to ſet them forth as an example to Iſrael.

1. The obedience of the Rechabites to their father ſerved to aggravate the rebellion of the Jews againſt the commands of God. The commands of Jonadab, a mere man, were kept; the words of the eternal God diſregarded: his injunctions, deſcending only by tradition, had more influence over his poſterity, than God's written laws, urged by a ſucceſſion of prophets daily inculcating their obſervance on the Jews. It was a real piece of ſelf-denial the ſon of Rechab enjoined, in a matter before lawful; whereas what God had forbidden was highly criminal, and what he commanded would be their real comfort. The Rechabites had no particular obligation to Jonadab to enforce their obedience; whilſt every thing Iſrael poſſeſſed in Canaan came from God's bounty, and was held on condition of their fidelity; ſo that both gratitude and duty ſhould have engaged them to obſerve God's commandments.

2. The Jews are threatned for their diſobedience and baſe ingratitude. The Rechabites ſhall riſe up in judgment and condemn them; and God will execute upon them all the threatnings he hath pronounced ſince they remained incorrigible, and would neither by admonitions nor corrections be warned and led unto repentance. Note, Though vengeance is ſlow in coming, it is ſure to all that abide impenitent.

3. The Rechabites are commended and rewarded for their dutiful obedience to their father Jonadab's commands. Jonadab the ſon of Rechab ſhall not want a man to ſtand before me for ever. As long as Iſrael was a nation his poſterity ſhould continue in it; or perhaps to the end of time, the family, though now mixed with the Jews, being not extinct; or it may have reſpect to better days, when they ſhould be converted by the preaching of the goſpel, and, among other faithful ſouls, to the end of time ſtand before the Lord, to offer the ſpiritual ſacrifices of prayer and praiſe. Note, Nothing entails more ſurely a bleſſing on children than their dutiful obſervance of their pious parents inſtructions.

CHAP. XXXVI.

Here is another expedient tried to work upon this heedleſs and untoward people, but it is tried in vain. (1.) Baruch writes in a roll all Jeremiah's prophecies from his own mouth, ver. 1—4. (2.) He reads it publickly to the people, ver. 5—10. and privately to the princes, ver. 11—19. afterwards Jehudi reads it to the king, ver. 20, 21. (3.) The king burns it, and orders Jeremiah and Baruch to be proſecuted, ver. 22—26. (4.) Baruch writes in another roll all that was contained in the former, and adjoins the king's doom for burning the roll, ver. 27—32.

606.

1. AND it came to paſs in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, the ſon of Joſiah king of Judah, that this word came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, ſaying, 2. Take thee [a] a roll of a book, and [b] write therein all the words that I have ſpoken unto thee againſt Iſrael, and againſt Judah, and againſt all the nations, from the day I ſpake unto thee, [c] from the days of Joſiah, even unto this day. 3. It may be that the houſe of Judah will hear all the evil which I purpoſe to do unto them; that they may return every man from his evil way, that I may forgive their iniquity and their ſin. 4. Then Jeremiah called Baruch the ſon of Neriah; and Baruch [d] wrote from the mouth of Jeremiah, all the words of the LORD, which he had ſpoken unto him, upon a roll of a book. 5. And Jeremiah commanded Baruch, ſaying, I am ſhut up, I cannot go into the houſe of the LORD: 6. Therefore go thou and read in the roll, which thou haſt written from my mouth, the words of the LORD, in the ears of the people, in the LORD's houſe [e] upon the faſting-day: and alſo thou ſhalt read them in the ears of all Judah, that come out of their cities. 7. It may be † they will preſent their ſupplication before the LORD, and will return every one from his evil way; for great is the anger and fury that the LORD hath pronounced againſt this people. 8. And Baruch the ſon of Neriah did according

[a] Iſa. viii. 1.
[b] Chap. xxx. 2.
[c] Chap. xxv. 3.
[d] Ver. 18. Chap. xlv. 1.
[e] Lev. xvi. 29. or ver. 9.
† Heb. Their ſupplication ſhall fall. Chap. xxxvii. 20.

Before Christ 606. ing to all that Jeremiah the prophet commanded him, reading in the book the words of the LORD in the LORD's houſe.

v. 1—8. The date of this prophecy is the fourth year of Jehoiakim, about the ſame time the foregoing tranſaction happened.

1. Jeremiah is ordered to take a roll of a book, ſo called becauſe they wrote on ſheets of vellum or parchment, which they rolled one over the other. In this volume he muſt write all his ſermons and prophecies, delivered during a courſe of two and twenty years concerning Iſrael and Judah, and all the nations, that the people might hear once more a repetition of all the warnings and admonitions ſo ſolemnly given them, as the moſt likely method to work upon their obdurate hearts, when they heard the evil threatned, and be induced thereby to turn from the wickedneſs they had committed; which if they did, notwithſtanding all their provocations, God was ſtill ready to pardon all that was paſt. Not that the expreſſion it may be implies any uncertainty in the divine preſcience; but the prophet muſt uſe the moſt probable means, and leave them at leaſt without excuſe, if they perſiſted in their ſins. Note, (1.) We have abundant cauſe to bleſs God for cauſing his word to be written, and not left to uncertain tradition. (2.) Nothing can work upon the ſinner's heart, if God's word doth not. (3.) The certain ruin ſin will bring upon us ſhould deter us from it. (4.) Whenever a ſinner by grace returns to God, all his iniquity, however great and aggravated, ſhall be forgiven him.

2. Jeremiah inſtantly obeys, and employs Baruch as his amanuenſis, probably as the readier ſcribe, and being himſelf ſhut up, either confined by the king's order, or ſome indiſpoſition, from appearing at the temple. Baruch muſt take the roll, and read all the contents of it in the Lord's houſe, when the people were aſſembled together on the faſting-day, mentioned v. 9. or the great day of atonement, and alſo in the ears of all Judah, who came up out of their cities at the feaſt of tabernacles; or it may refer to the ſame time when, on occaſion of the faſt, they aſſembled at the temple. It may be they will preſent their ſupplication before the Lord, affected with what they hear, and ſeek to him to avert the impending judgments; and will return every man from his evil way; turning to God ere the terrible threatnings pronounced take place: and Baruch failed not punctually to perform the prophet's orders. Note, (1.) Whenever the conſcience is awakened with a ſenſe of ſin, it will appear by an immediate application to God in prayer. (2.) The formalities of religion are often obſerved where the power of it is loſt; but this only more fatally deceives ſinners to their ruin.

605. 9. And it came to paſs in the fifth year of Jehoiakim the ſon of Joſiah king of Judah, in the ninth month, [f] Ver. 6. that they proclaimed [f] a faſt before the LORD to all the people in Jeruſalem, and to all the people that came from [g] Ver. 8. the cities of Judah unto Jeruſalem. 10. Then [g] read Baruch in the book, the words of Jeremiah in the houſe of the LORD, in the chamber of Gemariah, the ſon of [h] Chap.xxvi. 10. Shaphan the ſcribe, in the higher court, [h] at the † entry † Or door. of the new gate of the LORD's houſe, in the ears of all the people. 11. ¶ When Michaiah the ſon of Gemariah the ſon of Shaphan, had heard out of the book all the words of the LORD, 12. Then he went down into the king's houſe into the ſcribes chamber, and lo, all the princes ſat there, even Eliſhama the ſcribe, and Delaiah the ſon of Shemaiah, and Elnathan the ſon of Achbor, and Gemariah the ſon of Shaphan, and Zedekiah the ſon of Hananiah, and all the princes. 13. Then Michaiah declared unto them all the words that he had heard when Baruch read the book in the ears of the people. 14. Therefore all the princes ſent Jehudi the ſon of Nethaniah, the ſon of Shelemiah, the ſon of Cuſhi, unto Baruch, ſaying, Take in thine hand the roll wherein thou haſt read in the ears of the people, and come.
So Baruch the ſon of Neriah took the roll in his hand, and came unto them. 15. And they ſaid unto him, Sit down now, and read it in our ears. So Baruch read it in their ears. 16. Now it came to paſs when they had [l] Acts xxiv. 25. heard all the words, they [l] were afraid, both one and other, and ſaid unto Baruch, We will ſurely tell the king of all theſe words. 17. And they aſked Baruch, ſaying, Tell us now, How didſt thou write all theſe words at his mouth? 18. Then Baruch anſwered them, He pro-[k] Ver. 4. nounced all theſe words unto me with his mouth, [k] and I wrote them with ink in the book. 19. Then ſaid the princes unto Baruch, Go hide thee, thou and Jeremiah, and let no man know where ye be.

v. 9—19. Some have ſuppoſed the faſting-day, v. 6. was the ſame as v. 9. and that the time, between the date of Jeremiah's being commanded to write and this reading, was employed in finiſhing the roll; for, if the ninth month refers not to Jehoiakim's reign but to the eccleſiaſtical year, his fifth year beginning in the ſeventh month, this might be only two months after. Nor can it well be ſuppoſed but that, if it had been read ſome months before, ſee ver. 1, 6. it would have come, ere this time, to the princes ears; otherwiſe this was the ſecond or third time of its being read, ſee v. 6. line upon line and precept upon precept being needful for thoſe ſo dull of hearing. We have,

Before Christ 605.

1. An extraordinary faſt proclaimed, on account, probably, of the threatned invaſion, to all the people of Judah and Jeruſalem; or, as the text ſeems to intimate, it was at their requeſt, they proclaimed a faſt, even all the people, &c. Note, National faſts, without national reformation, will never turn away national judgments.

2. Baruch, on that ſolemn occaſion, read out of the roll, at a window, or from a balcony, adjoining to Gemariah's chamber, in the audience of all the people who were in the court of the temple below.

3. Michaiah, the ſon of Gemariah, who ſeems to have been affected with what he heard, ſoon carried the report to the king's houſe, where the princes were aſſembled, who ſeemed to have left the concerns of religion to the people, and to have been themſelves engaged in conſultation; for at courts to be godly is too commonly unfaſhionable. Startled at the contents of the diſcourſe, he repeated them, and thereupon they deſire Baruch to attend them, and read over the words of the roll; with which he readily complied, not afraid of men's faces when God's word was to be delivered. Note, (1.) The diſcourſe that hath affected our own ſouls may often be profitably repeated for others good. (2.) They who are the faithful miniſters of Chriſt muſt be ready to bear their teſtimony, if called thereto, even before kings, and not be aſhamed.

4. The princes appear greatly ſtruck with the words Baruch read; terrified at the threatned judgments, both one and other, good and bad, or a man to his friend, amazed, and looking at one another, as if enquiring what was to be done in the caſe. Their general reſolution was to inform the king, to whoſe ill affections they were not ſtrangers; and therefore, thoſe who were gracious men at leaſt, juſtly apprehending he would be exaſperated, adviſed Baruch and Jeremiah to conceal themſelves, leſt, in his anger, he ſhould murder them. But firſt, to gain the fulleſt ſatisfaction to themſelves, and to anſwer the enquiries the king might make, they enquire how he wrote theſe diſcourſes; and Baruch informs them Jeremiah pronounced, and he wrote from his mouth; which ſome regard as an idle queſtion; but ſeems to ariſe from a difficulty ſtarted, how Jeremiah could recollect ſo many diſcourſes, containing ſuch a variety of matter, the remembrance of which ſo exactly might give them a ſtronger conviction of the inſpiration under which he ſpoke.

20. ¶ And they went in to the king into the court, but they laid up the roll in the chamber of Eliſhama
the ſcribe, and told all the words in the ears of the king.
21. So the king ſent Jehudi to fetch the roll, and he took it out of Eliſhama the ſcribe's chamber, and Jehudi read it in the ears of the king, and in the ears of all the princes which ſtood beſide the king. 22. Now the king ſat [l] in the winter-houſe, in the ninth month; [l] Judg. iii. 20. Am. iii. 15.
and there was a fire on the hearth burning before him.
23. And it came to paſs, that when Jehudi had read three or four leaves, [m] he cut it with the penknife and [m] 2 Tim. iv. 3.
caſt it into the fire that was on the hearth, untill all the roll was conſumed in the fire that was on the hearth.
24. Yet they were not afraid, nor [n] rent their garments, [n] 2 Kings xxii. 11.
neither the king, nor any of his ſervants that heard all theſe words. 25. Nevertheleſs Elnathan, and Delaiah, and Gemariah had made interceſſion to the king, that he would not burn the roll, but he would not hear them.
26. But the king commanded Jerahmeel the ſon † of † Or of the king.
Hammelech, and Seraiah the ſon of Azriel, and Shelemiah the ſon of Abdeel, [o] to take Baruch the ſcribe, and [o] 1 Kings xix. 14.
Jeremiah the prophet: but [p] the LORD hid them. 27. [p] Pſ. cxxi. 8. Chap. i. 19. Ver. 19.
¶ Then the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah (after that the king had burnt the roll, and the words which Baruch wrote at the mouth of Jeremiah) ſaying, 28.
[q] Take thee again another roll, and write in it all the [q] Chap. xxviii. 13, 14. 2 Tim. ii. 9.
former words that were in the firſt roll, which Jehoiakim the king of Judah hath burnt. 29. And thou ſhalt ſay to Jehoiakim king of Judah, Thus ſaith the LORD, Thou haſt burnt this roll, ſaying, [r] Why haſt thou writ- [r] Chap. xxxii. 3.
ten therein, ſaying, The king of Babylon ſhall certainly come and deſtroy this land, and ſhall cauſe to ceaſe from thence man and beaſt? 30. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD, of Jehoiakim king of Judah, [s] He ſhall have [s] Chap. xxii. 30.
none to ſit upon the throne of David, and his dead body ſhall [t] be caſt out in the day to the heat, and in the night [t] Chap. xxii. 19.

Before Christ 605.

to the froſt. 31. And I will ‡ puniſh him and his ‡ Heb. Viſit upon.
ſeed, and his ſervants, for their iniquity, and I will bring upon them, and upon the inhabitants of Jeruſalem, and upon the men of Judah, all the evil that I have pronounced againſt them, but they hearkened not. 32. ¶
Then took Jeremiah another roll, and gave it to Baruch the ſcribe the ſon of Neriah, [u] who wrote therein, from [u] Ver. 4, 18.
the mouth of Jeremiah, all the words of the book which Jehoiakim king of Judah had burnt in the fire, and there were added beſides unto them § many like words. § Heb. Words as they.

v. 20—32. Whilſt Baruch was departed to ſecrete himſelf, the princes went into the court to the king, to inform him of what had paſſed, having carefully laid up the roll in Eliſhama's chamber; and he, curious to hear in full what they had ſummarily reported, immediately diſpatched Jehudi for the roll, and bid him read it in his hearing, and before the princes who were with him. Whereupon he gave an account,

1. Of Jehoiakim's daring impiety. Two or three leaves were enough to enrage him, and, a fire being on the hearth before him, he cut the roll in pieces and burnt it; or Jehudi, who read it, did it at his command; he could not with patience hear ſuch terrible denunciations: obſtinate in his ſins, he would not bear to be rebuked; but vented the enmity of his heart againſt God and his prophets, and hoped to diſappoint the predictions, or prevent the knowledge of them from ſpreading among the people. Note, The deſpiſers of God's word are among thoſe who ſeem moſt ſurely given up to a reprobate mind.

2. The princes who were preſent teſtified no horror or deteſtation at this ſhocking ſight: thoſe who were in attendance on the king, not thoſe who came up from Eliſhama's chamber, ſeem chiefly intended; at leaſt theſe were deterred from expreſſing any becoming zeal for fear of offending: three of them however, v. 25. with humility interceded with the king not to burn the roll; but he was as deaf to their intreaties as to the prophet's warnings, v. 25. Note, They who ſilently ſit by, without teſtifying their abhorrence of the ſins they ſee committed, are partakers in the guilt.

3. Not content with having cut to pieces and burnt the roll, the king in his fury would probably have ſerved the authors no better if he could have ſeized them, for which he iſſues immediate orders; but the Lord hid them: whatever care they had taken to conceal themſelves, it had been ineffectual, if the ſpecial providence of God had not watched over them and reſcued them from the malice of this impious king. Note, They who, for God's cauſe, boldly put their lives in their hand are often wonderfully protected by him, and ſaved from the fury of their perſecutors.

4. Jeremiah has a freſh order to write again the ſame words in another roll. The burning the former can neither prevent the judgments approaching, nor deſtroy the word of God. Jehoiakim was enraged to be told that his country ſhould be deſtroyed, and left deſolate without man and beaſt; and, not believing it himſelf, would have others regard it as a falſehood: but it is a fact that will be ſhortly verified, and himſelf, his family, and ſervants, meet their deſerved doom. He ſhall be ſlain with the Chaldean ſword, and his corps ignominiouſly expoſed, be refuſed burial, and left to rot a putrid carcaſe on the earth; his ſeed be cut off, that none of his poſterity ſhould ever ſit on the throne of David, his ſon Jeconiah, in three months, being dragged into captivity and written childleſs; and all the evils, threatned againſt Judah and Jeruſalem terribly overtake them, according to the purport of the words written in the roll which was burnt. Another is provided, the ſame words dictated by Jeremiah, and written by Baruch, with additions of many others like them. So that, inſtead of diſappointing the divine decrees, Jehoiakim only added freſh aggravations to his guilt, and drew heavier vengeance on his head. Note, They who contend with God, and obſtinately reſiſt his counſel, only treaſure up for themſelves wrath againſt the day of wrath.

CHAP. XXXVII.

In this chapter we have, (1.) A general idea of the ill character of Zedekiah's reign, ver. 1, 2. (2.) The meſſage which he ſent to Jeremiah to deſire his prayers, ver. 3. (3.) The flattering hopes which the people had conceived, that the Chaldeans would quit the ſiege of Jeruſalem, ver. 5. (4.) The aſſurance God gave them by Jeremiah (who was now at liberty, ver. 4.) that the Chaldean army ſhould renew the ſiege and take the city, ver. 6—10. (5.) The impriſonment of Jeremiah, under pretence that he was a deſerter, ver. 11—15. The kindneſs which Zedekiah ſhewed him in his impriſonment, ver. 16—21.

598.

1. AND [a] king Zedekiah the ſon of Joſiah reigned [a] 2 Kings xxiv. 17. 2 Chron. xxxvi. 10. Chap. xxii. 24.
in ſtead of Coniah the ſon of Jehoiakim, whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon made king in the land of Judah. 2. [b] But neither he, [c] nor his ſervants, nor [b] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 12, 14. [c] Prov. xxix. 12.
the people of the land, did hearken unto the word of the LORD, which he ſpake by the prophet Jeremiah. 3. Before Christ 598.
And Zedekiah the king ſent Jehucal the ſon of Shelemiah, and [d] Zephaniah the ſon of Maaſeiah the 589.
prieſt, to the prophet Jeremiah, ſaying, [e] Pray now [d] Chap. xxix. 25. & lii. 24.
unto the LORD our God for us. 4. Now Jeremiah [e] Ex. viii. 8, 28. Acts viii. 24. came in and went out among the people: for they had not put him into priſon. 5. Then Pharaoh's army was come forth out of Egypt: and [f] when the Chaldeans that [f] Chap. xxxiv. 21. Ver. 11.
beſieged Jeruſalem, heard tidings of them, they departed from Jeruſalem. 6. ¶ Then came the word of the LORD unto the prophet Jeremiah, ſaying, 7. Thus ſaith the LORD, the God of Iſrael, Thus ſhall ye ſay to the king of Judah, [g] that ſent you unto me to enquire [g] Chap. xxi. 2. Ver. 3.
of me, Behold, Pharaoh's army, which is come forth to help you, [h] ſhall return to Egypt into their own land. [h] Pſ. xxxiii. 10. Prov. xxi. 30.
8. And [i] the Chaldeans ſhall come again, and fight a- [i] Chap. xxxiv. 22.
gainſt this city, and take it, [k] and burn it with fire. [k] Chap. xxxviii. 18.
9. Thus ſaith the LORD, Deceive not your † ſelves, † Heb. Souls.
ſaying, The Chaldeans ſhall ſurely depart from us: for they ſhall not depart. 10. For though ye had ſmitten the whole army of the Chaldeans that fight againſt you, and there remained but ‡ wounded men among them, ‡ Heb. Thruſt through.
[l] yet ſhould they riſe up every man in his tent, and burn [l] Chap. xlix. 20.
this city with fire.

v. 1—10. When Nebuchadnezzar had ſlain Jehoiakim, and taken away Coniah his ſon, that ſhadow of royalty, he placed on the throne Zedekiah, a younger ſon of Joſiah.

1. His ill conduct is remarked, v. 2. He copied too cloſely after his evil predeceſſors; and, though he ſaw in them the fatal conſequences of ſlighting the word of God, he took not warning; neither he nor his courtiers paying any regard to the calls and admonitions delivered by Jeremiah.

2. Though he neglected the prophet in his proſperity, when his diſtreſſes came upon him, he made application to him, earneſtly intreating his prayers; for at that time the prophet enjoyed his liberty, and was not, as afterwards, ſhut up in priſon, v. 4. The Chaldeans, according to his prediction, had already begun the ſiege of Jeruſalem; but, on hearing that an army of Egyptians were advancing to aſſiſt the Jews, though their king returned no more after his firſt defeat, 2 Kings xxiv. 7. Nebuchadnezzar marched to give them battle. Zedekiah therefore begs the prophet to intereſt himſelf on their behalf, and pray the Lord to defeat the Chaldean army, and prevent their return to Jeruſalem. Note, (1.) They who deſpiſe God's miniſters when in health, and at their eaſe, are glad to fly to them and beg their prayers in the day of their calamity. (2.) Many, like Zedekiah, are very earneſt to be delivered from their ſufferings, who have no heart to part with their ſins.

3. Jeremiah anſwers not like a courtier; but, as a prophet, he tells them plainly, the Egyptians ſhall retreat or be defeated, the Chaldeans return to the ſiege, and never ceaſe their attacks till they had taken the city and burnt it to the ground. Therefore the hopes they entertained were groundleſs: they deceived themſelves, when they thought the Chaldeans would no more return, or not be able to ſucceed in their attempt; for, ſince God had decreed the fall of Jeruſalem, though the Chaldeans had been ſmitten by them or their confederates, and none remained of their army but wounded men, ſuch vigour would God put into them, that even they ſhould riſe up in their tents, whither they had been carried to be dreſſed, ſcale the walls, and burn the city with fire. Note, (1.) Sinners uſually flatter themſelves to their ruin, and eaſily believe the lie their corrupted hearts wiſh to be true. (2.) All human help is vain, when God is againſt us. (3.) When God hath work to do, he can make the weakeſt and moſt unlikely inſtruments effectual to accompliſh his purpoſes.

11. ¶ [m] And it came to paſs that when the army of the [m] Ver. 5.
Chaldeans was † broken up from Jeruſalem for fear of † Heb. Made to aſcend.
Pharaoh's army, 12. Then Jeremiah went forth out of Jeruſalem to go into the land of Benjamin, ‡ to ſepa- ‡ Or to ſlip away in the midſt of the people.
rate himſelf thence in the midſt of the people. 13. And when he was in the gate of Benjamin, a captain of the ward was there, whoſe name was Irijah, the ſon of Shelemiah, the ſon of Hananiah, and he took Jeremiah the prophet, ſaying, Thou falleſt away to the Chaldeans.
14. Then ſaid Jeremiah, [n] It is § falſe, I fall not away [n] Pſ. xxxv. 11.
to the Chaldeans: but he hearkned not to him: ſo § Heb. Falſehood, or a lie.
Irijah took Jeremiah, and brought him to the princes.
15. Wherefore the princes were wroth with Jeremiah, and ſmote him, and [o] put him in priſon in the houſe of [o] Chap. xxxviii. 26.
Jonathan the ſcribe; for they had made that the priſon.
16. ¶ When Jeremiah was entred [p] into the dungeon, [p] Mat. v. 12.
and into the § cabins, and Jeremiah had remained there ‖ Or cells.

many days: 17. Then Zedekiah the king ſent and took him out; and the king aſked him ſecretly in his houſe, and ſaid, Is there any word from the LORD? and Jeremiah ſaid, There is: for, ſaid he, [q] thou ſhalt be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon. 18. Moreover, Jeremiah ſaid unto king Zedekiah, [r] What have I offended againſt thee, or againſt thy ſervants, or againſt this people, that ye have put me in priſon? 19. Where are now your prophets [s] which propheſied unto you, ſaying, The king of Babylon ſhall not come againſt you, nor againſt this land? 20. Therefore hear now, I pray thee, O my lord the king, let my ſupplication, I pray thee, † be accepted before thee; that thou cauſe me not to return to the houſe of Jonathan the ſcribe, leſt I die there. 21. Then Zedekiah the king commanded that they ſhould commit Jeremiah [t] into the court of the priſon, and [u] that they ſhould give him daily a piece of bread out of the bakers ſtreet, until all the bread in the city were ſpent. Thus Jeremiah remained in the court of the priſon.

[q] Chap. xxxii. 4. & xxxiv. 3.
[r] Dan. vi. 22.
[s] Chap. xxviii. 4.
† Heb. Fall before thee.
[t] Chap. xxxii. 2.
[u] Pſ. xxxiii. 19. & xxxvii. 19.

v. 11—21. Shortly after the meſſage he had delivered, foreſeeing the impending evils, Jeremiah began to conſult his own ſafety, and to this end,

1. He attempted to retire from Jeruſalem into Benjamin, perhaps to Anathoth, or ſome place of ſafety, to ſeparate himſelf from a people doomed to deſtruction, or to ſlip away thence in the midſt of the people, which probably he thought he might now do unperceived, when multitudes, who had flocked to Jeruſalem on the invaſion of the Chaldeans, were ready to take the opportunity of their departure, to return again into the country. Note, When we have no call from God to ſtay, it is prudent to hide ourſelves from the evils we foreſee.

2. He is arreſted as a deſerter, and impriſoned. A captain, who kept ward at the gate of Benjamin, a deſcendant of Hananiah, probably the falſe prophet whoſe death Jeremiah had foretold, and who ſeems to have waited to do the prophet a miſchief, ſeized him as he was paſſing through, and charged him with falling away to the Chaldeans; an accuſation falſe and malicious, and which Jeremiah, with all the confidence of conſcious innocence, denied; but in vain; he would not let him go, but drew him before the magiſtrates, too ready to receive any accuſation againſt a man they hated; they condemn him in a paſſion, without hearing his defence, and, after beating him, committed him to priſon, thruſting him into the dungeon, the worſt and moſt diſmal cell of that dark and melancholy abode, where he continued many days. Note, (1.) The pureſt characters are often blackened with the vileſt aſperſions, and the beſt friends of the ſtate reviled and accuſed as the enemies and betrayers of the nation. (2.) When prejudice and paſſion ſit on the chair of magiſtracy, no juſtice can be hoped for. (3.) Every lie, however improbable, is eaſily believed againſt a man obnoxious for his piety and reproofs. (4.) It hath been the lot of the beſt of men to ſuffer for conſcience ſake. We need not be aſhamed of a priſon, when ſuch as Jeremiah and Paul have gone thither before us.

3. When the Chaldean army returned, Zedekiah's fears drove him once more to ſeek the prophet's aſſiſtance: but, being aſhamed to have it known, he ſent for him ſecretly from the miſerable dungeon where he lay, and aſked him if there was any word from the Lord? any new revelation made to him, or hope that the Chaldeans would raiſe the ſiege. And the prophet, not intimidated by all the rigors of a priſon, nor fearing what might be the conſequences of his fidelity, plainly tells him there is, not a word of comfort, but of deſpair; for, ſaid he, thou ſhalt be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon. And, ſeizing the moment when the king ſeemed affected with his meſſage, he expoſtulates with him on the cruelty and injuſtice of the treatment he had ſuffered, merely for delivering the word he received from God, which the event had now verified, v. 18. and upbraids him with the ſin and folly of believing thoſe falſe prophets who had flattered him and the people that the Chaldeans would no more return, when lo, their lies were now manifeſt to all men, and yet they were honoured and reſpected, whilſt he was perſecuted and periſhing in a priſon. Note, (1.) They who will not hearken to the voice of God's prophets, calling them to repentance, may in vain expect to hear from them meſſages of peace. (2.) They deſerve to be upbraided with their folly who wilfully ſhut their eyes to their danger, and chuſe their own deluſions. (3.) No danger will diſcourage thoſe who know the value of God's regard; their life is no longer dear to them, when it muſt be expoſed for their fidelity to him.

4. He prefers an earneſt requeſt to the king for his enlargement, who could not but be ſenſible of the injuſtice of his impriſonment; and ſuch treatment as he had met muſt ſhortly, if continued, be his death. He begs therefore, with great humility, that at leaſt he may not be remanded to Jonathan's houſe. Note, Though we muſt be ready to part with our lives when God calls, we are bound to uſe all prudent means for our preſervation.

5. The king grants his requeſt, yea exceeds it. He dared not diſcharge him, through fear of the princes; but he brings him into the court of the priſon, where he was more at liberty, and enjoyed the air; and gave orders, notwithſtanding the ſcarcity of proviſions, that every day, whilſt any bread remained, he ſhould have a loaf for his ſubſiſtence. Thus his impriſonment really became his mercy; and he was protected both from the famine and the ſword, to which thoſe who were at large in the city were expoſed. Note, God can make the events which appeared moſt afflictive turn out to us the moſt ſubſtantial bleſſings.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

In this chapter, juſt as in the former, 1. Jeremiah, for his faithfulneſs, is put into the dungeon by the princes, ver. 1—6. 2. At the interceſſion of Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, by ſpecial order from the king, he is taken up out of the dungeon, and confined only to the court of the priſon, ver. 7—12. 3. He has a private conference with the king upon the preſent juncture of affairs, ver. 14—23. 4. Care is taken to keep that conference private, ver. 24—28.

1. THEN Shephatiah the ſon of Mattan, and Gedaliah the ſon of Paſhur, and Jucal the ſon of Shelemiah, and Paſhur the ſon of Malchiah, heard the words [a] that Jeremiah had ſpoken unto all the people, ſaying, 2. Thus ſaith the LORD, [b] He that remaineth in this city ſhall die by the ſword, by the famine, and by the peſtilence: but he that goeth forth to the Chaldeans ſhall live; for he ſhall have his life for a prey, and ſhall live. 3. Thus ſaith the LORD, [c] This city ſhall ſurely be given into the hand of the king of Babylon's army, which ſhall take it. 4. Therefore the princes ſaid unto the king, We beſeech thee, [d] let this man be put to death: for thus [e] he weakneth the hands of the men of war that remain in this city, and the hands of all the people, in ſpeaking ſuch words unto them: for [f] this man ſeeketh not the † welfare of this people, but the hurt. 5. Then Zedekiah the king ſaid, Behold, he is in your hand: for the king is not he that can do any thing againſt you. 6. [g] Then took they Jeremiah, and caſt him into the dungeon of Malchiah the ſon ‡ of Hammelech that was in the court of the priſon: and they let down Jeremiah with cords. And in the dungeon there was no water, but mire: ſo Jeremiah ſunk in the mire. 7. ¶ Now when [h] Ebed-melech [i] the Ethiopian, one of the eunuchs which was in the king's houſe, heard that they had put Jeremiah in the dungeon, (the king then ſitting in the gate of Benjamin) 8. Ebed-melech went forth out of the king's houſe, and ſpake to the king, ſaying, 9. My lord the king, theſe men have done evil in all that they have done to Jeremiah the prophet, whom they have caſt into the dungeon, and he § is like to die for hunger in the place where he is, for there is no more bread in the city. 10. Then the king commanded Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, ſaying, Take from hence thirty men with thee, and take up Jeremiah the prophet out of the dungeon before he die. 11. So Ebed-melech took the men with him, and went into the houſe of the king under the treaſury, and took thence old caſt clouts, and old rotten rags, and let them down by cords into the dungeon to Jeremiah. 12. And Ebed-melec the Ethiopian ſaid unto Jeremiah, Put now theſe old caſt clouts, and rotten rags, under thine arm-holes, under the cords. And Jeremiah did ſo. 13. [k] So they drew up Jeremiah with cords, and took him up out of the dungeon, and Jeremiah remained [l] in the court of the priſon.

[a] Chap. xxi. 8.
[b] Chap. xxi. 9.
[c] Chap. xxxii. 3.
[d] Chap. xxvi. 11.
[e] Joh. xi. 48.
[f] Acts xvii. 6. & xxiv. 5.
† Heb. Peace.
[g] Chap. xxxvii. 21.
‡ Or of the king.
[h] Chap. xxxix. 16.
[i] Luke x. 33, &c.
§ Heb. Will die.
[k] Mat. xxvi. 13.
[l] Chap. xxxvii. 21.

v. 1—13. Jeremiah's troubles are not yet ended. We have here,

1. A freſh accuſation brought againſt him by the princes. Though he was a priſoner, many came to him, whom he failed not faithfully to admoniſh of the determined deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and to counſel them, as the only way of ſecuring their lives, to caſt themſelves on the mercy of the Chaldeans, who would certainly ſpare all thoſe who ſurrendered, whilſt they who perſiſted in a fruitleſs defence would miſerably periſh by famine, peſtilence, and the ſword. Such diſcourſe the princes regarded as highly treaſonable, tending to weaken the hands of the people, and betray the city: fain therefore would they have the king put him to death as a publick enemy, who ſought not the

the welfare of the people, but their hurt. Note, (1.) It is a mercy, in times of calamity, if but our lives are given us for a prey. (2.) The enemies of God's faithful miniſters often paint them as traitors, and troublers of the ſtate, when, in truth, all their warnings and advice are deſigned purely for the lengthening the nation's proſperity.

2. Jeremiah is, by the king's permiſſion, put into the dungeon. Unable to reſiſt the authority of the princes in the preſent diſtracted ſtate of things, or willing to gratify them, though at the expence of ſacrificing a man whom he knew to be innocent, and a prophet of the Lord, he is given up to their hands, and from them he muſt expect no mercy. They drag the prophet from the court of the priſon unto another, over which Malchiah preſided; and, intending ſecretly to deſtroy him, which they dared not publickly do, they let him down with cords into a deep, a noiſome dungeon, where was no water, but mire, into which he ſunk, ſaith Joſephus, up to the neck, and there left him, not doubting but hunger, cold, the damp and loathſomeneſs of the place, would ſoon put an end to him, and then he would appear to have died a natural death. Here he is ſuppoſed to have offered the prayer recorded Lam. iii. 55—57.

3. God yet remembers him, and raiſes him up a friend at court, when his caſe appeared deſperate. Ebed-melech, an Ethiopian by birth, but poſſeſſed of more humanity and piety than any native Iſraelite; a great man in office, yet a good man in the worſt times, and moſt corrupted court; not aſhamed to own the ſuffering cauſe of God and truth; no ſooner heard he the prophet's miſerable ſituation than he immediately ſought the king, who was now ſitting in the gate of Benjamin hearing cauſes, or holding ſome council of war or ſtate; and boldly, in the preſence of all his nobles, and many of the princes probably who were the authors of Jeremiah's ſuffering, charges them with a moſt unjuſt and cruel procedure, and the conſequence muſt neceſſarily be the prophet's death, famiſhed with hunger, unleſs ſpeedily relieved. Note, Zeal for God makes men bold as lions.

4. Zedekiah gives Ebed-melech orders immediately to draw the prophet from his dungeon, and a guard of ſoldiers to aſſiſt him, if any dared attempt to oppoſe his releaſe: and, with the greateſt humanity and tenderneſs, he took care to bring ſome ſoft rags to put under Jeremiah's arms, that the cords which drew him up might not hurt him: and now, once more brought forth from the dark and diſmal pit, he is reconveyed to the court of the priſon. Probably Ebed-melech thought that ſafer for the prophet than his diſcharge, as he would be there ſheltered from danger, and fed from the king's ſtores. Note, (1.) When we dare be faithful, we ſhall often find more favour than we expected. (2.) The leaſt circumſtances that beſpeak the tenderneſs and humanity of a charitable heart ſhall be remembered and recompenſed at the reſurrection of the juſt.

14. ¶ Then [m] Zedekiah the king ſent and took Jeremiah the prophet unto him into [n] the † third entry that is in the houſe of the LORD; and the king ſaid unto Jeremiah, I will aſk thee a thing: hide nothing from me. 15. Then Jeremiah ſaid unto Zedekiah, If I declare it unto thee, wilt thou not ſurely put me to death? and if I give thee counſel, wilt thou not hearken unto me? 16. So Zedekiah the king ſware ſecretly unto Jeremiah, ſaying, As the LORD liveth, [o] that made us this ſoul, I will not put thee to death, neither will I give thee into the hand of theſe men that ſeek thy life. 17. Then ſaid Jeremiah unto Zedekiah, Thus ſaith the LORD the God of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, If thou wilt aſſuredly go forth unto [p] the king of Babylon's princes, then thy ſoul ſhall live, and this city ſhall not be burnt with fire, and thou ſhalt live, and thine houſe. 18. But if thou wilt not go forth to the king of Babylon's princes, then ſhall this city be given into the hand of the Chaldeans, and they ſhall burn it with fire, and thou ſhalt not eſcape out of their hand. 19. And Zedekiah the king ſaid unto Jeremiah, I am afraid of the Jews that are fallen to the Chaldeans, leſt they deliver me into their hand, and they mock me. 20. But Jeremiah ſaid, They ſhall not deliver thee: obey, I beſeech thee, the voice of the LORD which I ſpeak unto thee: ſo it ſhall be well unto thee, and thy ſoul ſhall live. 21. But if thou refuſe to go forth, this is the word that the LORD hath ſhewed me: 22. And behold, all the women [q] that are left in the king of Judah's houſe, ſhall be brought forth to the king of Babylon's princes, and thoſe women ſhall ſay, ‡ Thy friends have ſet thee on, and have prevailed againſt thee: thy feet are ſunk in the mire, and they are turned away back. 23. So they ſhall bring out all thy wives and [r] thy children to the Chaldeans, and thou ſhalt not eſcape out of their hand, but ſhalt be taken by the hand of the king of Babylon: and thou ſhalt cauſe this city to be burnt with fire. 24. ¶ Then ſaid Zedekiah unto Jeremiah, Let no man know of theſe words, and thou ſhalt not die. 25. But if the princes hear that I have talked with thee, and they come unto thee, and ſay unto thee, Declare unto us now what thou haſt ſaid unto the king, hide it not from us, and we will not put thee to death; alſo what the king ſaid unto thee: 26. Then thou ſhalt ſay unto them, [s] I preſented my ſupplication before the king, that he would not cauſe me to return to [t] Jonathan's houſe to die there. 27. Then came all the princes unto Jeremiah, and aſked him, and he told them according to all theſe words that the king had commanded: ſo they § left off ſpeaking with him, for the matter was not perceived. 28. So Jeremiah abode [u] in the court of the priſon, until the day that Jeruſalem was taken, and he was there when Jeruſalem was taken.

[m] Chap. xxxvii. 17.
[n] 2 Kings xvi. 18.
† Or principal.
[o] Iſa. lvii. 16.
[p] Chap. xxxix. 3.
[q] 2 Kings xxiv. 15.
‡ Heb. The men of thy peace.
[r] Chap. xxxix. 6.
[s] Chap. xxxvii. 20.
[t] Chap. xxxvii. 15.
§ Heb. Were ſilent from him.
[u] Chap. xxxix. 14.

v. 14—28. Severe ſtruggles, no doubt, paſſed in the boſom of this unhappy monarch, halting between two opinions, divided between the fear of man and the fear of God, and perplexed with the warnings of conſcience and the ſtrivings of corruption.

1. He ſeeks another interview with the prophet; appoints the place of meeting, for ſecrecy probably, at the third entry or gate, as it is ſuppoſed, of the aſcent that went up from the king's houſe to the temple; and, having ordered the prophet thither, he came to him, earneſtly adjuring him to tell him if he had any farther word from the Lord; in hopes, perhaps, there might be ſome comfort yet in ſtore for him. Vain expectation! whilſt his heart continued impenitent and unhumbled.

2. Before he anſwers the king's queſtion he begs a ſolemn aſſurance from him, that he will not put him to death for ſpeaking the truth; and, what was as much his concern as his own preſervation, that he would follow the advice he gave him, v. 15. Note, (1.) Readineſs to die in the cauſe of truth is not at all inconſiſtent with every prudent precaution to preſerve our lives. (2.) Miniſters have the moſt earneſt ſollicitude that ſinners ſhould hear and comply with the advice on which their life, their eternal life, depends.

3. The king ſolemnly ſwears to ſave him harmleſs, as the Lord liveth, who made us this ſoul, may he take my life, if ever I attempt to deſtroy thee. He will not himſelf put him to death, nor ſuffer the princes to hurt him. As to obeying the advice, he is ſilent; deſigning to follow it only ſo far as it pleaſed him.

4. Jeremiah fairly ſets before him the only ſtep which yet remained to be taken, in order to preſerve himſelf and the city. By an immediate ſurrender, and caſting himſelf on the clemency of the king of Babylon, the city ſhould be preſerved from ruin, himſelf be permitted to live in peace, if not in ſplendor, and his family be preſerved: but, if he refuſed, there was no hope; the Chaldeans would infallibly force their way into it, and burn the city with fire; and, though he might attempt to eſcape, he ſhould certainly be ſeized. Note, There is but one way that ſinners can be ſafe, and that is by an entire ſubmiſſion to the righteouſneſs of God, and caſting their ſouls on the mercy of God revealed in the goſpel. They who refuſe to do this muſt periſh.

5. Zedekiah heſitates, and ſuggeſts his fears of the ignominy he ſhould be expoſed to, if the Chaldeans delivered him up to the Jews who had fallen to them, who would now treat him with contempt, or revenge themſelves on him for the threatnings he had uttered againſt them for deſerting him: fears in themſelves indeed groundleſs, and eſpecially when, in obedience to a divine command, he caſt himſelf on the Lord's protection. Note, (1.) When our fooliſh reaſoning is heard, in oppoſition to God's word, we are ſure to act wrong. (2.) For fear of being laughed at, many dare not ſeek to be ſaved. (3.) Many terrify themſelves with groundleſs apprehenſions of danger, when the path of duty is the only path of ſafety.

6. Jeremiah ſilences the objection with an aſſurance that his fears were without foundation. They will not deliver thee up, but treat thee with reſpect and kindneſs: it ſhall be well with thee, and thy ſoul ſhall live. But, as each moment of delay was dangerous, he urges him to an immediate compliance with the voice of God; otherwiſe the reproach he feared would come more bitterly upon him from his own houſe, who would upbraid his folly for hearkening to the falſe prophets, thoſe pretended friends, but real enemies, to his peace, when he might have prevented their ruin and his own by hearkening to Jeremiah: for the city ſhall be taken, his wives and children dragged forth to the tents of the Chaldeans, himſelf unable to eſcape, and made priſoner by the king of Babylon; and he will cauſe Jeruſalem to be burnt with fire through his folly and obſtinacy. Note, (1.) They who ſeek by ſin to avoid ſhame will but expoſe themſelves more bitterly to the reproach they deſire to ſhun. (2.) Wicked rulers are chargeable with all the evils they bring upon their unhappy ſubjects.

7. They part hereupon; Zedekiah not being perſuaded to yield to his advice, and, for the ſake of his reputation, willing to keep the ſubject of this conference a ſecret from the princes, who would probably hear of it, and be curious to know what paſſed: he therefore confirms his promiſe of protecting him, if he concealed the converſation; but charges him not to divulge to them any thing he had ſaid, except his requeſt not to be ſent back again to Jonathan's houſe, to die there; which requeſt, no doubt, the prophet had made: and when the princes came to Jeremiah, with this he eaſily put them off, and thus abode in ſafety in the court of the priſon, till Jeruſalem was taken. Note, (1.) Many teſtify greater concern for their worldly reputation, than for their ſalvation. (2.) We are not always obliged to tell all we know to every impertinent enquirer. Tho' we muſt never utter an untruth, we may ſafely conceal what others have no right to know, and it would be dangerous to ourſelves to diſcover. The wiſdom of the ſerpent is commendable, when joined to the harmleſſneſs of the dove.

Before Christ 588.

CHAP. XXXIX.

We have here the verification of Jeremiah's predictions. 1. Jeruſalem, after eighteen months ſiege, is taken by the Chaldean army, ver. 1—3. 2. Zedekiah attempting to make his eſcape, is ſeized and made a miſerable captive to the king of Babylon, ver. 4—7. 3. Jeruſalem is burnt to the ground, and the people carried captive, except the poor, ver. 8—10. 4. The Chaldeans are very kind to Jeremiah, and take particular care of him, ver. 11—14. 5. Ebedmelech too, for his kindneſs, is preſerved in this day of deſolation, ver. 15—18.

59°.

1. [a] IN the ninth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the tenth month, came Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and all his army againſt Jeruſalem, and they beſieged it. 2. And in the eleventh year of Zedekiah, in the fourth month, the ninth day of the month, the city was broken up. 3. And all [b] the princes of the king of Babylon came in, and ſat in the middle gate, even Nergal-ſharezer, Samgar-nebo, Sarſechim, Rab-ſaris, Nergal-ſharezer, Rab-mag, with all the reſidue of the princes of the king of Babylon. 4. And [c] it came to paſs that when Zedekiah the king of Judah ſaw them, and all the men of war, then they [d] fled, and went forth out of the city by night, by the way of the king's garden, by the gate betwixt the two walls, and he went out the way of the plain. 5. But the Chaldeans army purſued after them, and overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho: and [e] when they had taken him, they brought him up to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon to Riblah in the land of Hamath, where he † gave judgment upon him. 6. Then the king of Babylon ſlew the ſons of Zedekiah in Riblah before his eyes: alſo the king of Babylon [f] ſlew all the nobles of Judah. 7. Moreover, he put out Zedekiah's eyes, and [g] bound him ‡ with chains to carry him to Babylon. 8. ¶ [h] And the Chaldeans burnt the king's houſe, and the houſes of the people with fire, and brake down the walls of Jeruſalem. 9. Then Nebuzar-adan the ‖ captain of the guard carried away captive into Babylon the remnant of the people that remained in the city, and thoſe that fell away, that fell to him, with the reſt of the people that remained. 10. But Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard, [i] left of the poor of the people which had nothiag, in the land of Judah, and gave them vineyards and § fields at the ſame time.

[a] 2 Kings xxv. 1. Chap. lii. 4. 588.

[b] Chap. xxxviii. 17.

[c] Chap. lii. 7.

[d] Amos ii. 14.

[e] Chap. lii. 9.

† Heb. Spake with him judgments.

[f] Chap. xxxviii. 4. Mat. vii. 2. Jam. ii. 13.

[g] Pſ. cvii. 10, 11.

‡ Heb. With two brazen chains, or fetters.

[h] Chap. lii. 13.

‖ Heb. Chief of the executioners, or ſlaughtermen. Ver. 10.

[i] Ezek. xxxiv. 17, 22.

§ Heb. In that day.

v. 1—10. At laſt the threatned judgment is executed. Vengeance againſt ſinners, though ſlow, is ſure.

1. The devoted city is taken by ſtorm, after ſuſtaining a ſiege of eighteen months, begun by the king in perſon, in the midſt of winter, and carried on with implacable reſentment for Zedekiah's perfidy and reſentment by his orders, Nebuchadnezzar himſelf having retired to Riblah, on what account is uncertain. The names of the princes who took poſſeſſion of the middle gate, are recorded with their ſeveral offices; Samgar-nebo, Rab-ſaris, and Rab-mag being ſuppoſed not diſtinct perſons, but titles; the firſt ſignifying the ſtrict keeper of Nebo; the ſecond, the chief of the eunuchs; the laſt, the chief of the magicians. Theſe, with their companions, ſat in the gate in triumph as victors; or to ſecure the entrance for their troops, till the city was thoroughly poſſeſſed: and thus was fulfilled the prophecy, chap. i. 15.

2. Zedekiah is ſeized. Under covert of the night, in which the aſſault was made, when he found the city taken, he attempted to make his eſcape, and had got as far as the plains of Jericho; but his enemies being apprized of his flight, quickly purſued and overtook him, brought him priſoner to Nebuchadnezzar at Riblah, where ſentence, grievous as death, is pronounced upon him: his infant children are murdered before his eyes, the nobles of Judah ſlain; and then, as if to leave him all his miſerable days to reflect on this horrid ſpectacle, the laſt objects he ever ſhould behold, his eyes are put out, and, bound in fetters of braſs, he is led a wretched captive to Babylon, 2 Kings xxv. 4. Note, (1.) There is no flying from God. (2.) They who will not believe the warnings of God, muſt, in their ſufferings, be convinced of the truths they deſpiſed.

3. Shortly after the city and temple were burnt, the walls raſed, the people carried away captives, and none left but the poor to till the ground and cultivate the vineyards, from whom the Chaldeans had nothing to fear, and who were probably put under a heavy tribute. And this was a ſtrange alteration, and a juſt retaliation upon the cruel maſters who had ſo enſlaved their brethren; themſelves are now captives, whilſt their poor and oppreſſed ſervants are made proprietors of their eſtates. So ſurely will it appear ſooner or later, that there is a righteous God which judgeth the earth.

11. ¶ Now Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon gave charge [k] concerning Jeremiah to Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard, ſaying, 12. Take him, and † look well to him, and [l] do him no harm, but do unto him even as he ſhall ſay unto thee. 13. So Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard ſent, and Nebuſhaſban, Rab-ſaris, and Nergal-ſharezer, Rab-mag, and all the king of Babylon's princes: 14. Even they ſent, and took Jeremiah [m] out of the court of the priſon, and [n] committed him unto Gedaliah [o] the ſon of Ahikam, the ſon of Shaphan, that he ſhould carry him home: ſo he dwelt among the people. 15. ¶ Now the word of the LORD came unto Jeremiah, while he was ſhut up [p] in the court of the priſon, ſaying, 16. Go and [q] ſpeak to Ebed-melech the Ethiopian ſaying, Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts the God of Iſrael, Behold, I will bring my words upon this city for evil, and not for good, and they ſhall be accompliſhed in that day before thee. 17. But [r] I will deliver thee in that day, ſaith the LORD, and thou ſhalt not be given into the hand of the men of whom thou art afraid. 18. For I will ſurely deliver thee, and thou ſhalt not fall by the ſword, but [s] thy life ſhall be for a prey unto thee, [t] becauſe thou haſt put thy truſt in me ſaith the LORD.

[k] Prov. xi. 4.

† Heb. Set thine eyes upon him.

[l] Pſ. cv. 15. 2 Pet. ii. 9.

[m] Chap. xxxviii. 28.

[n] Chap. xl. 5.

[o] Chap. xxvi. 24.

[p] Chap. xxxviii. 13, 28.

[q] Ibid. 7—12.

[r] 2 Pet. ii. 9.

[s] Chap. xxi. 9. & xlv. 5.

[t] 1 Chron. v. 20. Pſ. xxxvii. 40.

v. 11—18. They who entruſt their all with God, ſhall never have cauſe to regret the confidence they repoſe in him. We have here,

1. The great care taken of Jeremiah, as God had promiſed him, chap. xv. 11. Even the king of Babylon, who no doubt had heard the prophecies he had delivered, the advice he had given, and his ſufferings on that account, intereſts himſelf for him, and charges Nebuzar-adan, the captain of the guard, either before the city was taken, or immediately thereupon, to uſe Jeremiah with particular kindneſs; releaſe him from his confinement, and not only ſave him from harm, but do for him whatever he ſhould requeſt; which orders he obeyed, as more fully appears in the next chapter. Note, (1.) They who ſuffer in our cauſe, are entitled to a ſuitable recompence. (2.) Infidels and idolaters have often ſhewn more regard to God's ſervants than faithleſs profeſſors.

2. Ebedmelech's kindneſs to the prophet is remembered and rewarded. By an expreſs revelation from God, he is aſſured, though he ſhould ſee the calamities pronounced on the people executed, himſelf ſhould ſurvive them; and however much he feared for his ſafety, God will ſurely deliver him from the ſword of the Chaldeans, and give him his life for a prey, when all ſeemed devoted to death, and this becauſe thou haſt put thy truſt in me, ſaith the Lord. Note, (1.) Good men may have their fears in the day of danger. But, (2.) They who truſt on God, ſhall never be confounded.

CHAP. XL.

The ſtory of the ſad remnant which is left, is of a piece with all that went before; though at firſt there were ſome hopeful proſpects of their well-doing, they ſoon appeared as obſtinate in ſin as ever, unhumbled and unreformed, till all the reſt of the judgments threatned in Deut. xxviii. being brought upon them, that which completes the threatnings, was accompliſhed, The Lord ſhall bring thee into Egypt again. In this chapter we have, 1. A more particular account of Jeremiah's diſcharge, and his ſettlement with Gedaliah, ver. 1—6. 2. The great reſort of the Jews that remained to Gedaliah, who was made their governor under the king of Babylon; and

and the good poſture they were in for a while under him, ver. 7—12. 3. A treacherous deſign formed againſt Gedaliah, by Iſhmael, ver. 13—16.

1. THE word which came to Jeremiah from the LORD, after that [a] Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard, had let him go from Ramah, when he had taken him being bound in † chains among all that were carried away captive of Jeruſalem and Judah, which were carried away captive unto Babylon. 2. And the captain of the guard took Jeremiah, and ſaid unto him, The LORD thy God hath pronounced this evil upon this place. 3. Now the LORD hath brought it, and done according as he hath ſaid; [b] becauſe ye have ſinned againſt the LORD, and have not obeyed his voice, therefore this thing is come upon you. 4. And now, behold, I looſe thee this day from the chains which ‡ were upon thine hand: if it ſeem good unto thee to come with me into Babylon, come, and I will ‖ look well unto thee: but if it ſeem ill unto thee to come with me into Babylon, forbear: behold, all the land is before thee: whither it ſeemeth good and convenient for thee to go, thither go. 5. Now while he was not yet gone back, he ſaid, Go back alſo to Gedaliah the ſon of Ahikam the ſon of Shaphan, [c] whom the king of Babylon hath made governor over the cities of Judah, and dwell with him among the people: or go whereſoever it ſeemeth convenient unto thee to go. So the captain of the guard gave him victuals and a reward, and let him go. 6. Then went Jeremiah unto Gedaliah the ſon of Ahikam to Mizpah, and dwelt with him among the people that were left in the land.

[a] Chap. xxxix. 9.
† Or manacles.
[b] Deut. xxix. 24, 25. Chap. l. 7.
‡ Or are.
‖ Heb. Set mine eye upon thee. Chap. xxxix. 12.
[c] 2 Kings xxv. 22, &c.
[d] Mat. vi. 33.

v. 1—6. The chapter begins with, The word which came to Jeremiah, not that this chapter contains any prophecy, but it is a general title to all the following part of this book.

The rendezvous of the captives, it ſeems, was appointed to be at Ramah, about ſeven miles from Jeruſalem. Thither, among others, Jeremiah was led, chained with the reſt, probably through miſtake of ſome inferior officer; who, after he had been diſcharged, chap. xxxiv. 14. finding him at large, and not knowing the exemption granted him, joined him with his countrymen. But Nebuzar-adan, on the review of the captives, immediately diſcovered, unbound, and diſcharged him with the greateſt reſpect and kindneſs.

1. Nebuzar-adan, though a heathen, could not but acknowledge the truth of Jeremiah's miſſion and prophecies now ſo exactly fulfilled; and, to the ſhame of thoſe who rejected his warning, addreſſes the captives, reminding them of their ſins and diſobedience to the prophet's voice, which had provoked God's wrath, and brought this righteous judgment upon them.

2. He gives him his choice. Either to go to Babylon with him, and be treated with all kindneſs, and provided for to his heart's wiſh; or if he had rather ſtay in his native country, he was at his full liberty to chuſe his abode, and perhaps to take poſſeſſion of what eſtate in the country he pleaſed, the whole being at the diſpoſal of the conquerors. Note, They who ſacrifice all for God, even in this life are often found no loſers by their fidelity to him.

3. Jeremiah appearing, it ſhould ſeem, irreſolute where to fix, Nebuzar-adan adviſed him to join Gedaliah, a prince of Judah, who ſeems early to have followed the prophet's advice, and fallen to the Chaldeans; and now as a reward was made governor of the land: yet he would not preſcribe to him, but left the matter to his own conſideration, having ſupplied him with victuals, which, in the exhauſted ſtate of the country, were neceſſary for his preſent ſubſiſtence, and made him a handſome preſent beſides; a noble inſtance of generoſity in a heathen officer towards a holy prophet. With his advice Jeremiah complied, and joined Gedaliah at Mizpah, rather chuſing to ſuſtain the hardſhips he might be expoſed to in God's heritage, among his poor people, than dwell in affluence in the land of the heathen.

7. ¶ [e] Now when all the captains of the forces which were in the fields, even they and their men heard that the king of Babylon had made Gedaliah the ſon of Ahikam governor in the land, and had committed unto him men, and women, and children, and of the poor of the land, of them that were not carried away captive to Babylon; 8. Then they came to Gedaliah to Mizpah, even Iſhmael the ſon of Nethaniah, and Johanan and Jonathan the ſons of Kareah, and Seraiah the ſon of Tanhumeth, and the ſons of Ephai the Netophathite, and Jezaniah the ſon of a Maachathite, they and their men. 9. And Gedaliah the ſon of Ahikam, the ſon of Shaphan, ſware unto them and to their men, ſaying, Fear not to ſerve the Chaldeans: dwell in the land, and ſerve the king of Babylon, [f] and it ſhall be well with you. 10. As for me, Behold, I will dwell at Mizpah † to ſerve the Chaldeans which will come unto us: but ye, gather ye wine, and ſummer-fruits, and oil, and put them in your veſſels, and dwell in your cities that ye have taken. 11. Likewiſe when all the Jews that were in Moab, and among the Ammonites, and in Edom, and that were in all the countries, heard that the king of Babylon had left a remnant of Judah, and that he had ſet over them Gedaliah the ſon of Ahikam the ſon of Shaphan; 12. Even all the Jews returned out of all places whither they were driven, and came to the land of Judah, to Gedaliah unto Mizpah, and gathered wine and ſummer-fruits very much. 13. ¶ Moreover Johanan the ſon of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were in the fields, came to Gedaliah to Mizpah, 14. And ſaid unto him, Doſt thou certainly know that [g] Baalis the king of the Ammonites hath ſent [h] Iſhmael the ſon of Nethaniah ‡ to ſlay thee? But Gedaliah the ſon of Ahikam believed them not. 15. Then Johanan the ſon of Kareah ſpake to Gedaliah in Mizpah ſecretly, ſaying, Let me go, I pray thee, and I will ſlay Iſhmael the ſon of Nethaniah, and no man ſhall know it: wherefore ſhould he ſlay thee, that all the Jews which are gathered unto thee ſhould be ſcattered, and the remnant of Judah periſh? 16. But Gedaliah the ſon of Ahikam ſaid unto Johanan the ſon of Kareah, [i] Thou ſhalt not do this thing, for thou ſpeakeſt ‖ falſly of Iſhmael.

[e] 2 Kings xxv. 23.
[f] Chap. xxxviii. 20.
† Heb. To ſtand before.
[g] Zech. i. 15.
[h] Ver. 10. Iſa. xxvi. 10.
‡ Heb. To ſtrike thee in ſoul. Num. xxxv. 11.
[i] 1 Cor. xiii. 7.
‖ Heb. Falſehood, or a lie.

v. 7—16. A ſudden gleam of unexpected proſperity prepares but for the laſt ſtroke, which ſhould ruin the miſerable remnant which was left.

1. Under Gedaliah's government, notwithſtanding the late deſolations, things ſeemed to wear a promiſing aſpect. The captains of the forces, who had not been able to throw themſelves into the city during the ſiege, and had lurked in ſome retreat; or rather had eſcaped with the ſhattered remains of the ſoldiery, when Zedekiah was taken, came to Gedaliah to Mizpah; and as he had, it ſeems, full power left him from the king of Babylon to receive all who quietly ſubmitted, he gave them a ſolem oath of protection on condition of their fidelity, and aſſures them, that their fears were groundleſs of being delivered up to the Chaldeans, becauſe they had been in arms againſt them; but if they now lived peaceably, they might live comfortably. He himſelf would reſide at Mizpah, and tranſact all the matters of tribute to be paid the Chaldeans; or to ſtand before them, to intercede for them if any enquiry was made after them; to convey to them any orders, and render homage on their behalf; whilſt they had nothing to do but to occupy the land, to gather the vintage, the ſummer-fruits, and oil, lay up their winter's ſtore, and enjoy the plenty God had once more reſtored to them. The rumour of this peaceable re-eſtabliſhment of the government, under ſo good a man as Gedaliah, ſoon reached the neighbouring nations, and drew a vaſt concourſe of Jews, who had taken refuge there, to return and ſubmit to the Chaldean government, ſo that the country was again repleniſhed with inhabitants, and they gathered wine and ſummer-fruits very much. Thus once more they began to taſte God's goodneſs, if that at laſt might lead them to repentance.

2. A dark ſcheme appears framed to interrupt and deſtroy this ſhort-lived proſperity. Johanan, one of the captains who had returned, got intelligence of a plot contrived by Baalis, king of the Ammonites, the hereditary enemy of the Jews, and to be executed by Iſhmael, who had undertaken to diſpatch Gedaliah, envious probably at his advancement, and thinking himſelf, as of the ſeed royal, more fit to rule. Of this Johanan informed the governor; and to prevent the threatned miſchief, offered privately to diſpatch Iſhmael; but Gedaliah, being a man of integrity himſelf, would not entertain a ſuſpicion of Iſhmael as capable of ſo baſe a deed, but rejects the intelligence as falſe, and forbids him to proceed a ſtep farther in the affair. Note, (1.) Charity hopeth all things, thinketh no evil; and they who are conſcious of their own ſimplicity, believe others guileleſs as themſelves. (2.) No obligations can bind the ſwellings of ambition; ſuch men would mount the throne over the corpſes of thoſe to whom they are even indebted for the very power of deſtroying them. (3.) It would be highly dangerous to kill by way of prevention; in ſuch a caſe, no man's life would be ſafe from a malicious tongue. (4.) Though it were ſinful to be ſuſpicious, yet when advertiſed of our danger, it were wiſe to be on our guard.

CHAP. XLI.

It is a very tragical ſtory that is related in this chapter, and ſhews, that evil purſues ſinners. The black cloud that was gathering in the foregoing chapter, here burſts in a dreadful ſtorm. 1. Gedaliah and all that were with him are barbarouſly ſlain by Iſhmael, ver. 1—3. 2. A pit is filled with their dead bodies, ver. 9. 3. Some devout men that were going to Jeruſalem are drawn in, and ſlain by Iſhmael, ver. 4—7. Only ten of them eſcaped, ver. 8. 4. Thoſe that eſcaped the ſword, are taken priſoners by Iſhmael, and carried off towards the country of the Ammonites, ver. 10. 5. By the conduct of Johanan, though the death of the ſlain is not revenged, yet the priſoners are recovered, and he now becomes their commander in chief, ver. 11—16. 6. His project is to carry them into the land of Egypt, ver 17, 18.

1. NOW it came to paſs in the ſeventh month, [a] that Iſhmael the ſon of Nethaniah the ſon of Eliſhama of the ſeed royal, and the princes of the king, even ten men with him, came unto Gedaliah the ſon of Ahikam to Mizpah, and there they [b] did eat bread together in Mizpah. 2. Then aroſe Iſhmael the ſon of Nethaniah, and the ten men that were with him, and [c] ſmote Gedaliah the ſon of Ahikam the ſon of Shaphan with the ſword, and ſlew him, whom the king of Babylon had made governor over the land. 3. Iſhmael alſo ſlew all the Jews that were with him, even with Gedaliah at Mizpah, and the Chaldeans that were found there, and the men of war. 4. And it came to paſs the ſecond day after he had ſlain Gedaliah, and no man knew it, 5. That there came certain from Shechem, from Shiloh, and from Samaria, even fourſcore men having their beards ſhaven, and their clothes rent, and having cut themſelves, with offerings and incenſe in their hand, to bring them to [d] the houſe of the LORD. 6. And Iſhmael the ſon of Nethaniah went forth from Mizpah to meet them, † weeping all along as he went: and it came to paſs as he met them, he ſaid unto them, Come to Gedaliah the ſon of Ahikam. 7. And it was ſo when they came into the midſt of the city, that Iſhmael the ſon of Nethaniah ſlew them, [e] and caſt them into the midſt of the pit, he, and the men that were with him. 8. But ten men were found among them that ſaid unto Iſhmael, ſlay us not: for we have treaſures in the field, of wheat, and of barley, and of oil, and of honey. So he forbare, and ſlew them not among their brethren. 9. Now the pit wherein Iſhmael had caſt all the dead bodies of the men ([f] whom he had ſlain ‡ becauſe of Gedaliah) was it, [g] which Aſa the king had made for fear of Baaſha king of Iſrael; and Iſhmael the ſon of Nethaniah filled it with them that were ſlain. 10. Then Iſhmael carried away captive all the reſidue of the people, that were in Mizpah, [h] even the king's daughters, and all the people that remained in Mizpah, whom Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard had committed to Gedaliah the ſon of Ahikam, and Iſhmael the ſon of Nethaniah carried them away captive, and departed to go over to the Ammonites.

[a] 2 Kings xxv. 25. Chap. xl. 6, 8.
[b] Pſ. xli. 9.
[c] 2 Kings xxv. 25.
[d] Pſ. cii. 14.
† Heb. In going and weeping.
[e] 1 Mac. vii. 19.
[f] Ver 3, 7.
‡ Heb. By the hand, or by the ſide of Gedaliah.
[g] 1 Kings xv. 22. 2 Chron. xvi. 6.
[h] Chap. xliii. 6.

v. 1—10. A ſcene of more complicated villainy and unprovoked barbarity can hardly be found than is here recorded.

1. Gedaliah is aſſaſſinated. Unſuſpicious of Iſhmael, and the princes with him, who came with a pretence of paying a viſit of friendſhip, he kindly and generouſly entertained them; when, at a ſignal given, Iſhmael, and the reſt of the conſpirators, ſuddenly roſe on Gedaliah and ſlew him; nor ſheathed their ſwords till they had in cold blood maſſacred all the men, both Jews and Chaldeans, which were in Mizpah. And to this they ſeem to have been inſtigated by their revenge, becauſe Gedaliah and the Jews had fallen to the Chaldeans; or by their envy, becauſe Iſhmael, of the ſeed royal, and the princes, could not bear to ſee Gedaliah preferred before them. Such horrid work do the Satanical tempers of fallen ſinners make, when left without reſtraint.

2. Not content with all the blood they had ſhed, their wanton cruelty ſeeks new objects. Fourſcore men from Shechem, Samaria, and Shiloh, wholly ignorant of what had paſſed, were on their way to the temple at Jeruſalem, with deepeſt ſigns of expreſſive woe to lament its deſolations; and preſent, if but on the ruined altar, their oblations; ſo dear to them was the very duſt thereof. Theſe, with hypocritical tears, Iſhmael went forth to meet, that he might decoy them to Mizpah, under pretence of an invitation from Gedaliah, as if he was yet alive, v. 6. and they, unſuſpicious of his deſign, went with him into the midſt of the city, where they were inſtantly ſlain, and their bodies caſt into one pit with thoſe who fell with Gedaliah. This pit was dug by Aſa, when he fortified Mizpah againſt Baaſha, 1 Kings xi. 22. Ten men only eſcaped, by pleading the treaſures they had concealed in the field; and covetouſneſs prevailing over cruelty, they permitted them to live to diſcover them. Whilſt we read ſuch ſcenes of horror, what reaſon have we to bleſs God for his reſtraining grace upon the hearts and hands of wicked men: but for this the world would be an Aceldama, a field of blood.

3. The bloody work being done, Iſhmael attempts to ſecure the plunder and the priſoners, the king's daughters, and others, by a retreat to Baalis, king of the Ammonites, who ſeems to have inſtigated him to perpetrate this horrid deed.

11. ¶ But when Johanan the ſon of Kareah, and [l] all the captains of the forces that were with them, heard of all the evil that Iſhmael the ſon of Nethaniah had done, 12. Then they took all the men, and went to fight with Iſhmael the ſon of Nethaniah, and found him by [k] the great waters that are in Gibeon. 13. Now it came to paſs, that when all the people which were with Iſhmael ſaw Johanan the ſon of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, then they were glad. 14. So all the people that Iſhmael had carried away captive from Mizpah, caſt about and returned, and went unto Johanan the ſon of Kareah. 15. But Iſhmael the ſon of Nethaniah eſcaped from Johanan with eight men, and went to the Ammonites. 16. Then took Johanan the ſon of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, all the remnant of the people whom he had recovered from Iſhmael the ſon of Nethaniah, from Mizpah (after that he had ſlain Gedaliah the ſon of Ahikam) even mighty men of war, and the women and the children, and the eunuchs whom he had brought again from Gibeon. 17. And they departed and dwelt in the habitation of [l] Chimham, which is by Bethlehem, to go to enter into Egypt. 18. † Becauſe of the Chaldeans: for they were afraid of them, becauſe Iſhmael the ſon of Nethaniah had ſlain Gedaliah the ſon of Ahikam, whom the king of Babylon made governor in the land.

[l] Chap. xl. 8.
[k] 2 Sam. ii. 13.
[l] 2 Sam. xix. 37, 38.
|| Heb. From the face of.

v. 11—18. A deed ſo atrocious could not be long concealed; and no ſooner doth the report of it reach Johanan, than, fired with indignation, he collected all the forces he could muſter, purſued the fugitives, and overtook them at the pool of Gibeon; which though not the direct road, they might have taken to prevent a purſuit, or get the treaſures of the men whoſe lives they had ſpared; thus oftentimes we ſee men's covetouſneſs their deſtruction. No ſooner had Johanan and his troops appeared, than thoſe with Iſhmael immediately deſerted him, and with difficulty he himſelf, with eight of the aſſaſſins, eſcaped to the land of Ammon: perhaps now unwelcome gueſts, when ſtripped of that plunder the king of Ammon hoped to ſhare. Johanan with his forces, and thoſe he had recovered, either through his own fiery ſpirit, or the juſt judgment of God upon the people, that would give them no reſt till they were utterly conſumed, reſolved hereupon to depart into Egypt; either hoping that under the Egyptian government they ſhould enjoy greater ſafety, or, as was pretended, fearing the Chaldeans would puniſh them for the death of Gedaliah; though in fact they might rather have expected commendation from them, as his avengers. The reſolution however being taken, they left Mizpah, and pitched in the habitation of Chimham (ſo called, probably, as being given by David to that ſon of Barzillai) near Bethlehem, in the way that led to Egypt, ready to fly thither if any danger threatned them. Note, Men's unbelieving fears often plunge them into the very miſeries they dread.

CHAP. XLII.

Johanan and the captains being ſtrongly bent upon going into Egypt, had a great deſire that God ſhould direct them ſo to do; like Balaam, who, when he was determined to go curſe Iſrael, aſked God leave. Here is, 1. The fair bargain that was made between Jeremiah and them about conſulting God in this matter, ver. 1—6. 2. The meſſage at large which God ſent them, in anſwer to their enquiry; in which, 1. They are encouraged to continue in the land of Judah, and aſſured, that if they did ſo, it ſhould be well with them, ver. 7—12. 2. They are forbidden to go to Egypt, and plainly told that if they did, it would be their ruin, ver. 13—18. 3. They are charged with diſſimulation in their aſking what God's will was in this matter, and diſobedience when they were told what it was; and ſentence is paſſed upon them for it, ver. 19—22.

Before Christ 588.

1. THEN [a] all the captains of the forces, and Johanan the ſon of Kareah, and Jezaniah the ſon of Hoſhaiah, and all the people from the leaſt even unto the greateſt, came near, 2. And ſaid unto Jeremiah the prophet, Let, we beſeech thee, our ſupplication † be accepted before thee, and [b] pray for us unto the LORD thy God, even for all this remnant, (for we are left but a few of many, as thine eyes do behold us) 3. That the LORD thy God may ſhew us [c] the way wherein we may walk, and the thing that we may do. 4. Then Jeremiah the prophet ſaid unto them, I have heard you; behold, I [d] will pray unto the LORD your God according to your words, and it ſhall come to paſs, that [e] whatſoever thing the LORD ſhall anſwer you, I will declare it unto you: I will [f] keep nothing back from you. 5. Then they ſaid to Jeremiah, The LORD be a true and faithful witneſs between us, if we do not even according to all things for the which the LORD thy God ſhall ſend thee to us. 6. [g] Whether it be good or whether it be evil, we will obey the voice of the LORD our God, to whom we ſend thee: [h] that it may be well with us, when we obey the voice of the LORD our God.

[a] Chap. xl. 8.
† Heb. Fall before thee.
[b] Iſa. xxxvii. 4.
[c] Ezra viii. 21.
[d] 1 Sam. xii. 23.
[e] 1 Kings xxii, 14.
[f] 1 Sam. iii. 18. Acts xx. 20.
[g] Deut. v. 28. Ver. 20. Mat. xv. 8.
[h] Deut. vi. 3. Chap. vii. 23.

v. 1—6. Jeremiah in all theſe changes had by divine Providence been preſerved: perhaps he had retired to Anathoth, and thus eſcaped the maſſacre at Mizpah, and now joined Johanan's company. Hereupon, in their preſent difficulties,

1. They unanimouſly reſolve to conſult him, and beg his prayers and advice. With greateſt reſpect they approach him, deſire a favourable acceptance of their requeſt, and intreat him to pray for them; intimating how unworthy they thought themſelves to open their lips, and what a confidence they placed in his intereſt in the divine regard. They were now reduced to a helpleſs few, as he ſaw, their condition truly deplorable, not knowing what to do, or whither to go, and therefore deſiring divine direction. Note, In our difficulties and diſtreſs, our firſt recourſe ſhould be made to God in prayer; and if we have not a prophet's word to guide us, we may hope for God's good providence to direct us.

2. Jeremiah readily undertakes the taſk. The ſlights he had received did not abate his zeal and regard for the welfare of his countrymen. His prayers ſhall be ever for them, and he promiſes faithfully to report what God ſhould reveal to him. Note, (1.) Miniſters ſhould be men of prayer; it is this muſt make way for the efficacy of their advice. (2.) It is required of ſuch to be faithful, delivering, without reſerve, the whole counſel of God.

3. They ſolemnly engage to conform to God's will entirely without reſerve, and appeal to him for the uprightneſs of their intentions, profeſſing their full conviction that it never can be well with them, unleſs they are unfeignedly obedient: a ſhocking piece of hypocriſy throughout, when they really meant nothing leſs. Note, (1.) They who would profit by a miniſter's prayers, muſt pay ſerious attention to his preaching. (2.) We never can be ſincere with God, if we do not obey his will ſo far as it is known to us. (3.) It can only then be ever well with us, when we are found following God in ſimplicity and truth.

7. ¶ And it came to paſs after ten days, that the word of the LORD came unto Jeremiah. 8. Then called he Johanan the ſon of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces which were with him, and all the people from the leaſt even to the greateſt, 9. And ſaid unto them, Thus ſaith the LORD the God of Iſrael, unto whom ye ſent me to preſent your ſupplication before him, 10. If ye will ſtill abide in this land, then will I build you, and not pull you down, and I will plant you, and not pluck you up: for [i] I repent me of the evil that I have done unto you. 11. Be not afraid of the king of Babylon, of whom ye are afraid: be not afraid of him, ſaith the LORD: for [k] I am with you to ſave you, and to deliver you from his hand. 12. And [l] I will ſhew mercies unto you, that he may have mercy upon you, and cauſe you to return to your own land. 13. ¶ But if ye ſay, We will not dwell in this land, [m] neither obey the voice of the LORD your God, 14. Saying, No, but we will go into the land of Egypt, where we ſhall ſee no war, nor hear the ſound of the trumpet, nor have hunger of bread, and there will we dwell: 15. (And now therefore hear the word of the LORD, ye remnant of Judah, Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, If ye wholly [n] ſet your faces to enter into Egypt, and go to ſojourn there) 16. Then it ſhall come to paſs, that [o] the ſword which ye feared, ſhall overtake you there in the land of Egypt, and the famine whereof ye were afraid, ſhall follow cloſe after you there in Egypt, and there ye ſhall die. 17. [p] † So ſhall it be with all the men that ſet their faces to go into Egypt to ſojourn there, they ſhall die by the ſword, by the famine, and by the peſtilence: and [q] none of them ſhall remain or eſcape from the evil that I will bring upon them. 18. For thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, As [r] mine anger and my fury hath been poured forth upon the inhabitants of Jeruſalem; ſo ſhall my fury be poured forth upon you, when ye ſhall enter into Egypt: and [s] ye ſhall be an execration, and an aſtoniſhment, and a curſe, and a reproach, and ye ſhall ſee this place no more. 19. ¶ The LORD hath ſaid concerning you, O ye remnant of Judah, Go ye not into Egypt: know certainly, [t] that I have ‡ admoniſhed you this day. 20. For [u] ye § diſſembled in your hearts, when ye ſent me unto the LORD your God, ſaying, [x] Pray for us unto the LORD our God, and according unto all that the LORD our God ſhall ſay, ſo declare unto us, and we will do it. 21. And now I have this day declared it to you, but ye have not obeyed the voice of the LORD your God, nor any thing for the which he hath ſent me unto you. 22. Now therefore know certainly, that [y] ye ſhall die by the ſword, by the famine, and by the peſtilence, in the place whither ye deſire ‖ to go, and to ſojourn.

[i] Pſ. cvi. 45.
[k] Rom. viii. 31.
[l] Pſ. cvi. 46.
[m] Chap. xliv. 16.
[n] Deut. xvii. 16.

Before Chriſt 588.

[o] Ezek. xi. 8.
[p] Chap. xliv. 12.
† Heb. So ſhall all the men be.
[q] Chap. xliv. 14, 28.
[r] Chap. vii. 20.
[s] Chap. xxix. 18, 22. Zech. viii. 13.
[t] Deut. iv. 26. Acts xx. 26, 27.
‡ Heb. Teſtified againſt you.
[u] Ezek. xxxiii. 31, 32. Mat. xv. 1.
§ Or, uſed deceit againſt your ſouls.
[x] Ver. 2.
[y] Ver. 17.
‖ Or, to go to ſojourn.

v. 7—22. God might well have refuſed to be enquired of by thoſe whoſe hypocriſy he well knew; but after ten days of ſuſpenſe he vouchſafes them an anſwer, which Jeremiah, in a public convocation of all the people from the leaſt unto the greateſt, faithfully delivers.

1. God enjoins them to abide in the land where they were, nor think of going into Egypt; and, to engage them hereunto, he aſſures them of his own compaſſion towards them; that he repented of the evil he had done unto them; would change his providential diſpenſations towards them; and, inſtead of the deſtruction they apprehended, build and plant them in their own land. Nor need they fear the king of Babylon; ſince God would ſhew them mercies, he ſhall be diſpoſed to do the ſame; God will reſtrain him, and ſave them from the revenge they feared he would take, and cauſe them peaceably and comfortably to poſſeſs the heritage of the Lord, with all who having taken ſhelter in the neighbouring countries, would return to join them. Note, (1.) God's mercy is the foundation of all our hopes and happineſs. (2.) He hath in his hands the hearts of kings, and can turn them according to his own will and wiſdom. (3.) They who carefully obey God's will, may humbly expect his bleſſing.

2. He threatens them, in caſe of diſobedience, with the moſt terrible deſtruction. If they refuſed to abide in Judea, and, contrary to this clear declaration of God's will, thought themſelves wiſer than him, and wilfully reſolved for Egypt, on the preſumption that there they ſhould ſee no war, or want of bread; he ſolemnly aſſures them, as many at leaſt as ſet their faces to go into Egypt, and having the power might force the reluctant to join them; that thither God's wrath ſhould purſue them; the evils they feared terribly overtake them; the peſtilence, famine, and ſword deſtroy them; ſo that not one of them ſhould ſee their native land again; but all the ſtorms of vengeance, which ſo lately broke upon Jeruſalem, with redoubled fury ſhould be poured upon them, and they be made an execration, an aſtoniſhment, a curſe, and a reproach, to all who beheld their dire cataſtrophe. Note, (1.) They who think by ſin to eſcape ſuffering, are only ruſhing on the thick boſſes of God's buckler. (2.) The curſe of God follows ſinners cloſe as their ſhadow; they can no more fly from it, than from themſelves. (3.) They who have made themſelves vile by their ſin, God will make them viler by the judgments he will inflict upon them.

3. The prophet reproaches them with their abominable hypocriſy, and, to leave them without excuſe, repeats the warning, Go not into Egypt. They knew in their conſciences the diſſimulation they had uſed, and that before they enquired of God, they had taken their reſolution to go, and were reſolved to abide by it: therefore, ſince they were obſtinately hardened, and refuſed to obey God's word, notwithſtanding the ſolemn appeal they had made to him of their ſincerity, their doom is unchangeably fixed; and in Egypt, where they chuſe to ſojourn, they ſhall die by the ſword, by the famine, and by the peſtilence. Note, (1.) Diſſemblers with God are ſure to bring fearful ruin on their own ſouls. (2.) If ſinners will not obey, yet it becomes us to bear our teſtimony, and leave them at leaſt inexcuſable in their iniquity. (3.) The favourite ſchemes

Before Chriſt 588. which the ſinner forms to perpetuate his proſperity, or ſecure himſelf from harm, hurry him only the ſooner to the precipice of ruin.

CHAP. XLIII.

We have here, 1. The people's contempt of this meſſage; they denied it to be the word of God, ver. 1—3. and then made no difficulty of going into Egypt and forcing Jeremiah to go along with them, ver. 4—7. 2. God ſends them another meſſage, foretelling the king of Babylon's purſuit of them into Egypt, ver. 8—13.

1. AND it came to paſs, that when Jeremiah had made an end of ſpeaking unto all the people, all the words of the LORD their God, for which the LORD their God had ſent him to them, even all theſe
[a] Chap. xlii. 1. words, 2. Then ſpake [a] Azariah the ſon of Hoſhaiah, and Johanan the ſon of Kareah, and all the proud men, ſaying unto Jeremiah, Thou ſpeakeſt falſly: the LORD our God hath not ſent thee to ſay, Go not into Egypt to ſojourn there. 3. But Baruch the ſon of Neriah ſetteth thee on againſt us, for to deliver us into the hand of the Chaldeans, that they might put us to death, and carry us away captives into Babylon. 4. So Johanan the ſon of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces, [b] Chap. xliv. 5. Ver. 7. and all the people, [b] obeyed not the voice of the LORD, to dwell in the land of Judah. 5. But Johanan the ſon of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces, took all the remnant of Judah, that were returned from all nations whither they had been driven, to dwell in the land of Judah; 6. Even men, and women, and chil[c] Chap. xli. 10. dren, and [c] the king's daughters, [d] and every perſon [d] Chap. xxxix. 9. that Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard had left with Gedaliah the ſon of Ahikam the ſon of Shaphan, and Jeremiah the prophet, and Baruch the ſon of Neriah. 7. So they came into the land of Egypt: for [e] Ver. 4. they obeyed not the voice of the LORD; thus came [f] Called Hanes, Iſa. xxx. 4. they, even to [f] Tahpanhes.

v. 1—7. To a meſſage ſo plain there ſeemed no place for objection, but the devil will never fail to help ſinners to an excuſe for their infidelity and diſobedience.

1. They pretend Jeremiah impoſed on them, and that this declaration was not from God. Johanan and Azariah, with all the proud men, dare give the prophet the lie, and impute to Baruch's influence the anſwer he reported as from God, as if they two had formed a deſign to give them into the hands of the Chaldeans to deſtroy them: a ſuggeſtion not only utterly improbable, but moſt malicious, as well as ungrateful, when theſe very men had rather foregone all the comforts they might have enjoyed in Babylon, than deſert their own country in its diſtreſſed ſituation. Note, (1.) Pride is among the moſt damning ſins, the root of infidelity, and the ſure road to hell. (2.) The trueſt friends of their country are often thus branded as the betrayers of it. (3.) They who are full of ill deſigns themſelves, are the firſt to repreſent others in the ſame malignant colours. The miniſters of God, who labour purely for the good of men's ſouls, are thus uſually calumniated, as meaning only to ſerve themſelves; but their judgment is with their God.

2. They march without delay for Egypt, reſolved not to abide in Judea, as God enjoined them; and all the Jews who had returned thither in hopes of a peaceable habitation, are perſuaded or compelled to accompany them; and, among the reſt, Jeremiah and Baruch. Tahpanhes, the royal reſidence, was the place whither they bent their courſe; and, as Egypt was then their ally, they probably met with a friendly reception. Note, (1.) Proud men hate contradiction, and will have their way: if they cannot obtain conſent, they will force compliance. (2.) They who go out of God's way, have only themſelves to blame for the conſequences.

587. 8. Then came the word of the LORD unto Jeremiah in Tahpanhes, ſaying, 9. Take great ſtones in thine hand, and hide them in the clay in the brick-kiln, which is at the entry of Pharaoh's houſe in Tahpanhes, in the ſight of the men of Judah: 10. And ſay unto them, Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts the God of Iſrael, Behold, I will ſend and take Nebuchadrezzar the king [g] Chap. xxv. 9. & xxvii. 6. of Babylon [g] my ſervant, and will ſet his throne upon theſe ſtones that I have hid, and he ſhall ſpread his royal [h] Chap. xlvi. 13. pavilion over them. 11. And when he cometh [h] he ſhall [i] Chap. xv, 2. Zech. xi. 9. ſmite the land of Egypt, and deliver [i] ſuch as are for death, to death; and ſuch as are for captivity, to captivity; and ſuch as are for the ſword, to the ſword. 12.
And I will kindle a fire in [k] the houſes of the gods of Before Chriſt 588.
Egypt, and he ſhall burn, and carry them away cap- [k] Iſa. xix. 1.
tives, and he ſhall array himſelf with the land of Egypt, as a ſhepherd putteth on his garment, and he ſhall go forth from thence in peace. 13. He ſhall break alſo the † images of ‡ Beth-ſhemeſh, that is in the land of † Heb. Statues, or ſtanding images.
Egypt; and the houſes of the gods of the Egyptians ‡ Or, the houſe of the ſun.
ſhall he burn with fire.

v. 8—13. Though Jeremiah was now againſt his will in this ſtrange land, God comforts him with the viſits of his grace, and employs him to denounce his wrath: ſince they have rejected him as their teacher, he muſt be their troubler. They ſought refuge in Egypt, hoping there to be protected from the Chaldeans; but thither ſhall the Chaldeans purſue them, and deſtroy both them, and the Egyptians who have received them.

1. By a ſign the deſtruction of Egypt is ſet forth. God commands Jeremiah to take great ſtones, and hide them in the brick-kiln, which was not far from Pharaoh's houſe, in the ſight of the men of Judah, who would obſerve the ſign, and be inquiſitive about the meaning.

2. This is at large declared. The king of Babylon, employed as God's ſervant, who had deſtroyed Jeruſalem, ſhall proſecute his victories, and Egypt fall before him: on theſe very ſtones ſhould his throne be ſet, and his pavilion ſpread over it. By famine, peſtilence, and the ſword, thoſe doomed to death muſt fall, and others be led into a miſerable captivity: and ſo far from being able to defend their votaries, the numerous gods of Egypt ſhall not be able to defend themſelves: their temples with the idols burnt, and thoſe of precious materials carried away among the ſpoils. As eaſily as a ſhepherd puts on his coat, and ſo adorned, ſhall Nebuchadnezzar and his army return laden with the wealth of Egypt, and leave the country in peace, entirely ſubjected to his government. Note, (1.) It is dangerous admitting thoſe into our friendſhip, whom God purſues as an enemy, leſt we ſhare in their plagues. (2.) God often makes one wicked nation a ſcourge to another; and whilſt the conquerors mean nothing leſs, they are but the inſtruments his providence employs.

CHAP. XLIV.

In this chapter we have, 1. An awakening ſermon which Jeremiah preached to the Jews in Egypt, to reprove them for their idolatry, and to threaten the judgments of God againſt them for it, ver. 1—14. 2. The impudent and impious contempt which the people put upon this admonition, and their declared reſolution to perſiſt in their idolatries, ver. 15—19. 3. The ſentence paſſed upon them for their obſtinacy, that they ſhould all be cut off, and periſh in Egypt, except a very ſmall number; and as a ſign or earneſt of it, the king of Egypt ſhould ſhortly fall into the hands of the king of Babylon, and be unable any longer to protect them, ver. 20—30.

1. THE word that came to Jeremiah concerning 587.
all the Jews which dwell in the land of Egypt, which dwell at Migdol, and [a] at Tahpanhes, and at [a] Chap. xliii. 7.
Noph, and in the country of Pathros, ſaying, 2. Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, Ye have ſeen all the evil that I have brought upon Jeruſalem, and upon all the cities of Judah; and behold, this day
they are a deſolation, and no man dwelleth therein.
3. Becauſe of their wickedneſs which they have committed [b] to provoke me to anger, in that they went to [b] Chap. vii. 18.
burn incenſe, and to ſerve other gods whom they knew not, neither they, you, nor your fathers. 4. Howbeit, [c] I ſent unto you all my ſervants the prophets, riſing [c] 2 Chron. xvi. 15. Chap. vii. 25. & xxv. 3. & xxvi. 5. & xxix. 19. & xxxii. 33.
early and ſending them, ſaying, O do not this abominable thing that I hate. 5. But they hearkned not, nor inclined their ear to turn from their wickedneſs, to burn no incenſe unto other gods. 6. Wherefore [d] my fury [d] Chap. xlii. 18.
and mine anger was poured forth, and was kindled in the cities of Judah, and in the ſtreets of Jeruſalem, and they are waſted and deſolate, as at this day. 7. Therefore now thus ſaith the LORD, the God of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, Wherefore commit ye this great evil againſt your ſouls, to cut off from you man and woman, child and ſuckling † out of Judah, to leave you none to re- † Heb. Out of the midſt of Judah.
main; 8. In that [e] ye provoke me unto wrath with the [e] Chap. xxv. 6. works of your hands, burning incenſe unto other gods in the land of Egypt, whither ye be gone to dwell, that ye [f] Chap. xlii. 18.
might cut yourſelves off, and that ye might be [f] a curſe, and a reproach among all the nations of the earth? ‡ Heb. Wickedneſſes, or puniſhments.
9. Have ye forgotten the ‡ wickedneſs of your fathers, and

and the wickedneſs of the kings of Judah, and the wickedneſs of their wives, and your own wickedneſs, and the wickedneſs of your wives, which they have committed in the land of Judah, and in the ſtreets of Jeruſalem? 10. They are not § humbled even unto this day, neither have they feared nor walked in my law, nor in my ſtatutes that I ſet before you, and before your fathers. 11. ¶ Therefore thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, Behold, [g] I will ſet my face againſt you for evil, and to cut off all Judah. 12. And I will take the remnant of Judah, [h] that have ſet their faces to go into the land of Egypt to ſojourn there, and they ſhall all be conſumed, and fall in the land of Egypt: they ſhall even be conſumed by the ſword, and by the famine: they ſhall die, from the leaſt even unto the greateſt, by the ſword, and by the famine: and [i] they ſhall be an execration, and an aſtoniſhment, and a curſe, and a reproach. 13. For [k] I will puniſh them that dwell in the land of Egypt, as I have puniſhed Jeruſalem, by the ſword, by the famine, and by the peſtilence: 14. So that [l] none of the remnant of Judah which are gone into the land of Egypt to ſojourn there, ſhall eſcape or remain, that they ſhould return into the land of Judah, to the which they ‖ have a deſire to return to dwell there: for [m] none ſhall return but ſuch as ſhall eſcape.

§ Heb. Contrite. Pſ. li. 17.
g Lev. xvii. 10. Chap. xxi. 10. Am. ix. 4.
h Chap. xlii. 15.
i Chap xlii. 18.
k Chap. xliii. 11.
l Chap. xlii. 17.
‖ Heb. Lift up their ſoul.
m Ver. 28.

v. 1—14. No ſufferings will change the heart or conduct, till divine grace powerfully interpoſes. If any thing could have deterred a people from idolatry, we might well have thought what the Jews had ſuffered abundantly ſufficient; yet here we behold them as mad upon their idols as ever. They were now diſperſed in the ſeveral cities of Egypt, and Jeremiah is ordered,

1. To remind them of their paſt ſins, in oppoſition to the moſt earneſt admonitions, and the conſequences they had beheld. They had ſeen their cities ruinous heaps, their fruitful country turned into a deſart, without man or beaſt, v. 2. Their wickedneſs, eſpecially their idolatries, were the cauſe of it; the folly as well as impiety of which, was amazing, v. 3. and this aggravated by the repeated admonitions they had rejected, and the earneſt exhortations they had deſpiſed: when God ſent by his prophets, ſaying, O do not this abominable thing that I hate, they turned a deaf ear, and perſiſted in their abominations: therefore was his wrath poured out upon them, and the deſolations of the land, as at that day, ſtood a fearful warning againſt the like provocations. Note, (1.) Sin is the abominable thing God hates, and we cannot conceive or ſpeak of it with ſufficient deteſtation of its evil and malignity. (2.) The miniſters of God, who warn others of the fearful conſequences of ſin, muſt do it with an earneſtneſs and deep concern, ſuch as the caſe demands. (3.) Judgments upon others ſhould be our warnings: we are doubly culpable to ſin not only againſt God's word, but againſt what our own eyes have ſeen.

2. He upbraids them with their preſent idolatries, burning incenſe to the gods of Egypt, bringing heavy guilt on their conſciences, and aſſured deſtruction on body and ſoul, till they ſhould be made a proverb of wickedneſs and wretchedneſs, and an execration among all nations. He upbraids them alſo with their forgetfulneſs of their father's wickedneſs, and their own, the cauſe of all the judgments under which they groaned: unaffected and unhumbled with which, to that very day they perſiſted in their diſobedience to God's law, went on from evil to worſe, to fill up the meaſure of their iniquities to the full. Note, (1.) When under judgments the heart grows harder, it is a dire ſymptom of a reprobate mind. (2.) They who ſin againſt God, ſin againſt their own ſouls, and bring upon themſelves ſure and ſwift deſtruction.

3. He denounces God's vengeance on them for theſe abominations. As many as ſet their faces to go into Egypt, and were the authors of that pernicious reſolution, ſhall periſh there without exception, from the leaſt to the greateſt, and by the very judgments they deſigned thereby to avoid, which God had brought on Jeruſalem: nor ſhould a man of them ever again return unto their own land, as they hoped and deſired, when they thought they might do it with greater ſafety than at preſent, except the few that eſcaped out of the hands of Johanan. Or it intimates how much worſe their condition would be in Egypt, than that of the captives in Babylon: ſome of theſe ſhould come back again, but none ſhall return from Egypt. Note, (1.) They who will not be ruled by God's word, will be broken by his rod. (2.) They who will take their affairs out of God's hands, and think their own projects more to be depended on than God's promiſes and providence, will meet with ſure diſappointment.

15. ¶ Then all the men which knew that their wives had burnt incenſe unto other gods, and all the women that ſtood by, a great multitude, even all the people that dwelt in the land of Egypt, in Pathros, anſwered Jeremiah, ſaying, 16. As for the word that thou haſt ſpoken unto us in the name of the LORD, [n] we will not hearken unto thee. 17. But we will certainly do [o] whatſoever thing goeth forth out of our own mouth, to burn incenſe [p] unto † the queen of heaven, and to pour out drink-offerings unto her, as we have done, we and our fathers, our kings and our princes, in the cities of Judah, and in the ſtreets of Jeruſalem: for then had we plenty of ‡ victuals, and were well, and ſaw no evil.
18. But ſince we left off to burn incenſe to the queen of heaven, and to pour out drink-offerings unto her, we have wanted all things, and have been conſumed by the ſword and by the famine. 19. And when [q] we burnt incenſe to the queen of heaven, and poured out drink-offerings unto her, did we make her cakes to worſhip her, and pour out drink-offerings unto her without our men?

n Chap. vi. 16, 17.
o Num. xxx. 12. Ver. 25.
p Chap. vii. 18.
† Or frame of heaven.
‡ Heb. Bread.
q Chap. vii. 18.

v. 15—19. Never ſurely appeared more daring effrontery, and hardened impenitence.

1. They avow their determined reſolution to abide in their idolatries, and follow the devices of their own hearts. The women had been chiefly engaged in the idolatrous rites, and their huſbands approve and vindicate their conduct. Note, Cuſtom in ſin makes men daring and impudent.

2. They ſupport their determination by many pretended arguments. They had authority and antiquity to recommend the practice: their fathers did ſo; their kings patronized it; they had numbers on their ſide; their whole land had made public profeſſion of ſerving the queen of heaven, the moon, or the whole celeſtial hoſt: nay, they affirm, that then they had plenty of all good things, and date all their miſeries from their neglect of their idol's ſervice. Note, (1.) Antiquity, authority, numbers, &c. are no arguments to vindicate any practice the word of God forbids. (2.) Such is the deceivableneſs of unrighteouſneſs, that the very methods God takes to ſeparate men from their ſins, they urge as arguments to harden themſelves therein.

3. The women regarding themſelves as moſt aimed at by the prophet's rebuke, vindicate themſelves by pleading their huſbands countenance and approbation. Abſurd pretence! as if that could authoriſe them to tranſgreſs God's law. Note, (1.) Diſobedience is duty, when ſuperiors enjoin or countenance what God forbids. (2.) It is grievous, when they who ſhould aſſiſt each other in the way to heaven, are mutual tempters, and harden each other in their ſins.

20. ¶ Then Jeremiah ſaid unto all the people, to the men and to the women, and to all the people which had given him that anſwer, ſaying, 21. The incenſe that ye burnt in the cities of Judah, and in the ſtreets of Jeruſalem, ye and your fathers, your kings and your princes, and the people of the land, did not the LORD remember them, and came it not into his mind? 22. So that [r] the LORD could no longer bear, becauſe of the evil of your doings, and becauſe of the abominations which ye have committed: therefore is your land [s] a deſolation, and an aſtoniſhment, and [t] a curſe without an inhabitant, as at this day. 23. Becauſe you have burnt incenſe, and becauſe ye have ſinned againſt the LORD, and have not obeyed the voice of the LORD, nor walked in his law, nor in his ſtatutes, nor in his teſtimonies: therefore this evil is happened unto you, as at this day. 24.
Moreover, Jeremiah ſaid unto all the people, and to all the women, Hear the word of the LORD, all Judah that are in the land of Egypt. 25. Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, ſaying, [u] Ye and your wives have both ſpoken with your mouths, and fulfilled with your hand, ſaying, We will ſurely perform our vows that we have vowed, to burn incenſe to the queen of heaven, and to pour out drink-offerings unto her: ye will ſurely accompliſh your vows, and ſurely perform your vows. 26. Therefore hear ye the word of the LORD, all Judah that dwell in the land of Egypt, Behold, I have ſworn by my great name, ſaith the LORD, that my name ſhall no more be named in the mouth of any man of Judah, in all the land of Egypt, ſaying, The LORD God liveth. 27. [x] Behold, I will watch over them for evil, and not for good, and all the men of Judah that are in the land of Egypt ſhall be conſumed by the ſword, and by the famine, until there be an end of them. 28. Yet a ſmall number that eſcape
the r 2 Chron. xxxvi. 16.

s Ver. 2.
t Chap. xxvi. 6.
u Ver. 17, &c.
x Chap. i. 12. & xxxi. 28. Ezek. vii. 6.

Before Christ 587. the ſword, [y] ſhall return out of the land of Egypt into the land of Judah; and all the remnant of Judah that [y] Iſa. xxvii. 13. Ver. 14. are gone into the land of Egypt to ſojourn there, ſhall [z] Pſ. xxxiii. 11. Ver. 29. know [z] whoſe words ſhall ſtand, † mine or theirs. 29.
† Heb. From me, or from them. ¶ And this ſhall be a ſign unto you, ſaith the LORD, that I will puniſh you in this place, that ye may know that my words ſhall ſurely ſtand againſt you for evil.
[a] Chap. xlvi. 26. Ezek. xxix. 3, &c. 30. Thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, [a] I will give Pharaoh-hophra king of Egypt into the hand of his enemies, and into the hand of them that ſeek his life, as [b] Chap. xxxix. 5. [b] I gave Zedekiah king of Judah into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon his enemy, and that ſought his life.

v. 20—30. The prophet is neither intimidated by their numbers, nor diſcouraged by their obſtinacy. If they will not reform, at leaſt they ſhall hear their doom.

1. He contradicts the falſe aſſertion they had made, that all their troubles aroſe from their neglecting the ſervice of their idols, and ſhews them their real origin. It is true, God did long bear with their provocations, in hopes they would repent, but he did not overlook or forget them: no; he ſaw, and, unable longer to forbear, poured out his vengeance upon them for their wickedneſs, their idolatries, their rebellion, and diſobedience to his warnings, for which their land was a deſolation, and themſelves a curſe at that day.

2. God abandons them to the ſin and ruin they have choſen; and this is addreſſed particularly to the women, who were chief in the tranſgreſſion. They had declared their determined purpoſe of perſiſting in their abominations, and fulfilling their vows to the queen of heaven, as if their being under a vow to do evil could lay them under an obligation to perform it: therefore he gives them up to their own deluſions; and ſince they ſaid, Depart, he will depart, confirming it with an oath, to ſhew the immutability of his counſel. He will take from them every remains of religion; they ſhall no more ſwear by his name: either he will utterly conſume all the Jews in Egypt by famine and the ſword, and not leave a man to profane his holy name; or they ſhall ſink into the idolatries of Egypt, incorporate with that nation, and forget the very mention of Iſrael's God. A few indeed who, as Baruch, ſtood firm amidſt the general apoſtacy, ſhall eſcape this deſtruction, and return again to their own land; and they ſhall ſee whoſe word ſhall ſtand, theirs, who promiſed the idolaters impunity, or his, who threatned them with ruin. Note, (1.) A greater curſe cannot light upon the ſinner, than to be given up of God to the devices of his own heart. (2.) However men flatter themſelves, it will ſoon be proved whoſe word ſhall ſtand, God's or theirs.

3. God gives them a ſign of the certainty of the threatned judgments. The king of Egypt, their protector, ſhall be ſhortly given into Nebuchadrezzar's hands, as Zedekiah had been; and, ſo far from defending them, ſhould be ruined himſelf. Note, They who for human confidences forſake the living God, ſhall find them no better than broken reeds.

CHAP. XLV.

This prophecy, with thoſe that follow, were delivered a long while before the preceding. Baruch, for his fidelity, is taken under God's eſpecial protection; and herein encouragement is given to all God's faithful people to truſt him in the moſt trying ſeaſons. We have here, 1. How he was frightned when he was brought into trouble for writing and reading Jeremiah's roll, ver. 1—3. 2. How his fears were checked with a reproof for his great expectations, and ſilenced with a promiſe of preſervation, ver. 4. 5.

606. 1. [a] THE word that Jeremiah the prophet ſpake un[a] Chap. xxxvi. 1, 4. to Baruch the ſon of Neriah, when he had written theſe words in a book at the mouth of Jeremiah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim the ſon of Jo-ſiah king of Judah, ſaying, 2. Thus ſaith the LORD the God of Iſrael unto thee, O Baruch, 3. Thou didſt ſay, Wo is me now, for the LORD hath added grief to my ſorrow, I fainted in my ſighing, and I find no [b] 2 Cor. i. 4. reſt. 4. ¶ [b] Thus ſhalt thou ſay unto him, The LORD ſaith thus, Behold, that which I have built will I break down, and that which I have planted I will pluck up, even this whole land. 5. And ſeekeſt thou great things [c] Chap. xxv. 26. for thyſelf? ſeek them not: for behold, [c] I will bring evil upon all fleſh, ſaith the LORD: but thy life will [d] Chap. xxi. 9. & xxxviii. 2. & xxxix. 18. I give unto thee [d] for a prey in all places whither thou goeſt.

v. 1—5. Baruch had been the prophet Jeremiah's faithful aſſiſtant, chap. xxxvi. and hereby involved himſelf in trouble, and expoſed himſelf to the fury of the enraged Jehoiakim. We have,

Before Christ 606.

1. The conſternation God obſerves in him when the warrants were out for apprehending him. Wo is me now; he looked upon himſelf as a dead man; for the Lord hath added grief to my ſorrow: After all the pains he had taken, and the reproaches he had endured, now his very life is in danger; and the anguiſh he felt on tranſcribing the dreadful doom of his people, is increaſed by his own ſufferings. I fainted in my ſighing, unable to ſupport the load of grief that oppreſſed him; and I find no reſt, from his ſorrow, or compoſure of mind under his troubles. Note, (1.) Our hearts are very unwilling to bear the croſs. (2.) Many of our complaints ariſe more from our unbelieving fears, than our real danger. (3.) We ſhould watch over the temper of our hearts, and the door of our lips, when tempted to impatience or deſpair under our ſufferings; for God obſerves, and will reprove us for it.

2. Jeremiah from God checks his aſpiring thoughts, the diſappointment of which ſeems to have been at the root of his complaints. He was a man of abilities, a ſcribe to the prophet, and a follower of his piety; and he might hope this would recommend him to his countrymen, and enable him to riſe to ſome diſtinguiſhed poſt: but it was abſurd in him to ſeek great things for himſelf, when the whole nation was devoted to ruin, v. 4, 5. Note, (1.) If we had leſs expectations from the world, we ſhould have leſs diſappointments and cauſe to complain. (2.) Even good men are ſlow of heart to believe what Jeſus hath ſpoken, My kingdom is not of this world, and have their hearts too much attached to worldly hopes and proſpects.

3. Though his hopes of greatneſs are blaſted, his life is ſecured to him, and that is a diſtinguiſhing mercy, when death ſpreads around his univerſal ravages. In all places, and amidſt every danger, God promiſes to protect him, and with this he hath cauſe to be abundantly ſatisfied and thankful.

CHAP. XLVI.

The ruin of the Jewiſh people we have heard; now the cup goes round to the neighbouring nations, beginning with Egypt, and at laſt ending with Babylon herſelf. We have here, 1. The defeat of Pharaoh necho, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, ver. 1—12. 2. The final ſubjection of Egypt ſome years after by Nebuchadnezzar, ver. 13—26. 3. A word of comfort to the Iſrael of God in the midſt of thoſe calamities, ver. 27, 28.

1. THE word of the LORD which came to Je- 606.
remiah the prophet, againſt the Gentiles, 2.
Againſt Egypt, [a] againſt the army of Pharaoh-necho [a] 2 Chron. xxxv. 20.
king of Egypt, which was by the river Euphrates in Charchemiſh, [b] which Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon [b] 2 Kings xxiv. 7.
ſmote in the fourth year of Jehoiakim the ſon of Joſiah king of Judah. 3. [c] Order ye the buckler and ſhield, [c] Chap. li. 11. Joel iii. 9, &c. and draw near to battle. 4. Harneſs the horſes, and get up, ye horſemen, and ſtand forth with your helmets, furbiſh the ſpears, and put on the brigandines. 5. Wherefore have I ſeen them diſmayed, and turned away back?
and their mighty ones are † beaten down, and are ‡ fled † Heb. Broken in pieces.
apace, and look not back: for fear was round about, ſaith the LORD. 6. § Let not the ſwift flee away: ‡ Heb. Fled a flight.
[d] nor the mighty man eſcape: they ſhall ſtumble, and § Or, the ſwift ſhall not flee away. Am. ii. 14.
fall towards the north by the river Euphrates. 7. Who is this that cometh up as a flood, whoſe waters are [d] Pſ. xxxiii, 16.
moved as the rivers? 8. Egypt riſeth up like a flood and his waters are moved like the rivers, and he ſaith,
I will go up, and will cover the earth, I will deſtroy the city, and the inhabitants thereof. 9. Come up, ye horſes, and rage, ye chariots, and let the mighty men come forth, ‖ the Ethiopians, and † the Lybians that ‖ Heb. Cuſh.
handle the ſhield, and the Lydians [e] that handle and † Heb. Put. [e] Iſa. lxvi. 19.
bend the bow. 10. For this is the day of the LORD God of hoſts, a day of vengeance, that he may avenge him of his adverſaries: and the ſword ſhall devour, and [f] it ſhall be ſatiate, and made drunk with their blood: [f] Iſa. xxxiv. 6.
for the LORD God of hoſts [g] hath a ſacrifice in the [g] Ezek. xxxix. 17. Zeph. i. 7.
north-country by the river Euphrates. 11. [h] Go up into [h] Chap. viii. 22. & li. 8.
Gilead, and take balm, [i] O virgin, the daughter of Egypt: in vain ſhalt thou uſe many medicines: for thou Ezek. xxx. 21.
ſhalt not be cured. 12. The nations have heard of thy ſhame, and thy cry hath filled the land: for [k] the mighty [i] Iſa. xlvii. 1.
man hath ſtumbled againſt the mighty, and they are [k] Ver. 6, 16.
fallen both together.

v. 1—12. The prophecies following relate to the neighbouring nations of the Gentiles. This deſcribes the defeat of the Egyptians, who had often been the oppreſſors of God's Iſrael, and now their unprofitable allies: endeavouring to ſupport them in their their rebellion againſt the king of Babylon, they bring his arms upon themſelves to their deſtruction.

Before Christ 606.

1. The Lord, ironically deriding their vain confidence and vaſt preparations, bids them collect their forces, fit on their armour, marſhal their hoſt, ruſh into the battle, vainly concluding the victory ſecure, and that the armies of Babylon, their cities and empire, would be utterly overwhelmed by their numerous forces, as the lands of Egypt were overflowed by the ſwellings of the Nile. Note, They who are moſt ſelf-confident are uſually neareſt the precipice of ruin.

2. He upbraids their cowardice and inglorious flight, when the army of the Chaldeans met them. Where is now their boaſted valour, and great ſwelling words of vanity? See them broken, diſpirited, in panic fear; their mightieſt warriors turn their backs, and ſeek their ſafety in an ignominious flight; but ſeek it in vain; ſince God obſtructs their way, they cannot eſcape; their ſwifter purſuers are at their heels; they ſtumble near the Euphrates, to which they had advanced, and fall by the ſword of the Chaldeans, drunk with the blood of the ſlain; for this is the day of the Lord of hoſts, a day of vengeance for all the wrongs they have done his people, and for the late ſlaughter of Joſiah; and a ſacrifice to divine juſtice for all their abominations. Note, (1.) Sinners may expect a day of recompence. (2.) Flight is vain from the ſword of God's vengeance. (3.) One diſmaying impreſſion from God can make cowards of the braveſt. Let not therefore the ſtrong man glory in his ſtrength.

3. He declares their wound incurable. In vain ſhould they attempt to repair their defeat, or to conceal their ſhame: the nations around ſhall hear the cries of the wounded, and the groans of the dying; the mighty have ſtumbled on the mighty, heaps on heaps, pierced by the ſwords of their enemies, and no more ſhall they be able to make head againſt their foes, when, like a flood, they ſhall break in ſhortly upon them. Note, They whom God conſigns to ruin ſtruggle in vain againſt their deſtiny.

13. ¶ The word that the LORD ſpake to Jeremiah the prophet, how Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon ſhould come and [l] ſmite the land of Egypt. 14. Declare ye in Egypt, and publiſh in Migdol, and publiſh in Noph, and in Tahpanhes: ſay ye, Stand faſt, and prepare thee; for the ſword ſhall devour round about thee. 15. Why are thy valiant men ſwept away? they ſtood not, becauſe the LORD did drive them. 16. He made many to fall, yea, [m] one fell upon another, and they ſaid, Ariſe, and let us go again to our own people, and to the land of our nativity, from the oppreſſing ſword. 17. They did cry there, Pharaoh king of Egypt is but a noiſe, he hath paſſed the time appointed. 18. As I live, ſaith the King, [n] whoſe name is the LORD of hoſts, Surely as Tabor is among the mountains, and as Carmel by the ſea, ſo ſhall he come. 19. Oh thou daughter dwelling in Egypt, † furniſh thyſelf to go into captivity: for Noph ſhall be waſte and deſolate without an inhabitant. 20. Egypt is like a very fair heifer, but deſtruction cometh: it cometh out of the north. 21. Alſo her hired men are in the midſt of her, like ‡ fatted bullocks, for they alſo are turned back, and are fled away together; they did not ſtand, becauſe the day of their calamity was come upon them, and the time of their viſitation. 22. The voice thereof ſhall go like a ſerpent, for they ſhall march with an army, and come againſt her with axes, as hewers of wood. 23. They ſhall cut down her foreſt, ſaith the LORD, though it cannot be ſearched, becauſe they are more than the graſhoppers, and are innumerable. 24. The daughter of Egypt ſhall be confounded, ſhe ſhall be delivered into the hand of the people of the north. 25. The LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, ſaith, Behold I will puniſh the § multitude of [o] No, and Pharaoh, and Egypt, [p] with their gods, and their kings, even Pharaoh, and all them that truſt in him. 26. [q] And I will deliver them into the hand of thoſe that ſeek their lives, and into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and into the hand of his ſervants: and [r] afterwards it ſhall be inhabited, as in the days of old, ſaith the LORD. 27. ¶ But [s] fear not thou, O my ſervant Jacob, and be not diſmayed, O Iſrael; for behold, I will ſave thee from afar off, and thy ſeed from the land of their captivity, and Jacob [t] ſhall return, and be in reſt and at eaſe, and none ſhall make him afraid. 28. Fear thou not, O Jacob my ſervant, ſaith the LORD, for I am with thee, for [u] I will make a full end of all the nations whither I have driven thee, but I will not make a full end of thee, [x] but correct thee in meaſure, yet will I || not leave thee wholly unpuniſhed.

[l] Iſa. xix. 1. Ezek. xxix. & xxx. & xxxii. Fulfilled 572.

[m] Ver. 12.

[n] Iſa. xlvii. 4. & xlviii. 2. Chap. xlviii. 15.

† Heb. Make thee inſtruments of captivity.

‡ Heb. Bullocks of the ſtall.

§ Or nouriſher.

[o] Ezek. xxx. 15. Nah. iii. 8.

[p] Chap. xliii. 12, 13. Ezek. xxx. 13.

[q] Ezek. xxxii. 11.

[r] Ezek. xxix. 13.

[s] Iſa. xli. 13. & xliii. 5. & xliv. 2. Chap. xxx. 10.

[t] Ezek. xxxvii. 21. Am. ix. 14.

[u] Chap. x. 24. & xxx. 11.

[x] Pſ. lxxxix. 30, &c.

|| Or not utterly cut thee off.

v. 13—28. This begins a new prophecy. The former regards the defeat of the Egyptians at Carchemiſh, this the deſtruction of their country ſome years after. In thoſe very cities where the infatuated Jews ſought refuge, there muſt the land of Egypt's utter ruin be proclaimed. We have here,

1. The alarm ſpread through the land, v. 14. The ſword of the Chaldeans was making havock in the neighbouring countries; it is time for them therefore to prepare for war.

2. Their auxiliaries deſert them, on the firſt defeat, finding themſelves unable to defend the frontiers, and not ſupported by Pharaoh as they expected. God fought againſt them, deſtroyed and diſpirited them, ſo that they fled together in the day of their calamity: willing therefore to have a pretext for retiring to their own countries, they cry out againſt Pharaoh, as having deceived and betrayed them: he boaſted of certain victory, and the vaſt armies he could raiſe; and now they find it but mere empty noiſe, and boaſts without ability. Note, (1.) When God fights, reſiſtance is vain. (2.) They who deceive others with falſe hopes deſerve themſelves to be deceived in their expectations from them.

3. Their ruin is determined by that eternal King whom all the hoſts of heaven and earth obey. They are doomed to ſlaughter by the Chaldean ſword, as the trees of the foreſt fall before the hewer's axe; thick as the locuſts which once of old devoured the land, ſhall the ſoldiers of the king of Babylon cover the country; Egypt, like a heifer, ſo called perhaps in alluſion to the ox they worſhipped, muſt bend her fair neck to the yoke, and this daughter, living in eaſe and affluence, muſt prepare to go into captivity. The deſtruction is ſure as the foundation of the mountains Tabor and Carmel, as it may be rendered; ſurely as Tabor among the mountains, and Carmel, ſhall he go into the ſea; ſo ſurely ſhall Pharaoh, and all who truſt in him, be overwhelmed in the abyſs of calamities; or, towering in pride as theſe mighty hills, the Babylonian conqueror ſhall advance, bear down his enemies, however many or mighty, with the falſe gods their confidence, v. 25. and lay the country deſolate and waſte, depopulate the cities, and enſlave the inhabitants: like the ſerpent wallowing in the duſt, and hiſſing, ſo low ſhould they be reduced, v. 22. nor dare, for fear of offending, to make their complaints aloud: though this may alſo be interpreted of the army of the Chaldeans, hiſſing as they marched, and breathing out threatnings againſt their Egyptian foes. Thus compleat ſhould be their overthrow; for, tho' the arm employed is Nebuchadnezzar's, the puniſhment is from God, v. 25. Note, (1.) Whatever inſtruments are employed, God's hand ſhould be ſeen in every viſitation. (2.) They who truſt on any thing but God alone may expect diſappointment. (3.) When troubles threaten, it is a call to prepare for them.

4. A gleam of hope cloſes the awful ſcene. Afterwards it ſhall be inhabited, as in the days of old, ſaith the Lord. Though it never after roſe to its priſtine ſplendor, it became a great and populous nation after forty years, Ezek. xxix. 13, 14. for God wounds and he heals.

5. The people of God have a gracious promiſe to comfort them amidſt theſe deſolations, either the few faithful in Egypt or thoſe in Babylon; if Egypt ſhall return from their captivity, much more ſhall they. The ſame aſſurance was given them before, chap. xxx. 11, 12. and this was in part fulfilled in their recovery from the Babyloniſh yoke, but ſhall be more eminently ſeen at the latter day: for which purpoſe, amidſt all the changes of nations and fall of empires, they are to this day preſerved a diſtinct people, and may expect again to ſee reſt and eaſe in their own land.

CHAP. XLVII.

This chapter reads the Philiſtines their doom, by the hand of Nebuchadrezzar. It is ſhort, but terrible; and Tyre and Zidon, though they lay at ſome diſtance, come in ſharers with them in the deſtruction here threatned. It is foretold, 1. that the forces of the northern crowns ſhould come upon them, to their great terror, ver. 1—5. 2. That the war ſhould continue long, and their endeavours to put an end to it ſhould be in vain, ver. 6, 7.

610.

1. THE word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah the prophet [a] againſt the Philiſtines, [b] before that Pharaoh ſmote Gaza. 2. Thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, [c] waters riſe up [d] out of the north, and ſhall be an overflowing flood, and ſhall overflow the land, and † all that is therein, the city, and them that dwell therein: then the men ſhall cry, and all the inhabitants of the land ſhall howl. 3. At [e] the noiſe of the ſtamping of the hoofs of his ſtrong horſes, at the ruſhing of his chariots, and at the rumbling of his wheels, the fathers ſhall not look back to their children for feebleneſs of hands: 4. Becauſe of the day that cometh to ſpoil all the Philiſtines, and to cut off from [f] Tyrus and Zidon every helper

[a] Chap. xxv. 20. Ezek. xxv. 15. Zeph. ii. 4, 5.

[b] Am. i. 6, 7.

[c] Iſa. viii. 7.

[d] Chap. i. 14.

† Heb. The fulneſs thereof.

[e] Nah. iii. 2.

[f] Chap. xxv. 22.

BeforeChriſt 610.

[g] Ezek. xxv. 16. Am. i. 8. & ix. 7.
‡ Heb. The iſle.
[h] Am. i. 8. Mic. i. 16. Zeph. ii. 4. Zech. ix. 5.
[i] Chap. xxv. 20.
[k] Chap. xlviii. 37.
§ Heb. Gather thyſelf.
‖ Heb. How canſt thou.

helper that remaineth: for the LORD will ſpoil the Philiſtines, [g] the remnant of ‡ the country of Caphtor. 5. [h] Baldneſs is come upon Gaza, [i] Aſhkelon is cut off, with the remnant of their valley: how long wilt thou [k] cut thyſelf? 6. O thou ſword of the LORD, how long will it be ere thou be quiet? § put up thyſelf into thy ſcabbard, reſt and be ſtill. 7. ‖ How can it be quiet, ſeeing the LORD hath given it a charge againſt Aſhkelon, and againſt the ſea-ſhore; there hath he appointed it.

v. 1—7. The Philiſtines had been the inveterate enemies of Iſrael: they had received many a ſevere check in the days of David; but ſeem to have become a very powerful people, and were in peace and ſtrongly fortified, when this prophecy was delivered, which was before Pharaoh ſmote Gaza, an event ſuppoſed to have happened during his expedition to Carchemiſh.

1. The northern army of the Chaldeans is repreſented as a ſwelling flood, that bears down all oppoſition. In terrors at their approach, the Philiſtines will howl, unable to reſiſt the torrent; affrighted at the ſtamping of the horſes and the rattling of the chariots, and flying as if death was at their heels, their fears ſhould overcome the ſtrongeſt natural affection, ſo that they ſhould not look back to their children, and through feebleneſs of hands be unable to defend or carry them away. It is the day of divine appointment for the deſtruction of the Philiſtines, and Tyre and Zidon muſt ſhare the like fate, together with the remnant of the country of Caphtor, their near kin and neighbours. Their cities are ſpoiled, their country plundered, their inhabitants deſtroyed, and Gaza and Aſhkelon are deſcribed with ſigns of deepeſt woe, ſhaving off their hair, and cutting themſelves, bemoaning theſe deſolations. Note, The ſtrongeſt holds are no proof againſt the artillery of divine threatnings.

2. The prophet, tenderly affected with the ſcene, cries out, O ſword of the Lord, for though in the hand of Chaldeans, yet God put it there, how long will it be ere thou be quiet? and the dire contention ceaſe; put up thyſelf into thy ſcabbard, reſt and be ſtill. A good man prays thus for his bitterest enemies; and charity teaches us to beg that wars may ceaſe in all the world, and a ſtop be put to the effuſion of human gore ſo laviſhly ſhed. But when God hath a controverſy, and his ſword is drawn againſt a nation, how can it be quiet, till it hath executed vengeance on God's enemies, and accompliſhed his purpoſes towards a guilty people? ſeeing he hath given it a charge againſt Aſhkelon, and againſt the ſea-ſhore, the places above-mentioned; there hath he appointed it. Note, Every thing here below is under the immediate government of God; even the ambition of princes, and the horrid ravages of war, are the inſtruments in his hands to execute the decrees of his providence on thoſe nations whoſe provocations call for judgment.

CHAP. XLVIII.

The doom of Moab is next read. Here is, 1. The deſtruction foretold, that it ſhould be great and general, ſhould extend itſelf to all parts of the country, ver. 1—6, 8. 2. The cauſes of this deſtruction aſſigned; it was ſin that brought this ruin upon them; their pride and ſecurity, and carnal confidence, ver. 7, 11, 14, 29. and their contempt of and enmity to God and his people, ver. 26, 27, 30. 3. A promiſe of the reſtoration of Moab, ver. 47.

599.

[a] Iſa. xv. & xvi. Chap. xxv. 21. Am. ii. 1.
† Or the high place.
‡ Or brought to ſilence.
§ Heb. Weeping with weeping.
[b] Iſa. xv. 5.
[c] Chap. li. 6.
[d] Chap. xvii. 6.
‖ Or a naked tree.
[e] Pſ. lii. 7.
[f] Numb. xxi. 29. Judg. xi. 24.
[g] Chap. xlix. 3. Iſa. xlvi. 1, 2.
[h] Judg. v. 23. 1 Sam. xv. 3.
† Or negligently.

1.[a] AGainſt Moab thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, Wo unto Nebo, for it is ſpoiled: Kiriathaim is confounded and taken, † Miſgab is confounded and diſmayed. 2. There ſhall be no more praiſe of Moab: in Heſhbon they have deviſed evil againſt it; come and let us cut it off from being a nation; alſo thou ſhalt be ‡ cut down, O Madmen, the ſword ſhall purſue thee. 3. A voice of crying ſhall be from Horonaim, ſpoiling and great deſtruction. 4. Moab is deſtroyed, her little ones have cauſed a cry to be heard. 5. For in the going up of Luhith, § [b] continual weeping ſhall go up: for in the going down of Horonaim the enemies have heard a cry of deſtruction. 6. [c] Flee, ſave your lives, and be [d] like ‖ the heath in the wilderneſs. 7. ¶ For becauſe thou [e] haſt truſted in thy works and in thy treaſures, thou ſhalt alſo be taken, and [f] Chemoſh ſhall go forth into captivity with [g] his prieſts and his princes together. 8. And the ſpoiler ſhall come upon every city, and no city ſhall eſcape: the valley alſo ſhall periſh, and the plain ſhall be deſtroyed, as the LORD hath ſpoken. 9. Give wings unto Moab, that it may flee and get away: for the cities thereof ſhall be deſolate, without any to dwell therein. 10. [h] Curſed be he that doth the work of the LORD † deceitfully, and curſed be he that keepeth back his ſword from blood. 11. ¶ Moab hath been at eaſe from his youth, and [i] he hath ſettled on his lees, and hath not been emptied from veſſel to veſſel, neither hath he gone into captivity: therefore his taſte ‡ remained in him, and his ſcent is not changed. 12. Therefore behold the days come, ſaith the LORD, that I will ſend unto him wanderers that ſhall cauſe him to wander, and ſhall empty his veſſels and break their bottles. 13. And Moab ſhall be aſhamed of [k] Chemoſh, as the houſe of Iſrael was aſhamed of [l] Bethel their confidence.

BeforeChriſt 599.

[i] Zeph. i. 12.
† Heb. Stood.
[k] Ver. 7.
[l] 1 Kin. xii. 29.

v. 1—13. We have here,

1. The deſtruction of Moab. The Lord of Hoſts, who hath all the armies of heaven and earth at his beck, ſends forth ſpoilers, whoſe ſword ſhall devour around, and purſue the fugitives, v. 2. Deſolation ſhall be ſpread on every ſide, every city be deſtroyed; there ſhall be no more praiſe of Moab in Heſhbon, the place and people utterly ruined, every fruitful valley waſted, the land left without inhabitant, the princes and prieſts ſhall go into captivity; and with confuſion they ſhall behold their idol Chemoſh, their confidence, ſhare their fate, unable as the Calf of Bethel to defend his votaries, v. 7—13. In vain they cry flee, when flight is impoſſible, v. 6. or perhaps this is the call of the prophet, ironically deriding their attempt to eſcape from city to city, when all muſt fall, and no city eſcape. The cry of Horonaim taken, echoes; and whilſt the fugitives go weeping up the aſcent to Luhith, the enemies hear their cry, and follow at their heels, v. 5. Swift the deſtruction paſſes through as the bird cuts the air; and as on eagles wings they are hurried into captivity, v. 9. Moab, throughout, is deſtroyed, and deſolate, as the heath in the wilderneſs, not even the infants are ſpared; nor can their cries avail, v. 4. The charge is given, and ſealed with an anathema; Curſed be he that doth the work of the Lord deceitfully, and curſed be he that keepeth back his ſword from blood, and no pleas of pity muſt be heard, when vengeance from God is to be executed. Note, (1.) When God's work is given us to do, of whatever kind, to act hypocritically or negligently, will bring his curſe upon our heads. (2.) The vain confidence of every ſinner will as much diſappoint their hopes in the day of trial, as Chemoſh ſhamed his fooliſh votaries.

2. The cauſe of this deſtruction is their pride and carnal ſecurity. Like wine that hath not been emptied from veſſel to veſſel, Moab had been at eaſe from the days they were formed into a people, and had never known ſuch captivities as Iſrael had undergone. Strong as wine ſettled on its lees, filled with wealth, and confident with long proſperity, they defied danger, truſting on their works, their fortifications, or their idol-deities, the work of their own hands, and in their treaſures, as if theſe were a ſure defence; though the event muſt ſo fearfully diſappoint their expectations, their works be demoliſhed, their treaſures and their gods together ſpoiled and carried off by the conquerors. Note, (1.) Worldly proſperity is a dangerous ſnare to the ſoul. (2.) God's enemies often enjoy here below that worldly eaſe and affluence to which his own people are ſtrangers. They have their good things here, and have nothing to hope for in eternity. (3.) Creature confidences in the day of evil prove utter vanity and vexation of ſpirit. (4.) The ſinner's preſumption is the prelude to his ruin.

[m] Iſa. xvi. 6.
† Heb. The choice of, &c.
[n] Chap. xlvi. 18.
[o] Iſa. xlvii. 1.
‡ Heb. Inhabitreſs.
[p] Iſa. xvi. 7.
[q] Pſ. lxxv. 10.
[r] Chap. xxv. 17.
[s] Zeph. ii. 8.

14. ¶ How ſay ye, [m] We are mighty and ſtrong men for the war? 15. Moab is ſpoiled and gone up out of her cities, and † his choſen young men are gone down to the ſlaughter, ſaith the King, [n] whoſe name is the LORD of hoſts. 16. The calamity of Moab is near to come, and his affliction haſteth faſt. 17. All ye that are about him bemoan him, and all ye that know his name, ſay, How is the ſtrong ſtaff broken, and the beautiful rod! 18. [o] Thou daughter that doſt inhabit Dibon, come down from thy glory, and ſit in thirſt; for the ſpoiler of Moab ſhall come upon thee, and he ſhall deſtroy thy ſtrong-holds. 19. O ‡ inhabitant of Aroer, ſtand by the way and eſpy, aſk him that fleeth, and her that eſcapeth; and ſay, What is done? 20. Moab is confounded, for it is broken down: [p] howl and cry, tell ye it in Arnon, that Moab is ſpoiled, 21. And judgment is come upon the plain country; upon Holon, and upon Jahazah, and upon Mephaath, 22. And upon Dibon, and upon Nebo, and upon Beth-diblathaim, 23. And upon Kiriathaim, and upon Beth-gamul, and upon Beth-meon, 24. And upon Kerioth, and upon Bozrah, and upon all the cities of the land of Moab, far or near. 25. [q] The horn of Moab is cut off, and his arm is broken, ſaith the LORD. 26. ¶ [r] Make ye him drunken: for he magnified himſelf againſt the LORD: Moab alſo ſhall wallow in his vomit, and he alſo ſhall be in deriſion. 27. For was not Iſrael [s] a deriſion unto thee? was he found

[t] found among thieves? for ſince thou ſpakeſt of him, thou [u] ſkippedſt for joy. 28. O ye that dwell in Moab, leave the cities, and [x] dwell in the rock, and be like the dove that maketh her neſt in the ſides of the hole's mouth. 29. We have heard [y] the pride of Moab (he is exceeding proud) his loftineſs, and his arrogancy, and his pride, and the haughtineſs of his heart. 30. I know his wrath, ſaith the LORD, [z] but it ſhall not be ſo, ‖ [a] his lies ſhall not ſo effect it. 31. Therefore [b] will I howl for Moab, and I will cry out for all Moab, mine heart ſhall mourn for the men of Kir-heres. 32. [c] O vine of Sibmah, I will weep for thee, with the weeping of Jazer; thy plants are gone over the ſea, they reach even to the ſea of Jazer, the ſpoiler is fallen upon thy ſummer-fruits, and upon thy vintage. 33. And [d] joy and gladneſs is taken from the plentiful field, and from the land of Moab, and I have cauſed wine to fail from the wine-preſſes, none ſhall tread with ſhouting, their ſhouting ſhall be no ſhouting. 34. [e] From the cry of Heſhbon even unto Elealeh, and even unto Jahaz they have uttered their voice, [f] from Zoar even unto Horonaim, as an heifer of three years old: for the waters alſo of Nimrim ſhall be § deſolate. 35. Moreover, I will cauſe to ceaſe in Moab, ſaith the LORD, [g] him that offereth in the high places, and him that burneth incenſe to his gods. 36. Therefore [h] mine heart ſhall ſound for Moab like pipes, and mine heart ſhall ſound like pipes for the men of Kir-heres: becauſe [i] the riches that he hath gotten are periſhed. 37. For [k] every head ſhall be bald, and every beard † clipt: upon all the hands ſhall be cuttings, and upon the loins ſackcloth. 38. There ſhall be lamentation generally upon all the houſe-tops of Moab, and in the ſtreets thereof: for I have broken Moab [l] like a veſſel, wherein is no pleaſure, ſaith the LORD. 39. They ſhall howl, ſaying, How is it broken down! how hath Moab turned the ‡ back with ſhame! ſo ſhall Moab be a deriſion, and a diſmaying to all them about him. 40. For thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, [m] he ſhall fly as an eagle, and ſhall ſpread his wings over Moab. 41. Kerioth is taken, and the ſtrong-holds are ſurpriſed, and [n] the mighty men's hearts in Moab at that day ſhall be as the heart of a woman in her pangs. 42. And Moab ſhall be deſtroyed from being a people, becauſe he hath magnified himſelf againſt the LORD. 43. [o] Fear, and the pit, and the ſnare ſhall be upon thee, O inhabitant of Moab, ſaith the LORD. 44. [p] He that fleeth from the fear, ſhall fall into the pit, and he that getteth up out of the pit, ſhall be taken in the ſnare: for I will bring upon it, even upon Moab, the year of their viſitation, ſaith the LORD. 45. They that fled, ſtood under the ſhadow of Heſhbon, becauſe of the force: but [q] a fire ſhall come forth out of Heſhbon, and a flame from the midſt of Sihon, and [r] ſhall devour the corner of Moab, and the crown of the head of ‖ the tumultuous ones. 46. [s] Wo be unto thee, O Moab, the people of Chemoſh periſheth: for thy ſons are taken § captives, and thy daughters captives. 47. ¶ Yet [t] will I bring again the captivity of Moab in the latter days, ſaith the LORD. Thus far is the judgment of Moab.

t Chap. ii. 26.
u Prov. xxiv. 17, 18.
x Iſa. ii. 19.
y Ibid. xvi. 6, &c.
z Pſ. xxxiii. 10.
‖ Or thoſe on whom he ſtayeth, do not right.
a Chap. l. 36.
b Iſa. xv. 5.
c Ibid. xvi. 8, 9.
d Ibid. 10. Joel i. 12.
e Iſa. xv. 4.
f Ibid. 5, 6.
§ Heb. Deſolations.
g Iſa. xv. 2. & xvi. 11.
h Ibid. xv. 5. & xvi. 11.
i Iſa. xv. 7.
k Ibid. 2, 3. Chap. xlvii. 5.
† Heb. Diminiſhed.
l Chap. xxii. 28.
‡ Heb. Neck.
m Deut. xxviii. 49. Chap. xlix. 22. Dan. vii. 4. Hoſ. viii. 1. Hab. i. 8.
n Chap. xlix. 22.
o Iſa. xxiv. 17, 18.
p Amos v. 19.
q Num. xxi. 28.
r Ibid. 27.
‖ Heb. The children of noiſe.
s Num. xxi. 29.
§ Heb. In captivity.
t Chap. xlix. 6, 39.

v. 14—47. The deſtruction of Moab is more largely painted, with the ſins, the cauſe of her calamities.

1. The deſtruction is terrible, ſudden, univerſal, near, irreparable, drawn with the ſtrongeſt colours, if ſo be it might awaken a ſenſe of danger, and be the means of leading to repentance any of that devoted people. They thought themſelves ſecure in warlike hoſts, able to repel any invader, v. 14. but Moab is ſpoiled, her cities univerſally taken, v. 20—24. Her people captives, the flower of her youth fallen by the ſword, ſent by that Lord of hoſts, whoſe power none can reſiſt, and from whoſe arm none can flee, v. 15. near, even at the door, is the fearful judgment, v. 16. and time it is for all around her to begin the lamentation over her, How is the ſtrong ſtaff broken? on which they truſted for ſupport, or that they had ſeen lifted up with terror: and the beautiful rod, the kingdom once ſo ſplendid, is overturned; ſo poor and periſhing are all human excellencies, v. 17. Hurled from the ſummit of glory, her ſtrongeſt holds ſhall be laid in the duſt by the Chaldean ſpoiler, and the people reduced to the greateſt extremities, v. 18. whilſt they who dwell in the utmoſt border, ſhall with ſollicitous eagerneſs enquire of the fugitives What is done? ver. 19. and in anſwer hear, that all is in confuſion, their caſe deſperate, their fortreſſes deſtroyed, their country waſted, their power broken; and for this they are called upon to howl and cry, ver. 20, 25. Drunk with the cup of God's fury, Moab is become weak and ſick, wallowing in his vomit; a loathſome ſpectacle, a deriſion to the beholders, v. 26, 39. Like a dove that flies to the cleft of the rock, the prophet calls on the inhabitants to quit their cities, and take refuge in ſome ſolitary cave, where they may be hid, v. 28. With deepeſt ſigns of moſt expreſſive woe, the people are enjoined to lament their deſolations, v. 37. and with ſympathetic tenderneſs the prophet mingles his tears with theirs, affected deeply with the terrible ſcene he beheld, v. 31, 36. All gladneſs is baniſhed, their harveſt and vintage a prey to the ſpoiler, and nothing heard around but ſhrieks and groans, v. 32, 34. The univerſal ruin ſpreading a univerſal lamentation, v. 38. They can neither fly nor fight; for ſwift as an eagle darteth on his prey, the Babylonian conqueror advances, v. 40. Their fortreſſes are ſcaled, their mighty men ſunk under panic fear, v. 41. every effort to eſcape fruitleſs: they who attempt to avoid one evil, ſhall plunge into another; and ſince the judgment is from God, and the appointed time come, it is vain to hope for deliverance, v. 43, 44. Even under the ſhadow of Heſhbon, where they hoped at leaſt to find ſome protection, the fire of the Chaldeans ſhall devour them, and the crown of the head of the tumultuous ones, their nobles and great men, who boaſted of their wealth and ſtrength, be laid low, v. 45. Wo therefore to miſerable Moab, the people of Chemoſh periſheth, finding no protection from their God. Thy ſons are taken captives, and thy daughters captives, and the land left deſolate without inhabitant, v. 46.

2. Their ſins are many and exceeding aggravated, and in theſe his judgments God is altogether righteous. [1]. Inſufferable pride, ver. 29. where a variety of expreſſions are uſed to intimate in how many inſtances, and how deeply it appeared; and wherever this ſpirit is found, there for ever the curſe of God will reſt. [2.] Contempt of God, ver. 26. as if they were above his arm, and defied his threatnings. [3.] Unkindneſs to God's people; they mocked at their calamities, derided them when led captive, as if they had been thieves taken in the fact, and expreſſed a malicious pleaſure in their miſeries, v. 27. Note, Nothing is more hateful to God than ſuch a diabolical temper; and they who mock at the ſufferings of God's people, God will mock at them when their fear cometh. [4.] Wrath and ſlander, ver. 30. They inſtigated probably the Chaldeans to extirpate the Jewiſh people, and by their lies ſought to exaſperate them; but ſaith God, I know it, and it ſhall not be ſo: he ſees the devices of the crafty, will diſappoint the enemies of his church, and reckon with them for their malignity. [5.] Their idolatry, ver. 35. Becauſe they burnt incenſe to their falſe gods, and preferred Chemoſh before the living Jehovah. For theſe things God will viſit them, and be avenged of ſuch a nation as this.

3. A gracious promiſe concludes the whole, and gives one ray of hope to prevent utter deſpair. Yet will I bring again the captivity of Moab in the latter days, ſaith the Lord; which had a temporal accompliſhment, when, with the other captive nations, they were releaſed by Cyrus; and hath reſpect to thoſe more bleſſed days when Moab ſhould, with other Gentiles, ſubmit to the Meſſiah's kingdom, be delivered from the bondage of Satan, ſin, and death, and rejoice in that liberty wherewith Chriſt makes his people free.

CHAP. XLIX.

The cup of trembling ſtill goes round, and the nations muſt all drink of it, according to the inſtructions given to Jeremiah, chap. xxv. 15. This chapter puts it into the hands of, 1. The Ammonites, ver. 1—6. 2. The Edomites, ver. 7—22. 3. The Syrians, ver. 23—27. 4. The Kedarens, ver. 28—33. 5. The Elamites, ver. 34—39.

1. † CONcerning [a] the Ammonites, thus ſaith the LORD, Hath Iſrael no ſons? hath he no heir? why then doth ‡ their king inherit Gad, and [b] his people dwell in his cities? 2. Therefore behold, the days come, ſaith the LORD, that I will cauſe an alarm of war to be heard in [c] Rabbah of the Ammonites, and it ſhall be a deſolate heap, and her daughters ſhall be burnt with fire: then ſhall Iſrael be heir unto them that were his heirs, ſaith the LORD. 3. Howl, O Heſhbon, for Ai is ſpoiled: cry, ye daughters of Rabbah, [d] gird ye with ſackcloth: lament and run to and fro by the hedges, for ‖ their king ſhall go into captivity, and his [e] prieſts and his princes together. 4. Wherefore glorieſt thou in the valleys, § thy flowing valley, O backſliding daughter? [f] that truſted in her treaſures, ſaying, [g] Who ſhall come unto me? 5. Behold, I will bring a fear upon thee, ſaith the LORD God of hoſts, from all thoſe that be about thee, and ye ſhall be driven out every a Ezek. xxi. 28. & xxv. 2. Amos i. 13. Zeph. ii. 8, 9.

† Or againſt.
‡ Or Melchom.
b Amos i. 13.
c Ibid. 14.
d Iſa. xxii. 12. Chap. iv. 8. & vi. 26.
‖ Or Melchom. Ver. 1.
e Chap. xlviii. 7. Amos i. 15.
§ Or thy valley floweth away.
f Pſ. lii. 7.
g Chap. xxi. 13.

Before Christ 599.

[h] Ver. 39. Chap. xlviii. 47.

every man right forth, and none ſhall gather up him that wandreth. 6. And [h] afterward I will bring again the captivity of the children of Ammon, ſaith the LORD.

v. 1—6. The doom of the Ammonites is next read.

1. The charges againſt them are, (1.) Illegal ſeizure of God's heritage. When the king of Aſſyria ſubdued and led captive the Gileadites, they immediately took poſſeſſion of the territories as their own, as if there were no Iſraelites remaining to inherit the poſſeſſions of their brethren. Note, They who are weak, will often be oppreſſed; but there is a day coming when judgment ſhall ſit, and juſtice be impartially adminiſtred. (2.) Apoſtacy from God, ver. 4. Lot, their father, had tranſmitted to them the worſhip of the true God, but they had quickly revolted to idols. (3.) Their vain confidence; they gloried in their vallies flowing with plenty, and in their treaſures, as if by theſe ſecured they could defy their enemies, v. 4. But they who depart from God, have little reaſon to promiſe themſelves ſecurity and eaſe in their ſins.

2. Their judgment is pronounced. The alarm of war is ſounded; their invaders are ſent from God to ſpoil and deſtroy; their cities are burnt with fire; their cries go up; in vain they fly for ſhelter to the hedges; their kings, prieſts, and princes together are ſeized, and led into captivity, v. 3. and the remnant diſperſed, and find no favour among the nations whither they wander, v. 5. Then ſhall Iſrael obtain repriſals, ſeize their country, and be heirs unto them that were his heirs, which was fulfilled, 1 Mac. v. 6. and may perhaps have ſome reſpect to the days of the Meſſiah, Iſa. xi. 14.

3. A promiſe of reſtoration is added. Afterward I will bring again the captivity of Ammon; temporally, reſtoring them again to their own land; or ſpiritually, at the coming of Chriſt, converting them, and bringing them into the glorious liberty of the ſons of God.

[i] Ezek. xxv. 12. Amos i. 11. Obad. 1.
[k] Ibid. 8.
[l] Ver. 30.
† Or they are turned back.
[m] Chap. xxv. 23.
[n] Obad. 5.
‡ Heb. For their ſufficiency.
[o] Mal. i. 3.
[p] Pſ. xxxvii. 35, 36.
[q] Pſ. lxviii. 5.
[r] Chap. xxv. 20. Obad. 16.
[s] Obad. 1, &c.
[t] Obad. 4. Amos ix. 2, 3.
[u] Job xxxix. 27.
[x] Chap. l. 13.
[y] Gen. xix. 25. Deut. xxix. 23. Chap. l. 40. Amos iv. 11.
[z] Chap. l. 44.
[a] Ibid. xii. 5.
‖ Or will cauſe him to run ſuddenly upon her.
[b] Exod. xv. 11.
[c] Job xli. 10. Chap. l. 44.
§ Or convert me in judgment.
[d] Pſ. lxxvi. 7.
[e] Chap. l. 45.

7. ¶ [i] Concerning Edom, thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, Is wiſdom no more in Teman? is counſel periſhed from the prudent? [k] is their wiſdom vaniſhed? 8. [l] Flee ye, † turn back, dwell deep, O inhabitants of [m] Dedan, for I will bring the calamity of Eſau upon him, the time that I will viſit him. 9. If [n] grape-gatherers come to thee, would they not leave ſome gleaning-grapes? if thieves by night, they will deſtroy ‡ till they have enough. 10. But I have made [o] Eſau bare, I have uncovered his ſecret places, and he ſhall not be able to hide himſelf: his ſeed is ſpoiled, and his brethren and his neighbours, [p] and he is not. 11. Leave thy fatherleſs children, [q] I will preſerve them alive, and let thy widows truſt in me. 12. For thus ſaith the LORD, Behold, [r] they whoſe judgment was not to drink of the cup, have aſſuredly drunken, and art thou he that ſhalt altogether go unpuniſhed? thou ſhalt not go unpuniſhed, but thou ſhalt ſurely drink of it. 13. For I have ſworn by myſelf, ſaith the LORD, that Bozrah ſhall become a deſolation, a reproach, a waſte, and a curſe, and all the cities thereof ſhall be perpetual waſtes. 14. I have [s] heard a rumour from the LORD, and an ambaſſador is ſent unto the heathen, ſaying, Gather ye together, and come againſt her, and riſe up to the battle. 15. For lo, I will make thee ſmall among the heathen, and deſpiſed among men. 16. Thy terribleneſs hath deceived thee, and the pride of thine heart, O thou that dwelleſt in the clefts of the rock, that holdeſt the height of the hill: [t] though thou ſhouldſt make thy [u] neſt as high as the eagle, I will bring thee down from thence, ſaith the LORD. 17. Alſo Edom ſhall be a deſolation: [x] every one that goeth by it ſhall be aſtoniſhed, and ſhall hiſs at all the plagues thereof. 18. [y] As in the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah, and the neighbour cities thereof, ſaith the LORD: no man ſhall abide there, neither ſhall a ſon of man dwell in it. 19. [z] Behold, he ſhall come up like a lion from [a] the ſwelling of Jordan againſt the habitation of the ſtrong: but I ‖ will ſuddenly make him run away from her, and who is a choſen man that I may appoint over her? for [b] who is like me? and [c] who will § appoint me the time? and who is that ſhepherd [d] that will ſtand before me? 20. Therefore hear the counſel of the LORD, that he hath taken againſt Edom, and his purpoſes that he hath purpoſed againſt the inhabitants of Teman: ſurely [e] the leaſt of the flock ſhall draw them out; ſurely he ſhall make their habitations deſolate with them. 21. The earth is moved at the noiſe of their fall: at the cry, the noiſe thereof was heard in the † Red ſea. 22. Behold, [f] he ſhall come up, and fly as the eagle, and ſpread his wings over Bozrah: and at that day ſhall the heart of the mighty men of Edom be as the heart of a woman in her pangs.

Before Christ 599.

† Heb. Weedy ſea.
[f] Chap. iv. 13. & xlviii. 40, 41.

v. 7—22. Edom, in the day of Iſrael's calamity, cried, Down with it, down with it, even to the ground, Pſal. cxxxvii. 7. the cup therefore is next put into her hand. We have here,

1. The terrible deſtruction of the Edomites. The calamity of Eſau approaches, the day of their viſitation; the inhabitants of Dedan are called upon to flee, and dwell deep beneath ſome rock or cave, to ſave their lives from the deſtroyers, v. 8. The moſt careful grape-gatherers leave ſome berries, and the thieves, who break in at night, know when they have enough, and make off, v. 9. but Edom is ſtripped bare; nor can all his care to conceal his wealth, keep it from the ſpoiler, or the ſecret lurking places hide the fugitives: his children are deſtroyed, and his neighbours, ſo far from helping, ſhare his fate, v. 10. ſo that in the day of his affliction, none of them are left to ſay, Leave thy fatherleſs children, I will preſerve them alive, and let thy widows truſt in me; though others conſider theſe words as a gracious promiſe to a remnant of Edom who ſhould be turned unto God; and his people, in every time of diſtreſs, may with comfort apply them to themſelves, v. 11. the leſs guilty nations than Edom have drank of the cup, therefore he may not expect to eſcape unpuniſhed, v. 12. By an oath, to confirm the immutability of his counſel, God hath ſworn that Bozrah, the capital, and all the other cities, ſhall become a curſe, a reproach, and perpetual deſolation, v. 13. lying in ruinous heaps, without inhabitant, as the cities of Sodom, v. 18. At God's ſecret inſtigation, the Chaldeans, as if invited by an ambaſſador, come up as to certain victory, v. 14. and depopulated and impoveriſhed, the Edomites ſhall become a vile and deſpicable people, v. 15. For though dwelling in fortreſſes, that appear impregnable as the craggy rock, God's almighty arm is able, and determined to bring them to the duſt, v. 16. With aſtoniſhment paſſengers behold, and hiſs, inſulting their fearful fall, v. 17. As a lion driven from his covert on the banks of Jordan, by the riſing flood, tears and devours the defenceleſs ſheep, ſo ſhall the king of Babylon go up againſt the habitation of the ſtrong, and Edom ſhall ſuddenly flee: or it may be rendered, I will cauſe him (Nebuchadnezzar) to run upon it ſuddenly, and ſubdue the country, appointing a deputy over it, from among his captains, for who is like me? ſaith the Lord, able to execute all my purpoſes, and who will appoint me the time to diſpute the battle, or retard the fulfilment of my decrees, and who is that ſhepherd that will ſtand before me? what king can defend his ſubjects againſt the power of the Almighty Jehovah? v. 20. Therefore, ſince ſuch is his decree to deſtroy Edom, the meaneſt ſoldier of the Chaldean army ſhall be ſufficient to deſtroy the mightieſt Edomite, and drag them from their lurking holes, v. 20. Amazed at their fall, the earth trembles, or echoes, with the ſhout of the conquerors, and the cries of the vanquiſhed; the ſound of which reaches the diſtant ſhores, v. 21.

2. All their efforts to help themſelves will be vain. Their boaſted wiſdom now ſhall fail them, and all their ſchemes prove abortive, v. 7. And their terribleneſs, v. 16. their mighty armies, and ſtrong fortreſſes, which in the pride of their hearts they thought invincible, ſhall deceive them; when, ſwift as an eagle, the deſtroyer ſhall come up againſt them, and inveſt their capital. Theſe terrible warriors, frighted, as a woman in the pangs of travail, ſhould abandon themſelves to deſpair, and fall an eaſy prey, v. 22. or thy terribleneſs, which ſome render thine idol, be a vain protection in the day of their calamity. Note, When God ſtrikes, the ſtrong men muſt bow themſelves; for there is neither counſel nor might againſt the Lord.

[g] Iſa. xvii. 1. & xxxvii. 13. Amos i. 3. Zech. ix. 1, 2.
† Heb. Melted.
‡ Or as on the ſea.
[h] Pſ xlviii. 6. Chap. iv. 31. & vi. 24.
[i] Chap. l. 30.
[k] Amos i. 4.

23. ¶ [g] Concerning Damaſcus. Hamath is confounded, and Arpad: for they have heard evil tidings, they are † faint-hearted, there is ſorrow ‡ on the ſea, it cannot be quiet. 24. Damaſcus is waxed feeble, and turneth herſelf to flee, and fear hath ſeized on her: [h] anguiſh and ſorrows have taken her as a woman in travail. 25. How is the city of praiſe not left, the city of my joy? 26. [i] Therefore her young men ſhall fall in her ſtreets, and all the men of war ſhall be cut off in that day, ſaith the LORD of hoſts. 27. And [k] I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damaſcus, and it ſhall conſume the palaces of Ben-hadad.

v. 23—27. Syria, with Damaſcus the capital, and the other chief cities, next are brought to the bar, and doomed to a terrible overthrow. No ſooner are the tidings heard of the victorious armies of Babylon approaching, than inſtant confuſion and terrors ſeize the inhabitants of the land. The anguiſh ſpreads to the moſt diſtant border of the ſea; or like its troubled waves, ſo reſtleſs are the inhabitants, and uneaſy, v. 23. Inſtead of reſiſtance, the citizens of Damaſcus, affrighted as a woman in the pangs of travail, place all their hopes in flight, v. 24. How is the city of praiſe, ſo famous once, not left or ſpared, but ruined by the Chaldean enemy; the city of my joy? either the prophet admired its beauty, or her king lamented her ruins, v. 25. her young men fallen, her warriors ſlain, her walls razed, her palaces burnt to the ground, v. 26. God's wrath hath kindled the flames, and none can quench them. Note, (1.) They who place their joy in earthly comforts will be puniſhed with greater bitterneſs in the loſs of them. (2.) When God hath a controverſy with a nation, he can eaſily diſpirit the braveſt, and make the ſtrong men feeble.

Before Chriſt 599.

l Iſa. xxi. 13. m Joſh. xi. 10. Judg. iv. 2. n Chap. vi. 25. o Ver. 8. † Heb. Fly greatly. ‡ Or that is at eaſe. Am. vi. 1. p Chap. ix. 26. & xxv. 23. q Chap. ix. 11. & x. 22. Mal. i. 3.

28. ¶ [l] Concerning Kedar, and concerning the kingdoms of [m] Hazor, which Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon ſhall ſmite, thus ſaith the LORD, Ariſe ye, go up to Kedar, and ſpoil the men of the eaſt. 29. Their tents and their flocks ſhall they take away, they ſhall take to themſelves their curtains and all their veſſels, and their camels, and they ſhall cry unto them, [n] Fear is on every ſide. 30. ¶ [o] Flee, † get you far off, dwell deep, O ye inhabitants of Hazor, ſaith the LORD; for Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon hath taken counſel againſt you, and hath conceived a purpoſe againſt you. 31. Ariſe, get you up unto the ‡ wealthy nation that dwelleth without care, ſaith the LORD, which have neither gates nor bars, which dwell alone. 32. And their camels ſhall be a booty, and the multitude of their cattle a ſpoil, and I will ſcatter into all winds them [p] that are in the utmoſt corners, and I will bring their calamity from all ſides thereof, ſaith the LORD. 33. And Hazor [q] ſhall be a dwelling for dragons, and a deſolation for ever; there ſhall no man abide there, nor any ſon of man dwell in it.

v. 28—33. Kedar was a ſon of Iſmael; his deſcendants ſettled in Arabia; Hazor or Petra was the capital, and had other tributary kingdoms under it; though ſome ſuppoſe that ſome of the Hazorites, who eſcaped in the days of Joſhua, fled hither, and built a city of the ſame name with that they had deſerted.

Nebuchadnezzar is invited to come and ſpoil this wealthy nation, or rather this nation living at eaſe, and dwelling without care, in peace and ſecurity, unprepared to repel an invader; that have neither gates nor bars, not dwelling in cities, but alone, ſeparate from other nations, and in tents, roving from place to place. Their curtains, veſſels, camels, and flocks, wherein their riches chiefly conſiſted, are given for a prey. Unable to reſiſt the arms of the conqueror, or countermine his purpoſes, they are called upon to flee; and, ſcattered on every ſide, their deſerted country is ravaged, and their capital, in ruins, becomes no longer the abode of men, but of wild beaſts for ever. Note, (1.) They who are moſt ſecure are not therefore moſt ſafe. (2.) The moſt inoffenſive have no guard againſt the ravages of ambition and covetouſneſs.

598. r Chap. xxv. 25. s Pſ. xlvi. 9. t Ver. 6. Chap. xlviii. 47.

34. ¶ The word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah the prophet [r] againſt Elam, in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah, king of Judah, ſaying, 35. Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, Behold, [s] I will break the bow of Elam, the chief of their might. 36. And upon Elam will I bring the four winds, from the four quarters of heaven, and will ſcatter them towards all thoſe winds, and there ſhall be no nation whither the outcaſts of Elam ſhall not come. 37. For I will cauſe Elam to be diſmayed before their enemies, and before them that ſeek their life: and I will bring evil upon them, even my fierce anger, ſaith the LORD, and I will ſend the ſword after them, till I have conſumed them. 38. And I will ſet my throne in Elam, and will deſtroy from thence the king and the princes, ſaith the LORD. 39. ¶ But it ſhall come to paſs in the latter days, that [t] I will bring again the captivity of Elam, ſaith the LORD.

v. 34—39. Elam, concerned in this prophecy, which is dated in the beginning of Zedekiah's reign, is ſuppoſed not to be Perſia at large, but a country nearer Judea, called Elymais, ſome of whoſe inhabitants ſerved under Sennacherib, king of Aſſyria, at the ſiege of Jeruſalem, Iſa. xxii. 6. They were afterwards ſubdued by Nebuchadnezzar, and the kings of Babylon ſometimes made it the ſeat of their reſidence, Dan. viii. 2.

1. Univerſal deſtruction is threatned. God undertakes to break their bow, and to diſable the chief of their might, and then they muſt fall an eaſy prey, v. 35. By the Chaldean army they ſhall be diſperſed into the four corners of the earth, as fugitives or captives, v. 36. Terrors ſhall ſeize them, the ſword devour them, the wrath of God purſue them, and therein all evil is comprehended, v. 37. nor ſhall the king and princes thereof eſcape, but fall in the promiſcuous ruin, and the conqueror ſhall erect his throne in Elam, which may well be called the throne of God, by whoſe power and gift he obtained the dominion, v. 38.

Before Chriſt 598.

2. A gracious promiſe is given them of reſtoration, which probably under Cyrus was accompliſhed in a meaſure, but more eminently was fulfilled when, by the preaching of the goſpel, the Elamites, among other nations, were called into the church, and into the glorious liberty of the ſons of God, Acts ii. 9.

CHAP. L.

Babylon herſelf at laſt drinks of the cup. Terrible is the vengeance denounced againſt her. Many of the expreſſions in the Apocalypſe are borrowed from hence, and the prophet might well have in his eye the deſtruction of Babylon myſtical, and the deliverance of his people from her accurſed yoke. We have here, 1. The ruin of Babylon, ver. 1—3. and 9—16. and 21—32. and 35—46. 2. The redemption of God's people, ver. 4—8. and 17—20. and 33, 34.

595. a Iſa. xiii. 1. & xxi. 1. & xlviii. 1. Rev. xvii. 5. b Rev. xiv. 8. c Iſa. xlvi. 1. Chap. li. 44. d Chap. li. 48. e Hoſ. iii. 5. f Hoſ. i. 11. g Ezra iii. 12, 13. Pſ. cxxvi. 5, 6. Chap. xxxi. 9. Zech. xii. 10. h Chap. vi. 16. i Chap. xxxi. 31, &c. k Pſ. cxix. 176. Iſa. liii. 6. 1 Pet. ii. 25. l Chap. xl. 2, 3. Zech. xi. 5. m Chap. ii. 3. Dan. ix. 16. n Pſ. xc. 1. & xci. 1. o Pſ. xxii. 4. p Iſa. xlviii. 20. Chap. li. 6. 45. Rev. xviii. 4.

1. THE word that the LORD ſpake [a] againſt Babylon, and againſt the land of the Chaldeans by Jeremiah the prophet. 2. Declare ye among the nations, and publiſh, and ſet up a ſtandard, publiſh and conceal not: ſay, [b] Babylon is taken, [c] Bel is confounded, Merodach is broken in pieces, her idols are confounded, her images are broken in pieces. 3. For [d] out of the north there cometh up a nation againſt her, which ſhall make her land deſolate, and none ſhall dwell therein: they ſhall remove, they ſhall depart both man and beaſt. 4. ¶ [e] In thoſe days, and in that time, ſaith the LORD, the children of Iſrael ſhall come, [f] they and the children of Judah together, [g] going and weeping; they ſhall go, and ſeek the LORD their God. 5. [h] They ſhall aſk the way to Zion with their faces thitherward, ſaying, Come, and let us join ourſelves to the LORD, [i] in a perpetual covenant that ſhall not be forgotten. 6. My people hath been [k] loſt ſheep: their ſhepherds have cauſed them to go aſtray, they have turned them away on the mountains: they have gone from mountain to hill, they have forgotten their reſting-place. 7. All they that found them have devoured them, and [l] their adverſaries ſaid, [m] We offend not, becauſe they have ſinned againſt the LORD, [n] the habitation of juſtice, even the LORD, [o] the hope of their fathers. 8. [p] Remove out of the midſt of Babylon, and go forth out of the land of the Chaldeans, and be as the he-goats before the flocks.

v. 1—8. We have here,

1. The deſtruction of Babylon foretold, with her idols. And great joy would it adminiſter, when theſe glad tidings were ſpread among the nations, that the rod of the oppreſſor was broken. From the north the evil comes; from Media and Perſia: and by the northern princes ſhall Rome, the myſtical Babylon, be deſtroyed, and the joyful cry go forth, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, Rev. xiv. 6—8.

2. The people of God have a comfortable proſpect opened before them: they ſhall return to God and their own land. Iſrael and Judah, now reunited, (many of the ten tribes joining with their brethren) ſhall go weeping, with penitential tears confeſſing their provocations, and ſeek the Lord their God, in faith truſting on the everlaſting covenant, and ſtill encouraged to make their humble ſupplications to him from whom they have ſo greatly departed: for it is a ſure ſymptom for good, when God beſtows godly ſorrow; and never can it be too late to return to him, when with weeping we ſeek his face. Reſtored to God's favour, they are in the way to recover their loſt inheritance, and, diſmiſſed by Cyrus, enquire the way to Zion, ſtedfaſtly ſetting their faces thitherward, encouraging one another to come and renew their broken covenant, and henceforth approve themſelves to God with more unſhaken fidelity, v. 5. And this is moſt applicable to all God's redeemed people, who, when reſcued from the dominion of ſin, with ſhame lament their paſt departures, with diligence enquire after God, and in all his holy ways deſire to be found walking before him, bound to him in a covenant of everlaſting love. This may alſo particularly refer to the penitent return of the Jews at the laſt day.

3. Their paſt miſeries, here lamented, ſhould quicken them to improve the moment of opportunity given them by Cyrus. Like loſt ſheep they had long wandered, and thoſe who ſhould have led them aright contributed to their errors: thus expoſed, they fell an eaſy prey to the devourers, who vindicated the cruelties they exerciſed upon them, as if it were no offence to puniſh thoſe

Before Chriſt 595.

thoſe ſeverely who had tranſgreſſed ſo greatly againſt God and his worſhip, v. 7. Therefore no ſooner are they permitted to remove from Babylon, than they muſt eagerly ſeize the permiſſion, and be as the he-goat before the flocks, each willing to lead the way, and encourage their brethren to follow them, v. 8. And this is exceedingly applicable to the Jews in their preſent diſperſion, who are wanderers in all lands; ſtill deceived by their teachers; forgetting their reſting-place Chriſt Jeſus, and ready to follow every falſe pretender; a prey to all nations in which they are ſcattered; and many to this day think it no crime to plunder a Jew: but the days will come when they ſhall be called home to the Lord, the hope of their fathers. Note, (1.) Opportunity is precious, and ſhould be embraced. (2.) In promoting a good cauſe, it is well to be zealouſly affected, and among the firſt to lead the way.

9. ¶ For lo, [q] I will raiſe and cauſe to come up againſt Babylon, an aſſembly of great nations from the north-country, and they ſhall ſet themſelves in aray againſt her, from thence ſhe ſhall be taken: their arrows ſhall be as of a mighty † expert man: [r] none ſhall return in vain.
10. And Chaldea ſhall be a ſpoil: [s] all that ſpoil her ſhall be ſatisfied, ſaith the LORD. 11. Becauſe ye were glad, becauſe ye rejoiced, O ye deſtroyers of [t] mine heritage, becauſe ye are grown fat, [u] as the heifer at graſs, and ‡ bellow as bulls. 12. Your mother ſhall be ſore confounded, ſhe that bare you ſhall be aſhamed: behold, the hindermoſt of the nations ſhall be a wilderneſs, a dry land and a deſert. 13. Becauſe of the wrath of the LORD, it ſhall not be inhabited, but [x] it ſhall be wholly deſolate: [y] every one that goeth by Babylon ſhall be aſtoniſhed, and hiſs at all her plagues. 14. [z] Put yourſelves in aray againſt Babylon round about: all ye that bend the bow, ſhoot at her, ſpare no arrows, for [a] ſhe hath ſinned againſt the LORD. 15. Shout againſt her round about: ſhe hath given her hand: her foundations are fallen, her walls are thrown down; for [b] it is the vengeance of the LORD: take vengeance upon her;
[c] as ſhe hath done, do unto her. 16. Cut off the ſower from Babylon, and him that handleth the § ſickle in the time of harveſt: for fear of the oppreſſing ſword, they ſhall turn every one to his people, and [d] they ſhall flee every one to his own land. 17. ¶ Iſrael is [e] a ſcattered ſheep, the lions have driven him away: firſt [f] the king of Aſſyria hath devoured him, and laſt [g] this Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon hath broken his bones. 18.
Therefore thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, the God of Iſrael, Behold, I will puniſh the king of Babylon and his land, as I have puniſhed the king of Aſſyria. 19. And [h] I will bring Iſrael again to his habitation, and he ſhall feed on Carmel and Baſhan, and his ſoul ſhall be ſatisfied upon mount Ephraim and Gilead. 20. In thoſe days, and in that time, ſaith the LORD, the iniquity of Iſrael ſhall be ſought for, and there ſhall be none; and the ſins of Judah, and [i] they ſhall not be found: for [k] I will pardon them whom I reſerve.

[q] Chap. xxv. 14.
† Or deſtroyer.
[r] 1 Sam. i. 22.
[s] Rev. xvii. 16.
[t] 1 Pet. v. 3.
[u] Hoſ. x. 11.
‡ Or neigh as ſteeds.
[x] Chap. xxv. 12.
[y] Chap. xlix. 17.
[z] Chap. li. 2.
[a] Rev. xviii. 5.
[b] Chap. li. 6, 11.
[c] Pſ. cxxxvii. 8. Ver. 29. Rev. xviii. 6.
§ Or ſithe.
[d] Iſa xiii. 14. Chap. li. 9.
[e] Ver. 6.
[f] 2 Kin. xv. 29. & xvii. 6.
[g] 2 Kings xxiv. 14, &c. & xxv. 7, &c.
[h] Mic. ii. 12.
[i] Iſa. xliv. 22. Rom. iv. 7.
[k] Chap. xxxi. 34.

v. 9—20. God's controverſy with Babylon proceeds.

1. She is given into the hands of the Medes and Perſians. At God's command their army aſſembles, and he directs their arrows to the mark, that none return in vain, v. 9. Devoted to the ſpoil, Chaldea falls, v. 10. depopulated and deſolate, every one that paſſeth by ſhall hiſs in deriſion and be aſtoniſhed at her plagues, v. 13. The mother-city Babylon ſhall be confounded and aſhamed to find her helpleſs ſtate, unable to make head againſt her beſiegers, v. 14. and forced to ſubmit and yield her land, v. 15. She, who was once the golden head of nations, ſhall ſink into the loweſt place, and be as a deſert, barren and uninhabited, v. 12. her walls razed from the foundations, v. 15. not ſo much as the dregs of the people left, and her auxiliaries fled for fear of the Perſian ſword.

2. The cauſe of her fall is God's wrath and vengeance, provoked by the abuſe of his people; for, though the Chaldeans were commiſſioned of God to afflict them for their ſins, they meant only to gratify their own enmity and pride, and therefore exulted at their fall, fattened on their ſpoils, and bellowed as bulls with loud ſhouts, or neighed as horſes, making their unhappy captives ſubſervient to their beſtial paſſions, v. 11. Note, (1.) Though God over-rules men's wickedneſs for purpoſes of his own glory, that doth not exculpate them. (2.) None may expect ſeverer judgment from God than thoſe who have perſecuted God's people, and maliciouſly rejoiced at their fall.

3. God promiſes mercifully to viſit his people and puniſh their oppreſſors. They had been as defenceleſs ſheep worried by the lions: the king of Aſſyria had ſcattered the ten tribes, and now Nebuchadnezzar had cruſhed the very bones of the other two. But the king of Babylon ſhall be puniſhed, as the king of Aſſyria had been; and righteous retaliation be rendered to their foes, v. 15. whilſt Iſrael ſhall be reſtored to their own habitation; and God will give them peace and plenty, and every temporal bleſſing; and, better than all the reſt, pardon them freely, fully, and reſerve them for an habitation in a better country, that is an heavenly, v. 20. Note, (1.) They who imitate other men's ſins may expect to ſhare their plagues. (2.) When we return to God in penitence, we ſhall find him meeting us with pardon. (3.) Temporal mercies are doubly ſweet when coming in a way of covenant love. (4.) When God pardons, he doth it abundantly, not only forgiving but forgetting, caſting our ſins as a ſtone into the mighty waters, that they may ſink and never riſe up again. (5.) God's people are reſerved by him: they are an election of grace, prepared and ordained unto glory.

21. ¶ Go up againſt the land of † Merathaim, even againſt it, and againſt the inhabitants of ‡ Pekod: waſte and utterly deſtroy after them, ſaith the LORD, and [l] do according to all that I have commanded thee.
22. A ſound of battle is in the land, and of great deſtruction.
23. How is [m] the hammer of the whole earth cut aſunder and broken? how is [n] Babylon become a deſolation among the nations? 24. I have laid a ſnare for thee, and thou art alſo taken, O Babylon, and [o] thou waſt not aware: thou art found, and alſo caught, becauſe thou haſt ſtriven againſt the LORD. 25. The LORD hath opened his armoury, and hath brought forth the weapons of his indignation: for this is the work of the LORD God of hoſts, in the land of the Chaldeans. 26. Come againſt her [p] from § the utmoſt border, open her ſtore-houſes: ‖ caſt her up as heaps, and deſtroy her utterly: let nothing of her be left. 27.
Slay all her [q] bullocks: let them go down to the ſlaughter:
wo unto them, for their day is come, the time of their viſitation. 28. The voice of them that flee, and eſcape out of the land of Babylon, [r] to declare in Zion the vengeance of the LORD our God, the vengeance of his temple. 29. Call together the archers againſt Babylon: all ye that bend the bow, camp againſt it round about; let none thereof eſcape: [s] recompenſe her according to her work; according to all that ſhe hath done, do unto her: for [t] ſhe hath been proud againſt the LORD, againſt the holy One of Iſrael. 30. Therefore [u] ſhall her young men fall in the ſtreets, and all her men of war ſhall be cut off in that day, ſaith the LORD.
31. Behold, I am againſt thee, O thou † moſt proud, ſaith the LORD God of hoſts, for thy day is come, the time that I will viſit thee. 32. And the moſt proud ſhall ſtumble and fall, and [x] none ſhall raiſe him up:
and I will kindle a fire in his cities, and it ſhall devour all round about him.

† Or the rebels.
‡ Or viſitation.
[l] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 23. Iſa. xliv. 28. & xlviii. 14.
[m] Chap. li. 20.
[n] Rev. xviii. 19.
[o] Chap. li. 31, 39. 1 Theſ. v. 3.
[p] Iſa. xiii. 5.
§ Heb. The end.
‖ Or tread her.
[q] Iſa. xxxiv. 7.
[r] Chap. li. 10, 11.
[s] Ver. 15. Chap. li. 56. Lam. iii. 64. Rev. xviii. 6.
[t] Rev. xiii. 6.
[u] Chap. li. 4.
† Heb. Pride. Ver. 32.
[x] Rev. xviii. 21.

v. 21—32. Babylon being doomed to ruin, we have here,

1. A commiſſion given to Cyrus; his way pointed out; his conqueſt aſſured to him. He is directed to march by the country of the Mardi, and through Pekod in Aſſyria, beginning his conqueſts with theſe, and to execute exactly the inſtructions given him; for, though a mighty conqueror, he is but God's ſervant, Iſa. xliv. 28. Great is the deſtruction he ſhall work, for the day of vengeance is come. God's armoury is opened; he is furniſhed with weapons; both power and policy are given him from God. Caught as a beaſt in a ſnare, by ſtratagem the city is taken, and ravage univerſal enſues, God having enjoined the conqueror of Babylon to retaliate the injuries ſhe did to Zion; none muſt eſcape; her mighty men, like bullocks, ſhall be ſlaughtered; her young men fall in the ſtreets; and her riches be a prey to the captors: the fire of God's wrath, thus kindled, ſhall burn till all the cities follow the fate of the capital, and none be ever able to reſtore the ruined monarchy. Note, The ſinner, when rioting in plenty, is but as the ox fattening for the ſlaughter.

2. God is moſt righteous in theſe his judgments; for the ſins of Babylon are increaſed. (1.) Her tyranny. She had been the hammer of the whole earth, breaking in pieces all who oppoſed her; but now, aſtoniſhing to behold! ſhe is herſelf cut aſunder and broken. (2.) Her impious defiance of God. Thou haſt ſtriven againſt the Lord; oppreſſing his people, and challenging him to vindicate their quarrel. But wo to him that contendeth with his Maker. (3.) Her profanation of the temple, v. 28. and the veſſels of the ſanctuary: for, though he ſuffers for a while the enemies of his church to triumph, he will ſpeedily avenge her wrongs. (4.) Her intolerable pride, v. 31. behaving moſt arrogantly even againſt the Lord himſelf, and thereby provoking his indignation: I am againſt thee, O thou moſt proud: and who can ſtand, when God riſeth up as an enemy? Note, Unhumbled pride will have a fall, often in this world, into abject wretchedneſs; certainly in the next, into the belly of hell.

33. ¶ Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, The children of Iſrael and the children of Judah were oppreſſed together, and all that took them captives held them faſt, they refuſed to let them go. 34. [y] Their redeemer is ſtrong, the LORD of hoſts is his name, he ſhall throughly plead their cauſe, [z] that he may give reſt to the land, and diſquiet the inhabitants of Babylon. 35. ¶ A ſword is upon the Chaldeans, ſaith the LORD, and upon the inhabitants of Babylon, and upon her princes, and upon her wiſe men. 36. A ſword is [a] upon the † liars, and they ſhall dote, a ſword is upon her mighty men, and they ſhall be diſmayed. 37. A ſword is upon their horſes, and upon their chariots, and upon all the mingled people that are in the midſt of her, and [b] they ſhall become as women: a ſword is upon her treaſures, and they ſhall be robbed. 38. [c] A drought is upon her waters, and they ſhall be dried up: for it is the land of graven images, and they are mad upon their ‡ idols. 39. Therefore [d] the wild beaſts of the deſert, with the wild beaſts of the iſland, ſhall dwell there, and the owls ſhall dwell therein: and [e] it ſhall be no more inhabited for ever: neither ſhall it be dwelt in from generation to generation. 40. [f] As God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah, and the neighbour cities thereof, ſaith the LORD: ſo ſhall no man abide there, neither ſhall any ſon of man dwell therein. 41. Behold, a people ſhall come from the north, and [g] a great nation, and many kings ſhall be raiſed up from the coaſts of the earth. 42. They ſhall hold the bow and the lance: they [h] are cruel, and will not ſhew mercy: [i] their voice ſhall roar like the ſea, and they ſhall ride upon horſes, every one put in aray like a man to the battle, againſt thee, O daughter of Babylon. 43. The king of Babylon hath heard the report of them, and [k] his hands waxed feeble: [l] anguiſh took hold of him, and pangs as of a woman in travail. 44. Behold, he ſhall [m] come up like a lion from the ſwelling of Jordan, unto the habitation of the ſtrong: but I will make them ſuddenly run away from her: and who is a choſen man that I may appoint over her? for who is like me, and [n] who will appoint me the time? and who is that ſhepherd that will ſtand before me? 45. Therefore hear ye the counſel of the LORD, that he hath taken againſt Babylon, and his purpoſes that he hath purpoſed againſt the land of the Chaldeans: ſurely the leaſt of the flock ſhall draw them out: ſurely he ſhall make their habitation deſolate with them. 46. [o] At the noiſe of the taking of Babylon the earth is moved, and the cry is heard among the nations.

[y] Rev. xviii. 8.
[z] 2 Theſ. i. 6, 7.
[a] Iſa. xliv. 25 Chap. xlviii. 30.
† Heb. Bars.
[b] Nah. iii. 13.
[c] Iſa. xliv. 27. Chap. li. 32, 36. Rev. xvi. 12.
‡ Heb. Terrors.
[d] Iſa. xiii. 21, 22. & xxxiv. 14. Chap. li. 37. Rev. xviii. 2.
[e] Iſa. xiii. 20. Chap. xxv. 12.
[f] Gen. xix. 25. Iſa. xiii. 19. Chap. xlix. 18.
[g] Chap. xxv. 14. & li. 27. Rev. xvii. 16.
[h] Pſ. cxxxvii. 8. Iſa. xiii. 18.
[i] Iſa. v. 30.
[k] Iſa. xiii. 7.
[l] Chap. xlix. 24.
[m] Chap xlix. 19, &c.
[n] Job xli. 10. Chap. xlix. 19.
[o] Chap. xlix. 21. Rev. xviii. 9.

v. 33—46. We have here,

1. The recovery of God's people from their ſtate of oppreſſion. Iſrael and Judah both groaned under the yoke, and their conquerors refuſed to let them go: but, when God determines their deliverance, who can ſtay him? Their Redeemer is ſtrong, yea almighty to ſave, the Lord of hoſts is his name, whom all the armies of heaven and earth obey. He ſhall thoroughly plead their cauſe, avenge their wrongs, reſtore them to their own land, and puniſh their oppreſſors. And this is true of all the Iſrael of God, whether under the ſpiritual bondage of ſin and Satan, or ſuffering under antichriſtian tyranny: though their enemies refuſe to let them go, the Lord is their avenger, to recompenſe tribulation to them that trouble them, to break the bands of ſin and Satan, and the power of their perſecutors; to ſet his people free, to give them reſt ſpiritually on earth, and eternally with himſelf in heaven. Let them therefore truſt in the Lord, and rejoice in the comfort of his aſſured ſalvation.

2. The ruin of Babylon for her ſins; particularly her detention of God's Iſrael, and her abominable idolatries. They are mad upon their idols, ſo ſuperſtitiouſly devoted to them; or their terrors, their images being frightful, and their worſhippers terrified with fear of them. And very applicable is this to the idolatries of Babylon myſtical, where image-worſhip ſo abounds. For this God's ſword is drawn, and terribly deſcends upon her princes, her wiſe counſellors, her ſoothſayers, who deceived the people with their lies; upon her mighty warriors, her cavalry, her chariots, her auxiliaries, who ſhould through fear become weak as women; upon her treaſures, devoted to the ſpoil, v. 35, 37. A drought is ſent upon her waters in general, from whence the land becomes barren, and famine enſues; or upon the river that ran through Babylon in particular, the courſe of which was turned, and the bed of it left dry opened a paſſage into the city, v. 38. So utterly ſhall this proud city be overthrown, that the wild beaſts ſhall take up their abode in her ruinous palaces; and, like the cities of Gomorrah, her deſolations ſhall be perpetual, v. 39, 40. From the north their mercileſs deſtroyers come, compleatly armed, and ſpreading their terrors on every ſide. Confounded at the report, the king of Babylon, like a travailing woman, loſes all power of reſiſtance, and falls an eaſy prey. The very ſame expreſſions are uſed as chap. vi. 22, 24. to ſhew how exactly Babylon was to be puniſhed according to her former treatment of Jeruſalem. And as Nebuchadnezzar had ſerved Edom, chap. xlix. 19—21. ſuch a lion ſhould Cyrus prove to Chaldea, devouring and deſtroying all before him. And as Babylon of old, ſo ſhall Babylon myſtical be deſtroyed, when the time fixed in God's eternal decree arrives; when the ſaints of God will for ever triumph, and their enemies be eternally tormented, Rev. xiv. 8. xviii. 2—19.

CHAP. LI.

This chapter is a continuation of the former prophecy againſt Babylon. 1. Her ruin is at large ſet forth, ver. 1—58. 2. The ratification of it by a ſign, ver. 59—64.

1. THUS ſaith the LORD, Behold, I will raiſe up againſt Babylon, and againſt them that dwell in the † midſt of them that riſe up againſt me, [a] a deſtroying wind; 2. And will ſend unto Babylon [b] fanners, that ſhall fan her, and ſhall empty her land: for [c] in the day of trouble they ſhall be againſt her round about. 3. Againſt him that bendeth let the archer bend his bow, and againſt him that lifteth himſelf up in his brigandine; and ſpare ye not her young men, [d] deſtroy ye utterly all her hoſt. 4. Thus the ſlain ſhall fall in the land of the Chaldeans, and they that are thruſt through in her ſtreets. 5. For Iſrael hath not been ‡ forſaken, nor Judah of his God, of the LORD of hoſts; though [e] their land was filled with ſin againſt the holy One of Iſrael. 6. [f] Flee out of the midſt of Babylon, and deliver every man his ſoul: be not cut off in her iniquity: for this is [g] the time of the LORD's vengeance: [h] he will render unto her a recompenſe. 7. [i] Babylon hath been a golden cup in the LORD's hand, that made all the earth drunken: [k] the nations have drunken of her wine, therefore the nations are mad. 8. [l] Babylon is [m] ſuddenly fallen and deſtroyed: [n] howl for her, [o] take balm for her pain, if ſo be ſhe may be healed. 9. We would have healed Babylon, but ſhe is not healed: forſake her, and [p] let us go every one into his own country: for [q] her judgment reacheth unto heaven, and is lifted up even to the ſkies. 10. [r] The LORD hath brought forth our righteouſneſs: come and [s] let us declare in Zion the work of the LORD our God. 11. [t] Make bright the arrows: gather the ſhields: [u] the LORD hath raiſed up the ſpirit of the kings of the Medes: for his device is againſt Babylon, to deſtroy it; becauſe [x] it is the vengeance of the LORD, the vengeance of his temple. 12. [y] Set up the ſtandard upon the walls of Babylon, make the watch ſtrong, ſet up the watchmen, prepare the ambuſhes: for the LORD hath both deviſed and done that which he ſpake againſt the inhabitants of Babylon. 13. O thou that dwelleſt [z] upon many waters, abundant in treaſures, thine end is come, and the meaſure of thy covetouſneſs. 14. The LORD of hoſts [a] hath ſworn by himſelf, ſaying, Surely I will fill thee with men, as with caterpillers; and they ſhall lift up a ſhout againſt thee. 15. [b] He hath made the earth by his power, he hath eſtabliſhed the world by his wiſdom, and [c] hath ſtretched out the heaven by his underſtanding. 16. When he uttereth his voice, there is a § multitude of waters in the heavens, and [d] he cauſeth the vapours to aſcend from the ends of the earth, he maketh lightnings with rain, and bringeth forth the wind out of his treaſures. 17. [e] Every man is || brutiſh by his knowledge, every founder is confounded by the graven image: for his molten image is falſhood, and there is no breath in them. 18. They are vanity, the work of errors: [f] in the time of their viſitation they ſhall periſh. 19. [g] The portion † Heb. Heart.

[a] Chap. iv. 11.
[b] Chap xv. 7.
[c] Chap. l. 14.
[d] Chap. l. 21. Jam. ii. 13.
‡ Or, left in widowhood. Lam. i. 1.
[e] Chap. xvi. 18.
[f] Chap. l. 8. Rev. xviii. 4.
[g] Chap. l. 15, 28.
[h] Chap. xxv. 14. Rev. xviii. 6.
[i] Rev. xvii. 4.
[k] Rev. xiv. 8.
[l] Iſa. xxi. 9. Rev. xiv. 8. & xviii. 2.
[m] 1 Theſ. v. 3.
[n] Rev. xviii. 9.
[o] Chap. xlvi. 11.
[p] Iſa. xiii. 14. Chap. l. 16.
[q] Rev. xviii. 5.
[r] Pſ. xxxvii. 6. Mic. vii. 9.
[s] Chap. l. 28.
[t] Chap. xlvi. 4.
[u] Iſa. xiii. 17. Ver. 28.
[x] Chap. l. 28.
[y] Nah. ii. 1. & iii. 14.
[z] Rev. xvii. 1.
[a] Heb. vi. 13.
[b] Gen. i. 1, 6. Chap. x. 12, &c.
[c] Job ix. 8. Pſ. civ. 2. Iſa. xl. 22.
§ Or noiſe.
[d] Pſ. cxxxv. 7.
[e] Chap. x. 14.
|| Or more brutiſh than to know.
[f] Chap. l. 2.
[g] Chap. x. 16.

Before Chriſt 595.

portion of Jacob is not like them, for he is the former of all things, and Iſrael is the rod of his inheritance: the LORD of hoſts is his name. 20. [h] Thou art my battle-ax and weapons of war: for † with thee will I break in pieces the nations, and with thee will I deſtroy kingdoms: 21. And with thee will I break in pieces the horſe and his rider, and with thee will I break in pieces the chariot and his rider. 22. With thee alſo will I break in pieces man and woman, and [i] with thee will I break in pieces old and young, and with thee will I break in pieces the young man and the maid: 23. I will alſo break in pieces with thee the ſhepherd and his flock, and with thee will I break in pieces the huſbandman and his yoke of oxen, and with thee will I break in pieces captains and rulers. 24. And [k] I will render unto Babylon, and to all the inhabitants of Chaldea, all their evil that they have done in Zion in your ſight, ſaith the LORD. 25. Behold, I am againſt thee, [l] O deſtroying mountain, ſaith the LORD, which deſtroyeſt all the earth, and I will ſtretch out mine hand upon thee, and roll thee down from the rocks, and will make thee [m] a burnt mountain. 26. And they ſhall not take of thee a ſtone for a corner, nor a ſtone for foundations, but [n] thou ſhalt be ‡ deſolate for ever, ſaith the LORD. 27, Set ye up a ſtandard in the land, blow the trumpet among the nations, [o] prepare the nations againſt her, call together againſt her [p] the kingdoms of Ararat, Minni, and Aſhchenaz, appoint a captain againſt her, cauſe the horſes to come up as the rough caterpillers. 28. Prepare againſt her the nations with the kings of the Medes, the captains thereof, and all the rulers thereof, and all the land of his dominion. 29. And the land ſhall tremble and ſorrow: for every purpoſe of the LORD ſhall be performed againſt Babylon, [q] to make the land of Babylon a deſolation without an inhabitant. 30. The mighty men of Babylon have forborn to fight, they have remained in their holds, [r] their might hath failed, [s] they became as women: they have burnt her dwelling-places, her bars are broken. 31. [t] One poſt ſhall run to meet another, and one meſſenger to meet another, to ſhew the king of Babylon that his city is taken at one end, 32. And that [u] the paſſages are ſtopped, and the reeds they have burnt with fire, and the men of war are affrighted. 33. For thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts the God of Iſrael, The daughter of Babylon is [x] like a threſhing-floor, § it is time to threſh her: yet a little while, and [y] the time of her harveſt ſhall come. 34. Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon hath devoured me, [z] he hath cruſhed me, he hath made me an empty veſſel, he hath ſwallowed me up like a dragon, he hath filled his belly with my delicates, he hath caſt me out. 35. ‖ The violence done to me and to my † fleſh, [a] be upon Babylon, ſhall the ‡ inhabitant of Zion ſay; and my blood upon the inhabitants of Chaldea, ſhall Jeruſalem ſay. 36. Therefore thus ſaith the LORD, Behold [b] I will plead thy cauſe, and take vengeance for thee, [c] and I will dry up her ſea, and make her ſprings dry. 37. And [d] Babylon ſhall become heaps, a dwelling-place for dragons, an aſtoniſhment, and an hiſſing without an inhabitant. 38. They ſhall roar together like lions: they ſhall § yell as lions whelps. 39. In their heat I will make their feaſts, and [e] I will make them drunken, that they may rejoice and ſleep a perpetual ſleep, and not wake, ſaith the LORD. 40. I will bring them down like lambs to the ſlaughter, like rams with he-goats. 41. How is [f] Sheſhach taken! and [g] how is the praiſe of the whole earth ſurpriſed! how is Babylon become an aſtoniſhment among the nations! 42. [h] The ſea is come up upon Babylon: ſhe is covered with the multitude of the waves thereof. 43. Her cities are a deſolation, a dry land, and a wilderneſs, [i] a land wherein no man dwelleth, neither doth any ſon of man paſs thereby. 44. And [k] I will puniſh Bel in Babylon, and I will bring forth out of his mouth that which he hath ſwallowed up, and and the nations ſhall not flow together any more unto him, yea, the wall of Babylon ſhall fall. 45. [l] My people, go ye out of the midſt of her, and deliver ye every man his ſoul from the fierce anger of the LORD. 46. And ‖ leſt your heart faint, and ye fear for the rumour that ſhall be heard in the land: a rumour ſhall both come one year, and after that in another year ſhall come a rumour, and violence in the land, ruler againſt ruler. 47. Therefore behold, the days come, that [m] I will † do judgment upon the graven images of Babylon, and her whole land ſhall be confounded, and all her ſlain ſhall fall in the midſt of her. 48. Then [n] the heaven, and the earth, and all that is therein, ſhall ſing for Babylon: for [o] the ſpoilers ſhall come unto her from the north, ſaith the LORD. 49. ‡ As Babylon hath cauſed the ſlain of Iſrael to fall: ſo at Babylon ſhall fall the ſlain of all the § earth. 50. Ye that have eſcaped the ſword, go away, ſtand not ſtill: remember the LORD afar off, and let Jeruſalem come into your mind. 51. [p] We are confounded, becauſe we have heard reproach, ſhame hath covered our faces: for ſtrangers are come into the ſanctuaries of the LORD's houſe. 52. Wherefore behold, the days come, ſaith the LORD, that [q] I will do judgment upon her graven images, and through all her land the wounded ſhall groan. 53. [r] Though Babylon ſhould mount up to heaven, and though ſhe ſhould fortify the height of her ſtrength, yet from me ſhall ſpoilers come unto her, ſaith the LORD. 54. A ſound of a cry cometh from Babylon, [s] and great deſtruction from the land of the Chaldeans. 55. Becauſe the LORD hath ſpoiled Babylon, and deſtroyed out of her the great voice, when her waves do roar like great waters, a noiſe of their voice is uttered. 56. Becauſe the ſpoiler is come upon her, even upon Babylon, and her mighty men are taken, every one of their bows is broken, for the LORD God of recompenſes [t] ſhall ſurely requite. 57. And [u] I will make drunk her princes, and her wiſe men, her captains and her rulers, and her mighty men; and they ſhall ſleep a perpetual ſleep, and not wake, ſaith the King, whoſe name is the LORD of hoſts. 58. Thus ſaith the LORD of hoſts, § The broad walls of Babylon ſhall be utterly ‖ broken, and her high gates ſhall be burnt with fire, and [x] the people ſhall labour in vain, and the folk in the fire, and they ſhall be weary.

v. 1—58. For the comfort of God's people, and the confuſion of his enemies, the deſtruction of this proud city is at large inſiſted on.

1. God ſends forth and commiſſions the Medes and Perſians to deſtroy Babylon: like a whirlwind they ſhall ſweep the earth, and ſcatter the Chaldeans as chaff, v. 1, 2. murdering all who dared reſiſt them, without mercy or pity, v. 3. The Perſian ſtandard is erected, and multitudes flock to it, thick as the caterpillars or locuſts cover the ground, v. 27, 28. for when God hath work to do, inſtruments ſhall never be wanting.

2. Notwithſtanding all the former might of this famed city, it ſhall now be weak, and unable to reſiſt. Once God had clothed her with ſtrength, and as his battle-ax, v. 20. ſent her to break in pieces the nations, their forces, and all their inhabitants ſmall and great, v. 21—23. but now in vain they prepare their weapons of war, and furbiſh their armour, ruſty with long peace: in vain they erect their ſtandard, and ſummon their ſoldiers to attend, to guard the walls, or prepare an ambuſh for their enemies, v. 11, 12. Their courage is utterly failed, they are become as timorous as women, and fall without reſiſtance, v. 29, 30. ſo eaſily can God, when he ſends his terrors forth, make cowards of the braveſt.

3. The provocation Babylon had given was great: her ſins cried to heaven for vengeance, v. 9. (1.) They have riſen up againſt me, v. 1. in daring rebellion againſt God, and defiance of his power. (2.) Babylon is a golden cup, that made all the earth drunken, v. 7. ſhe hath been the head ſeat of idolatry, and the great temptreſs to all the nations over whom her power extended; by force or fraud engaging them to partake of her abominations, and, like her, become mad upon idols. (3.) Her incorrigibleneſs: We would have healed Babylon, but ſhe is not healed, v. 9. The faithful among the Jews that dwelt there would have turned them from their idolatries, but they were hardened in them. Though this may alſo be underſtood of her auxiliary forces, who in vain attempted to reſcue her from ruin, her time to fall being come. (4.) Her covetouſneſs was inſatiable, v. 13. graſping ſtill at farther conqueſts and ſpoils. (5.) Her tyranny over God's people: As a dragon, Nebuchadnezzar had ſwallowed and devoured them; broke all their bones as a lion; emptied them of all that was valuable; for which violence and bloodſhed, the inhabitants of Zion imprecate juſt vengeance upon their ravagers; and theſe appeals of God's oppreſſed people ſhall not be long unanſwered.

4. God in juſt judgment brings on Babylon the terrible ruin ſhe hath provoked by her ſin againſt the holy One of Iſrael, v. 5.

---

[h] Iſa. x. 5, 15. Chap. l. 23.
† Or in, or by thee.
[i] 2 Chron. xxxvi. 17. Ezek. ix. 6.
[k] Chap. l. 15. Rev. xviii. 6.
[l] Iſa. xiv. 6. Zech. iv. 7.
[m] Rev. viii. 8.
[n] Chap. l. 40.
‡ Heb. everlaſting deſolations.
[o] Iſa. xiii. 3. Chap. xxv. 14.
[p] Chap. l. 41.
[q] Chap. l. 39, 40.
[r] Pſ. lxxvi. 5.
[s] Chap. l. 37.
[t] Ib. 43.
[u] Ib. 38.
[x] Iſa. xxi. 10. Mic. iv. 13.
§ Or, in the time that he threſheth her. Hab. iii. 12.
[y] Hoſ. vi. 11. Joel iii. 13. Rev. xiv. 18.
[z] Chap. l. 17.
‖ Heb. My violence.
† Or, remainder.
[a] Rev. xviii. 6.
‡ Heb. Inhabitreſs.
[b] Chap. l. 34.
[c] Ib. 38.
[d] Iſa. xiii. 22. Chap. l. 39. Rev. xviii. 2.
§ Or, ſhake themſelves.
[e] Ver. 57.
[f] Chap. xxv. 26.
[g] Rev. xviii. 10.
[h] Iſa. viii. 8. & lix. 19.
[i] Chap. l. 39, 40.
[k] Iſa. xlvi. 1. Chap. l. 2.
[l] Ver. 6. Chap. l. 8. Rev. xviii. 4.
‖ Or, let not.
[m] Chap. l. 2.
† Heb. Viſit upon.
[n] Iſa. xliv. 23. & xlix. 13. Rev. xviii. 20.
[o] Chap. l. 3.
‡ Or, both Babylon is to fall, O ye ſlain of Iſrael, and with Babylon, &c.
§ Or country.
[p] Pſ. cxxxvii. 1. Lam. ii. 10.
[q] Ver. 47.
[r] Iſa. xiv. 12—15. Am. ix. 2, 3. Obad. 4.
[s] Chap. l. 22.
[t] 2 Theſ. i. 6.
[u] Ver. 39.
§ Or, the walls of broad Babylon.
‖ Or, made naked.
[x] Hab. ii. 13.

Before Christ 595.

He will plead the cauſe of his diſtreſſed people, who ſeemed to be deſerted and forſaken, and will take vengeance for them. v. 37. The time is fixed in the divine decree, v 6. when the wrongs of Zion ſhall be requited, v. 24, 56. and God's people ſhall ſee the day, when Babylon ſhall fall as the ſlain of Iſrael, who fell by her ſword, v. 49. And this is the work of the Lord, and to be declared in Zion to his praiſe, vindicating his people's cauſe, v. 10. and with a mighty and out-ſtretched arm puniſhing their foes. He hath ſworn their deſtruction, v. 14. and is fully able to execute his threatnings, being the almighty Lord, the maker and governor of all, whom heaven and earth obey, and againſt whom the Babyloniſh idols can avail nothing, v. 15—19. As he had before declared, chap. x. 12—16. where the very ſame expreſſions are uſed as here. When this Lord of hoſts ariſes, ſure deſolation marks his way: Babylon is fallen, v. 8. though now in all her pride: ſince God hath pronounced her doom, it is as ſure as if already executed. The waters on which ſhe dwelt ſhall afford her no defence, their courſe being diverted, and her rivers dried up by the beſiegers; nor her treaſures protect her, when her time is come, v. 13. Though ſtrong as a mountain, and late the deſtroyer of the nations, v. 25. ſhe is now made a threſhing-floor, where all her inhabitants ſhould be beaten in pieces, v. 33. From year to year the rumour comes of the vaſt preparations made by the Perſians; at laſt they approach; a battle enſues; the Babylonians are routed and driven within their walls, v. 46. nor can theſe protect them. Whilſt there ſecure they revel, ſudden their enemies enter through the bed of the river, and ſurprize them in their drunken feaſt. Swift flies the dreadful news; meſſenger upon meſſenger informs the affrighted king that his city is taken, the paſſages ſeized, and reſiſtance vain, v. 31, 32. The houſes are on fire, the bars of the gates broken, v. 30. roaring at their impious carouſal, and drunken, they are ſlain, and lie down to wake no more, v. 38, 39. ſlaughtered as eaſily as ſheep, v. 40. deluged by the army of the Perſians, breaking ing in like the waves of the ſea, v. 42. and utterly deſolate, the land becomes a wilderneſs, the cities uninhabited, v. 43. Their gods falling in the common ruin, and ſo far from helping their votaries, unable to defend themſelves, v. 44. yea, ſo entirely demoliſhed ſhall theſe proud walls be, the wonder of the world, on which ſeveral chariots might drive abreaſt, that there ſhould not be a ſtone left fit for any uſe, v. 26. her gates burnt with fire, the very foundations razed, and every attempt to repair theſe deſolations for ever fruitleſs, v. 9, 26, 58.

5. The people of God are warned to flee when they ſee the ruin approaching, that they may not be involved in it, nor overwhelmed with the terror of the deſtroying enemy, v. 46. and gladly to accept the offer of liberty which Cyrus ſhall proclaim to them, v. 45. They who had eſcaped the ſword of the Chaldeans, reſerved in mercy for ſuch a time, muſt haſte away to their own land. They are called to remember the Lord afar off, in the land of their captivity, and to think of Jeruſalem, the city of their ſolemnities, with eager longing to return thither, notwithſtanding its preſent deſolate ſtate: at which they were confounded; aſhamed to think of their abominations, that had provoked God to give up his ſanctuary to the profanation of the heathen. But God now hath avenged their quarrel and his own, and condignly puniſhed the Chaldeans and their gods, over whom Iſrael now may triumph, v. 50—52. Note, (1.) When we know the wrath of God is revealed againſt a world lying in wickedneſs, it is our wiſdom to come out from among them, and be ſeparate. (2.) In whatever ſtate of affliction or diſtreſs we are, it is our duty, and will be our comfort to think upon God, and remember his faithfulneſs, mercy, and truth.

6. According to their ſeveral intereſts thoſe who hear of Babylon's fall will be greatly affected. Some with aſtoniſhment and deep concern behold her ſudden fall, v. 41. and with an exceeding great and bitter cry bewail her deſolations: others ſhall rejoice in it; yea, the very heaven and the earth ſhall ſing, v. 48. giving praiſe to God for avenging the blood of his ſaints, and for the recovery of his people from captivity. Throughout the whole deſcription if we compare Rev. xviii. with this chapter, we ſhall ſee the ſtrongeſt reſemblance in the expreſſions; and as now this proud city here devoted to ruin hath been for many ages deſolate, according to the prophetic word; ſo ſurely ſhall Babylon myſtical, the city of Rome, and the tyranny of popery, be deſtroyed, when God's time of vengeance comes.

59. ¶ The word which Jeremiah the prophet commanded Seraiah the ſon of Neriah, the ſon of Maaſeiah, when he went † with Zedekiah the king of Judah into Babylon, in the fourth year of his reign: and this Seraiah was ‡ a quiet prince. 60. So Jeremiah wrote in a book all the evil that ſhould come upon Babylon, even all theſe words that are written againſt Babylon. 61. And Jeremiah ſaid to Seraiah, When thou comeſt to Babylon, and ſhalt ſee, and ſhalt read all theſe words, 62. Then thou ſhalt ſay, O LORD, thou haſt ſpoken againſt this place, to cut it off, [y] that none ſhall remain in it, neither man nor beaſt, but that [z] it ſhall be deſolate for ever. 63. And it ſhall be when thou haſt made an end of reading this book, that [a] thou ſhalt bind a ſtone to it, and caſt it into the midſt of Euphrates. 64. And thou ſhalt ſay, Thus ſhall Babylon ſink, and ſhall not riſe from the evil that I will bring upon her: and they ſhall be weary. Thus far are the words of Jeremiah.

† Or on the behalf of.
‡ Heb. A prince of reſt, or of Menucha.

Before Christ 595.

[y] Chap. l. 3.
[z] Ver. 26.
[a] Rev. xviii. 21.

v. 59—64. The prophecy concerning Babylon was long and terrible. We have here,

1. A copy of it written and ſent to the captive Jews in Babylon, by Seraiah, a quiet prince in thoſe turbulent times, who was for peace; and it is ſpoken of to his honour. He accompanied Zedekiah, as our verſion renders the words, or was ſent from Zedekiah, as his ambaſſador to Nebuchadnezzar, in the fourth year of his reign, and ſixty years before the deſtruction of Babylon.

2. He is enjoined to read the words of the roll when he came to Babylon, in the preſence of the captive Jews, for their encouragement; for however improbable the event, when they conſidered that vaſt city, ſo populous, and ſtrongly fortified, the accompliſhment of God's word was ſure. Note, The eye of faith ſtaggers at no difficulties; if God hath promiſed, that is enough.

3. He muſt make a ſolemn profeſſion of his own faith in the truth of what he had read, that it would ſurely be fulfilled, v. 62. and then in the preſence of the people muſt tie a ſtone to the roll, and caſt it into the river Euphrates, explaining the ſign, that thus ſhould Babylon ſink, and never riſe up again; wearied out with her plagues, exhauſted, and unable to repair her deſolations. Thus far are the words of Jeremiah; not that this was the laſt of his prophecies, but that here the burden of Babylon ends. With ſtill greater magnificence is the fall of Babylon myſtical repreſented, Rev. xviii. 21. and when God's final wrath is poured out upon the ungodly, their ruin will be irrecoverable and eternal.

CHAP. LII.

The ſad event here recorded we have had 2 Kings xxiv. xxv. It ſhews the fulfilment of many of the foregoing prophecies, and well introduces the book of Lamentations. We have, 1. The ill reign of Zedekiah, ver. 1—3. 2. The beſieging and taking of Jeruſalem by the Chaldeans, ver. 4—7. 3. The ſevere uſage which Zedekiah and the princes met with, ver. 8—11. 4. The deſtruction of the city and temple, ver. 12—14. 5. The captivity of the people, ver. 15, 16. and the numbers of the captives, ver. 28—30. 6. The carrying off of the plunder of the temple, ver. 17—23. 7. The ſlaughter of the prieſts, and ſome other great men in cold blood, ver. 24—27. 8. The better days which king Jehoiachin lived to ſee, after the death of Nebuchadrezzar, ver. 31—34.

1. [a] ZEdekiah was one and twenty years old when he † began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jeruſalem; and his mother's name was Hamutal the daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah. 2. And he did that which was evil in the eyes of the LORD, [b] according to all that Jehoiakim had done. 3. For through the anger of the LORD it came to paſs in Jeruſalem and Judah, till he had caſt them out from his preſence, that Zedekiah rebelled againſt the king of Babylon. 4. ¶ And it came to paſs [c] in the ninth year of his reign, [d] in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, that Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon came, he and all his army againſt Jeruſalem, and pitched againſt it, and built forts againſt it round about. 5. So the city was beſieged unto the eleventh year of king Zedekiah. 6. And [e] in the fourth month, in the ninth day of the month, [f] the famine was ſore in the city, ſo that there was no bread for the people of the land. 7. Then the city was broken up, and all the men of war fled, and went forth out of the city [g] by night, by the way of the gate between the two walls, which was by the king's garden, (now the Chaldeans were by the city round about) and they went by the way of the plain. 8. ¶ But the army of the Chaldeans purſued after the king, and [h] overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho, and all his army was ſcattered from him. 9. Then [i] they took the king, and carried him up unto the king of Babylon to Riblah in the land of Hamath: where he gave judgment upon him. 10. And the king of Babylon ſlew the ſons of Zedekiah before his eyes: he ſlew alſo all the princes of Judah in Riblah. 11.

598.
[a] 2 Kings xxiv. 18.
† Heb. Reigned.
[b] 2 Kings xxiii. 37.
591.
590.
[c] 2 Kings xxv. 1. Chap. xxxix. 1.
[d] Zech. viii. 19.
588.
[e] Zech. viii. 19.
[f] Ezek. v. 10.
[g] Ezek. xii. 12.
[h] Chap. xxxix. 5. Ezek. xii. 13.
[i] Chap. xxxii. 4.

Before Chriſt 588.

Then [k] he put out the eyes of Zedekiah, and the king of Babylon bound him in chains, and carried him to Babylon, and put him in ‡ priſon till the day of his death.

k Ezek. xii. 13.
‡ Heb. The houſe of the wards.

v. 1—11. We are here told,

1. The cauſe of the ruin of Zedekiah and the people. It was their ſins that provoked God's wrath againſt them; and what particularly filled up the meaſure of their guilt, and haſtened their deſtruction, was his rebellion againſt the king of Babylon, in violation of the oath of God which was upon him: and this God permitted as a puniſhment for his former ſins, and as the means to haſten his ruin. Note, When ſinners wilfully depart from God, he gives them up to their own folly, and uſually nothing more is needful to puſh them on their deſtruction.

2. The inſtruments employed were the Chaldeans under Nebuchadnezzar, who, after a ſiege of about eighteen months, took the city by aſſault, the famine having diſabled the beſiegers, and the obſtinacy of the king and princes preventing a ſurrender.

3. Too late the king and the men of war who ſurvived, attempted to flee. Though covered by the night, they are quickly purſued and taken; for in vain is every effort the ſinner makes to elude his deſtiny. See the unhappy monarch dragged as a criminal before the Babyloniſh monarch; judgment paſſed on him; his ſons murdered before his eyes; his princes ſlain; and then, as if to fix upon his mind continually the memory of the ſhocking ſcene, his eyes put out; in chains carried to Babylon, and condemned in a priſon to languiſh out the remainder of his miſerable days. He would not be warned, therefore he muſt ſuffer for it.

12. ¶ Now [l] in the fifth month, in the tenth day of the month ([m] which was the nineteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon) [n] came Nebuzar-adan † captain of the guard, which ſerved the king of Babylon, into Jeruſalem, 13. [o] And burnt [p] the houſe of the LORD, and the kings houſe; and all the houſes of Jeruſalem, and all the houſes of the great men burnt he with fire. 14. And all the army of the Chaldeans that were with the captain of the guard, brake down all the walls of Jeruſalem round about. 15. Then Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard carried away captive certain of the poor of the people; and the reſidue of the people, that remained in the city, and thoſe that fell away, that fell to the king of Babylon, and the reſt of the multitude. 16. But Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard, left certain of the poor of the land for the vine-dreſſers, and for huſbandmen. 17. [q] Alſo [r] the pillars of braſs that were in the houſe of the LORD, and the baſes, and the braſen ſea that was in the houſe of the LORD, the Chaldeans brake, and carried all the braſs of them to Babylon. 18. [s] The caldrons alſo, and the ſhovels, and the ſnuffers, and the ‡ bowls, and the ſpoons, and all the veſſels of braſs wherewith they miniſtred, took they away. 19. And the baſons, and the || fire-pans, and the bowls, and the caldrons, and the candleſticks, and the ſpoons, and the cups; that which was of gold in gold, and that which was of ſilver in ſilver, took the captain of the guard away. 20. The two pillars, one ſea, and twelve braſen bulls that were under the baſes, which king Solomon had made in the houſe of the LORD: [t] the § braſs of all theſe veſſels was without weight. 21. And concerning [u] the pillars, the height of one pillar was eighteen cubits, and a † fillet of twelve cubits did compaſs it, and the thickneſs thereof was four fingers: it was hollow. 22. And a chapiter of braſs was upon it, and the height of one chapiter was five cubits, with net-work and pomegranates upon the chapiters round about, all of braſs: the ſecond pillar alſo and the pomegranates were like unto theſe. 23. And there were ninety and ſix pomegranates on a ſide, and [x] all the pomegranates upon the net-work, were an hundred round about.

l Zech. vii. 5. & viii. 19.
m Ver. 29.
n Chap. xxxix. 9.
† Heb. Chief of the executioners. Ver. 14, 15.
o Chap. xxxix. 8, &c.
p Chap. vii. 14.
q Chap. xxvii. 19.
r 1 Kings vii. 15, 23, 27, 50.
s Ex. xxvii. 3. 2 Kings xxv. 14.
‡ Or baſons.
|| Or cenſers.
t 2 Kings vii. 47.
§ Heb. Their braſs.
u 1 Kings vii. 15. 2 Kings xxv. 17. 2 Chron. iii. 15.
† Heb. Thread.
x 1 Kings vii. 20.

v. 12—23. A month after the taking the city, we have an account of its entire demolition by Nebuzar-adan, ſent for this purpoſe by Nebuchadnezzar: the temple is laid in aſhes, after being plundered of all its veſſels and all its braſs; the quantity of which was immenſe, and the particulars of it are mentioned, to ſhew the exact fulfilment of the prediction, chap. xxvii. 19. The palaces and houſes of Jeruſalem are burnt to the ground, the walls raſed, and the reſidue of the people, who ſurvived the ſiege and famine, led captive with thoſe who had fallen to the Chaldeans. A melancholy ſcene! a warning to other nations how dangerous it is to provoke a jealous God.

24. ¶ And [y] the captain of the guard took Seraiah the chief prieſt, and [z] Zephaniah the ſecond prieſt, and the three keepers of the door. 25. He took alſo out of the city an eunuch, which had the charge of the men of war, and [a] ſeven men of them that † were near the king's perſon, which were found in the city, and ‡ the principal ſcribe of the hoſt, who muſtered the people of the land, and threeſcore men of the people of the land, that were found in the midſt of the city. 26. So Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard took them, and brought them to the king of Babylon to Riblah. 27. And the king of Babylon ſmote them, and put them to death in Riblah, in the land of Hamath. Thus [b] Judah was carried away captive out of his own land. 28. This is the people whom Nebuchadrezzar carried away captive; [c] in the ſeventh year, [d] three thouſand Jews and three and twenty: 29. [e] In the eighteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar he carried away captive from Jeruſalem eight hundred thirty and two § perſons: 30. [f] In the three and twentieth year of Nebuchadrezzar, Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard carried away captive of the Jews ſeven hundred forty and five perſons: all the perſons were four thouſand and ſix hundred.

Before Chriſt 588.
y 2 Kings xxv. 18.
z Chap. xxi. 1. & xxix. 25.
a 2 Kings xxv. 19.
† Heb. Saw the King's face.
‡ Or the ſcribe of the captain of the hoſt.
b Deut. xxviii. 36.
600.
c 2 Kings xxiv. 12.
d 2 Kings xxiv. 14.
589.
e Ver. 12.
§ Heb. Souls.
584.
f Chap. xli. 2.

v. 24—30. When the ſword is drawn, it is not quickly ſheathed. We have here,

1. The dreadful execution of ſeventy-four of the principal men, who were brought up by Nebuzar-adan to the king of Babylon at Riblah. The account, 2 Kings xxv. 18, 19. reckons them but ſeventy-two; ſome hence imagine that Jeremiah and Ebed-Melech were of the number who were taken, but afterwards releaſed; or two of leſs note than the reſt, might not be there reckoned. All theſe were murdered in cold blood by Nebuchadnezzar's orders, as a puniſhment for their rebellion; and we muſt own this to be the juſt fate of traitors, whilſt we condemn the cruelty of the Chaldean king.

2. Their repeated captivities in the ſeventh, the nineteenth, and twenty-third years of Nebuchadnezzar. The two former we had an account of, 2 Kings xxiv. 12. &c. though the numbers conſiderably differ. Perhaps here the men of note are only mentioned, and officers; there the common people alſo: but the latter probably was the gleaning of the people after the death of Gedaliah, and the flight of Johanan. A number ſmall and inconſiderable, compared to the multitudes which once dwelt in the land, but by peſtilence, famine, and the ſword, they were thus miſerably reduced. Such ravages doth ſin make.

31. ¶ [g] And it came to paſs in the ſeven and thirtieth year of the captivity of Jehoiachin king of Judah, in the twelfth month, in the five and twentieth day of the month, that Evil-merodach king of Babylon, in the firſt year of his reign, [h] lifted up the head of Jehoiachin king of Judah, and brought him forth out of priſon, 32. And ſpake † kindly unto him, and ſet his throne above the throne of the kings that were with him in Babylon, 33. And changed his priſon-garments: and he [i] did continually eat bread before him all the days of his life. 34. And for his diet, there was a continual diet given him of the king of Babylon, ‡ every day a portion until the day of his death, all the days of his life.

562.
g 2 Kings xxv. 27, 28.
h Gen. xl. 13, 20.
† Heb. Good things with him.
i 2 Sam. ix. 13. Chap. xv. 11.
‡ Heb. The matter of the day in his day.

v. 31—34. The only difference between the account here given, and that, 2 Kings xxv. is, that there Jehoiakin's deliverance from priſon is ſaid to be on the 27th day of the 12th month, here on the 25th: probably the orders were given this day, though not executed till two days after. The captive king experienced now a very happy change; releaſed from his priſon; arrayed in royal robes, inſtead of his priſon-garments; his throne exalted above his fellow-captive monarchs; treated with great affection and regard by the Babyloniſh emperor; admitted to a conſtant ſeat at his table, and nobly provided for all his days. Thus ſtrange are the changes of this ſhifting ſcene, proſperity and adverſity are often ſet over-againſt each other, that in our higheſt eſtate we may never be confident, nor in the loweſt, deſpair. It was, no doubt, matter of inexpreſſible joy to this unhappy captive, after ſo long confinement, once more to taſte the ſweets of liberty. But how much greater the delight of the captive ſoul, when delivered from the bondage of corruption; exchanging his filthy priſon-garments for the glorious robe of a Redeemer's righteouſneſs; fed at the table of the King of kings; yea, called to ſit down on his throne; and this rich proviſion, and theſe diſtinguiſhed honours, not only enduring to the day of his death, but to the ages of eternity.

THE

THE EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;
OR, A PRACTICAL COMMENT
Upon the LAMENTATIONS of
JEREMIAH.

THE penman of this book was Jeremiah, and fitly it follows his prophecy; expreſſing his feeling ſenſe of thoſe deſolations of his country he had foretold, and lived to ſee accompliſhed.

The compoſition is poetical and ſingular; each verſe in every chapter, except the fifth, beginning with a ſeveral letter of the alphabet, in order; once only the letter פ Pe is ſet before ע Ain, chap. xi. 16. In the third chapter, the alphabet is thrice repeated, every three verſes beginning with the ſame letter.

Nothing can be conceived more tender, expreſſive, and affecting than the deſcriptions here given; nor are theſe Lamentations ſcarce now to be read, without mingling our tears with his. And how much more ſenſibly muſt they be touched with them, who were more immediately intereſted in the ſubject, and not only beheld theſe deſolations he lamented, but were themſelves a part of them?

The grand deſign of them is to lead the captives to repentance and humiliation for their ſins before God, and to inſpire them with ſome reviving hope amidſt all their ſorrows, that theſe deſolations would come to an end; and that returning to God, he would return unto them, put an end to their captivity, and wipe away all tears from their eyes.

Before Chriſt 588.

CHAP. I.

We have here the miſeries of Jeruſalem bitterly bewailed, and her preſent deplorable condition aggravated, by comparing it with her former proſperous ſtate; and all along ſin is acknowledged and complained of as the procuring cauſe of all theſe miſeries; and God is appealed to for juſtice againſt her enemies, and applied to for compaſſion towards them. Here is, 1. A complaint made to God of their calamities, and his compaſſionate conſideration deſired, ver. 1—11. 2. The ſame complaint made to their friends, and their compaſſionate conſideration deſired, ver. 12—17. 3. An appeal to God and his righteouſneſs concerning it, ver. 18—22. in which he is juſtified in their affliction, and is humbly ſolicited to juſtify himſelf in their deliverance.

1. HOW doth the city ſit ſolitary, that was full of people! [a] how is ſhe become as a widow! ſhe that was great among the nations, [b] and princeſs among the provinces, how is ſhe become tributary! 2. She [c] weepeth ſore in the [d] night, and her tears are on her cheeks: [e] among all her lovers [f] ſhe hath none to comfort her, all her friends have dealt treacherouſly with her, they are become her enemies. 3. Judah is gone into captivity, becauſe of affliction,† and becauſe of great ſervitude: [g] ſhe dwelleth among the heathen, ſhe findeth no reſt: all her perſecutors [h] overtook her between the ſtraits. 4. The ways of Zion do mourn, becauſe none come to the ſolemn feaſts: all her gates are deſolate: her prieſts ſigh, her virgins are afflicted, and ſhe is in bitterneſs. 5. Her adverſaries [i] are the chief, her enemies proſper: for the LORD hath afflicted her; [k] for the multitude of her tranſgreſſions, [l] her children are gone into captivity before the enemy. 6. And from the daughter of Zion all her beauty is departed: her princes are become like harts that find no paſture, and they are gone without ſtrength before the purſuer. 7. Jeruſalem remembred in the days of her affliction, and of her miſeries, all her ‡ pleaſant things that ſhe had in the days of old, when her people fell into the hand of the enemy, and none did help her, the adverſaries ſaw her, and did mock at her ſabbaths. 8. Jeruſalem hath grievouſly ſinned: therefore ſhe is removed: all that honoured her, deſpiſe her, becauſe [m] they have ſeen her nakedneſs: yea, ſhe ſigheth, and turneth backward. 9. [n] Her filthineſs is in her ſkirts, [o] ſhe remembreth not her laſt end, therefore ſhe came down wonderfully: [p] ſhe had no comforter: O LORD, behold my affliction: for the enemy hath magnified himſelf. 10. The adverſary hath ſpread out his hand upon all her pleaſant things: for ſhe hath ſeen that [q] the heathen entred

Before Chriſt 588.

[a] Iſa. xlvii. 7, 8.
[b] Ezra iv. 20.
[c] Jer. xiii. 17.
[d] Job vii. 3. Pſ. vi. 6.
[e] Jer. iv. 30. & xxx. 14. Ver. 19.
[f] Ver. 9, 16, 17, 21.
† Heb. For the greatneſs of ſervitude.
[g] Chap. ii. 9.
[h] Jer. lii. 8.
[i] Deut. xxviii. 13, 14.
[k] Jer. xxx. 14. Dan. ix. 11.
[l] Jer. lii. 28.
‡ Or deſireable.
[m] Jer. xiii. 26. Ezek. xvi. 37. & xxiii. 29. Hoſ. ii. 10.
[n] Ezek. xxiv. 7.
[o] Deut. xxxii. 29.
[p] Ver. 2, 17, 21.
[q] Jer. li. 51.

Before Chriſt 589.

tred into her ſanctuary, whom thou didſt command that [r] they ſhould not enter into thy congregation. 11. All her people ſigh, [s] they ſeek bread, they have given their pleaſant things for meat ‖ to relieve the ſoul: ſee, O LORD, and conſider, for I am become vile.

[r] Deut. xxiii. 3. Neh. xiii. 1.
[s] Jer. lii. 6.
‖ Or to make the ſoul come again.

v. 1—11. With plaintive notes of woe the prophet's mournful muſe begins, and bids each reader drop the ſympathetic tear.

1. He bewails the deſolations of Jeruſalem: how changed from all her former glory, fallen into what an abyſs of wretchedneſs, amazed at what he beheld, and commiſerating her afflicted caſe, he breaks forth, How doth the city ſit ſolitary, that was full of people! Silence reigns in the once-thronged ſtreets, and brooding over the ruins, with anguiſh too big for utterance, in melancholy ſolitude, Jeruſalem, as a diſconſolate widow, ſits on the ground, deſerted of God, her king a captive, her inhabitants dead with famine, peſtilence, or the ſword, or under the yoke of ſervitude in a ſtrange land. A princeſs once among the nations; courted, reſpected, and obeyed; now bound with captive bands, an ignominious tributary to a heathen lord, v. 2. No marvel tears inceſſant furrow her cheeks; and, as if too ſhort the day for ſorrow ſuch as hers, all night they flow, without a comforter, without a friend to pity her, and by partaking to alleviate her anguiſh. Her lovers, who in the days of her proſperity with warm profeſſions teſtified their regard, deſert her in the day of her calamity; and her treacherous friends throw off the maſk, and act as open enemies. v. 2. Her children groan in ſervitude; ſubject to the caprice and tyranny of heathen maſters; and finding no reſt, no end of toil, no peace of mind, no ſettled abode. Hemmed in like a beaſt in the toils, her perſecutors have ſeized her, without the poſſibility of eſcape, v. 3. Her adverſaries are chief; her enemies proſper: and no marvel, ſince the Lord hath afflicted her, whoſe wrath is the cauſe of all her ſufferings, v. 5. Like harts famiſhed for want of paſture, and weak as theſe timorous animals, her princes are unable to fight or fly, and fall an eaſy prey, v. 6. deſpiſed now by thoſe who honoured her; ſtripped of all her wealth and ornaments, her nakedneſs appears; and confounded ſhe ſighs and turns backward, as if to hide her ſhame, v. 8. Pining with famine, and ſunk in deſpondence, her people ſeek bread, and gladly part with all their Jewels and pleaſant things to procure the ſmalleſt refreſhment: ſo low are they reduced from that plenty in which they once rioted, and ſo grievouſly abuſed, v. 11. Note, (1.) They who wilfully depart from God, the ſoul's true reſt, may not hope to find reſt in any thing beſide. (2.) All afflictions are doubly heavy when we ſee them as coming from God, not in mercy, but in wrath. (3.) Men's ſins will ſurely bring them into ſtraits, when too late they will bewail their folly. (4.) Affluence abuſed is the ready way to pining want.

Great were theſe miſeries under which the ſtate groaned; yet greater anguiſh to the gracious ſoul it was, to behold the ſacred ſervice of the temple interrupted. Unfrequented now the ways of Zion mourn; her gates no longer thronged by thoſe who haſted to her ſolemn feaſts, are deſerted, deſolate. Her prieſts ſigh; no ſacrifice bleeds; no incenſe ſmoaks upon the altar; deſtitute of their portion, famiſhing through want: Her virgins are afflicted; their ſongs of joy ſunk into mourning and woe; and ſhe is in bitterneſs, overwhelmed with anguiſh and diſtreſs, v. 4. Her beauty is departed; not only her king and nobles captives, her country waſted, but, above all, the beautiful houſe of her ſanctuary in ruins, v. 6. With ſacrilegious hands her enemies have ſeized all her pleaſant things, her ark, her altars; and thoſe who might not even enter the congregation, now riot in the very ſanctuary, plunder and ſpoil its ſacred treaſures, v. 10. and, adding inſult to their ravages, mocked at their ſabbaths; or, as ſome think, in deriſion laid upon them that day heavier burdens, v. 7. And what aggravated all, was the remembrance of the happy days of old, fled, to appearance for ever fled, and nothing now remaining but affliction and miſery, v. 7. Note, (1.) Nothing affects a good man's heart ſo deeply as the decay of vital godlineſs. (2.) To hear God diſhonoured, his worſhip and ordinances deſpiſed and ridiculed, is bitter to the faithful ſoul. (3.) The remembrance of the communion we have enjoyed with God, and the comforts we have taſted, ſerve but to aggravate our griefs, when by our unfaithfulneſs we have provoked God to withdraw, and leave us to our miſery.

2. He laments over their ſins, the cauſe of theſe deſolations; for God is righteous in theſe his judgments. Her tranſgreſſions are multiplied, v. 5. and very grievous, v. 8. numberleſs and aggravated. Her filthineſs is in her ſkirts, open and avowed: careleſs and ſecure, ſhe remembreth not her laſt end, nor conſiders in what miſery her iniquities will iſſue: and having been moſt oppreſſive herſelf, the rich afflicting their poor brethren, and making their ſervitude heavy, v. 3. juſtly therefore ſhe is devoted to the yoke, and her fall wonderful, v. 9. as her provocations had exceeded. Note, (1.) Sin and ruin are inſeparable. (2.) No ſins are ſo aggravated as thoſe of God's profeſſing people,

3. Zion is introduced breaking forth into an earneſt cry to God under her ſufferings. O Lord, behold my afflictions, with an eye of pity and compaſſion, ſince every other comforter is no more: ſee, O Lord, and conſider, for I am become vile, reduced to the moſt abject miſery, and ready to ſink into deſpair, if thou doſt not interpoſe. Note, (1.) The only relief for the miſerable is earneſt application to the merciful God. When all other's compaſſions fail, his fail not. (2.) If God afflicts his own people, it is in order to excite their more fervent applications to him, and make them know more of the wonders of his grace.

Before Chriſt 588.

12. ¶ Is it nothing to you, all ye that † paſs by? behold and ſee, [t] if there be any ſorrow like unto my ſorrow, which is done unto me, wherewith the LORD hath afflicted me, in the day of his fierce anger. 13. From above hath he ſent fire into my bones, and it prevaileth againſt them: he hath ſpread a net for my feet, he hath turned me back: he hath made me deſolate, and faint all the day. 14. [u] The yoke of my tranſgreſſions is bound by his hand: they are wreathed, and come up upon my neck: he hath made my ſtrength to fall, the LORD hath delivered me into their hands, from whom I am not able to riſe up. 15. The LORD hath troden under foot all my mighty men in the midſt of me: he hath called an aſſembly againſt me, to cruſh my young men: [x] the LORD hath troden the virgin, the daughter of Judah, as in a wine-preſs. 16. For theſe things I weep, [y] mine eye, mine eye runneth down with water, becauſe the comforter that ſhould ‡ relieve my ſoul, is far from me: my children are deſolate, becauſe the enemy prevailed. 17. [z] Zion ſpreadeth forth her hands, and [a] there is none to comfort her: the LORD hath commanded concerning Jacob, that his adverſaries ſhould be round about him: Jeruſalem is as a menſtruous woman among them. 18. ¶ The LORD [b] is righteous, for I have [c] rebelled againſt his § commandment: hear, I pray you, all people, and behold my ſorrow: my virgins and my young men are gone into captivity. 19. I called for my lovers, but [d] they deceived me; my prieſts and mine elders gave up the ghoſt in the city, while they ſought their meat to relieve their ſouls. 20. Behold, O LORD, for I am in diſtreſs; my [e] bowels are troubled; mine heart is turned within me; for I have grievouſly rebelled: [f] abroad the ſword bereaveth, at home there is death. 21. They have heard that I ſigh, there is none to comfort me: all mine enemies have heard of my trouble, they are glad that thou haſt done it: thou wilt bring [g] the day that thou haſt called, and they ſhall be [h] like unto me. 22. [i] Let all their wickedneſs come before thee: and do unto them, as thou haſt done unto me for all my tranſgreſſions: for my ſighs are many, and [k] my heart is faint.

† Heb. Paſs by the way.
[t] Dan. ix. 12.
[u] Prov. v. 22.
[x] Iſa. lxiii. 3.
[y] Jer. xiii. 17. & xiv. 17. Chap. ii. 18.
‡ Heb. Bring back.
[z] Jer. iv. 31.
[a] Ver. 2.
[b] Dan. ix. 7.
[c] 1 Sam. xii. 14, 15.
§ Heb. Mouth.
[d] Ver. 2. Jer. xxx. 14.
[e] Iſa. xvi. 11. Jer. xlviii. 36. Chap. ii. 11. Hoſ. xi. 8.
[f] Deut. xxxii. 25. Ezek. vii. 15.
[g] Iſa. xiii. &c. Jer. xlvi. &c.
[h] Jer. li. 49.
[i] Pſ. cix. 15.
[k] Chap. v. 17.

v. 12—22. The ſame complaints are here continued.

1. She demands ſome compaſſion from the ſpectators of her miſery, in the view of the heavy hand of God upon her, whom ſhe acknowledges the author of her troubles. Is it nothing to you, all ye that paſs by? can you unconcerned behold theſe deſolations, and not drop a tear over theſe ruins? ſee if there be any ſorrow like unto my ſorrow; ſo bitter and overwhelming. How ready are we all in diſtreſs to think our own burden peculiarly heavy, when in fact we only ſhare the calamities common to men: yet it muſt be owned her caſe was deplorable indeed. In anger, in fierce anger, the Lord had afflicted her; a ſenſe of this added bitterneſs to every burden: his fire is kindled in her palaces, or burns with fiercer flames within her guilty conſcience. Entangled in his net ſhe could not flee, but falls backward, faint and unable to oppoſe the deſolations of her Chaldean foe, v. 13. Under complicated judgments her yoke was made heavy, and her foul tranſgreſſions the cauſe of all; delivered into her enemy's hands, without the poſſibility of eſcaping, v. 14. Her warriors, her valiant youth, and all her inhabitants, like grapes in the wine-preſs, are trodden under foot by the Babyloniſh army, and their blood ſhed on every ſide, v. 15. Note, Whatever judgments weigh us down, we may be aſſured, our tranſgreſſions have wreathed the yoke, and bound on the burden.

2. She bewails with floods of tears her bitter anguiſh; and ſurely there is a cauſe for them. For theſe things I weep; both for her ſin and for her ſuffering; and particularly, (1.) Becauſe the comforter that ſhould relieve my ſoul is far from me. When God departs, our miſery muſt needs be great: all other afflictions are made light by the ſenſe of his preſence and love; but when the comforter, the only comforter of the ſinful ſoul, is far from us, and nothing but wrath appears and deſpair, then is our wretchedneſs compleat as it can be out of hell. (2.) Becauſe her children are deſolate, in captivity, v. 18. or deſtroyed by the ſword of the mercileſs enemy; unable to comfort her, yea, their ſad fate, is the cauſe of her torment. (3.) Becauſe ſhe could not find a friend. In vain ſhe ſpread forth her hands, intreating help, and pleading for compaſſion: her lovers, who promiſed once ſo fair, deceived her, v. 19. yea, ſhunned her, as if her touch communicated defilement, v. 17. and none either cared or dared to interpoſe, when the deſtruction was by the divine decree, and her adverſaries acted under his commiſſion. Note, (1.) When God is our friend, we ſhall never want a comforter; if he is our enemy, none can comfort us. (2.) Creature-confidences are ſure to fail us in the day of calamity. (4.) Becauſe of the terrible famine. My prieſts and my elders gave up the ghoſt in the city, while they ſought meat to relieve their ſouls; and if theſe were periſhing for want, how much more the common people? (5.) Becauſe of the deſolations ſhe beheld. Abroad the ſword bereaveth, at home there is as death, inevitable from the famine and the peſtilence. (6.) Becauſe of her inſulting enemies. They heard of her trouble, and with malicious pleaſure rejoiced in it, v. 21. and for theſe things her tears run down without intermiſſion.

3. She juſtifies God in theſe his judgments. The Lord is righteous; however faithleſs her friends, or inhuman her foes, her ſufferings were no more than ſhe deſerved: for I have rebelled, grievouſly rebelled againſt his commandments. Note, True penitents ever acknowledge the juſtice of God in puniſhing them; and never deſire to excuſe themſelves, but ſpeak of their ſins with every aggravation.

4. She preſents her miſerable caſe to the God of all mercy. Behold, O Lord, for I am in diſtreſs; deeply afflicted, not only with her ſufferings, but from a ſenſe of her ſins: my bowels are troubled, my heart is turned within me; diſtracted and torn, uneaſy and reſtleſs; and when the ſoul thus broken and contrite approaches God, he will not deſpiſe our prayer.

5. She expects and intreats that God would viſit her enemies. Thou wilt bring the day that thou haſt called; the time fixed in God's counſels for their puniſhment; and they ſhall be like unto me, in ſuffering; and as ſhe believes this will come, ſhe prays it may, Let their wickedneſs come before thee; be remembred and avenged: and do unto them as thou haſt done unto me for all my tranſgreſſions; as equally guilty, let them meet the ſame ſcourge; and heavy indeed that had been, as her anguiſh teſtified; for my ſighs are many, and my heart is faint. Note, (1.) They who are alike guilty, may expect to be alike miſerable. (2.) Though all private reſentment is forbidden, we may pray to ſee God glorified in the ruin of his own and his people's enemies.

CHAP. II.

The ſubject of this chapter is the ſame as the former. 1. Here is the anger of Zion's God taken notice of, as the cauſe of her calamities, ver. 1—9. 2. Here is the ſorrow of Zion's children taken notice of, as the effect of her calamities, ver. 10—19. 3. The complaint is made to God, and the matter referred to his compaſſionate conſideration, ver. 20—22. The hand that wounded muſt make whole.

1. HOW hath the LORD covered the daughter of Zion with a cloud in his anger, and [a] caſt down from heaven unto the earth the beauty of Iſrael, and remembred not [b] his footſtool in the day of his anger? 2. The LORD hath ſwallowed up all the habitations of Jacob, and [c] hath not pitied: he hath thrown down in his wrath the ſtrong holds of the daughter of Judah: he hath brought them down to the ground, he hath polluted the kingdom, and the princes thereof. 3. He hath cut off in [d] his fierce anger all the horn of Iſrael: [e] he hath drawn back his right hand from before the enemy, and [f] he burned againſt Jacob like a flaming fire which devoureth round about. 4. He hath bent his bow like an enemy: [g] he ſtood with his right hand as an adverſary, and ſlew all that were † pleaſant to the eye, in the tabernacle of the daughter of Zion: he poured out his fury like fire. 5. The LORD was [h] an enemy: he hath ſwallowed up Iſrael, he hath ſwallowed up all her palaces: he hath deſtroyed his ſtrong-holds, and hath increaſed in the daughter of Judah mourning and lamentation. 6. And he hath violently [i] taken away his ‡ tabernacle, [k] as if it were of a garden, he hath deſtroyed his places of the aſſembly: [l] the LORD hath cauſed the ſolemn feaſts and ſabbaths to be forgotten in Zion, and hath deſpiſed in the indignation of his anger [m] the king and the prieſt. 7. The LORD hath caſt off his altar: he hath abhorred his ſanctuary: he hath § given up into the hand of the enemy the walls of her palaces: [n] they have made a noiſe in the houſe of the LORD, as in the day of a ſolemn feaſt. 8. The LORD [o] hath purpoſed to deſtroy the wall of the daughter of Zion: [p] he hath ſtretched out a line: he hath not withdrawn his hand from ‖ deſtroying: therefore he made the rampart and the wall to lament: they languiſhed together. 9. Her gates are ſunk into the ground: he hath deſtroyed and broken her bars: [q] her king and her princes are among the Gentiles: the law is no more, [r] her prophets alſo find no viſion from the LORD.

[a] Mat. xi. 23.
[b] 1 Chron. xxviii. 2. Pſ. xcix. 5. & cxxxii. 7.
[c] Ver. 17, 21. Chap. iii. 43.
[d] Deut. xxix. 24.
[e] Pſ. lxxiv. 11.
[f] Pſ. lxxxix. 46.
[g] Iſa. lxiii. 10.
† Heb. Deſirable.
[h] Jer. xxx. 14.
[i] Pſ. lxxx. 12. & lxxxix. 40. Iſa. v. 5.
‡ Or hedge.
[k] Iſa. i. 8.
[l] Chap. i. 4. Zeph. iii. 18.
[m] Jer. lii. 9.
§ Heb. Shut up.
[n] Pſ. lxxiv. 3, 4.
[o] Iſa. v. 5. Jer. v. 10.
[p] 2 Kings xxi. 13. Iſa. xxxiv. 11.
‖ Heb. Swallowing up.
[q] 2 Kings xxiv. 15. & xxv. 7. Chap. iv. 20.
[r] Pſ. lxxiv. 9. Ezek. vii. 26.

v. 1—9. The hand of God viſible in their ſufferings, and the ſenſe of his diſpleaſure ſo juſtly and highly provoked, peculiarly ſharpen theſe lamentations.

The Lord hath utterly ruined their civil and eccleſiaſtical polity, and deſtroyed their country. A louring cloud big with wrath hangs over the daughter of Zion, and terrible darkneſs covers her: all the beauty of Iſrael is tarniſhed, and from the higheſt pitch of excellence ſhe falls into the abyſs of wretchedneſs. Even that temple, where God once choſe to put his name, and that ark of the covenant, over which his preſence viſibly reſted, are no more regarded by him, but given up to deſtruction, v. 1. The habitations of Jacob, the land of Judea and Jeruſalem, the Lord hath ſwallowed up, as a lion his prey, and hath not pitied. Their ſtrong holds are thrown down in his wrath; for if he is angry, yea but a little, who may abide it? They had polluted themſelves by ſin, therefore he hath polluted the kingdom and the princes thereof, giving them up into the hands of the heathen, v. 2. All their ſtrength is broken, their right hand diſabled; or God's right hand, which had been their protection and defence, is withdrawn, and they become a prey to their enemies; for when God abandons a people, their ruin is ſure. Like a devouring fire his anger burns, and Jacob is devoured, v. 3. As their enemy he ſtands, his arrows on the ſtring pointed with death, his ſword drawn and ſharpened with fury; every pleaſant object bleeds beneath the ſtroke; the princes, prieſts, and every endeared relation: and even in the tabernacle his vengeance lighteth down, and it is utterly conſumed, v. 4. Before ſuch an enemy what defence avails? her palaces, her fortreſſes, totter as in an earthquake, and diſappear; whilſt mournful lamentations rend the ſkies, and fill the devoted land of Judah, v. 5. That temple, vaſt and magnificent, built for his honour, is torn up from its foundations, as eaſily and utterly as a tent in a garden is removed: the places of aſſembly, the courts of the temple, or ſynagogues, are deſtroyed: God abhorred their hypocritical ſervices, and therefore diſperſed their congregations. Their ſolemn feaſts and ſabbaths are forgotten in Zion, none being left to celebrate them, no place for worſhip remaining. Even the ſacred characters of king and prieſt God hath deſpiſed in the indignation of his anger; becauſe they have defiled their dignity by their iniquities, he hath deſtroyed both the kingdom and the prieſthood: the more ſacred the character, the greater the profanation when ſuch offend, v. 6. The Lord hath caſt off his altar; whilſt they continued in their ſins, the ſacrifices and incenſe they offered were an abomination unto him. He hath abhorred the ſanctuary, and therefore devoted the walls to ruin; and in thoſe ſacred courts and temple, where Zion's ſongs were heard, there the Chaldeans ſhout, and riot, and blaſpheme, v. 7. Fixed is the purpoſe, deep the deſign; the line of deſtruction is marked out, and God's almighty hand never withdrawn till the deſolations are compleated, the wall and rampart levelled to the ground, v. 8. Sunk are her gates, as if the earth had opened beneath them; her bars broken; her king and princes captives among the Gentiles: the law is no more; the ſacred tables broken, the ordinances no longer obſerved, and none left to expound or hear theſe oracles of God. They who neglect their Bibles, deſerve to have them taken from them; and ſince they abhorred and perſecuted their prophets when they had them, God puniſhes them in withdrawing his prophetic ſpirit from among them, and leaves them in darkneſs.

10. The elders of the daughter of Zion ſit upon the ground [s] and keep ſilence: they have [t] caſt up duſt upon their heads: they have girded themſelves with ſackcloth; the virgins of Jeruſalem hang down their heads to the ground. 11. [u] Mine eyes do fail with tears; [x] my bowels are troubled; my liver is poured upon the earth, for the deſtruction of the daughter of my people, becauſe [y] the children and the ſucklings † ſwoon in the ſtreets of the city. 12. They ſay to their mothers, Where is corn and wine? when they ſwooned as the wounded in the ſtreets of the city, when their ſoul was poured out into their mothers boſom. 13. What thing ſhall I take to witneſs for thee? what thing ſhall I liken to thee, O daughter of Jeruſalem? what ſhall I equal to thee, that I may comfort thee, O virgin daughter of Zion? for thy

[s] Iſa. iii. 26. Chap. iii. 28.
[t] Job ii. 12.
[u] Chap. iii. 48, &c.
[x] Chap. i. 20.
[y] Ver. 19. Chap. iv. 4.
† Or faint.

Before Chriſt 588.

thy breach is great like the ſea: who can heal thee?
14. [z] Thy prophets have ſeen vain and fooliſh things for thee, and they have not diſcovered thine iniquity, to turn away thy captivity; but have ſeen for thee falſe burdens, and cauſes of baniſhment. 15. All that paſs by [a] clap their hands at thee; they hiſs and [b] wag their head at the daughter of Jeruſalem, ſaying, Is this the city that men call [c] the perfection of beauty, the joy of the whole earth? 16. [d] All thine enemies have opened their mouth againſt thee: they hiſs and gnaſh the teeth;
they ſay, We have ſwallowed her up: certainly this is the day that we looked for: we have found, we have ſeen it. 17. The LORD hath done that [e] which he had deviſed: he hath fulfilled his word that he had commanded in the days of old: [f] he hath thrown down, and hath not pitied: and [g] he hath cauſed thine enemy to rejoice over thee, he hath ſet up the horn of thine adverſaries. 18. Their heart cried unto the LORD, O wall of the daughter of Zion, [h] let tears run down like a river day and night: give thyſelf no reſt, let not the apple of thine eyes ceaſe. 19. Ariſe, cry out in the night: in the beginning of the watches [i] pour out thine heart like water before the face of the LORD: lift up thy hands towards him, for the life of thy young children, [k] that faint for hunger in the top of every ſtreet.
20. ¶ Behold, O LORD, and [l] conſider to whom thou haſt done this: [m] ſhall the women eat their fruit, and children ‡ of a ſpan long? [n] ſhall the prieſt and the prophet be ſlain in the ſanctuary of the LORD? 21. The young and the old lie on the ground in the ſtreets, my virgins and my young men are fallen by the ſword: thou haſt ſlain them in the day of thine anger, [o] thou haſt killed and not pitied. 22. Thou haſt called, as in a ſolemn day, my terrors round about, ſo that in the day of the LORD's anger none eſcaped nor remained: thoſe that I have ſwaddled and brought up hath mine enemy conſumed.

[z] Jer. ii. 8. & v. 31. & xiv. 14. & xxiii. 16. & xxvii. 14. & xxix. 8, 9. Ezek. xiii. 2.
[a] Ezek. xxv. 6.
[b] 2 Kings xix. 21. Pſ. xliv. 14.
[c] Pſ. xlviii. 2. & l. 2.
[d] Chap. iii. 46.
[e] Lev. xxvi. 16, &c. Deut. xxviii. 15, &c.
[f] Ver. 2.
[g] Pſ. lxxxix. 42.
[h] Jer. xiv. 17. Chap. i. 16.
[i] Pſ. lxii. 8.
[k] Ver. 11.
[l] Iſa. lxiv. 9.
[m] Lev. xxvi. 29. Deut. xxviii. 53. Jer. xix. 9. Chap. iv. 10. Ezek. v. 10.
‡ Or ſwaddled with their hands.
[n] Chap. iv. 13, 16.
[o] Ver. 17. Chap. iii. 43.

v. 10—22. Nothing breathes here but lamentation, mourning, and woe.

1. The mourners and their bitter anguiſh are deſcribed. The elders, who in robes of ſtate were ſeated on the throne of judgment, now ſit on the ground with every expreſſive ſign of ſorrow, duſt on their heads, and girt with ſackcloth; the virgins of Jeruſalem, ſo ſprightly once and gay, with downcaſt eyes and melancholy looks bemoan their miſeries, v. 10. whilſt the prophet himſelf, in deepeſt diſtreſs, wept till his eyes grew dim in their exhauſted ſockets; his bowels troubled with acuteſt pangs of grief, and all within him melted as it were through very anguiſh, for the deſtruction of the daughter of his people, v. 2.

2. Abundant cauſe appears for ſuch bitter mourning.

(1.) The famine is very grievous. The infants ſwoon thro' hunger, and cry to their tender mothers for bread; unable to relieve their wants, the fond parent ſees them faint in the ſtreets as wounded, or claſping them to their boſom they expire there, v. 12. nay, more horrid ſtill, driven by thoſe cravings that ſilence even the ſtrongeſt feelings of natural affection, the infant, murdered from the womb, is devoured by the famiſhed mother, v. 20. Well may we cry, in the view of ſuch a ſcene, from plague, peſtilence, and famine, good Lord deliver us!

(2.) The ſword of their enemies reeks with the blood of the ſlain: no ſacredneſs of place or character affords protection. The prieſt and prophet are ſlain in that ſanctuary whither they fled for refuge, v. 20. neither young nor old are ſpared, and even virgins bleed in the general maſſacre. God's wrath had ſet their mercileſs enemies upon them: He no more pitied them, and ſuffered their hearts to be ſteeled againſt every feeling of humanity, v. 21. Thick as the crouded worſhippers aſſembled in the days of their ſolemnities, now their terrible enemies, ſummoned of God, beſet them round: hemmed in on every ſide, none eſcaped or remained, but were ſlain or made captives; ſo that Zion, a childleſs widow, ſaw all her pains and care, beſtowed on her helpleſs children, fruitleſs, nouriſhed only as lambs for the ſlaughter: and all this the Lord's doing, the effects of his fierce anger. How then ſhould we fear to provoke this jealous God.

(3.) Their prophets deluded them, v. 14. Pretending to inſpiration, they reported the dreams of their own fooliſh imaginations, aſſuring the people of peace, inſtead of rebuking them for their iniquity, flattering them in their ſins, and haſtening them to their ruin, v. 14. Note, (1.) No curſe more heavy than to be given up to the deluſions of lying prophets. (2.) They who propheſy ſmooth things, inſtead of ſhewing faithfulneſs to men's ſouls in rebuking their ſins, evidence the falſehood of their pretended miſſion.

(4.) Their neighbours reproach, their enemies inſult them. As if well pleaſed with their fall, thoſe that paſs by hiſs and wag the head, deriding their miſeries; Is this the city that men call the perfection of beauty? the joy of the whole earth? Where now are theſe Jewiſh boaſts?—With open mouths their enemies join the cry, blaſpheming and reviling, hiſſing as ſerpents, and gnaſhing their teeth, in teſtimony of their abhorrence; they ſay, we have ſwallowed her up, delighted with the delicious repaſt, with the rich prey of Zion's palaces. Certainly this is the day we have looked for, we have found, we have ſeen it; with malicious joy they triumph, and think they have prevailed to her everlaſting deſtruction. But let the enemies of God's church know, tho' ſunk never ſo low, ſhe will revive, and their triumphing will be ſhort.

(5.) Their miſery is unparalelled, their caſe to human view deſperate, v. 13. no nation ever ſuffered the like calamities; to ſeek, as a ground of comfort, for afflictions ſimilar to thoſe Zion had endured were vain: for thy breach is great like the ſea, which, when it overflows, with violence irreſiſtible deluges the country. Who can heal thee? no human wiſdom or power can repair theſe deſolations, v. 13.

(6.) God himſelf appears their enemy. The Lord hath done that which he had deviſed; his hand hath done it, his counſel planned the blow: he hath fulfilled his word, that he had commanded in the days of old; for, when he gave them his holy law by Moſes, he told them what would be the effects of their tranſgreſſions, Lev. xxvi. 17. Deut. xxviii. 20. which is now fulfilled. He hath thrown down, and hath not pitied, ſparing neither city nor temple: he hath cauſed the enemy to rejoice over thee, giving Jeruſalem for a prey to their teeth, v. 17. and for theſe miſeries no marvel if their heart in anguiſh cried unto the Lord: in ſome the voice of mere nature, lamenting their ſufferings; in others, it may be hoped alſo, the voice of grace bewailing their ſins.

3. They are exhorted, as the only means of redreſs, in deep humiliation to ſeek unto God. He hath wounded, and he alone can heal. O wall of the daughter of Zion, ye watchmen that ſtand thereon, and all others, let tears penitential run down as a river day and night, give thyſelf no reſt, weep inceſſantly, let not the apple of thine eye ceaſe, till thou haſt found pardon and grace. Ariſe, cry out in the night, importunate in prayer, and pleading hard with God for mercy, in the beginning of the watches, repeatedly and ceaſeleſs till he vouchſafes an anſwer of peace; pour out thine heart like water before the face of the Lord, lift up thine hands to him, pour all thy griefs into his compaſſionate boſom, and urge every argument for pity, ſuch as the infants groans expiring for hunger, v. 19. Behold, O Lord, and conſider to whom thou haſt done this; to the ſeed of Abraham thy friend, the ſons of Jacob thy choſen; the people thou didſt ſeparate for thine own. Note, We can take no ſtep ſo effectual to remove our miſeries as ſpreading them in humble and fervent prayer before God. None but he can help us; and none who ever truly ſought him ſought in vain.

CHAP. III.

The ſcope of this chapter is the ſame with that of the two foregoing chapters, but the compoſition is ſomewhat different; that was in long verſe, this in ſhort; that in ſingle alphabets, this in a treble one. Here is, 1. A ſad complaint of God's diſpleaſure, and of the fruits of it, ver. 1—20. 2. Words of comfort to God's people when they are in trouble and diſtreſs, ver. 21—36. 3. Duty preſcribed in this afflicted ſtate, ver. 37—41. 4. The complaint renewed, ver. 42—54. 5. Encouragement taken to hope in God, and continue waiting for his ſalvation; with an appeal to his juſtice againſt the perſecutors of the church, ver. 55—63.

1. I Am the man that hath ſeen affliction by the rod of his wrath. 2. He hath led me and brought me into [a] darkneſs, but not into light. 3. Surely againſt me is he turned, he turneth his hand againſt me all the day.
4. My fleſh and my ſkin hath he made old, [b] he hath broken my bones. 5. He hath builded againſt me, and compaſſed me with gall and travel. 6. [c] He hath ſet me in dark places, as they that be dead of old. 7. [d] He hath hedged me about, that I cannot get out: he hath made my chain heavy. 8. Alſo when I cry and ſhout, [e] he ſhutteth out my prayer. 9. He hath incloſed my ways with hewn ſtone: he hath made my paths crooked.
10. [f] He was unto me as a bear lying in wait, and as a lion in ſecret places. 11. He hath turned aſide my ways, and pulled me in pieces: he hath made me deſolate.
12. He hath bent his bow, and [g] ſet me as a mark for the arrow. 13. [h] he hath cauſed the † arrows of his quiver to enter into my reins. 14. I was [i] a deriſion to all my people, [k] and their ſong all the day. 15. [l] He hath filled me with ‡ bitterneſs, [m] he hath made me drunken with wormwood. 16. He hath alſo broken my teeth with gravel-ſtones, he hath § covered me with aſhes. 17. And thou haſt removed my ſoul far off from peace:

Before Chriſt 588.

[a] Pſ. cxii. 4.
[b] Iſa. xxxviii. 13. Jer. l. 17.
[c] Pſ. lxxxviii. 5, 6.
[d] Job iii. 23. & xix. 8. Hoſ. ii. 6.
[e] Pſ. xxii. 2. Ver. 44.
[f] Iſa. xxxviii. 13. Hoſ. v. 14. & xiii. 7, 8.
[g] Job vii. 20. & xvi. 12.
[h] Job vi. 4.
† Heb. Sons.
[i] Jer. xx. 7.
[k] Job xxx. 9. Pſ. lxix. 12. Ver. 63.
[l] Jer. ix. 15.
‡ Heb. Bitterneſſes.
[m] Jer. xxv. 17, 18.
§ Or rolled me in, &c.

Before Chriſt 588.

peace: I forgat ‖ proſperity. 18. And I ſaid, My ſtrength and my hope is periſhed from the LORD, 19. † Remembring mine affliction and my miſery, the wormwood and the gall. 20. My ſoul hath them ſtill in remembrance, [n] and is ‡ humbled in me.

‖ Heb. Good.
† Or remember.
n Jam. iv. 10.
‡ Heb. Bowed.

v. 1—20. The prophet here mingles his lamentations over his own ſufferings with thoſe of the people; or he perſonates the church in general; and ſome, with good appearance of reaſon, ſuppoſe him herein a type of Chriſt.

1. He laments over his afflictions as ſingularly heavy, embittered with a ſenſe of God's wrath, v. 1. for, though God chaſtiſes his own children ever in love, they are apt, eſpecially when the rod lies heavy upon them, to think it is in anger.

2. Darkneſs ſurrounded him: he ſaw no light, no chearing beam of hope, no door of eſcape out of his miſeries, and ſeemed as one already in the grave, v. 6. which may refer to the dark dungeon in which he was ſhut up; or to the captivity of the people, wherein they thought themſelves as buried among the heathen. Note, (1.) A child of light ſometimes walks in darkneſs. (2.) We are too apt to be giving way to our unbelieving fears, and to think, when caſt down, we are utterly caſt off.

3. God appears his enemy, v. 3. He is the butt of all the arrows of his indignation, v. 12, 13. So ſorely was the land afflicted with all that variety of judgments which ſeemed as it were to exhauſt God's quiver. And herein the prophet ſeems not to ſpeak of himſelf, but perſonates his people.

4. God hath ſhut him up in the hand of his enemies, hedged him in with their forces, builded the mounts againſt him, and compaſſed him with gall and travel, v. 5. every effort to diſentangle himſelf riveted the chain but the faſter, and made it the more heavy, v. 7. His ways are incloſed as with hewn ſtone, he cannot break through; all his ſchemes are traverſed, and all his paths crooked; the farther he advances the more he is bewildered, v. 9. Note, Such will the crooked paths of ſin be found; the farther we go in them the more miſerable we ſhall grow.

5. The Lord ſeemed to have made an utter end of him, emaciated through famine, his ſtrength broken, v. 4. As a lion and a bear waiting to ſeize their prey, ſo God watched over him for evil, v. 10. He was filled with bitterneſs under the ſenſe of what he felt, and with the apprehenſion of the greater evils he feared; and ſtaggered as one drunk with affliction, v. 15. covered with aſhes, in the duſt he lay, and eat worſe than the bread of mourners, his teeth broken with gravel-ſtones, that were mingled with the meal; nay he hath pulled me in pieces, as one torn limb from limb. Thus had God diſperſed the Jews, and laid their land utterly deſolate, v. 11.

6. The Lord refuſed to be intreated. The loudeſt cries are in vain, he would neither hear the prophet's interceſſion nor the peoples prayer for themſelves; and, when prayer fails of profiting, the caſe appears deſperate indeed.

7. He was a deriſion to all the people: they mocked at and made merry with him, ridiculing his ſorrows, and pleaſed with his ſufferings, v. 7. and to a generous ſpirit very hard is this to be born.

8. He almoſt ſunk into deſpair. Thou haſt removed my ſoul far off from peace; no proſpect of it remained: I forgat proſperity, never expecting its return: and I ſaid, my ſtrength and hope are periſhed from the Lord; abandoned by him, and no more expecting help and ſupport from him, and then deſpair was unavoidable: ſo deeply are the faithful ſometimes dejected: and this aroſe from the view of his affliction and miſery, which ſeemed more than he was able to bear, v. 19.

The Lord Jeſus was emphatically this man of ſorrows, deſtitute, afflicted, tormented, ſtricken, ſmitten of God, enduring all the wrath our iniquities deſerved, derided in his agony, his ſoul in darkneſs and dereliction, and his miſery compleat.

21. This I recall to my mind, [o] therefore have I hope. 22. ¶ [p] It is of the LORD's mercies that we are not conſumed, becauſe his compaſſions fail not. 23. [q] They are new every morning: great is thy faithfulneſs. 24. [r] The LORD is my portion, ſaith my ſoul, [s] therefore will I hope in him. 25. The LORD is good unto them that wait for him, to the ſoul that ſeeketh him. 26. It is good that a man ſhould both hope, and [t] quietly wait for the ſalvation of the LORD. 27. It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth. 28. [u] He ſitteth alone, and keepeth ſilence, becauſe he hath † born it upon him. 29. He putteth his mouth in the duſt, if ſo be there may be hope. 30. [x] He giveth his cheek to him that ſmiteth him, he is filled full with reproach. 31. For [y] the LORD will not caſt off for ever. 32. But though he cauſe grief, yet will he have compaſſion according to the multitude of his mercies. 33. For [z] he doth not afflict ‡ willingly, nor grieve the children of men. 34. To cruſh under his feet all the priſoners of the earth, 35. [a] To turn aſide the right of a man before the face § of the moſt High, 36. To ſubvert a man in his cauſe, ‖ the LORD approveth not.

o Ver. 24.
p Mal. iii. 6.
q Zeph. iii. 5.
r Pſ. xvi. 5. & lxxiii. 26. & cxix. 57. Jer. x. 16.
s Ver. 21.
t Pſ. xxxvii. 7. Iſa. xxx. 18.
u Pſ. xxxix. 9. Jer. xv. 17. Chap. ii. 10.
† Or laid.
x Iſa. l. 6. Mat. v. 39.
y Pſ. xciv. 14.
z Ezek. xxxiii. 11.
‡ Heb. From his heart.
a Prov. xviii. 5.

Before Chriſt 588.

§ Or a ſuperior.
‖ Heb. The Lord doth not ſee. Or, Doth not the Lord ſee?

v. 21—36. At laſt a gleam of chearing hope breaks through the dreadful gloom. My ſoul hath them ſtill in remembrance, and is humbled within me; and real humiliation is the ſure way to returning conſolation: or the words may be more truly rendered, Thou wilt ſurely remember, expreſſing his faith in God, notwithſtanding all his ſorrows; for my ſoul meditates within me, on thy grace, mercy, truth, and faithfulneſs; this I recall to mind, therefore have I hope, that ſtill excludes deſpair. A variety of reaſons he ſuggeſts to encourage this hope, and comfort his heart in God.

1. It is of the Lord's mercies that we are not conſumed, as we have deſerved to be. It is mercy, infinite mercy, that ſpares any ſinner for a moment: we may wonder we are out of hell, and be aſhamed to complain, when all temporal affliction is ſo much leſs than our iniquity deſerves. His compaſſions fail not, though ſometimes they ſeem exhauſted, and his loving-kindneſs quite gone for evermore; yet it is our infirmity when we fear it, and a little patience will prove it ſo; for they are new every morning, both temporal mercies, that every day fall thick around us as the drops of dew, and ſpiritual mercies in Chriſt Jeſus, the ſource of which is inexhauſtible.

2. Great is thy faithfulneſs. His truth eternally confirms what his mercy promiſes; and his everlaſting covenant, well ordered in all things and ſure, affords the moſt ſolid foundation for faith and hope in every time of need.

3. The Lord is my portion, ſaith my ſoul. Since God hath engaged to be ſuch to his people, faith embraces the promiſe; and they who have an intereſt in his love and favour have all that heart can wiſh, and a poſſeſſion which, when we are deprived of every earthly good, is enough to make us happy, and ſatisfy all our wiſhes. Therefore I hope in him, when every other ſupport fails. And this hope will never make aſhamed, for the Lord is good to them that wait for him, and will not diſappoint their expectations, beſtowing on them, according to their neceſſities, a rich ſupply for every want; to the ſoul that ſeeketh him, in earneſt prayer and humble perſeverance, in the uſe of thoſe means of grace he hath appointed; for, though the anſwer may be delayed, the mercy is ſure to be granted to all who hope, and quietly wait for the ſalvation of the Lord, not murmuring againſt God, but acquieſcing in his holy will, patiently expecting his ſalvation, temporal, ſpiritual, and eternal; for it is good to do ſo; our higheſt intereſt as well as our bounden duty.

4. Our very troubles are deſigned of God for our benefit. It is good for a man to bear the yoke in his youth: the yoke of afflictions, which ſerve to wean the mind from earthly vanities, and teach us to ſeek our better reſt above; or the yoke of the commandments, Chriſt's eaſy yoke, which the ſooner we take upon us, from the earlieſt days of youth, the pleaſanter we ſhall find it: though the former ſenſe ſeems particularly here intended. Such a one ſitteth alone, retired to commune with God, to ſearch out his own ſpirit, and to ſee and humble his ſoul under the cauſe of his afflictions; and keepeth ſilence, no murmuring word eſcapes him, he is dumb and openeth not his mouth, becauſe he hath born it upon him, willingly yielding his neck to the yoke, or becauſe He (God) hath laid it on him, and therefore this conſideration ſilences every thought of diſcontent. He putteth his mouth in the duſt, confeſſing his vileneſs, and juſt deſert of all he ſuffers, and humbly bows before the chaſtening rod, if ſo be there may be hope, or peradventure there is hope; not as if doubting of the promiſes, but as confeſſing his own unworthineſs to obtain the mercy he ſeeks. Thus humbled, he giveth his cheek to him that ſmiteth him, can bear without reſentment every indignity; he is filled full with reproaches, the lot of all who follow Chriſt, but never returns railing for railing, but contrariwiſe bleſſing, learning of him to be meek and lowly of heart. Such is the ſpirit and temper of a real penitent, and the iſſue of ſuch ſufferings and ſubmiſſion cannot but be good, very good for us.

5. The Lord will not caſt off for ever, which is the great argument both for patience and repentance. Though the faithful are caſt down, they are not caſt off: their ſufferings may be long, but they ſhall not be for ever. His purpoſes of grace and love towards them are unchangeable, and in their loweſt ſtate they can ſtill hope in his mercy. Our heavineſs indeed for a time may be great, through manifold temptations; but, though he cauſe grief, his chaſtiſements all flow from his paternal heart towards us, and are deſigned to work Godly ſorrow that leads to eternal ſalvation; and therefore, when the end of the affliction is anſwered, he will yet have compaſſion according to the multitude of his mercies, which are in Chriſt Jeſus boundleſs and infinite; for with no other view doth he ever correct his dear children, he doth not afflict willingly, nor grieve the children of men, he takes no delight in our miſeries; by our ſins we provoke him, as a tender father, with reluctance to take the rod; but he feels for us when he chaſtiſes, and is grieved in our affliction, and gladly lays down the rod when it hath anſwered the end for which he ſent it. Oh how great are the tender mercies of our God! How can we but kiſs the rod of ſuch a father!

6. Though he permits, for wiſe and holy ends, the oppreſſion of the wicked, he is far from approving it. To cruſh under his feet feet all the priſoners of the earth, as the Chaldeans trampled on his captive people, to turn aſide the right of a man by partial judgment, before the face of the moſt high, openly, in defiance of him whoſe vicegerents the judges of the earth are, to ſubvert a man in his cauſe by ſome clandeſtine and knaviſh arts, the Lord approveth not; he condemns all ſuch injuſtice, and will avenge it; or doth he not ſee? however ſecret the tranſaction, from his all-piercing eye it cannot be hid, and he will in no wiſe ſpare the guilty.

37. ¶ Who is he [b] that ſaith, and it cometh to paſs, when the LORD commandeth it not? 38. Out of the mouth of the moſt High proceedeth not [c] evil and good? 39. [d] Wherefore doth a living man † complain, [e] a man for the puniſhment of his ſins? 40. Let us ſearch and try our ways, and turn again to the LORD. 41. [f] Let us lift up our heart with our hands unto God in the heavens.

[b] Pſ. xxxiii. 9.
[c] Job. ii. 10. Iſa. xlv. 7. Am. iii. 6.
[d] Prov. xix. 3.
† Or murmur.
[e] Mic. 7. 9.
[f] Pſ. lxxxvi. 4.

v. 37—41. They who truly know God and themſelves will find abundant arguments for ſubmiſſion to his will and pleaſure.

1. He is the uncontroulable ſovereign. Who is he that ſaith, and it cometh to paſs, when the Lord commandeth it not? His decrees are immutable, and all human ſchemes to defeat his eternal purpoſes fruitleſs. Out of the mouth of the moſt High proceedeth not evil and good? Aſſuredly. Every diſpenſation of his providence, proſperous or afflictive, is ordained by him, and nothing left to chance: what therefore is his will ſhould be our delight; for all he doth is holy, juſt, and good.

2. We have never reaſon to complain. Wherefore doth a living man complain? a worm, whoſe breath is in his noſtrils, and in whoſe heart folly is bound up; a moſt incompetent judge of the diſpenſations of infinite wiſdom; a living man, whoſe life long ſince is forfeited to divine juſtice, and to whom it is an amazing act of mercy that he is out of hell; a man for the puniſhment of his ſins? how dare he complain, when all his ſufferings here are ſo much leſs than his deſerts. Conſiderations theſe, which ſhould ever ſilence all repining, lead us to acknowledge God's mercy as well as juſtice in our ſevereſt afflictions, and thankfully to acquieſce in every diſpenſation.

3. Our buſineſs, under every trouble, is to examine into the cauſe, and in deep humiliation return unto God. Let us ſearch and try our ways; for, whilſt at all times ſelf-enquiry is needful, it is moſt peculiarly ſo under humbling providences; for verily there is a reaſon for them; a gracious God doth not willingly afflict. The rule of judgment is the word of God, and prayer muſt direct us to the right application of it, that, under the influence of divine light, we may diſcover the true ſtate of our ſouls, and turn again unto the Lord in whatever way we may have departed from him, knowing that except we are converted we cannot be ſaved; and aſſured that, in all his dealings towards us, God's great deſign is to lead us to repentance. Bleſſed and happy are they who learn to correſpond with him herein.

4. In ſimplicity and Godly ſincerity we are called upon to devote and ſurrender ourſelves to God. Let us lift up our heart with our hands unto God in the heavens; in prayer looking up to him whoſe glory is in the heavens, and whoſe throne ruleth over all; our hearts engaged, and unreſervedly offered on his altar; without which no ſervice of the lips is at all available; and, when we do ſo, this ſacrifice of a contrite ſpirit God will not deſpiſe, nor ever caſt out the prayer that cometh not out of feigned lips. They who lift up their hearts to heaven in prayer ſhall ſhortly lift up their voices in heaven, amidſt the throng of glorified ſaints and angels, in everlaſting praiſe.

42. We have tranſgreſſed and have rebelled, thou haſt not pardoned. 43. Thou haſt covered with anger, and perſecuted us: [g] thou haſt ſlain, thou haſt not pitied. 44. Thou haſt covered thyſelf with a cloud, that [h] our prayers ſhould not paſs through. 45. Thou haſt made us [i] as the off-ſcouring and refuſe in the midſt of the people. 46. [k] All our enemies have opened their mouths againſt us. 47. [l] Fear and a ſnare is come upon us, deſolation and deſtruction. 48. [m] Mine eye runneth down with rivers of water, for the deſtruction of the daughter of my people. 49. [n] Mine eye trickleth down and ceaſeth not, without any intermiſſion: 50. Till the LORD look down, and behold from heaven. 51. Mine eye affecteth mine heart, † becauſe of all the daughters of my city. 52. Mine enemies chaſed me ſore like a bird, [o] without cauſe. 53. They have cut off my life in the dungeon, and [p] caſt a ſtone upon me. 54. [q] Waters flowed over mine head, then [r] I ſaid, I am cut off.

[g] Chap. ii. 2, 17, 21.
[h] Ver. 8.
[i] 1 Cor. iv. 13.
[k] Chap. ii. 16.
[l] Iſa. xxiv. 17. Jer. xlviii. 43.
[m] Jer. iv. 19. & ix. 1. & xiv. 17. Chap. ii. 11.
[n] Pſ. lxxvii. 2. Chap. i. 16.
† Or, more than all.
[o] Pſ. xxxv. 7, 19. & lxix. 4. & cix. 3. & cxix. 161.
[p] Dan. vi. 17.
[q] Pſ. lxix. 2. & cxxiv. 4, 5.
[r] Pſ. xxxi. 22. Iſa. xxxviii. 10, 11. John ii. 3, 4.

v. 42—54. Nature will feel, and we are not forbid to mourn, though we are forbid to murmur.

1. The prophet, in the name of all his people, with deep acknowledgment confeſſes their ſins; We have tranſgreſſed and rebelled; for ſin is rebellion againſt the majeſty of heaven, and ſinners the vileſt of traitors.

2. He bewails their miſeries, ariſing from a ſenſe of God's diſpleaſure. Thou haſt not pardoned; at leaſt no tokens of it appeared, whilſt their afflictions continued unremoved: thou haſt covered with anger and perſecuted us; like a thick cloud it hung over them, and extinguiſhed for a while every ray of his light and comfort; whilſt, like a battering ſtorm, their troubles beat upon them inceſſantly. Thou haſt ſlain, and haſt not pitied; given them up to the mercileſs ſword of the Chaldeans; nor could their cries reach his mercy-ſeat. Thou haſt covered thyſelf with a cloud, that our prayers ſhould not paſs through; ſo apt are we, when we do not find an anſwer of mercy from God ſoon, to conclude that it is of no profit to pray, and are tempted to give up all hope.

3. He laments the deriſion to which they were expoſed. Thou haſt made us as the off-ſcouring and refuſe in the midſt of the people; to be trodden down by the heathen, ſee 1 Cor. iv. 13. and their enemies ſcoffed at their diſtreſs; a ſure ſymptom of a baſe mind, thus to inſult the miſerable.

4. Their fears were great, their deſolations grievous: taken in the ſnare of their foes; terrified with their threatnings; their land and the cities of Judah utterly deſtroyed, and the people led into captivity, or ſlain with famine, peſtilence, and the ſword, v. 47. Chaſed like a bird they fled before their foes, who without a cauſe perſecuted them, v. 52. yet unable to eſcape, they ſeized them, and buried them alive in dungeons, or carried them to Babylon, which was the houſe of their priſon, and ſhut them up in captive bonds, as the dead, at the mouth of whoſe ſepulchre the ponderous ſtone is laid, v. 53. Waters of affliction flowed over mine head, and, ſunk as it were in the abyſs of hopeleſs miſery, then I ſaid, I am cut off, ready to reſign themſelves to deſpair. Note, Thoſe whom Satan hath caſt down by their ſins, he ſeeks to keep down by deſpair.

5. In this ſtate of wretchedneſs the prophet, in the perſon of the church, and on her account, weeps bitterly. Mine eye runneth down with rivers of waters; unutterable is his anguiſh for the deſtruction he beheld: without intermiſſion mine eye trickleth down; and every ſcene of deſolation that preſented itſelf, pierced his heart with freſh anguiſh, and drew forth a new torrent of tears over the daughters of his people, or more than all the daughters of my people; none, even of the tender ſex, were ſo deeply affected, and profuſe in tears, as the prophet; and thus he reſolved to continue weeping and praying, till the Lord look down and behold from heaven, and pitied, pardoned, and delivered them. Note, (1.) Let nothing drive us from waiting upon God. (2.) Our hearts will find no ſuch relief from their anguiſh, as by pouring our ſorrows into the boſom of a compaſſionate God. (3.) If we continue inſtant and patient in prayer, we ſhall aſſuredly find at laſt an anſwer of peace.

55. ¶ [s] I called upon thy name, O LORD, out of the low dungeon. 56. Thou haſt heard my voice, hide not thine ear at my breathing, at my cry. 57. [t] Thou dreweſt near in the day that I called upon thee: thou ſaidſt, Fear not. 58. O LORD, [u] thou haſt pleaded the cauſes of my ſoul, thou haſt redeemed my life. 59. O LORD, thou haſt ſeen my wrong, [x] judge thou my cauſe. 60. Thou haſt ſeen all their vengeance, and all their imaginations againſt me. 61. Thou haſt heard their reproach, O LORD, and all their imaginations againſt me. 62. The lips of thoſe that roſe up againſt me; and their device againſt me all the day. 63. Behold their ſitting down and their riſing up, [y] I am their muſic. 64. [z] Render unto them a recompence, O LORD, according to the work of their hands. 65. Give them † ſorrow of heart, thy curſe unto them. 66. Perſecute and deſtroy them in anger, from under [a] the heavens of the LORD.

[s] Pſ. cxxx. 1. Jon. ii. 2, 3.
[t] Jam. iv. 8.
[u] Jer. li. 36.
[x] Pſ. xliii. 1.
[y] Ver. 14.
[z] Pſ. xxviii. 4. 2 Tim. iv. 14.
† Or, obſtinacy of heart.
[a] Pſ. viii. 3.

v. 55—66. Sad as their ſtate was, it was ſtill within the reach of prayer; and therefore,

1. The prophet cries unto God, I called upon thy name, O Lord, out of the low dungeon; which may refer to the prophet's own caſe, when ready to periſh in this miſerable ſituation; or may be his prayer for the people, reduced now to the deepeſt diſtreſs. Thou haſt heard my voice; it is the expreſſion of his humble confidence, or the encouragement he drew from paſt experience; thou haſt heard, and wilt hear, the prayer of faith, therefore hide not thine ear at my breathing, at my cry, in the preſent calamity: or it may be read, Thou didſt not hide, &c. and ſo is a continuation of his grateful acknowledgment of paſt mercies. Thou dreweſt near in the day that I called upon thee, manifeſting thy gracious preſence and ſupport: thou ſaidſt, Fear not; and that encouraged my drooping heart. O Lord, thou haſt pleaded the cauſes of my ſoul, thou haſt redeemed my life; reſcuing him from the inſtant death that threatned him in the dungeon; or delivering the people from their oppreſſions under the yoke of Egypt, Philiſtia, and other nations; and this emboldened boldened his hope that the Lord would yet deliver them. Note, (1.) There is no priſon ſo deep, but prayer can find a ready way out of it to the throne of God. (2.) Paſt mercies ſhould encourage preſent hope. (3.) That is the effectual prayer, when the ſoul breathes forth its fervent deſires, and ſtill feels more than it can utter. (4.) They who by faith commit their ſouls to God, need fear no evil. (5.) If God hath redeemed our ſouls, then, however ſore beſet and thruſt at by our enemies, we ſhall never periſh.

Before Chriſt 588.

2. He refers his caſe and his people's unto the Lord. God had ſeen the wrong his enemies had done him, their malicious deſigns, and their revengeful ſpirit, v. 60. he had heard their reproaches and inſults, and how they daily made themſelves merry in deriding him, v. 61—63. and therefore he appeals to him for judgment againſt them, v. 59. not in a ſpirit of revenge, but that the juſtice of God may be ſeen in the righteous retaliation of their unprovoked malignity, v. 64. Give them ſorrow of heart, thy curſe unto them, the heavieſt of all plagues, and the juſt deſert of their wickedneſs. Perſecute and deſtroy them in anger, from under the heavens of the Lord, their deeds of darkneſs having made them unworthy the light of day. Note, (1.) Though fools ſtill mock on, and ſport at God's people, the day is near when their mirth will be turned into mourning. (2.) Wo to thoſe againſt whom God's oppreſſed people appeal to him for juſtice.

CHAP. IV.

This chapter is another ſingle alphabet of Lamentations for the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, like thoſe in the two firſt chapters. 1. The prophet here laments the injuries and indignities done to thoſe that uſed to be reſpected, ver. 1, 2. 2. He laments the direful effects of the famine, which they were reduced to by the ſiege, ver. 3—10. 3. He laments the taking and ſacking of Jeruſalem, ver. 11, 12. 4. He acknowledges that the ſins of their leaders were the cauſe of all theſe calamities, ver. 13—16. 5. He gives up all as doomed to utter ruin, for their enemies were quite too hard for them, ver. 17—20. 6. He foretels the deſtruction of the Edomites, who triumphed in Jeruſalem's fall, ver. 21. 7. He foretels the return of the captivity of Zion at laſt, ver. 22.

1. HOW is the gold become dim! how is the moſt fine gold changed! the ſtones of the ſanctuary are poured out [a] in the top of every ſtreet. 2. The precious ſons of Zion, comparable to fine gold, how are they eſteemed [b] as earthen pitchers, the work of the hands of the potter! 3. Even the † ſea-monſters draw out the breaſt, they give ſuck to their young ones: the daughter of my people is become cruel, [c] like the oſtriches in the wilderneſs. 4. [d] The tongue of the ſucking child cleaveth to the roof of his mouth for thirſt: [e] the young children aſk bread, and no man breaketh it unto them. 5. They that did feed delicately, are deſolate in the ſtreets: they that were brought up ‡ in ſcarlet, [f] embrace dunghills. 6. For the puniſhment of the iniquity of the daughter of my people, [g] is greater than the puniſhment of the ſin of Sodom, that was [h] overthrown as in a moment, and no hands ſtayed on her. 7. Her Nazarites were purer than ſnow, they were whiter than milk, they were more ruddy in body than rubies, their poliſhing was of ſapphire. 8. Their viſage is § blacker than a coal: they are not known in the ſtreets: their ſkin cleaveth to their bones: it is withered, it is become like a ſtick. 9. They that be ſlain with the ſword, are better than they that be ſlain with hunger: for theſe ‖ pine away, ſtricken through for want of the fruits of the field. 10. [i] The hands of the pitiful women have ſodden their own children, they were [k] their meat in the deſtruction of the daughter of my people. 11. The LORD hath accompliſhed his fury, he hath poured out his fierce anger, and [l] hath kindled a fire in Zion, and it hath devoured the foundations thereof. 12. The kings of the earth, and all the inhabitants of the world would not have believed, that the adverſary and the enemy ſhould have entred into the gates of Jeruſalem.

[a] Chap. ii. 19.
[b] Iſa. xxx. 14. Jer. xix. 11.
† Or ſea-calves.
[c] Job xxxix. 14, 16.
[d] Pſ. xxii. 15.
[e] Chap. ii. 11, 12.
‡ Or up on.
[f] Job xxiv. 8.
[g] Luke xii. 48.
[h] Gen. xix. 25.
§ Heb. Darker than blackneſs.
‖ Heb. Flow out.
[i] Chap. ii. 20.
[k] Deut. xxviii. 57. 2 Kings vi. 29.
[l] Deut. xxxii. 22.

v. 1—12. Who can, unaffected, behold the deſolations here deſcribed?

1. The temple is laid in ruins; the gold tarniſhed, the ſtones of the demoliſhed ſanctuary ſcattered on every ſide. Which may alſo be underſtood figuratively, as in the next verſe, of the precious ſons of Zion, the children of God, comparable to gold for their excellence, and living ſtones in the ſpiritual building the church; but now broken by the Chaldeans as an earthen pitcher, and lying ſlain in every ſtreet of the city.

2. People of all ranks and ages periſh in the famine. The tongue of the ſucking child cleaves to the roof of his mouth for thirſt, the famiſhed mothers breaſts are dry, and, unable to moiſten their lips, they ſeemed more cruel than the ſea monſters, or the oſtriches of the wilderneſs. The weaned infant cried for bread, and the diſtreſſed parent hath it not to give, or, preſſed by inſufferable hunger, is deaf to his liſping, and cannot ſpare the leaſt morſel, v. 3, 4. They who were uſed to every delicacy which affluence could procure, and were brought up in ſcarlet, or upon ſcarlet carpets ſpread under them, now wander in the ſtreet, and rake the dunghill for the vileſt ſcraps to appeaſe their raging appetite: to ſuch diſtreſſes may the greateſt be reduced, v. 5. Their Nazarites, who were ſeparated for God, and abſtained with niceſt care from every defilement; or her nobles, as ſome interpret it, that were ſo elegant and curious, white as ſnow, ruddy as rubies, and their ſkins ſmooth as poliſhed ſapphire; now, black with famine, grief, and melancholy, are ſo changed, that their viſage is no longer known, withered and deſtitute of all moiſture as a dry ſtick, v. 7, 8. periſhing miſerably for want, a lingering death more terrible than the ſword, multitudes fall on every ſide; whilſt, driven by raging hunger, horrible to tell! even mothers murder their infants, and ravenouſly feed upon the ſodden corpſes, v. 10.

3. The cauſe of all is the ſin of Jeruſalem, provoking the fierce anger of the Lord; and now his fury poured out hath accompliſhed her ruin. Greater than Sodom's puniſhment is hers, becauſe more aggravated her ſins: that devoted city never ſlighted thoſe means Jeruſalem had enjoyed; therefore her overthrow, though terrible, was ſudden; whilſt, by a lingering death upon the rack, the deſtruction of Zion is compleated.

4. They who behold theſe deſolations are aſtoniſhed. So ſtrong the fortreſs, ſo numerous the forces, ſo highly honoured by the reſidence of the great God, ſo ſignally before reſcued by his interpoſition, the kings of the neighbouring nations never conceived it poſſible for the Chaldeans to have prevailed. Nor could they, if Zion's defence had not firſt departed, and God been turned againſt her as an enemy; and then no marvel ruin terrible and remedileſs overtook her.

13. ¶ [m] For the ſins of her prophets, and the iniquities of her prieſts, that have ſhed the blood of the juſt in the midſt of her: 14. They have wandered as blind men in the ſtreets, they have polluted themſelves with blood, † ſo that men could not touch their garments. 15. They cried unto them, [n] Depart ye, ‡ it is unclean, depart, depart, touch not, when they fled away and wandred: they ſaid among the heathen, They ſhall no more ſojourn there. 16. The anger of the LORD hath divided them, he will no more regard them: [o] they reſpected not the perſons of the prieſts, they favoured not the elders. 17. As for us, [p] our eyes as yet failed for our vain help: in our watching we have watched for a nation that could not ſave us. 18. [q] They hunt our ſteps that we cannot go in our ſtreets: our end is near, our days are fulfilled, for our end is come. 19. Our perſecutors are [r] ſwifter than the eagles of the heaven: they purſued us upon the mountains, they laid wait for us in the wilderneſs. 20. [s] The breath of our noſtrils, the anointed of the LORD [t] was taken in their pits, of whom we ſaid, Under his ſhadow we ſhall live among the heathen. 21. [u] Rejoice and be glad, O daughter of Edom, that dwelleſt in the land of Uz; [x] the cup alſo ſhall paſs through unto thee: thou ſhalt be drunken, and ſhalt make thyſelf naked. 22. ¶ [y] § The puniſhment of thine iniquity is accompliſhed, O daughter of Zion, [z] he will no more carry thee away into captivity: [a] he will viſit thine iniquity, O daughter of Edom, he will ‖ diſcover thy ſins.

[m] Jer. v. 31. & xxiii. 21.
† Or inaſmuch as men could not but touch.
[n] Iſa. lii. 11.
‡ Or ye polluted.
[o] 2 Kings xxv. 18.
[p] 2 Kings xxiv. 7. Iſa. xxx. 6, 7. Jer. xxxvii. 7. Ezek. xxix. 16.
[q] 2 Kings xxv. 4, 5.
[r] Deut. xxviii. 49.
[s] Gen. ii. 7. Chap. ii. 9.
[t] Jer. lii. 8. Ezek. xii. 13. & xix. 4, 8.
[u] Eccleſ. xi. 9.
[x] Jer. xxv. 15, 16, 21.
[y] Iſa. xl. 2.
§ Or thine iniquity.
[z] Ezek. xxxvii. 25.
[a] Pſ. cxxxvii. 7.
‖ Or carry thee captive for thy ſins.

v. 13—22. We have here,

1. The principal cauſe of Jeruſalem's deſtruction. The ſins of her prophets and the iniquities of her prieſts, who, whilſt by office and profeſſion they ſhould have reformed others, were the great examples and encouragers of iniquity, and filled up faſt the meaſure of the national guilt. They ſhed the blood of the juſt, being the firſt to perſecute God's faithful ones, eſpecially the true prophets, who remonſtrated againſt their wickedneſs. They wandered as blind men in the ſtreets, pretending to lead others whilſt themſelves were bewildered in error, ignorance, and ſin; and, thus polluted with blood, every good man ſhunned their company as defiling, and cried unto all near them to beware of them, as if their touch or breath communicated infection; depart ye, it is unclean, touch not: and in the lands whither they were carried captive theſe deſtroyers of their country were marked with a peculiar culiar brand of infamy; they ſaid among the heathen, they ſhall no more ſojourn there, God having decreed, concerning theſe falſe teachers, that they ſhould die in the land of their captivity, and never ſee or partake of the reſtoration God had promiſed to his people, v. 15. Under God's peculiar wrath they were now divided and diſperſed; and as he will no more regard them, neither ſhall they find any reſpect and favour from their heathen maſters: or the laſt words of v. 16. may be interpreted as their ſin, as well as puniſhment: they had treated with contempt God's true and faithful miniſters, and therefore they themſelves juſtly receive the ſame. Note, (1.) Wicked prieſts and prophets, more than any others, conſpire to haſten a nation's ruin. (2.) We cannot keep at too great a diſtance from their company whoſe evil communications tend to corrupt and deſtroy the ſoul.

Before Chriſt 588.

2. In the time of their calamity all help failed this unhappy people. They expected aſſiſtance from the Egyptians, but in vain; eagerly they looked for their advancing to raiſe the ſiege, till their eyes failed; and too late they found their caſe deſperate, and that their allies could not ſave them from the Chaldean army, v. 17. their mounts were raiſed ſo high that they overlooked the walls, and if but a perſon appeared in the ſtreets, they purſued him with their ſlings and arrows as a beaſt is hunted. Their end was near, it now was evident they could not hold out long, the days appointed by the prophetic word were nearly expiring, and then the fearful end of Zion muſt come, v. 19. Flight was uſeleſs, when, ſwifter than eagles, their perſecutors purſued; nor could the mountain or wilderneſs afford a covert from their piercing eyes, v. 19. nay even their king himſelf found no protection for his ſacred perſon, and all their flattering hopes that under his protection they ſhould be ſafe, amidſt the ſurrounding heathen nations, now vaniſhed as a dream: they behold him ſeized, his eyes put out, and led away in brazen fetters a miſerable captive, v. 20. Some have applied this as if it had a reference to Chriſt, the anointed Saviour, ſeized by the hands of his enemies and ſlain, whilſt his diſheartened diſciples, beholding the ſcene, were ready to abandon themſelves to deſpair.

3. A gracious promiſe cloſes the lamentation, ſo doleful and full of miſery. Edom had maliciouſly rejoiced at Zion's fall; and with pointed irony the prophet bids them continue their joy; but lets them know, the cup of vengeance which Jeruſalem had taſted they muſt drink of, and ſink down, as a drunken man overpowered with liquor, under the fury of the Lord; helpleſs be ſtripped of all their treaſures and ornaments, and driven naked as ſlaves before their conquerors; and whilſt Zion's puniſhment hath an end, and ſhe is reſtored, no more to be a captive, the iniquity of Edom ſhall ſtill be viſited, and her ſins diſcovered in the puniſhment inflicted on them. And what is here ſaid ſeems to look to future times, Edom being the figure of the antichriſtian powers, as Zion is of the church of God. The Jews, after their return from Babylon, were, we know, led captive again, and are to this day in a ſtate of bondage; but when Rome, the ſpiritual Edom, ſhall be deſtroyed, then ſhall the church be triumphant, and never know the yoke of captivity any more for ever.

CHAP. V.

This chapter, though it has the ſame number of verſes with the firſt, ſecond, and fourth, yet is not alphabetical as they were, but the ſcope of it is the ſame. We have in it, 1. A remonſtrance of the preſent calamitous ſtate of God's people in their captivity, ver. 1—16. 2. A proteſtation of their concern for God's ſanctuary, as that which lay nearer their heart than any ſecular intereſt of their own, ver. 17, 18. 3. A humble ſupplication to God, and expoſtulation with him, for the returns of mercy, ver. 19—22.

1. REmember, O LORD, what is come upon us:
[a] conſider, and behold our reproach. 2. Our inheritance is turned to ſtrangers, our houſes to aliens.
3. We are orphans and fatherleſs, our mothers are as widows. 4. We have drunken our water for money, our wood is ſold unto us. 5. Our necks are under perſecution: we labour, and have no reſt. 6. [b] We have given the hand to the Egyptians, and to the Aſſyrians, to be ſatisfied with bread. 7. [c] Our fathers have ſinned, and are not, and we have born their iniquities. 8. Servants have ruled over us: there is none that doth deliver us out of their hand. 9. We gat our bread with the peril of our lives, becauſe of the ſword ‡ of the wilderneſs.
10. [d] Our ſkin was black like an oven, becauſe of the § terrible famine. 11. They raviſhed the women in Zion, and the maids in the cities of Judah. 12. Princes are hanged up by their hand: [e] the faces of elders were not honoured. 13. They took the young men ‖ to grind, and the children fell under the wood. 14. The elders have ceaſed from the gate, the young men from their muſick. 15. The joy of our heart is ceaſed, our dance is turned into mourning. 16. [f] † The crown is fallen from our head: wo unto us that we have ſinned. 17.
For this [g] our heart is faint, [h] for theſe things our eyes are dim. 18. Becauſe of [i] the mountain of Zion, which is deſolate, the foxes walk upon it.

[a] Pſ. lxxxix. 50.
† Heb. On our necks are we perſecuted.
[b] Gen. xxiv. 2.
[c] Jer. xxxi. 29. Ezek. xviii. 2.
‡ Or in the plain.
[d] Chap. iv. 8. Job. xxx. 30. Pſ. cxix. 83.
§ Or terrors, or ſtorms.
[e] Iſa. xlvii. 6. Chap. iv. 16.
‖ Or to carry the griſt.

4

Before Chriſt 588.

[f] Pſ. lxxxix. 39.
† Heb. The crown of our head is fallen.
[g] Chap. i. 22.
[h] Pſ. vi. 7.
[i] Mic. iii. 12.

v. 1—18. The prophet, in the name of his afflicted people, preſents their miſerable caſe before the God of all mercy, intreating him to regard, conſider, and remove the reproach under which they groan. And no tear, no ſigh of God's people, paſſes unnoticed.

1. He ſpreads their preſent wretched ſtate before God in a variety of particulars, wherein their grievous reproach appeared. Deprived of the inheritance of their fathers, ſtrangers have ſeized their eſtates, and dwell in the houſes they had built, v. 2. In a natural, political, and ſpiritual ſenſe, they were become orphans and widows; the men ſlain with the ſword, their king removed, and God himſelf had forſaken them, v. 3. In their captivity they were not only deſtitute of the comforts of life, but the very neceſſaries were hardly to be procured by them, even their water and their wood were to be purchaſed at an exorbitant rate, v. 4. Groaning under their heavy loads, ſcarce would their heathen maſters allow them ſleep, and probably forbid them the obſervance of their ſabbaths, wearing them out with inceſſant toil, v. 5. For a morſel of bread to relieve their hunger, they yielded their necks to bondage in Egypt and Aſſyria, v. 6. The meaneſt among the nations whither they were diſperſed tyrannized over them, and the curſed race of Ham, doomed to be the ſervant of ſervants, Gen. ix. 26, 27. is their maſter; to a ſtate of ſuch ignominy and wretched ſervitude were they reduced; and not a friend to interpoſe to mitigate their burdens, or deliver them from their bondage: or their heathen maſters ſuffered their very ſervants to inſult them without check or rebuke, v. 8. During the ſiege, when, driven by hunger, any ventured to go without the walls in queſt of proviſion, the ſword of the wilderneſs, or of the plain, the Chaldeans who guarded every avenue, expoſed them to conſtant peril of their lives, v. 9. ſcorched up with famine, their ſhriveled ſkins looked black, as if burnt with fire, v. 10. Sacrificed to brutal luſt, their wives and virgins fell a prey to lawleſs raviſhers, v. 11. Their princes were hanged by their cruel conquerors, and perhaps, when dead, their bodies hung up by the hand and expoſed. The elders in age or office were inſulted, and no reſpect paid to dignity or hoary locks, v. 12. The young men are ſet to grind, or carry the griſt, as if they were beaſts of burden; and the very children ſink under their loads of wood, unable to ſuſtain them, v. 13. The courts of juſtice are no more; the judges ſlain, or captives: the voice of muſick is ſilenced; their joy is fled, and all their gaiety exchanged for mourning, v. 14, 15. The crown is fallen, their king a priſoner, their kingdom enſlaved. Note, This world is a ſcene of awful changes: we muſt look to a better for never-fading crowns and uninterrupted joy.

2. Their ſins have provoked theſe judgments: they own and lament it. Our fathers have ſinned, and are not, and we have born their iniquities, v. 7. having added their own provocations to the paſt, till they had filled the meaſure of their ſins: wo unto us, v. 16. our caſe is deplorable and pitiable, that we have ſinned; and, having nothing to plead in vindication of themſelves, they caſt their ſouls upon the ſovereign mercy and grace of God, acknowledging the juſtice of all they ſuffered; for this our heart is faint, both for their miſeries and their ſins; for theſe things our eyes are dim with weeping, becauſe of the mountain of Zion which is deſolate, the city and temple in ruins; the foxes walk upon it, without interruption, as in the deſert. Note, (1.) Among the bittereſt griefs, which affect the hearts of the faithful, are the deſolations of Zion, the afflictions of God's church and people. (2.) Sin is the root of all our ſorrows, and more to be lamented than all the ſufferings it occaſions.

19. Thou, O LORD, [k] remaineſt for ever: [l] thy throne from generation to generation. 20. Wherefore doſt thou forget us [m] for ever, and forſake us ſo long time? 21. [n] Turn thou us unto thee, O LORD, and we ſhall be turned: [o] renew our days as of old. 22.
† But thou haſt utterly rejected us; thou art very wroth againſt us.

[k] Pſ. ix. 7. & x. 16. & xxix. 10. & xc. 2. & cii. 12, 27. & cxlv. 13. Hab. i. 12.
[l] Pſ. xlv. 6.
[m] Pſ. xiii. 1.
[n] Pſ. lxxx. 3, 7, 14. Jer. xxxi. 18.
[o] Hab. iii. 2.
† Or, For wilt thou utterly reject us? wilt thou be, &c.

v. 19—22. The people of God, for whom the prophet ſpeaks,

1. Expreſs their dependance upon God. Thou, O Lord, remaineſt for ever, the ſame unchangeable Jehovah; faithful to all his promiſes, immutable in his decrees, and therefore his people may comfort themſelves in the conſtancy of his regard, whatever troubles they are expoſed to: thy throne from generation to generation: his dominion is eternal; and he who rules over all will over-rule every event for his people's good: whilſt Zion's God reigns his people need never deſpair.

2. They expoſtulate with God on their unhappy caſe. Wherefore doſt thou forget us for ever, and forſake us ſo long time? It had been long, and they were ready to fear it would be for ever; yea every moment of his diſpleaſure ſeemed an age to them; and their unbelief was ready often to ſuggeſt, but thou haſt utterly rejected us, and there is no more hope; thou art very wroth againſt us, to conſume us. Or the words may be read, For haſt thou utterly rejected us? wilt thou be very wroth againſt us? Humble expoſtulations are allowable: we may reaſon with God concerning his judgments, though we may not quarrel with him on account of them.

3. They pray. Turn thou us unto thee, and we ſhall be turned. Conſcious of their ſad departures from him, and their utter inability to help themſelves, they look to him who alone can work the mighty change. Renew our days as of old: bring us to our former ſtate of happineſs, and enable us to imitate the examples of our pious anceſtors. This verſe is repeated at laſt, after the following one, v. 22. by the Jewiſh rabbins, who would not have the book conclude with the laſt melancholy words. Note, (1.) No ſinner would ever return from the evil of his way unleſs the effectual grace of God powerfully drew him. (2.) However dark the ſcene may cloſe upon God's ſuffering ſaints on earth, let them commend their ſouls to him, and then they ſhall quickly wake up in glory, honour, and immortality.

* * *

THE EVANGELICAL EXPOSITOR;
OR, A PRACTICAL COMMENT
Upon the BOOK of the PROPHET
EZEKIEL.

WHEN we entred upon the writings of the Prophets, which ſpeak of the things that ſhould be hereafter, methought we had the ſame call given us that St. John had, Rev. iv. 1. Come up hither; but, when we enter upon the prophecy of this book, methinks we are called to come up higher. Theſe waters of the ſanctuary ſtill grow deeper as they flow, ſo far from being fordable, that in ſome places they are ſcarce fathomable.

(1.) The penman of this prophecy was Ezekiel: his name ſignifies The ſtrength of God, or one girt or ſtrengthened of God. Where he gives a commiſſion he will give power to execute it. Ezekiel's name was anſwered when God ſaid, I have made thy face ſtrong againſt their faces.

(2.) Concerning the date of it, the place whence it is dated, and the time when. The ſcene is laid in Babylon, when it was a houſe of bondage to the Iſrael of God: there the prophecies of this book were preached, there they were written, when the prophet himſelf and the people to whom he propheſied were captives there. Ezekiel and Daniel are the only writing prophets of the Old Teſtament that lived and propheſied any where but in the land of Iſrael, except we add Jonah, who was ſent to Nineveh to propheſy. Ezekiel propheſied in the beginning of the captivity, Daniel in the latter end of it; it was an indication of God's good will to them, and his gracious deſigns concerning them in their affliction, that he raiſed up prophets among them, both to convince them when in the beginning of their troubles they were ſecure and unhumbled, which was Ezekiel's buſineſs, and to comfort them when in the latter end of their troubles they were dejected and diſcouraged. If the Lord had been pleaſed to kill them, he would not have uſed ſuch apt and proper means to cure them.

(3.) Concerning the matter and ſcope of it; 1. There is much in it that is very myſterious, dark and hard to be underſtood; eſpecially in the beginning and latter end of it; which therefore the Jewiſh rabbins forbad the reading of to their young men, till they came to be thirty years of age, leſt by the difficulties they met with there they ſhould be prejudiced againſt the Scriptures: but if we read theſe difficult parts of Scripture with humility and reverence, and ſearch them diligently, though we may not be able to unty all the knots we meet with, no more than we can ſolve all the phænomena in the book of nature, yet we may from them, as from the book of nature, gather a great deal for the confirming of our faith, and the encouraging of our hope in God. 2. Though the viſions here be intricate, ſuch as an elephant may ſwim in, yet the ſermons are moſtly plain, ſuch as a lamb may wade in; and the chief deſign of them is to ſhew God's people their tranſgreſſions, that in their captivity they might be repenting, and not repining. 3. Tho' the reproofs here and the threatnings be very ſharp and bold; yet, towards the cloſe of the book, very comfortable aſſurances are given of great mercy God had in ſtore for them, with particular reference to the Meſſiah's kingdom, to whom bore all the prophets witneſs. The viſions, which were the prophet's credentials, we have, chap. i—iii. the reproofs and threatnings, chap. iv—xxiv. and betwixt the comforts we have in the latter part of the book, we have meſſages ſent to the nations that bordered upon the land of Iſrael, whoſe deſtruction is foretold chap. xxv—xxxv. to make way for the reſtoration of God's Iſrael, and the re-eſtabliſhment of their city and temple, which are foretold chap. xxxvi. ad finem. And thoſe who would apply the comforts to themſelves muſt apply the convictions to themſelves.

Before Christ 595.

CHAP. I.

In this chapter we have, 1. The time when this prophecy was delivered, ver. 1. the place where, ver. 2. and the perſon by whom, ver. 3. 2. The introduction to it by a viſion of the glory of God. (1.) The cherubim over which he appeared, ver. 4—14. (2.) The wheels that accompanied them, ver. 15—26. (3.) His glorious appearance on his throne, ver. 26—28.

a Ver. 3. Chap. iii. 15, 23.
b Mat. iii. 16. Acts vii. 56. & x. 11. Rev. xix. 11.
c 2 Kings xxiv. 12.
d 1 Kings xviii. 46. Chap. iii. 14, 22.

NOW it came to paſs in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, in the fifth day of the month, (as I was among the captives [a] by the river of Chebar) that [b] the heavens were opened, and I ſaw viſions of God. 2. In the fifth day of the month (which was the fifth year of [c] king Jehoiakin's captivity) 3. The word of the LORD came expreſly unto Ezekiel the prieſt, the ſon of Buzi, in the land of the Chaldeans, by the river Chebar, and [d] the hand of the LORD was there upon him.

v. 1—3. We have here,

1. The date of this prophecy. In the thirtieth year, as ſome ſuppoſe, of the prophet's life, when, according to cuſtom, he entered on his prieſtly office; but others refer it to the æra commencing from Nabopolaſſer's reign, which was the twelfth of the captivity, reckoning from the third year of Jehoiakim; and the fifth of Jehoiachin, or Coniah's captivity, in the fourth month, the fifth day of the month, probably a ſabbath-day, when the prophet was employed in the bleſſed work of contemplation and prayer; for ſeven days after we find another viſion of the ſame nature given him, chap. iii. 16. Note, They who ſeek to improve the ſacred hours God hath ſeparated for his own ſervice, in waiting upon him, will find him often manifeſting himſelf to them as he doth not unto the world.

2. The place: among the captives by the river Chebar, in the land of the Chaldeans. In their afflicted ſtate God thus ſhewed he had not forſaken them, but would encourage ſtill their hope of mercy, and engage them to repent and turn to him. The prophet ſhared in the common calamity; for in national judgments good and bad fall together: but God knows how to comfort the hearts of his people with inward ſupports others partake not of; and uſually his ſuffering ſaints have found in the day of their troubles more abundant conſolations, 2 Cor. i. 5.

3. The viſion. The heavens were opened, and I ſaw the viſions of God: ſome amazing diſplays of the divine glory appeared. And the word of the Lord came expreſly unto Ezekiel the prieſt, the ſon of Buzi. The words tranſlated came expreſly are very emphatical in the original, implying the certainty, evidence, and clearneſs, of the prophetic word which God revealed to him. And the hand of the Lord was there upon him, ſupporting him, that he might not be overpowered with the dazzling luſtre; and ſtrengthening him to go forth to deliver what was communicated to him. Note, (1.) They will be enabled to deliver their meſſage with greateſt boldneſs, who ſpeak from the moſt aſſured conviction in their own ſouls. (2.) If God ſends us forth in his miniſtry, we may expect his hand will be with us to ſtrengthen us, and give demonſtration and power to the word he puts into our mouths.

† Heb. Catching it ſelf.
e Rev. iv. 6, &c. f Chap. x. 8. &c.
g Ver. 10. Chap. x. 14, 21.
h Iſa. vi. 2.
i Heb. xii. 13.
k Rev. i. 15.
l Ver. 11, 12.
m Rev. iv. 7.
n Num. ii. 10.
o Num. ii. 3.
p Num. ii. 18. Chap. x. 1.
q Numb. ii. 25.
‡ Or divided above.
r Iſa. vi. 2.
s Ver. 9.
t Ver. 20.
u Ver. 17.
x Rev. iv. 5.

4. ¶ And I looked, and behold, a whirlwind came out of the north, a great cloud, and a fire † infolding itſelf, and a brightneſs was about it, and out of the midſt thereof as the colour of amber, out of the midſt of the fire. 5. Alſo [e] out of the midſt thereof came the likeneſs of four living creatures. And [f] this was their appearance: They had the likeneſs of a man. 6. And [g] every one had four faces, and [h] every one had four wings. 7. And their feet [i] were ſtraight feet, and the ſole of their feet was like the ſole of a calf's foot, and they ſparkled [k] like the colour of burniſhed braſs. 8. And they had the hands of a man under their wings on their four ſides, and they four had their faces and their wings. 9. [l] Their wings were joined one to another; they turned not when they went, they went every one ſtraight forward. 10. As for [m] the likeneſs of their faces, they four [n] had the face of a man, and [o] the face of a lion on the right ſide, and they four had [p] the face of an ox on the left ſide: [q] they four alſo had the face of an eagle. 11. Thus were their faces: and their wings were ‡ ſtretched upwards, two wings of every one were joined one to another, and [r] two covered their bodies. 12. And [s] they went every one ſtraight forward: [t] whither the ſpirit was to go, [u] they went: and they turned not when they went. 13. As for the likeneſs of the living creatures, their appearance was like burning coals of fire, [x] and like the appearance of lamps: it went up and down among the living creatures, and the fire was bright, and out of the fire went forth lightning. 14. And the living creatures ran, and returned as the appearance of a flaſh of lightning.

v. 4.—14. The introduction to theſe viſions of God is very awful, tending to affect the prophet's mind with the higheſt reverence of that Jehovah whoſe miniſter he was, and to encourage the poor captives, whoſe glory ſeemed now departed from them; but lo! their God is ſtill in the midſt of them.

1. Behold, a whirlwind out of the north, a great cloud, the vehicle of this awful viſion, and a fire infolding itſelf, a chearing fire to God's faithful people, a conſuming fire to his foes; and a brightneſs was about it, the cloud was illuminated by the fire, an emblem of that irradiation which darted into the prophet's mind; and out of the midſt thereof as the colour of amber, out of the midſt of the fire. Chaſmal, tranſlated amber, ſome render a lively colour: others, a coal exceedingly fired: others ſuppoſe Chriſt is meant, who is repreſented ſomething ſimilar hereunto, Rev. i. 15. iv. 3. and hereunto I incline. He it was who appeared to Moſes in the buſh, to Iſaiah on his throne, and here to Ezekiel in the midſt of the fire.

2. The likeneſs of four living creatures came out of the midſt of this viſion, not real creatures, but emblematical repreſentations, either of the angels who ſurround the throne of God, as ſome; or rather of goſpel miniſters, ſee Rev. iv. 6—9, where the ſame emblematic figures appear. They are living creatures, themſelves quickened to ſpiritual life, lively in their miniſtrations, and the means of quickning others ſouls; four, as ſent forth to the four quarters of the earth, to preach the goſpel to every creature; in the likeneſs of a man, except in the following particulars:

1. They had four faces. (1.) The face of a man, being taken from among men to miniſter in the things of God, with underſtanding to inſtruct the ignorant, and with the feelings of humanity to have compaſſion on the afflicted. (2.) Of a lion, to denote their courage and boldneſs in preaching the goſpel amidſt all oppoſition. (3.) Of an ox, to repreſent their indefatigable labour and patience. (4.) Of an eagle, ſignifying their piercing ſight, and clear knowledge of the myſteries of God, and their ſoaring high in divine contemplation and holy affections.

2. Every one had alſo four wings, v. 6. From v. 11—23. they ſeem to have had two more, as the ſeraphim in Iſaiah, and the beaſts in the revelations, four covered their bodies, and two were ſtretched upward, and theſe wings joined one to another, v. 9. intimating, (1.) The ſwiftneſs and diligence they uſe in executing God's will, and the work of their miniſtry. (2.) The concord and union which ſubſiſts among them, united in love, and fellow-labourers in the ſame goſpel. (3.) The conſciouſneſs of their own infirmities, which makes them aſhamed of their imperfect ſervices, and count themſelves unworthy to appear before God.

3. Their feet were ſtraight feet, ver. 7, 9, 12. They walk uprightly before God; never turn aſide to the crooked paths of error and immorality; they perſeveringly go forward, undiſmayed by oppoſition, perſecution, or temptation, and with a ſingle eye to God's glory; the ſole of their feet was like the ſole of a calf's foot, one of the clean animals that divide the hoof, and intimates the purity of their converſation, or the firmneſs of their hearts in their miniſtry; and they ſparkled like the colour of burniſhed braſs, ſo beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of thoſe that bring glad tidings of peace, and ſo bright the luſtre of their holy examples.

4. They had the hands of a man under their wings on the four ſides, implying activity in executing what their wiſdom and prudence directed; and many hands, becauſe their work is vaſt and large, yet under their wings, not making oſtentation of their labours, but aſcribing the glory to him from whom all their ſtrength is derived.

5. They were under the guidance of the Holy Ghoſt. Whither the ſpirit was to go, they went: by him alone they are called to take the miniſtry upon them, inwardly moved by his powerful grace, by him they are ſupported in their labour, led into all truth, and readily diſpoſed for every ſervice which he is pleaſed to appoint them, neither ſtaggering at the difficulties nor can be turned back, by any fear of man, from delivering the meſſage with which he hath ſent them; like coals of fire they burn with divine zeal, v. 13. and as lamps they ſhine bright themſelves in the exerciſe of every divine grace, and hold forth the word of light to others, clear, diſtinct, enlightening, chearing, warming their ſouls. It went up and down among the living creatures; the divine light and fire of zeal filled them; bright, ſhining on every ſide, and darting like lightning to the ends of the earth; ſo extenſive, ſo powerful, ſo penetrating was the goſpel word they preached: and, when they had executed their miniſtry with this fervour and activity, they returned to give an account to their maſter, and to receive freſh orders from him, deſiring to approve themſelves to him in all things, and take no ſtep but under his guidance and by his direction. Let goſpel miniſters, looking on theſe cherubim, prove their own ſelves, and learn what they ſhould be.

Before Christ 595.

15. ¶ Now as I beheld the living creatures, behold, one wheel upon the earth by the living creatures, with his four faces. 16. [y] The appearance of the wheels, and their work was like unto the colour of a beryl: and they four had one likeneſs, and their appearance and their work was as it were a wheel in the middle of a wheel. 17. When they went, they went upon their four ſides: and they returned not when they went. 18. As for their rings, they were [z] ſo high that they were dreadful, and their † rings were full of eyes round about them four. 19. And when the living creatures went, the wheels went by them: and when the living creatures were lift up from the earth, the wheels were lift up. 20. [a] Whitherſoever the ſpirit was to go, they went, thither was their ſpirit to go, and the wheels were lifted up over againſt them: for the ſpirit ‡ of the living creature was in the wheels. 21. [b] When thoſe went, theſe went; and when thoſe ſtood, theſe ſtood; and when thoſe were lifted up from the earth, the wheels were lifted up over againſt them: for the ſpirit § of the living creature was in the wheels. 22. And the likeneſs of the firmament upon the heads of the living creature, was as the colour of the terrible cryſtal, ſtretched forth over their heads above. 23. And under the firmament were their wings ſtraight, the one toward the other; every one had two, which covered on this ſide, and every one had two, which covered on that ſide, their bodies. 24. [c] And when they went, I heard the noiſe of their wings, [d] like the noiſe of great waters, as the voice of the Almighty, the voice of ſpeech as the noiſe of an hoſt: when they ſtood, they let down their wings. 25. And there was a voice from the firmament, that was over their heads, when they ſtood, and had let down their wings.

[y] Chap. x. 9, 10.
[z] Rom. xi. 33.
† Or ſtrakes.
[a] Ver. 12.
‡ Or of life.
[b] Ver. 19, 20. Chap. x. 17.
§ Or of life.
[c] Chap. x. 5.
[d] Chap. xliii. 2.

v. 15—25. The viſion of the wheels follows that of the living creatures, which are variouſly interpreted. Some ſuppoſe them an emblem of the diſpenſations of providence, others of the word of God and the miniſtrations of it; but I rather follow thoſe who interpret theſe wheels of the goſpel churches, according to Rev. iv. where they are repreſented by four and twenty elders. But one wheel is mentioned, v. 15. for the church is one body, compoſed of innumerable believers; though it appears they were four, v. 16. and chap. x. 9. being collected from the four quarters of the world. The wheel may be conſidered as an emblem of perfection; for all the faithful are compleat in Chriſt; or it may repreſent the moveable ſtate of the churches, or the different circumſtances of proſperity and adverſity to which they are alternately ſubject; or as compoſing a chariot with the Cherubim, 1 Chron. xxviii. 18. in which the Lord Jeſus rides in majeſty and glory, Cant. iii. 9. The wheels are by the living creatures, intimating that the ſeveral congregations of the faithful follow their miniſters, who preſide in their worſhip, ſtir up their ſouls to run the way of God's commandments, and direct and lead them aright. With his four faces, each wheel having four faces, one on each of the ſemicircles which compoſed it, being a wheel within a wheel, v. 16. not a ſmaller wheel in a larger, but two circles croſſing each other at right angles, and forming one wheel or orb, as it is repreſented chap. x. 13. and theſe faces are the ſame with thoſe of the Cherubim, ſignifying that there is the moſt exact reſemblance between faithful paſtors and their people, they having the like conſtancy in the profeſſion they make, labouring in their ſphere with equal diligence for God, and patiently bearing the ſame ſufferings for the goſpel's ſake; endued, as ſpiritual men, with an enlightened underſtanding and knowledge of the myſteries of godlineſs, and tenderly compaſſionate to their brethren; bold as lions in the cauſe of God and truth, and ſoaring aloft as eagles above theſe ſublunary things, having their affections fixed, not on things on earth, but things in heaven. Their appearance and work was like unto the colour of beryl, ſo excellent and precious are his people to the Lord, they are his jewels; and they four had one likeneſs, all true believers bearing the image of the ſame Lord, and perfectly reſembling each other in their ſpirit and temper, they are all one in Chriſt Jeſus; when they went they went upon their four ſides, and they returned not when they went, being from their conſtruction ready to turn to the four points, without wheeling about. The ſaints of God thus go ſtill right on, and perſeveringly advance towards their eternal home, v. 17. Their rings were high; for the church is viſible, and lifted up above all the powers of earth and hell: dreadful; the enemies of God's people ſhall be made to tremble before them; or they had fear, a reverential fear of God, ſhewn in his worſhip, and carefulneſs never to offend him; and they were full of eyes, clear-ſighted in the knowledge of goſpel truth, watchful over their own hearts, and jealous over each other. When the living creatures went the wheels went with them, the faithful joining with their miniſters in the ſame worſhip, and followers of their good converſation in Chriſt; and when the living creatures were lift up from the earth, the wheels were lift up; for the lively frame of the miniſter's own ſoul, breathing in his diſcourſes, hath the moſt immediate tendency to raiſe up the ſouls of his hearers to high and heavenly things. Whitherſoever the ſpirit was to go, they went; under the guidance of God's Spirit they were led, and as he taught and directed, thither was their ſpirit to go, and the wheels were lift up over againſt them, cloſe to the ſides of the living creatures; for the ſpirit of the living creature was in the wheels; the ſame ſpirit actuating both miniſters and people, giving them life and motion; and inſeparably united, as animated by one ſoul, they went, or reſted together. So intimate is the fellowſhip between a miniſter and his people, when he is active they will be lively; if he is indolent they will be ready to be infected thereby. Over the heads of the living creature was the likeneſs of a firmament, as the colour of the terrible chryſtal, bright, dazzling, and tranſparent; for though the throne of Chriſt is above the firmament, he ſees all things done on earth; his eyes look down upon his church and people, and they by faith are enabled through the goſpel glaſs to look up to him, and behold his glory. Under the firmament their wings were ſtrait, ſtretched upward, and touching each other, with two others covering each of their ſides, v. 6, 11. and when they went, preaching the goſpel, I heard the noiſe of their wings like the noiſe of great waters; ſo loud and extenſive was the ſound of their voice bearing the glad tidings of ſalvation to the diſtant Gentile lands, as the voice of the Almighty, awful, majeſtic, powerful: the voice of ſpeech, for tho' the word is God's, the meſſengers are men, as the noiſe of a hoſt, multitudes being employed in this miniſtry, and all uniting in one cry, warning every man, and teaching every man, that they may preſent every man perfect in Chriſt Jeſus: and when they ſtood, they let down their wings, having finiſhed the work on which they were ſent, and waiting for freſh inſtructions, which they receive from Chriſt their Lord and Maſter, who ſpeaks from the firmament over their heads; in his word, and by the ſecret influences of his Spirit, directing them whither to go, and what to ſpeak; encouraging them to perſiſt in their work on earth, or calling them to his reſt in heaven.

26. ¶ [e] And above the firmament that was over their heads, was the likeneſs of [f] a throne, as the appearance of a ſapphire-ſtone, and upon the likeneſs of the throne was the likeneſs as the appearance of [g] a man above upon it. 27. [h] And I ſaw as the colour of amber, as the appearance of fire round about within it; from the appearance of his loins even upward, and from the appearance of his loins even downward, I ſaw as it were the appearance of fire, and it had brightneſs round about. 28. [i] As the appearance of the bow that is in the cloud in the day of rain, ſo was the appearance of the brightneſs round about. [k] This was the appearance of the likeneſs of the glory of the LORD: and when I ſaw it, [l] I fell upon my face, and I heard a voice of one that ſpake.

[e] Chap. x. 1.
[f] Rev. iii. 21.
[g] Iſa. ix. 6.
[h] Chap. viii. 2.
[i] Rev. iv. 3.
[k] Chap. iii. 23. & viii. 4.
[l] Chap. iii. 23. Dan. viii. 17. Rev. i. 17.

v. 26—28. The moſt glorious part of the viſion is yet to come. The living creatures were but the ſervants to prepare the way; here the Lord of life appears ſeated on his royal throne. Above the firmament was the likeneſs of a throne; the ſymbol of that univerſal dominion and eternal kingdom which, as God over all, the Lord Jeſus eſſentially poſſeſſes, or which, as Mediator, he hath received: as the appearance of a ſapphire-ſtone, very glorious; and upon the likeneſs of the throne was the likeneſs as the appearance of a man above upon it; even that divine Lord, who in the fulneſs of time condeſcended to appear in faſhion as a man, and in this human form, before his incarnation, manifeſted himſelf to his people. He appeared as the colour of amber, as the appearance of fire round about within it; a fire of love to his people, a fire of wrath to his enemies: and this fire that appeared all over him had a brightneſs round about like the rainbow, v. 28. ſimilar to which he is repreſented, Rev. x. 1. an emblem of the covenant of grace, in which Chriſt is the great author, purchaſer, and beſtower of every bleſſing. This was the appearance of the likeneſs of the glory of the Lord; of him who was the brightneſs of his Father's glory, and the expreſs image of his perſon, and in whom dwelt all the fulneſs of the godhead bodily: and when I ſaw it, I fell upon my face, in humble adoration of this divine perſonage, and filled with reverence and godly fear: and I heard a voice of one that ſpake, with an articulate human voice, delivering to him the commiſſion contained in the following chapter.

CHAP.

CHAP. II.

We have here, Ezekiel's ordination to his office. 1. He is commiſſioned to go as a prophet to the houſe of Iſrael, to deliver God's meſſages to them, ver. 1—5. 2. He is cautioned not to be afraid of them, ver. 6. 3. He is inſtructed what to ſay to them, which is ſignified by the viſion of a roll, which he was ordered to eat, ver. 7—10. and which, in the next chapter, we find he did eat.

1. AND he ſaid unto me, Son of man, ſtand upon thy feet, and I will ſpeak unto thee. 2. And [a] the ſpirit entred into me, when he ſpake unto me, and ſet me upon my feet, that I heard him that ſpake unto me. 3. And he ſaid unto me, Son of man, I ſend thee to the children of Iſrael, to † a rebellious nation that hath rebelled againſt me; [b] they and their fathers have tranſgreſſed againſt me, even unto this very day. 4. For [c] they are ‡ impudent children and [d] ſtiff-hearted: I do ſend thee unto them, and thou ſhalt ſay unto them, Thus ſaith the LORD God. 5. [e] And they, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear, (for they are a rebellious houſe) yet ſhall [f] know that there hath been a prophet among them.

[a] Chap. iii. 24.
† Or rebellious Gentiles.
[b] Jer. iii. 25.
[c] Chap. iii. 7.
‡ Heb. Hard of face.
[d] Acts vii. 51.
[e] Chap. iii. 11, 27.
[f] Chap. xxxiii. 33.

v. 1—5. The divine perſon who appeared in the foregoing chapter, addreſſes the prophet by this title, Son of man, which may be conſidered as a humbling notice, leſt he ſhould be puffed up by the viſions with which he was favoured, and the high commiſſion beſtowed on him; or rather as an honourable diſtinction, being the name the Son of God himſelf would bear in his incarnation, of whom the prophet is appointed to be the type and figure.

1. He is commanded to ariſe and hear. Stand upon thy feet, from his lowly proſtration, and I will ſpeak unto thee, which implied favour and encouragement; and all who humble their ſouls before God, may be aſſured they ſhall hear him ſpeak to them in mercy. And with this command there went forth power; the ſpirit entered into me, God's ſpirit ſtrengthening him to ſtand up on his feet, and qualifying him with gifts and graces for the diſcharge of his high office. Thus all our ſtrength muſt come from Chriſt; he alone can enable us for that which he commands; and they who are ſent by him, ſhall find his Spirit with them to the end of the world.

2. His commiſſion is given him. I ſend thee to the children of Iſrael, though they had long ſince juſtly forfeited all title to his regard; to a rebellious nation, or rebellious Gentiles, for ſuch they reſembled in their idolatries: hereditary tranſgreſſors, their fathers began the rebellion, and they had perſiſted in it to that day, v. 3. by habit in ſin become impudent and ſhameleſs, ſtiff-hearted and ſtubborn, that would not hear nor ſubmit to rebuke: to them he is ſent, to ſpeak in God's name, and by his authority, v. 4. and they, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear, (for they are a rebellious houſe) yet ſhall know that there hath been a prophet among them. If they heard and repented, they would acknowledge and adore the goodneſs of God in ſending them a prophet: if they rejected him, they ſhould prove the truth of his miſſion by the accompliſhment of the judgments upon them which he pronounced, v. 5. Note, (1.) God's patience is wonderful, not willing that the moſt rebellious ſinners ſhould periſh. (2.) They who perſiſt in their iniquities, notwithſtanding all the methods of providence and grace God hath uſed to recover them, will be left without excuſe. (3.) None can ſpeak with authority, who have not a divine commiſſion. (4.) Whether ſinners will hear or forbear, God will be glorified, and his faithful miniſters be honourable and approved by him.

6. ¶ And thou, ſon of man, [g] be not afraid of them, neither be afraid of their words, though [h] † briers and thorns be with thee, and thou doſt dwell among ſcorpions: [i] be not afraid of their words, nor be diſmayed at their looks, [k] though they be a rebellious houſe. 7. And thou ſhalt ſpeak my words unto them, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear, for they are ‡ moſt rebellious. 8. But thou, ſon of man, hear what I ſay unto thee, Be not thou rebellious like that rebellious houſe: open thy mouth, and [l] eat that I give thee. 9. ¶ And when I looked, behold, an hand was ſent unto me, and lo, [m] a roll of a book was therein. 10. And he ſpread it before me, and it was written within and without, and there was written therein, lamentations, and mourning, and wo.

[g] Jer. i. 8, 17. Luke xii. 4.
[h] Mic. vii. 4.
† Or rebels.
[i] Chap. iii. 9. 1 Pet. iii. 14.
[k] Jer. i. 8, 17. Chap. iii. 9.
‡ Heb. Rebellion.
[l] Rev. x. 9.
[m] Chap. iii. 1.

v. 6—10. Ezekiel was now appointed to his arduous office, and great courage it required to execute it with fidelity. Therefore,

1. God charges him to be faithful, notwithſtanding all the oppoſition he might expect. His abode was among briers and ſcorpions, wicked men, perſecutors, ſubtle, malignant, venomous, whoſe words would be bitter, and their looks malicious, frowning, fierce: but he muſt not fear nor be diſmayed at their threatnings, frowns, or ill uſage; nor like them prove rebellious, and turn away from God, but attentively hear, ſeriouſly digeſt, and boldly declare the meſſage God would put into his mouth, v. 8. Note, (1.) God's faithful miniſters may ever expect to meet with unreaſonable and wicked men; but they muſt not fear their faces, nor be intimidated to keep back any thing of the whole counſel of God, how much ſoever they may be expoſed thereby. (2.) Though thoſe to whom we are ſent are never ſo rebellious and perverſe, we are bound at leaſt to deliver our own ſouls by continuing to teſtify againſt them. (3.) They who are ſent of God muſt carefully adhere to their inſtructions, and ſpeak his word without adulteration; not conniving at men's ſins, or, through fear of offending, ſoftening the ſharp rebuke, leſt by ſuch unfaithfulneſs they become partakers of their guilt and ruin.

2. The roll, containing his meſſage, is ſpread before him. When I looked, behold, an hand was ſent unto me, and lo, a roll of a book was therein; the hand of Chriſt who gave him his orders, and will ſupport him in the diſcharge of his office: and he ſpread it before me, that he might peruſe the contents, and thro' divine illumination underſtand them: and it was written within and without, on both ſides of the parchment or vellum, denoting the multitude of matter it contained; and this too the moſt afflictive, for there was written therein, lamentations, and mourning, and woe, both with regard to the preſent wretched ſtate of the Jews, ſo greatly to be bemoaned, and full of terrible threatnings of greater wrath and judgments ready to fall upon them for their impenitence. Note, (1.) They who bear God's meſſage muſt carefully peruſe their Bibles, that they may be ſure to ſpeak as the oracles of God. (2.) Impenitent ſinners can expect to hear from God no word of comfort, but wrath to the uttermoſt.

CHAP. III.

In this chapter we have the further preparation of the prophet for the work to which God called him. 1. His eating of the roll, ver. 1—3. 2. Farther inſtructions and encouragements given him, ver. 4—11. 3. The mighty impulſe he was under, with which he was carried to thoſe that were to be his hearers, ver. 12—15. 4. A farther explication of his office and buſineſs as a prophet, under the ſimilitude of a watchman, ver. 16—21. 5. The reſtraining and reſtoring of the prophet's liberty of ſpeech, as God pleaſed, ver. 22—27.

1. MOreover he ſaid unto me, Son of man, eat that thou findeſt; [a] eat this roll, and go ſpeak unto the houſe of Iſrael. 2. So I opened my mouth, and he cauſed me to eat that roll. 3. And he ſaid unto me, Son of man, [b] cauſe thy belly to eat, and fill thy bowels with this roll that I give thee. Then did I [c] eat it, and [d] it was in my mouth as honey for ſweetneſs. 4. ¶ And he ſaid unto me, Son of man, go, get thee unto the houſe of Iſrael, and ſpeak with my words unto them. 5. For thou art not ſent to a people † of a ſtrange ſpeech, and of an hard language, but to the houſe of Iſrael: 6. Not to many people of a ſtrange ſpeech, and of an hard language, whoſe words thou canſt not underſtand: ſurely, [e] had I ſent thee to them, they would have hearkned unto thee. 7. But the houſe of Iſrael will not hearken unto thee; [f] for they will not hearken unto me: [g] for all the houſe of Iſrael are ‡ impudent and hard-hearted. 8. Behold, I have made thy face ſtrong againſt their faces, and thy forehead ſtrong againſt their foreheads. 9. [h] As an adamant harder than flint have I made thy forehead: [i] fear them not, neither be diſmayed at their looks, though they be a rebellious houſe. 10. Moreover, he ſaid unto me, Son of man, all my words that I ſhall ſpeak unto thee, receive [k] in thine heart, and hear with thine ears. 11. And go, get thee to them of the captivity, unto the children of thy people, and ſpeak unto them, and tell them, Thus ſaith the LORD God, [l] whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear. 12. Then [m] the ſpirit took me up, and I heard behind me a voice of a great ruſhing, ſaying, Bleſſed be the glory of the LORD from his place. 13. I heard alſo the noiſe of the wings of the living creatures that § touched one another, and the noiſe of the wheels over againſt them, and a noiſe of a great ruſhing. 14. So the ſpirit lifted me up, and took me away, and I went in bitterneſs,

[a] Chap. ii. 8, 9.
[b] 1 Tim. iv. 15.
[c] Jer. xv. 16. Rev. x. 9.
[d] Pſ. xix. 10.
† Heb. Deep of lip, and heavy of tongue. Ver. 6.
[e] Mat. xi. 21, 23.
[f] John xv. 20.
[g] Chap. ii. 4.
‡ Heb. Stiff of forehead, and hard of heart.
[h] Iſa. l. 7. Jer. i. 18. & xv. 20. Mic. iii. 8.
[i] Jer. i. 8, 17. Chap. ii. 6.
[k] Pſ. cxix. 11.
[l] Chap. ii. 5, 7.
[m] Chap. viii. 3. 1 Kings xviii. 12. 2 Kings ii. 16. Acts viii. 39.
§ Heb. Kiſſed.

terneſs, in ‖ the heat of my ſpirit, but [n] the hand of the LORD was ſtrong upon me. 15. ¶ Then I came to them of the captivity at Tel-abib, that dwelt by the river of Chebar, and [o] I ſat where they ſat, and remained there aſtoniſhed among them ſeven days.

‖ Heb. Hot anger.
[n] 2 Kings iii. 15. Chap. viii. 1.
[o] Job ii. 13.

v. 1—15. This is a continuation of the viſion of the foregoing chapter.

1. The prophet eats the roll at the divine command; not literally, but figuratively: he muſt read, mark, learn, and inwardly digeſt the prophetic word ſent him, filling his head with the knowledge, and his heart with the love of it; and not diſobedient to the heavenly viſion, he opened his mouth, and the Lord cauſed him to eat the roll; gave him underſtanding of his meſſage, and inclination and ability to diſcharge his office; and he found it in his mouth as honey for ſweetneſs: whatever mourning and woe it contained to the impenitent, there were great and precious promiſes therein reſpecting Chriſt and his ſalvation, on which his ſoul fed with great delight. Note, (1.) God's word is the bread of life, every day to be fed upon by all his people, deeply to be received into the heart, and univerſally to be embraced and obeyed. (2.) They who miniſter to others in holy things, are eſpecially bound to meditate on their ſubject, and make ſolemn and ſerious preparation before they preſume to ſpeak God's word. (3.) All our ſufficiency is of God: though we had the greateſt human ability, and the moſt intenſe application, unleſs he cauſeth us to eat the roll, and beſtows a ſpirit of wiſdom and underſtanding, we ſhall know nothing as we ought to know. (4.) They who make God's word their daily meditation, will find it ſweeter than honey or the honey-comb.

2. He is ſent as before to the rebellious houſe of Iſrael. When he had thoroughly learnt and digeſted the roll, he muſt go and faithfully deliver it, v. 1. careful to ſpeak God's words, not his own, or the enticing words of man's wiſdom, but thoſe the Holy Ghoſt teacheth, v. 4. for thou art not ſent to a people of a ſtrange ſpeech, but to the houſe of Iſrael, for whom he ought to have a tender concern, and from whom he might expect, as he ſpoke to them in their own tongue, and with the moſt convincing arguments, attention and obedience. Or this is mentioned to upbraid their impenitence and obſtinacy in rejecting him; for had he been ſent to the moſt barbarous nations, whoſe language he could not underſtand, and muſt have ſpoken by an interpreter; yet would his preaching have been more effectual to them, than it will now be to his own countrymen, whoſe hardened hearts would be deaf to the plaineſt admonitions, and inattentive to the moſt awful warnings: nor need the prophet marvel if they refuſed to hearken to him, when they had rejected God himſelf, v. 7. Neverthelеſs he muſt go, and God engages to endue him with ſuch invincible courage and unſhaken intrepidity, that he ſhall be able to face, yea to confound the boldeſt, moſt impudent, and daring ſinners among them; and therefore whatever dangers threatned, he need not fear, or be diſmayed, v. 8, 9. but go and utter all God's words, receiving them into his own heart and ears, without exception or diſputing againſt them, and delivering them without reſerve in God's name, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear, v. 10, 11. Note, (1.) They who have the word of God clearly ſet before them, and wilfully reject the counſel of God againſt their own ſouls, are without excuſe. (2.) They who have impudent ſinners to deal with, need a forehead of adamant, not to be abaſhed or diſconcerted by their mockery or inſults. (3.) When we are called out to hard ſervices, we ſhall be furniſhed for our place and ſtation: as our day is, our ſtrength ſhall be. (4.) Though we ſhould not ſee the happy fruit of our labours we could wiſh, we muſt not be diſcouraged from perſevering zeal in the diſcharge of our miniſtry.

3. The Spirit of God with a holy violence ſets him on his work. He lifted me up, and took me away, as Philip, Acts viii. 39. carrying him thro' the air from the place where he was, to another company of the captives ſeated at a diſtance on the ſame river Chebar; and I heard behind me, as he went, a voice of a great ruſhing, proceeding from the living creatures and the wheels, ſaying, Bleſſed be the glory of God out of his place; which may be conſidered as an aſcription of praiſe offered to God by all his redeemed, whether miniſters or people, proceeding from his church militant out of his temple on earth, or from his church triumphant out of heaven, on account of his glorious perfections, and all his righteous works and ways. Or it may be a ſigh of lamentation after the bleſſed glory of the Lord removing out of his place, forſaking his temple. I heard alſo the noiſe of the wings of the living creatures, who clapped them when they praiſed God, that touched one another, or, literally, kiſſed a woman her ſiſter, uniting in true love to God and one another, and joining in this doxology: and the noiſe of the wheels over againſt them, actuated by the ſame ſpirit, and giving the ſame glory to God; and a noiſe of a great ruſhing, as before, v. 12. and I went in bitterneſs, grieved at the people's wickedneſs, and affected with the doleful tidings he carried; in the heat of my ſpirit, moved with indignation, or fretting at the diſobedience foretold, and reluctant to go on ſo unwelcome an errand: but the hand of the Lord was ſtrong upon me; conſtraining him to the work, and mightily ſupporting him to go through with it. Then I came to them of the captivity at Tel-abib, the Jews who were fixed there, that dwelt by the river Chebar, another colony on the ſame river; and I ſat where they ſat, attentive to their diſcourſe, or waiting the prophetic impulſe; and remained there aſtoniſhed among them ſeven days, as Job's friends, Job xi. 13. overwhelmed with grief on beholding their miſery, or overpowered with the weight of the awful meſſage he brought them. Note, (1.) If God did not uſe a kind of holy violence with our reluctant hearts, we ſhould be ready at times to deſert our poſt. (2.) There may be many ſtruggles of fear and unbelief where grace reigns; and, though with trembling, we dare go at God's bidding. (3.) Nothing is more diſcouraging to a miniſter's ſpirit, than to ſee a hardened people unaffected under his diſcourſes. (4.) Great griefs are often ſilent, too big for utterance, and far beyond tears.

16. And it came to paſs at the end of ſeven days, that the word of the LORD came unto me, ſaying, 17. [p] Son of man, I have made thee [q] a watchman unto the houſe of Iſrael: therefore hear the word at my mouth, and give them warning from me. 18. When I ſay unto the wicked, Thou ſhalt ſurely die, and thou giveſt him not warning, nor ſpeakeſt to warn the wicked from his wicked way, to ſave his life: the ſame wicked man ſhall die in his iniquity; but [r] his blood will I require at thine hand. 19. Yet if thou warn the wicked, and he turn not from his wickedneſs, nor from his wicked way, he ſhall die in his iniquity; [s] but thou haſt delivered thy ſoul. 20. Again, when [t] a righteous man doth turn from his righteouſneſs, and commit iniquity, and I lay [u] a ſtumbling-block before him, he ſhall die: becauſe thou haſt not given him warning, he ſhall die in his ſin, and his righteouſneſs which he hath done ſhall not be remembred; but his blood will I require at thine hand. 21. Neverthelеſs, if thou warn the righteous man, that the righteous ſin not, and he doth not ſin; [x] he ſhall ſurely live, becauſe he is warned: alſo thou haſt delivered thy ſoul.

[p] Chap. xxxiii. 7, &c.
[q] Iſa. lii. 8. & lvi. 10. & lxii. 6. Jer. vi. 17. Hoſ. ix. 8.
[r] Acts xx. 26.
[s] Iſa. xlix. 4, 5.
[t] Chap. xviii. 24. & xxxiii. 12, 13.
[u] 2 Theſ. ii. 11.
[x] Prov. xxviii. 13.

v. 16—21. After ſeven days God ſends his word to him: probably this was a ſabbath, and he will thus honour his day by eſpecial manifeſtations of himſelf.

1. God tells him his office. Son of man, I have made thee a watchman unto the houſe of Iſrael; to watch over their ſouls, to warn and guard them againſt their ſpiritual enemies; for which purpoſe, ſharp diſcernment, ſleepleſs vigilance, and courageous fidelity are needful. Note, They whom God appoints for watchmen on the walls of his Zion, the church, muſt ſhun no toil; deſert their poſt for no danger; watch always; and pray for a better guard than their own, conſcious that without the divine benediction and care the watchman waketh but in vain.

2. The duty of his office is ſet before him, the bleſſings of fidelity, and the curſe of unfaithfulneſs. He muſt ſpeak according to the divine word communicated to him. Hear the word at my mouth, and give them warning from me; and as the characters of men are different, he muſt diſtinguiſh between the precious and the vile, and give to each their due portion.

[1.] He muſt addreſs the wicked, to warn him of his danger, and lead him to repentance. (1.) Whilſt he perſiſts in his ſins he is a damned ſoul, and eternal death his portion. (2.) If he repents, and turns from his wickedneſs, he ſhall ſave his life, God being ready to pardon and receive every returning ſinner. (3.) Though the miniſter be negligent, that will be no excuſe; for the ſinner ſhall periſh in his iniquity. Yet, (4.) God will require at the watchman's hands the ſouls that were loſt through his careleſſneſs and unfaithfulneſs; and a terrible reckoning will this prove in a judgment day for all unfaithful and negligent miniſters. (5.) If they have been faithful, though unſucceſsful, God will approve their conduct, and they ſhall at leaſt deliver their own ſouls.

[2.] He muſt addreſs the righteous; either thoſe who are ſuch profeſſionally, or in ſincerity and truth. (1.) Some are only externally righteous, delivered from groſſer exceſſes, and obſervant of the forms of godlineſs merely. Theſe eaſily turn from their righteouſneſs, and commit iniquity: they have no inward principle to ſupport them in the time of temptation, and therefore apoſtatize from the little profeſſion they made. In the way of ſuch God lays ſtumbling-blocks, to diſcover the ſecret wickedneſs that reigns within; placing them in ſuch circumſtances, and withholding his reſtraining grace, ſo that what is in their hearts breaks forth. Theſe will die eternally, and all their good deeds and duties, on which they truſted, will ſtand them in no ſtead. Of this he muſt aſſure them, at the peril of his own ſoul, chargeable with their blood if he neglect his office; not that his neglect will be their exculpation; they ſhall notwithſtanding periſh in their apoſtacy. (2.) Some are righteous in ſincerity and truth, juſtified by Chriſt Jeſus, and ſanctified by his ſpirit, yet theſe need warnings; not that they ever can or will periſh, but that God, who hath ordained the end, hath alſo ordained the means, in the uſe of which their perſeverance is ſecured. Theſe muſt be warned that they ſin not; for in the moſt holy, corruption ſtill wars, and they need continually to watch and pray againſt it; the effect of which will be, that he ſin not, receiving and improving under the word of exhortation. In this way he ſhall ſurely live, and finally be ſaved, the path of holineſs being the way to glory. The warning through divine grace will be made effectual, and the fidelity of the miniſter approved: thus he ſhall ſave his own ſoul, and thoſe who hear him, 1 Tim. iv. 6.

Before Chriſt 595.

y Chap. i. 3. Ver. 14.
z Chap. viii. 4.
a Chap. i. 28.
b Ibid. i. 28.
c Ibid. ii. 2.
d Ibid. iv. 8.
e Ibid. xxiv. 27. Luke i. 20, 22.
† Heb. A man reproving.
f Chap. ii. 5, &c.
g Ibid. xxiv. 27. & xxxiii. 22.
h Ver. 9, 26.

22. ¶ And [y] the hand of the LORD was there upon me, and he ſaid unto me, Ariſe, go forth [z] into the plain, and I will there talk with thee. 23. Then I aroſe, and went forth into the plain, and behold, [a] the glory of the LORD ſtood there, as the glory which I ſaw by the river of Chebar; [b] and I fell on my face. 24. Then [c] the ſpirit entred into me, and ſet me upon my feet, and ſpake with me, and ſaid unto me, Go, ſhut thyſelf within thine houſe. 25. But thou, O ſon of man, behold, they [d] ſhall put bands upon thee, and ſhall bind thee with them, and thou ſhalt not go out among them. 26. And [e] I will make thy tongue cleave to the roof of thy mouth, that thou ſhalt be dumb, and ſhalt not be to them † a reprover, [f] for they are a rebellious houſe. 27. [g] But when I ſpeak with thee, I will open thy mouth, and thou ſhalt ſay unto them, Thus ſaith the LORD God, He that heareth, let him hear; and he that forbeareth, let him forbear: [h] for they are a rebellious houſe.

v. 22—27. We have here a repetition of the former glorious viſion made to the prophet in the plain, whither at the divine command he had gone forth, vouchſafed to him probably to confirm his faith, and overcome the reluctance he might feel, to undertake the prophetic office.

1. He is commanded to go and ſhut himſelf up in his houſe, v. 24. there to wait farther inſtructions from God; or, as withdrawing himſelf from a people unworthy of the divine notice; or as others with probability ſuggeſt, as a figure of Jeruſalem cloſely beſieged by the Chaldeans, ſo that none might go forth. Note, (1.) It is a heavy judgment on a people, when God ſhuts up and removes from them their faithful reprovers. (2.) Miniſters have need of retirement, to learn of God themſelves what they muſt declare unto others. There is little proſpect of profitable preaching, without previous meditation and prayer.

2. He is warned of the inſults they would put upon him. They ſhall put bands upon thee, either as a diſturber of the peace, as a falſe prophet, or a mad enthuſiaſt; with all which characters the faithful and zealous miniſters of God are often branded: or this may be underſtood figuratively, either of the obſtinate diſobedience of the people which ſhut his mouth, or of the divine order to retire, which tied up his hands from labouring among them. Therefore,

3. He muſt be ſilent, neither go among them, nor ſpeak to them as a reprover, but leave them to their hard and impenitent hearts, as a rebellious houſe, till God ſhall take off the interdict; and having communicated to the prophet all his mind concerning them, ſhall open his mouth, and authoriſe and enable him to ſpeak, whether they will hear and be reformed, or forbear at the peril of their eternal ruin. God's mercy will thus be glorified in the ſalvation of the repentant ſinner, or his juſtice in the damnation of the obſtinately rebellious.

CHAP. IV.

To ſilence the preſumption of thoſe who flattered themſelves with a ſpeedy return to Jeruſalem, as the falſe prophets aſſured them, we have here, 1. Jeruſalem beſieged in a figure, and taken, ver. 1—8. 2. The raging famine typically repreſented by the prophet, ver. 9—17.

† Or chief leaders.
‡ Or a flat plate.
a Chap. xvi. 46.

1. THOU alſo, ſon of man, take thee a tile, and lay it before thee, and pourtray upon it the city, even Jeruſalem; 2. And lay ſiege againſt it, and build a fort againſt it, and caſt a mount againſt it: ſet the camp alſo againſt it, and ſet † battering rams againſt it round about. 3. Moreover, take thou unto thee ‡ an iron pan, and ſet it for a wall of iron between thee and the city, and ſet thy face againſt it, and it ſhall be beſieged, and thou ſhalt lay ſiege againſt it: this ſhall be a ſign to the houſe of Iſrael. 4. Lie thou alſo upon [a] thy left ſide, and lay the iniquity of the houſe of Iſrael upon it: according to the number of the days that thou ſhalt lie upon it, thou ſhalt bear their iniquity. 5. For I have laid upon thee the years of their iniquity, according to the number of the days, ‖ three hundred and ninety days: [b] ſo ſhalt thou bear the iniquity of the houſe of Iſrael. 6. And when thou haſt accompliſhed them, lie again on thy right ſide, and thou ſhalt bear the iniquity of the houſe of Judah forty days: I have appointed thee § each day for a year. 7. Therefore thou ſhalt ſet thy face toward the ſiege of Jeruſalem, and thine arm ſhall be uncovered, and thou ſhalt propheſy againſt it. 8. And behold, [c] I will lay bands upon thee, and thou ſhalt not turn thee † from one ſide to another, till thou haſt ended the days of thy ſiege.

Before Chriſt 594.
‖ Beginning at 975. 1 Kings xii. 20. & ending at 585.
b Num. xiv. 34.
§ Heb. A day for a year, a day for a year.
c Chap. iii. 25.
† Heb. From thy ſide to thy ſide.

v. 1—8. Whether the tranſactions mentioned in this chapter were done in reality or in viſion only is dubious. It is contended againſt the reality, that the poſition, v. 4. without a miracle, could not be kept ſo long, and that the prophet is ſpoken of as ſitting in his houſe before the expiration of the days. Compare chap. i. 1, 2. viii. 1. for from the fifth of the fourth month in the fifth year, to the fifth of the ſixth month in the ſixth year, are but four hundred and thirteen days, and ſeven of theſe muſt be at leaſt deducted, chap. iii. 15. whilſt three hundred and ninety, and forty, make four hundred and thirty days: and as for the bread which the prophet is commanded to eat, it ſeems a ſeverity and indecence which he could ſcarce be called to ſubmit to. Others, and thoſe too of greateſt weight, ſupport the reality of the tranſaction; the things are ſpoken of as facts, by theſe he was to propheſy, v. 7. when his lips were ſilent, he was to do this, v. 12. in the ſight of the people. His ſituation or diſagreeable diet being enjoined of God for purpoſes of his glory, he would be comfortably ſupported under it; and that he really uſed the bread ſpoken of v. 9. his prayer v. 14. ſtrongly implies. The days may be accounted for, by ſuppoſing an intercalated month that year, as was common; or that the forty days for Judah are included in the three hundred and ninety for Iſrael.

1. On a tyle he is commanded to pourtray the ſiege of Jeruſalem, ſurrounded with mounts, bulwarks, and battering rams; and the iron pan ſet between him and the city, againſt which, as the repreſentative of the Chaldean army he lays ſiege, ſignifies the ſtrength of their works, as a wall of iron compaſſing the city; and the ſafety in which the beſiegers lay being thus covered; and their fixed reſolution to carry the place is implied by the prophet's face ſet againſt Jeruſalem, and his arm made bare.

2. He is ordered to lie on his left ſide three hundred and ninety days, and forty days on his right; or to accompliſh the number of three hundred and ninety days for Iſrael, with forty for Judah, bearing their iniquity, the puniſhment of it, a day for a year; which years are reckoned from the revolt of Jeroboam to the deſtruction of the temple; and the forty years of Judah's peculiar iniquity are either the reign of Manaſſeh, or from the thirteenth of Joſiah, when Jeremiah began to propheſy: nothing contributing ſo much to a people's guilt and ruin, as the rejecting God's miniſters, and the warnings he vouchſafes to them.

